

The English Hexapla

By Samuel Bagster, et F.F. - 1841

The English Hexapla, exhibiting the six important English translations of the New Testament Scriptures, Wiclif, 1580; Tyndale, 1534; The Great Bible, 1539; Genevan, 1557; Anglo-Rhemish, 1582; Authorized, 1611; the original Greek text after Scholz, with the various readings of the textus receptus and the principal Constantinopolitan and Alexandrine manuscripts, and a complete collation of Scholz's text with Griesbach's edition of 1805; preceded by an historical account of the English translations.

UNIV. OF TORONTO
LIBRARY

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2008 with funding from Microsoft Corporation

SAMUEL BAGSTER et F. F. proponunt ad considerandum annon Omnium Bibliorum Sacrorum Editionem Polyglottam ad hoc tempus evulgare, et utile foret, et quod fieri posset; quæ amplecteretur eas omnes S.S. linguas (tam integras, quam fragmenta) cum iis Addendis Criticis, eoque Grammatico alioque Apparatu, quæ probata fuerint, et Bibliorum Polyglottorum impressioni ab omni parte quam maximè perfectè necessaria esse haberentur; quæque in se contineret quidquid pretii habent quattuor illæ celeberrimæ editiones—“Polyglotta Complutensia,” auspiciis impensisque Cardinalis Ximenis edita in sex magnis Voluminibus A. D. 1514-7. “Polyglotta Antuerpensia” Philippi Hispaniarum II<sup>æ</sup> sumptibus parata in octo magnis Voll: A. D. 1569-72. “Polyglotta Parisiensia” (Le Jaye) in decem magnis Voll: A. D. 1645; et Briani Waltoni “Polyglotta Londinensia” impensis plurimorum vulgata in sex magnis Voluminibus, A. D. 1653-7.

Ex quo Waltonus Episcopus magno suo operi finem imposuit prope duo sæcula elapsa sunt. In quo, utpote longo, tempore multa, quæ Bibliorum Polyglottorum editionem et pretiosorem et venustiorum redditura sunt, tam nostrorum quam peregrinorum diligentia in lucem prodierunt: et per promptam illam liberalitatem, quæ efficit ut quidquid hodie eruditionis est in publicum usum conferatur, multis jam commodis frui licet, quæ doctis illius aliorumque operum editoribus aut penitus ignota aut inaccessa fuerunt, quæque hoc presens tempus tanquam difficili huic incepto faustum et conveniens indicare videntur.

Quo vero firma operis ratio inest, et validum fundamentum accuratè ponatur, et quo ex amplâ eâ, quæ in manibus est, materiâ quam maximum percipiatur commodum, ante omnia momenti est, ut consultè seligatur quid revera pretii est, et dignum quod accipiatur, utque omnia, quæ magno huic proposito non recte conducunt, seponantur et rejiciantur.

Itaque Editores per hanc consilii sui promulgationem Eruditorum animadversionem auctoritatemque præcipue querunt, rogantque ut secum communicare velint, quo ipsi monitis doctorum proficere possint, antequam Rationem aliquam exponere conentur.

In hoc temporis duobus operibus Editores diligenter incumbunt, quorum unum, “Hexapla Anglicana,” jam tantum non evulgatum est, alterum, “Biblia Polyglotta Ecclesie,” Archiepiscopo Cantuariensi, veniâ impetratâ, inscriptum, curâ Reverendi Viri Frederici Hliff, D.D. ad publicationem progreditur. Quæ dum, unâ cum aliis operibus, janjam annuntiat, parantur et perficiuntur, querunt Editores ut liceat sibi cum iis communicare qui gravem suam auctoritatem in auxilium propositi maximè expetendi, qualis est hæc Bibliorum Polyglottorum publicatio, humanissimè præbere velint.

“Hexapla Anglicana,” et “Biblia Polyglotta Ecclesie,” cum cæteris quæ jam vulgo in manibus sunt, diligentie Editorum in operibus accurate atque omnino eleganter ornandis pro testimonio adhiberi poterunt.

Bible

Eng

1841

T H E

English Hexapla

EXHIBITING THE SIX IMPORTANT ENGLISH TRANSLATIONS
OF THE
NEW TESTAMENT SCRIPTURES,

WICLIF
TYNDALE
CRANMER

M.CCC.LXXX.
M.D.XXXIV.
M.D.XXXIX.

GENEVAN
ANGLO-RHEMISH
AUTHORISED

M.D.LVII.
M.D.LXXXII.
M.DC.XI.

THE ORIGINAL GREEK TEXT AFTER SCHOLZ

WITH THE VARIOUS READINGS OF THE TEXTUS RECEPTUS AND THE PRINCIPAL CONSTANTINOPOLITAN AND ALEXANDRINE MANUSCRIPTS, AND A COMPLETE COLLATION OF SCHOLZ'S TEXT WITH GRIESBACH'S EDITION OF M.DCCC.V.;

PRECEDED BY

AN HISTORICAL ACCOUNT OF THE ENGLISH TRANSLATIONS.

"SURE I AM, THAT THERE COMMETH MORE KNOWLEDGE AND UNDERSTANDINGE OF THE SCRIPTURE BY THEYR SONDRIE TRANSLATIONS, THEN BY ALL THE GLOSES OF OURE SOPHISTICALL DOCTOURS. FOR THAT ONE INTERPRETETH SOMTHYNGE OBSCURELY IN ONE PLACE, THE SAME TRANSLATETH ANOTHER (OR ELS HE HIM SELFE) MORE MANIFESTLY BY A MORE PLAYNE VOCABLE OF THE SAME MEANYNG IN ANOTHER PLACE." Myles Couerdale—'A PROLOGE YNTO THE CHRISTEN READER'—BIBLE, M.D. XXXV.

LONDON :

Samuel Bagster and Sons, Paternoster Row :

AT THE WAREHOUSE FOR BIBLES, NEW TESTAMENTS, CONCORDANCES, PRAYER-BOOKS, AND PSALTERS, IN ANCIENT AND MODERN LANGUAGES.

ΠΟΛΛΑΙ μὲν θνητοὶ ΓΛΩΤΤΑΙ, μὴ δ' ἀθανάτοισιν.

M.DCCC.XLI

AN HISTORICAL ACCOUNT
OF THE
ENGLISH VERSIONS OF THE SCRIPTURES, IN CONNECTION WITH THE PROGRESS OF THE REFORMATION: WITH BIOGRAPHICAL NOTICES OF VARIOUS TRANSLATORS.

PART I.
PERIOD PRIOR TO THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII.

I.

THE ANGLO-SAXON AND ENGLISH VERSIONS, PRIOR TO THE MIDDLE OF THE FOURTEENTH CENTURY.

IN this account it is particularly intended to trace the workings of the hand of God, in introducing the circulation of the Scriptures, and thus bringing about the Reformation in this country. In England, it has to be specially noticed, that the great instrument of the Reformation was the reading of the word of God, just as, in Germany, the attention excited by Luther's personal testimony is seen bringing the truth before all men, and as in Switzerland, we see the labours of many evangelists who preached Christ in many places.

The Anglo-Saxon and early English versions have first to be noticed, tracing out what appears to have been done prior to the days of Wiclif:—then the version of Wiclif, its causes and consequences:—a century and a half later, the labours of Tyndale and Coverdale have to be especially rested on,—and, subsequently, the various versions executed up to the year 1611, when the translation which we have in daily use, was published.

The outline of the history of the translation and diffusion of the Scriptures in English, is one from which we may learn how much cause we have for thankfulness, that we are permitted the unhindered use of the Word of God in our own tongue. The Scripture, as being the record of the Holy Ghost, concerning the love which God has shown in the gift of his Son, that his blood should be shed for sinners, was not given forth for a few merely; but it is that which is set before the eyes of all, not for them to exercise respecting it any supposed right or ability of forming a judgment of their own, but for them to acknowledge the authority of God to speak, and their responsibility to hear.

Scripture addressed to the consciences of all.

The Saxon invasions of Britain from the middle of the fifth century and onward, issued in the peopling of almost the whole of the southern part of the island with idolators; Christianity, such as it was, could only be found in the western edges of South Britain. The conversion of the Saxons to a profession of Christianity was effected by three means:—the mission of Augustine, the labours of Scottish Christians, and the efforts in some places of the conquered Britons. After the profession of the Christian religion became general on the part of the Saxons, the Scriptures were among them only in Latin, as found either in some of the versions anterior to Jerome's revision, yet extant in that day, or else in the Vulgate as more ordinarily used.

Saxon invasion of Britain and its consequences. A. D. 430.

Conversion of the Saxons. A. D. 596. Scriptures among them in Latin.

There appears to have been no objection made to vernacular translations of the Scriptures; but still no particular desire seems to have been felt for any such version; this implies at least that the Scriptures

The people little acquainted with the revelation of God.

were in the hands of the hierarchy, and that the people in general received what they knew of the revelation of God from their instructions. It is impossible to say when, or by whom, the first Anglo-Saxon version of any portion of Scripture was executed: what is known respecting any of these versions has been carefully collected by Mr. Baber, from whom the facts relative to these early versions are principally derived.*

Seventh-century poem, Cædmon's paraphrase in verse.

The first attempt, of which we have certain knowledge, at any thing like a paraphrase of Scripture in the Anglo-Saxon tongue to which a date can be assigned, is the poem of Cædmon in the seventh century. He is thus mentioned by the Venerable Bede; "Cædmonus divinā gratiā specialiter insignis carmina religioni et pietati apta facere solebat . . . . Canebat autem de creatione mundi et origine humani generis et totā Genesis historiā, de egressu Israel ex Ægypto et ingressu in terram reipromissionis, ac de aliis plurimis sacre Scripturæ historiis." This poem, although containing Scripture histories, seems to be as little of a translation, or even paraphrase, of the Scriptures as any modern poem on Scripture subjects: but still it was a commencement; it gave some narrations of the Scripture in the vernacular tongue, and thus it may have been the precursor of real translations. The poem of Cædmon was published by Junius, at Amsterdam, in 1665. Its subject is pretty well described in the brief notice given by Bede. It opens with the fall of the angels, the creation, the deluge, the history of the children of Israel in their departure from Egypt and entering into the promised land. Nebuchadnezzar and Daniel, with portions of their histories, are also introduced.

Cædmon's poem, published in 1665. Its contents.

Literal translations in the eighth century.

Two versions of the Psalter. Aldhelm and Guthlac.

Latin Psalter with interlined version. Cotton MSS. Vesp. A. 1.

This portion of Scripture history in verse was succeeded, in the following century, by literal translations of the Scripture lessons read in the daily services of the church. The early part of this century (the eighth) is the date to which two Anglo-Saxon versions of the Psalter are attributed; the translators are reputed to have been ALDHELM, Bishop of Sherborn, and GUTHLAC the first Saxon anchorite. It is, however, doubtful, whether either of these versions be yet in existence; one of them may, however, be possibly contained in a very ancient Psalter in which an interlinear Anglo-Saxon version has been added to the Latin text; this Psalter is said to have been one which was sent by Pope Gregory to Augustine, the monk, after his mission to this country (A.D. 596); whether the book really belongs to so very early a period can hardly be questioned with any reason; † whatever the history of this copy may be, the Latin text is very ancient, and the more modern version, which has been added between the lines, belongs likewise to a very remote period.

Bede in the eighth century translates the Gospel of St. John. Baber, p. lix. Cutberti vita Ven. Bede.

There can be no doubt that the Venerable BEDE did in this century translate into the Anglo-Saxon tongue, the Gospel of St. John; this appears to be the first portion of the New Testament of which we have any account as being translated into the vernacular language of this country.

Durham Book, A.D. 680. Cott. MSS. Nero, D. iv.

A manuscript of the four Gospels of Jerome's Latin version was copied by Eadfrid, afterwards Bishop of Lindisfarne, in the year 680; this manuscript was greatly adorned by Ethelwold, his successor in his see, (with the assistance of Bilfrid, an anchorite), with golden bosses and precious stones as well as very curious illuminations. To this manuscript, an interlined Anglo-Saxon version was, at some subsequent period, added by a priest named ALDRED: the date of this version is much questioned, but the reign of Alfred appears to be regarded as about the most probable period. This manuscript is known by the name of THE DURHAM BOOK.

The Rushworth Gloss a version of the gospels, by Færmæn and Owen.

There is another Anglo-Saxon version of the four gospels, probably of the same antiquity as the one just mentioned. This version, like the former, is interlined, the Anglo-Saxon word being placed over the corresponding Latin. The version, or gloss, as it is termed, appears to have been the work of two individuals FÆRMÆN and OWEN; the former having made the translation of St. Matthew's Gospel, the latter the rest of the work; this is indicated by the subscriptions at the end of the respective portions; to St. Matthew's Gospel there is subjoined "Færmæn presbyter thas boc thas gleosode;" (Færmæn the presbyter this book thus glossed [i.e. interpreted]). At the end of the book there is subjoined; "The min bruche gebilde fore OWEN the thas boc gleosede Færmæn, thæm preoste æt Harawada; (He that of mine profiteth bede [pray] he for Owen that this book glossed [and] Færmæn the priest at Harwood.) After this, the transcriber of the manuscript has added his own subscription in Saxon characters, "Macregol depinexit hoc euangelium, * Baber's "Historical Account of the Saxon and English Versions of the Scriptures previous to the opening of the Fifteenth Century" is prefixed to his edition of Wiel's New Testament. It consists of but a few pages altogether, but the labour and research are such as to stamp upon them a very peculiar value.

† Baber says (p. lviii.) "It has well-grounded pretensions to be one of the books which Pope Gregory the Great sent to Augustin, first archbishop of Canterbury, soon after his arrival in England. . . . The Latin text is written in that thin light [rather firm clear] hand, which characterizes manuscripts penned in Italy." From a collation of part of this manuscript, I find that it contains the text of the Roman Psalter, which was introduced at Canterbury, whereas the Gallican obtained a footing in other parts of England; this confirms the reputed history of the book. The interlinear Anglo-Saxon version is written in a very neat minute hand, each word standing over the corresponding Latin.

quicumque legerit et intellexerit istam narrationem orat pro Macreguil scriptori." From this subscription of Macgregol, or Macreguil, we may learn two things; first, that vernacular versions were not at that time at all prohibited; and, secondly, that the transcriber deemed that in multiplying copies, he was doing a deed which might claim on his behalf the prayers of those who read or understood the book. This valuable and interesting Manuscript is in the Bodleian Library; it is called from the name of a former owner the RUSHWORTH GLOSS.

ALFRED, commonly called the Great, translated the Ten Commandments, together with passages from the twenty-first, twenty-second, and twenty-third chapters of Exodus; these were prefixed to the body of laws which he promulgated. Other translations of parts of Scripture have been ascribed to him; but nothing else appears certain as having been done by him: he undertook a version of the Psalter, but did not live to execute it.

In the tenth century there was a partial gloss of the book of Proverbs executed; the version being inserted between the lines of a Latin copy, through a considerable portion of the book. No part of this is a finished translation; sometimes but one Latin word in a whole line has any thing in Anglo-Saxon above it; so that it would be too much if we were to suppose that it gives any evidence that a translation of the Proverbs once existed.

In the latter part of the same century were executed the versions and paraphrases of ÆLFRIC of the historical books of the Old Testament. He appears to have done this work with the express intention of enabling his countrymen to read the Scripture history for themselves; and to this end his work is most decidedly popular in its character: thus, some parts are literal and exact versions of select parts, while again others are loosely paraphrastic abridgments or condensations of the sacred narrative. He wrote, also, a summary account of the Old and New Testaments, from which we learn what the portions of Scripture were which he turned into Anglo-Saxon. The following appears the result of his labours;—the Pentateuch, Joshua, Judges, part of the history of the Kings as found in the six books, Samuel, Kings, and Chronicles; Esther, Job (perhaps), Judith, and the two books of Maccabees.

Of these books, the Pentateuch, Joshua, Judges, Job, (if indeed it be his) and part of Judith, have been published in print; that is, in fact, the whole of his versions of which we have any account, excepting the summary of the history of the Kings, the Maccabees, Esther, and the rest of Judith. It is most probable that these books are not now extant.

There exists a third Anglo-Saxon version of the four Evangelists; which appears to have been made at a later period than the other two, one of the existing manuscripts was written, probably, but a little before the time of the Norman Conquest, and the version itself, may belong to a period not much more remote. The translator is unknown, but he appears, in several places at least, to have translated from the Latin version which was in use before the time of Jerome, if, indeed, he has not wholly followed such a copy. This version has been several times printed, first of all in 1571, with a preface by the learned and laborious John Fox, author of "The Acts and Monuments of the Martyrs." This edition was not very accurate, but other editors have bestowed care in amending the text; for this purpose Junius collated four manuscripts of this version, as well as the two earlier translations which have been mentioned as contained in the Durham Book and the Rushworth Gloss; these two last, however, though very valuable as separate translations, could be but of little assistance in correcting the text of another version.

Besides this translation of the Gospels, a few manuscripts containing the Psalter are mentioned as having been written shortly before the time of the conquest. A little later than this there appears to have been an Anglo-Norman version of the Gospels, or at least a transcript of the Gospels into the dialect which was now displacing the genuine Anglo-Saxon: there are three such manuscripts known to be in existence, one of which is attributed to the time of William the Conqueror, the other two to about the time of Henry the Second. The first mentioned of these must be, I should think, ante-dated, for it does not seem to me likely that the effects of Norman intercourse could have so soon shown themselves in producing a marked dialect. These three manuscripts all exhibit the same translation, although with variations made by copyists; it is probable that each one sought to frame the language of the version according to what was most intelligible to himself.

With these gospels ends the series of Anglo-Saxon translations of parts of Scripture; it will be plainly seen that no attempt was made to form a complete version of the Bible, or even of the New Testament; the histories of the Old Testament, the Psalms, so much used in the public services of the church, and the narratives of the four evangelists seem to have been the only parts completed. It may be, that other portions of Scripture were translated which have not come down to us.

Bibl. Bodl.
D 24. No. 3964.

Alfred translates the Ten Commandments, &c.

10th Century. A partial gloss on the Proverbs. Cott. MSS. Vespas. D. vi.

Ælfric's versions, &c.

Some parts literal.

His own account of his labours.

Part of the version of Ælfric printed in 1698.

A third later version of the Gospels.

The Ante-hieronymian text used. This version printed 1571, &c.

Anglo-Saxon MSS. of the Psalter.

Anglo-Norman version of the Gospels.

Three such MSS.

One, of the days of Will. I. Two, of the time of Henry II.

The last of the series of Anglo-Saxon versions.

The following is a Summary of the Anglo-Saxon Translations and Paraphrases:—

PENTATEUCH, JOSHUA, JUDGES, and ESTHER, paraphrased by ÆLFRIC, in the latter part of the tenth century.

Some of the HISTORY of the KINGS, and perhaps JOB, by the same.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS in Exodus xx., and parts of the three following chapters, by KING ALFRED, in the latter part of the ninth century.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS; two versions in the beginning of the eighth century by ALDHELM and GUTHLAC.

The same book, as found in manuscripts of the eleventh century.

PART of the PROVERBS, translated probably in the close of the ninth century.

[THE APOCRYPHAL BOOKS OF JUDITH and the MACCABEES, by ÆLFRIC in the latter part of the ninth century.]

THE GOSPEL OF JOHN, by the VENERABLE BEDE in the eighth century.

THE FOUR GOSPELS by ALDRED, probably in the end of the ninth century.

THE GOSPEL OF MATTHEW by FARMEN, probably in the tenth century.

THE GOSPELS OF MARK, LUKE, and JOHN, by OWEN, about the same period.

THE FOUR GOSPELS somewhat later. [The published translation.]

And, again, the FOUR GOSPELS in the ANGLO-NORMAN DIALECT.

To what degree the books in the above list were circulated, cannot of course be in any way ascertained. They were probably not all of them intended for the use of the priests, who ought to have known the Bible in Latin; but still it is likely that few comparatively of the people could read their own tongue: this may have been one reason why no complete version of the Scriptures was made in those days; the unlearned could not use it, the learned would prefer to read the Scriptures in Latin; it is not improbable that some of the interlined versions were made for the instruction of the priests themselves, that they might really understand what they were reading to the people. However this may be, no restraint appears to have been imposed upon the translating or the reading of the Scriptures in the vernacular tongue; and in the possession of a large portion of the word of God thus translated, the inhabitants of this country were much better off than they were at a later period, when the Anglo-Saxon dialect was become obsolete. It is not too much to conclude, that two centuries after the Norman conquest, there was far less knowledge of the Scriptures in England than had been the case in Saxon days.

After the English tongue, such as it then was, had supplanted the Anglo-Saxon, the history of Scripture translations recommences just in the same way as it did before; for as Caedmon had by his paraphrase, or compendium in verse, led the way to actual translations, so at this later period all the earliest attempts of which we know any thing to give any portion of Scripture truth in English are found in paraphrases in verse. The first of these was executed by one ORME, or Ormin, and hence his work is known by the name of "Ormulum;" it is a paraphrase on the Gospels and the Acts of the Apostles, in the style of Saxon poetry without rhyme; exhibiting the English language in its early state. No date appears to be assigned to this work, of which, in fact, comparatively little seems to be known: the language may, perhaps, indicate it to belong to some part of the twelfth century.

The next attempt at Scripture paraphrase in English is likewise in metre; it is contained in a very large volume in the Bodleian Library bearing this title; "Here begynnen the tytles of the book that is cald in Latyn tonge Salus Animas, and in Englysh tonge Sowlehele." Its contents are very various, although almost entirely consisting of religious poetry; amongst the rest is a metrical paraphrase of the Old and New Testaments; this work is supposed to have been executed before the thirteenth century; but like the Paraphrase of Orme, it is very difficult to assign a date to it.

In Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, there is a somewhat similar version of the history contained in the books of Genesis and Exodus; the date is supposed to be about the same as that of "Sowlehele;" the dialect differs, this being (according to Baber) evidently northern.

In the same college there is also an English metrical version of the book of Psalms, supposed to belong to about the year 1300. In other manuscripts (in the Bodleian Library and in the British Museum.) a version is also found partly similar, but with amendments and revisions, probably the partial adaptation of the same version to a more modern diction and orthography. These Psalters are almost the first thing that can be called an attempt at a translation into English. They follow the Latin Psalter which was ordinarily used in the church services, namely the Gallican; that is, the version of the Psalter corrected

Summary of the versions and paraphrases.

Less knowledge of the Scriptures two centuries after the Conquest than in Saxon days.

Gospels, &c. paraphrased. Orme's work, "Ormulum." Bibl. Bodl. Junius I.

Sowlehele MSS. Bodl. 779.

A similar version of Genesis and Exodus. C. C. C. C.

The Psalms in metre in English. Cir. 1300.

The same version improved. Taken from the Gallican Latin text.

by Jerome in accordance with the Greek text of Origen's Hexapla; this version was adopted in the end of the sixth century in Gaul, and afterwards in Britain. This Psalter is followed as closely by this English version as the verse will permit.

The hundredth Psalm is thus given in the two forms of the English version, the original and the revised:—

The hundredth Psalm of both these versions.

ORIGINAL. C.C.C. CANT. MS. 278.

Mirthes to god al erthe that es
Serves to louverd in faines.
In go yhe ai in his siht,
In gladnes that is so briht Whites that louverd god is he thus,
He us made and our self noht us,
His folke and shep of his fode :
In gos his yhates that are gode :
In schrift his worches belive,
In ympnes to him yhe schrive.
Heryhes his name for louverde is hende,
In all his merci do in strende and strende.

LATER VERSION. COTTON MS. VESP. D. VII.

Mirthes to lauerd al erthe that es,
Serues to lauerd in fainenes.
Ingas of him in the sight
In gladeschip bi dai and night.
Wite ye that lauerd he god is thus,
And he us made and ourself noht us;
His folk and schepe of his fode:
In gas his yhates that er gode:
In schrift his porches that be,
In ympnes to him schriue yhe.
Heryes oft him name swa fe,
For that lauerd soft es he
In cuermore his merci esse
And in strende and strende his sothnesse.

With these metrical versions of the Book of Psalms ends the history of known attempts to embody the Scriptures in English prior to the fourteenth century. It will thus be seen that there was far less executed than there had been in Saxon days; so that three hundred years previously an inhabitant of England would have found much more of Scripture in his vernacular tongue than would one who lived at this time.

These the only English versions known, prior to the 14th century.

I say known attempts, because assertions have been not unfrequently made of the existence of very early English translations of the whole of the Scriptures, and of course the possibility of such having existed is not to be denied, while, at the same time, the execution of any such version has never been proved. I think that it is not impossible, that any persons (such as Sir Thomas More when writing against Tynedale) who have alluded to a translation of the Scriptures into English prior to the fourteenth century, have been misled by supposing a metrical paraphrase (such as that contained in "Sowlehele") was a version of the Scriptures.

Metrical paraphrases probably mistaken for versions.

Before giving any account of the English versions of the fourteenth century, it will be well to consider the statements of Sir Thomas More respecting translations of the Scriptures made long previous to the days of Wiclif. It is clear, that any version made in the fourteenth century could not have been accurately spoken of by More as made long before the days of Wiclif.

Sir T. More's statements considered.

In the year 1408, when the opinions which Wiclif taught, and his translation of the Scriptures, had excited very general attention, a convention was held by Archbishop Arundel, at which several constitutions were decreed, of which the seventh runs thus:—"It is a dangerous undertaking, as St. Jerome assures us, to translate the Holy Scriptures; it being very difficult in a version to keep close to the sense of the inspired writers: for, by the confession of the same father, he had mistaken the meaning of several texts. We therefore decree and ordain, that from henceforward no unauthorized person shall translate any part of the holy Scripture into English, or any other language, under any form of book or treatise: neither shall any such book, treatise, or version, made either in Wiclif's time, or since, be read, either in whole or in part, publicly or privately, under the penalty of the greater excommunication, till the said translation shall be approved, either by the bishop of the diocese, or a provincial council, as occasion shall require."

The proceeding of Abp. Arundell, 1408. Collier's Ecc. Hist. iii. 280.

Danger of translating Scripture asserted.

Prohibition to translate the Scriptures.

On this constitution and its intent, Sir Thomas More thus remarks:—"Ye shal understande that the great arch heretike Wickliffe wheras yf hole bylbe was long before his dayes by vertuous & wel lerned men translated into yf english tong, & by good & godly people w<sup>b</sup> deuotion & sobreness wel and reuerently red, toke vpon hym of a malicious purpose to translate it of new. In which translation he purposely corrupted y<sup>e</sup> hollye text, maliciously planting therein such wordes as might in y<sup>e</sup> reders eres serue to y<sup>e</sup> prof<sup>e</sup> of such heresies as he went about to sowe, which he not only set furth with his own translacion of the Bible, but also w<sup>t</sup> certain prologes and glosis whiche he made therupon..... After that it was perceived what harme y<sup>e</sup> people toke by y<sup>e</sup> translacion prologes and gloses of Wickliffe, & also of some other that after him holpe to set

Sir Thomas More's assertion, that the whole had been translated long before Wickliff's. Dialogues, b. iii. c. 14.

furth his secte, than for that cause, and for as much as it is dangerous to translate the text of scripture out of one tong into another, as holy S. Hierome testifieth, for as much as in translation it is hard avoide to kepe the same sentence whole: it was I say for these causes at a counsaile holden at Oxenford prouided, upon great payn, y<sup>e</sup> no man should from thencefurth translate into the englishe tongue or any other language, of his own authoritie, by way of boke, lybel or tretice, nor no man openly or secretly anye such boke lybel or tretice reade newly made in y<sup>e</sup> time of the said John Wicliffe or since, or that should be made any time after, till the same translation wer by the dyocesane, or, if need shoulde require, by a provincial counsaill approued. . . . It neither forbiddeth the translations to be read that wer already wel done of old before Wicliffes daies, nor damneth his because it was new, but because it was nought, nor prohibited new to be made, but prouydeth that they shall not be read if they be miss made til they be by good examination amended, excepte they bee such translations as Wicliffe made and Tyndall, that the malicious minde of the translator had in such wise handled it as it were labor lost to go about to mende them." In another dialogue More's interlocutor objects that the clergy burned the English Bible, without respect to the translation be it good or bad; to this More answers: "Myself haue seen and can shew you Bybles fayr and old written in English which haue been knowen & sene by the byshop of the dyoces, and left in leymens handes & womens to such as he knew for good and catholike folk that used it with deuocion and sobrenes. But of truth al such as are founden in the handes of heretikes they use to take away; but they doe cause none to be burned, as farre as ener I coulde wit, but onely such as be founden faultie. Wherof may be sette forth with euill prologes or glosses maliciouslye made by Wicliffe and other heretikes. For no good man would (I wene) be so mad to burn up the Byble wherin they found no fault, nor any lawe that letted it to be looked on and read."

The constitution of Alp. Aramell referred to.

More's charges against Wicliff's and Tyndale's versions.

More's statement, that he himself had seen such previous versions. Dialogues, b. iii. c. 13.

All versions to be taken out of the hands of heretics.

More's object to defend Bp. Tonstall.

A man who had the Scriptures judged to be a heretic.

A question of chronology.

More's mistakes with regard to Wicliff's version.

Dialogues, b. iii. c. 16.

Opposed to facts.

More's wonder that no approved English translation had been printed.

This statement of Sir Thomas More's was occasioned by the point which he wished to establish, namely, that Bishop Tonstall had performed a defensible, or even praiseworthy act, in burning Tyndale's New Testament; and here it is first of all to be observed, that he says, that all translations found in the hands of heretics, were taken away; this is part of the truth, but not the whole. He does not say, that within seven years before this dialogue was written, as well as at different times for more than a century previously, many persons were condemned as heretics, merely because they possessed, or had read, or had learned some portion of the Scripture in English. No question seems to have been made as to who was the translator of the portions in question; the Scripture, in English, was in itself made sufficient to brand men with the charge of heresy. Farther, there exists no proof, nor indeed has it been alleged, that the Scriptures of any translation at all were circulated, or commonly used by any of the laity in England; so that all that More says about translations, prior to that of Wicliff, being still permitted, is but an empty sound.

As the distinct assertion, that the whole Bible was translated into English long before Wicliff's days, and that he himself had seen such copies, all that can be said is, that it is a mere question of chronology. He may, indeed, have meant the old metrical paraphrases; but I think it more probable that he looked on the constitution of 1408, which prohibits versions made in the days of Wicliff or since, as implying that there were previous translations in existence; he seems farther to have supposed, that Wicliff's translation was characterized by prologues and explanatory glosses; and thus a copy in which these were found, he would attribute to Wicliff, while one in which they were absent, he would regard as being what he termed the far older version. But, indeed, I believe that in all this, More knew very little about what he was speaking of, as little as he did of Tyndale's Testament; and thus he praised a translation which really was Wicliff's, while he condemned, most sweepingly, another, with glosses, which was made a little afterward.

Sir Thomas More again speaks to the same import, with regard to the Scriptures being kept by the clergy from the people. "I haue shewed you, y<sup>e</sup> they kepe none from them, that can no more but they mother tong," "but such translation as be either not yet approved for good; or such as be already reprobud for naught as Wicliffes was and Tyndals. For as for other olde ones y<sup>e</sup> were before Wicliffes daies, remain lawfull, and be in some folkes hands." This was very little in accordance with known facts; and More himself lets us know that he was not very certain about the date of those Bibles which he attributed to periods anterior to that of Wicliff: he seems to wonder that no translation had been made, and formally approved by the clergy or some one bishop, so that it might be printed without fear of penalty, like other books; he had before asserted the free use of translations before the days of Wicliff, to be permitted, but adds, "Yet I thinke ther will no printer lightly be so hote to put anye Byble in prynte at hys own charge, wherof y<sup>e</sup> losse shoulde lie hole on his own necke, & than hang upon a DOUBTFULL TRYAL whether y<sup>e</sup> first copy of his translation was made before Wicliffes daies or since; for if it were made synce it must be approved before the prynting."

Thus, after all, More lets us know that it would hang upon a doubtful trial whether any of the English copies of the Scriptures, then in existence, were translated before the days of Wiclif or not; observe, More had stated such a translation to have been made long before Wiclif's, this could not then have been in the fourteenth century; likewise he had said, that the whole Bible had been so translated, so that no versions of particular parts would help him out of his difficulty. I think that I need say no more to make it plain that Sir Thomas More's statements afford no PROOF of the execution of a version of the whole Bible, anterior to that of Wiclif. Those who have affirmed this, seem to have commonly copied either from Sir Thomas More, or from one another.

More thoroughly contradicts himself.

There does not thus appear any thing like evidence of the existence of an English version of the Scriptures, either of the Old Testament or of the New, prior to the fourteenth century; and further it may be said, that to the same century may be ascribed the first translation, of which there is authentic information, of any portion at all of the word of God into English prose. The first of the translators of this period was RICHARD ROLLE, hermit of HAMPOLE, who has been most commonly known by the latter name, being designated agreeably to the custom of the age, Richard Hampole, or simply Hampole; the place from which he took this appellation, is near Doncaster. This hermit lived in the early half of the fourteenth century, and his object in making translations of parts of the Scripture appears especially to have been occupation and amusement. The portion of Scripture, the translation of which may be with certainty ascribed to Hampole, is the book of Psalms; which he turned together with the Hymns of the Church into English, subjoining a comment to each verse. Hampole thus speaks in the prologue to the Psalms: "In this worke y seke no straunge Englishe, bot esieste and comuneste, and siche that is moost lyche to the Latyne: so that thei that knoweth not the Latyne by the Englishe may come to many Latyne wordis. In the translacione y folewe the lettre as much as I may, and there y fynde no proper Engliche I folewe the wit of the wordis so that thei that shal reede it, thar not drede erryng. In expownyng I folewe hooly Doctors, and resoun: repropuyng synne... For this boke may comen into summe envious manns honde. . . and suche wolle seye that I wiste not what I seyde, and so do harme to hymself and to othur."

No evidence of an English version of the Old or New Testament prior to the fourteenth century. Richard Rolle of Hampole. Fourteenth century.

The Psalms with a comment.

Hampole's prologue, Bib. Reg. Mus. Brit. 18. D. 1.

His manner of translating, and of expounding.

The following may be taken as specimen of Hampole's version: the Latin Psalter which he follows is the Gallican. Psalm xxiii (Lat. xxii).

Psalm xxiii. A specimen of Hampole's version. The first in English prose. Bib. Reg. Mus. Brit. 18. D. 1. Psalm 1—79.

"Our lord governeth me and nothyng to me shal wante: stede of pasture that he me sette.

"In the water of betyng forth he me brougte: my soule he turnyde.

"He ladde me on in the stretis of rygtywisnesse: for his name.

"For win gif I hadde goo in myddil of the shadewe of deeth: I shal not dreede yueles, for thou art with me.

"Thi geerde and thi staf: thei haue counfortid me. Thou hast greythid in my sygt a bord: agens hem that angryn me.

"Thou fattide myn heued in oyle: and my chalys drunkenyng what is cleer.

"And thi mercy shal folewe me: in alle the dayes of my lyf.

"And that I wone in the hous of oure lord in the lengthe of dayes."

But although Hampole commenced thus the translation of Scripture into English prose, he seems to have preferred greatly to follow in the path which had been trodden before him; he made a translation in verse of the seven penitential psalms; a paraphrase in verse of certain portions of Job; and also a profuse paraphrase on the Lord's prayer.

Hampole's translation in verse.

Besides this translation of the Psalter by Hampole, there are two other versions of the same book extant, the date of which appears to be about the same as his; one of these resembles Hampole's version, the other is widely different.

Two other versions of the Psalter.

Besides these three versions of the Psalter, there is likewise mentioned by Lewis a manuscript in the library of Benet College, Cambridge, containing a gloss on the following books of the New Testament:—the gospels of St. Mark and St. Luke, the epistles to the Romans, Corinthians, Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, [the apocryphal epistle to the Laodiceans,] Thessalonians, Timothy, Titus, Philemon, and Hebrews. From the existence of a gloss comprehending so very large a portion of the New Testament, I think it very probable that the whole of this division of the Scriptures was about that period thus rendered into English; this manuscript may in fact be a portion of such a work.

A gloss on part of the New Test. (Lewis Hist. Trans. p. 16) MS. Benet Coll. Camb. P. vi.

The following is a sample of this gloss, as communicated to Mr. Lewis by Dr. Waterland:

Mark i. 1. "And he prechyd sayande, a stalwother thane I schal come efter me of whom I am not worthi downfallande, or knelande, to louse the thwonge of his chawcers."

A specimen of this gloss.

Mark vi. 22. "When the doughtyr of that Herodias was in comyn and had tombylde and pleside to Harowde, and also to the sittande at mete, the king says to the wench."

Mark xii. 1. "A man made a vynere, and he made aboute a hegge, and grofe a lake & byggede a tower."

Mark xii. 38. "Be se ware of the scribes whylke will go in stolis and be haylsede in the market and for to sit in synagogis in the fyrste chayers."

Luke ii. 7. "... and layde hym in a cratche: for to hym was no place in the dyversory."

Lewis states the accompanying comment to be much like that of Hampole upon the Psalter; whether this version be the production of Hampole or not, it is at least the most important step in biblical translation which had as yet been made in English. I know of no data upon which to ascribe this work to Hampole, except that which may be supposed to be deduced from similarity of style, and this is very far from a sure criterion. In this, however, we have the labour of some one who in a remote age diligently toiled in the then unwonted field of Scripture translation; and who did far more than had ever been accomplished since Anglo-Saxon days. This work was probably executed for private edification rather than for public circulation, by some priest seeking (as Mr. Baber conjectures,) to instruct those over whom he was set.

A partial translation of the Evangelists in the northern dialect is found in a manuscript in the British Museum, which contains the Gospels for the Sundays throughout the year, translated into English, together with an exposition. The following is a specimen of this version:—

John i. 19—28: "And this is the testimoninge of Ion whan the Iues of ierulm sent prestes & dekenes vnto Ion baptist forto aske him what ertow. And he graunted what he was, & asenseide noȝt. And he graunted & said, for y nam nouȝt crist. And hii asked him, what ertow than, ertow ely? And he answered, I nam nouȝt eli. And hii saiden, Ertow a p̄phete? And he answered and said, nai. And hii said to him, what ertow, that we may ȝif answer to hem that sent us, what sais tow of the seluen? I am a noice of the criand in desert that dresceth our lordes wai as Isaie saith. And hii that were sent thei were of phariseus. And hii asked him and said to him wharto baptizes too, ȝif thou ne be noȝt crist, ne heli, ne prophete? Ion answered to hem and saide. I ȝow baptize in water: forsothe he stode in middes of ȝou that ȝe ne wot nouȝt, he schal com efter me that is made tofore me of whom inam nouȝt worthii to undo the thwonge of his schoes. Theſe thinges ben don in bethaine beyond iordan ther Ion baptized."

The object which the translator of these portions proposed to himself was probably that of making those events of our Saviour's life which are narrated in the Sunday Gospels intelligible to those who were ignorant of Latin. As yet there does not appear to have been in England, either a desire on the part of the people to possess the whole of the Scripture in their own language, or an attempt on the part of the ecclesiastical authorities to forbid this. The close connexion of the translations hitherto noticed with the services of the church is to be borne in mind: these versions have been mostly Psalters and Church Hymns, or else portions of the New Testament which were frequently read in the Latin services, which were clothed in an English dress, apparently by those who belonged to the Roman priesthood, and who carefully guarded the text so translated by their own commentary.

I do not question that these partial translations were instruments of blessing to some of those into whose hands they came. There is a power in the word of God, even if it be but partially known, and the Holy Ghost may apply to the conscience of a sinner even a small portion of His own revelation concerning Christ. But it does not appear even likely that these versions were at all widely circulated; indeed this would be contrary to all probability, when the state of literature in England at that time is considered. Thus something was yet to be waited for, which should give a sufficient impulse to cause laborious pains to be taken to transcribe and circulate the English Scriptures. It was not enough that they should be translated. If they were to be known by the people, they must be forced upon their attention by some new and unwonted means. This was not long delayed.

It is probable that these versions already mentioned, which appear to belong to the fourteenth century, were executed in either the earlier half or not much beyond the middle of it; what others were made at that time (if any) I cannot find. I have noticed all of those to which any allusion is made by Mr. Lewis or Mr. Baber, together with making what farther inquiry was within my power. It will be seen, that nothing which has been mentioned has at all borne out the assertion of Sir Thomas More, as to the Scripture, both of the Old and the New Testaments, having been translated into English before the days of Wiclif. More's assertion is utterly unsupported so far as evidence goes, even though the length of time, "long before Wiclif's days," were not rested upon as a material point. The fallacy of the assertion, if strictly taken, I have already shewn.

The comment like that of Hampole.

A partial translation of the gospels. MSS. Harl. 5035, called in the catalogue "Mirror of Sermons for the whole Year." A specimen. John i. 19—28.

The object of the translation.

These early versions closely connected with the services of the church.

These partial translations probably instruments of blessing. Although but little circulated.

These versions belonging to the earlier half of the fourteenth century. No evidence to warrant Sir T. More's assertions.

There was thus an open field left in biblical labours in England with regard to two points; first, the making of an English version of the whole of the Old and New Testaments; and secondly, the circulation of such a translation after it had been made. We have no account of any attempt to attain either of these objects.

It may be well to re-state what the translations and paraphrases of Scripture in English were which had been made previous to the latter part of the fourteenth century.

THE PARAPHRASE IN METRE, WITHOUT RHYME, OF THE GOSPELS, AND THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES, executed by ORMIN.

THE METRICAL PARAPHRASE OF THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS contained in the collection entitled "SOWLEHELE," supposed to be prior to the year 1300.

THE NORTHERN PARAPHRASE OF GENESIS AND EXODUS (of about the same date), in Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

THE METRICAL PSALTER, of about the same date.

THE REVISED VERSION OF THE PSALMS, somewhat more modern than the preceding.

THE PROSE VERSION OF THE PSALTER, by RICHARD ROLLE of HANPOLE, before the middle of the fourteenth century.

THE METRICAL VERSION OF THE PENITENTIAL PSALMS, part of JOB, and THE LORD'S PRAYER, by the same.

TWO OTHER PROSE VERSIONS OF THE PSALMS.

THE GOSPELS OF MARK AND LUKE, and the EPISTLES OF ST. PAUL.

THE NORTHERN TRANSLATION OF THE DOMINICAL GOSPELS.

Summary of the English versions or paraphrases prior to the middle of the fourteenth century.
The metrical versions, &c.

The prose translations.

II.

SOME ACCOUNT OF WICLIF TO THE TIME OF HIS TRANSLATION OF THE SCRIPTURES.

THE earliest version of the Scriptures into English, which either excited much attention, or was the instrument of any known important results, is most certainly that of JOHN WICLIF. I say this without hesitation, although I neither forget the Anglo-Saxon translations of various portions of the word of God, nor do I overlook the objections which have been from time to time raised against the claim of Wiclif as being the first English translator of the whole of the Scriptures.

Wiclif's version the first which excited much attention, or produced important results in England.

The Anglo-Saxon versions have been already spoken of, but I again advert to them in connection with the translation of Wiclif: I do it for this simple reason, that those versions do not in any way stand in competition with his. They may have been very important in the days in which they were made; they may have afforded the means of learning the revealed will of God to many whose eyes had been otherwise blinded; God may thus have made them instruments of blessing to those who needed the light of his truth; but still, it must always be remembered, that in Wiclif's day they were utterly obsolete. They occupy, it is true, an important place in the history of the vernacular versions of this country, but it would be as unreasonable to call the Vulgate Italian, as the Anglo-Saxon Gospels English; there is as little parity, as to language, between the translation of Ælfric and that of Wiclif, as there is between those of Jerome and Diodati. No one would put the Latin versions of the Scripture amongst the Italian translations, and just so the Anglo-Saxon versions belong to a wholly different category from that of Wiclif.

The Anglo-Saxon versions in no sense competitors of Wiclif's.

Obsolete in the fourteenth century.

But we have this question to examine, "Was WICLIF's the first English translation?" This is, of course, a point of considerable interest; and it becomes especially so, when we have that translation, together with the effects which it produced, as the objects under examination. Even if I should not be able to give an answer wholly explicit or satisfactory to this inquiry, I shall, I believe, be at least able to bring forward certain collateral points which throw some light upon the claim of Wiclif to originality, even if they do not establish it. Some remarks on this point have already been made.

Was Wiclif's the first English translation?

The point which I wish first to bring forward and prove is, that Wiclif's was the first published English version of the Scriptures. I use the word published in the sense in which it was continually used, prior to the invention of printing; now we have affixed a certain conventional sense to the term, which never could have been used before the present mode of multiplying books was introduced; and thus, in speaking of the publication of Wiclif's version, I speak according to the use of the word in the fourteenth century, and not according to that which was introduced in the latter half of the fifteenth.

Wiclif's the first published English version.

Publication of works prior to printing.

Giraldus Cambrensis publishes some of his works by reading them in an open place.

What then would have been formerly regarded as the publication of a work? This was commonly done, either by the author employing copyists, and thus multiplying transcripts for sale, or else by his depositing his work in any place (a convent or college library, or the like), to which learned men might both have access, and have the opportunity of making copies: or else the author used some means for letting the contents of his work be publicly known, and then preparing transcripts for any who might be sufficiently interested to have such copies made. It was in this last mentioned manner that Giraldus Cambrensis published some of his works. He lived in the reign of Henry II., and was one of the companions of Baldwin, archbishop of Canterbury, during his journey through Wales, in preaching the Crusades. Giraldus, wishing to publish some of his works, had a pulpit erected in an open thoroughfare at Brecon (of which place he was archdeacon), and there he read his works aloud, so that those who passed might listen, and any who wished for copies, had the opportunity of having them transcribed. This may serve to illustrate the means which, in former days, were taken to publish any works which had been written or translated.

To return, then, to Wiclif. I do not believe that it has been objected by any, that an English translation previous to his had ever been published; and even if this objection were raised, I do not think any proof could be brought forward in support of such an opinion. Observe, it is not enough that a translation be made, for this is not in itself publication; but means must be taken to diffuse such a translation amongst those who would read it. This attempt to diffuse constitutes the very essence of publication; and I do not think that this can be even alleged of any version prior to Wiclif's. Let individuals have made versions to any number for their own private use, let copies of these have been preserved among the secluded treasures of many libraries, still nothing whatever would have been done, which could at all render the labour of Wiclif an uncalled-for work.

Multiplication of copies of Wiclif's version.

It is most evident that Wiclif must have used no small diligence in his publication of the English Scriptures: this is proved; first, by the numerous copies which have come down to our day in spite of the prohibition issued in the year 1498;—and, secondly, by the notice which was taken of the fact of this version being so much diffused. The testimony of the enemies of Wiclif sufficiently proves this point;—thus Knyghton* says, “The gospel, which Christ delivered to the clergy and doctors of the church, that they might, themselves, sweetly administer to the laity and to weaker persons with the hunger of their mind according to the exigency of the times and the need of persons, did this Master John Wyclif translate out of Latin into English . . . whence through him it became vulgar and more open to the laity, and women who could read, than it used to be to the most learned of the clergy, even to those of them who had the best understanding.” Knyghton then goes on to speak of the contempt which, he says, was thus cast upon the Scripture. Unless we suppose that this Romish writer was led by his zeal to exaggerate greatly the effect which Wiclif's version produced, we cannot help concluding that the diffusion of copies almost as soon as the translation was made, must have been very wide: but let every allowance be made for Knyghton's zeal that may be thought needful, it is impossible to doubt that much of what he says, must rest upon the simple facts of the case. Knyghton thus continues his lament over the diffusion of God's word; “And in this way the gospel pearl is cast abroad, and trodden under foot of swine, and that which used to be precious to both clergy and laity, is rendered, as it were, the common jest of both. The jewel of the clergy is turned into the sport of the laity, and what was hitherto the principal talent of the clergy and doctors of the Church, is made for ever common to the laity.” I do not wonder at these remarks; they are just what might have been expected concerning the reading of the word of God from the mind of one who knew not its value as being the revelation of God. Strange, indeed, that the book which testifies of Christ and His precious blood, should be deemed unfit for the eyes of sinners who need the knowledge of that truth of God; but yet this is not stranger than the fact, which continually occurs, of this book being owned and upheld as coming from God, and yet of its testimony being utterly disregarded.

I rest upon the unsuspected testimony of Knyghton as a proof of the publication of Wiclif's translation;—he proves this in two ways, first, in direct statement of this diffusion: and secondly, in mentioning the resulting consequences: with his sentiments in connection with the subject, of course I can have no sympathy, but this in no way renders his testimony suspicious.

There is thus a peculiar interest attaching to the version of Wiclif; it came forth in a day when Christ's Gospel was scarcely preached, and when human observances of every kind were substituted for that faith through which man, in himself a lost sinner, is justified before God: but although the darkness around were such, yet there was thus a ray of light introduced, a ray which served to show how foul was the * Henry Knyghton was a cotemporary of Wiclif, and a canon of Leicester.

Knyghton de Eventibus Anglie, col. 2644.

The publication of the Scriptures made a ground of accusation against Wiclif.

Knyghton's heavy complaints.

The peculiar interest attaching to Wiclif's version.

atmosphere in which it was shining. Surely it is impossible not to see the overruling hand of God in this: surely we have to ascribe this precious testimony to His truth and Gospel, as having been brought about by His grace. The fact of such a version having been made and diffused at such a period, does, I think, manifest this working of God: but it will make this still more evident, if the causes which led Wiclif to this work be duly considered. In order to ascertain these causes of his undertaking, it will be needful briefly to glance at his previous history and circumstances.*

John Wiclif is supposed to have been born in the year 1324, at a village in Yorkshire, from the name of which he, like other ecclesiastics of that period, took his surname, if indeed it were not his family name also, which is not impossible. In the year 1340, he was one of the original students at Queen's College, Oxford, but he removed shortly after to Merton College, which was then the most distinguished in Oxford. In 1356 his first treatise was written, bearing this title: "The Last Age of the Chirche." It was occasioned by the manner in which England and other countries had been visited with a devastating pestilence, a little while previous to the writing of the tract in question. Its contents exhibit a conscience deeply exercised by the evil and corruption which on every side prevailed in that which was called the Church of God, and the calamities which were to be expected in consequence of these abominations. He looked upon two periods of especial suffering to the Church previous to the coming of the Lord Jesus in the clouds of heaven. Two such periods had already elapsed since Christ had set up His church upon earth; the one, the persecution of the Church by Pagan rulers; the second, the entrance of heresy: "That is put of bi wisdom of seyntis, as the firste was cast out bi stedfastnesse of martiris." With regard to the two periods of peculiar evil to the Church which were yet to be expected, the first would be (as he judged), calamity arising from "the pryui heresie of synonymans;" the last would be the time of the dominion of Antichrist (whom he clearly regarded, in common with almost all early writers, as an individual person), the period of whose "comynge only to God is knowen."†

I rest particularly upon this first publication of Wiclif's, because (although the greater part of it is filled with fanciful calculations out of the Abbot Joachim) I think that in it is to be traced the germ which was developed in his after life and writings, his version of the Scripture itself not excepted. He saw corruption in every class of those who bore the name of Christians; and this was the more manifest in those who were especially standing in eminence of station in the Church. Every thing being thus out of course, there was but one thing for which he looked, and that speedily—the righteous vengeance of God. While all around him were glorying in the name of Church, he testified that this boast was but adding to the condemnation of those that made it. In fact, the apostasy of the Church is plainly pointed out, and the resulting consequences are dwelt on. He supposes that secular power would rise on the ruins of ecclesiastical. However peculiar the sentiments and opinions, and wildly fanciful as are both his citations from the real or pretended writings of the Abbot Joachim and others, and also his own comments as contained in this tract, may now seem to some, yet, in parts, there appear points of valuable truth, setting forth principles which are often overlooked in this day, as they were in his.

But in this tract, Wiclif does not only speak of judgment as being the inevitable consequence of the apostasy of the body (according to Romans xi. 22.), but he likewise points out that security which God giveth to those who believe in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. He thus concludes his tract:—"Whanne we weren synful & children of wraththe, Goddis sone cam out of heuene, & preying his fadir for his enemyes, & he deyed for vs thanne myche rathere we ben maad rijtful bi his blood schule be saued. Poul writith to the romayns, v. c°. He schal praye for vs. Ihus wente into heuene to apere to the semlant of God for vs. Poul to the hebrees: The whiche semlant he graunte vs to see that lyueth & regneth without eende, Amen."

* In these notices, I have mostly followed Baher and Vaughan; the work of the latter is valuable for the light which it throws upon the periods at which the various works of Wiclif were written: in this way his conduct becomes much more intelligible, and the insinuations of Milner and others are shewn to be undeserved. If the researches of Vaughan have not all the importance which he claims for them, they are at least as far, or farther, from the insignificance which some have chosen to ascribe to them. His researches as to the events of Wiclif's life, and the dates of his writings, have, I should think, much more precision than his account and estimate of his opinions. Indeed this latter field was much the more difficult.

† While these pages were in the press, I received a little book entitled, "The Last Age of the Church, by John Wycliffe, now first printed from a Manuscript in the University Library, Dublin. Edited, with Notes, by James Henthorn Todd, D. D., &c." This little volume contains 103 small pages, of which fourteen only comprise Wiclif's tract. The preface and notes of the Editor form the rest of the volume: had these been omitted, there are but few to whom the tract would have been intelligible. The opportunity which I have thus had of comparing Vaughan's account with the book itself, makes me much regret that I am obliged, in several instances, to take my citations from him. A modernizer of an ancient writing ought to take care that he does not make his author say something which he never intended. I thank Vaughan for what he has done, but I should have been still more obliged, if he had given his citations verbatim et literatim.

Birth of John Wiclif, 1324.

1340. Isat Queen's College, Oxford.

Removes to Merton College.

He writes "The Last Age of the Chirche," 1356.

M.S., Trin. Col. Dub. class c. tab. 3. No. 12.

p. xxxv.

Two periods of peculiar evil expected.

Simony. Antichrist.

The apostasy of the Church marked out.

The inevitable consequence of apostasy marked out, as well as the security of any and every believer.

p. xxvvi.

Rom. v. 9.

Heb. ix. 24.

The general corruption of the Church marked by covetousness.

The true key to the understanding of the motive of this tract is to be found in the corruption which existed in the Church of Rome at this time; a corruption which is only equalled by its boldness and freedom from all attempts at concealment. Money seemed to be the one object sought by all classes in the Church, while every portion of Christian doctrine was of course frittered away. It is impossible to say by what means God had wrought upon the soul of Wiclif, we simply have the fact as proved by the results; his conscience was evidently deeply aroused. We shall find that his mind gradually opened to more and more truth, but many of the principles which were afterwards farther developed had been contained in this tract. So far as I know, his later writings were not replete with fanciful speculations.

1360.
Wiclif opposes the mendicant friars.

It was in 1360, four years after the time when the tract just mentioned was written, that Wiclif was known at Oxford as the opponent of the mendicant friars, a body of men whose conduct and character had undoubtedly led to many of his previous reflections on the condition of the Church. We shall find that from that time and onward, these friars were continually harassing and opposing the reformer. The mendicant friars had by their encroachments excited much opposition on the part of those who hated fraud and duplicity. Richard Fitzralph (commonly called Armachanus), who was chancellor of the University of Oxford in 1333, was their determined opponent, both at that time as well as subsequently, when he became (in 1347) archbishop of Armagh. He died in 1360, the year in which Wiclif succeeded to his place in this contention. With regard to these new orders, Wiclif considered that if God had indeed conferred them on the Church, it was done just in the same manner as that in which the Israelites received a king, namely, in chastisement. The controversy with the friars appears to have led Wiclif to the close study of God's word, a circumstance of considerable subsequent importance.

The mendicant friars opposed by Armachanus, Abp. of Armagh, 1347.

Wiclif's opinion with regard to the origin of the friars.

The following year (1361) Wiclif was presented to the rectory of Fillingham, and chosen Warden of Baliol College, in the University of Oxford. In December 1365, however, he accepted the office of warden of Canterbury Hall, being so appointed by Simon Islip, then archbishop of Canterbury. This situation involved him in no small trouble; and circumstances connected therewith first brought him into direct collision with the Papacy. Archbishop Islip was himself the founder of Canterbury Hall, which was to consist of a warden and three scholars (all chosen from amongst the monks of Christ Church, Canterbury), and eight secular clergy. This arrangement he afterwards saw fit to alter, by removing the warden and the other three monks, and placing in their stead secular scholars. The first warden who had been appointed was a monk named Woodhall, a doctor of divinity, a man apparently of ability, but of a most ungoverned temper. This he shewed in his management of Canterbury Hall, where the disputes between the regular and the secular clergy (i. e. those who belonged to monastic orders and those who did not) ran high: in fact, it could hardly be otherwise, when such incongruous materials were attempted to be blended together. In consequence of the dissensions, Archbishop Islip availed himself of a right which he had intended to have reserved to himself in his deed of foundation, for the subsequent regulation of the Hall.

1361.
Rector of Fillingham, and warden of Baliol College.

1365.
Warden of Canterbury Hall.

The constitution of the house.

Woodhall the first warden.

Dissensions.

The constitution of the house changed.

Woodhall appeals to Abp. Langham, and is restored, March, 1367.

Wiclif appeals to the Pope, who decides against him.

As soon as Archbishop Islip was dead, the rejected warden, Woodhall, appealed to the new archbishop, Peter Langham, in hopes of obtaining the wardenship from which he had been deprived by the preceding archbishop. In March, 1367, Woodhall was restored, although it was done in direct contravention of the intention of the founder of the Hall; and in consequence, Wiclif appealed from the archbishop to the Pope. The decision at length, after some years, was given in favour of the monks, and against Wiclif; and not only was the secular warden thus excluded, but it was declared that none except monks were to have any claim to admission to that Hall. This contest is so far of importance, as having been the first direct contact into which Wiclif was brought with the Papacy, as well as because the whole of the opposition which was made to him by the monks resulted from their enmity having been excited by his testimony against their corruptions. It is of course evident, that at the time of Wiclif's appeal to the Pope, he did not question the authority of the Papacy in ecclesiastical matters, while at the same time he was actually engaged in opposing the temporal authority of the Roman bishop.

Urban V. claims sovereignty over England, 1365.

The demand laid before Parliament.

A monk challenges Wiclif.

His reply.

In 1365, not long before the appeal respecting Canterbury Hall had been brought before the Pope, the claim of temporal authority over England was revived by Urban V. and the annual tribute of a thousand marks, and the whole of the arrears for thirty-three years was now demanded. This demand having been made to Edward III. in 1365, he submitted the question to the decision of Parliament in the following year. They went so far as to threaten the Pope with war in case he should attempt to enforce his claim. A monk, one probably of those who had felt the lash of Wiclif's testimony on the corruption of the Church, published a book upholding the papal claim, asserting the realm of England to be forfeited to the Pope, and calling upon Wiclif to disprove the assertion. To this Wiclif replied, stating what was involved in the question. He refers to the proceedings of the English Parliament relative to the claim, adopting, it is clear, a considerable portion of the sentiments which are introduced. It comes, in fact, to a question of simony. If the Pope had a pecuniary claim on England, it must be for some advantage to be bestowed by him: the Pope could only dispense spiritual blessings; thus the admission of the papal claim would be a direct sanction of the sale of spiritual advantages, and thus it would be the admission of sanctioned simony. Thus this was no mere political question, there were far higher principles involved; it was one which displayed the utter rottenness of the whole system of things called spiritual then existing in Europe.* It is no marvel that the Pope should have given his judgment against such a free-spoken appellatant.

The question simply one of simony.

The principle involved.

In 1368, while the appeal was yet pending, Wiclif exchanged the rectory of Fillingham for that of Ludgershall, also in the diocese of Lincoln.

Fillingham exchanged for Ludgershall, 1368.

In 1370, the Pope gave his definite sentence in favour of Woodhall: and, two years after, a confirmation was procured from the king, a bribe of two hundred marks (equal to a very large sum of the present day) having been employed to obtain it.

The Pope decides against Wiclif, 1370. The king confirms the decision.

In 1372, John Wiclif took his degree of doctor in divinity, and became theological lecturer at Oxford—a position of no small importance, when occupied by such a man,—in which he both had, and used, the opportunity of expounding scripture to his auditors; which not only produced important results in many of them, but which likewise appears to have imbued the mind of Wiclif himself more and more with the truth of God, set forth by the Holy Ghost in the Word. In fact, Wiclif, who had before been known as the steady opponent of the friars, the bearer of a righteous testimony against simony, even though it were found in the Pope himself, the deplorer of the apostasy of the Church, now stood as the setter forth of the truth of God, before those by whom the theological lectures were attended; he had not merely to combat error, but likewise to teach truth.

Wiclif takes his degree of D. D. and becomes theological lecturer at Oxford.

In the documents which have come down to us, as portions of the theological lectures of Wiclif, it is interesting to see how earnestly the person and the work of the Lord Jesus Christ are pressed upon the attention of the auditors; no introduction of any thing whatsoever save the blood of Christ between the soul of a sinner and God. This becomes a point of exceeding importance, when the testimony of Wiclif, in a corrupt age, is considered; he was not merely one who saw how simony and corruption abounded on every side in the nominal church of God;—this might have been noticed by any observer through dint of mere intellect;—but he saw the enormity of these things in their true light, from regarding them as set in contrast to the revelation of God. Services, of one kind or another, were introduced and recognized as having something to do with the acceptance of the sinner; and, after all, the degree of nearness wholly depended upon certain things to be done by certain priests; these matters were, in that day, fully relied on; men had confidence in them, instead of depending only on that blood which has been shed for many for the remission of sins. I give one extract, which shows how firmly Wiclif opposed even the most dearly cherished superstitions of his age:—"Many think that if they give a penny to a pardoner, they shall be forgiven the breaking of all the commandments of God, and therefore they take no heed how they keep them. But I say thee for certain, though thou have priests and friars to sing for thee, and though thou each day hear many masses, and found chauntries and colleges, and go on pilgrimages all thy life, and give all thy goods to pardoners; all this shall not bring thy soul to heaven. While if the commandments of God are revered to the end, though neither penny nor halfpenny be possessed, there shall be everlasting pardon, and the bliss of heaven!" On this extract I would remark, that the contrast which Wiclif draws, is between the commandments which men had framed, and the commandments which had been given by God; if this distinction be not borne in mind, it may lead to the strange mistake of supposing that the doctrine of Wiclif savoured of a righteousness of our own, wrought out by our own obedience, instead of the righteousness of Christ, which is made ours by faith. This is hardly the place to enter upon specific proof that the doctrinal sentiments of Wiclif were utterly opposed to every thing of self-righteousness, and that they fully recognized the teaching of Scripture as to human depravity and inability. Mau's commandments he speaks of with condemnation, while he upholds God's commandments as being the way of salvation:—"And this is His commandment, that we should believe on the name of His Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, as He gave us commandment."

The person and the work of the Lord Jesus Christ are pressed in the theological writings of Wiclif.

Contrast of this to the then current doctrines.

Extract from Wiclif on the Decalogue, Vaughan I, p. 329.

Commandments of men contrasted with the commandments of God.

Wiclif no advocate for self-righteousness.

1 John iii. 23.

Such, then, was the manner in which Wiclif gave his instructions as divinity lecturer at Oxford: standing, be it remembered, in the midst of Papal abuse, and not merely displaying the deformity of error, but Wiclif's lectures stand in striking contrast to the errors of his day.

* It is probable that the monkish controvertist made his appeal to Wiclif on account of the situation which the latter held: it appears from his reply, that he was at that time chaplain to the king.

opening, likewise, the word of God, and giving forth its blessed testimony of revealed truth; a work which not only fitted him for the labour of translating the word of God, but which likewise appears to have led him onward to the undertaking of the arduous task.

July 26, 1574.
Wiclif sent to Bruges by Edward III., on a mission to the Pope.

Delegates arrive at Bruges August, 1574, where they remain till July 1576.

Wiclif made prebend of Aust, and rector of Lutterworth, by the king.

The sufficiency of the revelation of God urged by Him.

He opposes the whole papal authority.

John of Gaunt at Bruges at the same time as Wiclif.

Wiclif summoned before the convocation, Feb. 19th, 1377.

John of Gaunt befriends him; this leads to a disturbance.

Two years after Wiclif became the professor of Divinity at Oxford, he was sent as such by Edward III., together with the bishop of Bangor, and others, on a mission to Pope Gregory XI., respecting certain encroachments with regard to reservations of benefices, &c. which he had attempted to make in England. The place at which the negotiation was to be carried on was Bruges; where the commissioners appear to have arrived in or about the month of August, 1374. The proceedings were lengthened out for a considerable time, so that Wiclif does not appear to have left Bruges till July, 1376; having thus been for nearly two years in contact with the utter corruption of the Papal emissaries. The principal English commissioner was subsequently richly rewarded by the Pope, being immediately translated to the see of Hereford, and thence, in 1389, to St. David's, both of these translations having taken place by virtue of papal "provisions." Wiclif, during his absence (November, 1375.) was presented by the king with the prebend of Aust in the collegiate church of Westbury, and subsequently with the rectory of Lutterworth. These facts show pretty plainly how these men had respectively conducted themselves in their mission.

The protracted stay of Wiclif, at Bruges, was probably not a wasted period of his life. We have seen how his heart had learned to mourn over the corruption of the church visible,—how he traced back these evils to that sin which first brought corruption into the early church in the case of Ananias—the sin of covetousness;—how afterwards he traced this simony up even to the visible and ostensible earthly head of Christendom, the Pope himself;—and how in his public teaching he had pointed away from the many things which had been introduced "after the commandments and doctrines of men," to the sufficiency of the revelation of God in His word, as setting forth the atonement of Christ:—but now we see him in a new position, he is brought into immediate personal contact with the venality of the Roman bishop, a position in which he not only had his previous impressions strengthened, but, likewise, he was led to act even with more decision than before, in opposition to that which was so contrary to God and his truth. From the time of Wiclif's return from Bruges to the time of his death, we find that his mind was rapidly opened to see one truth after another as standing in opposition to papal delusion; and, also, that his testimony was so marked as to call forth all the vindictive feelings of those who sought to uphold the existing circumstances and condition of the Church.

The stay of Wiclif at Bruges appears to have brought him into contact with the duke of Lancaster—John of Gaunt—one who had but little liking for either the conduct or the principles of prelates, priests, or monks; but this prince appears to have regarded them rather in a political than in any other light; and his subsequent protection of Wiclif appears to have proceeded from this political feeling, and not from any true apprehension of the principle of obedience to the truth of God by which Wiclif himself was guided. The patronage of John of Gaunt was an exceeding hindrance to the testimony of Wiclif, instead of being a help as many have vainly thought.

Seven months after the return of Wiclif from Bruges, his unwelcome doctrines had obtained such a degree of notoriety, that he was summoned to appear before the convocation; this assembly met on the third of February, 1377; and the day, on which he was to meet the charges made against him, was the 19th of the same month. It does not precisely appear what the exact charges were which were brought against Wiclif, but it is probable that they resembled those which were, a little while afterwards, made the ground of accusation against him by the Pope himself. In appearing before the convocation, Wiclif, doubtless, encountered no inconsiderable danger. At this juncture, John of Gaunt saw fit to befriend him with his patronage, which, however kindly meant, produced only disastrous consequences: for, instead of Wiclif having an opportunity of defending himself, and testifying for the truth, the convocation at St. Paul's became a scene of disgraceful contention between the duke of Lancaster and Courtney the bishop of London, in which, however, the decency of the conduct of the latter put that of the duke to shame.

When Wiclif appeared at St. Paul's according to the citation, he went thither accompanied by John of Gaunt, and Henry, Lord Percy, Lord Marshal of England; the former of these was, at this time, the king's eldest surviving son, and, in fact, was the most important person then alive belonging to the royal family of England. St. Paul's was crowded with persons, so that it was with difficulty that Wiclif, and those with him could make their way to the place where the bishops were assembled. This occasioned some tumult, of which William Courtney, bishop of London, took notice, and his indignation was increased when he saw the companions who were with Wiclif. As Lord Percy was making way for Wiclif through the crowd, the bishop regarding him as taking too much upon him, said to him,—“Lord Percy, if I had known beforehand what maisteries you would have kept in the church, I would have stopt you out from coming hither."

The duke of Lancaster.—"He shall keep such maisteries here, though you say nay."

Lord Percy.—"Wiclif, sit down, for you have many things to answer to, and you need to repose yourself on a soft seat."

Bishop Courtney.—"It is unreasonable that one cited before his ordinary, should sit down during his answer. He must and shall stand."

The duke of Lancaster.—"The Lord Percy his motion for Wiclif is but reasonable. And as for you, my Lord Bishop, who are grown so proud and arrogant, I will bring down the pride not of you only, but of all the prelacy of England."

Bishop Courtney.—"Do your worst, Sir."

The duke of Lancaster.—"Thou bearest thyself so brag upon thy parents, which shall not be able to help thee, they shall have enough to do to help themselves."

Bishop Courtney.—"My confidence is not in my parents, nor in any man else, but only in God, in whom I trust, by whose assistance I will be bold to speak the truth."

The duke of Lancaster [in a low tone].—"Rather than I will take these words at his hands, I would pluck the bishop by the hair out of the church." These intemperate words of the duke in addition to what had before passed, occasioned a furious tumult, owing to which all proceedings against Wiclif were for the present dropped.

It is but an act of justice to state most fully, that there appears no ground whatever for charging Wiclif with being in any way accessory to this disgraceful disturbance.

Thus ended the citation to St. Paul's, leaving Wiclif, in one respect, in a new position; not merely that of a witness for the truth of God against its enemies, but also that of one whose testimony drew forth the enmity not merely of his old antagonists the friars, but likewise of his ecclesiastical superiors. Not having the particulars of the life of Wiclif, from the time of his return from Bruges, up to the meeting of the convocation, we are, of course, uncertain as to the grounds of accusation which the assembled prelates had against him. These grounds must have been either something found in his writings, or else what he had advanced in his public lectures at Oxford, or else in his parochial instructions at Lutterworth. The only question for Wiclif now was, whether he should succumb to the weight of human authority, or go on in obedience to God at all hazards.

Some months passed away before any incident occurred in the life of Wiclif of which we have received any account: this period was probably spent partly at Lutterworth and partly at Oxford. Meanwhile his adversaries were not idle. This is evinced by the fact of the papal thunders having been called down upon the devoted head of the reformer. Four bulls were sent forth by Pope Gregory XI., bearing date May 22, 1377.* Three of them were addressed to the archbishop of Canterbury (Simon Sudbury), and the bishop of London (Courtney), authorising and requiring them to cite, restrain, and imprison John Wiclif on certain charges; they were to ascertain his opinions, and transmit them to Avignon for judgment. The fourth was addressed to the University of Oxford, in the fear lest Wiclif and his doctrines found succour and support there. These four bulls were accompanied by a letter to Edward III., reciting the powers with which the archbishop and bishop were invested by the accompanying bulls, and requiring his countenance and support in carrying them into effect. The charges were such as shewed how sensibly the Pope felt any thing like a questioning of his authority. They appear to me to be probably the same in substance as the charges before the convocation, and they may have been thus transmitted from the Pope in consequence of intelligence of the termination of the citation of Wiclif to St. Paul's. This is made the more probable, from the fear which the bulls express, lest the king and princess of Wales, and others of the royal family, should be tainted with the doctrines of Wiclif, a fear, for which the previous conduct of

The contention between the duke and Bp. Courtney. Fuller's Chur. Hist. p. 135.

Wiclif in no way implicated in the disturbance.

The position in which Wiclif was now placed.

The Pope's bulls against him. 11 Cal. an. 1377.

The charges against Wiclif.

* Vaughan, in common with others, gives the date June 11, (vol. i. p. 370), but this clearly is a mere oversight. He likewise speaks of the prelates being "instructed to employ their vigilance that the king, and the prince of Aquitaine and Wales, and others of the nobility, and the counsellors of the sovereign, may not be defiled with the errors adverted to" (vol. i. p. 371). It should be "princess of Aquitaine and Wales."—Johannam principissam Aquitanie et Wallie. The Prince of Wales, Richard of Bordeaux, was then a child, while his mother was a person (as was shortly after shewn) of no small power or influence.

I mention these things, because accuracy is very desirable, especially when controverted subjects are to be treated of; I can generally rely upon the facts stated by Vaughan, but in these minute his work needs correction. Vaughan's appendix contains the documents which supply the data required for the detection of these errors. It may also be well to state, that the princess of Wales is styled shortly after by Vaughan "the queen-mother," when, in fact, she was really but princess dowager of Wales and Aquitaine, and mother of the king (Richard II.)

John of Gaunt gave some grounds, and which was likewise borne out by the subsequent conduct of the princess.

The "conclusions" with which Wiclif was charged.

A few words may be needful to explain the charges themselves:—They were the "conclusions" deduced in part from the writings of Wiclif, and in part, apparently, from some of his instructions which had been reported by those who took offence at them. These "conclusions," let it be observed, were not expressed in Wiclif's words, nor did they contain in any sense an epitome of his doctrines: they were simply certain conclusions attributed to him, expressed in the terms of his accusers; the subjects of them being those which were supposed more or less to affect the power of the Pope. I say, were supposed, because really it quite betrayed the weakness of all papal claim, for the very first of these conclusions to be objected to. I will give this first "conclusion," in order that the over-sensitiveness of Gregory XI. may be fully seen:—"The whole race of men agreeing, has no power, apart from Christ, of simply ordaining that Peter and all his race should rule politically for ever over the world." Truly he who styled himself the successor of St. Peter must have had strange thoughts, if he imagined that this absurdly phrased "conclusion" was one of such magnitude. All thought of authority derived from Christ himself seems to have left the pontiff's mind. The oft-quoted "Tu es Petrus," was for a while forgotten, and the Pope wished something to be asserted which would ascribe to man little short of omnipotence. I notice this "conclusion" thus particularly, because we learn in this manner how little the Pope had really to lay to the charge of the reformer, and on what absurd grounds he framed these charges against him.

The first of the "conclusions."—"Totum genus humanum concurrentium citra Christum non habet potestatem simplicem ordinandi, ut Petrus et omne genus suum dominetur in perpetuum politico supra mundum."

There are other things to be noticed, before we arrive at the citation of Wiclif in consequence of these charges, and the answers which he made to them. One month after the date of the Bulls and the letter to Edward III., that king died (June 21, 1377), and this doubtless occasioned some delay in acting upon these formidable powers. When the first Parliament of Richard II. met, questions came before them connected with the right of the Pope to demand the treasure of the kingdom. This was, in fact, the question regarding simony, which had been before taken up by Wiclif. He again used the opportunity to bear his testimony against the principle of pecuniary demands being made upon nations, for what were termed spiritual objects. The question of the political power of the Pope, which was put before him by the House of Commons for his opinion, he meets by an apposite citation from Bernard, who himself had argued against this from the words of the Apostle Peter, and of Christ himself. This testimony of Wiclif, at such a juncture, with the torrent of papal wrath ready to break forth upon him, is valuable, as shewing how calmly he could look at the existing state of things irrespective of the circumstances in which he, as an individual, stood. It was in October 1377, that Wiclif gave this memorable testimony against the simony of the nominal church.

Edward III. dies June 21, 1377. The first Parliament of Richard II.

The question of the temporal power of the pope answered by Wiclif out of Bernard.

October, 1377.

The first public notice taken of the papal bulls. Causes of delay.

The university of Oxford receive with great reluctance the bull addressed to them.

Abp. Sudbury requires the chancellor to cite Wiclif within thirty days, Dec. 18, 1377.

Wiclif appears at Lambeth; nothing decided against him.

Sir L. Clifford forbids them to condemn him.

A document presented to the Prelates by Wiclif; he remarks on the "conclusions."

No public notice appears to have been taken in England of the papal Bulls, until about a month after this time. It is probable that the death of Edward III., and the subsequent events, occasioned this delay. Perhaps there was no one who saw fit to act according to the request which the Pope in his letter had made to Edward III., seeing that this might have drawn forth the enmity of John of Gaunt, whose power had rather increased in consequence of his father's death. However this may be, the papal Bull was at length presented to the University of Oxford; but it was very reluctantly received, and the authorities there do not appear to have been inclined in any way to act upon it. Archbishop Sudbury wrote to the chancellor of the University, requiring him to cite Wiclif to appear at St. Paul's, in answer to the mandate of the Pope, within thirty days from the 18th of December, 1377. Wiclif's actual appearance was at Lambeth, and not at St. Paul's; it may be that the prelates did not wish to renew the tumultuous scenes of the preceding year. However, nothing was decided against Wiclif. Many persons, avowing their attachment to his doctrines, entered the chapel where the assembly was held, and this appears to have intimidated the prelates; and after this Sir Lewis Clifford coming, it is said, as a messenger from the widow of the Black Prince, the mother of the reigning monarch, forbade the prelates to injure Wiclif, or to proceed to any definite condemnation of him or his doctrines. It is to be remembered, that the Pope had reserved for himself the right of passing sentence upon Wiclif; what the prelates had to do as the delegates of the Pope, was to imprison Wiclif, examine him on the articles of accusation, and transmit the results to Rome. With the injunction of Sir Lewis Clifford the bishops complied: thus the Lambeth citation produced no results which could harm the intended victim. The conduct both of the people and of the princess dowager of Wales, proves how widely the doctrine of Wiclif was known and respected.

But although the proceedings against him were thus cut short, yet there exists a document which he appears to have presented to the bishops on this occasion. He makes his observations upon the "conclusions" transmitted by the Pope, refuting the charges based on them, and on some points stating his own doctrines —those doctrines to which he judged his mind had been opened by the Spirit of God out of the Word. In order to understand this document aright, it is needful to recollect what he was commenting upon: he had the Pope's "conclusions" about his doctrine; and for that which had been absurdly stated by the Pope, of course Wiclif cannot be deemed responsible; and yet, strangely enough, Wiclif has been condemned for meeting the objections against some of the "conclusions" in the way in which such strange propositions deserved. The first of the "conclusions" has already been given; he now remarks upon it, that as all power and dominion will be put down by Christ, according to I Cor. xv., so it is impossible for men to give any perpetual government to Peter and his successors. This has been called an evasion; if it be so, I am unable to perceive it: to me it only appears to be a truth, the statement of which was elicited by the foolish charges contained in the "conclusion." His opposition to the whole character and claim of the papacy was not yet that which it afterwards became.

After the Lambeth citation, Wiclif published some remarks upon the articles of accusation. In these remarks, he speaks freely of the conduct of the papacy; one sentence has an especial importance when the subsequent labours of Wiclif are borne in mind:—"Let him [the Pope] not be ashamed to perform the ministry of the church, since he is, or at least ought to be, the servant of the servants of God. But a PROHIBITION OF READING THE SACRED SCRIPTURES, and a vanity of secular dominion, would seem to partake too much of a disposition towards the blasphemous advancement of Antichrist, especially while the TRUTHS OF A SCRIPTURAL FAITH are reputed tares," and said to be opposed to Christian truth by certain leaders, who arrogate that we must abide by their decision respecting every article of faith, notwithstanding they themselves are plainly ignorant of the faith of the Scriptures. But by such means, there follows a crowding to the court [of Rome] TO PURCHASE A CONDEMNATION OF THE SACRED SCRIPTURES AS HERETICAL, and thence come dispensations contrary to the articles of the Christian Faith." From this extract from Wiclif's "Sort of Answer to the Bull," we learn, I think, that the conduct of the Pope had resulted from influence backed by pecuniary considerations; and also, that in the opposition to the doctrines which he held, he looked on it as being directed against the Scriptures, and not against himself. We see how he had learned the authority and sufficiency of the Scriptures as the means which God had provided for the communication of truth; and this may, I judge, be regarded as one of the indications that his mind was tending towards that labour for which his name is to be held in most grateful remembrance—the translating and publishing of the Scriptures in English. These expressions may, however, have been occasioned by his having already commenced his work of translating; and this being known, may have led to further attempts to crush him. I merely suggest this as being possible, while the title which Wiclif gave to the document in question, seems to intimate that it referred to the previous bulls, and in them no mention is made of any thing so obnoxious as a vernacular translation of the word of God.

An anonymous adversary, whom Wiclif calls "Mixtus Theologus," appears at once to have attacked him on the point of the infallibility and jurisdiction of the Pope. To this attack Wiclif replied, and there appears little doubt but that the positions assumed by "Mixtus Theologus" led the mind of Wiclif into more distrust of the authority of the papacy than he had before felt. He had looked on it as having become corrupt, he now began to regard it as essentially evil. It is of great consequence in judging of the conduct and principles of Wiclif, to observe that this change was wrought subsequent to the Lambeth citation. The assertion of papal infallibility, brought forward by "Mixtus Theologus," had amounted to this:—that it was not possible that the Pope could commit mortal sin, and that every thing which he ordained must be just. Wiclif's reply is remarkable; his mind instantly recurs to Scripture; and it is the authority of the Scripture which in itself destroys this claim on behalf of the papacy. He says, that if "Mixtus Theologus" were right in the doctrine which he had advanced, the Pope might exclude any book of the Scripture from the canon, that he might introduce any novelty in its place, that he might thus alter the whole Bible, make the very Scripture heresy, and establish that which is contrary to truth for catholic doctrine. In this reply, reference is made to the papal decision, which was yet pending, respecting the doctrines advanced in connection with the "conclusions;" but Wiclif's mind was becoming, at this very time, more emancipated than it had been from subjection of any kind to the see of Rome.

Wiclif meanwhile was at liberty: the prelates were hindered from using the papal authority with which

Wiclif's "Sort of Answer to the Bull."

Wiclif's exhortation to the Pope.

The reading of the Scriptures not to be prohibited.

The Romish court bribed.

Wiclif regards the attack as being against the Scriptures.

Wiclif's mind turned towards the translation of the Scriptures.

"Mixtus Theologus" attacks Wiclif.

He regards the popedom as being essentially evil.

The assertions of "Mixtus Theologus."

Wiclif's appeal to Scripture.

Its authority above all popes.

* In the Bull of Pope Gregory XI., addressed to the University of Oxford, he speaks of a tare having sprung up amongst the pure wheat,—lolium inter purum triticum—of their university. To this Wiclif alludes, understanding apparently the doctrine which he had taught to be compared to the tare. The Bull goes on to lament that the University took no pains for the extirpation of this tare—circa extirpationem hujus lolii. What can this be called—"handling the word of God deceitfully?" The framer of this Bull gathered his phrases from the words of our Lord in Matt. xiii., and yet he uses them in direct contravention of the words, "Let both grow together until the harvest."

they were commissioned to touch his person, and they were restricted by the papal Bulls themselves from pronouncing judgment with regard to his doctrine. Thus, until the decision of the court of Rome could be transmitted to England, the prelates could not restrain Wiclif from propagating his doctrines; thus strangely had the resolve of the Pope to be himself the judge, defeated the purpose which it was intended to answer, namely, the effectual repression of the obnoxious tenets.

The unrestrained freedom of Wiclif, both as to person and testimony, would probably have not continued long, had not very peculiar circumstances occurred relative to the papacy in this very year. Gregory XI. died on the twenty-seventh of March, probably without having received from Archbishop Sudbury, and Bishop Courtney, any account of the examination of Wiclif, as to his doctrines, or of the ineffectual attempts to imprison him. On the death of Gregory, there was a warm contention for the papal chair, between Urban VI. and Clement VII.; this schism of the papacy was undoubtedly one of the causes of Wiclif's tranquillity. Nor was this time unemployed by the Reformer, for he used it not only to write on the refutation which the schism gave to the claim of infallibility, and on "The Truth and Meaning of the Scripture," but also to execute HIS ENGLISH TRANSLATION OF THE SCRIPTURES. Few things were ever more marked by the guiding hand of Providence than was this; how was Wiclif, whom popes and prelates sought to crush, to find leisure for this mighty labour? Was he to give up defending those doctrines of truth, to which his mind had been gradually opened by the Holy Ghost, in order to accomplish the work of Scripture translating? or was he to leave his countrymen just as he found them, ignorant of the word of God, and devoid of it in their own tongue? The good providence of God rendered neither of these alternatives needful, and thus ample time was afforded to Wiclif to carry on and complete his version.

The papal schism a cause of Wiclif's continued tranquillity. He writes "The Papal Schism," "The Truth and Meaning of Scripture," His English version of the Bible. The marked providence of God respecting this translation. The motives which influenced Wiclif to translate the Scriptures.

It is not difficult to trace the motives which influenced him in engaging in this work: he had spoken boldly of the state of the church, he had questioned the authority of the Pope; first, as to things temporal, and, at length, as to things spiritual; and the only ground on which he found that he could rest, was the Word of God; he had felt, step by step, his individual responsibility to God; this responsibility he had, both in preaching and in writing, enforced upon others; his testimony was not given merely to the learned at Oxford, but likewise to his parishioners at Lutterworth, and in his writings, to his countrymen at large. How, then, were those, on whose consciences he was thus pressing individual responsibility, to know what is and what is not, the truth of God? It became necessary to translate the Scriptures, or else to give up all the ground on which he was contending. Even if it were granted that other versions of the whole Bible then existed, at least they were not in common circulation; and thus that work was done by Wiclif, by which the memory of the doctrine which he taught, and the appeal which he made to the word of God, was kept alive.

A version of the Scriptures needful, if he would not give up the ground on which he contended. Wiclif's period of repose, 1378—1381. Many works written at this time.

The period during which Wiclif appears to have been unmolested in the continuance of his labour of translating the Scriptures, and defending, by various writings, the doctrines which he had learned from them, continued from the Lambeth citation, in 1378, to the spring of 1381. The works which he put forth during this interval, prove how unwearied was his assiduity in upholding the truth of God against all opponents; marvellous, indeed, does the retrospect appear of the position which Wiclif occupied during these three important years.

Wiclif's illness at Oxford, 1379. The friars visit him.

But, although he was unmolested by either ecclesiastical or secular authority, he had other hindrances. In the early part of the year 1379, he was severely ill with palsy at Oxford. It was during this illness, that some of his old antagonists, the mendicant friars, came to him, and exhorted him to repentance of his testimony against them; he was then supposed to be almost at the point of death; but being raised in his bed, he addressed the reproaching friars, "I shall not die, but live, and again declare the evil deeds of the friars!" And so, indeed, he did; not merely in his tract, entitled, "Objections to Freres," but far more in the publishing of the Scriptures in English,—the testimony of God Himself against all and every form of false doctrine, or of corrupt practice.

Wiclif's coadjutors in his work of translation.

It is probable that some of the friends of Wiclif were his coadjutors in the making of his translation; this is confirmed by a notice which is found written in one MS. of this version, at the end of a portion of the apocryphal book of Baruch. "Explicit translacionem Nicolay de Herford;" from this it appears that Nicholas Hereford, who was one who had received many of Wiclif's doctrines, had translated a particular portion, concluding with part of this book.* But be Wiclif's fellow-workers who they may, this is certain, that to him was the work attributed, in his own day, by his adversaries: he was the individual through whose energy it had been carried on and executed.

Nicholas Hereford, Baber, p. 151v.

Notice in Mr. Douce's MS.

* "This remarkable notice is subscribed by a different hand, and with a less durable ink, than that used by the transcriber of the MS., and, if not written by Hereford himself, was probably done by one who had good authority for what he thus asserted by his pen."—Labeis, p. lix.

The version, when made, was widely diffused; even if the transcribers were the only persons in England who were imbued with the doctrines which Wiclif taught, then the number of those who had received them must have been far from inconsiderable. It is remarkable how sensitively the name of Wiclif was connected in the minds of those who upheld the Papal doctrine and dominion, with the translation of the Scriptures; in fact, his name, his testimony against Rome, and that great work, seemed as though they were inseparably conjoined, and that they must thus stand or fall together. The opposition of the ecclesiastical authorities was soon manifested against Wiclif's translation, so that it became a dangerous matter for any part of it to be transcribed or possessed; this opposition became, in 1408, an absolute prohibition, and thus it is almost certain, that the copies of this version which have come down to us, were mostly made previous to that year; it is even probable that many, or the greater part of them, were copied immediately on the translation having been executed. I shall have occasion shortly to notice the prohibition of 1408 more particularly.

Wide diffusion of the version.

Opposition raised against Wiclif's version in 1408.

Such, then, were the circumstances which led to the first publication of the Scriptures in English. A priest, whose heart God had opened to receive successively many portions of truth; who was so thrown into contact with the papal intrigues, as to see the full working of the evil of the system; and who had before his eyes the deeds of the friars, so that he found the corruption to pervade the whole of the nominal church, from the highest to the lowest; stood forth as a witness for the Truth in the midst of the corruption, and pressed home upon the consciences of men their responsibility of individual allegiance to God: his voice was heard far and wide; many were induced to question the papal authority, and ceased to rely upon what was then given forth as truth; while he, who had taken the bold stand in testimony, puts into their hands the Word of God, the written record which declares both what are the grounds of our allegiance, and what the obedience which we, as true to our allegiance, are called upon to render.

Circumstances which led to the circulation of the Bible in English.

Wiclif's testimony leads to his version of the Scripture.

III.

SOME ACCOUNT OF WICLIF'S VERSION.

THE importance of this version is such, that some account of its execution, and other circumstances connected with it, seem almost to be required; at least, without them, the notice of the labours of Wiclif would be very defective.

Notice of the version itself.

This translation of the New Testament was made (as has been already said) from the Latin Vulgate, and not from the original Greek. This was rendered necessary for two reasons; first, it is exceedingly improbable that the knowledge of Greek possessed by Wiclif was at all sufficient to enable him to translate from that language. He introduces Greek words in some of his writings, but this by no means implies that he was more learned in this respect than his cotemporaries in the west of Europe; and, also, it is not likely, even if Wiclif had been competent to translate from the Greek, that he could have found a Greek copy of the New Testament to have used for the purpose; since it was not until after the taking of Constantinople by the Turks in 1453, that copies of the Scriptures and other manuscripts in Greek became dispersed by the fugitive Greeks throughout the western parts of Europe. These two reasons shew completely, that if the New Testament were to be translated into English at all, it must be from the Latin. Until Dr. Linacre introduced Greek literature into England, there was scarcely any thing known in this country either of that language or of works therein.

The version made from the Vulgate, and why.

Greek scarcely known in the West of Europe at that time. Greek MSS. not then to be obtained.

Greek literature introduced into England by Linacre.

The Old Testament was translated from the Latin for reasons similar in their kind to those which rendered the translation of the New from that language a matter of necessity: it belonged to a later and more critical age to use the originals in forming vernacular versions of the Scriptures. However desirable it may be constantly to recur to the fountain, in order that the water may be drawn in all its purity, it is the part of wisdom for those who are prevented from having access to the well-spring, to take from the stream lower down.

The original text not used for translation till a later period.

The Latin Vulgate having then been the medium from which Wiclif translated, the inquiry arises, how far is the Version of a version to be trusted as conveying the revealed truth of God? I have already spoken of the wisdom of using and circulating a translation made from another version, when it is impracticable for one to be framed from the original. Now in considering the merit of a version when formed from another, there are these two things to be considered; first, the character of the primary version from which the other is made; secondly, the accuracy with which that primary version is represented by the second translator. In the case before us then, we have to look at the Latin Vulgate, and to inquire what are its merits

The value of a Version of a version.

What are the merits of the Vulgate as a version.

Some account of the early Latin versions.

The Old Test. translated from the Septuagint.

The labours of Jerome. He translates the Old Test. from Hebrew into Latin.

His correction of the Latin versions of the New Test.

Jerome's corrected version gradually supersedes those which had preceded it; the Psalms an exception.

The Latin Vulgate never strictly identical with the version of Jerome.

A mixed text formed.

Various readings of transmission.

Inaccuracy of the common copies of the 14th century.

The testimony of the author of "Elucidarium Bibliorum."

Latin copies compared to form a text; this probably done previous to the execution of Wiclif's version.

as a version. This must be contemplated apart from all considerations as to its elegance of language or the contrary. How far does it accurately represent the original Greek? To this question but one reply would I believe, be now given by any who have critically examined that version, viz. that it is, on the whole, an accurate version, one which at the time when it was made did very tolerably represent in Latin the Greek original. Very soon after the diffusion of Christianity in the western provinces of the Roman empire, especially in those of Africa around Carthage, versions of the Greek Scriptures were executed for the use of those Christians to whom the Latin was the vernacular language. The books of the Old Testament were translated out of the Septuagint Greek version, in consequence of the inability of the translators to make use of the Hebrew original. These versions (of the New Testament especially) were exceedingly numerous; and from various causes, partly from the mistakes of transcribers, and partly from the want of any one established version, these translations became very inaccurate, many interpolations creeping into the text through the insertion of glosses and other scholia. In the latter part of the fourth century Jerome undertook the task of translating the books of the Old Testament out of the original Hebrew, so that there might be in Latin an immediate version; and thus the translations formed mediately from the Septuagint were no longer the channel through which the Old Testament was known. With regard to the New Testament, Jerome did not undertake any labour so onerous as he had with regard to the Old; he simply corrected some of the copies then in use, so as to form a version which should not be very discrepant from the original.

This corrected version of Jerome gradually superseded those inaccurate translations which had previously been used in the West; the Psalms, however, were retained in all the services of the Church according to the old or ante-hieronymian version with but little alteration, because from their being so frequently used, it was thought to be too great a change to substitute a version altogether new. With regard to other portions of the Scripture, the version and recension of Jerome were in the main adopted, yet not without some portions of the older translations being retained; this appears to be especially the case in the New Testament; so that even in its early days the Latin Vulgate was never strictly identical with the version of Jerome; while at the same time it was chiefly the text of his recension. The manner in which the Latin Vulgate text was thus formed, may, I believe, be traced to two causes, 1st. The difficulty that was felt in entirely giving up the versions which were in common use, led to the retention of not a few terms, expressions, and glosses, which had been extruded by the critical labours of Jerome; and, 2nd. The practice of altering copies in which the text of some of the older versions was found, so as to make them in some sort conform to Jerome's recension. The consequence of this was the formation of a mixed text, in which the influence of the earlier versions is plainly to be traced.* Thus, if the Vulgate had simply been the version or recension of Jerome, it would have more accurately represented the original; but still even when every allowance is made it must be acknowledged that the Vulgate was a tolerably fair version for accuracy. Of course, in its transmission, various readings have crept in just as in other ancient writings which have come down to us; so that no one Manuscript copy is to be relied on as truly and precisely giving the original text of that combination of the version of Jerome with the preceding translations which was at first the Vulgate; and thus we cannot judge from the commonly printed copies what in all respects this version once was. In the fourteenth century, it is certain that the commonly circulated copies were generally less accurate than those which are printed, although in some respects there have been alterations made for the worse. Such then was the state of the version from which Wiclif undertook his translation. How then did he form or select a text from which to frame his version? The author of the prologue,† entitled "Elucidarium Bibliorum," at the end of the year 1395, says, "The commune layne bybles have more nede to be correctyd . . . . than hath the englyshe bible late translated." This implies that there was some particular reason which rendered the copy which Wiclif used peculiarly accurate; and when we find in the same prologue an interesting account of the collation of various Latin copies so as to form a standard text, previous to translating, it seems most probable that something of the kind had been done previous to the execution of the version of Wiclif. It is true that the collation mentioned in the prologue is spoken of as being introductory to the making of the second version (1395), but this does not at all preclude a similar process having been carried on as a preparation for the former version. I rest upon these two things, 1st. the author of the prologue knew the inaccuracy of the common Latin Bibles, and yet asserts the comparative correctness of the English version which had then been for some little while executed; 2nd. he also mentions the process by which he and others obtained a more correct copy for the basis of their version; thus it becomes more than probable that some similar means had been taken by Wiclif and his coadjutors. Indeed it may be that John Purnay himself, who appears to have been the author of this prologue, and was much associated with Wiclif, was one of those assisting in a previous work of collating Latin Bibles, and this collation was the commencement of a more extended labour previous to the making of the later version. These will not be regarded as mere conjectures, when the direct testimony to the comparative accuracy of Wiclif's text, is duly weighed.

* Amongst the Harleian Manuscripts in the British Museum there is a curious example of this systematic method of correction. This Manuscript (1772) contains some of the Epistles and the Revelation written by a very ancient hand, and corrected in the manner above described by a more recent but still an ancient corrector.

† This prologue belongs to a version of the Bible into English which was made a very little time after that of Wiclif; the prologue and the version itself will be noticed in their proper place.

Ed. 1550.
Chap. xv.

The author of this prologue probably an assistant of Wiclif.

How far does the version of Wiclif accurately represent the Latin text.

The testimony of the author of the prologue.

This testimony not that of a mere blind admirer.

Wiclif's version very literal.

This testimony fully borne out by examination.

What is to be understood by the comparative purity of Wiclif's Latin text.

Glosses in the Latin retained. 1 Pet. iii. 22.

2 Pet. i. 10.

Numerous glosses in the Ante-hieronymian versions.

Having thus briefly considered the first of the two questions which arise in connection with a Version of a version, namely, the character of the primary version from which the other is made,—I have now to examine the second, i. e. the accuracy with which that primary version is represented by the second translator. We have seen that Wiclif had a very tolerable ground-work for his version in the Latin Vulgate, and that in some manner there was an accuracy more than was then common in the text from which his version was made; how far did Wiclif acquit himself as a competent translator from the Latin? In discussing this, it is well again to refer to Purnay's prologue, in order that we may see how this version was appreciated in the time in which it was made. The passage already quoted from this prologue, in which the version is spoken of as needing correction less than the common Latin Bibles, proves not only the general accuracy of the text employed, but likewise that the translation was well executed; because if this had been incorrectly done the commendation would have been wholly misplaced. This testimony is not to be regarded as that of merely a blind admirer, it comes from one whose critical labours must have been in that non-critical age very extraordinary; and what is more, although the writer thus commends the earlier version, yet he himself takes in hand another, thus shewing that in his judgment it might be amended in some respects. Now what was the objection which the author of the prologue had against the version of Wiclif? Why, after having commended it, did he think it an advisable work to put forth another? Now I think that if the intended character of the version to which the prologue belongs be considered, it will be seen that he looked on the translation of Wiclif as being too literal, and too close in following the Latin idiom. He says that in making the new translation, they resolved that it should not be literal, but that it should be according to the sense and meaning of the text. Thus we find from Purnay's prologue, a cotemporary testimony to the exactitude and fidelity with which Wiclif had made his version.

This judgment, so soon expressed after the death of Wiclif, is fully supported by the closest examination which can be given to the version. It is impossible to compare it with the Vulgate without seeing how attentively the translator has sought, without being too servile, to express all that the Latin expresses, and if possible in the same manner. It is not improbable, that Wiclif was the more particular in thus adhering, when he could, to the form of the Latin phrase, in order that his version might be used as a help to those who wished to learn to read the Scriptures in Latin: we know that this influenced Hampole in causing him to use the Latin idiom when he could, and even words of Latin origin in preference to those which are more purely Saxon.

In speaking of the comparative purity of the Latin text used by Wiclif, it is not of course affirmed that he possessed any peculiar power of detecting and eliminating mistakes and intrusive glosses; I merely take the testimony of Purnay's prologue, and what I should understand would be this, that Wiclif's text was that which appeared the most correct from a comparison of old copies; whatever had crept into the text in them was of course retained in Wiclif's version. The following may be taken as instances:—1 Pet. iii. 22. Vulg. "Qui est in dexterâ Dei, mortem deglutiens ut vita eterna heredes efficieremur; profectus in cælum subjectis sibi angelis, et potestatibus, et virtutibus." Wiclif—"That is in the riȝthalf of god. [And swolowith death: that we schulden be made eris of euerlastynghe liif,] he ȝede in to heuene: and aungels ⁊ poweris and vertues ben made sugetis to hym."

2 Pet. i. 10. Vulg. "Quapropter, fratres, magis satagate, ut per bona opera certam vestram vocationem et electionem faciatis." Wiclif—"wherfor britheren be ȝe more bisie, that [bi good werkis] ȝe make ȝoure clepyng ⁊ chesyng certeyn."

These are manifest instances of glosses which have obtained insertion in the Latin text, so early as to appear like an integral portion of it. In fact there were many such interpolations in the old ante-hieronymian versions, and several have been transferred from thence into the Vulgate. Were any object to be answered by so doing, a list of such passages retained by Wiclif might be swelled to a considerable amount.

Wiclif's variations from the Clementine Vulgate.

1 Cor. x. 17.

The following are instances of variation in the text of Wiclif from the Clementine, or now commonly received text of the Latin Vulgate.

1 Cor. x. 17: "for we many ben o breed and o bodi. alle we that takun part of o breed and of o cuppe." These last four words are found in some manuscripts, and in the Sixtine edition of the Vulgate, although now rejected.

1 Cor. x. 27.

1 Cor. x. 27: "if any of hethen men clepith ȝou to soper and ȝe wolen go." "To soper" is a phrase circumstanced precisely like that which has last been mentioned.

Introduced words originally part of the Vulgate.

It is probable that in both of these passages the words which stood in Wiclif's Latin text were a part of the Vulgate originally. I mean a part of the mingled version formed from Jerome's and those which preceded, and that their extrusion, although perfectly right in conformity with the Greek and critical exactness, is but a departure from what the composite version called the Vulgate truly was when the blending was first made. It was in the insertion of such adventitious scholia that the version of Jerome was conformed in some measure to those previously in use, and thus the Vulgate was produced. The existence of such interpolations does not, therefore at all destroy the character of the Latin text used by Wiclif, as far as concerns antiquity and accuracy, however much it may shew that the pure gold of God's word was in parts impaired by a slight admixture of alloy. Wiclif could not aid himself in getting his text free from these adscititious glosses.

Scholia in the Latin text of Wiclif do not make against its antiquity.

There is one passage which shews that Wiclif has kept to a more ancient reading of the Latin in preference to one which afterwards was set forth with great authority by the Church of Rome.

A passage shewing

Wiclif's Latin text to have been old.

1 John v. 7, 8.

Words omitted in some Latin copies, on the authority of Thomas Aquinas.

Joachim's dispute on the unity of persons.

His supposed proof.

1 John v. 7, 8: "for thre ben that ȝeuen witnessynge in heuene, the fadir the sone the holi goost: and thes thre ben oon, and thre ben that ȝeuen witnessynge in erthe, the spirit watir and blood, and thes thre ben oon." The last clause is excluded from some of the printed Latin copies, and also from the more modern Latin manuscripts. Why is this done?

It appears simply to rest upon the ipse dixit of Thomas Aquinas. The circumstances are these: the Abbot Joachim in the thirteenth century disputed concerning the unity of persons in the Godhead, alleging that it was an unity of love and consent, and not an unity of essence. In support of this confused and false doctrine, he adduced the words "et hi tres unum sunt," as standing in the Latin copies after the mention of the testimony of the earthly witnesses—the Spirit, the Water, and the Blood, as well as after that of the heavenly witnesses—the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost. His argument rested on this: that the unity, whatever it be, must be identical as regards the respective witnesses in heaven and on earth; and thus, if in the one case the expression were supposed to denote unity of essence, then it must also in the other; but as unity of essence cannot be predicated of the Spirit, the Water, and the Blood, no more (he alleged) can they in this passage be predicated of the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost. The reply of Thomas Aquinas was, that in the eighth verse the "et hi tres unum sunt" was an interpolation of Arian heretics in order to counter-argue the orthodox creed of the Church. The consequence of this was, that the clause, from that time and onward, was very commonly omitted in Latin Bibles, the authority of Thomas Aquinas being deemed quite sufficient to warrant the change. Hence it is to be inferred, that the Latin text used by Wiclif was one of an older date than the occurrences which led to this passage being thus altered.

The reply of Thomas Aquinas.

The clause in consequence omitted.

Wiclif's Latin text of an older date.

The manner in which this passage stands in the older Latin copies.

All mention of the heavenly witnesses omitted in the older copies.

Wiclif's MS. substitutes "filius" for "verbum."

This indicates an early date.

In very early Latin Bibles, however, the seventh verse, in which the heavenly witnesses are mentioned is subjoined to the eighth, while in others which are still older, it stands merely in the margin as a scholion, while in more than forty of the very oldest it is, according to the Greek manuscripts and all other versions, entirely omitted. Wiclif's oldest manuscript must then have been more modern than any of these, that is to say, more modern than the eighth century. It may not be amiss to state, that the concluding clause of ver. 8 is restored in the Clementine edition of the Vulgate, in spite of the authority of Thomas Aquinas.

Another circumstance to be observed is, that Wiclif has "the sone" instead of "the word," plainly shewing that what he regarded as his authoritative manuscript had "filius" and not "verbum;" now this indicates an early date, as that which must be ascribed to his copy, because in the course of a couple of centuries or less, after these two verses had become fixed in their order in the Latin copies, the phraseology and the individual words of the verse became settled likewise; whereas previously they had abounded in variations. This makes it probable that Wiclif mistrusting the faulty Latin copies which were then common, used the best that he could obtain at Oxford,* or elsewhere, or else collated (as has been suggested), more than one of such old copies;—the date of which may probably be about four hundred years before his own time. This may sufficiently account for any slight variations which exist between the text of Wiclif and that of the printed Vulgate,—although these discrepancies will be found to be of small magnitude.

* Perhaps at Oxford, Latin bibles were at this period scarce enough. About twenty years before this time, Arnichanus sent two persons from Ireland to Oxford to study divinity; after two years they returned, not being able to comply with his wishes, from their inability to purchase for themselves a Bible at Oxford.

Many of the peculiarities of the version of Wiclif are to be attributed to the phraseology of the time in which he lived; and it is remarkable that, in his version of the Scriptures, he writes far more intelligible English than is found in his original works; the dignity of the book which he translated seems to have imparted an excellence of expression to the version itself. It is indeed wonderful that the language of four hundred and sixty years ago should be so intelligible to us as is the version of John Wiclif. Surely we may ascribe it to the good providence of God, not merely that an English version of the Scriptures was made in such a day as that of Wiclif, but likewise that the version itself is such a one as it is.

Wiclif probably used a copy 400 years old.

Peculiarities in Wiclif's version as to language.

The providence of God with regard to the version.

IV.

THE LATTER PART OF WICLIF'S LIFE.—HIS TESTIMONY.

It will be well to glance briefly at the three concluding years of the life of Wiclif. His period of freedom from molestation continued, as we have seen, until the spring of 1381: it was then that Wiclif took a yet more decided stand at Oxford against the doctrines of Popery than he had previously done. Before this we find him controverting the power of the Pope, denying the authority which men in ecclesiastical stations could have, apart from the truth of God and the authority of Christ; we find him opposing the then almost universal doctrine which put the merits of saints as an object of reliance for sinners, and setting forth the one oblation of Christ as that alone through which God forgives sins gratuitously: we find him condemning all the means then used of procuring spiritual benefits through the observances of priests; and shewing how all these things more or less had sprung from the deeply-rooted simony of the church—"the love of money is the root of all evil;" but there was one thing regarded by both clergy and laity as the most sacred and profound of mysteries, against which he had yet to testify, and to shew that the commonly received doctrine concerning it was not only in itself contrary to Scripture and to truth, but that it also led to very numerous errors, and upheld in fact almost every one of the doctrines which he had previously opposed.

A glance at the three concluding years of Wiclif's life, 1381—1384.

His stand against the doctrines of Popery at Oxford. His previous testimony.

1 Tim. vi. 10.

This doctrine, against which Wiclif now directed his testimony, was that of transubstantiation; a doctrine which, if true, did absolutely contradict all that he had taught respecting the one sacrifice of Jesus Christ, and which in itself upheld the power and authority of the Romish priesthood. It may be asked why did not Wiclif raise his voice against this dogma of Rome before? Why did he wait until after there was an open rupture between him and the Pope before he took his position on such obnoxious ground? This may, I believe, be answered quite satisfactorily; his own mind opened gradually to the truths revealed in the Scriptures; and it was as his mind became more and more fully imbued with the truth of Scripture, that he received more light, and thus saw how utterly all that he taught was nullified by the popular doctrines respecting the Lord's Supper. In thus having his mind gradually opened to a clearer and fuller perception of truth, Wiclif was not peculiar; the same has been the case with many others; it is thus that we find Apollon commencing to preach boldly "knowing only the baptism of John;" his imperfect testimony was not therefore rejected, for when Aquila and Priscilla heard him they took him, "and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly." Our blessed Lord does not then refuse to own a feeble or imperfect testimony, but He leads on into a more full apprehension of truth those who really are acting in the desire of doing the will of God, "If any man will do [desire to do] His will he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God."

He at length opposes transubstantiation.

Why did Wiclif delay his testimony against it till this time?

The gradual opening of his mind.

The case of Apollon, Acts xix.

The grace of the Lord in owning even imperfect service.

John vii. 17.

The consequences of the dogma of transubstantiation are such, that I must briefly allude to them in their connection with the testimony of Wiclif:—I. If Christ's very body, which suffered on the cross, be actually present, it was argued, that worship is to be paid thereto; especially so, according to the decrees of councils, which define that the substance of the bread is changed into, and actually becomes, the body, blood, human soul, and Godhead of Christ:—II. also, if the Lord's death be shewn forth in this celebration,

Four conclusions resulting from the real presence and "concomitancy." I. Worship.

* The doctrine of transubstantiation, in Wiclif's days, had not gone so far; this was reserved for the council of Trent. The definition of the fourth Lateran council, 1215, was this:—"There is one catholic church of the faithful, out of which no one whatever can be saved. In which Christ Jesus Himself is the priest and the sacrifice, whose body and blood are truly contained in the sacrament of the altar; the bread being transubstantiated into the body, and the wine into the blood, by the divine power."

The council of Trent carried the matter so far, as to con-

II. " Sacrifice" of the mass.

III. Propitiation.

IV. Priestly power to make the Creator of all things.

These four conclusions fully held by the church of Rome.

Wiclif commences his opposition to transubstantiation.

1381. His Twelve Conclusions published at Oxford.

William de Berton, then chancellor, and twelve other doctors, uphold the Romish doctrine.

Their definition of transubstantiation.

See Vaugh. ii. App. No. III.

A message from the chancellor brings tidings of the condemnation of his doctrines.

Wiclif appeals to the civil power.

He is prevented from lecturing on the subject at Oxford.

Wiclif writes his " Ostiolum."

and He be bodily and substantially present therein, as bodily and as substantially as when he suffered on the cross, it follows, that every celebration of the Lord's supper is an actual sacrifice:—III. farther, as the offering of Christ upon the cross was a propitiation for the sins of men, so must the repetition of it in the Lord's supper also be:—IV. also, if every one in priest's orders possessed the power of consecrating the bread, then it must follow, that every priest possessed full power to cause Christ to be substantially present: or, in other words, to make Him, by whom all things were made. These four conclusions are fully held and adopted by the church of Rome; in fact, the necessary consequences of transubstantiation are not attempted to be disguised.

It was not with the spirit of an impatient dogmatist, but with that of a Christian, earnest for the truth of God, that Wiclif commenced his opposition to the doctrine of transubstantiation. It is interesting to observe his steadiness of purpose, and his singleness of aim, in beginning an attack which would, he was conscious, bring upon him no small danger and difficulty. He had probably preached on the subject before to his parishioners at Lutterworth, but in the spring of 1381 he drew public attention to the subject by twelve conclusions, which he published at Oxford. William de Berton, who had been one of Wiclif's colleagues in his mission to Bruges, was at that time the chancellor of the university. As soon as Wiclif's conclusions were published, he convened twelve doctors, and with them drew up a contradiction of the doctrines of Wiclif: in this, after reciting the statements which he had made, they adjudge them to be contrary to the determinations of Holy Church; these they declare to be, "That through the sacramental words duly uttered by a priest, the bread and wine upon the altar are transubstantiated, or substantially converted, into the very body and blood of Christ; so that after the consecration, there do not remain in that venerable sacrament material bread and wine (which were previously under their own substances or natures), but only the appearance [species] of the same things; under which appearances [speciebus] the true body and blood of Christ are really contained, not only figuratively, or tropically, but essentially, substantially, and bodily; so that Christ is truly there in his proper bodily presence: this is to be believed; this is to be taught; this is manfully to be defended against all who contradict." They likewise determined that the penalty of the greater excommunication, suspension from all scholastic exercises, and imprisonment, should be put in force against any member of the university who should inculcate these doctrines of Wiclif. All who listened to them were likewise to be similarly punished.

Wiclif was, at the very time when this convention was held, lecturing in the school of the Augustinians, in virtue of his professorship, on this identical doctrine, when a messenger entered the hall, and in the name of the chancellor, and the doctors who had united with him, published their sentence respecting the "sacrament of the altar," and all who should uphold the doctrines taught by Wiclif concerning it. Wiclif was taken by surprise; his personal liberty was in question; he wished to have an opportunity of meeting his opponents, and discussing the condemned doctrines; and at length he appealed to the civil power, thus denying the summary authority of the chancellor to imprison him: this appeal seems to have had this consequence, that he continued at liberty, although prohibited from teaching the obnoxious doctrines at Oxford. His appeal was one which could really only come before the ensuing parliament; and thus, until that should meet, the chancellor and the divinity professor could not have their respective liberties and jurisdictions accurately determined.

Meanwhile, Wiclif was not idle; he wrote his "Ostiolum," or "Wicket," a tract on the debated subject. This work is interesting on another account, besides that which was the occasion of its being written: he alludes to the opposition which the Scriptures in English excited. He says, that his opponents denounced it as "heresy to speak of the holy Scripture in English, and so they would condemn the Holy Ghost:" this gives the first certain mention, in which the date is evident, of the notice which his translation had excited. The tract continues to speak of the Lord's supper, and the wondrous mistakes which were made relative to it.

Wat Tyler's insurrection, 1381.

The disturbances in England which prevailed in the summer of 1381, were probably a means of postponing any further proceedings against Wiclif. In June of that year, the mob, under the command of Wat Tyler, took possession of London; on the 14th of that month Simon Sudbury, archbishop of trading what had been previously determined and held. It decreed (in accordance with the Romish views at the time) that "the entire Christ," i. e. flesh, blood, human soul, and divinity, exist equally in the bread and in the wine; and that this entire Christ exists in each particle of each.

The accidents (properties or qualities) of bread and wine, were allowed still to remain, although it was said that subject (the actual substance) had disappeared: mention is frequently made with regard to this question, of "an accident without a subject;" this the Romanists affirmed to exist in the Lord's supper.

Canterbury was beheaded by them; and this vacancy of the primacy was again, it is probable, the reason why no immediate notice was taken of the alarming doctrines. Sudbury succeeded in his archbishoprick by Courtney, bishop of London; but it was not until May 1382, that he received the poll from Rome which was necessary "for the completion of his character." This prelate shewed himself far more prompt in action than his predecessor, whose want of firmness at the Lambeth citation of Wiclif has been much blamed by Romish writers.

Abp. Sudbury beheaded by the mob, June 14.
Courtney, bp. of London, succeeds him.

On the 17th of May, he convened an assembly, consisting of eight bishops and fourteen doctors together with others, at the Grey Friars in London, for the purpose of formally condemning the doctrines held by Wiclif. Twenty-four "conclusions" were read as having been generally preached throughout England; and after three days' deliberation, this convention condemned ten of the "conclusions" as being heretical, and the other fourteen as being erroneous. At the meeting of this synod, a shock of an earthquake alarmed some of those who were present; but the archbishop turned the circumstance to good account, applying it as an intimation of the need which there was of preserving the purity of the church. The decisions of this convention were speedily published, in order that they might be carried into effect; the archbishop transmitted the decree not only to the bishop of Lincoln, Wiclif's diocesan, but even to the clergy of the parishes around Lutterworth: it was likewise sent to the bishop of London, in whose diocese many who held the opinions of Wiclif might be supposed to reside.

An assembly convened at the Grey Friars' May 17, 1382.

The storm was, however, kept for a while from breaking upon the head of Wiclif. A Carmelite, Dr. Peter Stokys, a zealous opponent of Wiclif, was sent to Oxford to publish the mandates there, where the teaching of the Reformer had gained much ground. But Robert Rigge, who had succeeded William de Berton as chancellor, was one of the admirers of Wiclif, one who, if he did not himself hold his doctrines, was little inclined to hear them condemned.* He called on Dr. Nicholas Hereford to preach before the University: this was one of Wiclif's adherents, as also was Philip Rappynghon, who was also thus employed during the visit of Stokys. The latter of these defended Wiclif and his doctrines at some length. "Amongst other things, he told the audience, that those who did not mention the secular magistrate before either the bishop or the Pope, broke the order prescribed in holy Scripture." This conduct of Dr. Robert Rigge rendered him the immediate object of the resentment of the archbishop, and he was authoritatively commanded both to abstain from opposing Stokys, and to support him in his mission at Oxford.

Peter Stokys sent to Oxford to publish the mandates. Collier, iii. p. 166; Fox, i. 504. [Ed. 1684.] Robert Rigge, the chancellor, an adherent of Wiclif.

Hereford and Rappynghon preach at Oxford. Collier, iii. 167.

Archbishop Courtney strengthened the authority of the convention, which had condemned the twenty-four "conclusions," by procuring an ordinance from the king against all itinerant preachers who should uphold the condemned doctrines: the sheriffs and others were commanded, at the requirement of the prelates, to arrest all such persons. This ordinance rested of course upon the royal authority only, and yet it assumed the form of an act of parliament. The pretended enacting part ran thus:—"It is ordained and assented in this present Parliament, That the King's Commissions be made and directed to the Sheriffs and other ministers of our Sovereign Lord the King, or other sufficient persons learned, and, according to the certifications of the prelates thereof, to be made in the Chancery from time to time to arrest all such preachers, and also their fautors, maintainers, and abettors, and to hold them in arrest and strong prison, till they will justify themselves according to law and reason of holy Church. And the King willeth and commandeth, that the Chancellor make such commissions at all times that he, by the Prelates or any of them, shall be certified and thereof required, as is aforesaid."

Courtney obtains the King's aid. Fox, i. 503.

The enactments of the fictitious statute.

It is to be observed, that this ordinance possessed not a particle of legal validity: it was in fact a mere forgery, and, as such, complaint was made against it in the ensuing Parliament; the Commons alleging that they had never passed any bill authorizing commissions for the imprisoning of suspected or itinerant preachers, for they would not (they said) be more bound to the prelates than their ancestors had been. In consequence of this, the fictitious statute was declared to be repealed; and yet the ecclesiastical influence was so great, that the invalid ordinance remained amongst the acts of parliament, and has been printed as such, while the act of repeal was altogether suppressed. Commissions continued to be issued under the forged act as though it had been a real one.

Its invalidity.

Its repeal; yet continues to be acted upon.

On the 13th of June, the king issued his writ to the chancellor and proctors of the University of Oxford, ordering strict search to be made for those who should be suspected of heresy or error, especially with regard to the points which had lately been condemned by Archbishop Courtney and his coadjutors; any Fox, i. 504. The king's mandate to the university of Oxford, June 13, 1382.

* It is, however, not a little remarkable that he was one of the twelve doctors associated in the preceding year with William de Berton, the then chancellor, in the condemnation of Wiclif's "conclusions;" he must either have been a dissident from the determinations of that assembly, or else new light must in the interval have dawned upon his mind.

persons, likewise, who entertained John Wiclif, Nicholas Hereford, Philip Rappington, and others of the same sentiments were to be expelled the University, and not to be received again until such time as they should be cleared of the charge of heresy before the archbishop of Canterbury; the writings of Wiclif and Hereford were likewise to be sought for and transmitted to the archbishop.

Many difficulties were thrown by the chancellor of the university in the way of these orders being fully complied with: at length, however, the contumacious parties were brought before the archbishop. Various proceedings connected with them took place in June and July 1382. Wiclif meanwhile was at Lutterworth, and in some of the sermons which he preached while these prosecutions were pending, he expresses his opinion that the secret ground in the archbishop's mind was the publication of the Scriptures in English.

He calls Courtney "on gret byschop of englelound," who "as men sayen is yuel payed that Goddes lawe is written in englysche to lewede [lay] men; and he pursueth a prest, for he wryteth to men this englysche and sompueth him and traveleth him, that hyt is hard to hym to route. And thus he pursueth another prest by the helpe of the pharyses, for he precheth cristes gospel frely withouten fables. O men that ben of cristes halfe, helpe ye nowe ageyns Antecrist. For the perelouse tyme is comen that crist and poule tolden byfore."

It is probable that the priest, who was thus spoken of as being pursued by the bishop for writing Scripture in English, was not Wiclif himself but Hereford, whom we have already seen to have been, in some measure, a coadjutor of Wiclif in his work. The other, who was persecuted for preaching, seems to me to have been Ashton, an itinerant labourer of much note. Others may, perhaps, judge that Rappington was intended. Archbishop Courtney continued his opposition with unwearied zeal, Hereford and Rappington being the two most obnoxious to him. Submissions, on the part of the accused—some more entire than others—some indeed very partial, were the consequence of the archbishop's proceedings against the Oxford divines.

Wiclif was still untouched. It is possible that a man whose death from palsy was expected, was deemed unfit to be summoned; but so far was he from succumbing to the menaces of Archbishop Courtney, that in the following November he presented a statement of his doctrine to the king and the Parliament assembled at Oxford. With regard to the Lord's supper, he prays that the doctrine concerning it, set forth by Christ and his apostles in the Gospels and Epistles, may be openly taught in the churches. The authority and sufficiency of the New Testament, as the Christian's directory, is put very pointedly in opposition to the multifarious additions which had been appended to it. The effect of this appeal was remarkable; it led the Commons to petition the king to withdraw the illegal ordinance by which he had empowered the prelates to imprison those who held the twenty-four condemned "conclusions." The result of this petition has been already stated.

But the archbishop was not idle: the convocation which met at Oxford at the same time as the Parliament summoned Wiclif to appear before them. This summons was duly obeyed; and here we see Wiclif meeting the combined spiritual authority of the hierarchy alone—for his Oxford adherents were silenced:—and unsupported,—for John of Gaunt, who once upheld him, now avowedly abandoned him, and recommended him not to maintain the doctrines which he had taught.

When he appeared before the archbishop and other prelates, he presented to them two confessions on the subject of the Lord's supper, the one in English, and the other in Latin, each re-asserting that transubstantiation did not really take place. In his Latin confession, he enters into questions as to how, or in what sense, "the bread which we break is the communion of the body of Christ," but he concludes where he began, that there is no change of substance. The consequence of the Oxford citation was, his being deprived, by the authority of the king, of the office which he held as professor of divinity, and likewise banished from the University.

He now left Oxford, the place in which he had for many years taught the truth as his own mind was gradually opened to apprehend it; and where, during the last six years, his testimony had been the means of bringing a flood of light amongst his cotemporaries. One of the most remarkable facts in the history of Wiclif is, the comparative shortness of the period in which his testimony was directly pointed against the spiritual pretensions of Rome, from which results so apparently incommensurate took place. The Lord had prepared the ground, even as He sent forth Wiclif to sow the truth.

It would seem as though the prelates contemplated farther proceedings against Wiclif: at all events, Urban VI. was apprised of his opinions, and he was in consequence cited to appear at Rome. It is not probable that this citation had any connection with the former proceedings, in which Gregory XI. had Proceedings against the chancellor and others at Oxford.

Wiclif at Lutterworth; he refers in his sermons to the proceedings. Lewis's Hist. p. 22.

The submission of the suspected heretics.

Wiclif still untouched. His statement presented to the king and Parliament at Oxford, Nov. 1382.

The convocation at Oxford. Wiclif summoned before it, Nov. 1382.

He presents two confessions of his doctrines against transubstantiation.

Wiclif deprived of his professorship, and banished from Oxford.

Cited by Urban VI. to appear at Rome.

reserved to himself the place of authoritatively giving sentence concerning Wiclif's explanation of the Pope's "conclusions," as to what he had taught; and yet it is possible that the English prelates were still restrained by the authority of the Bull of 1377, from touching Wiclif's person, unless they received authority from Rome. The citation to appear at Rome reached Lutterworth at a time when Wiclif was so suffering from paralysis, as to render his obedience, even if he had been disposed, impossible; however, he wrote to the Pope very freely, speaking of the authority and obligation of Holy Scripture, and its superiority to even an Apostle, if he were present; this is urged on the simple ground, that apostles both could and did err, whereas the Scripture is certain and of absolute authority; he then applies this to the conscience of the Pope, speaking the truth to him both boldly and faithfully, thus showing that even though he were disabled in body, he was still vigorous in mind for the cause of God.

Wiclif writes to the Pope.

Wiclif's retirement at Lutterworth must have been diligently employed in setting forth his opinions in writing. It is probable, that in this he was assisted by the pens of others; but, in spite of his paralysis, his vigour of mind, and affiance of soul upon God and his truth, were in no way weakened. The remaining months of his life do not seem to have been molested; although, in some of his writings, he appears to have expected more trouble from his opponents. But his days were near their close: he was seized with a fatal attack of paralysis, on the 29th of December, 1384, and on the 31st of the same month, aged sixty years, he "departed to be with Christ, which is far better."

Wiclif writes diligently.

His death, Dec. 31, 1384.

I have thus briefly looked at the life and labours of this remarkable man, whose efforts will not, in their result, be fully known till the day when the secrets of all hearts shall be revealed. The whole course of his testimony stands more or less in connection with his publication of the Scriptures in English, either as leading onward to it, or as resulting from it. The events of his life are, it is true, seen through an obscure medium, and he rises, as it were, an object, dim, but vast, in the horizon; but though the lapse of years, and the bitter persecutions of those who were taught by him, cause many of the exact features of his character, and the incidents of his life, to be little known, yet this we do know, that his testimony in his life and writings was faithful; and that, after his death, the effects of truth received through him, continued to draw forth the opposition of its foes. Wiclif stands, indeed, in such prominence, that others who held his doctrines after him, seem to be almost forgotten, until, after a century and a half, the light of God's truth again shone forth.

But there continued, through all this dark interval, not a few who prized the truth of God more dearly than their own lives; we know of such as William Sautrè (the proto-martyr of England's papal persecution), Lord Cobham, William White, Richard Hoveden, John Goose, Tylsworth of Amersham, and of many more who yielded their bodies to be burned at various times during this period; and of many others likewise, who were confessors, if they were not called to suffer death. One of these, who deserves particular attention, is WILLIAM THORP, who, by his writings, formed a connecting link between JOHN WICLIF and WILLIAM TYNDALE. The decrees of the convention at the Grey Friars, under Archbishop Courtney, were, as I have already mentioned, directed against any itinerant preachers who should teach the doctrines of Wiclif. Of these there appear to have been no inconsiderable number then in England. Itinerant preaching, on the part of the mendicant friars, was nothing strange; but it gave no small offence to Wiclif's "poor priests" to act in the same manner. But they were acting in obedience to the word of God, and they accounted it to be their duty to preach to the people, even though the prelates gave them no licenses. They were, in fact, acting upon the same principle as those of whom we read, who were dispersed in consequence of the persecution at Jerusalem, "They that were scattered abroad, went every where, preaching the word."

Many continued to hold the doctrines which Wiclif had taught.

Many martyrs and confessors.

W. Thorp is, as it were, a link between Wiclif and Tyndale. Fox, i. 600, et seqq.

Itinerant preaching in England. Wiclif's "poor priests."

Acts viii. 4.

V.

THE ENGLISH VERSION EXECUTED BY WICLIF'S FOLLOWERS.

BEFORE giving an account of the proceedings which were instituted soon after the death of Wiclif, for the suppression of the English Scriptures, it is needful to notice the other versions, real or supposed, which were executed about the same time or a little after.

It is a certain fact that another translation beside that of Wiclif was made about the same time; some Manuscripts of a version exist, which when compared with that of Wiclif appear in many parts to have been formed very much on the model of his translation; the terms employed and the collocation of words often seem to shew, that the translator of the one had the other version before him, and that he used it in the composition of that which he executed.

The book entitled "Elucidarium Bibliorum" has been already referred to; this prologue to the Bible contains an intimation that a version existed which had been made a little before that which was executed by the author of that tract and certain coadjutors. The question naturally occurs, When was this prologue written? Is there any evidence to determine the author? Can the version be ascertained to which this prologue properly belongs? To these questions answers can, I believe, be returned more or less satisfactory, principally from the statements of the prologue itself.

1st. The date;—this is intimated by certain references made to the proceedings of the "last Parliament," at which some of the grievous vices of the clergy had been brought into notice. This can refer to nothing but the sad and disgusting exposure which took place in the Parliament in the year 1395, so that we may assign this prologue to that year or the beginning of the next; the translation was apparently completed just before the prologue was written. Reference is made to the contentions of the scholars at Oxford and the consequent bloodshed; these events took place in the years 1388 and 1389. A statute of the university of Oxford (enacted in 1251) was revived in 1387, which the author of this prologue thus recites:—"That no man schal lerne dyuynte neither hooly writ, no but he that hath doon his fourme in art, that is that hath comensid in art and hath been regent tweyne yeer aftir, this wolde be ix year either x before that he lerne hooly writ." The first reference gives a date to this work, which the other particulars stated, amply confirm.* A further proof that this prologue was written after the time of Wiclif, is to be found in the reference made to the writings of John Gerson, the celebrated chancellor of the University of Paris; he is cited by the name of "Parisience," which is given more explicitly in the printed edition, "Johan Gerson Parisiensis." He was not known as an author till after Wiclif's death.

2nd. The next point to be inquired into is, Who was the author of this prologue, and consequently of the version to which it belonged? It is very evident that the writer was one whose views and doctrines were similar to those of Wiclif himself; and this makes it prima facie probable that the translator was one whose "Lollardism" would be so notorious, that his name would be transmitted to us amongst the learned followers of Wiclif. Of these, one of the most remarkable was John Purvy, or Purnay, who, during the life of Wiclif, appears to have lived with him, and is supposed to have acted as his curate at Lutterworth. Copies of a version of the Bible into English have the name of this person written in them, and also the prologue annexed; and hence the supposition has been very reasonably entertained that he was the translator of the version which varies from that of Wiclif. This answers also the third of the questions which have been put. This version and prologue have thus been ascribed to Purnay; and as it seems as if there could have been no reason to ascribe it to him if he had not been the author, it may be regarded as his work.†

Purnay appears, from what has been said of him by various writers, to have been very competent to the task of the translation. Walden calls him "The Library of the Lollards, and Wiclif's glosser, an eloquent divine, and famous for his skill in the Law." The manner in which the version was executed is very

* The circumstances just mentioned prove that this was not the work of Wiclif, as was formerly supposed. The edition printed in 1550, under the title of "A Pathway to Perfect Knowledge," is stated on the title-page as being apparently by him. If it had been, it would be clear that a previous version to his existed, for the writer expressly speaks of the English translation lately made; but the date which is above assigned (after Lewis and Baber) proves that this prologue presents no impediment to the full reception of the testimony of Knyghton; according to which it is clear that no English translation of the Scripture was known and circulated at large prior to that of Wiclif.

† If it be objected that the evidence is not absolutely conclusive as to Purnay having been the author of this prologue and translation, let it be observed that this does not in the slightest degree affect the account of the version itself; other things remain the same, even though we look on it as anonymous.

One other version at least cotemporary with that of Wiclif.

Elucidarium Bibliorum.

A previous version referred to.

Date of the prologue, 1395.

Events of previous version referred to.

John Purnay almost certainly the author of this prologue. Wiclif's curate at Lutterworth.

Purnay's competency as a translator.

interesting. The following account is given at the end of the prologue of the process pursued by Purnay and his assistants in preparing for, and producing their version.*

“Fyrste thys symple creature had mych trauaile wyth diuers felowis & helpars to gather mani eld bibles and other doctouris & comune glosis, & to make oo latine bible some dell trwe, and than to studie it of the newe, the text with the glose, & other doctours as he might get, and specially Lire on the elde testamente, that helpyd full miche in hys werke. The thyrde tyme to counsell wyth elde gramariens and elde diuinis, of harde wordis and harde sentensis, how they myght beste be vnderstanden & translated. The fourth tyme, to translate as cleerly as he could to y<sup>e</sup> sentence, and to haue many good fellowis and kunnyng, at the correctinge of the translation. First it is to know that y<sup>e</sup> beste translatyng out of Latyne into English is to translate after the sentence, and not only after the wordis.

The translator's account of the version. Old Latin Bibles collated.

Nicolaus Lyranus.

“So that the sentence be as opyn (either opener) in Englyshe as in latyne, and go not farre fro the letter. And if the letter may not be suid in y<sup>e</sup> translatyng, let the sentence euer be whole and open. For the wordis owen to serue to y<sup>e</sup> entente and sentence: and elles the wordis bene superfluouse either false. In translatyng into English, many resoluions moune make the sentence open, as an ablatyfe case absolute may be resolued into these three words w<sup>t</sup> couenable verb the while, for, if, as gramariens seine. As thus, The master reding, I stode, may be resolued thus, while y<sup>e</sup> master readith, I stonde. Either if the master read, ether for the master, &c. And sometime it wold accord well w<sup>t</sup> the sentence to be resolued into whan, either into afterward, thus, whan the master red, I stode. Either after the master read I stode. And sometime it may well be resolued into a verbe of the same tyme, as other ben in the same reason, and this worde et, that is, and, in English, as thus. Arescentibus hominibus pre timore, that is, And men shulen were drie for dread. Als a participle of a presente tens, either preter tens of actyfe voicis, either passife: may be resolued into a verb of the same tens, and a coniunction copulatyfe, as thus. Dicens, that is seyng may be resolued thus, and seythe, eyther that seythe . . . . .

The version not literal.

“Also whan ryghtful constructions is lettyd by relation I resoluue openly thus. Where this reason, Dum formidabunt aduersarii, eius shuld be englyshid thus bi the letter. The lorde hys aduersaries sholden dred: I english it thus by resoluecyon, the aduersaries of the lorde shulen dread hym. And so of other reasons that bene like. At the bygynnyng I purposyde wyth Goddys helpe: to make the sentence as true and open in englyshe as it is in latine, either more trwe and moore open than it is in latyne. And I praye for charitie and commune profyte of chrysten soulys, that if any wyse man fynd any default of the truth of translation, let hym set in the true sentence and open the holy wryte. But loke y<sup>t</sup> he examyne trulye hys latyn byble: for no doubt he shall fynde many byblis in latyne ful false, if he loke mani. And namely newe, and the comune latyne bybles haue more nede to be correctyd (as many as I haue sene in my life) than hath the english bible late translated. And where the Hebru, by witness of Jerom of Lire and other expositours dyscordith fro our Latyne biblis: I haue set in y<sup>e</sup> margent bi manner of a glose what y<sup>e</sup> Hebreu hath and howe it is vnderstonden in some place. And I did this most in the psalter, y<sup>t</sup> of al our bokis dyscordith most fro Hebru. For the chirch readeth not the psalter by the laste translation out of Hebru into Latine: but an other translacion of other men y<sup>t</sup> hadden mich lasse kunnyng, and holiness than Jerome had.”

A previous English translation referred to.

This prologue shews that the translation to which it belongs must vary considerably in its plan from that of Wiclif; this latter keeping especially close to the literal sense of the Latin, while Purnay sought to preserve the English idiom; how far this object was attained in the execution of the version, and what are its comparative merits as compared with Wiclif's, are questions which may admit of varying judgments; the more closely a version adheres to literal renderings of the text, the more, in my judgment, would it accurately represent the meaning: of course I do not mean that a departure from the vernacular idiom should be resorted to for the sake of precision; but that a literal adherence to the text is commonly the best mode of expressing the sense.

The plan of the version differs from that of Wiclif.

It is not perhaps easy to give an exact account of the Manuscripts, now extant, containing the version of Purnay. Lewis says, that his name is written on a copy of a translation of the New Testament, differing from Wiclif's, in Trinity College, Dublin; and, farther on, he gives a quotation from the Manuscript itself. He says, “the Prologue before-mentioned is bound up with it at the end of the Apocalypse, and written in the same hand as the New Testament.”

The MSS. of Purnay's version.

His name in a MS. at Dublin; Lewis, p. 34.

Lewis gives, as an extract from this Manuscript, the first verses of St. Matthew's Gospel; I give them from him, together with the same portions of Wiclif's translation.

The more literal a version the better.

* The extract given from the prologue is taken from the printed edition of 1550; the British Museum copy of the Manuscript being defective at the end.

WICLIF 1380.

Extracts from Wiclif and Purnay,
Matt. i.

The booke of the generacioun of ihesus crist : the sone of dauith, the sone of abraham. abraham bigat Isaac. Isaac bigat Jacob, Jacob bigat Judas and hise britheren.

Bishop Butler's
MS. note
(Feb. 1841)
pines Messrs.
Payne & Foss,
 Pall Mall.

This version, attributed to Purnay, and belonging evidently to the author of the prologue, agrees verbatim with a manuscript in the possession of the late Bishop Butler, of Lichfield and Coventry; this last-mentioned Manuscript differs in the Gospels in many respects from Wiclif's translation, and is clearly another version. I therefore give a few more specimens of it, comparing them with Wiclif.

WICLIF.

Luke i. 1-5.

[The four first verses of this gospel do not appear to belong to Wiclif's translation as actually executed; if found in any manuscript apparently of Wiclif's translation, they are probably taken from that which was executed afterwards.]

In the daies of eroude kyng of iudee, there was a preest zacarie bi name of the sorte of abia, and his wiif was of the doutris of aaron: and hir name was elizabeth.

The following passage will serve to shew how far this later translation coincides with that of Wiclif in the use of terms and phrases.

WICLIF.

Lukex. 23-30.

blessid ben the ijen: that seen tho thingis that 3e seen, for I seie to 3ou that many profetis and kyngis wolden haue seen tho thingis that 3e seen: and thei saien not, and heren tho thingis that 3e beren: and thei herden not, and lo a wise man of the lawe roos up, temptynge hym and seynge, maistr what thing schal I do to haue euerlastyng lif, and he seide to hym, what is writun in the lawe? hou redist thou, he answerid and seid, thou schalt loue thi lord god of al thin herte: and of all thi soule, and of al thi stryngthis and of al thi mynde and thi neybor as thi silf. ⁊ ihesus seide to hym, thou hast answerid rijtli, do this thing, and thou schalt lyue but he wyllynge to iustifie hym silf: seid to ihesus, and who is my neybor? and ihesus bi helde and seide, A man cam down from ierusalem in to ierico, and filde among theues, and thei robbeden hym, and woundiden hym, and wenten aweic: and leften the man half alyue.

If it be thought that in anything this version seems less clear and modern in phraseology than that of Wiclif, it must be borne in mind that many of the explanatory terms with which Manuscripts are sometimes glossed, are now less intelligible than the word which they are given to explain.

This version appears to be identical with one which has been alleged to be more ancient than Wiclif's, Bishop Butler's Manuscript appears to coincide with that at Dublin, which has Purnay's name, and also with a specimen lately published as part of an older version.

It is, however, also to be observed, that Bishop Butler's Manuscript appears to agree in the Epistles with Wiclif's version; hence it may be supposed to have been transcribed from two different copies and versions.

A Manuscript in the British Museum (Bibl. Reg. I B. VI.) contains throughout a version varying from

PURNAY 1395. (MS. TRIN. COL. DUBL. 237. 97.)

The booke of generacioun of ihesus crist the sone of dauith, the sone of abraham. abraham generide or bigat ysaac, ysaac forsothe bigate jacob, jacob forsothe bigate judas and his brethern.

LUKE I.

PURNAY (BP. BUTLER'S MS.)

Forsothe for manye men enforceden to ordeyne the tellyng of thingis whiche ben filled in vs. as thei that seyn atte the bigynnyng & weren ministris of the word bitaken: it is seen also to me hauynge fro the bigynnyng alle thingis diligentli bi ordre to write to thee thou beest theofile that thou knowe the trithe of tho wordis of whiche thou art lerned.

There was sun preest zacharie by name in the daies of heroude Kyng of Judee of the sort of Abia and his wyf of the doutris of aaron: & hir name Elizabeth.

LUKE X. 23-30.

PURNAY (BP. BUTLER'S MS.)

blessid ben the ijen: whiche seen tho thingis that 3e seen, sotheli I seie to 3ou for many pftes & kyngis wolden see tho thingis whiche 3e seen & sawen not and heere tho thingis that 3e heeren & thei herden not, and lo a wise man of law roos temptynge him & seynge; maystir what thing doynge schal I weldel eulastyng lyf; and he seyde to him; what is writen in the lawe? how redist thou? he answerynge seide, thou schalt loue the lorde thi god of al thin herte & of al thi soule eithr lyf & of al thi myntes & of al thi mynde; and thi neybor as thi silf. and iesu seyde to him thou has answeride rijtly do thou this thing & thou schalt lyue. forsothe he wyllynge for to iustifie himself seyde to iesu, and who is my neybor? sothely iesu biholdynge seyde, sum man cam downe fro ierlm in to icericho. & felde among theues whiche also robbiden him and wounden putte inne wenten awaye the man lefte halfe quyke.

Wiclif's; this appears in the Gospels to be identical with the version contained in Bishop Butler's Manuscript, and in the Epistles to be the rest of the same translation.

The first four verses of St. Luke's Gospel are, however, omitted in this copy, as well as in those of Wiclif's version. In the passage already cited from Bishop Butler's Manuscript from Luke x, there are only a few slight variations.

The following are specimens as compared with Wiclif:—

WICLIF.

I COR. VIII.

MS. BRIT. MUS. BIB. REG. 1 B. VI.

But of these thingis that ben sacrificed to idolis we witen for alle we han kunnyng, but kunnyng blowith, charite edifieth, but if ony man gessith that he kan ony thing, he hath not jit knowe hou it bihoueth hym to kunne.

Forsotho of thes thingis that ben offrid to ydolis that 1 Cor. viii. 1, 2. ben symulacris maid to manns lyknesses. we witen for alle we han kunnyng. sotheli science or kunnyng in bloweth with pride. charite edifieth forsothe if ony man gesse or deme him forto wite ony thing he hath not jit knowun hou it bihoueth him for to kunne.

WICLIF.

HEB. IV.

MS. BIB. REG. 1 B. VI.

Therfor drede we leest parauntere, while the biheest of entryng in to his reste is lefte, that if ony of us be gessid to be awei, for it is toold also to us: as to hem, and the word that was herd, profitid not to hem, not meynde to feith, of tho thingis that thei herden, for we that han bileued, schulen entre in to reste, as he seide, as I swoor in my wraththe: thei schulen not entre in to my reste.

Drede we thifore brithren leste paruenre the biheest Heb. iv. 1—3. of entring into "reste" his [sic] left or forsaken or denyd forto be ony of us be gessid aweye. forsothe it is tolde to us as & to hem and the worde herde pftid not to hem not mengid to feith of thes thingis that thei herden forsothe we that han bileued schulen entre in to reste as he seide as I swoor in my wrath if thei schulen entre into my reste.

Another Manuscript, in the British Museum, (Arundel 254), contains an English harmony of the Gospels, on the plan of that drawn up by Clement, of Lanthony, together with the Catholic Epistles, all of which are of the translation differing from Wiclif's.

Bishop Butler's Manuscript contains some peculiarities; for instance, in Matt. ii. "Kinges" is the word in the text for "wise men", and "astronomers" is placed in the margin. The word "kinges" is of course derived from the Romish legend of Gaspar, Melchior, and Balthasar. This could not have proceeded from the translator, it must have been the alteration of a copyist.

Mr. Baber gives Luke ix. 1, &c., and 1 Cor. viii. 1, &c. as specimens of a version contained in a Manuscript then in the possession of Mr. Douce: from these citations, the Manuscript in question appears to contain the version here attributed to Purnay.*

Mr. Douce's MS. cited by Baber.

There is a MS. in the Bodleian Library, which has this notice written at the end, "y<sup>e</sup> cer of y<sup>e</sup> lord m cccc x viii. yis book wa endid." The fourth c in the date has been erased, so as to make the book appear older; but there can hardly be a question that the date really is 1408, the very year when Archbishop Arundel's Oxford Constitutions were enacted. This MS. is worthy of notice, because, from the alteration of date, it has been supposed to be far earlier than the days of Wiclif, and also because it has been stated by Lewis to be of a different version.

MS. in the Bodleian, Fairfax, 2. Date.

Bishop Bonner mentioned, in 1555, an old Bible which he possessed, written about eight score years previous, from which he gives some extracts; the following is a comparison of these passages (as found in Lewis), with Wiclif's version.

Bp. Bonner's MS. Lewis, p. 25, 27.

WICLIF.

EXOD. XX.

BONNER'S MS.

And the lord spak alle these wordis. I am the lord God that ladde thee out of the lond of egypt fro the hous of seruage. thou schalt not haue alien goddis bifore me. thou schalt not make to thee a grauin ymage, nethir ony licnesse of thing which is in heuene aboue, and which is in erthe binethe, neythir of the thingis that ben in waters undir erthe, thou shalt not herie tho nether thou schalt worshippe.

And the lord speek alle thes wordes I am the lord thi god that hath lad the out of the lond of Egypte from the house of thraldome: thou schalt not have alyen goddis before me, thou schalt not make to the graven thing, ne eny lyknesse that is in heven aboun and that is in erthe benethe, ne of hem that ben in waters under erthe, thou schalt not anoure hem ne berye hem.

Exod. xx. 1—5.

* The same version appears to be contained in a Manuscript in the Advocates' Library, Edinburgh; of which various specimens have been kindly furnished for comparison, by

J. Thomson, Esq. This Manuscript does not contain the introductory verses to the Gospel of St. Luke.

LEVIT. XXVI.

Lev. xxvi. Ye schulen not make to you an ydol and a grauen ymage, nether ye schulen reyse tytlis, nether ȝe schulen sette a noble stoon in your lond that ȝe worschipe it.

Ghe schuln not make to ghou a mawmett and grauen thing, ne tytles ghe schuln rere, ne huge stone ghe schuln patten in ghor erthe that ghe honour it.

Glosses introduced.

In this passage, some Manuscripts of Wiclif's translation add, after the word "tytlis," "yt is awteris for ydolatrie," underscored, so as to distinguish it from the text itself. This may serve as a specimen of the kind of glosses which were early added to Wiclif's translation; they were probably appended, in many copies, almost as soon as the version itself was executed; and, indeed, it is not improbable that the copy of the New Testament in English, with glosses, which was used by Anne of Bohemia, queen consort of Richard II., was one of this description.

WICLIF.

DEUT. V.

BONNER'S MS.

Deut. v. 7-9. Thou schalt not have alien goddis in my sight, Thou schalt not make to thee a grauen ymage neyer a linessce of all thingis that been in heuene above & that ben in erthe binethe & that ben in watris under erthe, thou schalt not herie tho & thou schalt not worshippinge tho.

Thou schalte not haue elyen goddys in my syght, thou schalt not make to thee grauen thinge, ne lickenesse of alle thinges that in heuene ben above and in erthe benethe, and that dwellen in waters under erthe, thou schalt not honoure hem ne herye hem.

Bodleian MS., Fairfax 2, is Wiclif's.

Lewis says, that the Manuscript cited by Bonner, appears to be the same that is now in the Bodleian, marked Fairfax, No. 2; which is the Manuscript of which the date has been falsified, to make it appear a century older. In this he is clearly mistaken, for a comparison of these very passages with that MS., proves that it contains the version of Wiclif; the same is true of a passage which has been copied from the New Testament of that MS. Another Bodleian Manuscript, which Lewis speaks of as containing the same version, is also simply one of Wiclif's.* It yet remains to be shown, what Manuscripts contain the version which Bishop Bonner cites.

Purnay's version never widely spread.

Thus much, then, appears certain, that in the latter part of the fourteenth century, two English versions of the Scriptures were made, both of which are extant; the one, John Wiclif's, a translation made very literally from the Latin; the other, executed by Purnay and others, in which an attempt was made to express the sense in English more than the exact words. This latter version appears never to have been so much circulated as the former, which may be attributed to three causes. 1st. That Wiclif's was so diligently copied at once, that it had acquired a sort of standing in the affections of readers; 2nd. That the troubles of Purnay commenced so very soon after the completion of his work, that he was not able himself to superintend the multiplication of copies; and, 3rd. That the prohibitory constitution of Archbishop Arundel was enacted only thirteen years subsequent to the completion of the version, whereas it was twenty-eight years posterior to the translation of Wiclif.

Glosses found in various MSS.

Lewis, p. 29.

Glosses of various kinds to explain passages, or, more commonly, single words, are of frequent occurrence in some Manuscripts of Wiclif's and the other early version; but especially in those of the latter: the following are a few specimens of verbal glosses:—"Incorruptible, that may not dye ne ben preyed;"—"Creator, that is, maker of noughte."—"Yvel fame, or, sehewedschepe."—"Maales, or men."—"Acorden not, or bysenen nol."—"Bakbyters, or soerces of disorde."—"Detractours, or open bakbyteres."—"Proude, high ouer measure."—"Affeccion, or love."—"Beniguite, or good-will."—"Acception of persones, that is put on bifore another that is withouten deserte."—"Sacriligie, that is theft of holy thenges."—"Prepuic, or custom of heathen men."—"Iustified, or foinden trew."—"Preuarication, or trespassing."—"Allogorie, or gospels wudirstanding."—"A libel, that is a little book."—"A byliber of wheat, that is, a weighte of tweye pound."—"With wonder and extasi, that is, lesyng of mynde and resoun and lettyn of tonge."—"Oolde botellis, or wyne vessels."

The object of the greater part of these glosses is very evident: in some of them, however, the explanatory term is now become less simple than the word to be explained. Some of the elucidations are not a little singular, while others appear to be inserted for the purpose of giving a synonyme of Saxon origin as an equivalent for some term derived from the Latin. This one thing is very clear that all the

* I am much indebted to the kindness of Dr. Bandinell, the Keeper of the Bodleian Library, for extracts from various labour bestowed upon the making of versions, and upon elucidating them when made, was directed to the diffusion of the knowledge of the word of God amongst the English, not merely the high and learned, but likewise the poor and comparatively illiterate.

MSS.; and also to Mr. Henry Gough, for information relative to these and others.

It is possible that a careful examination of existing manuscripts would shew that there are more than one old translation extant besides that of Wiclif. It has been positively asserted, that John de Trevisa, a native of Cornwall, who was vicar of Berkley, translated both the Old and New Testaments into English. He was cotemporary with Wiclif, though born some years before him, and also his survivor by some years; it has been supposed that he died in 1399 or the preceding year: Tanner says, in 1412. John de Trevisa was no friend to the then existing state of things in the Church, since he is reported to have said, "Our Saviour sent apostles and priests into the world, but never any monks or begging friars." Whether these were his words or not, they may at least be taken as the expression of his judgment. It is possible that his objection to the friars may have led to a translation of the Scriptures having been attributed to him.

John de Trevisa said to have translated the Scriptures.

His dislike to the friars.

If John de Trevisa did really translate the Old and New Testaments, it is probable that his work was either almost exactly cotemporary or else a little posterior to that of Wiclif; I suppose this from the fact of other works translated by him having been executed about that time: the Polychronicon of Ranulph of Chester was translated by him (to which he himself added a supplement of the events of fifty-five years), and it was finished in April, 1387.

Bale attributes a version of the Scriptures to Trevisa, as also Caxton seems to do; whether they had any data for their assertion is not easy to determine.

Bale and Caxton's testimony.

If John de Trevisa did translate the Scriptures, his work must have fallen with Wiclif's under the sweeping condemnation of Archbishop Arundel's Oxford Constitutions, and thus unless it were disseminated (like Wiclif's had been previously) by some strenuous efforts, copies of it would necessarily become almost extinct. As the name of John de Trevisa has thus been connected with the English translations of the Scriptures, it will not be amiss to give a few passages of Scripture extracted by Dr. Waterland out of his writings, and published by Lewis:—

Matt. 18: 32. "I forgave the al thy det bycause thou praydest me, wicked servant."

— 22: 18. "The slowe servant hidde his lorde's talent in the erthe."

— 26: 19. "Moche have I suffred by syghte bycause of him."

Luke 11: 45. "my lord taryeth to come" . . . "If a servant begynneth to drink and is drunken, and smiteth and beateth the meyny his lord shall come . . ."

— 19: 13. "The nobleman called his servauntes and bytoke hem ten mnas, and he saile to these servauntes marchaundise with itt yll I come."

— — 16. "Lo, lord, thy mna hath made ten mnas, and his lorde sayde to him, and be thou hauynge power over ten cities."

Fragments of Scripture in the writings of Trevisa.

I know of nothing farther which can be accurately ascertained respecting the claims of John de Trevisa to be regarded as a translator of the Scriptures.

VI.

OPPOSITION TO THE CIRCULATION OF THE SCRIPTURES, AND OTHER CIRCUMSTANCES PREVIOUS TO THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII.

I HAVE yet to speak of the opposition which, after the death of Wiclif, was raised against the spread of the Scriptures in English. I have already adverted to the mention which he himself makes of the enmity which this translation was even in his lifetime exciting. After his death this was carried still farther, for in the year 1390, a bill was brought into the House of Lords in order to suppress this English translation of the Scriptures. John of Gaunt, although he forsook Wiclif when he boldly combated the doctrine of transubstantiation, seems to have always respected both his principles and conduct, and now firmly opposed the enacting of such a law. He spoke thus, "We will not be the dregs of all; seeing other nations have the law of God, which is the law of our faith, written in their own language." He declared that he would support the circulation of the Scriptures in English against those who brought in the bill, whoever they might be. In support of this opposition, it was said, that "if the Gospel by its being translated into English, was the occasion of men's running into error, they might know that more hereticks are to be found among the Latins than among the people of any other language. For that the Decretals reckoned no fewer than sixty-six Latin hereticks, and so the Gospel must not be read in Latin, which yet the opposers of the English translation allowed." The consequence of this opposition appears to have been that there was no legislative prohibition of the Bible in English.

Opposition raised after Wiclif's death.

A bill brought into the House of Lords, 1390.

This bill opposed by John of Gaunt.

We have a testimony from one who would perhaps be thought the least likely to give it, of the reception which the English Scriptures received even amongst those in the highest station. Anne of Bohemia, the queen-consort of Richard II., died in 1394, on the 7th of June; her funeral sermon was preached at Westminster by Thomas Arundel, then archbishop of York, and afterwards of Canterbury; in his commendation of "good Queen Anne" he says, that "although she was a stranger, yet she constantly studied the four Gospels in English, and explained by the exposition of the doctors; and in the study of these, and reading of godly books, she was more diligent than even the prelates themselves, though their office and business require this of them." From this it would appear that she had followed the example of her mother-in-law, the princess of Wales and Aquitaine, whose interference on Wiclif's behalf has been already mentioned.

The attendants of this queen, who had accompanied her to England, returned on her decease to Bohemia, conveying with them the writings of Wiclif; whence it was that the light of truth shone forth from Prague, a light which the council of Constance in vain endeavoured to extinguish. We have, I think, in the circumstance of the writings of Wiclif having been thus conveyed into Bohemia, a presumptive evidence that the English Gospels with the exposition of the doctors, was either of his translation, or else one of those which his followers had put forth. There appears to be some connection between the copy of the Scriptures in English used by this princess, and the subsequent dissemination of the works and doctrines of Wiclif by her attendants in Bohemia; for it cannot be questioned that some at least of her household had embraced the doctrines of this reformer. It appears very probable, that Anne of Bohemia herself had received some of his instructions. Wiclif knew something of her, although she came to this country but little more than two years before his death; for he speaks of her as possessing the Gospel written in three languages, Bohemian, German, and Latin; he asks whether to "hereticate her on that account would not be Luciferan folly?" It is possible that she was under some suspicion of holding or favouring the doctrines of Wiclif, and that, for this reason, he inquires respecting her being hereticated.

When "Lollardie," as it was termed, was introduced even into the abodes of royalty, it is not surprising that many of every class were also amongst the number of those who had received the doctrine of Scripture. Wiclif rejoiced that "many knights favoured the Gospel, and had a mind to read it in English;" among others the following are mentioned as adhering to the doctrines of Wiclif: Sir Lewis Clifford, Sir John Montacute, Sir Reginald Hilton, Sir William Neville, Sir John Peeche, Sir John Clenboun, Sir John Trussel, Sir Richard Sturry, Sir Thomas Latimer, and that faithful martyr of Christ, Sir John Oldecastle, Lord Cobham. Knyghton, as might have been expected, bewailed the infatuation of those knights, who preferred the reproach of Christ to the honours of this world.

It is no wonder that the adherents of the Romish doctrine should have been at length thoroughly alarmed, and induced to institute severe proceedings for the suppression of the supposed evil.

Six years subsequent to his sermon on the death of Queen Anne, namely in the year 1400, Archbishop Arundel, who had before this succeeded Courtney in the see of Canterbury, became the uncompromising persecutor of all who were suspected of "Lollardie." In this year it was that William Sautrè became the first, in England, to yield his life for the truth of God. The archbishop's continued opposition brought other victims into his hands to be either burned or, like Thorp, imprisoned. In the year 1408, we find him taking more determinate measures for hindering the propagation of what he called heresy: the circulation of the Scriptures in English (those Scriptures the reading of which he once had commended) was now to be prohibited by any means. A convocation of the province of Canterbury was held at Oxford, and thirteen Constitutions were enacted. The first two of these defined who might preach; the third and fourth determined what might be preached; the fifth related to what masters might teach their scholars; the sixth was directed against the writings of John Wiclif, by name; while the seventh was nothing short of a prohibition of the Scriptures in English:—"It is a dangerous thing, as St. Jerome assures us, to translate the holy Scripture, it being very difficult in a version to keep close to the sense of the inspired writers: for by the confession of the same father he had mistaken the meaning of several texts. We therefore decree and ordain, that from henceforward no unauthorised person shall translate any part of

It does not pass.

Ahp. Arundel's testimony respecting Queen Anne, 1394.

The writings of Wiclif carried to Bohemia.

Wiclif's commendation of Queen Anne.

The spread of Lollardie.

Arundel becomes a severe persecutor, 1400.

1408. A convocation at Oxford.

Constitutions Fox, i. 397. Collier, iii. p. 250.

Wiclif's writings condemned.

The Scriptures in English prohibited.

the holy Scripture into English or any other language, under any form of book or treatise: neither shall any such book, treatise, or version, made either in Wiclif's time or since, be read, either in whole or in part, publicly or privately, under the penalty of the greater excommunication, till the said translation shall be approved either by the bishop of the diocese, or a provincial council as occasion shall require." The six other constitutions relate to the modes of expression in speaking of God; to disputations on points of Romish belief; to the letters dimissory of priests; to the exclusion of "Lollardie" from Oxford; to the deprivation of offenders; and to the process to be employed in dealing with heretics.

The seventh of these Constitutions, which I have quoted at length, is of great importance, as shewing both the danger which the archbishop supposed would arise from the spread of the Scriptures in English, and also how these things were connected in his mind with John Wiclif. Whatever previous versions of particular portions had existed, they had excited no enmity, for they had never been disseminated by the hands of such as Wiclif's "poor priests." So resolute was this prelate in his condemnation, that he perverts and misquotes Jerome to serve his purpose. It is probable that during the thirty years (or thereabouts) which had elapsed between the completion of Wiclif's version and this Oxford convocation, very many copies of the English Scriptures had been made, probably the greater part of those of this translation which have come down to us; and it appears likewise that some of the followers of Wiclif had put forth copies in which the translation was either re-wrought or varied, according to what they judged to be simpler English, or less literal in the renderings;—but however much may have been done in this way by others, Wiclif's was still the version which had unlocked the treasures of God's word to the English nation.

Importance of this seventh Constitution.

Copies of Wiclif's version multiplied.

Had not the circulation of Wiclif's translation been very wide prior to the enactment of Archbishop Arundel's Constitutions, it is not likely that so many copies would have come down to us; for it was after that time a dangerous thing to possess, or to transcribe them. And yet, in spite of the danger, this was done;—there were those who were willing to face the penalties for heresy, rather than that the word of God should not be circulated: but still we have no reason to suppose that this was done except in comparatively rare instances. The Conventual and Collegiate libraries, too, which were the means of preserving so many of the literary productions of the middle ages, were closed against the writings and translations of Wiclif, unless, indeed, they happened to be buried in unknown obscurity; so that the possession of individuals must have been the means of transmitting them. Perhaps in this way they were more read and prized, while held as dangerous possessions, than they would have been if honoured with a known place in public libraries; and thus they were, I doubt not, the means of secretly instructing many who "sighed and who cried" over the evils which were wrought by those who professed to act in the name of Christ and of his apostles.

The circulation of Wiclif's version.

Copies of Wiclif's version transmitted through individuals.

Such were the attempts made to hinder the circulation of the Scriptures, as well as the original writings of Wiclif, by the archbishop, and very ably were his purposes carried into execution. But the exercise of church authority was not yet fully carried out against Wiclif. In 1406, some of his friends at Oxford appear to have published an instrument, under the University seal, certifying his learning, probity, and godliness; they state that "in his answering, reading, preaching, and determining, he behaved himself laudably, and as a stout and valiant champion of the faith; vanquishing, by the force of the Scriptures, all such who by their wilful beggary [the mendicant friars] blasphemed and slandered Christ's religion. Neither was this doctor convicted of any heresy, either burned of our prelates after his burial. God forbid that our prelates should have condemned a man of such honesty for a heretic." This instrument is dated, "At Oxford, in our congregation-house, the 1st day of October, in the year of our Lord, 1406."

1406. The Oxford testimonial in Wiclif's favour Fox, i. 511.

This testimonial appears to have drawn forth not a little opposition and anger on the part of the enemies of Wiclif and his doctrines; they tried to represent the document as being false or forged, although they could not deny that the University seal had been affixed thereto. Two years afterwards, as has been stated, Archbishop Arundel's Constitutions, condemning Wiclif and his works, were framed at Oxford. In 1410, the doctrines of Wiclif were condemned in a full congregation at Oxford; a vast number of propositions, as having been taken out of Wiclif's writings, were censured, and the books themselves were publicly burned. Any who maintained the doctrines which were thus censured were to lose their respective degrees. "But, as it happened, these opinions of Wiclif, instead of being stifled, gained ground by this opposition; and his books were more valued than before." Amongst these books, Wiclif's translation of the Scriptures, prohibited two years previously, is apparently to be included. The University of Oxford especially, as well as other parts of that which then was the diocese of Lincoln, was regarded as being "infected" with the 1410. The University of Oxford censures Wiclif's doctrines, and burns his books. Collier, iii. 267.

The doctrines of Wiclif still prevail at Oxford.

heresies of Wiclif. This occasioned stringent measures on the part of Archbishop Arundel, in which he was supported by King Henry IV.*

Abp. Arundel applies to the Pope to burn
Wiclif's bones,
1411.

Amongst other means of dishonouring the memory of Wiclif, Archbishop Arundel wished for papal authority to burn his remains; he solicited the Pope to grant him a Bull, condemning the censured conclusions, and also authorizing this brutal act. It is probable that Arundel could hardly, after the lapse of so many years, proceed to disinter the remains of this servant of Christ unless he were supported by this authority. The Pope, however, condemned the "Conclusions" without sanctioning the burning of his bones.

Council of Constance, 1415.

In 1415, however, the council of Constance granted the needful authority for the execution of this indignity: they solemnly condemned him as a heretic, and ordered the removal of his bones far from the burial of any church. Had Archbishop Arundel been alive at this time, the sentence would doubtless have been carried into immediate execution; but his successor, Chicheley, was otherwise occupied than in disturbing the repose of the dead. In 1428, Richard Fleming, bishop of Lincoln, who has been already mentioned as having for a time professed the doctrines of Wiclif, was commanded by Pope Martin V. to execute the decree, which he accordingly did. The bones of Wiclif were dug up and burned, and his ashes were cast into a stream which flows by Lutterworth;—it may seem to be an honour to his memory, that those who were so deeply busied in hindering the spread of the truth of God, and in persecuting those who held it, should have thus treated with indignity the unconscious remains of Wiclif. But strange indeed was it, if those who did it thought they were injuring one whose spirit was at rest in Christ, and whose body (whether mouldered into dust, or destroyed by the folly of man) will be changed and made like the body of Christ himself when he appears in glory.

Wiclif's bones ordered to be dug up.
His remains burned, 1428.

Throughout the remainder of this century, from time to time, scattered notices are to be found of those who, in spite of the danger, read and circulated the English Scriptures. From the extracts given by Fox, from the register of William Alwick, bishop of Norwich, a few particulars may be learned relative both to the circulation of the word of God in English, and the danger of so doing. In the year 1429, a charge was made against Richard Fletcher, of Beccles, that he "is a most perfect doctor in that sect [namely, that of the Lollards], and can very well and perfectly expound the Holy Scriptures, and hath a book of the New Law in English, which was Sir Hugh Pie's first." This charge shews how completely the possession of the Scriptures in English was one ground on which to accuse a man of heresy.

Register of Alwick, Bishop of Norwich.
Lollards troubled, 1429.
R. Fletcher,
Fox, i. 755.
Charged with possessing the New Testament
in English.

The next charge which is mentioned is the following:—"That Nicholas Belward, son of John Belward, dwelling in the parish of Southelam, is one of the same sect, and hath a New Testament, which he bought at London, for four marks and forty pence [i. e., £2. 16s. 8d.], and taught the said William Wright, and Margery with his wife, and wrought with them continually by the space of one year, and studied diligently upon the said New Testament."

Nichs. Belward charged with buying a New Testament.

It was not uncommon to make a part of the charge against certain who were convented before the bishop that they could read English, making it at least probable that few of the common people, unless it was from the desire of reading the Scriptures for themselves, were able to do this. Some, who were accused of "Lollardie," had the fact of their possessing, or reading, the word of God in English, alleged in confirmation or aggravation; but some were charged with heresy simply upon this ground alone. For instance, the following is one of the charges:—"Sir Hugh Pie [a priest, who had intercourse with the Lollards] bequeathed to Alice, servant to William White, a New Testament, which they then called the Book of the New Law, and was in the custody of Oswald Godfrey, of Colchester."

Possession of the English
New Test. a sufficient ground for a charge of heresy.

The charge mentioned above against Nicholas Belward, shews us the sum for which a copy of the New Testament in English was at this time sold; Fox, in another part, when speaking of the invention of printing, refers to this circumstance, saying: "Now the same price will serve forty persons with so many books." It is a very moderate computation to suppose that now four hundred bound copies of the New Testament can (from the altered value of money and increased facility of production) be purchased for this sum. It is probable that so much was demanded on account of the peculiar danger which at this time attended the circulation of any portion of Scripture in English. In order to form some estimate of the value of four marks and forty pence at that time, it may be stated that this was then a sufficient yearly stipend for a curate.

Fox, i. 804.

Price of New Testaments in English.

* A respect for the memory of Wiclif seemed to linger long, or rather, perhaps, to revive, at Oxford; for, in 1564, that University annulled all its statutes against him.—Collier, iii. 338.

But although the danger in which any were placed who meddled with the English Scriptures did in part increase the price of copies of the word of God, yet it is to be remembered that the invention of printing was the great means of causing books to be produced at a moderate price. Few inventions can be so directly ascribed to the providential guidance of God as this may be; would that it had never been used for any end which should militate against his glory! But this, like every other gift of God, has been perverted to evil uses by the blindness of the heart of man.

Fox, after speaking of this invention, under the year 1450, and discussing by whom, and how, it was discovered, speaks thus concerning the invention itself: "Notwithstanding, what man soever was the instrument, without all doubt God Himself was the ordainer and dispenser thereof, no otherwise than He was of the gift of tongues, and that for a singular purpose. And well may this gift of printing be resembled to the gift of tongues: for like as God then spake with many tongues, and yet, all that would not turn the Jews; so now when the Holy Ghost speaketh to the adversaries, in innumerable sorts of books, yet they will not be converted, nor turn to the Gospel." Fox's meaning clearly is, that innumerable sorts of books set forth the doctrine which the Holy Ghost wrote in the Scriptures.

"Now, to consider to what end and purpose the Lord hath given this gift of printing to the earth, and to what great utility and necessity it serveth, it is not hard to judge whoso wisely perpendeth both the time of the sending, and the sequel which thereof ensueth."

After speaking of Papal efforts to suppress the truth, he says, "Although, through might, he stopped the mouth of John Hus before, and Jerome, that they might not preach, thinking to make his kingdom sure; yet instead of John Hus, and others, God hath opened the press to preach, whose voice the Pope is never able to stop, with all the puissance of his triple crown. By this printing, as by the gift of tongues, and as by the singular organ of the Holy Ghost, the doctrine of the Gospel soundeth to all nations and countries under heaven, and what God revealeth to one man, is dispersed to many, and what is known in one nation, is opened to all."

The results of Printing, as connected with the diffusion of the English Scriptures, belong, however, to a period subsequent to that in which they were known through the version of John Wiclif. There were many however who, in spite of the imminent peril, did both read the version of Wiclif themselves, and also taught it to others; and these efforts, amongst the poor of this world, continued, especially in the diocese of Lincoln, up to the era usually termed the Reformation. Not a few there were who suffered death on this very account: efforts still went on; and surely it was by the leading Spirit of God, that the word was thus read and prized in secret.

The first attempt at giving forth any portion of the Scripture in print in English, is to be found in the Exposition of the Seven Penitential Psalms, by John Fisher, bishop of Rochester, which was published in the year 1505. Reprints of it were made in succeeding years; and from this we may learn that it was both read and circulated. It differs, however, widely from a mere translation; for the exposition is the part to which prominence is principally given; this, being by a Romish prelate, could not, of course, be suspected of any taint of heresy; the episcopacy of the author and translator, would in itself free it from the censure of Archbishop Arundel's constitution.

Continued effect of the labours of Wiclif. Martyrs for the word of God.

Bishop Fisher's seven penitential Psalms, 1505.

PART II.

THE FORMER PART OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII.

I.

PERSECUTIONS ON ACCOUNT OF THE WORD OF GOD, 1519—21.

A NEW era in the history of the English translations of the Scriptures commences with the Reformation of the sixteenth century. The light which had been struck by Wiclif had not ceased to shine, when the Scriptures were by the labours of others even more purely set forth for the illumination of those who were involved in the papal darkness. In several respects, the circumstances were changed; the Providence of God had brought to light the art of PRINTING, an art which has been an instrument of incalculable blessing in the diffusion of the word of God; books had not now to be multiplied by the slow labours of copyists; there was a new stimulus given to any effort to set forth the Bible in English.

The testimony borne by the remnant of the Lollards has, in several respects, to be distinguished from that which principally commenced with William Tyndale, Thomas Bilney, and George Stafford.

It may be well just to notice the troubles of some who were persecuted but a little while before the time of the printing of the New Testament in English, on account of possessing a portion of the Scripture in their own tongue. This will shew how unchanged was the feeling of opposition which had led to the decree of Archbishop Arundel in 1408.

The Register of the diocese of Lincoln gives many instances of the sufferings of the servants of Christ; they seem to have been either more numerous or else more active in the counties of Oxford and Buckingham (then both in the diocese of Lincoln,) than in other parts of the kingdom. Fox speaks of "great multitudes which tasted and followed the sweetness of God's holy Word, almost in as ample manner for the number of well-disposed hearts as now [i. e. 1563] . . . The secret multitude of true professors was not much unequal: certes the fervent zeal of those Christian dayes seemed much superior to these our days and times, as manifestly may appear by their sitting up all night in reading and hearing; also by their expences and charges in buying of books in English, of whom some gave five Marks [£3, 6s. 8d.] some more, some less, for a Book: some gave a load of hay for a few Chapters of St. James, or of St. Paul in English. In which rarity of Books and want of Teachers, this one thing I greatly marvel and muse at: to note in the Registers [of the bishops] and to consider how the word of Truth notwithstanding did multiply so exceedingly as it did amongst them. Wherein is to be seen no doubt the marvellous working of God's mighty Power: for so I find and observe in considering the Registers, how one neighbour resorting and conferring with another, eftsouns with a few words of their first or second talk, did win and turn their minds to that wherein they desired to persuade them, touching the truth of God's word and his Sacraments. To see their travels, their earnest seeking, their burning zeals, their readings, their watchings, their sweet assemblies, their love and concord, their godly living, their faithful marrying with the faithful, may make us now in these our days of free profession, to blush for shame."

To understand aright the reason why Fox thus mused and marvelled, it must be remembered how severe the penalties were against any who read or possessed the Scriptures in English.

One of the first who was brought into trouble on this account was Dr. John Colet, dean of St. Paul's (the celebrated founder of St. Paul's school), who died in the year 1519. He was in many respects much Changed circumstances at the period of the Reformation.

Persecutions on account of the word of God in English.

1521. Diocese of Lincoln. Lollards in Oxfordshire and Buckinghamshire. Fox, ii, p. 23. Number and zeal of true professors.

High prices paid for portions of Scripture.

Manner in which truth was communicated.

Dr. John Colet Dean of St. Paul's.

in advance of the Romanists of the day in which he lived; and, although it is probable that the thought never crossed his mind of separating from the Romish Communion, yet the measure of truth which he held and preached was such, as both to excite the enmity of zealous Papists, and to attract to his ministry those who saw something of the light of God's truth; so much so, that it was made the ground of a suspicion of heresy that a person had been to hear him.

Bishop Fitzjames, of London, who was a determined enemy of all that was deemed heresy, was, a few years before his death, on the point of proceeding against Dr. Colet, alleging certain reasons for charging him with heretical opinions. This is no wonder, for at Oxford, before he was promoted to the deanery of St. Paul's, he had lectured publicly on the Epistles of St. Paul; and afterwards he was still accustomed to preach and teach Scripture, and not the opinions or writings of the Doctors. But although two bishops joined with Fitzjames in his accusation, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Warham, befriended him, and thus they were unable to injure him. One of the grounds on which they wished to make him appear a heretic, was his having translated the Lord's Prayer into English. This was in itself quite enough to cause a man to be regarded as a fautor of heresy, and therefore "violently suspected," so that such an one might be compelled to abjure all heresies, even if no specific crime were to be alleged as to doctrine.

That the Romanists would, at that day, judge a person to be a heretic, and burn him as such, merely on account of his possessing the Scriptures, or any portion thereof, in English, is proved by the fact of seven having been burned at Coventry in the year 1519, on this very account. The charge on which they were taken up by the bishop's officer, was their having taught their children and families the Lord's Prayer and the Ten Commandments in English, and their terrified children were examined to obtain evidence against them. One of them, a widow, was however dismissed by the bishop (probably for want of evidence); and as it was evening, Simon Mourton, the bishop's summoner, offered to go home with her. "Now as he was leading her by the arm, and heard the rattling of a scroll within her sleeve: 'Yea,' saith he, 'what have ye here?' and so took it from her, and espied that it was the Lord's Prayer, the Articles of the Faith, and the Ten Commandments, in English." Mourton, on discovering this evidence against her, said to her, "Ah Sirrah, come, as good now as another time!" and then led her back immediately to the bishop, who at once condemned her to be burned with the six men, who had previously been sentenced. They all suffered together on the fourth of April, 1519, in a place called the Little Park.

There was another person who fled when the others were taken up, or else he would have been treated as they were. He was afterwards taken and burned.

The death of these martyrs appears to have occasioned a considerable excitement at Coventry: it was felt to be at least a strange thing, that they should suffer simply on account of teaching their children some portion of the word of God in English; in consequence of this, the Bishop and his officers industriously spread a report, that the cause of their condemnation to be burned, was not that they had the Lord's Prayer and the Ten Commandments in English, but that they had eaten flesh on Friday's and other fast days. This, however, does not appear to have been objected against them when they were alive.*

The grounds of persecution in the diocese of Lincoln, were very similar to those which have just been mentioned as bringing several to the stake at Coventry.

In the year 1521, John Longland, bishop of Lincoln, carried on an active persecution against many of the poor in his diocese, who were suspected of being "known men." The manner in which evidence was obtained was this:—a suspected person who was converted before the bishop, was sworn to answer any interrogatories which might be put to him, he was then closely examined as to whom he was acquainted with, who were "known men," together with the circumstances which could be made definite matters of charge against such. Thus it was that relations were compelled, against their wills, to accuse one another, husbands and wives, parents and children, brothers, friends, and every other tie, was cruelly used for the purpose of obtaining ground of accusation against suspected persons. The cruelty of such a proceeding was very great, as great with regard to the unwilling accusers as with regard to the accused, it made them in many cases instrumental in bringing to punishment those who were dearest to them.

The results of the persecution of Bishop Longland, in 1521, were set forth in numerous articles

* The execution of these persons has been denied to be a fact, by a writer who offers not a tittle of evidence to disprove this, the direct statement of Fox.—(See Collier, vol. iv. p. 27).

Troubled by Bishop Fitz
james.

Abp. Warham befriended him His having translated the Lord's prayer a ground of accusation.

Seven martyrof Coventry, 1519.

They all suffer, April 4th, 1519.

False reports spread about them after their death.

1521.
Bishop Longland's persecution of "known men."
Marner's evidence.

concerning doctrine or practice charged against a great many individuals. In Fox's extract from the Register of Lincoln, many particulars of persons and charges, referring distinctly to the circulation of the word of God in English, may be found. See Fox, vol. ii. pp. 23—40.

II.

INTRODUCTORY ACCOUNT OF WILLIAM TYNDALE—HE TRANSLATES THE NEW TESTAMENT.

Wm. Tyndale the first English translator from the Greek.

WE now come to the labours of those who used the providential advantages of the art of printing, and the spread of the knowledge of Greek and Hebrew, for setting forth the Scriptures in the vernacular tongue. The instrument in the hand of God for translating the New Testament into English, for the first time out of the original language, was WILLIAM TYNDALE, whose memory is on this account to be held in veneration by all who prize the word of God. If the labour of Wiclif was a means of blessing, in giving an English translation from the Latin Vulgate, how much more was that of Tyndale in rendering it from the original, and giving it forth in print. Wiclif could only draw the water of truth from a stream which was flowing from the fountain; Tyndale could go to the well-spring itself, and give forth the water not sparingly, but with a liberal hand. Had circumstances been reversed, Wiclif would undoubtedly have anticipated the work of Tyndale: but as it is, each occupies his fitting place in the diffusion of the English Scriptures; Wiclif, the first to publish the whole in our tongue, translated from the Latin; Tyndale, the first to publish in print the New Testament and a portion of the Old, translated from the original; while MYLES COVERDALE follows in their steps, as the first to complete and publish in print the whole Scripture, translated into English from the original tongues.

Coverdale Tyndale's successor. Tyndale's early life.

We know comparatively little respecting the early life of William Tyndale, scarcely indeed more than we do of that of Wiclif; nor can we learn how his mind became first dissatisfied with the state of things then existing in the church:—we know to what this dissatisfaction led in result, but we know not how it was that his mind was wrought upon by God.

Born about 1477, in Gloucestershire. Fox, ii. 301. Educated at Oxford.

At Magdalen. Read lectures. His character.

The known circumstances of the life of Tyndale previous to his becoming a translator of the Scriptures may be told very briefly. He was born in Gloucestershire about the year 1477: he was "brought up from a child in the University of Oxford, where he, by long continuance, grew up and increased, as well in the knowledge of tongues, and other liberal arts, as especially in the knowledge of the Scriptures, whereunto his mind was singularly addicted; in somuch that he, lying then in Magdalen Hall, read privily to certain students and fellows of Magdalen College some parcel of divinity; instructing them in the knowledge and truth of the Scriptures. Whose manners also and conversation being correspondent to the same, were such that all they that knew him, reputed and esteemed him to be a man of most virtuous disposition and of life unspotted."

The state of learning at Oxford at the time.

Tyndale proceeds to Cambridge at a later period.

At Oxford, Tyndale had peculiar facilities for the acquirement of those branches of knowledge which he afterwards turned to so good account in the service of God. The introduction of Greek learning by Linacre, had given a new stimulus to study; and it is evident, from the results, that Tyndale profited well by the opportunities thus afforded him. Fox mentions, that after "proceeding in degrees of the schools," he removed to Cambridge: but, as he gives no date, we need not, as I judge, infer that he means that he immediately went to Cambridge after taking his degree at Oxford. Other circumstances, and a lapse of several years, I believe, intervened.

Tyndale's ordination. Oflie's memoir, pp. 7, 8. March 11, 1502.

The next circumstance of Tyndale's life of which we have any account, is his ordination as a priest of the Romish church, which "took place at the conventual church of the priory of St. Bartholomew in Smithfield, on the eleventh day of March, 1502, by Thomas, suffragan bishop of Pavaden, by authority of William Warham, bishop of London, and was ordained priest to the nunnery of Lambley, in the diocese of Carlisle."* He could not have continued in the north of England for many years, since we find him ceasing to be a from what place the suffragan styled Episcopus Paradenus (or Pavadenus) took his title. Qu. may he not have been an Italian, Ep. Pavacensis, and not an English bishop at all?

* "Will. Tyndale Carlol. dioc. ad tit. domus monialium de Lambley, ordinator presbiter per D. Thomam Paraden Ep'm an, auctoritate Lond. Ep'i. xi. Martij 1502, Reg. Warham, Lond. KENNETT." (Bliss's Wood's Athenae.) I do not know

secular priest, and becoming a regular in 1508. The convent which he joined was that of the Observant Friars, at Greenwich.*

The fact of Tyndale having been a monk, was known from the following memorandum, which was found by the Rev. R. H. Barham, canon of St. Paul's, in a book in the cathedral library; "Charitative orate pro aia Johis tyndall qui dedit hūc librū cōuentui de grenwych frum minorū de observancia die p̄ssionis sui filii fr̄s Willmī. Anno 1508."†

He becomes a monk at Greenwich, 1508.

What his motives were in becoming a monk it may not be easy precisely to say; but perhaps it was with him as with so many before him; his conscience was aroused, he wished to have peace with God, and he sought, in the observance of a conventual discipline, to attain to the holiness for which he was longing. It may have been so: without direct evidence, it is not possible to penetrate the motives by which Tyndale was actuated; but if it were so, it follows that as yet he was in ignorance of the finished work of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the assured salvation through His precious blood to every one that believeth. The seclusion of a cloister, with its routine of observances, might suit one who was going about to establish his own righteousness, but not the soul which really felt the polluting stain of sin, and was conscious of the need of something to put it truly away.

Why did he become a monk?

For several years we know hardly anything of Tyndale: it is probable that he was in his seclusion at Greenwich; all those gifts which he was afterwards to use in God's service being buried for a time in a cloister. And yet so far as he was concerned, this period may have been anything but lost time; he was afterwards to "endure hardness, as a good soldier of Christ," and the process of learning the impotence of all the resources of nature may have been the very means ordered of God, for causing him to rest fully and firmly upon Christ, not only for salvation, but likewise for daily support.

Nothing known of Tyndale for some years.

I have before intimated his having spent some time at Cambridge; and I do not doubt but that this must have been subsequent to the time of his becoming a monk by several years. The following are the reasons which lead to this conclusion:—those who have supposed that Tyndale migrated to Cambridge immediately, or at least soon after his taking his degree at Oxford, seem to think that his going thither was connected with a peculiar desire after learning, which was unsatisfied by anything which he could acquire at Oxford; but if this had been his motive, Cambridge, as it then was, would have been the last place to which he would have directed his steps. Indeed, the state of ignorance and even detestation of all real learning which then prevailed at Cambridge, is such as can scarcely now be imagined. Erasmus speaks of one college in Cambridge which, when he published the New Testament in Greek (first edition, 1516) absolutely forbade the use of it.

Sojourn at Cambridge about 1517—21. Cambridge then not a place for improvement in learning.

The testimony of Erasmus.

Thus learning could not have led Tyndale to Cambridge before the time of his becoming first a priest and then a monk; and, just so, there does not appear to have been any interval for him to have made any considerable stay there in the early part of his life. His avocation as a priest took him to the north of England; his noviciate at Greenwich, previous to his profession, occupied some time; and thus he can scarcely be supposed to have passed his recorded residence at that university until a later period of his life; his object, too, appears to have been a far higher one than that of study.

Tyndale's object in going to Cambridge.

It was at Cambridge that his intimacy commenced with JOHN FRITH, subsequently his fellow-labourer, and at length his predecessor in becoming a martyr for Christ. Frith was at that time a student at Cambridge, and it would appear, from his acquirements in learning, that he was one who profited by the improvements at the time when that university was beginning, through the efforts of Dr. Barnes and others, to be a place where real learning could be found. Frith was converted by the testimony of Tyndale, "through whose instructions he first received into his heart the seed of the Gospel and sincere godliness." Thus it is evident that Tyndale both knew and preached the Gospel himself before, or at least during, his

John Frith converted by Tyndale.

Dr. Barnes's efforts to restore learning. Fox, vol. ii. p. 250.

* This house was the first which, after Henry's rupture with the Pope, fell under his displeasure. Its inmates were warm opponents of his divorce. This monastery was one of the few which were refounded by Mary.

† Previous to this time, he appears to have had his mind directed to the work of translating the Scriptures, or at least some portions of them, into English. A Manuscript of some passages of the New Testament thus rendered is in the possession of Mr. Offor. In some places, the initials "W. T." are written, together with the date 1502. If this "W. T." be not William Tyndale, it is difficult to imagine who it could be. It is probable that his mind was in some sort aroused to the value and authority of the word of God when at Oxford; and that, in becoming a priest, the object proposed by him was to preach to others some of that truth which he but partially knew himself. The fact of his making any translations from the Scripture shews him to be very different from the generality of those around him. This translation appears to have been from the Greek, which at this time most of course have been in manuscript. In John iii. 3, the Vulgate reads, "nisi quis renatus fuerit denū;" this passage is translated, "born from above," which may be a translation of ἀνωθεν, but cannot be one of denū.—For the examination of this MS., together with many books relative to Tyndale, &c. I am indebted to the kindness of Mr. Offor.

abode at Cambridge. The circumstance of Frith being there as a student during Tyndale's residence, supplies us with some farther proof of the lateness of the period at which he went thither.

It appears, from the testimony of Bale, that at the time of Frith's martyrdom, 1533, he was only twenty-six years old; consequently he must have been born in 1507, or the preceding year: he was thus Tyndale's junior by thirty years, and he must have been quite young at Cambridge in 1519 and 1520. Tyndale's residence there could hardly have continued later than this last mentioned year, having probably commenced about 1516 or 1517.

Fox states that Tyndale became, at Cambridge, "farther ripened in the knowledge of God's word;" and this was not merely to the profit of his own soul, but likewise to that of others. The conversion of Frith through his means has been already mentioned; but there can be but little question that he was also in a great measure the instrument of at least a part of the diffusion of the light of the truth of God which took place at Cambridge at that time. The three persons to whom that university appears to have been especially indebted for instruction in the light of the Gospel were—THOMAS BILNEY, a faithful preacher, who suffered martyrdom at Norwich in 1531; GEORGE STAFFERT, or STAFFORD, who commenced lectures on Scripture, and afterwards died of the plague, taken when he was paying a visit of mercy; and WILLIAM TYNDALE. These were the instruments in the enlightening of Cambridge: from Cambridge the Gospel shone into Oxford, as well as into many other places in England.

The commencement of the Reformation at Cambridge appears to have been in the year 1516, or else the following, which was the very year when Luther published his Theses against indulgences. It was through the reading of Erasmus's Testament when first published (1516) that Bilney learned the Gospel. The passage on which his soul rested was 1 Tim. i. 15; this taught him what peace with God is, and on what it rests. He had, like Luther, sought it in many ways for years. This he began soon to preach to the conversion of many;—it seems to have been about the same time that Tyndale became acquainted with him, and from them others were taught. If their acquaintance commenced then, it is evident that Tyndale's residence at Cambridge began about that time.

It is not of much importance to prove that the labours of Tyndale, Bilney, and Stafford at Cambridge were cotemporaneous with those of Luther at Wittemberg; but the fact is very evident. It shews this, however, that the testimony in England was not the consequence of any thing heard or known of a similar movement in Germany. Stafford commenced his lectures on the Scripture at Cambridge about the time when Dr. Colet was troubled for religion. It is absolutely impossible to place this commencement later than the year 1517; probably it was rather earlier. Bilney was the professor of civil law, and he, like Stafford, seems to have been a remarkable exception to the generality of those at Cambridge.

We must carefully bear in mind the distinction between the testimony of the remnant of the Lollards, and that which now commenced in England. The one had been the exposure of various Romish errors, the other brought forward the vital question, "How is a sinner forgiven?" While there was much of godliness in the one, and of the working of the Spirit, there was in the other a life-giving energy which made itself felt. It was indeed the distinctive manner in which the Holy Ghost was testifying to the Lord Jesus Christ.

From Cambridge it appears that Tyndale went into Gloucestershire, his native county, to be tutor in the family of a knight named Sir John Welch, at Little Sodbury, twelve or fourteen miles from Bristol. He continued there until about the end of 1522: during which period it is evident that his mind became more opened to the evils existing in the Church, and also to the controversies then pending respecting the Pope and Luther. It is clear that up to this time no public suspicion had attached to his name amongst the persecutors of those who were called heretics; for had this been the case, the diligent inquisitions of Bishop Longland, in his diocese of Lincoln, in 1521, would have been pretty sure to have elicited something against him, seeing that suspected persons were forced to accuse all whom they knew. Still this does not prove but that Tyndale knew something of these "known men" and their tenets. The society into which Tyndale was now thrown is thus described by Fox—"This gentleman, as he kept a good ordinary commonly at his table, there resorted to him many times sundry abbots, deans, archdeacons, with divers other doctors and great benefited men, who there, together with Master Tindal, sitting at the same table, did use many times to enter communication, and talk of learned men, as of Luther and of Erasmus; also of divers other controversies and questions upon the Scriptures." This gave Tyndale an opportunity of entering into the subjects discussed, and pressing the testimony of the word of God upon those with whom he was thus thrown in contact; a discipline which, no doubt, led him into more close and precise acquaintance

Fox, ii. 301.

Bilney, Stafford and Tyndale.

Commencement of the Reformation at Cambridge,
1516-1517.

Fox, ii. 219.

Strype, Mem.
Ecc. i. 323.

Reformation at Cambridge, cotemporaneous with the testimony of Luther.

Tyndale lives in Gloucestershire until 1522.
Bliss's Wood's
Ath. Oxon.

Tyndale's association in Gloucestershire with dignitaries.

with the truth; while at the same time the arguments of Tyndale occasioned the others to bear a grudge against him.

Not long after this, "certain of these great doctors" had an opportunity of freely uttering their sentiments to the knight and lady with whom Tyndale lived, without his being present to reply to the propositions which they advanced; thus "uttering their blindness and ignorance without any resistance or gainsaying." The knight and his lady reported these things to Tyndale, and he replied from the Scriptures to the errors which had been brought forward; this led to his being charged with presumption by the lady, for setting his opinion above that of so many learned doctors. But it is humility rather than presumption to adhere to the written testimony of God, and to assert its paramount authority in opposition to all the wise arguments by which men may resist it.

The Doctors express their opinions in Tyndale's absence. Fox. Tyndale replies from Scripture.

Tyndale was engaged at this time in translating, from the Latin of Erasmus, "Enchiridion Militis Christiani;" which he afterwards gave to Sir John Welch and his lady, who found in it that many of the things stated by Tyndale, were upheld by the testimony of Erasmus. This seems to have decided them that "the doctory prelates" were wrong, and their own unbeficed tutor in the right. This incident shews very remarkably, how much more ready the human mind is to bow to the judgment of one who is deemed learned and wise, than to submit to the authority of the word of God.

Tyndale translates "Manual of a Christian Soldier."

This rejection of their teaching rendered the clergy around yet more opposed to Tyndale; so that they were ready to seek any occasion which they could against him: at length they accused him of heresy, and laid their complaint before the Bishop's chancellor. Soon after this, Tyndale, and other priests, were summoned before the chancellor: it does not appear that he was formally cited to answer any given charge, but simply, in common with others, he had notice to attend. But, knowing the temper of the priests whom he would meet there, he expected that they would lay some accusations against him; and thus (as he said himself), "he by the way in going thitherwards, cried in his mind heartily to God, to give him strength fast to stand in the truth of His word." It is important to observe, that the word of God and its authority, as coming from God himself, was continually the ground of Tyndale's testimony, and by it he was guided.

He is accused of heresy, and summoned.

At his appearance before the chancellor, it was evident that his adversaries had already prejudiced him against Tyndale; for although no one brought any public complaint against him, yet the chancellor threatened him, and made heavy charges, without however any ostensible ground. On this occasion, hard words were the worst that Tyndale received; a very different treatment than what he would have experienced from the bishops of Lincoln and Norwich, Longland and Nix.* After this, Tyndale conferred with an acquaintance of his, an old doctor who had been chancellor to a bishop, from whom he received a private statement of the opinion which he held: that the Pope is Antichrist mentioned in Scripture; but that it was a perilous thing to mention it, seeing that it would endanger any one's life; adding, "I have been an officer of his, but I have given it up, and defie him and all his works." It is most probable that these anti-papal sentiments were much in accordance with those which Tyndale had previously held in his heart. Tyndale, soon after this, was in company with a certain learned theologian; and in an argument this learned doctor, being hard pressed, exclaimed, "We were better to be without God's laws [i. e. the Holy Scriptures], than the Pope's [i. e. the Decretals]." Tyndale hearing this, burst through what many might deem prudent restraint, exclaiming, "I defy the Pope and all his laws! If God spare me life, ere many years, I will cause the boy that driveth the plough, to know more of the Scriptures than you do." A bold pledge, but nobly redeemed! From this moment we find Tyndale prosecuting the object which was upon his mind twenty years before—the translation and publication of the Scriptures in English.

Tyndale threatened by the bishop's chancellor.

He confers with an old doctor.

Tyndale defies the Pope, and pledges himself to translate the Scriptures.

Tyndale was evidently at this time a reader of the writings of Erasmus, which (be their deficiencies what they may) contained at least a portion of truth then rarely to be met with. They may probably have known each other at Oxford, for Erasmus was at Magdalen College at the time when Tyndale was at Magdalen Hall. The sentiments of Erasmus may, perhaps, have helped to fix the thoughts of Tyndale on the making of an English version of the New Testament: Erasmus says, "I differ exceedingly from those, who are unwilling that the Divine writings should be translated into the language of the common people, and read by private persons; as if either Christ had taught things so obscure, that they could hardly be understood by a very few theologians; or as if the fortress of the Christian religion be set in this, that it be not known. Perhaps it is more wise to conceal the mysteries of kings, but Christ desires to publish His mysteries as much as possible. I would that all private women should read the Gospel and Paul's Epistles. And I wish that they were translated into all languages, that they may be read and known, not only by the Scotch and Irish, but also by the Turks and Saracens. To know in what manner soever is certainly the first step. Let it be that many would smile, yet some would receive it. I would that the husbandman at the plough, should sing something from hence; that the weaver at his loom should sing something from hence; that the traveller might beguile the weariness of his journey by narrations of this kind. Let all the intercourse of all Christians be of these things; for our daily conversations will be such as we mostly are." It is scarcely possible to doubt that this sentence from Erasmus was in the mind of Tyndale in giving his bold reply; he almost cites it.

Erasmus an advocate for vernacular versions of the Scriptures.

Eras. Rot. Paraclesis, prefixed to his New Testament, 1519.

* It is not unlikely that Tyndale's freedom from persecution was owing, in part, to the fact that Jerome de Ghinnee, | an Italian, residing in Italy, was at this time been bishop of Worcester, in which diocese Gloucestershire then was.

The opposition of the clergy around him now increased; heresy of every kind was laid to his charge; while he expressed the moderation of his desires, being willing to live any where on ten pounds a year, if he had but the liberty to teach children and to preach. In preaching, he appears to have been previously very diligent. St. Augustine's Green, Bristol, is mentioned as one of the places which he frequented for this purpose; this was at the time, I suppose, of his residence in Gloucestershire, in the family of Sir John Welch. He now left the situation which he then held, as chaplain and tutor; for it was evident, both to this worthy knight and to himself, that the molestation which he had already received, would be but the prelude to harsher measures.

He came from Gloucestershire to London about the time that Dr. Cuthbert Tonstall had been appointed bishop of this see. It is probable that this circumstance in part induced him to come to London rather than try to find occupation in the country. It was on October 22, 1522, that Tonstall was appointed bishop of London; and thus it is likely to have been at the end of that year or the beginning of the next that Tyndale came to the metropolis. He had heard of Tonstall by report, and especially through the mention of him by Erasmus, and hence he seemed to expect to find in him a liberal-minded patron of learning and religion. This was to a certain extent the character of Tonstall. Through Sir Henry Guildeford, who was a friend both of Erasmus and of Sir John Welch, Tyndale sent to Bishop Tonstall an oration of Isocrates, translated into English, as a proof of his scholarship; the bishop, however, only returned him a civil answer, that his house was sufficiently filled with chaplains, and that he might probably, without difficulty, find occupation in London. Had the bishop known that Tyndale was only seeking a quiet resting-place, in order to translate the New Testament from Greek into English, it is likely that he would not have let him escape his hands so easily; and had Tyndale been other than a singularly guileless person, he would never have thought that the house of the bishop would be open to one who sought to translate the Scriptures into English.

Some little time had probably elapsed between the arrival of Tyndale in London and his interview with the Bishop; for we find from the examination of a citizen of London named Humphrey Monmouth (in 1528), some particulars of this part of the life of Tyndale. The following is the account given by Monmouth in his petition addressed to Cardinal Wolsey, May 19, the twentieth year of the reign of King Henry VIII. (1528). He was charged with having furnished with money persons suspected of heresy, and with keeping heretical books. To the first of these charges he states in his petition that he had replied:—"I told them that iij yerres past I did give unto a prieste called Sir William Tyndal, otherwise called Hoteheus." . . . . "Upon iij yerres & a half past and more, I herde the foresaid Sir William preach ij or iij sermons at St. Dunstones in the West in London; & after that I chanced to meet with him, & with communication I examyned what lying he had. He said he had none at all, but he trusted to be with my Lord of London in his service. And therefore I had the better fantasy to him. And afterward he went to my lord & spake to him, as he told me, and my L. of London answered him, that he had chaplaines enough, & he said to him that he would have no more at that tyme. And so the priest came to me again & besought me to help him, & so I took him into my house half a yere, & there he lived like a good priest as methought. He studied most part of the day, & of the night at his booke; and he would eat but sodden meat by his good wil, nor drink but small single beer. I never saw him weare linnen about him in the space he was with me. I did promys him x l. sterling, to prairie for my father & mother there sowles, and al christen sowles." This last statement shews how much superstition still clung to one who had already learned "the just shall live by faith." Habit and education often cause things to be practised without any consciousness of their inconsistency with the truths which the soul really treasures. The mind of Monmouth seems to have been deeply entangled in Romish errors; before his death, however, he had learned to rejoice in the light of the Gospel; his will gives abundant evidence of this.

During the time that Tyndale remained in the house of this Humphrey Monmouth, he had sufficient opportunity to make his observations on the state of things in England, and it appears from the account given

The opposition of the clergy increases.

Tyndale leaves Sir John Welch.

He comes to London about the end of 1522.

Tonstall appointed bishop of London, Oct. 22, 1522.

Ep. Tonstall declines receiving Tyndale.

Humphrey Monmouth meets with Tyndale. Monmouth's account of Tyndale. Strype, Mem. Ecc. v. 116.

Tyndale finds that he cannot translate the by Fox that he learned that he could not with safety carry out his intention of translating the Scriptures in any part of this country. On this account, he resolved to leave England, being assisted so to do by some of his friends in London, and he turned his face towards Germany, where now the light of the Gospel which was in England dawning, had begun to shine brightly.

It must have been about May 1524, that Tyndale left the abode of Humphrey Monmouth; and it appears, from the petition already referred to, that he went almost immediately to Hamburg. His poverty at this time has been already shewn; but it ought to be mentioned that he stood high in estimation as a scholar; in so much that if the object which was so near his heart had not led him to a foreign land in order to give his own countrymen the Scriptures in their vernacular tongue, he might have obtained a competency in England. The foundation of the College of St. Frideswide at Oxford, by Cardinal Wolsey, has been already mentioned; among others who were intended by Wolsey to be placed there, we find William Tyndale was one. Had this been carried into effect, it would have been an addition of one more to the many Reformers whom Wolsey ignorantly collected and congregated at Oxford.

Sir Thomas More at a later period thus wrote of the character which Tyndale bore by common report before he left England. "Wyllyam Huchyn,* otherwise called Mayster Tyndale, . . . was (as men say) well known or he wente ouer the see, for a man of ryght good luyung, studyous and well lerned in scrip- ture, and in dyuers places in England was very well lyked, and dyd gret good with prechyng."

Tyndale sailed from England to Hamburg, but does not appear to have remained there long; for, having received money from Monmouth, he went into Saxony, where, amongst others, he met with him whose name stands amongst reformers as one of the highest—Martin Luther. There can be no doubt but that the time which Tyndale spent at Wittemberg, and amongst the German reformers in other places, was of no little use to him in opening his mind to many of the portions of popery—such as purgatory—prayers for the dead, and the like, which still adhered to him when he quitted England.

But the great object for which Tyndale had become an exile from England, was that which especially engaged his attention. It must have been about the middle of 1524, that he reached Germany; and in less than two years the first edition of his version of the New Testament was printed. Fox mentions that Tyndale had conferred with his friend John Frith, about the value and importance of such a version, and the impossibility which there was of any thing material being accomplished for the dispelling of the ignorance which prevailed so widely in this country, unless this were done; and from this apparently the mistake has arisen that Frith was with Tyndale in Germany, and there assisting in the making of this version. Lewis states this, and others who assert the same have probably only copied from him. Now, the fact simply is, that Frith was, at the time of Tyndale's abode at Wittemberg, first of all at Cambridge, and then removed by Cardinal Wolsey to the new College which he had founded at Oxford, in which University he was incorporated in December 1525; at which place we shall find him getting into trouble on account, not of translating, but of circulating this version, and holding anti-papish principles.

It does not appear certain in what place the first edition of Tyndale's Testament was printed, but it may have been completed before he left Wittemberg; the number of copies struck off is variously stated, so much so as to make it altogether uncertain how large the impression was. This first edition is a small octavo volume, which appears to have contained merely the text of the New Testament, with a few pages "to the Reader" at the end.† Very shortly after the publication of this octavo edition, another in quarto with marginal glosses was published, and this certainly was one of Tyndale's own, and not one of the editions surreptitiously published by the Dutch printers. From an account given by Cochlaus, (a determined enemy to the Reformation,) we find that this second edition was commenced at Cologne, and upon the conductors of it being driven from Cologne, it was completed at Worms; we further learn from him that it consisted of three thousand copies. He mentions 'two English heretics' who were engaged in getting out this edition; these, doubtless, were Tyndale himself and William Roy who is said also to have been his assistant in making the translation. This Roy was, like Tyndale, one of the Observant Friars of Greenwich, and he either accompanied him in his flight to Wittemberg, or else joined him there. Roy, at length, suffered martyrdom in Portugal in 1531.‡ It was in 1526 that this second edition of Tyndale's Testament was commenced at

* Tyndale is frequently mentioned under this name: an ancestor of his is said to have assumed it as a disguise during the wars of York and Lancaster. Tyndale himself sometimes used it in connection with his own name; "William Tyndale alias William Hitchens."

† This is the edition which was reprinted in 1836.

‡ Roy was a strange character. Tyndale speaks of him as winning friends with wonderful facility, and also as making more enemies than almost any man. Some of the instruments used by Roy against the Romanists were such as cannot be approved of. Satire and ridicule may appeal to the flesh, but can the truth of God be thus advocated? Wolsey received much provocation from some of Roy's verses; and Tyndale was at length obliged to warn others against falling into the same error as Roy had done. What led him to Portugal does not appear.

Scriptures safely in England.

May 1524, Tyndale leaves England.

Sails to Hamburg.

Is in high estimation in England at this time.

Cardinal Wolsey wishes to place him at St. Frideswide's College.

Fox, ii. 209. Sir Thomas More's testimony respecting him.

Tyndale goes to Wittemberg and meets with Luther. He learns more truth.

His conference with Frith before leaving England.

Frith not with Tyndale at this time.

Frith at Oxford Dec. 1525. Wood's Fasti.

1526. Tyndale's Testament, where printed.

The first edition, 8vo.

A second edition 4to. with glosses.

William Roy assists Tyndale.

Anno 1531. Fox, ii. 245.

Cologne, so that we may judge that the first edition had before this been almost entirely sent to England. The two editions differed not only in form and appearance, but likewise in the latter having a prologue and glosses in the margin; it had also probably the Epistles taken from the Old Testament according to the use of Sarum. This I judge because surreptitious Dutch editions have these epistles at the end, and the publishers had no Englishman to correct the press, much less to add any thing else in English. The existence of this second edition seems to have been overlooked by almost every modern writer previous to Mr. Anderson and Mr. Ofor, although the mention made of Tyndale's editions by Sir Thomas More and other circumstances might have shown the certainty of its having been printed: its existence is also proved by the fact of the New Testament, both with and without glosses, having been prohibited by Tonstall in this year.

Differences between the first and second edition.

Sir T. More and Bp. Tonstall mention both editions.

III.

THE ENGLISH NEW TESTAMENT CIRCULATED IN PRINT,—ITS SUPPRESSION ATTEMPTED.

WE have now arrived at an important period in the history of the circulation of the English Scriptures: the first translation of the New Testament from the original language had been made; and it was now actually printed and sent into England. That it was made from the Greek, no one can question who has examined it with care: it will be found continually to leave the readings of the Latin Vulgate, and adhere to the third edition of Erasmus's Greek Testament. Sometimes, indeed, great deference is paid to the critical observations of Erasmus; but still, the translation is made from the Greek and not from his Latin version. When Erasmus departed from the Greek (as he does in several places, apparently through inadvertence), Tyndale does not follow him, but adheres closely to the original. It is true, that Tyndale's first edition bears very evident marks of haste, but still the formation and publication in print of even a hastily executed version was a most important advance.

Tyndale's version made from the Greek. Ed. 3. Erasmi. 1522.

Reception in England of the New Testament.

Its circulation. Bishop Tonstall's prohibition, Oct. 23, 1526.

Fox, ii. 233. Strype, Ecc. Mem. i. 201.

Copies to be given up within thirty days.

How was the New Testament received in England? It was almost at once diligently circulated in various parts; we find that not a few of the friends of Tyndale in England earnestly seconded his labours by disposing of these books even at their imminent peril. Some of the copies (probably of the first of the two editions,) reached England early in the year 1526; and it must have been in great secrecy that the circulation commenced, for it was not until October 23rd in that year, that Bishop Tonstall issued his formidable prohibition. This, according to Strype, was done at the suggestion of Cardinal Wolsey. The prohibition expressly mentions that the English Testaments which were imported were "some with glosses and some without," thus proving that by this time the Cologne quarto edition had reached England. This makes it very probable that the first edition had been almost wholly dispersed in a very short time. All persons were required, within thirty days after the publication of this injunction, to deliver to the Bishop's Vicar General, under pain of excommunication, any copies of this New Testament which they might possess. The prohibition charged Tyndale with having craftily translated the New Testament into English, intermeddling therewith with heretical articles and erroneous opinions, pernicious and offensive, seducing the simple people. This "pestiferous and most pernicious poison" would, (the bishop said,) unless it were speedily foreseen, without doubt contaminate the flock committed to his charge with most deadly poison and heresy. If Tonstall could thus speak of Tyndale's version, the inference almost inevitably follows, that he charges the Scripture itself with being heretical. A system which avoids the light of God's truth stands condemned by the word of Christ Himself, John iii. 20.

In the two subsequent years we find many persons convented before their ecclesiastical superiors on charges connected with the possession or circulation of these books; but still, in these proceedings, blind as Bishop Tonstall was in prohibiting the word of God, it must be allowed that he shewed far more mercy to those who were on this account accused of heresy than did many of his cotemporaries.

Bishop Tonstall not only published his official condemnation of the translation, but he likewise preached against it at Paul's Cross, setting forth to the people that it was a perverted translation, stating that there were in it no fewer than two thousand texts falsely translated. But although this assertion was made in order to depreciate the work in the minds of the people, yet it does not appear either to have had that effect, or to have diminished the demand for copies. The following is the account given by John Lambert of the impression which the preaching of Bishop Tostall against the English New Testament made on him :—"Moreover I was at Paul's Cross, when the New Testament imprinted of late beyond the sea, was first forefended; and truly my heart lamented greatly, to hear a great man preaching against it, which shewed forth certain things that he noted for hideous errors to be in it, that I, yea, and not I, but likewise did many other think to be none. But (alack for pity!) malice cannot say well. God help us all and amend it."

Tonstall more merciful than many others.

Lewis, p. 66.

We learn some particulars relative to the circulation of this version after its prohibition, from the details of various persecutions for heresy about this time and a little later: by these we see that Oxford, London, and the diocese of Norwich were the parts in which these books were particularly circulated.

IV.

PERSECUTIONS FOR THE NEW TESTAMENT.

DURING the period which had elapsed between Tyndale's leaving England and the importation of his New Testament, Cardinal Wolsey's college had been set up at Oxford, and many from both universities were removed thither; thus were the doctrines of the Reformation planted in Oxford through that which was done by one, who, of all others, would have peculiarly dreaded such a result. It was thus that the labour bestowed by Tyndale, Stafford, and Bilney, at Cambridge, were transplanted to another soil where again they took root.

Amongst others who circulated the New Testament in English was Thomas Garrett (or Gerard) curate of All Saints, Honey-lane, London, who took many copies with him to Oxford, where he dispersed them amongst the students, but especially amongst Tyndale's Cambridge friends who were now removed to St. Frideswide's. Rumours of these things reached Cardinal Wolsey, and in consequence a search was made to apprehend Garrett; this was in February 1527. Before this time he appears to have circulated a great number of copies not only in Oxford but also in other places. Garrett was at length apprehended and compelled to do penance, by which, however, he did but little satisfy his persecutors, and if he had not escaped he would have got into farther trouble. He was at length burned in 1540.

In St. Frideswide's college, copies of this prohibited volume were found in the possession of many of Tyndale's former Cambridge friends, who were imprisoned in consequence from February until August, "within a deep cave under the ground of the same college, where their salt fish was laid." John Frith was one of those who were thus confined, another was Cox, who was bishop of Ely in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. Three of these prisoners—Clerk, Sumner, and Bailey, became ill in consequence of having eaten nothing but salt fish from February till the middle of August, and then they all three died in the space of one week; Goodman, another of this company, was so ill when he was liberated that he died shortly after. These were four martyrs for the word of God and his truth; for though they suffered not at the stake, yet did they not love their lives unto the death for the sake of Christ their Lord. After the death of the three in prison, Cardinal Wolsey directed that Frith and the rest who survived should be set at liberty, they were, however, for some time restrained to the distance of ten miles from Oxford: subsequently, Frith left England and joined Tyndale.

A little after this Bishop Tostall had no small trouble in his own diocese on account of the circulation of the word of God in English, together with other indications of what was then deemed heresy. How far Tostall acted, according to his own judgment, in these proceedings, may, perhaps be questioned; he was at this time Cardinal Wolsey's commissary, and he had to act as such. In the autumn of 1527, Bilney was taken up on a charge of heresy; and his recantation seems to have made others more willing to take the same course in order to escape from present suffering. The preaching of Bilney and the New Testament put forth by Tyndale, had, however, done very much for the introduction of the truth of God into London and Essex, as well as other parts. There was, in consequence, a Visitation of the whole of the dioceses of London, for the purpose of purging it of anti-popish books and doctrines. From the account of this visitation given by Strype, it is to be seen that the dispersers of the printed New Testament were, many of them, those who had previously been known as Lollards, who circulated manuscript copies of portions of the Scripture. Amongst others who were charged with keeping these forbidden books was Sebastian Hennis, curate of Kensington; he had "the New Testament in the vulgar tongue, translated by William Hochyn [Tyndale], priest, and Friar Roy." He was obliged to give up the books, to receive no

Fox, ii. 348.

Fox, ii.

The College of St. Frideswide founded.

Scholars from Cambridge removed thither, Dec. 1525.

Thos. Garrett a circulator of the New Testament.

Latter part of 1526. A search made to find Garrett. Feb. 1527. He is apprehended and does penance.

Frith, &amp;c. imprisoned, Feb. to Aug. 1527.

Cox, &amp;c.

Frith &amp; others liberated. Frith leaves England.

Bp. Tostall's proceedings.

He visits his diocese.

Strype, Mem. Ecc. i. 114-137.

The Lollards circulate the New Test.

Seb. Hennis accused, Feb. 24, 1528.

more of them, and leave London for two years, under pain of excommunication; this last-mentioned injunction is stated to be because of London "being so dangerous a place to be infected with heresy." Several persons in Essex, especially at Colchester, were summoned on charges connected with the possession, of the New Testament in English. Some of these had written copies, some of them Tyndale's printed version. One of these, named John Pykas, was summoned before the Bishop, March 2, 1528 [1528, according to the present computation, making the year commence Jan. 1, instead of March 25]; he had had certain books of Scripture in English, "one book of Powle's Epistles" was one of them. "Also, about a two years last past, he bought in Colchestre, of a Lumbard merchant of London, a New Testament in English, and paid for it foure shillings. Which New Testament he kept, and read it thoroughly many tymes. And afterward, when he herd that the said N. Testaments were forbaden that no man should keep them, he delyvered it and the book of Powle's Epistles to his mother agen." In this statement, Pykas speaks of the Testament which he had, as being the one that was afterwards prohibited; this marks it as being Tyndale's, although he does not mention that it was printed; and the time at which he received it having been so early, proves that the New Testament must have been circulated in England as soon almost as it was printed. It is probable that the rapid circulation of the first octavo edition, occasioned it to be so speedily followed by the quarto impression, with glosses and prologues.

Another who was convented before the bishop during this examination, was Robert Forman, S.T.P., rector of the parish of All Saints, Honey Lane: the principal charge against him was the possession of the books of Luther. It is probable that his sentiments were the same as those of Thomas Garrett, his curate, whose labours in circulating the English Testament at Oxford have been already mentioned.

But of those who were apprehended at this time no one appears to have been so extensive a circulator of these books as Robert Necton; the following is a part of his confession:—"He bought at sondry tymes of Mr. Fyshe,* dwellynge by the Whight Frears, in London, many of the New Testaments in English; that is to say, now v. & now x.; and sometyne mo & sometyne less, to the nombre of xx. or xxx. in the gret volume. The which New Testaments the said Mr. Fyshe had of one Harmond, an English man, beyng beyond see. But how many he had this respondent cannot tell. And this respondent saith, that about a yere & half agon, he fell in acquaintance with Vicar Constantyne, here in London; which shewed this respondent first that the said Mr. Fyshe had New Testaments to sell; & caused this respondent to by some of the said New Testaments of Mr. Fyshe." He afterwards gives an account of some of those to whom he had sold copies. By this confession, we learn more particulars than we otherwise could respecting the manner in which the copies were introduced to England. Fyshe received them from Harmond, or Herman, an English merchant at Antwerp; and then through this Necton, Vicar Constantine, and probably Garrett, as well as others, they were sold in many directions. Necton himself was an itinerant circulator of the word of God; he mentions many places in which he had disposed of copies.... "this respondent saith that about the same tyme he sold fyve of the said New Testaments to Sir William Furboshore, synging-man, in Stowmarket, in Suffolk, for vii. or viii. grotos apece. Also, two of the same New Testaments in Bury St. Edmunds."... "Also he saith, that about Christmas last, he solde one New Testament to a priste, whose name he cannot tell, dwellyng at Pyeknam Wade, in Northfolke."... "Also, one New Testament to William Gibson, merchaunt-man, of the parish of S. Margaret Patens." After mentioning various dealings with Vicar Constantine, he stated, "Also, he sold Sir Richard Bayfyll [Bayfield] two New Testaments unbound, about Christmas last, for the which he payd iij. s. iiij. d." He stated that since the preceding Easter he had bought of Goffray Usher, the servant of Mr. Forman, of Honey Lane (already mentioned), eighteen New Testaments, of the smaller volume; "of which New Testaments, since Easter this respondent caryed xv. of them.... to Lynne to sell." These he had left at Lynn, finding a difficulty in selling them, because of the prohibition. "And two of the said New Testaments he hath in his own custodie, with another of the great volume."

At the preceding Christmas, a Dutchman, who was now in the Fleet, offered Necton two or three hundred copies of the English New Testament for sale; he did not buy them, but sent the man to Fyshe, offering to purchase if Fyshe would do the same; "for the which iij. hundreth he shold have paid xvij. vs., after ix. d. a pece." [In the price there is some mistake; it should be either "xvij. vs., after xiiij. d. a pece," or else, "xij. v. s., after ix. d. a pece;" the latter, I judge, to be the more probable; but either of these sums would prove that the profits were considerable.]

It is probable that the Dutchman who offered these copies of the New Testament to Necton for sale was * Probably this was Simon Fyshe, the author of a remarkable paper entitled, the "Supplication of Beggars;" to which Sir Thomas More replied in his "Supplication of Souls."

London, a dangerous place for heresy.

March 2, 1528. John Pykas.

Price of a New Testament.

This Testament Tyndale's.

R. Forman convented. Mar. 19, 1528.

Robt. Necton convented. Strype Mem. Ecc. v., 377.

Places where the New Testament was sold.

Bayfield buys one for 3s. 4d.

A Dutchman, in the Fleet, offers New Testaments for sale.

John Raymond, who was this year abjured for having caused fifteen hundred copies of Tyndale's New Testament to be printed at Antwerp, of which edition he had brought to England five hundred.

A considerable number of copies of the New Testament must have been collected in consequence of the prohibition, and the ulterior proceedings connected with the visitation; these seem to have been publicly burned at Paul's Cross, sometime in the year 1528. This burning is alluded to by Sir Thomas More (who defends it as a good deed), as well as by Tyndale himself. Other burnings of these books took place at subsequent periods, which have often been erroneously confounded with what was done in this year.

This burning of the word of God did not, however, cause the version to be disregarded; it rather led to a suspicion that there was some sinister purpose in thus keeping the Scriptures from the eyes of the people. Tonstall, however, shortly after carried on his zeal in destroying the Scriptures on a larger scale than he had done before.

Another means adopted by Tonstall to crush Tyndale and his translation was by employing the pen of Sir Thomas More to oppose the exiled monk. For this purpose he gave him, on the 7th of March, 1527-8, a licence to read these prohibited books—the New Testament, and some original writings of Tyndale, which had been proscribed by the same injunction. Sir Thomas attacked Tyndale with hearty goodwill in the cause of "holy Church," but in his attacks on the translation he utterly failed; he stated indeed that he found one thousand texts by tale falsely rendered (that is, one half the number named by Bishop Tonstall) but in his specification of faults he had but little to say. He had before him two editions, the octavo and the quarto with glosses; the marginal notes of the latter come in for their share of censure. The distinct charges against the translation are that "Priests," "Church," and "Charity," are translated "seniours," "congregacyon," and "love;" and also that grace was sometimes rendered by favour, penance by repentance, and a contrite heart by a troubled heart. Such were the trifling reasons assigned for the prohibition and burning of the New Testament. The true one clearly was this, that the same feeling which prompted the constitution of Archbishop Arundel, in 1408, led to similar actions on the part of the popish authorities in the days of Tyndale.

The alleged ground of prohibition, namely, the perversion of meaning in the English translation, had been thus expressed by Bishop Tonstall in his original prohibition in 1526. He stated that certain "blinded through extreme wickedness, wandering from the way of truth, and the catholic faith, craftily have translated the New Testament into our English tongue, intermeddling therewith many heretical articles and erroneous opinions," &c.; now unless it were shewn what these offending opinions were, it could not be said whether they were or were not maintained by Tyndale's translation. At all events, before the translation was thus prohibited and the books destroyed as being faulty, the errors or wilful perversions in translating should have been stated. It is no doubt quite true that the version upholds what Tonstall and More called heresy; but this simply results from its not being a perversion of the original.

Meanwhile the Dutch printers were multiplying the copies of the English New Testament; in this they seem to have been simply actuated by the love of gain, a clear proof that in spite of strict prohibitions, and the fear of the spiritual authorities, the word of God was making its way among the people. The penalties of heresy (death by burning in case of relapse), would not have been lightly risked had there not been a deep and earnest desire for the possession of the pure word of God in a tongue known by the people.

The first of these Dutch editions appears, from the account given by George Joye, to have been published in 1527, and a second in 1528 or 9. This second must have been taken from Tyndale's quarto edition, because as the Dutch printers had no Englishman to correct the press for them, they could not have added any of the marginal glosses. The following account is given by George Joye of the two surreptitious editions—"Anon aftir the dwchemen gote a cotype, & printed it agen in a small volume adding the kalendare in the beginning, concordances in the margent, & the table in thende. But yet, for that they had no englisshe man to correcte the setting, thei themselues, hauyng not the knowledge of our tongue, were compelled to make many mo fautes then were in the cotype, and so corrupted the boke, that the simple reder might ofte tymes be taryed and steek. After this thei printed it agein also without a correctour in a greater letter & volume, with the figures in thapocalipse, which were therefore miche falsar then their firste." It is most probable that the three hundred copies offered for sale to Robert Neeton by a Dutchman were of the former of these two editions. The object of the Dutch printers having merely been profit (so entirely so that they did not even employ an English press corrector), of course accuracy was little cared for; the demand for the copies appears to have been such as to make them saleable however carelessly executed. Tyndale meanwhile was busily engaged in publishing other works, urging on the same object which had led him to translate the New Testament. In those which were subsequently written he refers in a very interesting and affecting manner to the treatment with which his translation had been received in England; he says in one place, "Some man wil aske parauntere why I take the labour to make this worke, in so moch as they will brunne it, seinge they brunt the gospel. I answere in brunninge the Newe Testamente they did none other thinge then I loked for, no more shal they doo if they brunne me also, if it be Gods will it shall be so." Thus was he willing to toil laboriously even if it were in the hope of getting but a few copies of the word of God into circulation in England.

* I have to thank Mr. Ofor for the use of a transcript made verbatim et literatim by himself of that very scarce tract "Joye's Apology."

The allusions to the burning of the New Testament, which are made by both Sir Thomas More and Tyndale, seem as though they referred to something more definite than the mere burning of the copies which were collected, which could hardly have attracted such peculiar attention. It is most probable that Tonstall succeeded in seizing some of the proscribed books in considerable quantities, and then publicly burned them at Paul's Cross. To this Tyndale seems to refer in the passage just cited, looking forward to his own probable fate; and just so Sir T. More says, "Yt is enough for good cristen men that knowe those things for heresyces, to abhorre and burne yppe his bokes and the lykys of them with them."

Antwerp was the place from which the New Testaments of these four editions were principally exported to England; and therefore any attempt to suppress them in this country must have proved abortive, so long as they continued to be supplied from the Netherlands. Bishop Tonstall had, however, soon an opportunity of doing what he could to prevent their exportation from Antwerp; in 1529 he went thither, probably in company with Sir T. More, on his return from the embassy at the treaty of Cambray; and then he purchased, through one Paekington, all the copies of the New Testament which were there for sale; these are mentioned by Halle as having been all burned with many other books in St. Paul's Church-yard, in May, 1530. Lord Herbert dates the burning, May 4, 1530. It has been alleged that Tyndale was himself implicated in the sale of these books to the Bishop, but the fact is that he was at Hamburg at this very time. It is possible that he went thither to avoid the bishop, but at all events his being there proves that he had nothing to do with this sale at Antwerp.*

So carefully were the distributed copies of the four first editions of Tyndale's Testament collected and destroyed, and so thoroughly did Tonstall procure all that were to be had in Antwerp, that these editions are almost totally extinct. Of the first edition but one perfect copy is in existence (the one from which the reprint of 1836 was executed); of the second (the quarto with glosses) only a fragment appears to be known: while the two Dutch editions have fared scarcely any better. Another edition was published by the Dutch in 1530.

Tyndale did not now confine himself to writing original works: he continued his labours of translation, commencing the Old Testament. Scarcely any thing seems to be known about where he lived, from the time of the publication of his Testament until the year 1529, except that in May, 1528, he was at Malborow (Marburg) in Hessa, where he published some books. In the early part of this year Fox mentions his having sailed from Antwerp with the intention of going to Hamburg; he was, however, shipwrecked on the coast of Holland: this makes it not unlikely that he had been mostly at Antwerp, or in the neighbourhood, during the interval, and there had carried on his labours. He continued his voyage, and reached Hamburg in safety, where he found Myles Coverdale, now an exile from England waiting to receive him. It is probable that Coverdale had been known to Tyndale during the abode of the latter at Cambridge.

Fox says, that "at his appointment Master Coverdale tarried for him, and helped him in the translating of the whole five books of Moses, from Easter till December, in the house of a worshipfull widow, Mistress Margaret Van Emmerson, Anno 1529, a great sweating sickness being the same time in the town."†

* The story, as told by Halle, implies that Tyndale was the seller of the books to Paekington; this would hardly have been likely even if Tyndale had been at Antwerp, for it was the Dutch printers who had got out the two latest editions for supplying England. As to the disclosures made by George Constantine, I place little reliance on them: his whole life was such a tissue of duplicity, that it is most probable that, when questioned by Sir Thomas More, he stated whatever he thought most fit at the time. Let it be remembered that Constantine was, in the reign of Edward VI., registrar to Bishop Farrar, of St. David's, he seems to have instigated the vexatious proceedings instituted in that reign against the bishop; and in the days of Mary he acted as registrar when Farrar was degraded and given up to be burned.

† The accuracy of this statement as to date, &c., appears from enquiries made at Hamburg in the autumn of 1840 by Mr. Oflor, which he has kindly communicated to me. There was at this time at Hamburg the widow of a senator, named Van Emmerson, whose proper style would be worshipfull widow (ehrwürdige Wittue), and it was also in this very year, 1529, that the sweating sickness was raging there. The exactness of the date is important, as proving Tyndale's absence from Antwerp.

Tyndale's reference to the burning of his books.

Tonstall at Antwerp, on his return from Cambray, 1529; buys Testaments.

Burning of the New Testament, May 4, 1530.

Tyndale's absence from Antwerp.

1529. Tyndale goes to Hamburg. Shipwrecked.

He meets Coverdale.

It was not long after this time that part of the Pentateuch of Tyndale's translation was published. "The chapters of the book of Moses called Genesis," and "The Chapters of the Book of Deuteronomy," are marked by the Bishops as falling under the class of books prohibited by the king's proclamation in 1529. These of course are of Tyndale's translation, and the specification of these two portions of the Pentateuch seems to shew that the other three books were not circulated in England until afterwards. The different books of the Pentateuch, as published by Tyndale, were printed at various places and in various types: Genesis was printed "at Malborow in the land of Hesse . . . in the yere of our Lord mccccxxx the xvii daye of January." Thus after he left Hamburg we find him, in the beginning of the next year, "at Malborow in the land of Hesse," whence probably before long he went to Antwerp.

Part of the Pentateuch published.
Strype, Ecc. Mem. i. 262.

Genesis printed Jan. 1530.
At Marburg, Jan. 1530.

The prohibitory proclamation just referred to, issued in 1529, gives very extended authority to the prelates in proceeding against persons suspected of heresy. A long list of books falling under the description of those forbidden, is subjoined in the bishop's register, the greater part in Latin, but some in English; in this list of condemned publications we find, besides Tyndale's Genesis and Deuteronomy, "David's Psalter in English," and "Seven Psalms;" the former of these must be the English Psalter printed by Francis Foxe at Argentine (Strasburgh), Jan. 16, 1530. Some account of this Psalter will be given at the close of the memorials relative to Tyndale's version and revision. As to the "seven Psalms," it appears as though the seven penitential Psalms translated into English by Bishop Fisher were meant: if so, it shews a determined attempt to suppress the English Scriptures; not only to condemn versions made by one who was deemed a heretic, but likewise that which had been executed by a bishop whose adherence to the doctrines and discipline of Rome was not to be questioned. It is evident that the people were not to be allowed to have the smallest portion of the word of God in their own tongue without incurring danger.

Proclamation, 1529.

Books prohibited, Genesis, Deuteronomy, and the Psalter.

Seven Penitential Psalms.

This brings another important era in the history of English translations of the Scriptures before us. The Pentateuch of Tyndale was the first portion of the Old Testament which was translated into English out of the Hebrew; and thus the books of this translation, published at separate times, and in different places, claim an honourable precedence as respects the Old Testament, just as Tyndale's octavo edition of 1526 claims with respect to the New. The manner in which the singular volume, Tyndale's Pentateuch, is executed, shews that his must have been a very itinerant life: probably he was often straitened for means; and thus it was only from time to time that he could publish one after another of the books of the Old Testament.

Tyndale's Pentateuch, first portion of the Old Testament made from the original, and printed in English.

It is not unlikely that John Frith was Tyndale's assistant in translating this part of the Scripture, since after his escape from England he was with him, and he was apparently at Hamburg at the same time; and this has probably led to the supposition of his having aided Tyndale in the translation of the New Testament, which was published a year and a half, at least, before Frith had quitted Oxford.

Frith with Tyndale.

The enmity of the authorities in England against the person of Tyndale and his writings, but especially his translations, still continued unabated; while he, a forlorn exile, seems to have gone on in dependance upon God, and in full resignation to His will. One thing is important, his full recognition of the authority due to his Sovereign as being the ordinance of God: if any thing could have loosed him from this bond it might be thought that persecution for Christ's sake would have done so. In one of his proscribed works, "The Obedience of a Christian Man," he largely states the duty which ought to be cheerfully paid by a Christian to his prince as being the ordinance of God to him for good; thus shewing that he was actuated in making his translation of the Scriptures, not by a feeling of insubordination, but with the spirit of those who, when forbidden to teach or preach in the name of Jesus, replied, "Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you rather than unto God, judge ye; for we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard."

Continued enmity in England against Tyndale. His subordination to authority.

"Obedience of a Christian Man."
Only limit of obedience, Acts iv. 20.

The doctrines and the testimony of Tyndale, gave, perhaps, even more offence than they would have given, had he simply raised his voice against Romish corruptions, because the exposure of evil was the more marked, from the contrast in which it stood to the truth which he at the same time presented. The deepest ground of the enmity was clearly his having printed and published, for the first time, the word of God in English.

Effect of the testimony of Tyndale.

FURTHER PERSECUTIONS AND EFFORTS FOR THE SUPPRESSION OF THE SCRIPTURES.

Renewed opposition, 1530.

THE continued labours of Tyndale to impart the light of Scripture to his countrymen, were not unnoticed in England. The year after Bishop Tonstall had purchased all the copies he could procure of the Testament at Antwerp, measures yet more stringent were resorted to, in order to prevent the spread of the Scriptures. This argues equally the fear which existed lest the light of God's word should make manifest the surrounding darkness, and the extreme difficulty there was in keeping the people from reading these proscribed books. It may be, that this restraint produced the desire of knowing what the prohibited books really contained, and that curiosity led to the procuring and retaining of that forbidden volume; while it is also yet more probable, that comparatively few were bold enough to dare the denounced penalties, unless their hearts had been wrought upon by the Spirit of God, to know and believe the love which God hath to us, and thus to desire to know what is His revealed will.

Restraint excites curiosity.

Bishop Tonstall took, as has been already shewn, the leading part in destroying the copies of the New Testament in English, which either were detected in England, or which were procured elsewhere; but while this temerity, on his part, is mentioned with due reprehension, it is but right to state, that he was far more merciful to the individuals who were brought before him, charged with the crime of possessing the Scriptures, or other grounds of "heresy," than others of the prelates were. Longland, the bishop of Lincoln, was in the habit of sending men to the stake for reading the Scriptures in English, and in this way there was, in his diocese, more of the sufferings of individuals on account of the word of God than in other parts. The burning of the books of the New Testament (apparently those purchased at Antwerp, in 1529) in public, at St. Paul's Church Yard, having taken place May 4, 1530, there was an assembly held in the same month, which seemed to set all the weight of human authority, both civil and ecclesiastical, against Tyndale and his translation. A few days after this great burning of the New Testament took place, several of the clergy, Richard Nix, bishop of Norwich, amongst the rest, had made such complaints as should reach the king's ears, concerning the prevalence of the diffusion of Tyndale's Testament; these complaints appear to have led to the publication of a prohibition, on the king's part, of all such books in English.

Public burning of the New Testament, May 4, 1530.

Bishop Nix complains of Tyndale's Testament, May 14, 1530. Cott. MSS. Cleop. E. v. p. 360.

Assembly for condemning the English Scriptures, &c. May 24, 1530. Collier iv. 140.

On May 24, 1530, there was an assembly convened by Archbishop Warham, the especial object of which was to examine, and formally to condemn, the books published and circulated by those who were disaffected to the church of Rome. The persons who met on this occasion were, the Lord Chancellor Sir Thomas More, Archbishop Warham, Bishop Tonstall, Stephen Gardiner, (afterwards bishop of Winchester), and several others, apparently delegates from the Universities. The documents drawn up on the occasion are probably from Gardiner's pen, who was the secretary, and one who very fully concurred both with the object of the convention and the measures to be adopted. By the instrument published on the occasion, it appears that the archbishop convened the assembly by direction of the king, who, "hearing that many books in the English tongue, containing many detestable errors and dampnable opinions, prynted in parties beyonde the see, to be brought into diuerse townes and sondrie parties of this his realm in Englande and sawen abroad in the same, to the great decaye of our faith, and the perylous corrupcion of his people, vules spedye remedye be brieueelic provided," his highness, considering also that he, being defender of the faith, would be "full lothe to suffre suche euill sede sowen amongst his people, soo to take roote that it myght ouergrowe the corne of the Catholic fayth," before sprung in the souls of his subjects. After this there followed a vast number of propositions, said to be drawn from the condemned books, each of the propositions is declared to be a heresy, while it is also said that those selected are but samples of the books themselves. But the great object was the proscription of the Scriptures in English; it was not enough to declare Scripture doctrines, such as justification through faith, to be a heresy, the books in which this teaching is found must be restrained if possible; for this reason, the instrument itself concludes thus:—"All whyche great errours and pestylent heresyes beyng contagyows and dampnable, wyth all the bookes contenyng the same, whith the translacyon also of Scrypture corrupted by Wyllyam Tyndall as well in the Olde Testament as yn the New, and all other bookys yn Ingllissh contenyng suche errours; the Kyngs hyghnes present ynson, by one hole advyse and assent of the prelatys and clerks, as well of the wyuersytes as all other, assembled together, determyned vterly to be expelled reiected and putt away owt of the handys of ys

The original at Lambeth.

Consequences said to result from the books of the reformers.

Tyndale's versions both of the New Testament and the Old condemned.

people, and not to be suffered to go abroad among his subjects." After a few more similar remarks, there follows a bill in English, which was to be publicly read by certain preachers; the object of this proceeding being to give due information to all, of the solemn condemnation of the books in question.

A bill to be read by preachers.

This bill deserves a very particular notice: it appears to be drawn up with peculiar care; and in its statements it is to a great degree guarded; the whole, however, turning upon entirely false premises. It sets forth that in the assembly for the purpose of examining the suspected books, "free libertye and lycence were graunted vnto euery man to say as hys consyence and lernyng serued hym; wythout any reprove or blame to be ymputed or arrected for any thyng to be spoken then, whose pson soeuer yt touched; or any necessytie to agree to the more parte; but only to say that hys owne lernyng and consyence coulde maynetayne and justyfy after mature delyberacyon and consultancy had, it was thereby a hole consent, no man repugnyng or azen sayng, determyned and agreed, that the bookys now beyng abroad yn thenglysshe tonge, conteynyng false tradycyons and corrupte doctryne farr dyscrepant from the trewe sense of the Gospell and Catholicke vnderstandyng of the Scripture; only persuadyng pernycyous heresyces to the destruccyon of the sowles of good chrysten men: and that the certentie herof I can reporte to yowe of my owne knowlege beyng oon of the sayd assemble, and hearyng and seyng the sayd opynyons red declared and examyned, and by the trewe sense and meanyng of goddys lernyng reprobud and reiected." Then follows an earnest admonition against both the books and doctrines; after which the bill continues:—

The judgment said to have been unanymous.

"Wherefore yow that haue the bookys, called the obedyence of a chrysten mañ, The sume of Scripture, The Reuelacyon of Antichryst, The supplicacyon of Beggars, Māmona iniquitatis, The matrimony of Tyndall, Titles of prohibited books.

The New Testamente in Inglysshe of the translacyon whiche ys nowe prynted, and suche other bookys yn Englysshe; the auctours wherof other darr not or do not put to ther names, be [they unknowen vnto yow,

The New Testament. Books to be given up.

or els be they suche as haue set forth their]† pnyeyouse books, detest them, abhorre them, kepe them not in your handys, delyuer them to the superyours suche as call for them: and yf by redyng of them heretofore, anythyng remayneth yn yor brestys of that techyng; ether forgett yt, or by ynformacyon of the twelthe, expell it and purge it, to thient that ye so purifyed and clensid of that contagyous doctryne, and pestyferows tradycyons may be fyt and apt to receve and reteyne the trewe doctryne and vnderstandyng of christs lawes, to the comforth and edyfyacyon of our soules: thus I move and exhorte yowe in god to doo, thys ys yowr dewtie to doo thys ye owght to doo, and beyng obstynat or denyng and refusing this to doo, the prelatys of the church hauyng the cure and charge of your soules oughte to compel yowe, and your prynce to ponysshe and correct yowe not doynng of the same: unto whom saynet Paule saythe the sworde ys gyuen by goddys ordince for that purpose."

Assertion that the kingly power was given to repress heresy.

The document goes on to speak of an opinion engendered "in dyuerse of hys subiectys, that yt ys hys gracy dewtie to cawse the Scripture of God to be translated yn to thenglysshe tonge to be commynycat unto the people; and that the prelatys, and also his highnes do wrong in denyng or letting of the same."

Prevalent opinion that the king was bound to provide the Scriptures in English.

The citation of this as a common opinion, and its insertion in a document which was to be publicly read by preachers, shews that questionings of this kind were widely prevalent in England; if it had not been so, such doubts would certainly never have been thus promulgated by those in authority; for this would be the readiest way to suggest such questions. The bill continues to speak of the free leave which was given in the assembly to discuss this subject, and how the king promised to conform himself to that which might be approved and confirmed by Scripture and holy doctrine; on this matter there appears to have been much said on both sides;—the question, indeed, was so stated as to lay it open to a great variety of opinions, and this conclusion was arrived at:—"It appered that the having the hole scripiture yn Englysshe ys not necessary to chrystian men; but that wythout hauyng any suche scripiture, endeuoryng themself to doo well, and to aplye theire myndys to take and follow suche lessons as the precher techyth them, and so lerne by hys mouth, may aswell edyfy spyrtyually yn ther soules as yf they had the same Scripiture yn Englysshe." After this, it is stated that it has sometimes seemed proper for the word of God to be circulated, while at other times it has been deemed needful for this to be restrained, and that the king taking into consideration all circumstances, "thynkyth yn hys consyence that the dyuulgyng of the Scripture att thys tyme yn the Englyshetonge to be comytted to the people . . . . shulde rather be to ther farther confusyon and destruccyon then the edyfyacyon of ther soules;" also it was said that all in the assembly thought that the king and the prelates did well in not suffering the Scriptures in English to be diffused "at this time;" also setting forth that the king promised to have the New Testament faithfully and purely translated into the

The king's judgment that the present was an unfit time for the Scriptures to be circulated in English. The New Testament to be given to the people when they should deserve it.

* These prohibited works are mostly those of Tyndale.

† These words within brackets are written in the margin of the document at Lambeth.

English tongue by learned men, so that he might have it in his hands ready to give to the people when they should deserve it. The people were there exhorted, "That you wyll so detest thes pnycevous bookys, so abhorre thes heresyces and newe opynyous [i. e. the doctrines of the Gospel of the grace of God] so declayne from arrogancy of knowlege and understanding of scrypature after your fantasies; and shewe yourself yn commynnyng and reasonyng so sober, quyett, mecke and temperate as all feare of mysusyng the gyft of Scryp-ture taken away, ye may appere mete yn your prynces eyes, and eyes of your prelattys, as they shall haue no just cause to fear any suche daunger: persuadyng vnto yowr self yn the mean tyme wout grudg-ying or murmuryng the veryrowth, which ys thys; that we can not requyre or demand Scryp-ture to be dyjudged yn the English tounge otherwyse then vpon the discreyons of the superiours, so as whensoever they thinke yn ther conseyence yt may doo yowe goode, they may & doo well to geve it vnto yowe. And when so eueryt shalbe seen otherwyse vnto they doo amys yn suffering yow to haue yt."

The judgment of superiors to be implicitly received.

Ought the king to restrain the people from having the Scriptures?

I have been the more particular to give an ample account of this prohibition, because it is of especial importance in connection with the restraints laid in England upon the circulation of the Scriptures; it is likewise important, as being a record that it was a discussed question whether the king ought to give the people the Scriptures in English; the question would, however, have come home more closely, if it had been—Ought the king to restrain the people from possessing and using the Scriptures, which they already have in their hands? The last cited paragraph runs very counter to the paramount authority of God; for the statement is equivalent to this—God has no right to speak to men in His word, except when and how "the superiors" see fit. The question however is not Has man a right to read the word of God? but Has God paramount right for His word to be heard? The document in question answers this in the negative. At the end of it are given the names of the persons who were present at the assembly.

Hugh Latimer a dissentient.

It is stated in the document that the condemnation of the prohibited books, and the withholding of the Scriptures were agreed to with the unanimous consent of those who were present; we shall, however, find shortly, good cause to question the accuracy of this statement with regard to one individual at least—Hugh Latimer.

Proclamation, May 9, 1530.

The king followed up these proceedings by a proclamation issued in the ensuing month, in which he calls upon his subjects to banish Tyndale's translation of the Scriptures, as well as "all other bokes of heresie," promising to cause the Scriptures to be translated for the use of the people, when it should seem convenient. The proclamation farther holds out the severest threatenings against any one who might read any portion of the Scripture, either in writing or in print, in English, French, or Dutch.

Reading the Scriptures in English, French, and Dutch, prohibited.

These severe measures were not without their results; persons were apprehended for possessing books of Scripture, and in consequence of these circumstances, on the 1st of December, Hugh Latimer, afterwards bishop of Worcester, whose name appears at the end of the prohibition of May 24th preceding, wrote to the king, freely expostulating with him respecting the prohibitions which were laid upon the circulation of the Scriptures. This alone proves that the document in question did not really express the sentiments of all who were present in the assembly. Latimer intimates that those who disobeyed the mandate took it more as proceeding from the prelates than from the king. He even indirectly defends the New Testament as translated by Tyndale, speaking of its having been "meekly offered to every man that could and would, to amend it if there were any fault."

Latimer writes to the king, Dec. 1, 1530.

He defends the version of Tyndale.

And not only does it appear that some of those in the assembly of the 24th of May, 1530, were dissentients in heart, but it is evident that their judgments likewise were expressed; for Latimer plainly tells the king—"But as concerning this matter, other men have shewed your grace their minds, how necessary it is to have the Scriptures in English." The which thing also your grace hath promised by your last proclamation; the which promise I pray God your gracious highness may shortly perform, even to-day before to-morrow." Farther on in the letter, Latimer says—"And so as concerning your last proclamation prohibiting such books, the very true cause of it and chief counsellors (as men say, and of likelihood it should be) were they whose evil living and cloaked hypocrisy, those books uttered and disclosed. And howbeit there were three or four, that would have had the Scripture go forth in English, yet it happened there [i. e. in the assembly of May 24], as it is evermore seen, that the most part overcometh the better; and so it might be that these men [i. e. those who had been taken into custody for retaining the Scriptures] did not take the proclamation as yours, but as theirs set forth in your name."

He refers to the differing judgments in the assembly of May 24.

Number of the dissentients three or four.

The proclamation not taken as the king's.

Latimer fully exculpated from the charge of opposing the Scriptures.

These extracts, from this interesting letter of Latimer, suffice to prove that he cannot be charged with having joined in the attempts which were made at this time to crush Tyndale, and hinder the light of God's truth. The charge would never have been brought against him, had it not been that the document before referred to, having his name amongst others, as present at its issue, was contemplated alone, without the letter to the king having been taken into consideration at the same time. It was Latimer's misfortune that a document, containing direct falsehood, was approved by a large majority, and the few dissentients had sentiments thus put forth in their names which they both abhorred in their hearts, and against which they had borne their testimony.

The alleged unanimity, a direct falsehood against Latimer.

The following is the conclusion of Latimer's letter to Henry VIII.:—"Take heed of their worldly wisdom, which is foolishness before God, that you may do that God commandeth, and not that seemeth good in your own sight without the word of God; that your grace may be found acceptable in his sight, and one of the members of his church, and according unto the office which he hath called your grace unto, you may be found a faithful minister of his gifts, and not a defender of his faith, for he will not have it defended by man or man's power, but by his word only; by the which he hath evermore defended it, and that by a way far above man's power or reason, as all the stories of the Bible make mention.

Latimer's faithful exhortation to the king.

"Wherefore, gracious King, pity yourself, have mercy upon your soul, and think that the day is even at hand when you shall give account of your office and of the blood that hath been shed with your sword. In the which day, that your grace may stand stedfastly, and not be ashamed, but be clear and ready in your reckoning, and to have (as they say) your Quietus est, sealed with the blood of our Saviour Christ, which only serveth at that day, is my daily prayer to him that suffered death for our sins, which also prayeth to his Father for grace for us continually. The Spirit of God preserve your grace. Anno Domini, 1530. 1 die Decembris."

Latimer refers to those who suffered martyrdom.

If it be asked who were the principal movers in these solemn proceedings for the suppression of the Scriptures, I believe that there can be very little doubt or question that it was the same who had previously done what they could to prevent their circulation in English, and to crush the translator; the previous efforts of Bishop Tonstall and Sir Thomas More having been so thoroughly unavailing to these ends, they seem now to have tried something yet more formidable, by adding the weight of the king's authority to their endeavours. It is pleasant to find that there was with them such a faithful witness for God and his word as Hugh Latimer.

Sir. T. More and Tonstall, the principal actors in the convention.

VI.

TYNDALE'S LIFE IN EXILE.—ATTEMPTS TO ALLURE HIM TO ENGLAND.

THUS while in England the whole weight of authority was opposed to Tyndale and his godly labour of translating the Scriptures, he was himself in Antwerp or the vicinity, having just (as has been already said) completed the Pentateuch, a work the printing of which was evidently accomplished in the midst of many wanderings. It is not unlikely that even before this time attempts had been made to seize Tyndale's person, and that the changes in his place of abode were in part consequent upon this. But still it is deeply interesting to mark the steadiness of purpose with which he was prosecuting his godly design; and to this end the little separate pamphlets, in which he printed and began to reprint the Pentateuch, have great value. Wiclif was enabled, by the orderings of God's providence, to continue his labours with comparative tranquillity, there were even some of the great in this world who had befriended him, while with Tyndale it was altogether different. He lived a most precarious life, and was in continual danger of being arrested to receive the punishment which was then so commonly awarded to the faithful servants of Christ.

During a part of the time of his sojournings in various places he had the company of his friend John Frith, from whose testimony we learn a little of the life which Tyndale led. He says, in his answer to Sir Thomas More in 1533:—

"And Tyndale I trust lyueth well contente with such pore Apostles lyfe as God gave hys Sonne Christ, and hys faithfull mynsters in thys worlde, which is not sure of so many mytes as you be yearly of many poundes; altho' I am sure that for hys learnynge and iudgement in the Scripture, he were more worthy to be promoted then all the Bishoppes in Englande. I receyued a letter from hym which was wrytten sens Christmas, wherin amonge other matters he wryteth thus:—'I call God to recorde agaynst the daye we shall appeare before oure Lorde Jesus to geue reckonyng of our doinges that I neuer altered one syllable of Godes worde agaynst my conyence, nor wolde do thys daye, yf all that is in Earth, whether it be honoure, pleasure, or ryches might be geuen me.

Tyndale's motives in translating the Scriptures.

“ ‘ Moreouer, I take God Almyghty to recorde to my conscience that I desyre of God to my selfe in thys worlde no more then that without which I cannot keep his Lawes.’ ” &c. “ Judge, good Christen reader, whether these wordes be not spoken of a faythfull, clene, and innocent herte. And as for hys behayoure is suche that I am sure no man can reprove him of any synue, howbeit no man is innocent before God which beholdeth the herte.”

This testimony of Frith concerning his friend and brother in Christ, William Tyndale, was given not long before he himself was called to lay down his life for Christ's sake, which took place on the fourth of July, 1533. It is introduced in this place, because the manner of Tyndale's life of hardship had continued much the same for some years, and it was to the period from 1528 to 1531 that Frith referred, as concerning which he had had personal experience; he having for that time been often the companion of Tyndale.

The circulation of the Scriptures hindered. No edition of the New Testament in English from 1530 till 1534.

It is probable that the severities resorted to had in a great degree hindered the importation of copies of the New Testament into England, especially after the burning of Bayfield, for there does not appear to have been any edition printed from the year 1530 until 1534, whereas there had been from 1526 to 1530 no less than five editions, two of Tyndale's own, the one without glosses—the other with them, and three published by the Dutch printers. The difference in the issues of these New Testaments is at least remarkable, and can scarcely be attributed to any other cause than the severe proscription by the English authorities.

Why no further portion of the Old Testament was published in English, except Jonah.

It is not only, however, the translation of the New Testament by Tyndale which was prohibited by the king's proclamation, the portions of the Old which were already executed fell under the same sweeping condemnation; this may account for the fact that no portion of the Old Testament was published by Tyndale beyond the Pentateuch, excepting the book of Jonah; the Pentateuch itself, however, does not, in Tyndale's life-time, appear to have been reprinted farther than the book of Genesis.

The whole of Tyndale's translations published in 1537, in Matthew's Bible.

The prophecy of Jonah was the last portion of the Old Testament which Tyndale lived to publish; he was, however, engaged in the succeeding years of his life in translating the historical books as far as the end of the second of Chronicles, which translation appears to have remained in the hands of some of his friends—very probably in the possession of JOHN ROGERS, afterwards himself in part a translator or reviser of the Scriptures, and ultimately a martyr for Christ;—and thus at length, in the year 1537, the whole of the portions of Scripture which had been translated by the labour of Tyndale, were published together in the Bible which bears the name of Thomas Matthew: in this Bible, those books which had not been translated by Tyndale were supplied out of the version of Myles Coverdale.

Efforts of Tyndale's enemies to entice him to England, 1530.

Stephen Vaughan the king's agent. His letter concerning Tyndale, Jan. 26, 1530. Cott. MSS. Galba, B. x. p. 42.

The enemies of the truth in England were not content with proscribing equally the translations and the writings of Tyndale, for they sought to have his person also in their power. How soon these attempts commenced we have no evidence, but it is certain that early in the year 1530, efforts were made to induce him to return to England. Part of a letter from Stephen Vaughan, the agent of Henry VIII. in the Netherlands, is among the Cotton MSS. This letter is dated from Barrough, near Antwerp, Jan. 26, 1530, and is addressed to the king himself. He says, “ I have written three sondry letters vnto Wylliam Tyndale, and the same sent for the more suretie to iij several places, to Frankforde, Hamborough, and Marleborough.” This proves that Vaughan had some information respecting the places in which Tyndale had been sojourning about that time; for he had spent a considerable part of the preceding year at Hamburgh, and was a few days before the date of this letter (namely, on the 17th of January 1530) at Malborow, where and when he printed his translation of Genesis. Vaughan goes on to speak of the inducements which he had held out to Tyndale, to persuade him to return to England. One thing this letter proves indubitably—the importance which in the eyes of Henry was attached to getting Tyndale in his own power; for not only does Vaughan speak of his own exertions, but also of “ some other person whom your magestie commanded to persuade by like meanyis; ” he enclosed to the king the letters which he had received from Tyndale, as well as his reply to this other emissary. The exact object which was sought in getting Tyndale to England does not transpire; it may be that ultimate proceedings in the matter were not arranged even in the mind of Henry himself.

The inducements held out to Tyndale.

Vaughan's letter to Cromwell.

Vaughan wrote a letter to Cromwell accompanying the one to the king: in this he says, “ It is unlikely to get Tyndale into England when he dayly hereth so many thinges from thense whiche feareth hym. After his booke answering my Lord Chancellor's book be put fourth, I think he wyll wryte no more. The man is of a gretter knowlege then the Kyng's Highnes doth take him for, which well appereth by his workes. Wolde God he were in England.”

Tyndale goes

It is not unlikely that the letters of Vaughan were in part the means of leading his steps from Marl-borow to Antwerp or the neighbourhood; and we may judge from the letters of Vaughan which are extant, how much he urged his return to England—a step which, if taken, would have been of fatal consequences to him. A part of a letter from one of the king's agents is extant, which must have been written not long after that to which I have just referred; it shews that Tyndale had now come to Antwerp. This letter gives an interesting account of an interview which the writer of it had with Tyndale on the day preceding, close to the city of Antwerp.* He says,—

“The day before the date hereof, I spake with Tyndall without the town of Andwerp, and by this meanes. He sent a certeyne person to seke me, whom he had advysed to say that a certeyne frend of myne vnknown to the messenger, was very desirous to speke with me; praying me to take paynes to go vnto him to suche place as he should bryng me. Then I to the messenger, what is your fryend and where is he? His name I know not, said he, but if it be your pleasure to go where he is, I wilbe glad thider to bryng you: thus dobtfull what this matter ment, I concluded to go with hym, and folowed hym till he brought me without the gate of Andwerp into a feld lying nyghe unto the streme, where was abiding me this said Tyndall. At our metyng, do you not know me? said this Tyndale. I do not well remember you, said I to hym; my name, said he, is Tyndall. But Tyndall, said I, fortunat be our metyng. Then Tyndall: Sir, I have bene excedyng desirous to speke with you. And I with you; what is your mynd. Sir, said he, I am enformed that the Kyng's grace taketh great displeure with me for puttyng furthe of certayne bokes which I lately maid in these partes, but specially for the boke namyd the Practise of Prelates, whereof I have no littell marvail considering that, in it I did but warne his grace of the subtile demeanor of the Clargy of his Realme towards his person & of the shameful abusions by them practised, not a littell threatnyng the displeasure of his grace and weale of his Realme. In which doyng, I shewed and declared the harte of a trew subject which sought the saluegard of his Riall person and weale of his commons, to tentent that his grace thereof warnyd mygh in dewe tyme prepare his remedies against the subtile dreames. Yf for my paynes therein takyn. Yf for my pouertye. Yf for myn exile out of myn naturall contrey, and being absent from my fryndes. Yf for my hongar—my thirst—my cold—the great danger wherewith I am every where compasyd—and fynally yf for innumerable other hard and sharp sicknesses whiche I indure, not yet feelyng theyre asperitie he reson I hopyd with my labors to doo honor to God—trew service to my prynce, and plesure to his commons, how ys yt that his grace this consyderyng may ether by hymself thynce or by the perswasions of wother, be brought to thynce, that in this doyng I schold not sehew a pure mynd, a trew and incorrupt zeale, and effecyon to his grace. Was there in me any suche mynde when I warned hys grace to beware of his cardinal, whose iniquyte he schortly after approvyd accordyng to my writing? Doth this deserve hatred? Agyene, may his grace, being a crysten prynce be so vnkynd to God, whiche hathe commaundyd his word to be spredde thorough owght the world; to geve more faythe to the wykyd perswasions of men, whiche presumyng above Goddes wysdom and contrary to that which Cryst expressly comandeth in his testament dare saye, that yt is not lefful for the pepoll to have the same in a tonge that they understand, because the puritie thereof schold opyn mens eyes to se ther wykydnes!! Is there more danger in the kinges subjects then in the subjectes of all other princes, which in every of their tongges have the same under pryveleage of their sufferaynse, as I now am very deth ware more pleasaunt to me then lyfe consyderyng mans nature to be suche as can bare no trefethe. This, after a long communcyation had between us.”

The remainder of this letter speaks of the objections made by Tyndale as to his coming into England; he not feeling at all secure, whatever promises might be made him by the king, knowing the power which spiritual censures exerted against any one accused or suspected of heresy. The writer also makes a kind of apology for not having pursued Tyndale; this proves that the agents of the king had orders to arrest Tyndale, if they had the opportunity, and likewise that they had at least permission so to do from the authorities at Antwerp; well might Frith then call the life which Tyndale led “a poor apostle's life,” for he had to suffer, not only from extreme poverty and privation, but also from the continual danger of his liberty and life. If we value the labour which he bestowed upon the version of the Scriptures which he sought to give his countrymen, our estimate of the pains which he took will greatly increase, when we consider his circumstances at the time.

This letter, from which the citation has just been made, shews how intensely the mind of Tyndale was directed to the free introduction of the Scriptures into England; it seems to have been in order to urge that point that Tyndale sought this remarkable interview. For the right understanding of the reference which Tyndale made to his book, “The Practise of Prelates,” it may be needful to state that in it he had freely spoken against the divorce of Henry, tracing up the religious scruples which it was said that the king was acting, to insinuations which had been brought into his mind to serve certain ambitious ends.

* This letter is imperfect, and has neither date nor writer's name, but it may be constructively shewn to have been also written by Sir Stephen Vaughan (though the defective copy in existence is a transcript by another hand), and the date to be April 18, 1531.

from Marleborough to Antwerp.

Tyndale reaches Antwerp before April 18, 1531.

Vaughan's interview with Tyndale, April 17, 1531. Cott. MSS. Titus, B. 1. p. 67.

Their conversation.

Tyndale's fidelity to the king.

Tyndale's privations.

His previous warnings to the king.

The Scriptures prohibited.

Tyndale's objections to come to England.

Vaughan apologises for not having pursued Tyndale.

Dangers of Tyndale's life.

Tyndale's "Practise of prelates." His opposition to Henry's divorce.

Tyndale spoke what he believed to be the truth of God in the matter, not dreading the displeasure of his sovereign, referring in justification of his conduct to the rebuke which John the Baptist had given to Herod. Nothing could have shewn less guile than the conduct of Tyndale in thus giving to the king advice so unpalatable.

S. Vaughan writes to the king, May 20, 1531. Cott. MSS. Galba B. x. p. 5.

An interview with Tyndale mentioned.

In another letter from the agent of the king, mention is made of Tyndale, as well as of his friend Frith, who was yet absent from England. Sir Stephen Vaughan wrote to the king on May 20, 1531; the latter part of his letter related principally to these two exiles. Vaughan speaks in terms of high commendation of Frith, whilst mentioning, at the same time, his poverty, which he is disposed to regard as having partly induced him to marry; this he thinks may hinder his endeavours to induce him to come to England. As to Tyndale, he speaks of an interview which he had had with him, and the effect which the reading of a clause in a letter of Cromwell's, which spoke of the king's kindness and compassion to those who would be converted and amend.

Tyndale much moved by part of a letter from Cromwell. His willingness to suffer that the Scriptures might be circulated in English.

“ And as I thought so it cam to passe. For after sight therof, I perceyued the man to be exceedinge altered, and to take the same very nere vnto his hearte, in suche wise that water stode in his yees. And answered what gracious wordes are these. I assure youe, sayed he, If it wolde stande wile the kinge most gracious plaisur to graunte only a bare text of the scripture to be put forthe emonge his people, like as is put forthe emonge the subjectes of the emperour in these parties, and of other cristen princes, be it of the translation of what person soever shall please his magestie, I shall ymedyately make faithfull promyse neuer to write more, ne abide two dayes in these parties after the same: but ymedyately to repayre into his realme, and there most humbly submytt myselfe at the fete of his roiall magestie, offerynge my bodge to suffer what payne or tortures, ye what dethe his grace will, so that this be obteyned. And tyll that tyme, I will abide th aspect of all chaunces what so euer shall come, and indure my lyfe in as many paynes, as it is able to bere and suffer. And as concernynge my reconciliacion his grace may be assured that what soeuer I haue sayed or written in all my life ageynst thonour of Goddes worde, and so proved: the same shall I before his magestie and all the worlde, vterly renounce and forsake. And with most humble and meke mynde imbrace the truth, abhorringe all error soer at the most gracious and benygne request of his royall magestie, of whose wisdom, prudence and lernynge I hear so greate prayse and commendation, then of any other creature luyng. But if those thinges whiche I haue written be true, and stand with Goddes worde, why shulde his magestie haunge so excellent a guyjt of knowlege in the scriptures, shoue me to do any thinge agensnt my conscience.”

Vaughan goes on to tell the king, that if he had a distinct promise from him to Tyndale, that he would be much more likely to succeed in inducing him to return to England.

Value of the testimony of this letter.

This letter is valuable, as shewing how thoroughly the mind of Tyndale was bent upon his work of service to God—namely, the giving of the Scriptures to his countrymen in their own tongue. It was now nearly thirty years since his mind had been turned to this subject (some of the manuscript translations which appear to be his are dated 1502), and now in poverty, exile, sickness, and danger; this was to him the object for which he sought to live. It was not for name or credit that he toiled,—let the Scriptures be given forth in English, be the translation whose it might, so long as it was the true word of God, he was willing to write no more, and even to obey the orders of the king, by giving himself up, even knowing the certain consequence to be death by burning.

Cromwell's letter to Vaughan in reply to his of April 18, 1531. Cott. MSS. Galba B. x. p. 335.

The king himself corrects this draught.

Fear expressed lest Vaughan should be influenced by Tyndale.

The king's animosity against Tyndale increases.

Vaughan's commendation of Tyndale reproduced.

There is extant the draught of a letter from Cromwell to Vaughan, to which no date appears: but it would seem, from the contents, to have been written about the same time as the letter from Vaughan, an extract from which has just been given. This draught of a reply, must have been written before the king received the letter of Vaughan, dated May 20, 1531; while, at the same time, it is pretty evident that Vaughan had not received this letter when he wrote on that date. The draught of the reply to Vaughan's letter was corrected and interlined by the king himself, and the kind of alterations which are made, proves how the mind of Henry was bent upon opposing or destroying Tyndale. The diligence of Vaughan in procuring the book in reply to More is commended, yet very great apprehension is expressed lest Vaughan himself had not become too friendly with Tyndale, his letters being judged to shew much affection towards him.

The king clearly dreaded the influence which Tyndale might have over Vaughan, and was also much offended by the reply to Sir Thomas More. The letter running in Cromwell's name, but corrected by the king, contains this sentence: “. . . I myght well perceyue that he thought that ye haue moche affection towards the saide Tyndale, whom in his maners, & knowledge in wordly thinges, ye vndoubtedlie in your letters do moche allowe and commende, who's workes being replete with abhominable sclauanders and lyes, imagened and onely fayned to enfeete the peopull, declareth him to lake grace, native learning, godly discrecyon, and all other good qualities, nothing else pretending in all his workes but evedente dyssaite, that ye in such wise, by your letters prayse, set forth, and avauce hym, which nothing else pretendyth but disquiet and sowe sedytyon among the peopull of this realme. His highnes, therefore, hath commaunded me to aduertise you that his pleasure is to wryte that ye shoulde desyste, and leue eny further to persuaude or attempte the sayde Tyndale to cum into this realme. Alledging that he perceyving the malycyous, perverse, vcharitable mynde and judgment of the said Tyndale, is in maner without hope of reconcylyacyon in hym, and is veray joyious to haue his realme destytute of such a person." The letter goes on to speak of the danger which might arise from the presence of Tyndale if he were to return to England; and how he might corrupt the whole realm to its great injury. What then was Tyndale's offence? He had put forth the New Testament in English,* and had defended his having done so against the foolish and frivolous charges brought against it by More. This was the true ground of the efforts of Henry and his emissaries; and so soon as it was manifest that the honest simplicity of Tyndale touched the heart of Henry's agent, the object which had been sought was abandoned, and Tyndale was to be no more solicited to return.

Fear expressed lest Tyndale if in England might corrupt the whole realm.

If Vaughan's former letter had given offence, that of May 20th must have greatly increased it, so that it is not to be wondered at, that we find but little further mention of Tyndale in any of the proceedings in England.

Offence occasioned by Vaughan's letters.

The latter part of the letter to Vaughan mentions Frith, whom he was still to seek to allure to England; the king not having any such direct grounds of displeasure against him as he had against Tyndale, Frith did return to England, probably about the time of Lambert's arrest, fully expecting, it would seem, that the promises made to him would be kept, and that he would be unmolested for the faith of Christ; the result has been already told, he was taken up, committed to the tower, and after a long imprisonment and repeated examinations, was condemned by Bishop Stokesly, and suffered death in Smithfield, July 4, 1533. He had married while abroad: his wife had remained in the Netherlands; but she appears, from one of the letters of Tyndale to Frith, to have been able to give up her husband to suffer for the Lord's sake without repining, being able to look onward to the glory which is reserved for those who have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Fox, in the very interesting account which he gives of the sufferings of this faithful martyr of the Lord Jesus, speaks of the narrative as being the most affecting of any of those relating to the martyrs who laid down their lives in the days of Henry VIII.

Frith, still solicited to return to England, complies.

Committed to the tower. Condemned by Bp. Stokesly. Put to death July 4, 1533.

The letters of Tyndale to Frith while he was in the Tower, are very interesting, for they shew how his heart was stayed upon the Lord, and how earnestly he desired that Frith might in all things witness a good confession. He earnestly cautions him against saving his life by an abjuration, warning him how Bilney did this by the advice of false friends, and then had no ease in his conscience until he again gave himself up to suffer death, urging upon him the exceeding importance of consistent and faithful testimony.

Tyndale's letters to Frith.

"Dearly beloved, be of good courage, and comfort your soul with the hope of this high reward, and bear the image of Christ in your mortal body, that it may at his coming be made like to his immortal, and follow the example of all your other dear brethren, which choose to suffer in hope of a better resurrection. Keep your conscience pure and undefiled, and say against that nothing. Stick at necessary things, and remember the blasphemies of the enemies of Christ, saying, they find none but will abjure rather than suffer the extremity. Moreover, the death of them that come again after they have once denied, though it be accepted with God and all that believe, yet it is not glorious; for the hypocrites say, he must needs die, denying helpeth not. But might it have holpen they would have denied five hundred times, but seeing it would not help them, therefore, of pure pride and mere malice together, they speak with their mouths that their conscience knoweth to be false. If you give your self, cast your self, yield your self, commit your self wholly and only to your loving Father, then shall his power be in you and make you strong, and that so strong, that you shall feel no pain, which should be to another present death; and His Spirit shall speak in you and teach you what to answer according to His promise."

The hope of the Christian.

The resurrection.

In another letter Tyndale tells Frith, "Your wife is well content with the will of God, and would not for her sake have the glory of God hindered." These letters appear, from their contents, to have been written Frith's wife mentioned by Tyndale.

* It is singular, that in a very short time after this, Cromwell became one of the most earnest promoters of the circulation of the Scriptures in English. It is probable that, even at this time, he was acting as the instrument of Henry, as unhappily he often did afterwards. He was probably very willing that attempts to take Tyndale were to cease.

shortly before Frith was burned; and from them we may learn with what steadiness of purpose Tyndale looked on to the expected close of his own earthly pilgrimage. In another of his letters to Frith, written apparently some time previously to those from which the above extracts are taken, he exhorts him, if he has opportunity, to "thrust in that the Scripture may be in the mother tongue;" this great object being never kept out of sight by Tyndale.

Frith to use his influence for the Scriptures in English.

VII.

TYNDALE REVISES HIS NEW TESTAMENT—HIS IMPRISONMENT AND MARTYRDOM—COTEMPORARY VERSIONS.

TYNDALE'S "poor Apostle's life" was now drawing to a close; his occupation had been for some time continuing to translate the books of the Old Testament, which he accomplished up to the end of the Second of Chronicles. When his circumstances are considered, it is really wonderful that he could have done so much. In the early part of 1534, he appears to have had a little comparative repose, becoming an inmate in the family of Thomas Pointz, an English merchant, at Antwerp.* This period seems to have been employed in revising his translation of the New Testament—of this book he had not himself published an edition since the two of 1526, and it was now four years since the Dutch printers had published their third edition. In his labour of revision, Tyndale bestowed great pains; a comparison of the original with the revised edition proves this; not many verses can be found together in which he had not made some alterations (often but slight), in order more accurately to express the sense of the Greek. The Dutch printers seem to have tried to forestall Tyndale, by getting out another edition before his was ready; they procured the aid of an English refugee, named George Joye, who had previously published, in 1531, a translation of Isaiah from the Latin, and was at this very time engaged in publishing and translating Jeremiah and the Psalter. It was this circumstance probably that gave rise to the proposal on the part of the Dutch publishers, that Joye would aid them in their attempt to publish an English New Testament: he seems to have been a man of a very unsober mind, very earnest against the Church of Rome, but not particularly sound in Christian doctrine. The copy used by the Dutch printers, owing to its having been three times printed without the aid of an English press-corrector, had become so inaccurate that (by Joye's account) it was in not a few places unintelligible, so that his toil in correcting the press was considerable. Sometimes, also, he says, the text was in such a state that he was obliged to take his Latin Bible and re-render the passage, so as to give some meaning to the words which had become corrupted. But this was not all, for he made, in one respect at least, a strange alteration, expunging the word "resurrection," and substituting "the life after this;" a translation which, if it meant anything, was a cloke for some unsoundness in doctrine; and for this end it was intended by Joye, as we shall see from the manner in which the subject is alluded to by Tyndale. This corrupted edition of Tyndale's New Testament was published in August, 1534.

Early part of 1534, Tyndale has a little repose, in the house of Pointz, at Antwerp.

George Joye aids the Dutch printers.

Joye's alteration of the word "resurrection."

This corrupted edition published Aug. 1534.

Tyndale's corrected edition, Nov. 1534.

Πρεσβύτερος newly rendered.

Tyndale's revision.

In the following November, Tyndale published his own revised, or third, edition (the seventh in all); in this, besides amending the version, he also did much to remodel the language, so as to give the whole in more idiomatic English; for although this had been done with a considerable degree of success eight years before, yet Tyndale had then no opportunity to examine the whole so as to make it what he could wish. He took advantage, in his revision, of the faults which had been found with his version as first published, and thus made such changes as substituting "elder" for "senior," which he had previously given as the rendering of πρεσβύτερος: this, it may be remembered, was one of the great faults found by Sir T. More in the previous editions. In speaking of the editions of Tyndale's version, this his revision stands in the first place as exhibiting him as a translator. The two editions, octavo and quarto, of 1526, are precious as samples of the earliest endeavours of this holy servant of Christ to give the word of God to his countrymen. But the edition of 1534 is the one which should be taken into account when his accuracy as a translator is examined.

* Fox mentions (ed. 1, p. 513), that Sir John Welch married a daughter of Sir Robert Pointz; this Thomas Pointz may have been one of the same family, and this may have connected him with Tyndale.

The Re- vised Testament, dyligently corrected and compared with the Greke by William Tyndale: and fynes-shed in the yere of oure Lorde God.
A. M. D. & xxxiiiij.
in the moneth of November.

Tyndale combats, shewing that the fulfilment of the will of God is attendant on that faith which truly justifies.

After this, a few lines are occupied with an explanation of the term "Elders," which in this edition is used as the more correct expression of what had been at first termed by Tyndale "Seniours." Elders defined.

Then follows, "A prologue into the iii. Euangelystes;" this is succeeded by a notice of an erratum, namely, in the twenty-third of Matthew. By mistake there had been printed, "Clense first the outside of the cup and platter;" for this he tells the reader to substitute "synneside."

Tyndale had heard of Joye's edition of the New Testament in English; but although he was surprised at his attempt to supplant him, he took no particular notice, though it was in itself particularly ungenerous to publish an edition in Tyndale's name at the very time when his genuine edition corrected was expected to appear; but when the printing of this edition was almost finished, a copy was brought to him of Joye's edition, and many places were pointed out in which strange alterations had been made. In consequence of this, Tyndale prefixed another prologue* to this edition, stating that the changes which had been published under his name were not really his; for that instead of a copy which was so treated deserving the name of being diligently corrected, it was really grievously corrupted. Tyndale says, "thorow oute Mat.

Mark & Luke perpetually: and ofte in the Actees, & sometyme in John, and also in the Hebrues, where he fyndeth this worde Resurrection, he chaungeth it into the lyfe after this lyfe, or verie lyfe, and soche lyke, as one that abhorred the name of the resurrection." He goes on to say, that if this change be "a dyligent correccion then must my translacion be fautie in those places, and saynt Jeromes, and all the transloutours that euer I heard of in what tonge so euer it be." Tyndale might well express his surprise at such a rendering having been adopted,—a rendering which seems as though it were only meant to take away the true hope of Christians, that as Christ arose, so shall they arise—they having in His resurrection the earnest and the exemplification of theirs. But it pained Tyndale that Joye had so acted as to make him seem responsible for this heretical perversion. Tyndale re- marks on Joye's edition.

This New Testament altered by Joye, on which Tyndale animadverted, was the first attempt in English to pervert the word of God, for the purpose of upholding false doctrine; happily, this has been done but rarely, and those versions in which this dishonest mode of procedure has been adopted have never obtained much acceptance, or come into general use. Tyndale expressed much indignation at this conduct of Joye; but the offence was great:—1st. He had daringly corrupted the word of God. 2nd. He had done this in order to introduce and disseminate his own heretical doctrine. 3rd. He had done this in such a way as to cause his errors to be ascribed to Tyndale, as though Tyndale had been guilty of this gross dishonesty in translating, and as if he held these erroneous doctrines. Joye's first attempt in English to pervert the word of God.

A short extract from the prologue, too interesting to be omitted, shews us what were Tyndale's feelings in giving out his own translation. He says, "As concerning all I have translated or other wise written, I beseeche all men to reade it, for that purpose I wrote it: even to bringe them to the knowledge of the scripture. And as farre as the scripture approveth it, so farre to allowe it, & if in anye place the worde of God dysalow it, there to refuse it, as I do before oure sayour Christ & his congregacion. And where they fynde fautes, let them shew it me, if they be nye, or wryte to me if they be farre of: or wryte openly agaynst it & improve it, & I promyse them, if I shall perceave that there reasons conclude I will confesse myne ignorance openly."

A few months (Feb. 27 1535) after Tyndale had thus disclaimed all participation in the heretical Joye's Apology published.

* From Joye's Apology, it would seem that this prologue had been circulated previous to the completion of the New Testament, to which it was afterwards prefixed.

perversions made by George Joye, the latter published an Apology for the New Testament with which he had been connected; in this Apology he represents his whole connection with regard to the surreptitious edition, as though it were one merely of a pecuniary nature on his part in undertaking the correction of the press of the New Testament in English; but he makes no real defence of himself with regard to the alteration of the word resurrection, and allowing this change to be attributed to Tyndale himself. He also, by implication, charges Tyndale with indolence in not having edited an impression of his New Testament for so many years, and with covetousness because of the sum said to have been given him by the printer for the copyright of his corrected version. Joye might have known that Tyndale instead of being indolent had been laboriously engaged in many works in the midst of danger, privation, and sickness; and as to the charge of covetousness, it applies very badly to one who was willing to live upon ten pounds a year, so that he might teach children and preach the gospel.

He charges Tyndale with indolence.

Joye's statements respecting resurrection.

Joye asserts that Tyndale had not spoken correctly in charging him with holding heretical doctrine relative to the resurrection; he allows that in some places it really does signify the rising again of the body; but he maintains (whether from ignorance or perverseness) that in others it means simply the state of the separate spirit in happiness with the Lord. It is not easy to gather what his doctrine really was on this point, for he seems to contradict himself; alleging that "they that are in their graves" in John v. does not mean the body but the soul; if so what could the resurrection be?

His charge of false doctrine against Tyndale.

He charges Tyndale with maintaining that the spirit is in a state of sleep from the time of its departure from the body until the resurrection; an assertion which appears from Tyndale's own previous statements to be utterly groundless. The Apology of Joye proves his scholarship to have been but limited, and also that he could but little appreciate Tyndale's learning.

The Dutch imitation of Tyndale's revision.

The Dutch printers probably found that the sale of the edition edited by Joye was hindered by the publication of Tyndale's revision three months after; and thus they published an edition which is an evident imitation of Tyndale's revised edition; indeed there can hardly be a doubt but that it was intended to pass for the genuine edition, for it is even dated as being finished in 1534, in November, just like the genuine book, which of course cannot be the true date.

Tyndale's apprehension.

The completion of the revision and printing of Tyndale's third edition brings us to the time of his apprehension and imprisonment.

Henry Philips accuses Tyndale at Brussels.

The account of the betrayal and martyrdom of Tyndale was communicated to Fox by Thomas Pointz, who had been his host for the previous nine months, it appears that one Henry Philips made acquaintance with Tyndale, so that he at length became an inmate in Pointz's house. After some time Philips went to Brussels, where he appears to have charged Tyndale with heresy, so that some of the officers of the emperor were sent to Antwerp to apprehend him. Shortly after this, Pointz had occasion to be absent for a few days from Antwerp, and Philips took the opportunity to put Tyndale into the hands of those who were sent to apprehend him. He was taken to the castle of Vilvoord or Filford, near Brussels; at which place he remained until his martyrdom, nearly two years afterwards. Great efforts were made by Pointz and others to procure his discharge, but all was ineffectual. Pointz procured letters from England in favour of Tyndale, and it appears probable that he would have obtained Tyndale's liberty, had not Philips, being resolved not to be baffled, charged Pointz likewise with heresy. On this account he also was arrested, and was subjected to a severe examination, as well as imprisonment for a considerable time. At length, having an opportunity he escaped, and again renewed his efforts to liberate Tyndale; the testimony which Pointz gives, concerning the character and conduct of Tyndale, in a letter addressed to his brother (dated Aug. 25, 1535), is highly interesting and valuable: he speaks of him in the highest terms.

He betrays Tyndale taken to Vilvoord Castle. Nov. 1534.

Pointz arrested.

COLL. MSS. Galba B. A. p. 63.

It is difficult even to surmise who were the instigators of Philips in this matter. Henry had little or no influence in the Netherlands at this time, for his having divorced the aunt of the Emperor, Catherine of Arragon, was the occasion of almost an open rupture. Philips apparently belonged to that party amongst the English, who wished still to uphold the authority of the Pope, and who, therefore, condemned the divorce, else he would have been little likely to have gained any favour with the authorities at Brussels; but, however this may be, it was rather a strange proceeding to condemn Tyndale at such a time in the Emperor's dominions, he being known to be an opposer of the divorce, holding that the marriage having been made ought to be kept.

The king of England not desirous of Tyndale's liberation.

Of one thing we may be very certain, that Henry had no desire to procure Tyndale's liberation; it has been already shewn that Henry had a strong personal dislike to him, as well as to his proceedings; and although his rupture with the Pope might make him look with a more favourable eye upon some of the "Gospellers," yet Tyndale had no reason to expect any kindness from the king, seeing that to express a judgment in opposition to his divorce from Catherine had become the surest way to excite his displeasure. It was on this account that Fisher, the aged Bishop of Rochester, and Tyndale's antagonist, Sir Thomas More, were beheaded in 1535. Hopes were entertained by many that his imprisonment might terminate, not by his martyrdom, but by his liberation: they made strenuous efforts to this end; and in the Prologue of Coverdale to his Bible, he also exhorts the reader to pray that this might be brought about.

In 1536, when Tyndale suffered, Henry VIII. and the Emperor were again on good terms; which may have been the reason of his being put to death, even though Henry had nothing to do with his apprehension. If Henry had chosen, he might now have interfered to save him.

During the latter years of Tyndale's life, subsequent to his having taken up his abode in the neighbourhood of Antwerp, great changes were going on in England: the authority of the Pope had been denied; many things connected with popery were abolished; and these events, humanly speaking, had led to the attainment of that which Tyndale so ardently desired, namely, the circulation of the word of God in English. We have no means of knowing whether he had heard before his death that the Scriptures of Coverdale's translation were printed. If Tyndale did know this, it must have been no small consolation to him; for all his sufferings were for the sake of the diffusion of the word of God. But whether Tyndale was or was not aware of it, it shews how graciously the Lord was favouring that work which his imprisoned servant had begun, carrying it on in His own way almost beyond the utmost expectations which Tyndale himself could have entertained. In the years 1535 and 1536 there were at least four editions of Tyndale's New Testament printed, that is, twelve editions altogether; this proves an increased demand for them, which, if known to the imprisoned translator, must have greatly encouraged him. It was proof that his labours had not been bestowed in vain.

Changes in England in the latter part of Tyndale's life.

Coverdale's translation.

Four editions of Tyndale's New Testament, 1535 and 1536.

Lewis, p. 85. Offer, p. 81. Tyndale's correspondence with the divines of Louvain.

His imprisonment appears to have been occupied with keeping up a continual correspondence with the ecclesiastical authorities at Louvain, who plyed him with interrogatories to which he was compelled to reply; his English writings being ransacked, and passages translated which could be made the groundwork of charges against him.

It was in September 1536, that the martyrdom of Tyndale took place. We know far fewer particulars of him at that time than we do concerning many of the servants of the Lord Jesus who suffered in this country; but the letters which he had written a few years previously to Frith shew on what his mind was stayed in the anticipation of such an event: the topics which he had suggested to his friend were, doubtless, those by which his own soul was now upheld. These letters may be taken as supplying to us the thoughts, feelings, and confidence of Tyndale himself under similar circumstances: he was willing to give his body to suffer for Christ's sake, knowing that at his coming it would be made like unto His glorious body, he was willing to suffer in hope of the promised resurrection. He was first strangled and then burned, meeting in this respect with more mercy in the manner of his death than he would have met with in England. His dying prayer was, "Lord, ope the king of England's eyes!"

Tyndale's martyrdom, Sept. 1536.

His dying prayer.

Thus died, about the sixtieth year of his age, this faithful servant of God and martyr of Christ, whose labours for his Lord had led him into paths of suffering here; but who will, according to the promise on which his soul was stayed, appear with Christ at His coming, bearing His image. Vainly did his enemies shew their hatred in burning his lifeless body, it was but a testimony that his service to Christ had drawn forth the enmity of Satan; and though his scattered ashes had no place of burial, yet He who has promised to change our vile body to make it like unto His own glorious body—can as well guard unto that day the scattered ashes of his martyred servants, as he can the mouldering bodies of those who lie in their graves until He shall come, when they "shall have their perfect consummation and bliss in His eternal and everlasting kingdom."

The life of Tyndale is in all its circumstances the history of the introduction of the Scriptures in English into England; without knowing who and what Tyndale was, we never could understand by what instrumentality God was pleased to work in bringing this blessing to pass. A poor exiled monk, wandering from country to country, was thus made by God the means of incalculable blessing to his ignorant countrymen: in vain did the authority of all England, civil and ecclesiastical and moral, strive to crush him; he went on stedfast in his purpose, not in any strength of his own, but in the power of the Spirit of God. And when, at length, his weary wanderings ended in imprisonment he had this joy, that he had been labouring in the service of a master who both could and would reward his every toil. Death was not that which could affright him, for he knew what the apostle meant when he said, "We had the sentence of death in ourselves, that we should not trust in ourselves but in God that raiseth the dead." He knew that when his enemies had done their worst, they could but take his mortal life, and then his spirit would Tyndale's life the introduction of the English Scriptures in print.

2 Cor. i. 9.

Phil. i. 23. "depart and be with Christ which is far better," while the resurrection was the joyful point of expectation, which placed him both in body and in spirit beyond the power of death. The account of the labours of Tyndale closes the period in which the Scriptures in English were a proscribed book: from this time and onward more or less liberty was given for their possession and use:—all this must be looked on as a blessed result which the Lord was pleased to vouchsafe to the service and the prayers of Tyndale. Martyrs have suffered in various causes; Christian martyrs have laid down their lives for very many precious portions of God's truth, but William Tyndale was emphatically A MARTYR FOR THE WORD OF GOD.

Besides the translations from the original tongues of the New Testament and part of the Old published by Tyndale, there were likewise versions of a few books of the Old Testament executed from the Latin, and printed between the years 1530 and 1534.

The Argentine English Psalter, 1529-30.
From the "text of Felme."

The first of these translations is the Argentine English Psalter (to which allusion has already been made), the translator of which calls himself by the designation of Johan Aleph;* this Psalter was published in 1530, and it bears the following title:—"The Psalter of David in English, purely and faithfully translated after the text of Felme, every Psalm havynge his argument before declarynge brefly thentente and substance of the wholl Psalme."

This translation has been already mentioned as having been prohibited soon after its publication: little, however, seems to be known respecting its reception and circulation in England. The date at the end is January 16, 1530; it was thus the first whole book of the Old Testament which was printed in English, the completion of Tyndale's Genesis having been one day subsequent.

Joye's translation of Isaiah, 1531.
Joye accused of heresy, 1527.
He escapes.

In the year 1531, there was published a translation of the prophet Isaiah by George Joye, the same who has already been mentioned as having superintended an edition of Tyndale's New Testament with strange alterations. Joye had been a fellow of Peterhouse College at Cambridge, but being accused of heresy in 1527, and finding himself in danger he escaped to the continent—the common place of refuge for those who fled from persecution in England. Joye's learning does not seem to have been great; he indirectly shews that he knew little or nothing of Greek or Hebrew, for he made his translations of portions of the Old Testament from the Latin; and as to the New he himself says, that in correcting the press of the edition of Tyndale's Testament which he altered—"where I founde a worde falsely printed I mended it; and when I came to some derke sentences that no reason coude be gathered of them, whether it was by the ignorance of the first translatour or of the prynter, I had the lutyne text by me, and made it playne: and where any sentence was imperfite or clene left oute, I restored it agene, and gave many wordis their pure and native signification in their places which they had not before." It can scarcely be imagined that Joye would have taken the Latin text as his standard, if it were not that he was ignorant of the Greek.

His translations made from the Latin.

Shortly after this George Joye appears to have contemplated the publication of the whole Bible in English. This is to be gathered from what Tyndale says in another of his letters to Frith, written towards the middle of 1533.

Joye contemplates the publication of an English Bible.

In May, 1534, Joye published an English translation of the prophet Jeremiah; "The song of Moses is added in the ende to magnifie our Lorde for the fall of Pharao, the Bisshop of Rome." The fall of the bishop of Rome here spoken of in this title meant, I suppose, the extinction of his supremacy in England by the authority of Henry and his parliament; however, the application of Exod. xv. to this event is using Scripture without much regard to analogy.

Joye's translation of the Psalms, Aug. 1534.

A translation of the book of Psalms was published by Joye in the month of August in the same year, 1534; this was in the title professed to be "diligently and faithfully translated;" the Latin text which he used is stated by Lewis to be that of Friar Felix;—a revised edition, I suppose, of one of the five Latin Psalters then commonly received and used in the Church services.† Joye's English Psalter was published in the same month that his unwarrantable edition of Tyndale's Testament was completed.

* And yet it is possible that this was the real name of a London not many years subsequent to this period, and this translator; a Sir John Aleph was one of the sheriffs of | may have been edited by one of the same family.

† See Stephens's Psalterium Quincuplex.

PART III.

THE LATTER PORTION OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII.

I.

MYLES COVERDALE PREVIOUS TO HIS TRANSLATING THE BIBLE.—PROCEEDINGS IN ENGLAND RELATIVE TO THE SCRIPTURES.

THE history of the translation and publication of the New Testament and of a portion of the Old by William Tyndale has been that of a kind of struggle between light and darkness; authority of every kind being used to repress the knowledge of the word of God. But during the imprisonment of Tyndale, times and circumstances were strangely changing, and thus, although it was not even tacitly permitted that his translation should be possessed or used, yet that of another was actually completed, and about to be circulated by the king's permission. Thus before Tyndale had laid down his life for the sake of Christ, the desire of his heart was on the point of being granted, though it is probable without his knowing it. The Scriptures in English were soon about to be placed in the hands of every one. How earnestly Tyndale had desired this is manifested by his own words,—“If it wolde stande withe the kinge most gracious plaisir to graunte only a bare text of the Scripture to be put forth emonge his people . . . be it of the translation of what person soever shall please his magestie, I shall . . . most humbly submytt myselte at the fete of his roiall magestie, offerynge my bodye to suffer what payne or tortures, ye what dethe his grace will, so that this be obteyned.” If such were Tyndale's expressions when at liberty, what may we not judge were his feelings when he was a prisoner for the word of God? I doubt not that, during his confinement, his PRAYERS were earnest in this matter to Him who hath all hearts under his control, even, as we know, that he prayed for this at the time of his execution, and that the unlooked for permission that the Scriptures should be freely circulated in English, was, in part, the answer of the Lord to the petition of His servant.

Change of circumstances in England during Tyndale's imprisonment.

The desire of his heart.

His prayers.

The translator, whose labours were thus permitted to be possessed and read, was MYLES COVERDALE, the first who translated the whole Bible into English from the original languages. The history of Coverdale is, as we shall find, intimately connected with translations of the Scriptures into English for a space of nearly thirty years.

Myles Coverdale.

The period passed at Hamburg by Coverdale, in company with Tyndale, his predecessor in biblical translation, has been already noticed. This is an interesting point in his history; it is one in fact which seems to have had a continued influence upon his future course. But before speaking of the labours of Coverdale, in connection with the translation of the Scriptures, it will be well to notice the few facts that are known of his previous life and conduct, and the circumstances which made him an exile for the faith of Christ his Lord.

Coverdale at Hamburg with Tyndale.

Myles Coverdale * was born in the year 1488 about eleven years after the birth of Tyndale. He was

Coverdale's

* In many of the circumstances relative to Myles Coverdale, the “Memorials of Coverdale,” Svo. 1838, have furnished much with regard to authorities and investigated facts, for which otherwise it would have been necessary to search: and my labour in comparing authorities has thus been much lessened. It is true that some facts have been ascertained which the author of the “Memorials” has not noticed, but I owe much to his work. Inferences I have of course drawn for myself, for which the author of the “Memorials” must not be supposed to be responsible. He has my hearty thanks for the aid afforded by his careful researches.

birth, 1488, in Yorkshire.

Brought up at Cambridge, Mem. Cov. p. 3.

Becomes a monk.

Coverdale receives priest's orders. Tanner.

He becomes a diligent student of Scripture.

His letter to Cromwell. Mem. Cov. p. 193. Chap. Ho. West. Bund. C.

Soliciting books.

Dr. Barnes the prior of the Augustines. Fox ii. p. 433.

He encourages learning at Cambridge.

The Gospel preached at Cambridge.

Barnes converted.

Tyndale at Cambridge.

probably a native of the district of Coverdale in Yorkshire, from which it is most likely that he received his name: Coverdale is more likely to have been a personal than a family surname. He was brought up at Cambridge in the Augustine monastery, of which he afterwards became a monk. I have already, in speaking of Tyndale's visit to Cambridge, adverted to the state of that University during the greater part of the first quarter of the sixteenth century.

It was in the days in which Cambridge was yet enwrapped in ignorance, both spiritual and mental, that Coverdale studied there: and it was when some beginnings were made in the acquisition of knowledge, that he was one of the first to take some means of obtaining more learning than he had obtained from his hitherto limited education.

He received priest's orders at Norwich, from John, bishop of Chalcedon. This may have been some years before the time at which he gave himself diligently to the study of the Scriptures; and it is almost the only definite fact relating to the early part of the life of Coverdale, except his becoming a monk, of which we have any particular account.*

At some period between this and the open avowal of the doctrines of the Reformation made by Barnes and others at Cambridge, we find Coverdale diligently addicting himself to the study of the Scriptures; this is manifested by an interesting letter addressed to Thomas Cromwell, afterwards Earl of Essex, who seems, from what Coverdale says, to have made him some promise, or held out to him some hope of assistance in obtaining books for his studies. He says,—"I am the booldyr of your goodnesse in thys my rude style, yf yt lyke your favour, to revocate to your memory the godly communication which, your Mastyr-schype had with me, your oratour, in Mastyr Moorys howse, upon Easter Eve," . . . . He then asks Cromwell's help, informing him, "Now I begyne to taste of Holy Schryptures; now (honour be to God) I am sett to the most swete smell of holy lettyres, with the godly savour of holy and awneyent Doctoures, unto whose knowlege I can not attayne, without dyversyte of bookys, as is not unknowe to your most excellent wysdome. Nothing in the world I desyre, but bookys, as concernyng my lernyng; they onse had, I do not dowte, but Almyghty God schall perfourme that in me, whych He, of Hys most plentyfull favour and grace, hath begone." This letter is subscribed, "Your chyld and beedman in Jesu Chryst, Frere Myles Cav'dale."†

The prior of the Augustines, the house to which Coverdale belonged, was Dr. Robert Barnes, who had studied at Louvain, and whose attainments were far greater than those of most others at Cambridge. It was probably through Barnes, that Coverdale began, as he says, to taste of Holy Scripture. It does not seem at all certain what the period was at which Barnes commenced his labours for the encouragement of learning at Cambridge: but it could hardly have been previous to the year 1517, and perhaps even later by a few years. About the time of this revival of learning at Cambridge, the Gospel began to be preached there by Thomas Bilney, who afterwards was burned at Norwich. Among others who were converted by this means was Barnes himself, who, though he had been diligent in studying the word of God, and in instructing others, as well as in preaching against hypocrisy of every kind, had hitherto never fully known what the Gospel of the grace of God meant.

The conversion of Barnes was an event of some importance in its results, as connected with the reformation. He stood at this time unrivalled in literary eminence at Cambridge, and yet had to learn the lesson so humbling to the pride of man, that "no flesh shall glory" in the presence of God. The energy and influence of Barnes received a direction which was felt by others; and thus his instructions became important auxiliaries of the efforts of those who were already labouring in setting forth from Scripture the Gospel of the grace of God. At a later period we find Barnes amongst those who laboured in other places, and who also aided in the distribution of the Scriptures.

About the same time, William Tyndale, being at Cambridge, was the means of the conversion of Johan Frith, afterwards his friend and fellow-labourer. About the same period, or perhaps earlier, likewise

* The author of the "Memorials of Coverdale" assigns the date of this circumstance to the year 1514. In his note he cites Tanner as his authority, saying, "He gives the date MDXCIV. but the C is evidently an error of the printer." That there is a mistake in the passage is evident, but whether the "C" ought to be wholly expunged, as the author of "Memorials of Coverdale" has done, or whether it ought to be changed into an "X," it would be difficult to determine; nor do I see at all whether it is the more probable to suppose that Coverdale became a priest in 1514 or in 1524.

† It is, perhaps, impossible to assign a date to this letter:

the author of "Memorials of Coverdale" thinks that it was written before the year 1514. This, I believe, is much too early; for it would make Coverdale exceedingly in advance of his fellows at Cambridge in having a "taste of Holy Schryptures." It was after 1516 (when the New Testament of Erasmus was first published) that the mind of Bilney was enlightened; and it was not till some time after this that Barnes was converted to Christ by Bilney. Whether Coverdale had a taste or desire for the truth of God at any previous period may be questioned.

GEORGE STAFFORD (or Stavert) of Pembroke Hall, first gave lectures in divinity at Cambridge; this appears to have been one of the means through which the light of God's truth became known there.

It is interesting in the midst of all that was going on at Cambridge, to find that the mind of Coverdale especially rested upon the study of Holy Scripture. It seems as though even then God had been fitting him for that work which in subsequent years he was to accomplish—the completion of the first English translation of the Scriptures from the original languages.

The preaching of the Gospel had continued some time both at Cambridge and in the neighbouring counties, but without any direct attack being made upon the authority or the doctrines of Rome. The Gospel was the means in England, as well as in other countries, of bringing to some souls the knowledge of peace with God; and this often went on for a considerable time without causing any decided collision with the ecclesiastical powers: but those who see what the finished work of Christ means, learn at length how it is denied by the doctrines of Rome; and thus, not only truth is held, but error is decidedly opposed and renounced. On the other hand, although the Romish authorities may not at first shew their displeasure, so long as they are not directly opposed, yet they soon feel the contradiction which exists between the doctrine of the free grace of God and the whole of the system of Rome. It was thus in England: Bilney and his companion Arthur at length attracted the attention of Cardinal Wolsey, and were brought into trouble in the year 1527. This was the signal for others, either to shrink back from the open profession of the Gospel, or to go forward at all hazards. Barnes and others at Cambridge chose the latter alternative. On the Sunday before Christmas-day, in the year 1527,* Dr. Barnes preached at St. Edward's Church, belonging to Trinity Hall: he took for his subject the Epistle for the day (the third Sunday in Advent), Phil. iv. 4—7, and postilled† it so as to form a resolute attack upon the Romish authorities, making Cardinal Wolsey the direct object of part of his assault; in this he may, perhaps have gone whither his zeal, rather than the spirit of a sound mind, led him. Barnes's sermon excited, as it might be expected, considerable attention; "he was immediately accused of heresy by two fellows of the King's Hall." From the subsequent examination of Barnes before Cardinal Wolsey, we learn how he had treated a part of his subject; it was probably from the words, "Let your moderation be known unto all men, the Lord is at hand,"—that he spoke of the grandeur of churchmen as forming a contrast to that which ought to characterise the disciples of Christ. The giving of alms, according to the command of the Lord, was set in contrast with all this worldly glory, and one point urged was, how much better it would be for all the superfluity of worldly glory to be sold, in order that the poor might be aided. It is no wonder that a discourse like this should have excited considerable attention, as well as the resolute opposition of those who upheld the pomp and authority of Rome's priests.

The proceedings at Cambridge lasted for some weeks, from Christmas, 1527, until "within six days of Shrovetide; in the following year;" so that the upholders of Barnes must have almost wondered at the non-interference of the ecclesiastical authorities. They were not, however, unmindful of these proceedings,

* There can, I think, be no doubt that these occurrences at Cambridge took place almost immediately after the lamentable abjuration of Bilney (Dec. 7, 1527). The author of "Memorials of Coverdale," places it earlier: he says, "Fox does not mention the date of this circumstance, but he intimates, in his History of Wolsey, that it was about the year 1526." At first sight it would seem from the manner in which the circumstances are stated by Fox (ii. p. 206), that the submission of Bilney had been subsequent to that of Barnes: but there are many reasons for holding a contrary opinion; for instance, Bayfield was charged amongst other things, with having (Sep. 13, 1527) spoken well of Bilney and Arthur, then imprisoned by Cardinal Wolsey (Fox, ii. 269), and yet, after Bayfield had been imprisoned, Barnes was still at liberty, and exerting himself to procure his liberation: this alone is decisive as to the order of the events. But farther, although Fox does intimate loosely that it was about 1526 that Barnes was troubled, yet he mentions synchronous events which prove that it must have been in February, 1528. When Fox states a date, he often does it very loosely, or else his printer has made very numerous errors, but he frequently gives notes of time which serve to correct the erroneous date. He states expressly, that it was "as the ambassadors were thus travelling to Rome to promote the cardinal to be Pope, although the Pope was not yet dead, in the mean time the cardinal played the popish persecutor here in England," &c. These words, "in the mean time," give a synchronism which makes the time of the occurrence clear. When were these intrigues for the Popedom going on at Rome? The date of his letter to Sir Gregory Cassley on the subject is February 6, 1528, and it was only a little while before, that Pope Clement had become ill, and not very long after that he recovered. This agrees exactly with the dates which Fox gives in another place; so that the end of 1527 may be confidently recorded as the period of the preaching of Barnes against the pomp of the cardinal.

† To postill or to postillate, is to take a portion of Scripture, and, after reading it through, to expound in order the topics mentioned. This was done without excluding a large exposition of some one or more parts; the term is derived from post illa; that is, after a certain portion of text, a comment or exposition introduced. Nicolaus Lyranus formed his commentary in this manner, and several, Wiclif for one, followed the same plan in their preaching.

Another mode of preaching or teaching was called "declaring;" this was going through the Scriptures which spoke of a particular subject, and giving a combined view of their testimony when seen in connection. The modern plan of taking a few words and forming a discourse upon them, stands in marked contrast to both these modes of teaching, while it altogether loses the distinctive value of each. Postillation taught the import of the text with the context, thus leading to an exact knowledge of the Scriptures; while declaring led on to a comprehensive view of the range of truth revealed by God.

George Stafford lectures on divinity.

Scripture especially the object of Coverdale's study.

Progress of the Gospel at Cambridge.

Fox ii. 434.

Bilney and Arthur arrested, 1527.

Bold stand of the "Gospelers" at Cambridge.

Barnes's sermon, 1527. Phil. iv. 4—7.

His attack on Wolsey.

Barnes accused of heresy.

Proceedings from Christmas, 1527, to Lent, 1528.

Barnes arrested publicly.

Books searched for.

Barnes taken to London. Coverdale accompanies him. Barnes adjudged a heretic. He is resolved to suffer, but is persuaded by his friends to recant.

Coverdale's zeal in preaching.

Coverdale preaches at Bumsted on the fourth Sunday in Lent, 1528. Fox, ii. 267. Thomas Topley's confession. He recants.

Coverdale opposes image worship and auricular confession. Coverdale at Hamburgh, Easter to Christmas, 1529.

Coverdale and Tyndale together at Hamburgh, Easter to December, 1529.

for on the day above-mentioned, Dr. Barnes was arrested by a sergeant-at-arms, who had come down from London; this was done "openly in the convocation house, to make all others afraid." Nor was this all, for a search was likewise made, about the same time, for prohibited books, in the rooms of about thirty suspected individuals. The search at this time was occasioned by the fact of prohibited books in Latin and English having become very numerous since the latter part of the year 1526. However, not a single prohibited book was seized; for Dr. Farman, of Queen's College, heard that this search was likely to take place, and thus had time to warn the others, to conceal or carry away those that they possessed.

Dr. Barnes was taken as a prisoner to London. Coverdale accompanied him, and lent him his aid in writing for him, and giving him what assistance he could in replying to the articles objected to him. After various examinations Barnes was adjudged a heretic, and thus the only alternative left for him was to suffer death by burning, or recant. His own resolve was to lay down his life for the testimony of the truth; but, alas! he was overpersuaded by the suggestions of some of his friends, of whom, however, it is clear that Coverdale was not one, who used the argument which so often prevails in emboldening individuals to tamper with conscience; "they persuaded him rather to abjure than to burn, because (they said) he should do more good in time to come, and divers other persuasions which were mighty in the sight of reason and foolish flesh." How many have, since Barnes, done those things which they knew to be evil before the Lord, from the desire of usefulness; as though any supposed or hoped-for future good could justify the commission of present evil, however slight.

When Barnes consented to abjure, Coverdale probably left him; if he returned to Cambridge, he could have continued there but a short time, for almost immediately we find him preaching the Gospel in Essex. He is mentioned by Bishop Bale, as having been particularly active in this labour; he says of Coverdale, that while "others dedicated themselves in part only, he gave himself wholly up to propagating the truth of the gospel." This was a course which required a heart fully resting upon the knowledge of that heavenly inheritance which through the blood of Christ belongs to those who believe; he had seen in Barnes the consequences of testimony against Romish corruption of doctrine, but still he went on steadily in his course. So long as Barnes was at Cambridge as his prior, he had been comparatively safe; and now, that he was deprived of his encouragement, and Cambridge was a peculiarly dangerous place for those who favoured the reformed doctrines, he laid aside his monk's habit, and either left or did not return to his convent, and became an itinerant preacher, having assumed the habit of a secular priest.

About four weeks after Coverdale had been in London with Dr. Barnes, he was at Bumsted (or Steeple Bumsted) in Essex, a parish of which Richard Fox, a favourer of the Reformation, was the curate. We learn this from the confession of Thomas Topley, an Augustine friar of Stoke Clare, who was induced, partly by reading certain books, partly by the instructions which he received from Coverdale and Richard Fox, to renounce both his order and his habit, and, like Coverdale, to appear simply as a secular priest. Topley was brought before Bishop Tonstall on this account, when, like others, he recanted the doctrines which he had received. We learn from his confession, that on the fourth Sunday in Lent, Coverdale had preached that images were not to be worshipped, that auricular confession to a priest was not necessary to the forgiveness of sins, and that transubstantiation was contrary to the word of God. In this last mentioned point he was probably in advance of Barnes.

The next place in which we find Coverdale is at Hamburgh, about a year subsequent to this sermon which he had preached at Bumsted. Where he had been in the interim, or how he had escaped to the Continent, are circumstances concerning which we have no information. It is, however, scarcely to be doubted, that after the information received from Topley, it was altogether unsafe for him to remain in England. The search for heretics which was then made in the diocese of London was very strict, as it was also in that of Lincoln (then much more extensive than it is at present), and Cambridge also could be no safe abode for him. He must have remained concealed if in England; and in escaping, it must have been with considerable difficulty and danger.

Fox, in his account of Tyndale, says that he, having finished the translation of the book of Deuteronomy, wished to print it at Hamburgh, and that in his voyage thither he was shipwrecked, and then "he came in another ship to Hamborough, where at his appointment Master Coverdale tarried for him, and helped him in the translating of the whole five books of Moses, from Easter till December, in the house of a worshipful widow, Mistress Margaret Van Emmerson, Anno 1529, a great sweating sickness being the same time in the town."

It is probable, from this account, that Hamburgh was the place to which Coverdale had escaped from England, and that previous to his departure from this country he had some intercourse with Tyndale, so as for them to appoint to meet one another at Hamburgh.

It is interesting to find these two laborious exiles thus brought together in a foreign land; the one having been obliged to quit England on account of his desire that the word of God should be circulated in English, the other on account of the opposition existing between the Gospel and the doctrines of Rome. It has been questioned how Tyndale became acquainted with Coverdale;* but when it is remembered that Tyndale had been for some time at Cambridge but a few years previous, that his being there was intimately connected with the introduction of the Gospel amongst those who lived there, and that Coverdale was one of those who very early upheld the truth at Cambridge, there can, I think, be but little doubt that the friendship of Tyndale for Coverdale as well as for Frith commenced at Cambridge.

With respect to what portion of the Pentateuch was translated conjointly by these two exiles, it has been doubted whether it was merely a retranslation of the book of Deuteronomy, or whether they retranslated together the whole of the five books: but whichever it be, we find Coverdale now using the "taste of Holy Schrypture" which he had received, and the Scriptural learning which he had acquired, to make known to his countrymen the word of God in their own tongue.

We find Coverdale at Hamburgh from Easter till December, 1529, subsequently at Antwerp, previous to the end of 1534, and at some time during his exile in Denmark. Where he was at the time of the betrayal and imprisonment of Tyndale we do not know; but it is not unlikely that the same habits of itinerant preaching which had previously, as well as subsequently characterized him, led him at this period to various places. As yet, he had not begun to be a Bible translator independently of Tyndale; nor did he commence his labours until after the imprisonment of his predecessor. Had Tyndale lived, he would doubtless have continued his work, so as to have translated the whole of the Scriptures. To this point he was striving: if it had been so, Coverdale would not have laid aside for a time his itinerant life, in order to become a translator; but it is probable that the work on which he was engaged with Tyndale at Hamburgh, suggested to him the first thought of carrying on the complete labour of translating the Scriptures.

Two leaves of Genesis were printed by George Joye, in February 1533: this circumstance, as we learn from Tyndale's letter to Frith, occasioned a rumour respecting a new Bible: "Out of this is sprung the noise of the new Bible; and out of this is the great seeking for English books at all printers and bookbinders, in Antwerp, and for an English priest that should print." The rumour that such a Bible was to be published seems, from Tyndale's account, to have spread pretty widely. It is clear that such a work was wished for, and this desire may have led to the report being credited. Lewis says, "On the 17th of March, 1533, the convocation of the province of Canterbury met. Among other things done by it, it was decreed, that the Holy Scriptures should be translated into the vulgar tongue, and the laity prohibited contending about articles of the faith and the Holy Scripture; but I do not find, that the former part of this decree was executed at this time." It is questioned whether this be not altogether a mistake of Lewis's; and it is doubtful whence he took the statement. It is most certain that the convocation met as he describes, but that it decreed a translation of the Scriptures to be made, seems quite unfounded. Now it is clear, from what Tyndale wrote to Frith, that in this very year, and in the same part of it, there was "a noise about a new Bible," it is probable that some account connected with this rumour was the basis of Lewis's statement,—a statement which anticipated the proceedings of the convocation which met at the close of the following year.

It will be well for a while to leave Coverdale, and the circumstances in which he was, to look at the events which had passed in England during the time of his absence on the Continent,—events which led on to the most important results, as it regards this country.

During the time in which proceedings had been carried on for the entire suppression and extinction of the Scriptures in English, a change gradually took place in the relations in which Henry VIII. stood towards the Pope. This change, although it was brought about simply for worldly and selfish ends, was at length instrumental in giving free permission in England to possess and use the Scriptures.

No monarch of Europe possessed so absolute a sway as Henry: he governed, through Wolsey, the clergy of England as entirely as he did the laity; and when Clement VIII., during his imprisonment,

* The author of "Memorials of Coverdale" suggests, that "through the means of Barnes, or his own reputation for learning and letters, he was favourably esteemed by Tyndal;"—as to Barnes having recommended Coverdale to the notice of Tyndale, it is disproved by the fact that Barnes was yet in prison, so that Coverdale must have found his way to the continent the first of the two.

The work of Tyndale and Coverdale together.

Coverdale an itinerant preacher.

George Joye publishes two leaves of Genesis.

The rumour of a new English Bible.

Meeting of the convocation. Lewis, p. 78.

A translation of the Scripture decreed.

Henry's rupture with the Pope.

The power and authority of Henry.

appointed Wolsey his vicar-general for England, Henry virtually held in his own hands an authority which none of his predecessors had wielded. He possessed even then, virtually, that ecclesiastical supremacy which he afterwards claimed formally. On the downfall of Wolsey, Henry's passions seem to have been directed against the clergy; and thus they were compelled, as an atonement for having acknowledged Wolsey's legative authority, to assent to the title of the king as being supreme head of the Church of England, so far as is permitted by the law of Christ. This, it is to be observed, was not intended as a direct renunciation of the papal authority, neither did it have that effect: other circumstances, which were in course of occurrence at the same time, led to this.

These circumstances were connected with the divorce of Henry from his first wife, Catherine of Arragon, the widow of his elder brother Arthur. The question of the lawfulness of the king's marriage was one on which the minds of Papists and Protestants were alike divided. The matter was argued (so far as it was referred to Scripture) upon the injunctions of the law of Moses, the principal question being this: Does the prohibition of Lev. xx. 21, extend universally? or, Is it limited by the directions of Deut. xxiv. respecting the marrying of a brother's widow? Some held that the directions of Deut. xxiv. were limited to the Israelites, while those in Lev. xx. were binding upon all men. Then, amongst Romanists, there was this farther question,—If the marriage be forbidden by the law of God, can the Pope's sanction render it valid? So that if it were assumed that the marriage were essentially prohibited, the question would be—Can the Pope set aside the commands of God? Both these questions were long debated, so that it was not until the divorce of Henry had been pending six years that it was concluded; and then (1533) it was done by virtue of his own absolute authority.

To shew how very divided the minds even of the friends of the Reformation were on this subject, it will suffice to state that Tyndale condemned the divorce, while Coverdale approved it. It is thus a great mistake to suppose that this was made at the time in any sense a party question by the Reformers, and that they had unanimously favoured that step which led to such remarkable and (in the end) beneficial effects in England. This step of Henry brought about fully that rupture with the Pope and the discarding of his authority, which introduced the free circulation of the Scriptures in our native tongue. Truly, it is wonderful to mark the means by which God accomplishes His own gracious purposes!

Dr. Thomas Cranmer was consecrated archbishop of Canterbury, March 30, 1533: he was nominated to the archbishopric by Henry; and the appointment was confirmed by the Pope, who sent the necessary bulls. It is probable that the Pope was not unacquainted with the character and sentiments of Cranmer; but it was not the time for him to question the appointment which Henry had made, unless indeed he wished to hasten the open rupture which was already threatening. In this appointment of Cranmer, the king found one who was fully prepared to help him through his difficulty in the affair of the divorce, as well as to confirm his marriage with Anne Boleyn, which had taken place Nov. 14, 1532. The sentence of nullity concerning Henry's previous marriage was not given by Cranmer until May 23, 1533, more than half a year after.

There were now three persons who were so connected with Henry as to have a peculiar influence over him; and all of them were in a certain measure favourable to the Reformation: so far, at least, as to uphold the publishing of the Scriptures in English: these persons were Anne, the new queen, Cranmer, and Cromwell, Henry's minister.

It is probable that it was his having some knowledge of this combination of circumstances, that induced George Joye to send to the king and queen the two leaves which he had printed of Genesis; but Henry was not yet prepared to sanction such an undertaking. However, one great hindrance was now removed; for the king had no longer any occasion to seek to stand well with the Pope. So long as he had been a suitor in the Papal Court, he had sought to do this; but his entire rupture with Rome left him wholly unshackled in that quarter.

Through the latter part of the year 1533, and the whole of 1534, the publication of the Scriptures in English seems to have been freely spoken of—especially among the clergy. This may be attributed to two causes,—1st. the desire on the part of Cranmer, Latimer, and others, that the Scriptures should be permitted in English; and 2nd. the difficulty which was found by the clergy to suppress the prohibited version of Tyndale, which could hardly be accomplished; and therefore it might be judged best to give the people an approved translation in the hope of thereby suppressing that which was forbidden. Thus when the convocation of the clergy of the province of Canterbury met in the close of 1534, there were certain resolutions agreed to unanimously; their purport being, that the archbishop of Canterbury should make instance to the king, in the name of the convocation—1. That he would please to decree and command that Henry's case of divorce. The question at issue.

Lev. xx.
Deut. xxiv.

Henry at length divorced, 1533.
Tyndale and Coverdale of opposite opinions on the question.

Cranmer consecrated archbishop of Canterbury, March 30, 1533.

The king's marriage with Anne Boleyn, Nov. 14, 1532.
Sentence of divorce from Catherine, May 23, 1533.

Henry freed from obligation to the Pope.

Desire for the Scriptures in English.

Meeting of the convocation, Dec. 19, 1534.
Certain resolutions agreed all who had any prohibited books in their possession, whether printed in England or abroad, should, within three months, deliver them up to such persons as the king might name, upon such penalties in case of non-compliance as the king might see fit to declare. 2. That the king would vouchsafe to decree that a translation of the Scriptures into English should be made by certain honest and learned men whom the king should nominate; and that the Scriptures so translated should be delivered to the people according to their learning. 3. That the king would prohibit, on certain penalties, that any laymen should contend publicly concerning the Catholic faith, or articles of faith, or the sacred Scripture, or its meaning.

to respecting the Scriptures Strype's Cran. p. 34.

These resolutions appear to be a kind of compromise; the people might have the Scriptures if they could be prevented from disputes about doctrines to be believed, and if they would hold in their possession none except a permitted translation.

These resolutions are a kind of compromise.

It may require some explanation why such matters should have been referred to the king. Now it occurred in the month preceding these resolutions of the convocation (namely, in Nov. 1534), that an act of parliament raised the claim of the king's supremacy so high, as to make him not merely the supreme ruler of all estates ecclesiastical as well as civil, but actually to put all church discipline into his hands. He was declared to have full authority to visit, order and reform all heresies, abuses, &c. which by any manner of spiritual authority or jurisdiction, may lawfully be ordered or reformed. This threw all ecclesiastical discipline completely into the hands of the king and those commissioned by him, making the convocation itself to be almost powerless. Previous to the passing of this act, there was no need for them to have petitioned the king respecting a version; for, by the constitution of Archbishop Arundel, in 1408 (to which an appeal had been made by More but about five years previously), the convocation possessed full power to authorise a translation of the Scriptures, or even a single bishop might have done this within his own diocese.

An act of parliament sets the king's supremacy very high, Nov. 1534. Collier, iv. 251.

The convocation almost powerless.

The convocation, in agreeing upon this petition to the king, seem to have so framed their requests, that nothing should be gained except in appearance, by those who favoured the Reformation. To let the people have the Scriptures, and to hinder them from knowing what the Scriptures taught, was certainly a rather ingenious device. It is probable also that, if the king were to have nominated several of the superior clergy to this task of translating the Scriptures, care would be taken by them, that the version, when complete, should not even seem to uphold the doctrines which Tyndale and Frith taught.

Nothing as yet gained save an appearance by the friends of the Reformation.

There does not appear to be any thing known respecting the manner in which Henry received this petition. This much is certain, that Cramer, Cromwell, and the queen, would by no means uphold the whole of what was solicited; and, at the same time, it is plain from the conditional promise made by the king in 1530, that he was not altogether averse to a translation of the Scriptures into English: he, however, was inclined to clog the concession much in the same way as it had been done by the convocation.

That some results followed immediately from the petition is, I think, most probable, although the connection cannot be directly traced: certain facts, however, relating to identity of time, &c. make it almost certain that the first complete English Bible translated from the original languages, is owing indirectly in some measure to the proceedings of this convocation. It is probable that the report of this petition to the king spread widely; and to those who longed for the Scriptures in English, it must have been no small encouragement thus to see even the prelates willing upon certain conditions to circulate them.

The indirect cause of Coverdale's translation.

To return to Myles Coverdale: the place of his sojourn at this period—the close of 1534—is not certainly known. He had been at Antwerp, but he had probably gone elsewhere before this time, indeed, the arrest of Tyndale in the preceding month, would in itself shew him the insecurity of that city for an English exile; and thus he would probably have then gone elsewhere, even if he had remained there with Tyndale and Rogers up to this time.

Coverdale at the close of 1534.

II.

COVERDALE'S TRANSLATION—ITS RECEPTION IN ENGLAND.

WE now come to regard Myles Coverdale as a Bible translator, a capacity in which he had been previously engaged, when he had at Hamburgh aided Tyndale in the translation of part of the Pentateuch. It is from the dedication to King Henry VIII., and from the prologue to the reader, which Coverdale prefixed to his version of the Scriptures, that we learn some particulars as to the motives which induced him to take Coverdale as a Bible translator.

Reference to Tyndale's imprisonment.

the work in hand, together with other circumstances in connection with its history. It is evident that when Coverdale speaks, in this prologue, of the adversity of those who had commenced the work of translating the Scriptures, he refers to the imprisonment of Tyndale, his former fellow-labourer. Up to the very time of his apprehension, Tyndale had laboured in this field—the last work in which he had been engaged having been the careful revision of his version of the New Testament.

Date of Coverdale's commencement of his version, close of 1534. The cost undertaken by others. Mem. Cov., p. 42. Barnes again in London.

From this we learn when it was that Coverdale first undertook this work of translation, namely, at some period subsequent to the imprisonment of Tyndale, in Nov. 1534.

In his dedication, he says that "as the holy goost moued other men to do the cost herof, so was I boldened in god to labour in the same." The author of "Memorials of Coverdale" conjectures that it was Cromwell who, principally, if not wholly, bore the cost of the printing. This is not impossible; especially when we remember that Cromwell had, some years previously, patronised Coverdale, when he "began to taste of Holy Schrypture." Dr. Robert Barnes was also again in London, the patronage of Queen Anne making him safe for the time; and it is very likely that he was not at this period unmindful of his friend, who had at his own peril given him his support; he may indeed have urged Cromwell to move in the matter. It will be observed how remarkably the date which Coverdale incidentally states as that at which he commenced his translation, agrees with that of the address of the convocation to Henry VIII., respecting a new translation of the Scriptures. Tyndale was imprisoned in Nov. 1534; the address of the Convocation was in the very next month. Coverdale gives a further proof of the date of his beginning to translate: he speaks of his having been aided by five sundry interpreters in the Dutch [German] and Latin languages. Now what can these five have been? In the Old Testament he may have had, 1st. the Vulgate; 2nd. Paguinus' version; 3rd. Luther's German translation; 4th. Leo Juda's German-Swiss version; but, as for a fifth, until the year 1534, there was no other, unless, indeed, versions taken from the Vulgate were meant: but this could not be the case, because he never could have considered the Vulgate, and a version made from it, as distinct aids.* Thus, at no period previous to the year 1534, could he have these aids.

Proofs of the date when Coverdale commenced his version.

The translations by which he was aided.

In this year, the first volume of Sebastian Munster's folio Hebrew Bible was published with a Latin version, and this must have been Coverdale's fifth subsidiary translation. In the prologue to the edition of Coverdale's version which was printed in 1550, he speaks expressly of the time when he was first moved to take this work in hand: he says—"For the which cause (accordinge as I was desyred Anno 1534.) I toke the more upon me, to set forth this speycall translation, not as a checker, not as a reprinter or despiser of other mens translations," &c.: so thus we have the most conclusive evidence as to the year in which the work was begun, and also what part of the year in which it must have been.

Coverdale's prologue, 1539.

Motives which led to the making of this version.

The resolutions of the convocation neglected.

This version could not have been undertaken in direct compliance with the resolution of the convocation. Coverdale clearly was not appointed to the work by the king: had he been so, some intimation would certainly have been found in his dedication; and besides no steps were taken by Henry to comply with the other things requested in the resolutions. The truth was this, I should judge;—it was seen by some of those about the king that such a translation, if completed, would not be disagreeable to him; and thus they proposed it to Coverdale, offering pecuniary aid for the printing. Coverdale was unwilling to undertake it, questioning his own competency, and not wishing even to seem to interfere with the labours of Tyndale; but from the fact of the latter being imprisoned, all hopes being at an end that he would at present complete the version which he had commenced, Coverdale was willing to do his best to supply the immediate need by making a new version, which might serve as a temporary expedient, until Tyndale himself, if liberated, or else others more skilful than himself, might complete a translation of the Scriptures. Such appear to me to have been the motives and encouragements of Coverdale in commencing his work.

Coverdale's opinion of the benefit of various translations, 1539. Prologue.

Coverdale thought that many and diverse translations were rather helpful than otherwise; because thus a reader who could not consult the original texts might have a better opportunity of obtaining a knowledge of the true meaning of the Scriptures; and thus his "speycall translacyon" would at least be helpful to this end. He says, "Now, where as the most famous interpreters of all ge soundrye iudgments of the texte (so farre as it is done by y<sup>e</sup> sprete of knowlege in the holy goost) me thyinke noman shulde be offened there at, for they referre theyr doinges in mekenes to the sprete of trueth in the congregacyon of God: & sure I am, that there commeth more knowlege and vnderstandinge of the scripture by theyr soundrye translacyons, than by all the

* Whitaker, in his "Enquiry into the Interpretation of the Hebrew Scriptures," supposes that Coverdale did this; had he, however, paid a more deliberate attention to the statements made by Coverdale himself, and the whole bearing of the connected facts and dates, he would, I think, have come to a different conclusion. Whitaker overlooks the possibility of Coverdale having used Sebastian Munster's Latin translation, and he seems to have forgotten Leo Juda's Swiss version.

gloses of our sophistical doctours." It is probable that most who have considered the subject would agree with the judgment which Coverdale thus expressed.

The period of the completion of Coverdale's version is marked by a subscription at the close of the volume, "Printed in the year of our LORDE, MDXXXV., and fynished the fourth daye of October." I have already shewn that the translation could not have been commenced before November, 1534, and probably it was not until the following month; thus, the longest time that Coverdale could have had for the completion both of the translation and of the printing, was eleven months; and if his work did in any way result from the resolutions of the convocation (Dec. 19, 1534), then the whole was executed in the short space of nine months and a half. The time when he began was certainly not previous to Nov. 1534, the date of the completion is found in the book itself; so that, however difficult it is to believe that it was actually accomplished in the limited time stated, the fact cannot be reasonably called in question.

Coverdale's intense earnestness in giving the Scriptures to the people in English, as well as his unwearied diligence and assiduity are thus fully proved; without these, together with the blessing of God upon his labours, Coverdale's Bible would never have been the translation that it is: when the circumstances are taken into consideration, it certainly is one of the most astonishing performances ever executed.*

It might be thought that as time pressed so much when this translation was commenced, the simple course for Coverdale would have been to have taken Tyndale's Pentateuch and New Testament, just as they were, to have procured likewise those books (Joshua to Chronicles inclusive) which he had translated, but which remained unpublished, and then to have merely supplied the books which still remained untranslated: this would at least have diminished his labour not a little. Three reasons appear, however, to have hindered him from taking such a course:—1st. By so doing, he might in some measure interfere with Tyndale's own labours, and seem as though he intended to supplant him;—2nd. It was the firm conviction of Coverdale that many translations in a vernacular tongue are a help to the understanding of Scripture;—and 3rd. He had to bear in mind that Tyndale's translations, both in the Old Testament and in the New, were already prohibited in England; so that he would have made his book condemned before it was published, had he adopted the versions of Tyndale as a commencement. I have already adverted to the probability that there is of Coverdale's having good reason to believe, even when he commenced his version, that such a translation would not be altogether unacceptable to the king. Now it is clear, that the version itself should be such as the king would not be displeased with, which would most probably have been the case, if the offensive translation of Tyndale had been presented as a considerable part of this new Bible.

The Old Testament and the Apocrypha are thus a new translation; the Pentateuch bearing in some parts a strong resemblance to Tyndale's, but still it is a new translation. The New Testament appears to be in part a revision of Tyndale's, in which Coverdale took much care, and availed himself both of the original edition (1526) and the amended one (1534). He sometimes accords with one of these, sometimes with the other, but not infrequently makes an entirely new version of a whole passage. If it be asked, why in the New Testament Tyndale was followed so much more than in the Old, I think it might thus be accounted for:—it is evident from the dedication to the king, that Coverdale knew before it was completed that it would probably receive the royal permission for its circulation, and that there had been some communication about the matter between Coverdale or some of his friends in England (such as Cromwell or Barnes) with the king. He may have thus learned, that even if a considerable part of the New Testament did follow Tyndale's version, it would not be made a ground of objection, provided it were revised throughout. Such a consideration as this, may account for the circumstance in question. It is not, however, to be understood, that Coverdale, even in the New Testament, is a servile follower of his predecessor,—far from it, but he uses Tyndale as his basis, just as King James's translators took the Elizabethan Version, or Bishop's Bible, for theirs.

The dedication to King Henry VIII. which is prefixed to Coverdale's Bible, shews that it was at length a privilege permitted by Henry to his subjects to have the Scriptures in their own language. This change in Henry's conduct is stated by Coverdale in express terms. He commences his dedication with a comparison of the high priest Caiaphas and the Pope, in that each had declared that of which he himself knew not the true meaning; Caiaphas, in prophesying that one man should die for the people; the Pope, in dale spent many years in labours connected with the translation of the Scriptures, yet the period occupied by the work under notice was really less than one year. What deserves to be known, is the shortness of the period in which his intense assiduity completed his labour.

* In the year 1837, the parishioners of St. Magnus the Martyr, erected a monument to the memory of Coverdale. In the inscription, it is stated that he "spent many years in preparing a translation of the Scriptures. This statement, however, is not quite correct; for though it is true that Cover-

The completion of the work, Oct. 4, 1535.

Time occupied by the translation.

Coverdale's extraordinary zeal and diligence.

Reasons why he did not simply adopt the versions already executed by Tyndale.

Coverdale's Old Test. and Apoc. a new translation.

The New Test. partly a revision of Tyndale's.

Coverdale's dedication.

Coverdale's comparison of Caiaphas and the Pope.

The title, "Defender of the Faith," given to Henry.

conferring the title of "Defender of the Faith" upon Henry. After speaking of Caiaphas, he says, "Even after the same maner y<sup>e</sup> blynde bysshoppe of Rome (that blynde Baalam I say), not vnderstandynge what he dyd, gane vnto your grace this tittle: defendour of the fayth, onely by cause your hyghnes suffred your bysshoppes to burne God's worde the rote of fayth, and to persecute the louers and mynisters of y<sup>e</sup> same, where in very dede the blynde bysshoppe (though he knewe not what he dyd) prophecied, that by the ryghteous admystracyon and continuall diligence of your grace, the fayth shulde so be defended, that God's worde the mother of Fayth with the frutes therof, shulde have his fre course thorouce out all Christendome, but specially in your realme." This is a very express testimony. Coverdale recites, with strong reprehension, the king's former conduct in keeping the Scriptures from the people, and punishing those who circulated them; and speaks in commendation of the altered course which the king had now commenced.

Coverdale's estimate of the king's conduct.

To the same purport, he says, a little farther on:—"And the truth of Baalam's prophecie is, y<sup>t</sup> your grace in very dede shulde defende the Fayth, yee euen the true fayth of Christ, no dremes, no fables, no heresie, no papistical inuencions, but the vncorrupte fayth of God's most holy worde, which to set forth (preysed be the goodness of God, and increase youre gracyous purpose) your hyghnes with youre most honorable councill, applyeth all his studye and endeuoure." We learn, I think, from this dedication, the circumstances in which Coverdale completed his version, just as we learn from the prologue the events which led to its commencement. At first he had been urged to undertake the work, the king being apparently not directly hostile; but before it was completed the king was become actually friendly.

Circumstances in which Coverdale's version was completed.

Coverdale does not put the king's authority as being paramount in spiritual things; God, and His word, he speaks of as being superior; and, by his plain statements respecting Henry's previous conduct, he shews that he would not flatter the king, in order to procure his sanction for the circulation of his version of the Bible.

Josiah used as a comparison.

Farther on, in the dedication, he speaks of Josiah, and his pious care in restoring the law of God; and then he compares the altered conduct of Henry with the reformations of that Jewish king. This may now seem a strange comparison; but Coverdale could then only judge of the king's actions, and from them he deemed that the grace of God was truly in the heart of Henry; and that this had led him to consent that the Scriptures might be circulated in English.

Intention of Henry to suffer the Scriptures in English.

Coverdale rests upon this intention of Henry, to let his subjects have the Scriptures in English, as being a known fact; and thus, towards the conclusion of the dedication, he commits his translation to the king's hands, "to correcte it, to amende it, to improve it, yee & cleane to reiecte it, yf youre godly wysdome shall thynke necessary. And as I do with all humbles submitte myne vnderstandynge and my poore translacyon vnto the spirite of trueth in your grace [it has been before shown that Coverdale clearly regarded that Henry had now been converted to Christ, and thus he speaks on this supposition]; so I make this protestacyon (hauyng God to recorde in my conscience) that I haue nether wrested nor altered so much as one worde for the mayntenance of any maner of secte: but haue with a cleare conscience purely & faythfully translated this out of fyue sundry interpreters [it has before been shown what these five were, and how they were used], hauyng onely the manyfest trueth of the scripture before myne eyes."

Coverdale's faithful purpose in translating.

Coverdale's willingness that his translation should be suppressed if the king saw fit, and that some other might supply its place, resembles the expression of Tyndale's desire: "If it wolde stande with the kinge most gracious plaiser to graunte only a bare text of the Scripture to be put forthe emonge his people . . . . be it if the translation of what person soever shall please his magestie," &c. Both of these translators sought to meet the need of their countrymen; and so long as they might freely have the Scriptures, they were satisfied, their object being very different from that of those who sought to establish their own credit as translators. Tyndale and Coverdale both sought the glory that cometh of God.

Coverdale's disinterestedness resembles that of Tyndale.

The notices which this prologue and dedication afford us, are of considerable interest: they let us know how some of the links of the chain of English Scripture translations were wrought.

Zurich, Frankfort, and Cologne as mentioned as probable places for the printing of this Bible. Mem. of Tyndale, p. 77, sec. note.

It would appear from the difference of the type, &c., in which this Bible itself was printed, from that of the introductory pieces, as though these latter had been printed in England, and then prefixed: the book having probably been transmitted in sheets from the place in which it was printed: where this may have been is much disputed. The places to which it has been attributed are Zurich, Frankfort, and Cologne. The first of these was supposed by Mr. Wanley, from the resemblance of the type to that used by Christopher Forchover. Frankfort has been named from the wood cuts resembling some used there, while Mr. Offor ascribes it to Cologne.* Other cities have also been named as the place at which this was printed. If this could be ascertained, it would tell us where Coverdale himself was from the end of 1534 until the latter part of 1535.

* There is this difficulty, however:—Would the printing of heretical books have been allowed there at this time?

This Bible, after it had been printed and sent to England, remained for several months before it was circulated. This has occasioned two alterations to be made in some of the copies—the one is a change in the introductory part of the dedication, which had at first mentioned “Queen Anne” as being the consort of Henry; this was changed into “Queen Jane,” subsequent, of course, to May 20, 1536, the day of Henry’s marriage with Jane Seymour:—the other alteration was the reprinting of the title-page, with the date of 1535 changed into 1536.

The cause of the delay respecting this Bible was stated by Coverdale himself, in a sermon preached at Paul’s Cross. This sermon in thus alluded to by Fulke, in his reply to Gregory Martin.

This Bible not circulated for many months. Anne Boleyn beheaded, May 19. Jane Seymour mar. to Henry, May 20, 1536.

“Now if some of our Translators or they all have not attained to the best and most proper expressing of the nature of all words and phrases of the Hebrew and Greeke tongues in English, it is not the matter that I will stand to defend, nor the translators them selues, I am well assured, if they were all liuing. But that the Scriptures are not impudently falsified, or wilfully corrupted by them, to maintaine any hereticall opinion, as the aduersary chargeth us, that is the thing that I will (by God’s grace) stand to defend against all the Papists in the world. . . . I myself, and so did many hundreds beside mee, heare that reuerend Father M. Doctor Couerdale of holy and learned memorie in a sermon at Pauls Crosse, vpon occasion of some slanderous reports that then were raised against his translation, declare his faithfull purpose in doing the same, which, after it was finished, and presented to king Henry the eight, of famous memorie, and by him committed to diuers Bishops of that time, to peruse, of which (as I remember) Steuen Gardiner was one: after they had kept it long in their hands, and the king was diuers times sued vnto for the publication thereof, at the last being called for by the King himselfe, they redelivered the booke: and being demanded by the King, what was their iudgement of the translation, they answered that there were many faults therein. Well (said the King) but are there any heresies maintained thereby? They answered, that there were no heresies that they could finde maintained thereby. If there be no heresies (said the King) then in God’s name let it goe abroad among our people. According to this iudgement of the King and of the Bishops, M. Couerdale defended his translation, confessing that he did now himselfe espie some faults, which if he might reuiue it once ouer againe, as hee had done twice before, hee doubted not but to amend: but for anie heresie, hee was sure there was none maintained by his translation. After the same manner I doubt not (by God’s helpe) so to defend all our translations. . . . that not one shall be found of purpose to maintain any hereticall opinion, and not many errors committed through negligence ignorance or humane frailtie.

Fulke does not say when it was that Coverdale preached the sermon in question at Paul’s Cross; but there can be very little doubt, I should think, that it must have been during some part of the reign of Edward VI., after his translation had been reprinted, in 1550.

It has been supposed that Queen Anne Boleyn’s influence led to Henry’s permission that the Bible should be read in English. This is probable, and seems confirmed by what that Queen herself wrote—a MS. manual of Devotions (quoted by Lewis), in which God is thanked for having put it into the king’s heart to let his people have the Scriptures; but although this permission appears to have been obtained through Anne’s request, or, at all events, in her life, yet the Bible clearly was not circulated in English until after she was beheaded (May 19, 1536). The reason of this appears to be that the bishops to whom Coverdale’s translation was delivered, had not returned it to the king.

Anne Boleyn’s influence.

Her prayer. Lewis, p. 97.

The English Bible not circulated in her life.

A few days after the execution of Queen Anne, June 9, the convocation agreed upon a form of petition to be presented to the king, that he would graciously indulge unto his subjects of the laity the reading of the Bible in the English tongue, and that a new translation might be made for that end and purpose. This petition proves that Coverdale’s translation was not yet circulated, and that it did not altogether please those to whom it was given in order to be overlooked. Perhaps this objection may have partly arisen from its not having been executed in precise accordance with their petition, in Dec. 1534, when they requested that the king would name certain honest and learned men for the purpose of making a translation.

June 9, 1536. The convocation petition for a new translation. Heylin, quoted by Lewis, p. 102. Coverdale’s translation not yet circulated.

However, it was very clear that the king was resolved that the people should have the Scriptures in English: and we find this shewn in a copy of certain injunctions issued by Cromwell, in the year 1536, as they stand in Fox. The seventh of these runs thus:—“Item. That every parson, or proprietary of any parish church within this realm, shall on this side the feast of St. Peter, ad vincula [i. e. Aug. 1], next coming, provide a book of the whole Bible in Latin, and also in English, and lay the same in the quire for every man that will to look and read thereon, and shall discourage no man from the reading of any part of the Bible, either in Latin or English, but rather comfort, exhort and admonish every man to read the same, as the very word of God, and the spiritual food of man’s soul, whereby they may the better know their duties to God, to their Sovereign Lord the King, and their neighbour; ever gently and charitably exhorting them, that using a sober and modest behaviour in the reading and inquisition of the true sense of the same, they do in no wise stiffly or eagerly contend or strive one with another about the same, but refer the declaration of those places that be in controversie to the judgment of them that be better learned."

The king resolved that the people should have the Scriptures. Cromwell’s injunctions, 1536. Fox, ii. p. 324.

That this injunction, as it stands in Fox, must relate to Coverdale's Bible is clear, because there was then no other complete version printed; so that we see what the intention of Henry was in the matter; I say intention, because this never seems to have been carried into execution; and, in the copy of these injunctions, in Cranmer's register, this clause is altogether omitted. How is this discrepancy to be accounted for? It is owing, I suppose, to one of three causes,—either to the death and disgrace of Queen Anne during the king for a time to change his mind; or else, because the convocation requested a new translation, and Cromwell was unwilling to issue injunctions directly opposed, in this respect, to the wishes of the prelates and clergy; or else, the copies put into the hands of the bishops by the king, were not yet returned; and thus it would be contradictory to command a copy to be in every parish church by a certain day, when, in fact, no copies could be obtained for carrying into effect the injunction. It is clear, from the copy in Cranmer's register, that when these injunctions of Cromwell were actually published, the clause in question was omitted.

But although this first printed English Bible was not set in every parish church, as had been at first intended; yet, before the close of the year 1536, it had found its way into circulation, rather as a version permitted by royal authority than enjoined. The specific proof that it was, at least, at the close of the year 1536, that the English Bible, translated by Coverdale, was allowed to be circulated, is to be found in the fact of two reprints having been executed in the very next year. This would certainly not have been done, had not the copies been previously exhausted.

In proof that this version was permitted by the king, and did not merely get into circulation without any such permission, we have—1st, the statement of Coverdale, in his sermon at Paul's Cross; and, 2nd, the thanks which he gives the king, in the dedication of the Latin and English Testament, published by Nicholson, in 1538, for his kindness and favour respecting the Bible which he had dedicated to the king.

It is also to be borne in mind, that in this same year, in which Coverdale's Bible was permitted to be read without peril, there were, at least, three or four editions of Tyndale's New Testament printed: this shews that they must have had an increasing sale in this country; for in no preceding year had there been, apparently, such a number of editions. It is true, that in 1534, there were three impressions; but one of these was Joye's corrupted text, and one of the others a surreptitious edition of Tyndale's own revision of his version. Thus we may conclude, that though the prohibition was not formally abrogated which made it penal to possess Tyndale's Testament, yet that virtually this was tacitly permitted, at least, during this year.

In all this time it does not seem to be certainly known where Coverdale was: we have not been able to trace his movements from the time that he was at Antwerp with Tyndale and Rogers. However, it appears on several grounds most probable, that he had come to England before the close of the year 1536. It is beyond a question that Coverdale was in England at the early part of the year 1538; at which time he addressed certain letters from Newbury to Cromwell: these letters prove that he was not in this country as a person in danger, but standing in Cromwell's favour. He was probably in England pretty soon after the arrival of the copies; and the alteration made in the title page (the date being changed, and the words "out of Douche and Latyn" omitted) were probably done by himself. We find, from one of his letters to Cromwell (without date), that he was in some way connected with Nicholson the printer; and this, as well as other circumstances, makes it probable that the Southwark reprints were executed under his own eye, and that the editions of 1537 formed one of the recensions of his translation to which he referred in his sermon at Paul's Cross.

And now I must leave Coverdale for a while, in order to advert to the publication of all the translations of William Tyndale, which were in this same year (1537) collected and printed.

This injunction must relate to Coverdale's Bible.

The intention of Henry thus shewn.

This clause omitted in Cranmer's register.

Inquiry into the cause of this discrepancy.

Coverdale's version gets into circulation.

More editions of Tyndale's Testament.

Tyndale's Testament probably now tacitly permitted.

I ascertain where Coverdale was. Probable that he returned to England before the close of 1536.

Bibl. Suss. vol. ii.

III.

"MATTHEW'S BIBLE" PUBLISHED AND CIRCULATED.

It has already been shewn, how the intention of Tyndale to complete a translation of the Bible was frustrated, by his imprisonment and subsequent martyrdom. It is probable, that his revised New Testament was intended as a portion of such a complete version. The books of the Old Testament from the Chronicles and onwards, were (with the exception of Jonah) left untranslated at the time of his imprisonment; and even after that period, it was the hope of Coverdale, and others of his friends, that he would be set at liberty, and thus be able to complete his undertaking. He left, in manuscript, a translation of the books from Joshua to Chronicles, inclusive, which either remained with his friends at Antwerp, at the time of his arrest, or else was transmitted by him to some of them from Vilvoord. On the morning of his martyrdom, he is stated by Fox to have sent to his friend Pointz a packet of papers: it is not improbable that it contained part of this version. But however obtained, the translation was, after his death, in the hands of some of his friends; and now that the circulation of the Scriptures in English was tolerated, they were not long before all that had been executed by Tyndale came forth in print.

In 1537, the year of the two reprints in England of Coverdale's Bible, the translations of Tyndale were published in a collected form, the portion of the Scriptures and the Apocryphal books which had not been translated by Tyndale being supplied out of the version of Coverdale. This Bible bears the name of MATTHEW'S BIBLE, from the name of Thomas Matthew being given on the title page and at the end of the dedication, as though he had been the translator or editor, or else publisher.

It appears to have been commonly assumed, that Thomas Matthew was a name wholly fictitious, and that no such person was concerned in any way in connection with the publication of the Bible. It may be so; but it has, I think, been too hastily taken for granted. It is certain that there was at this time a person named Thomas Matthew, of Colchester, one of those who were convented on March 2, 1527, before Bishop Tonstall, on charges of heresy. This, at least, shews that there was one of the name amongst the favourers of the Reformation; and I judge it to be far more probable that he was in some way connected with this Bible, than that it was attributed to a wholly fictitious person of the same name. The Essex Lollards appear to have been well and closely acquainted with each other. Now Coverdale had, it is clear, laboured much amongst some of them: indeed, his notoriety in that county appears to have led to his becoming a voluntary exile; and thus, it is not improbable, that some of those who had been troubled on account of religion in that part, might, like him, have sought a refuge on the Continent. It is to be borne in mind, that Colchester, the abode of this Thomas Matthew, was one of the places to which Tyndale's Testaments were brought from the continent: Bayfield, who suffered martyrdom, had imported them thither. It is not impossible, from the connection of Bayfield with Tyndale, that the latter might continue to have some intercourse with the favourers of the word of God in that place: this may have led in some manner to this Thomas Matthew having in his possession the MS. of Tyndale, from which the Bible in question was subsequently printed. I would merely suggest the connection of Tyndale with Colchester, as having possibly something to do with the name affixed to this Bible; for, after all, it is to be remembered, that we have no record of the transactions which led to the publication of this Bible.

Doubtless there were, at this time, others of the name of Thomas Matthew. One of this name seems to have been a few years later a person of some consideration amongst the favourers of the Reformation; for, in the reign of Mary, he was one of the members of the House of Commons who withdrew (Jan. 12, 1555), after certain proceedings for the setting up of Popery were sanctioned.

If any real person of the name of Thomas Matthew were connected with this Bible, it is clear that he was not the translator (the dedicator does not speak of himself as such), since it is taken out of Tyndale and Coverdale; nor yet does he seem to have been the editor, for this office is stated to have been occupied by JOHN ROGERS, an individual intimately connected with the publication and revision of the Bible in English. To this edition was prefixed, An Exhortation to the Study of Holy Scriptures, beneath which stand J. R. the initials of his name. This may, I think, be regarded as a proof that Thomas Matthew was not merely a fictitious name assumed by John Rogers; for had this been the case, the Exhortation would probably have been signed T. M. instead of J. R.

This Bible appears to have been printed at the expense of Richard Grafton and Edward Whitechurch, who, at a subsequent period, became printers themselves; and through whose means, in this manner, many Tyndale's intentions frustrated.

The books from Joshua to Chronicles left in MS.

His friends publish his version.

1537. Matthew's Bible.

Thomas Matthew perhaps a fictitious name.

Thos. Matthew of Colchester.

Another Thos. Matthew. Strype Mem. Ecc. iv. p. 272.

Thos. Matthew not the translator.

John Rogers the editor of this Bible.

editions of the English Scriptures were published. Their initials appear at the beginning of the Prophets; perhaps the part of the expense which they defrayed commenced there. Thomas Matthew may actually have been the person at whose cost the preceding part was printed. Whether or not Archbishop Cranmer had any thing to do with the actual publishing of this Bible, does not appear to be clearly known, he did, however, patronize it warmly when it actually was published.*

It has been questioned, as in the case of Coverdale's Bible, where this was printed. In the absence of any certain proof, there appears no sufficient reason for discrediting the statement of Fox, who mentions Hamburg as the place; although it may be remarked, he knew so little about this edition, that his account is in some respects wholly inaccurate: events and records were the things with which he had to do, and not the history of books. Mr. Oför thinks it was at Lübeck.

JOHN ROGERS, the editor of this Bible, was brought to a knowledge of the truth at Antwerp by Tyndale and Coverdale. He had been educated at Cambridge. Subsequently he became the chaplain to the English company of merchant adventurers at Antwerp. After he saw the errors of popery, he is mentioned as having been for some time at Wittenberg. He may have gone thither at some period between 1531 and 1533; but when it was, or for what length of time, there does not appear to be evidence. He must afterwards have returned to England, as he is said to have again gone to the Continent about the time of the commencement of the printing of Matthew's Bible. Collier says, "When Tindal was executed for religion, Rogers being apprehensive of hard usage in England, under King Henry VIII., retired to Wittenberg in Germany, where, learning the language of the country, he had the charge of a parish." It seems, however, like an anticipation for a parochial charge to be spoken of as being given to Rogers thus early: it is pretty evident that this visit to Wittenberg must have been subsequent to the year 1540.

However, it is clear that he was on the Continent about, or a little after, the time of the martyrdom of Tyndale; but it is more probable, I should judge, that he went to superintend the publication of the translation which had been executed by that faithful martyr of Christ. This Bible has the character of Tyndale's labours so stamped upon it as clearly to shew that the undertakers of it were not ashamed of its being marked, as being (at least, in a considerable part) his version; some of his prologues and notes are retained: at the end, likewise, of the Old Testament, the letters W. T. are printed in very large text capitals curiously flourished. Thus, if the name of Thomas Matthew were a device to conceal the real translator, it was indeed a very transparent veil, and one but little fitted to serve the object proposed, while the book itself contained so many proofs of its true origin.

This Bible was completed and had reached England by August, 1537, for, on the 4th of that month, Cranmer wrote to Cromwell about it, requesting him to exhibit it to the king, to whom it had been dedicated, and, if possible, to procure the king's license for its being read and sold by all without any danger from any acts, ordinances, or proclamations. to the contrary: this refers, I suppose, to the prohibition, on May 28, 1530, of every portion of Scripture which had been published by Tyndale, to the penalties of which many might have thought themselves exposed, if they were to circulate copies without such a license being given by the king. The archbishop gave his judgment of the version that it was very well done. The license was requested as one that should be in force until the bishops should put forth a translation, which Cranmer thought would not be "till a day after Domesday;" this shews how the prelates opposed the Scriptures being freely circulated among the people. Those among them who desired this, such as Cranmer, Latimer, and Fox, must have found their path a very difficult one.

On the 13th of the same month (August) Cranmer wrote again to Cromwell: he speaks of his having heard that the Bible had been exhibited to the King, and also that the King had licensed it. He expresses his hearty thanks for this service, not questioning that God would reward him for his diligent care in thus exerting himself towards the setting forth of the word of God in English; and that for this, his name would be handed down to posterity. A few days afterwards (the 28th) in writing to Cromwell, he again adverts to the same thing.

It is rather remarkable that the first edition of the Scriptures in English, which received an express sanction from the king, was this, of which the New Testament and the Pentateuch had been but seven * Strype says (Mem. Cran.) that after Cranmer had put the Bible into the hands of several to correct portions of it, and had obtained the king's leave for its publication, "he could not see his desire effected by these men, till it was happily done by other hands;" referring to the publication of Matthew's Bible. This might seem to decide the matter, that

Cranmer was not a curator of the edition which bears the name of Matthew; but it may be, that Cranmer, as he could not get his own design complied with, aided by his support the publication of this Bible, as well as giving it his patronage when actually printed.

Questioned where this Bible was printed.

Fox says it was at Hamburg, ii. p. 434.

Fox, iii. Lewis p. 223. [E. Coll. T. Baker. N. T. B.] Rogers educated at Cambridge. At Antwerp. Goes to Wittenberg. Returns to England. Goes again to the continent. Collier, p. 103.

Superintends Tyndale's version.

Matthew's Bible reaches England before Aug. 1537. Cranmer writes to Cromwell, Aug. 4. State Papers vol. i. p. 2, no. 385.

The Archbishop's judgment that the version was very well done.

Cranmer writes to Cromwell, again Aug. 13. Cotton MSS. Claud. B. 1. 320b. Strype's Cran. 82. Coll. MSS. Comp. E. v. p. 292.

First expressly sanctioned.

years before so strictly prohibited. The version had been condemned as faulty: it was said to be filled with heresy; to be corrupted in order to maintain heretical doctrines and the like; and yet this very version of Tyndale was thus set forth at length with all the sanction which the king's license could give it. This seems indeed like an answer to the dying prayer of Tyndale. Here was the version, about which he had laboured so long and so laboriously—to execute which he had become an exile from England—the version which, when first sent to England, had been condemned and burned, and in consequence of which some who read it were burned likewise—the version which all men were prohibited to read, possess, or circulate—now, in less than a year after the translator's martyrdom, “set forth by the king's most gracious license.”

English edition contains parts previously prohibited.

An apparent answer to Tyndale's dying prayer.

Much is due to Rogers as the editor of this edition, of which a great part was only in manuscript when it passed into his hands; he seems to have acted both as desiring to give his countrymen a Bible as correct as possible, and likewise to perpetuate the labours of his friend and instructor in the truth of the gospel. Rogers clearly had nothing to do with the pecuniary concerns connected with this Bible; probably, in making any arrangement with Grafton and others, he only sought to get the book printed as well as he could, while his business was to care for the accuracy of the impression. Fox gives the following account of the effect which this edition of the Bible produced.—“The setting forth of this book did not a little offend the clergy, namely, the bishops aforesaid, both for the prologues, and especially because in the same book there was one special table collected of the common places in the Bible, and the Scriptures, for the approbation of the same, and chiefly about the Supper of the Lord, and Marriage of Priests, and the Mass which there was said not to be found in the Scripture.” It is no wonder that such topics as these should give offence; it is also probable that the doctrinal statements of the New Testament, and those contained in the prologues of Tyndale were little calculated to make this translation acceptable with the greater part of the church authorities.

Editorial care of Rogers.

He had nothing to do with the pecuniary concerns of this edition. Fox, vol. ii. p. 453. The bishops offended with Matthew's Bible.

But this was quite the popular translation: the New Testament of Tyndale had been circulated for eleven years, and had quite a hold on the affections of the people. This was sufficient to make Matthew's Bible more acceptable than Coverdale's: indeed, this Bible, in various editions, was one which continued to be much used for many years, while that of Coverdale (highly valuable as being the first complete printed version of the Scriptures) had but one edition, after the appearance of Matthew's Bible, until its modern republication in 1838; and this one reprint was not until the year 1530. Coverdale's New Testament was, however, reprinted many times in the reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI. Coverdale does not seem to have wished in any way to rival Tyndale as a translator; and thus, although he made Tyndale's version of the New Testament in a great measure the basis of his own, yet it is clear, from his prologue, that nothing was farther from his thoughts than the idea of superseding it.

The popularity of this translation.

It should be added that the edition of Tyndale's Testament, from which that part of Matthew's Bible was taken, was that of the year 1534, which had been carefully revised with the Greek, completing it just before his apprehension and imprisonment. The version being one that had thus been revised may have been one reason why the king did not refuse to license this Bible, for it might be said, that the heresy was expunged in the revision; although it would be hard for any one who objected to the edition of the year 1526, to find any improvement in that respect in the one published eight years later.

New Test. of Matthew's Bible taken from Tyndale's revised Testament, 1534.

IV.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE “GREAT BIBLE”—COVERDALE TRANSLATES THE NEW TESTAMENT FROM THE LATIN.

THE measures which had been taken in England before the end of the year 1537, for the licensing of the Bible in English were, as has been shewn, very pleasing to Cranmer. He appears to have exerted himself, previously as well as subsequently, for some years to this end, both amongst the prelates in the convocation, and in the use which he made of the influence which he possessed over the king. At length he obtained, by the aid of Cromwell, permission from the king that the Bible might be translated into English and printed. “The care of the translation lay wholly upon him; assigning little portions of this holy book to Cranmer's efforts for the Bible in English.

Sirype, Cran. p. 81.

Part of the N.

Test. distributed for revision.

divers bishops and learned men to do; and being dispatched, to be sent back to him." When this occurred does not precisely appear; but it is evident that the endeavours of Cranmer to procure a new translation were made between the middle of 1535, and the middle of 1537. It is thus, very likely, that the proceedings of Cranmer for the making of this translation were in reference to the resolution either of the convocation, Dec. 19, 1534; or else, which seems more probable, that of the convocation of June 9, 1536. The proof that these measures of Cranmer belong to the interval which I have thus assigned to them is this:—Strype speaks of their being "not long after" Cranmer's visitation of the diocese of London, in 1535; and he says expressly that these endeavours had been made previous to the publication of Matthew's Bible, by which they were at least for a time superseded.

Strype, Cran. p. 45, 51.

The manner in which Cranmer proceeded to obtain a revision of the Bible in English, is narrated in Fox's Manuscript preserved by Strype:—

"—The archbishop whose mind ran very much upon bringing in the free use of the holy scripture in English among the people, put on vigorously a translation of it. And, that it might not come to be prohibited, as it had been, upon pretence of the ignorance or unfaithfulness of the translators, he proceeded in this method.—First; he began with the translation of the New Testament; taking an old English translation thereof, which he divided into nine or ten parts, causing each part to be written at large in a paper book, and then to be sent to the best learned Bishops, and others, to the intent they should make a perfect correction thereof. And when they had done, he required them to send back their parts, so corrected, unto him at Lambeth, by a day limited for that purpose: and the same course no question he took with the Old Testament. It chanced that the Acts of the Apostles was sent to Bishop Stokesly to oversee and correct. When the day came, every man had sent to Lambeth their parts corrected, only Stokesly's portion was wanting. My Lord of Canterbury wrote to the Bishop a letter for his part, requiring him to deliver them unto the bringer, his secretary. He received the Archbishop's letter at Fulham: unto which he made this answer; 'I marvel what my Lord of Canterbury meaneth, that thus abuseth the people, in giving them liberty to read the Scriptures: which doth nothing else but infect them with heresy. I have bestowed never an hour upon my portion, nor never will. And therefore my Lord shall have this book again, for I will never be guilty of leading the simple people into error.' My Lord of Canterbury's servant took the book, and brought the same to Lambeth unto my Lord, declaring my Lord of London's answer. When the Archbishop had perceived that the Bishop had done nothing therein, 'I marvel,' said he, 'that my Lord of London is so froward that he will not do as other men do.' One Mr. Thomas Lawney stood by; and hearing my Lord speak so much of the Bishop's untowardness, said, 'I can tell your Grace why my Lord of London will not bestow any labour or pains this way. Your Grace knoweth well, that his portion is a piece of New Testament. But he being persuaded that Christ had bequeathed him nothing in his Testament, thought it mere madness to bestow any labour or pain, where no gain was to be gotten. And besides this, it is the Acts of the Apostles; which were simple poor fellows, and therefore my Lord of London disdained to have to do with any of them.' Whereat my Lord of Canterbury and others that stood by could not forbear from laughter."

The book of Acts sent to Bp. Stokesly.

His refusal to translate.

Lawney's remarks on him.

Bp. Stokesly a great enemy to the Gospel.

It is to be remembered that Bishop Stokesly was particularly marked as an enemy of the Gospel: he had been the persecutor of Frith and many others who suffered for the alleged crime of heresy. Lawney, who made such free remarks upon him and his conduct, had been a companion of Frith at the college of St. Frideswide, where he likewise was one of the sharers of his imprisonment, on account of suspected books and doctrines.

Lewis, p. 59b. Mem. Cov. p. 47.

The date of these events.

This account of Strype (or rather perhaps of Fox), requires a few observations. Lewis, and the author of "Memorials of Coverdale," speak of this narration, as though there were no clue to the period to which it belongs. Accordingly they place it rather before the time to which, according to the very words of Strype, it must be referred: they speak of it as though it might have taken place in 1534, although Strype says it was "not long after" the middle of 1535. The latter writer suggests in a note that this translation might have taken place some years later in connection with the Great Bible, which was published in 1539. If he means that these things might have happened, then he brings them to a period too late, for this must have been (as has been already shewn) prior to July or August, 1537. I should not have thought it so needful to clear up the point as to the date of these events, had not a degree of needless uncertainty been thrown over them, which would have been altogether avoided, had the account given by Strype been observed in all its particulars.

Tyndale's translation used by Cranmer as a basis.

The "old translation" taken by Cranmer was, I suppose, a copy of Tyndale's: this might be called "old," in the sense of having been one previously made, not as having existed for many years. The transcription of it into paper books was probably done that the revisers might have space for their corrections to be fairly written, and also lest any should object to bestow their labour upon a book which had been already condemned.

Although it be said, in the above account, that "the same course, no question, he took with the Old Testament," yet I think that this is very doubtful. It seems merely to be a surmise either of Strype or of Fox, drawn from the fact of the New Testament having been thus revised. If he did proceed in this manner with the Old Testament, what translation should he take? Tyndale had only published the Pentateuch and Jonah; and the version of Coverdale, though printed in October, 1535, was not published for some time: indeed, it might at this very period be yet in the hands of the bishops appointed by the king to examine it. I believe that there is no sufficient ground for supposing that more was accomplished in this revision than the New Testament by nine or ten bishops and others. It must have been in reference to this undertaking, that Gardiner wrote to Cromwell: "Nevertheless, I have as gret cause as any man, to desire rest and quiet, for the helth of my body: wherunto I thought to have entended, and to absteyne from bookes and wryting, having finished the translation of Saynt Luke and Saynt John, wherin I have spent a gret labour." This letter, of which the exact date is uncertain, shews that in some respects Cranmer had authority to require the prelates, who so greatly opposed the reformed doctrines, to aid in this work, and thus Stokesly was a singular instance of opposition.

Bp. Gardiner's letter to Cromwell.
MS. climp.
Copy Westm.
Bundl. C.
Mem. Cov.,
p. 48.

It is probable, that the offence which was taken at the notes and prologues of the Bible which bears the name of Thomas Matthew, led the projectors of it, as well as the friends of the circulation of the word of God, to think of publishing a less obnoxious edition; an edition which should contain the text, but no annotations which might give needless offence. This appears to have been represented to the king, who committed the care of the matter to Cromwell. The parties employed by Cromwell for carrying this into execution were Richard Grafton and Edward Whitechurch, the same who had borne the expense of Matthew's Bible. It may be that this was done as an act of justice, as a compensation for the superseding of their Bible by the new one, which was about to be printed.

Grafton and Whitechurch employed.

With these, as corrector of the press and editor, Myles Coverdale was joined, who was at this time in England, and had been employed by Cromwell in various services. I have already noticed the fact which has been so commonly overlooked, that Coverdale returned from the continent about the year 1536: this in itself shews the reason he was now employed on this service by Cromwell. In the early part of the year 1538, Coverdale was at Newbury, in Berkshire, employed in searching out popish books, and carrying out the commands of the king, that Thomas Becket should be no longer honoured as a saint. He was there on the 7th of February; on which day, as well as the following, he wrote to Cromwell, and he continued there at least till the 5th of March, when he again wrote to him. How long before this he went to Newbury does not appear.*

Coverdale at Newbury, 1538.

He writes to Cromwell, Feb.
7, and Feb. 8,
1538.

In his letter of February 7, Coverdale tells Cromwell that for want of diligent care many books were circulated which upheld the papal power, or were "against the king's lawful object concerning Thomas Becket." He had required the curate of Newbury to call for such; in consequence of which, in two or three days a great number were brought to him. He seeks for Cromwell's authority for this, and that he may collect such books wherever he may find them. This letter was sent to Cromwell by Coverdale's servant. It would seem that Coverdale had been but a few days at Newbury when he wrote this letter; for, in another written the very next day, he mentions as a thing which he had just discovered, that the matin books in the church at Newbury set forth the Pope's authority, just the same as had been before the papal authority had been abolished in England. This appears to have troubled Coverdale greatly, supposing that the same might exist similarly elsewhere; and that thus many of the priests were under the penalty of a præsumptio: this fear he mentioned to Cromwell only, not letting even the bearer of the letter, "good Mr. Wynecombe," know what he had written.

The third letter from Newbury, dated March 5, complains of certain things at Henley-upon-Thames, such as Thomas Becket's martyrdom in a window, and persons excluding from their houses those who favoured the Gospel. These things he attributed to the bishop of Lincoln (of whose diocese Henley was a part): and again, March 5.

He writes

* These letters published by Mr. Pettigrew (Bibliotheca Sussæxiana), prove incontestably, the return of Coverdale to England. I had formed my own judgment that he did so return, before I knew any thing of the contents of the letters in question, on the following grounds:—

1st. The statement of Bishop Bale as to the length of Coverdale's exile, shewing him to have been in England about 1539 or 40.

2nd. The reprints of Coverdale's Bible at Southwark, in 1537, which must have been supervised by himself.

3rd. The fact that the books which Coverdale wrote about this time were printed in England; which would probably not have been the case, had not Coverdale himself returned.

The letters of Coverdale published by Mr. Pettigrew, are without any date, as to the year in which they were written; but, from the mention of Prince Edward in them, it is evident that they belong to the early part of 1538, and not to the previous years.

when it is remembered that this bishop was Longland, the persecutor of the Lollards in 1521, we need not wonder at Coverdale's surmise.

Coverdale's occupations, while in England, may be properly adverted to before his steps are traced to Paris. Besides the employment at Newbury, and perhaps elsewhere, on which he seems to have been sent by Cromwell, he made about this time another version of the New Testament, using as his basis the Latin Vulgate. His judgment was decidedly in favour of many translations being used, in order that the English reader might have the opportunity of examining into the meaning of the Scripture, without being limited to the translation of any one man, or one body of translators. It may be asked, Why should he take the trouble to re-translate the New Testament himself? It may be, that, in his editions of the Bible, he had more closely followed the version of Tyndale than he had wished, and that pressure for time had induced him to make the New Testament much less of a new translation than those portions of the Old had been, which Tyndale also had rendered into English. It may be, that he wished, now that he had comparative leisure to re-translate the New Testament, to add one more version to the apparatus with which the vernacular reader was furnished for the understanding of the Scriptures. But whatever his motives may have been, he made at this time a new version of the New Testament, differing more from the translation contained in his Bible than that had done from Tyndale's.

This translation seems to have been printed in the beginning of 1538; and it became the basis of subsequent impressions of Coverdale's New Testament.* In the Lent of 1538, there was printed in Southwark, by James Nicholson, a New Testament of this version, together with the Latin text. Coverdale was not the corrector of it; and the only part for which he was responsible was the dedication to the king. Some one else appears to have prefixed a Preface to the Reader; and the execution of the whole book was clearly done with great carelessness, not at all answering the hopes of Coverdale respecting Nicholson's attention. He seems to have given him free leave to print it, having arranged the plan of the work, and written the dedication, and then personally to have ended his connection with this edition. With regard to what time in Lent it was published, it is evident that Coverdale was at Newbury during a good portion, at least, of that time, and then appears to have gone to Paris, while the book was yet in the press; so that the publication could have been but a little before Easter. This, in itself, explains what might now, after a lapse of more than three hundred years, have seemed difficult to account for; namely, why Coverdale should have written the dedication to the king, and then have left the book without bestowing any further trouble upon it: for the needful care in printing, he seems wholly to have relied upon the printer Nicholson. From the dedication to the king which was prefixed, we learn what the motives were which induced Coverdale to plan a New Testament in English and Latin on the same page. He commences his dedication thus:—"Consyderynge (moost gracious Soueraigne) how loungly, and how fauourably, and how tenderly your hyghnesse hath taken myne infancy & rudenesse in dedicatynge the whole bible in English to your moost noble grace. And hanynge sure experience also how benynge and gracious a mynde your hyghnes doth euer beare to all them that in theyr calling are wyllynge to do theyr beste: It doth euen animate & encorage me now lykewyse to vse the same audacite towarde your grace." After this, he speaks of the reproach and ill-will which the enemies of the word of God manifested toward those who sought to circulate the Scriptures in English. He says that they "seke out new occasions, how they may deprauē & synistrally interprete our wel doynge. And where as wth all faythfulness we go about to make our brethren (youre graces louynge subiectes) participante of the frutes of onre good wylles, they yet not regardynge what profite we wolde be glad to do them, reporte euell of vs, sklauder vs; and saye the worste of vs: Ye they are not ashamed to affirme, that we intēde to peruerte the Scripture, and to condēnne the commune translation in Lutyn, which costumably is red in the church: where as we purpose the cleane contrary."

This made it very desirable that the English text should be printed by the side of the Latin, so as to exhibit to all who were capable of forming a judgment, that there was no purpose in the minds of the translators, either to contemn the Latin version which had been used in the West for a thousand years, or to corrupt the Scripture. Coverdale had likewise other objects in procuring this Duoglott Testament to

* I conclude that the 16mo. Testament mentioned in Memorials of Coverdale, p. 225 (out of Herbert), as published by Coverdale, was of this version. The following are my reasons:—The New Testament, English and Latin, printed in Lent of this year, by Nicholson, in Southwark, follows Coverdale's second translation, although carelessly printed so as to abound with errors. Of this edition by Nicholson, Coverdale said, that it was disagreeable to his former translation in English: by which he appears to have meant, that his translation was not accurately given: however, he himself, in printing an edition at Paris (to supersede the inaccurate edition printed at Southwark), adopts the same translation which had been in the Southwark edition, correcting the typographical and other errors. This shews that he did not complain of the translation itself, for it must have been his own; and the "former translation" referred to, cannot be that of his Bible, but his new translation, which had, before this time, been printed. If it had not, Nicholson could not have printed a negligent impression of it.

Coverdale translates the New Test. from the Latin.

This translation printed beginning of 1538.

Mem. Cov., p. 92.

Eng. and Latin Testament, Lent, 1538.

Dedication written by Coverdale.

Coverdale's motive in his Duoglott Test.

set forth: he says, that it was done, "not so much for the clamourous importunty of euell speakers, as to satisfye the iust request of certayne your graces faythfull subiectes. And specially to induce and instruct such as can but Englishie, & are not learned in the Latin, that in comparynge these two textes together, they maye the better vnderstonde the one by y<sup>e</sup> other. And I doute not but such ignoraunte bodies as (hauynge cure and charge of soules) are very vnlearned in the Latyn tunge, shall trough thys smal labour be occasioned to atteyn vnto more knowledge, and at the leest be constrained to say wyl of the thyng, whyche here tofore they haue blasphemed." This second translation of the New Testament made by Coverdale, appears to have been in a great measure adapted to the Vulgate Latin, so as to shew that he did not at all despise that translation, and likewise, in order to help the English reader the more effectually to the understanding of the Latin text by the side. This accounts for many of the variations between the version in his Bible, and this which was published separately.

Farther on Coverdale says, "For as much as in our other translacions, we do not followe thys olde Latyn texte word for word, they cry out vpon vs: As though al were not as nye the truth to translate the scripture out of other languages, as to turne it out of the Latyn. Or as though the holy goost were not the authoure of his scripture as well in the Hebrue, Greke, French, Dutche, and in English, as in Latyn. The Scripture & worde of God is truly to euery Christen man of lyke worthynesse and authoritie, in what language so euer the holy goost speaketh it. And therefore am I, and wyl be whyle I lyue (vnder youre moost gracious fauoure and correction) alway wyllynge and ready to do my best aswel in one translation, as in another."

Difference between this and Coverdale's previous version.

He makes some observations (as he very well might) on the inaccuracy of the Latin copies which were at that time commonly circulated; an inaccuracy which was before long acknowledged as freely by Romanists as by the advocates of the Reformation. Coverdale tells us, in the dedication to Cromwell, prefixed to the corrected Paris edition of the same year, that this dedication to the king had been written in the preceding Lent. I now for a while leave this edition, to which Coverdale's attention was again called, after he was at Paris engaged in the correcting of the Great Bible.

The incorrectness of the common Latin copies noticed.

During Coverdale's stay in England, in 1537 or 1538, he appears to have published certain Psalms and other portions of Scripture turned into English metre, which seems to be the first attempt of the kind in the English language: and however quaint and rugged it may seem to modern ears, it may be regarded as being as much the precursor of the Hymns in which Christians join in "giving thanks unto the Father which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light," just as Coverdale's Bible has ushered in the version, in which we now read the record of the Holy Ghost concerning the love of the Father in the gift of the Son. The proof that this book of Psalms was published before the latter part of 1538, is found in the fact, that it was prohibited amongst other books at that time, and also it was printed in England, which shews that Coverdale had probably not as yet left for Paris.

Coverdale translates some of the Psalms into metre.

Col. i. 12.

We do not know where Coverdale was during any part of his stay in England, except at Newbury; but he mentions in his dedication to Cromwell (prefixed to the Latin and English Testament, printed at Paris in the latter part of this year), that he had "not long ago" been thirty miles from the place at which "a right famous man's sermon" was printed, which was falsely said to have been "depraved" by him, although he had never set pen thereto, although he had been desired to do so. This refers, I suppose, to the sermon of Osiander, "How and whither a Christen man ought to flye the horrible plague of the Pestilence," which bears the name of Myles Coverdale on the title-page; but as I suppose, from what he himself says, he was not really the translator, but was thirty miles away at the time when it was done. This was in 1537; so that Coverdale must have been at some place thirty miles from London (where the book was printed) before he was sent by Cromwell to Newbury. It is not at all improbable, that he was employed on similar business at various places in England; and letters may be discovered throwing some farther light upon the circumstances of Coverdale's stay in England.

Coverdale's movements when in England unknown.

Works attributed to him.

To return to the edition of the Bible which Cromwell was about to cause to be published. It has been already said that this was to be an edition without notes or prologues, such as had given offence in Matthew's Bible. What translation was ordered to be used does not appear; and with regard to the New Testament, it is, I think, most probable, that the recension which Cranmer had caused to be made a little while before, was now used: if not, it would seem strange for Cranmer to have obtained leave to procure a translation to be made, and to have it printed; and yet for no use to be actually made of the permission so obtained. If this were not the work which Cranmer had thus laboured to procure, we neither know what became of that recension, nor yet by whom or how the text of this Bible was formed. It may further be remarked, that this New Testament agrees very accurately with the account which is given of the recension directed by Crammer: it is the text of the translation of Tyndale, revised throughout, more or less. Some, also, of the alterations are such as have crept in, from the revisers having the Vulgate in their minds. To take an instance: in John x. 16, Tyndale had rendered the Greek thus:—"and other shepe I have, which are not of this folde. Them also must I bringe, that they maye heare my voyce, and that they maye be one flocke and one shepheard." In this translation the distinction between αὐλή and ποιμνὴ is rightly observed; but in the "Great Bible," of which I am now speaking, the verse is rendered, "and other shepe I haue, which are not of this fold. Them also must I bring, and they shall heare my voyce, and ther shall be one folde and one shepheard." In this version, no distinction is made between the two words, the Latin being followed (in sense, at least), in which they are alike translated "ovile." Coverdale was right, like Tyndale, but the reviser (Gardiner appears to have had this portion sent to him) has introduced an inaccurate rendering, which has continued through various versions, and is retained to this day. The great difference in the sense of the passage, which is occasioned by this variation, I need hardly point out: in fact, the whole interpretation of this part of the chapter would be influenced by the rendering of this verse.

The Bible to be published without notes, or prologues.

Cranmer's recension of the New Testament probably used.

Bishop Stokesley's portion, the Acts of the Apostles, was probably revised, in some measure, by some one else for this edition; but it does not appear much changed from the translation of Tyndale.

With regard to the Old Testament in this edition, but little seems to be known. Many writers seem to have regarded this as but a reprint of Matthew's Bible; and thus many of the things which they have said regarding that edition, may really belong to this. There can be no question that Matthew's Bible (i. e. Tyndale's translation, in part, and Coverdale's, in part) was the basis of the Old Testament in this edition; but by whom the revision was made, and who translated the book of Psalms, and other parts which are actually re-wrought, does not appear to be stated. The title-page simply informs us, that it was "truly translated after the veryte of the Hebrue and Greke textes by the dylygent studye of dyuerse excellent learned men, expert in the forsayde tonges." Now there is an individual, whose name has not, as far as I can see, been connected with this edition, who seems to me to have strong claims to be considered one of the "dyuerse excellent learned men" who were engaged in this version or recension; this individual is JOHN ROGERS, the editor of Matthew's Bible, who has often been regarded as though he were, at least in part, the translator of that book; of which, however, he could not be, as it consists wholly of the version of Tyndale, with the parts which he did not execute, supplied out of Coverdale's translation.

Bale attributes to Rogers the translating of the whole of the Scriptures, from Genesis to Revelation, and that in this he had recourse to copies in Hebrew, Greek, Latin, German, and English. This work he connects with the publication of Matthew's Bible. In this he is plainly in error; but still, there is no reason why the whole statement should be incorrect; it may refer to this edition, although it could not do that. Rogers returned to England between the publication of Matthew's Bible and the year 1540; which is proved by his then escaping on account of the penalties imposed by the act of the Six Articles, to which he, having married abroad about the year 1537, was exposed. It is likely that he was in England at this time; and being already connected with Grafton in the publication of the Bible, this may have led to his introduction to Crammer's notice, as a fit person to be engaged on the literary labour of the New Bible. Of course, in a case like this, probabilities alone can be brought forward: but the case is simply this;—there is a recension of the Old Testament, to which no author is assigned: Rogers is asserted to have made a translation of the Bible, which does not appear, unless this be it; so that I think the conclusion to be strongly probable that the Old Testament of this Bible (at least, in a great part) was really the work of Rogers. This portion, although in many places it is verbatim the same as Matthew's Bible, is in others so entirely different as to be a new version: the Psalms, especially, in the "Great Bible" are far superior to Coverdale's translation, which had been adopted in Matthew's.

The Bible which was to be printed, appears to have been prepared in England for the press; and then the care of the impression was confided by Cromwell to Grafton and Whitchurch, while the work of correcting the press was given to Myles Coverdale: this was done probably on account of his known competency and learning. Coverdale does not appear to have been in any way employed in the translation itself. This he probably would have been, had the preparation of the work been Cromwell's province, instead of Crammer's. It does not clearly appear at whose suggestion it was, that this Bible was determined to be printed at Paris; whether it was the device of Cromwell for the procuring of better workmanship, or whether (as Strype suggests) it was the idea of Grafton himself.

The only intimation that I can find of the exact time at which Grafton and Coverdale went to Paris, in Tyndale's New Testament the basis.

John x. 16.
αὐλή ἡ ποιμνὴ

Gardiner the reviser of this part.

Matthew's Bible the basis of the "Great Bible."

Psalms newly translated.

Rogers returns to England.

Rogers's claim stated.

The Great Bible prepared for the press in England.

order to superintend the printing of this Bible, is drawn from what Coverdale says in the dedication of his Latin and English Testament, in this year, to Cromwell: he mentions there the edition already spoken of, the dedication of which he had written "this last lent;" then, after speaking of his not having superintended the edition himself, he says, "trusting, that though I were absent & out of the laude, yet all shulde be well." This implies that Coverdale left England in Lent, 1538; that is to say, soon after his letter of March 5th, to Cromwell. The first intimation of their being actually at Paris, is found in a letter which they wrote jointly to Cromwell, on the 23rd of June; by which time they were already engaged in their work. It is probable that they had been for some time in Paris; for the manner in which they had settled to their work, implies that they had arranged all their plans of proceeding; while, at the same time, by their informing Cromwell what their plans were, it shews that they had not been devised in England. They say:—

"After moost humble and hartie commendacions to your good Lordship. Pleaseth the same to understand, that we be entred into your worke of the Byble, wherof (accordynge to our moost bounden dutie) we have here sent unto your Lordship 2 ensamples; one, in parchement, wherein we entende to prynt one for the Kynges Grace, and another for your Lordship; and the second, in paper, wherof all the rest shalbe made; trustynge, that it shalbe not only to the glorye of God, but a synguler pleasure, also, to your good Lordship the causer therof, and a generall edefyenge of the Kinges subjectes, accordynge to your Lordshippes moost godlye request. For we folowe not only a standingyng texte of the Hebrue, with the interpretation of the Caldee, and the Greke, but we set, also, in a pryvate table, the dyversite of redinges of all textes, with such annotacions, in another table, as shall doubtles delucidate and clear the same; as well without any singularyte of opinions as all checkinges and reprofes."

By this account of the editorial care which this edition received in going through the press, it appears that Coverdale (for this was his department) compared the revised version with the Greek and Latin texts, marking and making a list of the variations. These passages when they contained any word or sentence in the Latin or Greek which was not in the Hebrew, we shall find that they afterwards inserted in the text itself, in a smaller type and within marks of parenthesis. The "standing text of the Hebrew with the Chaldee and Greek interpretation" can only indicate, I should imagine, the Complutensian Polyglott, which Coverdale, in his editorial care, may have used: certainly no other edition of the Scriptures which had at this time been printed suits the description.

They afterwards speak of the mechanical execution, materials, and expense:—"The prynt, no doubt, shall please your good Lordship. The paper is of the beste sorte in France. The charge certainly is great." In the latter part of the letter they speak of their danger on account of the work in which they were engaged. They say that they hope "to be defended from the Papistes by your Lordshippes favourable letters; which we most humbly desyer to have (by this berer Wyllyam Graye), ether to the Bysshop of Wynchester [Gardiner], or to some other, whom your Lordship shall thinke moost expedyent. We be dayly threatened, and looke ever to be spoken withall, as this berer can farther enforme your Lordship; but how they will use us, as yet we knowe not."

It is evident, from this letter, that they had not as yet obtained any permission to proceed with their work in France, and that they found the opposition to be much greater than they had expected. The bishop of Wynchester, Gardiner, to whom they requested that letters might be sent in their behalf, was at this time the English ambassador at the Court of France. A little while after this he was recalled; and Edmund Bonner, archdeacon of Leicester, who had previously been employed as ambassador to the Emperor Charles V., was sent to Paris in his room. In consequence of the application of Grafton and Coverdale to Cromwell, Henry VIII. wrote to Francis to request him "to permit and license a subject of his to imprint the Bible in English within the University of Paris, because Paper was there more meet and apt to be had for the doing thereof, than in the Realm of England, and also that there were more store of good workmen for the ready dispatch of the same."

Bonner was directed likewise to give all the assistance that he could to those who were engaged in the printing of the Bible, so that they might be unmolested in the prosecution of their work; and that the needful license might be obtained for them to go on with safety. In this Bonner acted with promptitude, which indeed was ever one of his characteristics; and the needful permission from King Francis was obtained. This must have been procured after Coverdale had seen the faulty Southwark edition of his Latin and English Testament (which was some time in July), for the printing of this again at Paris was certainly contemplated in the permission which was obtained from Francis. This permission was addressed to Richard Grafton and Edward Whitechurch. It set forth that Francis had heard, on sufficient authority, that Henry had given them permission "to print and cause to be printed, and to be brought and transferred Coverdale goes to Paris, Lent, 1538.

Coverdale and Grafton write to Cromwell from Paris, Chap. Ho. West. Bundle C. State Papers, i. 575.

Critical care.

Passages inserted from the Vulgate.

The print and paper.

Danger threatens.

Bonner succeeds Gardiner as ambassador.

Fox, ii. 434.

Henry's application to Francis.

Francis gives permission.

Cott. MSS. Cleop. E. v. 325 b.

into his kingdom, the Holy Bible both in Latin and in British or English;" and that as they "both for the sake of paper and other honest considerations" wished to perform their work at Paris, he gave them free leave so to do without any molestation or hindrance, whether to the printing or to the conveying of the books to England when printed. There was, however, this proviso, that the books should be printed sincerely and purely, so far as in them lay, without any private or unlawful opinions.

This license having been obtained through the exertions of Bonner, the work appears to have gone on for some time without any hindrance. They continued to print the Great Bible, and also another edition of Coverdale's Latin and English Testament: which is said to have been done, partly at least, at the instance of Bonner, who shewed great zeal for the publication of the Scriptures in English.

V.

THE PRINTING OF COVERDALE'S LATIN AND ENGLISH TESTAMENT AT PARIS.—THE COMPLETION OF THE "GREAT BIBLE."

It will be well here to give a brief account of the second edition of Coverdale's English and Latin Testament, seeing that it was printed during the time that the "Great Bible" was in hand, and was completed before that was finished. It is probable that Bonner procured the insertion of the Scriptures in Latin as well as in English, in the license of Francis, in order that he might attain his desire of getting this book printed. This Paris edition does not appear to have had any very great attention paid to its execution, Coverdale's time and mind were pretty well occupied with the work connected with the "Great Bible." However, it pleased Bonner, who was very anxious that it should be printed, and who "himself took a great many of them, and payed for them, and gave them to his friends." This New Testament was completed by the beginning of December, at which time Grafton mentions it in a letter to Cromwell. He complains greatly of the Southwark edition, and speaks of it as though Coverdale had himself had nothing whatever to do with it, whereas, in fact, he had permitted Nicholson to print it, and had written the dedication to the king. By his account, it seems to have been reprinted at Paris, in order to supersede the former inaccurate impression; although the other work, which they had upon their hands, was such that they had "enough to do besides."

Coverdale dedicated this edition to Cromwell; and, in so doing, he enters into the history of the preceding impression, thus supplying many of those particulars which are known respecting it. He commences his dedication thus:—

"I was neuer so willinge to labour and trauayll for the edifyeng of my brethren (right honorable and my singular good lord) but I am and purpose to be while I lyue, by gods grace, euen as readye to amende and redresse anye maner of thyng, that I can espye to be ether synistrally prynted, or negligently correcte. And no lesse do I esteem it my dewtye to amende other mens fautes, then yf they were myne awne. Truth it is, that this last lent I dyd with all humbleness directe an Epistle vnto the kynges most noble grace: trustinge, that the boke (wher vnto it was prefixed) shulde afterwarde haue been aswell correcte, as other bokes be. And because I could not be present my selfe by the reason of sondrye notable impedimentes) therfore in asmuch as the new testament, which I had set forth in English before, doth so agree with the latyn, I was hartely well content that the latyn and it shulde be set together. Prouyded allwaye, that the correctour shulde followe the true copye of the latyn in anye wyse, and to kepe the true and right English of the same. And so doyng I was content to set my name to it. And euen so I dyd: trustinge, that though I were absent and out of the lande, yet all shulde be well: And (as God is my recorde) I knew none other, till this last Julye, that it was my chaunce here in these parties at a straungers hande, to come by a copye of the sayde prynte. Which when I had perused I founde, that as it was disagreeable to my former traslacion in English, so was not the true copye of the latyn texte obserued, nether the english so correspondent to the same, as it ought to be: but in many places both base, insensyble, and cleane contrary, not onely to the phrase of oure language, but also from the vnderstanding of the texte in latyn."

The translation mentioned in the above extract, which he had set forth in English, agreeing with the Latin, must, I suppose, mean (as has been already intimated) the New Testament, which had been published this same year, with the words, "Search the Scriptures," at the top of the title.

In an address to the reader, he states that this book "hath not bene set forth vnto the heretofore so

A proviso made.

Coverdale's Eng. & Lat. Test.

Fox. ii. 434.

Cotton MSS. Cleop. E. v. 328.

Grafton's letter to Cromwell, Dec. 1, 1538.

He mentions Nicholson's edition.

This edition first seen by Coverdale on July 1538.

exactly, and in all poyntes so perfectly as myght haue bene, I praye thee conster all to the best, and blame neyther the prynter ner me, considering that we beare no worse mynde vnto the then thou doest to thy selfe." He exhorts the reader that he will so use the scripture, "that . . . thou wylt so embrace it, folowe it, and practise it in thy daylie luyinge, that thou euen marye thy selfe to the frutes of the holy goost therin: And so vse it, that thou be sober in the knowlege therof, not onely avoyding all contencion and strife; But also wyth all humblenesse, & under correction to requyre of them (that be lerned in scripture) the true sense and vnderstanding of such places, as vnto the be yet darke and obscure."

Coverdale makes some remarks upon the state of the Latin text: "There be in it many & sondry sentences, wherof, some be more then the Greke, some lesse then the Greke, some in maner repugnaunt to the Greke, some contrary to the rules of the latyn tonge and to the right order therof, (as thou mayest easely perceaue, yf thou compare the diuersyte of the interpreters together)." Yet he did not think that it was his place as a private individual to revise the Latin text, except, however, in one place, namely, in the Lord's Prayer in Luke xi, he inserted all the petitions in the Latin, although the common copies of the Vulgate omit two of them. This edition was, in the title, stated to be printed "in Paris, by Fraunces Regnault, M. ceccc. xxxviii. in Nouembre. Prynted for Richard Grafton and Edward Whitechurch, cytezens of London."

State of the Latin text.

The Southwark edition having been thus condemned for its inaccuracy, Nicholson the printer got out another edition, which was stated in the title to be "Faythfully translated by Johan Hollybush." It has often been said, that Coverdale published it under the assumed name of John Hollybush; but not only does there appear to have been no reason why he should assume the disguise of so grotesque a name, but it is farther evident that it was simply a device of Nicholson's. His edition of Coverdale's Latin and English New Testament was known to be grievously inaccurate, he wished in some way to cover the loss he had incurred; and to this end he printed another edition, which he chose to ascribe to a fictitious person, John Hollybush, to distinguish it from his previous edition, so that its sale might not be hindered by the appearance of Coverdale's name.

Nicholson's other edition.

It is probable that Nicholson, hearing that Coverdale's Latin and English Testament was either about to be reprinted, or else was in course of reprinting at Paris, with more attention to accuracy, printed the one bearing the name of Hollybush without delay, in order to anticipate the Paris edition. I conclude that it was printed before the Paris edition was completed; otherwise it would probably have followed its text, which it does not. In the places in which it varies from the former inaccurate edition, it often differs equally from that printed at Paris: when it varies from the Paris edition, it appears commonly to agree with that which Nicholson had previously printed.

The publication of these various editions manifests the continued circulation of the word of God in England. A few years previously, all the weight of authority was opposed to the diffusion of the Scriptures; but now, through the good providence of God, the ruling powers in England were bending their efforts to this very end. It may be, that the motives of some of those who sought this were very low and selfish; but still God was pleased to overrule the whole;—while others, such as Cranmer and Cromwell were unquestionably influenced in this matter by far higher motives. Coverdale must, indeed, have rejoiced at the occupation in which he was engaged: he had laboured to give his countrymen the word of God in their own tongue, with an intensity of earnestness which has rarely been equalled, and (I may confidently affirm) never has been exceeded. And now he was sent by the king's vice-gerent to care for the publication and correction of an edition which was to be freely read and circulated, with all the sanction that the king's authority could confer. Previously editions had been printed abroad; and all the difficulty and danger had been connected with their introduction into England; but now things were so entirely changed, that the only danger was connected with the printing of the books in a foreign land.

Continued circulation of the Scriptures in England.

Motives of Cranmer and Cromwell.

The printing of Coverdale's Duoglott Testament did not prevent the "Great Bible" from continuing at press; on the 9th of August, 1538, Coverdale, Grafton, and Gray wrote to Cromwell, giving some account of their proceedings with the Bible. They say:—

Coverdale, Grafton, and Gray write to Cromwell, Aug. 9, 1538: Chap. Ho. West. Bundle C. State papers, l. 578.

"After moost humble and due salutation to your good Lordship. Pleaseth the same to understand, that your worke going forward, we thought it oure moost bounden dutie to sende unto your Lordship certayne leaves therof, specially seyng we had so good occasion, by the returnyng of your beloved seruaunt, Sebastian. And as they are done so will we sende your Lordship the residue, from tyme to tyme. As touchyng the maner and order that we kepe in the same worke pleaseth your good Lordship to be advertised that the merke  in the text signifieth, that upon the same (in the later ende of the booke) there is some notable annotacion . . . . . This marke  betokeneth, that upon the same texte there is diversitie of redyng, amonge the Hebrues, Caldees, and Grekes, and Latenystes; as in a table, at the ende of the booke, shalbe declared. This mark  sheweth that the sentence written in small letters, is not in the Hebrue, or Caldee, but in the Latyn, and seldome in the Greke; and that we, neverthesse, wolde not have it extinct, but highly accept yt, for the more explanacion of the text. This token †, in the Olde Testament, geueth to understand, that the same text, which foloweth it, is also alledged of Christ, or of some Apostle in the New Testament."

Stenographic marks used in the Great Bible.

At the time when they wrote this letter they do not appear to have been in any apprehension of being disturbed or hindered in their labour, for they make no allusion to any thing of the kind. They probably judged that the license of the king made them fully secure.

During the time that the printing was going on, Edward Fox, bishop of Hereford died. Bonner was appointed his successor, but still continued at Paris as ambassador, and shewed his friendship in every way, apparently, to all who were concerned in the printing of the Bible. Fox says of him, "The which Bishop outwardly shewed great friendship unto the merchants that were the imprinters of the same, and moreover did divers and sundry times call and command the said persons to be in manner daily at his table both dinner & supper, and so much rejoiced in the workmanship of the said Bibles, that he himself would visit the Imprinter's house, where the same Bibles were printed, and also would take part of such dinners as the Englishmen there had, and that to his cost, which as it seemed he little weighed." There can be very little doubt but that all this conduct on the part of Bishop Bonner was affected in order that he might stand well with Cromwell; it has been even supposed that his assiduity in aiding the work of the "Great Bible" was one reason, both of his being made bishop of Hereford, and likewise in the following year, on the death of Stokesley, of his subsequent translation to the see of London.

There is another letter extant in the handwriting of Coverdale, sent jointly by himself and Grafton to Cromwell, in favour of the printer of the Bible, whom they here call Franuces Reynold. This letter states that he had been long a printer of English books, and that he had then by him a large number of primers and others, which he was hindered from selling by the Company of Booksellers [Stationers]. The request made is that he may, under certain provisos, be allowed to sell those which he had in stock already printed; if this were granted, he engaged in future to have an Englishman as press-corrector. They conclude the letter, adverting thus to the printing of the Bible:—"Thus are we bolde to wryte unto your Lordshippe, in his cause, (as doth also my Lord Elect of Herfford) beseeching your Lordshippe to pardon our boldnesse, and to be good lorde unto this honest man, whose servant shall geve attendaunce upon your Lordshippes most favorable answer. Yf your Lordshippe shew him this benefyte, we schall not fare the worse in the readynesse and due expedition of this your Lordshippes work of the Bible, which goeth well forward, and within few monethes, will drawe to an ende by the grace of Almighty God."

The work thus progressed without the conductors having any present apprehensions of danger. In a letter of Coverdale's to Cromwell, dated October 30th, he does not even mention it; his object in writing being to endeavour to nullify certain injurious reports which had been spread respecting a Mr. Beckynall, an Englishman studying at Paris, who had been reported to have continued to uphold the authority of the Pope. This Mr. Beckynall appears from this letter to have lodged with the Englishmen who were superintending the work of printing the "Great Bible."

In the following month (November), Coverdale's Duoglott New Testament was completed at press, and at once was put into circulation through the assiduity of Bonner. This may probably have led on to the catastrophe which soon after occurred. It appears likely that the Inquisition took the alarm at the publication of this book; and they feared to what the doings of the English superintendents of the press might lead.

By the 13th of December they had just reached the end of the printing of the "Great Bible." Fox says that "the Printer went forward, and printed forth the book even to the last part, and then was the quarrel picked with the Printer." Coverdale's letter to Cromwell, dated Dec. 13 [1538], speaks of the seizure of which they were apprehensive, and very plainly shews that the printing of the Bible itself was just completed. Coverdale commences his letter with inquiries respecting the annotations to the Bible expository of the passages marked with a hand : from this it seems clear that the only question now was, whether those additions should be appended to this edition or not; and by this it is intimated that the book itself had been completed. The supplementary tables of the Epistles, Gospels, &c., at the end of which is given the date, April, 1539, begin on the same page as the Revelation concludes. The book is printed in gatherings or quires of eight leaves, the folio pages being so printed that they lie inside one another, like those of an octavo volume. The signatures also run like those of an octavo: thus the last part of the New Testament could not be actually printed off, until it were known what was to come at the end, whether it should be Bonner appointed Bp. of Hereford.

Fox, ii. 434.

Bonner seeks Cromwell's favour.

Coverdale and Grafton write to Cromwell, Sept. 12, 1538. Chap. Ho. West. Bandle C. State papers, i. 388.

Coverdale's letter to Cromwell, Oct. 30, 1538. Bibl. Suss.

Coverdale's Duoglott New Test. completed, Nov. 1538.

Fox, ii. 434.

Coverdale's letter to Cromwell, Dec. 13, 1538. Harl. MSS. Cod. 604, p. 98.

the proposed annotations, or whether the volume should simply conclude with a table. To ascertain this appears to be one of the objects of Coverdale's letter. He says:—

“Right honorable and my singlar good lorde (after all dew salutations) I humbly beseche youre lordshippe, y<sup>e</sup> by my lorde elete of herdforde, I maye knowe youre pleasure, concerning the Annotations of this byble, whether I shall procede therein or no.—Pitie it were, y<sup>e</sup> the darck places of y<sup>e</sup> text (vpon y<sup>e</sup> which I have allwaye set a hande ) shulde so passe vndeclared. As for anye pryuate opynion or contencious words, as I wyll utterly avoyde all soche, so wyll I offre y<sup>e</sup> annotations first to my sayde lord of herdforde; to ye intent y<sup>e</sup> he shall so examen y<sup>e</sup> same, afore they be put in prynte, yf it be y<sup>e</sup> lordshippes good pleasure y<sup>e</sup> I shall so do.”

This may now seem to have been a strange work for Bonner to be employed about at this time. He was shewing as much zeal and earnestness for the setting forth of the Bible, as either Cromwell or Coverdale: it was therefore but natural that Coverdale should wish to submit the annotations which he might make to the approval of Bonner, as being a person with whom he might consult about their propriety.

Coverdale next adverts to his Duoglott New Testament, which had been dedicated to Cromwell:—“As concerning y<sup>e</sup> new Testaments in english & latyn, wherof yo<sup>r</sup> good lordshippe receaued lately a boke by yo<sup>r</sup> seruauent Sebastian y<sup>e</sup> cooke, I besech yo<sup>r</sup> l. to consydre y<sup>e</sup> gressness therof which (for lack of tyme) can not as yet be so apte to be bounde, as it shulde be.” From the manner in which he then mentions the work of the Bible, it appears that not only had they, from time to time, sent “certayne leaves therof” (as they mention in their letter, Aug. 9), but that now they sent some considerable quantity of sheets: they were apprehensive of a seizure, and thus they employed the same means which conveyed this letter for transmitting to Cromwell's keeping and care a certain portion of the impression; as much, it is probable, as could be sent by the opportunity whatever that might be. Coverdale says:—“And whereas my sayde lord of hardford is so good vnto us as to conuay this moch of y<sup>e</sup> Bible to yo<sup>r</sup> good lordshippe, I humbly beseche y<sup>e</sup> same, to be y<sup>e</sup> defender & keper therof: To y<sup>e</sup> intent y<sup>e</sup> yf these men procede in their cruellnesse agaynst us & confiscate the rest, yet this at y<sup>e</sup> leest may be safe by y<sup>e</sup> meanes of youre lordshippe.” This desire that what was sent might be in safety, plainly shews that it was not merely a copy, or even a few copies, that was transmitted to Cromwell, but a part of the impression, which was dispatched for further safety.

It is clear that before this letter was written they had had some intimations of what the proceedings of the Inquisition were likely to be, and thus they must have found that the royal permission given by Francis would avail them very little. It can hardly be thought that the Inquisitors would have proceeded in direct defiance of the license of the king, unless there was either some technical objection which they could raise against the instrument itself, or else something done by those so licensed which rendered void the permission which they had received: both of these grounds of objection might, I believe, have been raised: the latter, in that the Latin and English New Testaments had been circulated by Bonner at Paris, instead of being at once conveyed to England, according to the terms of the license. Many things, likewise, in the dedication and preface might be made grounds of accusation, so that the license might be judged to be forfeited, in consequence of “private and unlawful opinions” being maintained in the books printed. And then, as to the Instrument, it appears to have been regarded as in itself void, as having been granted for a purpose which only tended to the furtherance of heretical pravity.

Four days after Coverdale had warily transmitted to Cromwell, by the aid of Bonner, a portion of the impression: the dreaded interference of the ecclesiastical authorities actually took place. On the 17th of December, Henry Garvais, S.T.D., “Prior of the Convent of the Preaching Friars at Paris, & Vicar-general of the Venerable father Friar Matthew Ory, of the same order & D.D. Inquisitor-general of heretical pravity in the whole kingdom of France, by apostolical & regal authority especially deputed,” issued an instrument setting forth, “That since from the translation of the Sacred Scriptures, as well of the Old Testament as New, into the mother tongue, which cometh to the hands of the simple, it is found in these last days that some have taken occasion of error in the faith; and that it is provided by edicts of the supreme court of parliament, that none should print the Old & New Testament in his mother tongue or sell it being printed.” After thus stating the grounds of the proceedings, it is stated that one Francis Regnault printed the Bible “in the vulgar Brittanie or English language, by reason of which scandalls & errors might arise in the Church;” in consequence of this, all priests, vicars, and curates are called upon to summon the said F. Regnault, “and all other whom it might concern,” to answer to the charges. They were also prohibited, under canonical pains, to print the said Bible, or to remove or conceal the sheets already printed, without

Sheets of the “Great Bible” sent to Cromwell.

The proceedings of the Inquisition.

The instrument of the Inquisition,
Dec. 17, 1535.
Cotton MSS.
Cleop. E. v. 920.

The printer summoned or a charge of heresy.

their being seen by the Inquisitor's vicar-general. It will be observed, that Grafton and Coverdale were only mentioned by implication in this document; this may have been done to prevent any direct collision with the secular powers.

The subsequent transactions are thus narrated by Fox:—

Fox, ii. 434.
Coverdale and Grafton leave Paris.

The Bible
seized, and burned.

Four dry-fats of them sold.

"Then were sent for the English men that were at the cost and charge thereof, and also such as had the correction of the same, which was Miles Coverdale: but having some warning what would follow, the said English men posted away as fast as they could to save themselves, leaving behind them all their Bibles, which were to the number of two thousand five hundred, called the Bibles of the great volume, and never recovered any of them, saying the Lieutenant Criminal having them delivered unto him to burn in a place of Paris (like Smithfield) called Malbert place, was somewhat moved with covetousness, and sold four great dry-fats of them to a Haberdasher to lap Caps in, and those were bought again, but the rest were burned to the great and importunate loss of those that bare the charge of them."

The copies which were "bought again," must, from what Fox says a little farther on, have continued for a considerable time in the hands of those who bought them of the "Lieutenant Criminal;" it was not until about a year, at least, subsequently, that Grafton recovered them.

This was the conclusion of the attempt to print at Paris an English Bible, which, for accuracy and execution, should surpass those which had preceded it. The history continues:—

The English-
men get the printing presses, &c.
The Bible completed in London.

"But notwithstanding the said loss, after they had recovered some part of the foresaid books, and were comforted and encouraged by the Lord Cromwell, the said English men went again to Paris & there got the Presses, letters & servants of the foresaid printer, and brought them to London, and there they became Printers themselves (which before they never intended) and printed out the said Bible in London, and after that printed out sundry impressions of them; but yet not without great trouble & loss, for the hatred of the Bishops, namely St. Gardiner & his fellows, who mightily did stomach and malign the printing thereof."

Part of this edition published April, 1539.

The transactions connected with the procuring of the presses, types, &c. must have occupied some time; for it was not until April, 1539, that this edition of the Bible (or, at least, that portion of it which Coverdale had sent to Cromwell) was published. Fox says, in the above extract, that they printed it out in London, although he had said before, that the printing of the Bible was complete, even to the last part of it, before the Inquisition interfered. By this we may understand, that the table to find the Epistles and Gospels, and the table of the Epistles and Gospels for various saints' days, were, with the conclusion of the book, printed at the date, which is afterwards given, "The end of the new Testament and of the whole Byble, Fynished in Apryll, Anno M. cccc. xxxix. A dño factū est istud." It is thus evident that these supplementary pieces were printed several months later than the greater part of the Bible itself; and it is probable that the printers had not made any formal conclusion of their book, because they did not as yet know whether the proposed annotations by Coverdale, upon the passages marked with a hand, ☞, would be allowed to be appended, and these would then have commenced upon the page on which the Revelation ends.

Cranmer's
Bible.
Cranmer's prologue, 1540.

This Bible is very commonly called "Cranmer's Bible." It is doubtful whence the name has arisen, whether from some of the copies having Cranmer's Prologue in them, or from some other cause. This Prologue is supposed, on good grounds, to belong really to the folio Bible of the year 1540, and to be inserted in some of the copies of this edition. How this came to pass may, I think, be easily explained. The name of "Cranmer's Bible" may belong to it, on account of the New Testament having been the recension which the archbishop had caused to be executed a few years before.

Close of 1539.

It could not be till the close of this year, 1539, that Grafton and his colleagues obtained the "four dry-fats full" of Bibles which had been preserved from the fire. Fox says, "After the Imprinters had lost their Bibles, they continued suitors to Bonner, as is aforesaid, to be a mean to obtain of the French King their Books again; but so long they continued suitors, and Bonner ever fed them with fair words, promising them much, but did nothing for them, till at the last Bonner was discharged from his Embassy, and returned home." Bonner is not to be blamed for his want of success in obtaining the interference of Francis for the recovery of the unburned copies. He had, before this, offended Francis, by his bluntness with regard to some diplomatic negociations, about which he was employed. On his being translated from the see of Hereford, of which he was bishop elect, to that of London, vacant by the death of Stokesley, he sent for Grafton, who was then in Paris (this must have been when he went to try to procure his Bibles, for the date does not accord with the time of the printing). When Grafton came to him, Bonner said to him:—

Bonner resolved.

Translated to London.

His speech to Grafton.

"Master Grafton, so it is that the King's most excellent majesty hath by his gracious gift presented me to the Bishoprick of London, for the which I am sorry, for if it would have pleased his Grace, I could have been well content to have kept nine old Bishoprick of Hereford." Then, said Grafton, "I am right glad to hear of it, & so I am sure will be a great number of the city of London; for though they yet know you not, yet they have heard so much goodness of you from hence, as no doubt they will be glad of your placing." Then said Bonner, "I pray God I may do that may content them." After this, he said, adverting to his predecessor, "The greatest fault that ever I found in Stokesly and, God willing, he did not so much hinder it, but I will as much further it, and I will have of your Bibles set up in the Church of Pauls, at least in sundry places, six of them, and I will pay you honestly for them, and give hearty thanks."

He blames Stokesly.

How little did it then seem that Bonner would himself so far outdo Stokesly as a persecutor of the saints of God, that his predecessor's name is scarcely known for cruelty in comparison with his own. But to be earnest for the circulation of the word of God in English, was the pathway to favour, so long as Cromwell continued at the head of affairs in England; and this had doubtless much to do with Bonner's zeal, though he may, indeed, have thought himself sincere; so little does the heart often know the motives by which it is actually influenced.

The contrast of Bonner's subsequent conduct.

Grafton appears to have been more successful, after the recall of Bonner, in procuring the portion of the books which the haberdasher had bought, than he had been before; for Fox says, expressly, that Grafton bought them, and that while Bonner continued ambassador at Paris, he did not succeed in so doing. These copies, obtained about the latter part of the year 1539, were, I expect, completed with the same additional pieces as those which had been issued in the preceding April, and their apparent date would be the same; these rescued copies are, I suspect, those to which Cramer's preface is prefixed.* This preface appears to have been written in the latter part of 1539; for on the 14th of November (in this year it is almost certain) Cramer wrote to Cromwell, asking if the king had seen and allowed the preface which he had written to the Bible, that it might be given to the printer to print. Now, at this time, this preface could not be wanted in haste for any Bible which was to be published in the following year; and I think it is most probable that this preface was first printed at this time, to be prefixed to the second issue of the Paris printed Bible. If, therefore, the name of Cramer's Bible be supposed to belong rightly to the edition of 1540, on account of its having his prologue, the re-issue of this prior impression appears to deserve it on precisely similar grounds. Enough copies may have been printed off to serve both for this issue and for the forthcoming impression.

The copies bought and completed.

Cramer's preface written, end of 1539. Chap. Ho. West. Bunde. C. Mem. 139. p. 92.

The publishers of this edition, in a short preface which they have prefixed, inform the reader what was intended by the marks which are placed in various parts of the book.

"First, where as often tyme ye shall fynde a small letter in the texte, it sygnifyeth that so moche as is in the small letter doth abounde and is more in the common translacyon in Latyn, then is founde ether in the Hebrue or in the Greke, whych wordes and sentences we have added, not only to manifest the same vnto you, but also to satisfye and content those, that here before tyme, hath myssed soche sentences in the Bybles and new testaments before set forth. Moreover whereas ye find this sign . it betokeneth a dyuersyte and difference of readyngne betweene the Hebrues and the Chaldee in the same place, which diuersytes of readings we were purposed to haue set forth perticularly vnto you: But for so moch as they are very longe and tedyous, and thys volume is very greate and houge alreadye, we leaue therfore at tyme left them oute, trustyngne hereafter to set them forth in some litle volume by them selues. We haue also (as ye maye se) added many handes both in the mergent of thys volume and also in the texte, vpon the which, we purposed to haue made in the ende of the Byble (in a table by them selues) certen godly annotacions: but for so moche as yet there hath not bene sufficient tyme minystrted to the Kynges most honorable counsell, for the ouersyght and correcyon of the sayde annotacions, we will therfore omitt them, tyll their more conuenient leysour."

The variations omitted.

The title-page of this Bible is very remarkable for the engraving with which it is surrounded. In the upper part of the page above the title, Henry VIII. appears seated on his throne, with bishops and other ecclesiastics on his right hand, the Lord Cromwell and other lords on his left; he is delivering the Bible on each side, and from his mouth proceed labels containing portions of Scripture. Above this, in the Title-page described.

* Various copies, which all appear as if they belonged to this Paris printed edition, have in them minor variations: they contain the same matter, folio for folio, but in the initial letters, &c. there are many variations. This singular fact may be in part accounted for, by supposing that the copies sent by Coverdale to Cromwell, as well as the recovered copies, were in some, or many of the sheets, partially defective, and that thus the printers re-composed some of the sheets, working the impressions which were needed to complete the sets.

Lewis speaks of the tome containing the Apocrypha in this Bible, as concluding on folio lxi. Now it is the fact, with regard to certain of the copies (the splendid one, for instance, which belongs to the Baptist College at Bristol, from which the version contained in the present work is printed), but the lxi is an error: for lxxx; the preceding folio is numbered quite right. Other copies which have the same concluding date, have the true numbering of this folio; so that it is clear that that leaf was either reprinted, or else corrected while in course of printing; this is the greatest discrepancy which has been alleged with regard to the several copies. Some of the editions of 1540 are said to be those of the year 1539, continued in the same way, namely, by fresh sheets being printed to make up for deficiencies. All these issues of the Bible being alike, folio answering to folio, the pages of them have become much intermixed.

back ground, Christ appears in the clouds, and the king is kneeling on one side, with his crown placed on the ground. In the parts of the page on each side of the title, are two representations: on the one side, Cranmer appears mitred, delivering the Bible to the clergy, with an admonition to the exercise of their functions; and, on the other side, Cromwell gives it to the laity. At the feet of the two figures of Cranmer and Cromwell, their arms are exhibited within a circle. The lower part of the page is occupied by a preacher and a congregation. Out of the preacher's mouth proceeds a label, on which is inscribed 1 Tim. ii. 1, &c.; and the congregation respond to the exhortation to pray for kings and all that are in authority with the cry of "Vivat Rex," which proceeds from their mouths: some have "God save the King," but it is the general arrangement of the composition that the labels should be in Latin. In one corner of the representation of the preacher and the congregation there is a prison, at the bars of which some prisoners are to be seen, and they alone do not join in the acclamation: this was, I suppose, intended to intimate that this punishment awaited all undutiful subjects.

¶ The Byble in

Englishe, that is to saye the content of all the holy scripture bothe of y<sup>e</sup> olde and newe testament, truly translated after the herpse of the Hebreu and Greke textes, by y<sup>e</sup> dylygent studie of dyuerse excellent learned men, expert in the forsaide tonges.

¶ Printed by Richard Grafton & Edward Whitchurch.

Cum privilegio ad imprimendum solum.
1539.

numerous, so that this recension could not have come into general use until the re-impression in the year 1540. The prologue of Cranmer contained an exhortation to the reading of the Scripture, together with a setting forth of the uses for which it is profitable: the writing of this prologue was apparently connected with the setting up of the Bible in all churches, which was at this time directed, in order that the people might resort thither and read, and thus have the opportunity of knowing for themselves what was revealed in the Scriptures.

This prologue contains also an interesting allusion to the fact that although many in England at that time regarded the unfolding of the word of God to the people in their vernacular tongue as a strange innovation, yet that in truth the innovation had consisted in the withholding of the Scriptures.

"And yet if the matter should bee tryed by custome, wee might also too alledge custome for the reading of the Scripture in the vulgar tongue, and prescribe the more auncient custome. For it is not much above one hundred years agoe, since Scripture hath not been accustomed to bee read in the vulgar tongue within this realm: and many hundred years before that it was translated and read in the Saxons tongue, which at that time was our mother tongue: whereof there remain yet divers copies, found lately in old abbies, of such antique maner of writing and speaking, that few men now been able to read and understand them. And when this language waned old, and out of common usage, because folke should not lack the fruit of reading, it was again translated into the newer language, whereof many copies remain, & bee daily found."

After thus discussing the question of innovation, he takes up the subject on the ground of its own merits,—"Let us here discuss, what it availeth, Scripture to bee had and read of the lay & vulgar people." On this matter Cranmer contents himself with quoting from Chrysostom, in a condensed form, certain earnest exhortations addressed to his hearers, that they would at home consider and read in the Scriptures those things concerning which they heard sermons. In these quotations, the various objections which different persons might raise against the reading of Scripture being necessary for them, are briefly answered. After the citations from Chrysostom, Cranmer speaks of the uses of Scripture, and then in the latter part of the prologue treats of the misuse which unholy men might make of the liberty of reading the word of God; against which abuse he earnestly cautions the readers.

This appeared to be the fittest place for noticing the prologue of Cranmer, since copies of it are sometimes found prefixed to the "Great Bible" of 1539, and since it appears it was for the second issue of that impression that it was printed at first.

The Psalms still retained in the Prayer-book.

Cranmer's Prologue.

The withholding the Scriptures an innovation.

V.

MEASURES TAKEN FOR THE CIRCULATION OF THE SCRIPTURES — TAVERNER'S BIBLE PUBLISHED.

THE care of Cromwell was not confined to the printing and publishing of the Bible in English, he also took measures for causing it to be circulated and read. The position of vicar-general and vice-gerent of Henry, which he occupied in his newly acquired ecclesiastical supremacy, was certainly a strange and anomalous one. It is not improbable that the idea of such an office had been suggested to the mind of the king from the circumstance of Pope Clement having, during his captivity, appointed Wolsey to the office of vicar-general under him for the kingdom of England. But although the office of Cromwell was strange and anomalous, yet it must be conceded that in one respect it was used for good. No one seems to have exceeded him in zeal and earnestness for the diffusion of the Scriptures: in this he was used as a providential instrument in the hands of God for bringing about great blessing. How little could this conduct have been looked for from Cromwell, when it is remembered that a very few years before he had joined in the fruitless attempts that were made by Henry to entrap Tyndale on account of the publication of the English Scriptures.

The measures which Cromwell adopted are to be found in the injunctions to the clergy which he published in September, 1533, while the "Great Bible" was in the press at Paris. The second and third of these injunctions ran thus:—

"Item, that ye shall provide on this side the feast of — next commyng, one boke of the whole Bible of the largest volume in Englyshe, and the same sett up in summe convenient place within the said churche that ye have the cure of, whereat your parishners may most commodiouslye resort to the same and rede yt; the charges of whiche boke shal be ratable born between you the parson, and the parishners aforesaid, that ys to say, the one half by yowe, and th'other half by them.

"Item, that ye shall discourage no man pryvely or apertly from the readinge or hearinge of the same Bible, but shall expresslye provoke, sterve, and exhorte every parson to rede the same, as that whyche ys the verye lively worde of God, that every christen man ys bounde to embrace, beleve, and folowe, yf he loke to be saved; admonyslinge them neverthesse, to avoid all contention and alteration therein, and to use an honest sobrette in the inquisition of the true sense of the same, and referre th'explication of obscure places to men of higher judgement in Scripture."

It is to be remembered, that in the year 1536 an injunction, somewhat similar to the former of these, had been intended to be issued, although (as is shewn by Cramer's register) it was afterwards withdrawn. It is probable that the objections which were made to the notes and prologues of Matthew's Bible prevented the intended injunction from being revived until this time, when a new edition was about to appear, which was regarded as clear of all such objectionable matter.*

The remainder of the injunctions issued by Cromwell at this time, refer to the teaching of the people the Lord's Prayer, &c., in English, the abolition of certain parts of popish idolatry which had been accustomed, the abrogation of Thomas Becket's day, and other similar subjects. Probably the abolition of many of these things gave less offence to the priests who received the injunctions, than did the setting forth the Bible in English.

The king also published a declaration to be read by all curates upon the publication of the Bible, the date of which is supposed to be about this time, probably a little later than the actual distribution of the copies of the Bible in various parishes: this distribution must have taken some considerable time, for as the number of copies of the "Great Bible" which were preserved was comparatively small, it was impossible for by far the larger number of parishes to be supplied with copies, unless indeed they were permitted to use, by way of a temporary provision, the translations which had been previously published. In the "declaration" which was thus to be read, the people were informed that the king "for a declarayton of the

* It has been said (Mem. Cov. p. 107), that it "cannot be ascertained whether these injunctions referred to Matthew's Bible, or to the one which was then printing at Paris;" now I believe, that it is very certain and clear that the injunction was purposely so worded as to exclude Matthew's Bible; "the whole Bible of the largest volume," seems expressly intended to apply to the forthcoming edition, to the exclusion of all that had preceded. The day not being named need not lead to any uncertainty about which Bible it was, because, if the book had been already printed and in England, why should any such blank have been left at all? In the injunctions which were framed after the printing of Coverdale's Bible, the day is mentioned against which the book was to be provided; and so surely would it have been in this case, if the book itself had been completed.

Injunctions, Sept. 1533.

Fox, ii. 525. Mem. Cov. p. 107.

The Bible was set up in every parish church.

To be freely read.

A similar injunction intended in 1536.

A declaration to be read: Cott. MS. Cleop. EA. 327

The king's sanction expressly stated.

greate zeale he bereth to the setting furth of Gods woorde," had permitted and commanded that the Bible, being translated into English, should be sincerely taught by the curates, and laid in every parish church, that all by reading and hearing might learn their duty to God, &c. This preamble was probably intended to meet the gainsaying of those who would not believe that the king had permitted the Scriptures to be thus read and taught. The declaration continues:—

The authority of Scripture set forth.

"His Majestie hath willed and commanded this to be declared unto youe, that his Graces pleasure and liegh commandment is, that in the reading and hering thereof, first most humbly and reverently using and addressing your selves unto it, you shall have alwayes in your remembrance and memoryes, that all things conteyned in this booke is the undoubted Wyll, Lawe, and Comaundement of Almighty God, thonly and streit meane to knowe the goodnes and benefyt of God towards us, and the true duty of every christen man to serve him accordingly. And that therefore reading this book with such mind and firm feyth, as is aforesaid, you shall first endeavour yourselfes to conforme your owne lyvings and conversation to the contents of the same : and so by your good and vertuose example to encourage your wives children, and servants, to live-wel and christly according to the rule therof."

Alchouses not to be used for disputing on Scripture.

The latter part of this declaration is very singular: it principally relates to what should be done by those in whose minds any diversity of opinion should arise in the reading of Scripture. They are directed not to have open reasoning on the subject in taverns or alehouses; but to have recourse to learned men, to whose judgments they were quietly to submit themselves. It is most certain, that taverns and alehouses are very unfit places for the discussion of questions as to what the word of God teaches; but the proposed remedy savours much of human policy. It might be well for those who were in doubt to confer with others who might be able the better to instruct them; but for them to be allowed to read the Scriptures, and yet to be bound to receive the interpretation which men, however wise or learned, might choose to impose thereon, was causing them, at least, in some measure, to receive the truth of God as though it had been the tradition of man. If any interpretation of Scripture be authoritatively imposed, it makes the judgment of man to be received as being of equal weight with the word of God.

It is not that every man has a right to judge for himself as to what the truth of God is, but that every man is responsible to God for hearing and taking heed to whatever God is pleased to declare. It is thus the Scriptures are presented to us; and no one can transfer his own responsibility to another.

How little the curates, to whom the injunctions of the vicar-general and the direction of the king were sent, liked them, or cared to comply with them, we shall soon have cause to see.

Fos, ii. 369.
Mem. Gov.
p. 111.
Cott. M.S.
Cleop. E. v.
fol. 340, b.

The king also issued certain regulations respecting the importation and printing of the Scriptures in English. Certain injunctions, the date of which appears to be November, 1538, contain, amongst other things, a prohibition of the importation of English books printed abroad; also a prohibition of the printing of any book in English, unless it were first allowed by some of the king's privy council, and others whom he might appoint, and then the words "Cum privilegio Regali," were to be put with the addition of "ad imprimendum solum." No English books of Scripture were to be printed, or imported from abroad, with any annotations in the margin, or any prologue or additions in the calendar or table, unless such annotations or additions were first examined and allowed by the king, or by those whom he might appoint. Every book of Scripture that was printed, was to have the plain name of the translator affixed to it. No person within the realm was to print any book of Scripture, unless it had been examined by the king, or by one of the privy council, or by a bishop, whose name was to be expressed. These various particulars are enjoined under heavy penalties. The other parts of the injunctions show, even more plainly than the above, that they were framed with a spirit very hostile to the Reformation. They were probably the suggestions of Gardiner; and they seem to have been intended to hamper the circulation even of the "Great Bible," which was then at press in Paris.

On the 14th of November, 1539, the king issued his letters patent, prohibiting any one from printing any English Bible for the space of five years, unless he were licensed by Cromwell. This was done to avoid the inconveniences which might proceed from the use of a variety of translations.

Taverner's revision, 1539.

In the year 1539, besides the "Great Bible," there was a recension of Matthew's Bible, executed by Richard Taverner. This edition is a sort of revision; the text being, for the most part, the same, except in minor particulars. It seems as though the object of Taverner had been to correct the translation in every place where he had observed any error, or what seemed to him to be such.

Richard Taverner, the editor of this Bible, was born in the year 1505, in the county of Norfolk. He was educated at Ben'et College Cambridge; afterwards, he removed to Oxford, where, at the College of St. Frideswide's, he was admitted a junior canon; and, in the year 1527, he took his degree of bachelor of arts.

After this, he returned to Cambridge, where he took his master's degree; and, coming to London, began to study law; first, at Staire Inn, otherwise called Stroud Inn (which stood upon part of the site now occupied by Somerset House): from thence he removed to the Inner Temple, where he accustomed himself to make rather a singular and pedantic use of his knowledge of Greek, by quoting the law in that tongue whenever he had occasion.

Studies law.

In 1534, Taverner was taken into the employ of Cromwell; through whose interest, three years afterwards, he was made one of the clerks of the signet in ordinary; a situation which he retained till the accession of Queen Mary, in 1553. It was while thus standing in the favour both of the king and of Cromwell, that he published his "Recognition" of the Bible. He also published some other works about this time. After the fall of Cromwell, in 1540, Taverner was for some time committed prisoner to the Tower: this has been variously represented, some supposing that it was on account of the Bible which he had edited, while others have attributed it to his having slandered Anne of Cleves, Henry's fourth wife. Be that as it may, he was soon liberated, and continued in favour with the king.

Taken into Cromwell's employ, 1534.

Sent to the Tower, 1540.

In the reign of Edward VI., in consequence of the great scarcity of godly preachers to set forth the Gospel, Taverner, although a layman, received from the king a license to preach throughout the kingdom. However strange the mention of this may now appear, it was not without some kind of precedent at that time. Sir Thomas More, after he was called to the bar, read a public lecture in the church of St. Laurence, Old Jewry; these lectures were attended by the more learned of the city of London. They were not, it is true, upon the Scripture, but upon St. Augustin De Civitate Dei; but still the thing itself bore a strong resemblance in kind to Taverner's license.

Licenced to preach, 1552.

Sir T. More a lecturer in St. Laurence's church.

The license granted to Taverner runs thus:—

The license to Taverner.

"Whereas y<sup>e</sup> people are ignorant through the slackness of pastors, to y<sup>e</sup> intent y<sup>t</sup> people may learne how to use themselves toward God & us. Having knowledge of y<sup>e</sup> learning & honest conversation of our servant Rich. Taverner sometimes student in Oxenford & Cambridge, & M<sup>r</sup>. of arts, wee have authorized him to preach in all places of our dominions, commanding all Bps. & officers of y<sup>e</sup> clergy & laity to permit him freely to preach & to apprehend all y<sup>t</sup> shall interrupt him, &c.

"Gevven under our hand and seale the 13 May in y<sup>e</sup> year of our raigne."

The year of this instrument (although omitted in the date) was 1552. Accordingly, he preached both at court before the king as well as in other places. His habit appears to have been studiously unclerical; for he appeared in a velvet bonnet, a damask gown, and with a gold chain about his neck; he often preached thus attired in the beginning, at St. Mary's, Oxford, in the reign of Elizabeth.

He preaches before the king and in other places.

During the reign of Mary, Taverner retired to his house, Norbiton Hall, in the county of Surrey, where he mostly continued during the whole of her reign. On the accession of Elizabeth he presented her with a congratulatory epistle, upon which she offered him the honour of knighthood, which he declined, probably, in part, on account of his income being too limited for him to support this dignity. He was, a little after this, unable to lend 100*l.* to the queen, who had required from him this sum.

At Norbiton Hall in the reign of Mary. Elizabeth offers to knight him.

He continued to preach for several years, and was also put into the commission of the peace for the county of Oxford, of which he served the office of High Sheriff in the year 1569. In this year he preached before the University, but in a style which, however it might have been pleasing to pedantic scholars, did not much savour of Christian simplicity; it is not unlikely, however, that he accommodated himself in some measure to his audience. On this occasion, in addition to his other habiliments, he wore a sword at his side.

High Sheriff of Oxfordshire, 1569.

He died in the year 1575, 14th July, at his house, Wood-Eaton, near Oxford, aged seventy years.

His death. 1575.

Although Taverner holds a far from conspicuous place amongst the English Reformers of the sixteenth century, yet his zeal and care in seeking more purely and accurately to give forth the word of God in English, was a work which, doubtless, helped on the knowledge of the Gospel. The numerous editions through which it almost immediately went, prove that its circulation was considerable; and this too was without its being set forth by any authority as a translation which was to be set in the parish churches: the translation with which this had to compete in circulation was the "Great Bible," and it is very probable that many, who could not afford so large a volume, found Taverner's edition a book which more suited their means. It is to be observed, that they were private readers alone who used this book in its various editions, as it was never, even for a time, publicly made an "authorized" version.

The circulation of Taverner's Bible considerable.

The New Testament of Taverner's "Recognition of the Bible," is not to be confounded with that which he also published separately: this last mentioned has almost to be regarded as a distinct work. It was also published in 1539.

Taverner's New Test.

State of the English Reformation.

A brief glance at the state in which things were in England, as regards the Reformation, at the time of the first publication of the "Great Bible" (namely, in April, 1539), together with a retrospective view of some events, will be fitting at this point.

Little opposition made in England to the casting off of papal supremacy.

The fabric of Romish doctrine had received a severe shock in England, in the separation of this country from the communion of the see of Rome. This measure, if regarded in itself, was evidently popular in England. There was amongst the far greater part of the people, an earnest clinging to every jot of ceremonial superstition delivered to them by tradition; but their attachment to the see of Rome was far from strong. Thus it was, that the transfer of the ecclesiastical supremacy from the Pope to the crown, took place with scarcely a struggle. The consequences of this step were, however, momentous; and in the issue (through the overruling providence of God), productive of results replete with blessing. Those who had for years secretly longed for the free circulation of the Scriptures, and the unhindered preaching of the Gospel, were encouraged by the hope that the separation from Rome would become so wide, that nothing might hinder the introduction of better things; many sanguinely expecting the immediate result to be the full shining of the light of the Reformation.

The hopes of reformers.

Mistaken.

In this hope they were greatly mistaken: they seem little to have borne in mind how multiform error is, and that, although the authority of Rome was cast off, yet that that negative step was no pledge of would next be done.

Apprehensions of the upholders of Romish doctrine.

On the other hand, those who wished doctrines, ceremonies, &c., to remain just where they had been, were filled with apprehensions lest the casting off of the papal authority might lead to farther departures from the doctrines and practices hitherto received. Thus, Henry with his title of "Supreme Head of the Church and Congregation of England," was placed between two widely opposing parties, the one urging on, the other retarding, the Reformation. But, besides these external influences, there were other motives which impelled him in contrary directions: his inclination, all other considerations aside, was decidedly and strongly in favour of popish doctrine and ceremonial, while, on the contrary, his interest led him into a course of opposition. Again, his desire of appropriating to himself the Abbies, and other foundations of a similar kind, led him to make deep inroads upon the received doctrines. Purgatory, as then held, was not to be an obstacle to the grasp of the royal prerogative: and besides this, after his rupture with the Pope, he had taken a position in which it was necessary to entrench himself, if he would keep his people clear of papal influence.

Henry's inclinations and interests.

To the operation of these conflicting elements in the mind of the king, as well as around him, we may attribute much of his otherwise extraordinary conduct. He went a certain distance according to the counsel of Cromwell, Crammer, and others; but, after a while, his end was answered, and the fear of too great innovation, together with the counsels of Gardiner, and of the great majority of others who were thoroughly papists in every thing except that of the supremacy, prevailed, and this caused him to take gradually retrograding measures.

The overruling providence of God with regard to the Scriptures.

But one great event, which was brought to pass by the sovereign and overruling hand of God, was the giving forth of the Scriptures in English: true it is, that they were afterwards restrained, but a deed was done which could not be undone; the truth of God was brought to bear upon the consciences of men—the light had shone forth, which Satan and his emissaries might strive in vain to extinguish.

The "Gospellers" could appeal to the Bible in the names of the apostles.

And now that the Bible was in the hands of the people, there was that to which the "Gospellers" might appeal in support of the message which they bore; while, at the same time, the placing of one copy of the Bible in every parish church, for the free perusal of the people, led to this,—that even when there was no preacher to bear the glad tidings of God's grace, the book of God contained the message within itself. Thus the consciences of some were aroused by the reading of the word. The poorest and the most illiterate might hear it read; and those who could read, and possessed the means, might have the word of God in their own houses for their free use. The preaching of Latimer, Barnes, and others, may have done much; but the Spirit of God, working in the hearts of those who read and heard the word of God, did far more.

More results from the reading of the word than from preaching.

The form and appearance of the Scriptures as now printed, indicates the change which had taken place. When Tyndale first published the English New Testament in print, he did it, as he himself says, with the full expectation of its being burned by those of the ecclesiastical authorities into whose hands it might come. It was printed in a small volume, as were almost all the other impressions for several years. The portion of the Old Testament which Tyndale published in English, was likewise very small in size. The reason of this is obvious; it was a perilous thing for any one to possess any such books, and they were therefore made such as should attract very little observation. Thus, those whose hearts knew something of the preciousness of the word of God, retained their volumes of Scripture without the same probability of detection. But now it seemed as though it were sought to make the Scriptures as conspicuous as might be; the size both of the volume and the type being amply enlarged. The latter of these changes was one which must have greatly increased the facility of reading the Scriptures, to those who had but little learning.

There is one class of persons who must have regarded the change concerning the free use of the Scriptures in English with peculiar joy; those who had been so severely persecuted a few years before by Bishop Longland, on account either of possessing, knowing, or teaching, some portion of Scripture, however small it might be. Well might the "Great Bible" close with the citation from Psalm cxviii. "This is the Lord's doing;" and indeed it might have been added, "and it is marvellous in our eyes."

Joy of those who had been persecuted, at now possessing the Scriptures freely.

But although in the free circulation of the Scriptures much was done, yet still the fabric of Romanism in a great measure remained; and there was still an abundant opportunity for the enemies of the truth to oppose themselves, in such a way, as to cause the destruction of some of those who held and prized it. This was soon done, and the advantage was not relinquished until the word of God was again attacked, and the effort made to consign it to oblivion. In fact, unless the word of God were again to have been taken away, the opposers of the truth could never have been sure of their victory, because in the Scripture was found that revelation of God, by which the Spirit of truth dispels every array of false doctrine which man may have set up.

Efforts of the enemies.

It is, indeed, wonderful to see how God used the most unlikely means (as man might judge) for the introduction of His word and truth, and how He graciously wrought for the maintenance of what He had thus brought in.

VI.

EFFORTS OF THE OPPOSERS OF THE REFORMATION.—EXECUTION OF CROMWELL AND OTHERS.

THE visible progress of the Reformation in England had, in the early part of the year 1539, advanced farther than at any previous time. The efforts which had been made for so many years, seemed now to be crowned with success; and that which had now to be looked for, was the renunciation of the many portions of Romanism which still practically acted as so many denials of the Gospel of the grace of God. There were two means in operation for the accomplishment of this end: the one, the preaching of the Gospel, the other, the reading of the Scriptures. The latter was the instrument by far the most widely diffused of the two; for although there were several holy and faithful men, who set forth the Gospel of Christ in its simplicity, they were few indeed when compared with the length and breadth of England, and fewer still when compared with the numbers of those who were strenuously upholding the very things which the advocates of the Gospel sought to bring down.

Visible progress of the Reformation at the beginning of 1539.

But earnest as the friends of the reformed doctrine were, the opposers of the truth in England, with Gardiner, bishop of Winchester at their head, were not idle: the point to which they directed their efforts being the maintenance of such anti-scriptural tenets or doctrines, to be held under pain of suffering death, as should make the farther progress of Reformation a thing almost hopeless to its advocates.

Opposition to the truth by Gardiner and others.

In all these proceedings, the power and grace of God is wonderfully shewn out, while the counter workings of Satan are also very plainly to be traced. The one had been shewn by the manner in which the Scripture had, at length, in spite of all opposition, become circulated through England: the other was now to be displayed in the subsequent hindrances which were introduced.

The Act of the Six Articles, which was passed in this year, was a decided step for setting a limit to the Reformation; a limit which should make the casting off of the papal authority the only difference between England and any Roman Catholic country.

The Act of the Six Articles.

A little before, it appears that Cranmer had laid before the king certain considerations tending to a farther reformation: these considerations set up the authority of Scripture, and the impropriety of any thing being decreed in matters of religion except according to its warrant. Various doctrines, such as purgatory, invocation of saints, and "unwritten verities," in general are taken up, and the point is urged whether they ought to be required to be held or not. One thing to which these considerations particularly refer is, the marriage of priests, a matter which had been forbidden by the king's injunctions of November, 1538 (probably through the instigation of Gardiner); and Cranmer, being himself married, felt it exceedingly. He requests the king not to pronounce the marriage of priests to be against Scripture; but if it cannot be expressly permitted, to forbid either party to discuss the question under a penalty. If this could not be granted, he requests that the subject may, under certain regulations, be disputed in both Universities, offering that if the asserters of the lawfulness of the marriage of priests should fail in the argument they should be put to death: on the other hand, if they proved their point thus, that such marriages should be allowed.

Cranmer addresses the king for farther reformation. Collier, v. 33. Cott. MS. Cleop. E. v. 50. Marriage of priests referred to.

Date of address.

Proceedings in the House of Lords, May 3, 1539.

A committee for articles of religion.

The Duke of Norfolk proposes Six Articles.

Many circumstances shew that this document must be referred to about this time; and advantage appears to have been taken of it by the opponents of the Reformation to bring about the Act of the Six Articles. In the House of Lords, on the 5th of May in this year, Lord Audley, the chancellor, informed the House that the king had commanded him to move that a committee be appointed for the drawing up of articles for agreement in religion, which they were to report to the House. Accordingly a committee was appointed consisting of Cromwell, Cranmer, and the bishops of Worcester and Ely, together with five other prelates of entirely opposite sentiments. The consequence was that such a committee, after debating for eleven days, came to no conclusion. Upon this the duke of Norfolk informed the House that no progress had been made, and he himself proposed Six Articles for the consideration of the Lords, which, when concluded on, might be made the basis of a law. It is probable that Gardiner suggested this measure.

The first of these articles was, Whether there be the real presence in the Lord's supper, with or without transubstantiation; the second, Whether the laity ought to receive the Lord's supper in both kinds; the third, Whether, by the law of God, priests might marry; the fourth, Whether vows of chastity (i.e. monastic vows) ought to be observed; the fifth, Whether private masses ought to be celebrated; the sixth, Whether auricular confession ought to be continued.

The king interferes.

Cranmer argued for three days together against these articles: but by the direct interposition of the king's authority, they were all determined according to the popish doctrines. Strange indeed for human authority to undertake to determine that such or such a thing is or is not according to the word of God; and yet so it is, the authority of God is pleaded, even when the revelation of the Holy Ghost is the most disregarded.

The Act of the Six Articles passed.

An act was at once passed, imposing the penalty of death for offences against the determination with regard to the articles. To oppose the first, namely, transubstantiation, was declared to be heresy; and this additional provision was made, that there was no liberty allowed of abjuration. The other five articles were established under the penalties of felony. One reason which probably influenced the king in causing this law to be made was, in order that the suppression of the monasteries might be more palatable to the popishly-affected part of the people. In these articles a limit was declared, beyond which the king would not go. Cromwell did not venture publicly to oppose the king's will with regard to this act, although he did afterwards what in him lay to hinder the penalties imposed from being enforced. Latimer resigned his bishopric of Worcester, and was imprisoned, as was also Shaxton, who resigned the bishopric of Salisbury: the latter, however, afterwards conformed, and was liberated.

Cromwell's dislike to the act. Latimer and Shaxton resign their bishoprics. The Bible not placed in many parish churches. Strype, Cran. p. 99.

Thus there were these two things tending in different directions: the spread of the Scriptures, and new laws of persecution. It is not surprising, that under such circumstances, the injunctions with regard to setting copies of the Bible in the parish churches, were not much regarded in many places.

"The parsons, vicars, and curates did read confusedly the word of God and the king's injunctions, lately set forth, and commanded by them to be read: humming and hawking therat, that almost no man could understand the meaning of the injunction. And they secretly suborned certain spreaders of rumours and false tales in corners, who interpreted the injunctions to a false sense.....And they bade their parishioners, notwithstanding what they read, being compelled so to do, that they should do as they did in times past, to live as their fathers; and that the old fashion is the best: and other crafty and seditious parables they gave out among them."

But although the priests made this opposition, and in many places kept the people in ignorance of the fact that they had free leave to read the word of God in English, yet we find that in many places there was much joy manifested by those who, for the first time, received the Scripture in their own tongue.

"It was wonderful to see with what joy this book of God was received, not only among the learned sort and those that were noted for lovers of the Reformation, but generally all England over by the vulgar and common people; and with what greediness God's word was read, and what resort to places where the reading of it was. Every body that could, bought the book, or busily read it; or got others to read it to them, if they could not themselves; and divers more elderly people learned to read on purpose. And even little boys flocked among the rest to hear portions of the holy Scriptures read."

The Bible read aloud.

It is to be remembered that the Bible, chained in the parish church, might there be perused by the parishioners, when and as was convenient to them; this reading was (often, at least) aloud, so those who could not read themselves had often the advantage of hearing what was in the word of God. The description just given applies, of course, to those places where the king's injunctions were read, and where, in compliance with them, the Bible had been obtained.

But although the word of God was by the law of the land now permitted to be read, yet there were obstacles still existing, arising from the strong predilection in the hearts of many for all things which had been a part of their old superstition. Thus, although persecution on this account had ceased for a while, yet household persecution was still an instrument by which those who loved the truth could be troubled: the word of our Lord has in this respect ever been found to be true, "a man's foes shall be they of his own household." One of those who, at this time, had to "endure grief, suffering wrongfully" at the hands of his own kindred, was a lad about fifteen years old, named William Maldon, of Chelmsford. Immediately that the king had permitted the Bible to be set in all the churches to be read by the people, several poor men of that town bought the New Testament, and used on Sundays to sit reading it together in the lower end of the church. This attracted others to listen to what was read, and amongst them this William Maldon, who came every Sunday to listen to the message of the Gospel.

His father, who was deeply attached to the belief and worship of Rome, having observed it, fetched him away, that he might say the Latin Matins with him: this grieved him; and when he went at other times to hear the Scriptures read, his father still persisted in taking him away. At length, he resolved to learn to read English so that he might peruse the Scriptures without being dependent on the aid of some one else who might be reading aloud; and when he had acquired this knowledge, he and his father's apprentice succeeded in purchasing together a copy of the New Testament. To conceal it, they hid it under their bed-straw, and when they had opportunity they perused it. One night after his father was asleep, he and his mother began to converse concerning the crucifix, and kneeling down to it; the knocking on the breast which was then used; the holding up of the hands to it when it was carried by in a procession: all this he told his mother was contrary to the commandment of Him who had said, "Thou shalt not make any graven image, nor bow down to it, nor worship it." This enraged his mother, who said to him, "Wilt thou not worship the cross, which was about thee when thou wert christened, and must be laid upon thee when thou art dead?" Upon this both the son and the mother went to their beds. The latter soon told her husband what had passed; whereupon, in great fury against his son for denying that the cross should be worshipped, he went to the room where he slept, and "taking him hold by the hair with both hands," he pulled him out of bed and whipped him unmercifully. This severe beating was borne by the lad with cheerfulness, inasmuch as he could truly regard it as being for Christ's sake. His constancy in enduring this treatment without even shedding a tear enraged his father the more; so that he ran and fetched a halter and put it about his neck, saying, that he would hang him. At last, after much intreaty from the mother and the brother of the sufferer, he left him almost dead. Such was the enmity which was manifested against those who held the truth of the Gospel,—an enmity, in fact, which ever exists in the unregenerate heart, although at times it may be so concealed as to seem as though it were not there. Doubtless, the case of William Maldon was far from being solitary, and many who were sheltered from the legal penalties which they would have suffered seven years previously, found enough to endure from those with whom they were most closely connected.

But the energies of the opposers of the Reformation were not directed simply to hinder persons from reading the Scriptures, or to make them suffer for what they learned from thence; but, just as they had in the year 1539 procured the passing of the Act of the Six Articles, so, in the following year, they succeeded in working the downfall both of Cromwell, who had protected to the utmost of his power those who were liable to the penalties of that act, and of Barnes and others who were the most prominent as preachers of the Gospel. The dissolution of the abbeys had rendered Cromwell unpopular: many of his acts had been harsh and oppressive; and those who opposed the Reformation had deep cause of hatred against him, on the ground of his having been the chief mover in procuring the free circulation of the Bible: what the particular ground of offence was, which the king had against him, is not so easy to discover. It may be that, as he had listened to the suggestions of those who adhered to "the old learning" with regard to the Six Articles, so he did with regard to the destruction of Cromwell. It has been supposed that Cromwell's connection with Barnes was in part, at least, the cause of the king's altered feelings towards him; this is made the more probable, from the circumstance that Barnes and two others, Hierome and Garret, (the same who had in 1527 been troubled for circulating the Scriptures) were put to death almost immediately after the fall of Cromwell.

Cromwell had but just reached the highest pitch of earthly greatness to which he ever attained. On the Popery in the hearts of many.

Wm. Maldon persecuted by his relatives. Strype Crau. p. 91.

He hears the Bible read.

His father's opposition.

He learns to read and procures a New Testament.

The 2nd commandment.

Maldon's father ill-treats him.

Cromwell's downfall.

The ground of Henry's offence.

His connection with Barnes.

Cromwell created Earl of Essex, Ap. 18, 1540.
His arrest, June 9.

Attainted in parliament.

18th of April he was created Earl of Essex, and he was also appointed Lord Chamberlain. Nothing from this time till the 9th of June, seemed to intimate the change which awaited him. On that day, after having attended in his place in the House of Lords, he was arrested at the council board on a charge of high treason; and, a few days afterwards, a bill of attainder was read against him. He was allowed no opportunity of making any defence, or of meeting the charges which were laid against him: these charges were of heresy and treason, the former on account of his having favoured those who were now deemed heretical preachers, the latter on account of various acts done by him as vicar-general. The bill was read a second and third time in the House of Lords on the 19th of June, and on the 29th it came back from the Commons, having passed that house.

Beheaded, July 28.

Crammer intercedes for him.

On the 28th of July, Cromwell was beheaded on Tower-hill, in pursuance of the act of attainder passed against him. He had, during his imprisonment in the Tower, sought to move the king to compassion, but in vain: he was doomed to die without knowing who were his accusers, or what were the definite grounds of his condemnation. Crammer, too, sought to procure for him the mercy and favour of the king; but his interposition was altogether fruitless.

I shall not pretend even to sketch Cromwell's career: he holds a place in this account as having been the great instrument, in the hands of God, to cause that the Scriptures should be unrestrainedly read and known in this land. His actions, which cannot be spoken of with commendation, have often been set forth against his memory; and yet it is, I think, impossible for any one, who himself knows the mercy of God in the blood of Jesus Christ, to read the account of his death, without believing him to have been a sinner saved through grace.

His conduct on the scaffold.

When he was brought upon the scaffold, in addressing the spectators, he told them that he was not come thither to clear or exculpate himself, as some had thought that he would. He confessed himself to have been a great sinner, for which he asked the forgiveness of God; he called all present to witness that he died not doubting any article of the faith; he exhorted all to pray for the king and Prince Edward, and for himself that, while life remained, he might not waver in his faith. Then kneeling down, he commended himself to the Lord Jesus, the Almighty Saviour of sinners:—

His prayer, Fox, ii. 433.

“O Lord Jesus, which art the only health of all men living, and the everlasting life of them which die in thee; I wretched sinner do submit myself wholly unto thy most blessed will, and being sure that the thing cannot perish, which is committed unto thy mercy, willingly now I leave this frail and wicked flesh, in sure hope that thou wilt in better wise restore it to me again at the last day in the resurrection of the just. I beseech thee, most merciful Lord Jesus Christ, that thou wilt by thy grace make strong my soul against all temptations, and defend me with the buckler of thy mercy against all the assaults of the devil. I see and knowledge that there is in myself no hope of salvation, but all my confidence, hope, and trust, is in thy most merciful goodness. I have no merits or good works which I may alledge before thee. Of sins and evil works (alas!) I see a great heap; but yet through thy mercy I trust to be in the number of them to whom thou wilt not impute their sins; but wilt take and accept me for righteous and just, and to be the inheritor of everlasting life. Thou, merciful Lord, wert born for my sake, thou didst suffer both hunger and thirst for my sake; thou didst teach, pray, and fast, for my sake; all thy holy works and actions thou wroughtest for my sake, thou suffredst most grievous pains and torments for my sake; finally thou gavest thy most precious body, and thy blood to be shed on the cross for my sake. Now, most merciful Saviour, let all these things profit me, which hast given thyself also for me. Let thy blood cleanse away the spots and foulness of my sins. Let thy righteousness hide and cover my unrighteousness. Let the merits of thy passion and bloodshedding be satisfaction for my sins. Give me, Lord, thy grace that the faith of my salvation in thy blood waver not in me, but may ever be firm and constant. That the hope of thy mercy and life everlasting in thy blood never decay in me, that love wax not cold in me. Finally, that the weakness of my flesh be not overcome with the fear of death. Grant me, merciful Saviour, that when death hath shut up the eyes of my body, yet the eyes of my soul may still behold and look upon thee; and when death hath taken away the use of my tongue, yet my heart may cry and say unto thee, Lord, into thy hands I commend my soul, Lord Jesus receive my spirit. Amen.”

His execution.

He then gave himself into the hands of the executioner, and “patiently suffered the stroke of the axe.” Had Cromwell held a more humble station, had he not sought the power, wealth, and honours of this world, he might have adorned the doctrine of God in his life. His zeal for the Reformation might have led to his suffering death for the confession of the doctrine of Christ; but this would have been a very different thing to his being compelled to lay down his life on questionable charges.

Want of learning has been frequently objected against Cromwell. Amongst other things, it has been said, that his acquirements consisted only in knowing the New Testament in Latin by heart: if this be true, it shews at least some knowledge of that learning which is of value in the sight of God—of the holy Scriptures, which are able to make wise unto salvation through faith, which is in Christ Jesus.

Two days after the execution of Cromwell, Dr. Robert Barnes, Thomas Garrett, and William Hierome, were burned in Smithfield. Barnes, after his escape from Northampton to Antwerp, had gone to Wittemberg; and, remaining there for some time, he became established in the grace and knowledge of Christ. Soon after, he was sent to England on a mission by the king of Denmark, when Sir Thomas More would have entrapped him, had not the king prevented him. In 1533, he returned again to England unmolested, and was employed by the king in several affairs. He now became one of the most diligent and zealous preachers of the Gospel in London; and this at length, through the contriving of Gardiner, led to his martyrdom.

Barnes, Garrett, and Hierome burned, July 30. Barnes's escape. His return, 1533.

Garrett, who had been troubled on account of circulating Tyndale's New Testament at Oxford, was now become also one of the preachers of the Gospel in the city, as also was William Hierome, vicar of Stepney. It was in consequence of their preaching the Gospel fully, and that the flesh is altogether evil, so that "whatsoever is not of faith is sin," that Gardiner opposed them. One of the articles maintained by Gardiner against Barnes was, "I may do well by the gift of God, before I am justified towards the attainment of justification." Another was, "A man being in deadly sin, may have grace to do the works of penance, whereby he may attain to his justification." Barnes, Hierome, and Garrett, were required at the Easter sermon at St. Mary Spital, to recant what they had taught at Paul's Cross concerning justification by faith: accordingly, Barnes read what might seem a recantation, and then preached precisely the same doctrine as before. Hierome and Garrett did exactly the same. For this they were all three sent to the Tower, where they remained until the 30th of July following, when, without having ever been called to an answer, they were taken to Smithfield and burned as heretics.

Garrett, Wm. Hierome, vicar of Stepney.

Gardiner opposes them.

They are called on to recant.

Sent to the Tower. Burned July 30, without being called in to answer.

These three men were most truly martyrs for the Gospel of Christ. It was no collateral question that was made the ground of their death, but simply their having set forth that Gospel which Paul preached.

They were proceeded against by a bill of attainder, and condemned to be burned or to suffer whatever death the king might see fit they should suffer. They were brought to Smithfield, together with three papists, who were condemned to suffer the penalties of treason for denying the king's supremacy; so that here was a most extraordinary spectacle, persons of the most opposite doctrines put to death in different manners, according to the matter in which their belief was discrepant from that of the king.

A bill of attainder against them.

In Smithfield, Barnes made a protestation to the persons who were present, concerning the doctrine which he had taught.

The protestation of Barnes.

Hierome earnestly exhorted the spectators who were there present; and Garrett made a profession of the Christian doctrine which he had preached.

Two of these, Barnes and Garrett, had been persons very conspicuous, the one at Cambridge and the other at Oxford, in the early setting forth of the Reformed doctrines: both of them had previously shrunk back from resisting unto blood, so that now they might indeed regard it as being of the grace of that Lord in whom they had believed they were honoured thus, in the manner of their death, with bearing testimony to the doctrines which they had preached and the Scriptures which they had circulated.

VII.

PROCEEDINGS RELATIVE TO THE SCRIPTURES.—A NEW VERSION PROPOSED.

THE state of things, as regards religion in England, was now increasingly anomalous. The Gospel was not to be preached under the pain of suffering as heretics. Many doctrines were enjoined, on pain of death, to be received as being in Scripture; and yet the Bible, in which not a word was said about some of these very doctrines, was not only allowed to be circulated, but the injunctions which had been before made with regard to its being placed in every parish church, were repeated and enforced. This new proclamation was dated May 6, 1541: it recited, that the king had set forth certain injunctions requiring the Bible to be placed in every parish church, to the intent that all his subjects might read it: and, in order that the right end might be answered by this, the proclamation enjoined that none should read the Bibles with a loud voice during the time of mass, or other divine service; that no layman reading it should dispute or argue, but only reverently peruse it for his own edification.

Anomalous state of things in England.

The king's injunctions, May 6, 1541. Cott. MSS. Cleop. E. v. 37.

By this it seems as though the Bibles had, in some places, been actually read aloud, while the Latin service was going on. The injunction seems to contemplate its still being read at such times, but only restrains the manner in which this should be done.

As to laymen being forbidden to dispute about Scripture, the Act of the Six Articles seems to have been already sufficiently stringent upon that point; for the things there defined were enough to make not laymen only but all others fear to hold lightly any disputation as to what the Bible actually contained.

This proclamation farther sets forth that the king had heard that, in spite of his former injunctions, there were many parishes destitute of Bibles; at which he marvelled not a little, enjoining that a Bible should be speedily procured for every parish church: the time limited for this was the next All Saints' day, (Nov. 1, 1541,) after which a penalty of 40s. a month was to be imposed where one was not obtained. The price likewise of the Bibles of the largest volume was fixed at 12s. well bound and clasped, and 10s. unbound.

It is not improbable that the knowledge of the king's intention to fix the price of copies so low may have led to the inferiority, both as it regards paper and press-work of the Bibles printed this year, to those which had been executed at Paris, and completed and perfected in London. The Bible published in the year 1541 has the title as copied in our margin: other copies have the name of Richard Grafton as the printer.

The Byble in Englyshe of the largest and greatest volume, autoursed and apointed by the commaundement of our moost redoubted Prynce, and souerayne Lorde Kynge Henry the .viij. supreme heade of this his church and Realme of Englande: to be frequented and used in every churche win this his sayd realme, accordynge to the tenour of his former Eniunctions geuen in that behalfe.

Overseen and perused at the co-maundemet of the kynges hyghnes, by the ryghte reuerende fathers in God Cuthbert bysshop of Duresme, and Nicolas bishop of Rochester.

Printed by Edwarde Whitchurch.
Con privilegio ad imprimendum solum.
1541

had condemned as being full of heresy. Tonstall was deprived of his bishopric towards the end of the reign of Edward VI., but restored at the accession of Mary; during whose reign, although he was always very popish in doctrine, yet he avoided the work of persecution: in particular, he protected his relative, Bernard Gilpin, who, although he conformed to all the ceremonies and ritual of Popery, continued by a strange inconsistency to preach the Gospel of Christ; and for this he became obnoxious to the ruling powers.

On the accession of Elizabeth, Tonstall was again deprived for refusing to admit her supremacy; a very few months after which he died, in the year 1559, aged eighty-six.

The other of these two prelates was Nicholas Heath, then bishop of Rochester; who had, in the latter part of the year 1535, accompanied Edward Fox, bishop of Hereford, and Dr. Barnes, to Sualcauld, for the concluding of a league between Henry and certain of the Protestant princes of Germany. He was then archdeacon of Stafford; and, as "Heath, the archdeacon," he was spoken of highly by Melancthon. In 1540, he was made bishop of Rochester; and was supposed, at the time, to be in some measure a

Many parishes
yet destitute of Bibles.

Penalty.

Price of Bibles.

Bibles printed 1541.

Bps. Tonstall and Heath oversee this edition.

Some account of Bp. Tonstall.

Deprived and restored.

His death, 1559,
aged 86.

Some account of Bp. Heath.

Bp. of Rochester, 1540.

This was probably stated to be overseen by two bishops, in consequence of the king's injunctions in November, 1538, which required that all books of Scripture should be examined and allowed by the king, or by a privy councillor, or by some one bishop whose name was to be expressed. It is not unlikely that these were specially appointed by the king for this service, because it was by some said that the Bible had only been of Cromwell's setting forth: and they, therefore, did not allow that the king wished it; for it would only be carrying out the actions of one who had been declared a traitor. This was met by the statement of the title, that these two bishops had overseen and perused it at the king's command. The wood engraving which had been before used was still retained, only that the Arms of Cromwell which had been under his feet in the original engraving, were now removed. This was done with respect to all the Bibles of the previous year which had been issued subsequent to his attainder.

The two bishops by whom this edition was overseen and perused were persons of no small celebrity and learning. Cuthbert, bishop of Durham, was the same Bishop Tonstall, who, when diocesan of London, had shewn so much zeal for the destruction of Tyndale's New Testaments. It is rather remarkable that the version of the Great Bible, thus perused and overseen by him, is in its ground-work the very version which he fifteen years before favourer of the Reformation, standing high in Cranmer's favour. However, he subsequently shewed strongly his attachment to "the old learning." He was translated from the see of Rochester to that of Worcester; of which, however, he was deprived in the reign of Edward VI. After the accession of Mary, he became archbishop of York; and, subsequently, Lord Chancellor. During this reign he was one who was leniently disposed towards Protestants. However, it may be questioned whether, if he had chosen, he might not have exerted himself in their behalf, considering the situations which he held. After the death of Mary, he was deprived both of his situation of Lord Chancellor, and of his archbishopric, and continued the rest of his life in a private station.

Bp. of Worcester.
Deprived
Abp. of York.
Lord Chancellor.
Deprived.

It is not to be supposed, that two men of learning, such as these were, would have authorised an edition of a version which was corrupt, or palpably inaccurate: they were both of them competent scholars of the original languages of Scripture; and thus their public testimony is of some value.

Both these bishops competent scholars.
Lewis's remarks on this edition, p. 141.

Lewis says, "In this edition are omitted the hands pointing, and the mark  $\text{c} \rightarrow \text{p}$ ; but there is no difference in the text." The first of these remarks is correct, for the "hands" are omitted; the second is altogether inaccurate, for the mark is retained throughout the book; and the third is not quite correct, for there are some variations (although very few) in the text itself. For instance, in Isaiah lvii. 5, the "Great Bible" of 1539 had followed Coverdale, reading the verse, "Ye take your pleasure vnder the okes, and vnder all grene trees, the chyldre beyng slayne in the valleys, and dennes of stone." This was now altered into, "Ye make your fyre vnder the okes, and vnder all grene trees, and ye offre children in the valleies and dennes of stone." This proves that some persons had had discretionary power of altering the version, if they had seen fit to use it: perhaps they showed their judgment in allowing the text to remain almost unaltered. The orthography of this Bible resembles modern spelling much less than that of 1539; this may perhaps be accounted for by the fact, that Bishop Heath was remarkable for the little attention that he paid to orthography. It was even a subject of surprise when he was in Germany, in 1535. It is probable that the actual editorship devolved principally on him, as being so much younger than his coadjutor Tonstall.

Variations in the text.
Defects of this Bible in orthography.

Some of the Bibles which appear to be of this impression are dated at the end, May, 1541, while others have November, 1540: the latest of these two dates is probably that at which the greater part of them were issued. It is probable that Bonner had long before complied with the king's injunctions by setting up a copy of the Bible in St. Paul's; however, this year he fulfilled the promise which he had made to Grafton, on his being appointed bishop of London, by setting six copies of the Bible of this edition in St. Paul's, that the people might resort thither and read them. It appears that at this time Bonner's chief aim was to ingratiate himself with the king, by obeying his commands most thoroughly. It can hardly be supposed that he had any real desire to promote the Reformation; and yet this seemed to be the case until the attainder of Cromwell. He had shewn it by appointing, in 1540, Barnes, Hierome, and Garrett, as three Lent preachers at Paul's Cross; and it was this very appointment that caused their collision with Gardiner, in consequence of which they were burned. But still as long as the king upheld the circulation of the Bible, so long Bonner went along with him in it.

Bonner sets six copies in St. Paul's.
Collier, v. 84.
Strype Chron. 120.

The six copies placed in St. Paul's were chained to six pillars, to each of which an admonition was fastened. In this Bonner reminds them of the dispositions which they ought to bring with them when coming to read the word of God; directing them that they were not to make any expositions on the text, but simply what is declared in the book itself; they were "not to read aloud nor in time of divine service or sermon" [this means, I suppose, that according to the king's injunction, they were not to read aloud at the time of divine service or sermon, so as to disturb]. They were not to meet together in great numbers, so as to make a multitude; nor were they to fall into disputes, or clashing one with another; they were warned, that if they continued their former misbehaviour, and did not comply with these instructions, he would be forced, against his will, to remove the occasion, by taking the Bibles out of the church.

Bonner's admonition to those who read the Bible.
Collier, v. p. 84.

From the mention of "former misbehaviour" in these injunctions, it appears that they had previously assembled in great numbers, and had likewise created disturbance by disputations while they read. It is not unlikely that six copies were placed in different parts of the Cathedral, in order to remedy this inconvenience, so that many might read without too great a concourse being in any one place. The threat at the end of Bonner's admonition was but too indicative of the measures which were likely to be adopted.

Persecution for the Six Articles.

It is to be remembered, that persecution on account of the Act of the Six Articles was at this time going on with much violence. This had been the case ever since the attainder of Cromwell: so that for the people to have the Scriptures in their possession at all seemed wonderful, considering how they were the means, through the grace of God, of enlightening them in matters of religion. But although the king had set forth his proclamation on the 6th of May, 1541, for the effectual observance of his previous injunctions, with regard to the placing of the Scriptures in the churches, and although a penalty was declared against those who dared to disobey, yet this was the last public act of this reign which seemed favourable to the circulation of the Scriptures. Six years (from 1535 to 1541), is the utmost limit of the time during which the king's mind was favourable to the unhindered diffusion of the Scriptures. Throughout the remainder of this reign, we shall find restriction after restriction imposed both upon the reading and also upon the printing of them.

The last public act in favour of the circulation of the Scriptures in Henry's reign.

Charges relative to Scripture. Fox, ii. 452.

During the time that persecution was going on, in consequence of the Act of the Six Articles, many also had charges laid against them on account of the word of God. Some were charged with reading it in service time, so as to make a "brabbling"; others, with collecting a crowd by reading; others, with disputing about it, or giving an exposition. In these proceedings Bonner was very active, completely frustrating the hopes which had been formed of him. A very large number of persons were taken into custody by him and others in London, on account of offences against the Six Articles, or for reading the Scriptures; so many that there was no room in the prisons for them to be lodged. Bonner was for resorting to severe measures, which probably would have been adopted, had not Lord Audley, the lord chancellor, boldly and generously interfered. Permission was obtained from the king, that the prisoners might become sureties one for another; and thus they were all discharged from custody: they were bound to appear in the Star Chamber on the morrow of the feast of All Souls, then next ensuing, to answer, if they were called on: and with this all further proceedings against them were dropped.

Lord Audley interferes.

John Porter persecuted. Fox, ii. 452.

A little after these circumstances, a young man, named John Porter, began to read the Bible aloud in St. Paul's, and many used to resort to hear him; for he could read well, and had a loud voice. Bonner at length took offence at this; and, sending for Porter, he rebuked him very sharply for his reading. Porter defended his conduct, as being according to law, and therefore what he might do without giving offence. Bonner then charged him with making expositions on the text, and gathering great multitudes about him: to this he replied that he trusted that he should not be proved to be guilty of a disturbance. At length, Bonner sent him to Newgate, where he was treated with extreme cruelty. His friends having afterwards paid the gaoler to let him be placed with the other prisoners, he took the opportunity of reproving their wickedness and blasphemy, and gave them such instructions as he had learned out of the Scriptures. Such offence was taken at this, that he was placed in the lowest dungeon of the gaol, and there so loaded with irons, and treated, in other respects, so severely, that he died in about a week.

His death.

The translation censured before the king.

The influence under which Henry was in this part of his reign, being almost entirely opposed to the work of the Reformation (and thus, doctrinally in accordance with his own natural inclinations), it is not to be wondered at, that he should have given heed to accusations which were made against the translation of the Scriptures which was now in use. Gardiner, who was at the head of this party, appears to have loaded it with all the accusations that he could, although it is probable that St. Luke and St. John were revised by himself. In this he was seconded by others; and thus both the version itself was depreciated, and the consequences resulting from the reading of it were represented as being very grievous.

Attempts to suppress the version in use.

The object which was sought to be effected was the suppression of the version already circulated, it being supposed that not only some considerable time must elapse before a new one could be executed, but, it might not be impossible so to hamper the business, as altogether to prevent its being finally accomplished.

A new version proposed.

The convocation, Feb. 16, 1542.

Fuller, b. 5, p. 237.

It is probable that the king's mind had been directed to the preparation of a new version, one which might be framed with the greatest care and circumspection; for he directed Crammer to require the bishops and clergy, who met in convocation, February 16, 1542, to revise the translation of the New Testament. The intention probably was that the Old should be undertaken in the same manner, after the New had been completed.

Parts of the New Test. distributed to bishops.

In the third session of the convocation, a plan was arranged for the execution of the revision: a distinct portion being allotted to each bishop. The arrangements were thus proposed:—St. Matthew's Gospel, to Thomas Crammer, archbishop of Canterbury; St. Mark's Gospel, to John Longland, bishop of Lincoln; St. Luke's Gospel, to Stephen Gardiner, bishop of Winchester; St. John's Gospel, to Thomas Goodrick, bishop of Ely: the Acts of the Apostles, to Nicholas Heath, bishop of Rochester: the Epistle to the Romans, to Richard Sampson, bishop of Chichester; I. and II. Corinthians, to John Capon, bishop of Salisbury; Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians, and Colossians, to William Barlow, bishop of St. David's; I. and II. Thessalonians, to John Bell, bishop of Worcester; I. and II. Timothy, Titus, and Philemon, to Robert Parfew, bishop of St. Asaph; I. and II. Peter, to Robert Holgate, bishop of Llandaff; Hebrews, to John Skip, bishop of Hereford; James, John I, II. and III. and Jude, to Thomas Thirlby, bishop of Westminster; Revelations, to John Wakeman, bishop of Gloucester, and John Chambers, bishop of Peterborough.

It is rather remarkable that a prelate ranking so high as Bonner did at this time, was altogether omitted in the distribution of the parts of the New Testament.

The greater part of those who were thus appointed were thoroughly opposed to the circulation of the Scriptures; and to this end they sought to delay the matter as much as possible, by debating trifling questions connected with the work; such for instance as whether the expression The Lord or Our Lord should be constantly used; as if this had not depended upon what the original might be in each distinct case. They debated whether Ecclesia should be rendered Congregation or Church; and here, indeed, they had much greater reason for coming to a definite understanding with one another: the versions made from the Greek having adopted the word Congregation, which had indeed been made a charge against Tyndale. Another word which was made a matter of debate was Charitas, about which it was questioned whether it should always be translated Charity or Love; Tyndale had given offence by the latter rendering, which, however, is much more accurate than the other. It would have been convenient if in every version one or the other had been uniformly adopted, as the equivalent of the Greek term.

Another proposition made by Gardiner and his adherents, was marked with peculiar boldness: it was suggested, that in the Second Commandment, after the words "Thou shalt not make to thyself any graven image," there should be added, "with a design to perform divine worship to it." How hopeless must have been the thought of obtaining a new translation at the hands of those who were so bent on blasphemous perversion. What could Gardiner and his party have thought of the Scripture, and of the Holy Ghost, who is the author of Scripture? Did they suppose themselves to be competent to mend the revelation of God?

From the Second Commandment having been thus mentioned, as needing, in Gardiner's mind, an emendation, it is clear, that if the revision of the New Testament had been completed, the Old was likewise to pass through the hands of the Convocation. It also appears, that they did not think of taking the Greek Text for their basis, but the Latin Vulgate; this is shewn by the words of which the manner of translation was debated, having been cited from that version. This is yet more clearly shewn by the fact that, in their sixth session, Gardiner read a catalogue of ninety-nine Latin words and phrases, which he proposed should be left untranslated, or else Englished with as little alteration as possible. This was proposed, on account, it was said, of their genuine and native meaning, and the majesty of the matter signified by them. It is, however, evident enough, that his design was so to hamper the matter, as to make the version, if ever it should be completed, not very intelligible to the poor and illiterate.*

It thus became very clear that no aid could be expected in this work from the bishops of "the old learning:" they were willing enough to find fault with the versions hitherto made; but they were for throwing every hindrance in their power in the way of making a new one. Upon this, Cranmer seems to have proposed to the king, that the matter should be taken out of the hands of the Convocation, and be given to the two Universities. This the king directed should be done; and Cranmer acquainted the upper House of Convocation with this determination of the king. They were much surprised; and all, except the

* It will be well to give Gardiner's list of majestic words, which he would have had left untranslated: the reader will at once see that a great part of them are very simple terms, and others having an English equivalent formed from, and nearly resembling, the Latin.

Ecclesia.	Sandalium.	Panis propositionis.
Penitentia.	Simplex.	Communio.
Pontifex.	Tetrarcha.	Perseverare.
Ancilla.	Sacramentum.	Dilectus.
Contritus.	Simulachrum.	Sapientia.
Holocausta.	Gloria.	Pietas.
Justitia.	Conflictationes.	Presbyter.
Justificare.	Ceremonia.	Lites.
Idiota.	Mysterium.	Servus.
Elementa.	Religio.	Opera.
Baptizare.	Spiritus Sanctus.	Sacrificium.
Martyr.	Spiritus.	Benedictus.
Adorare.	Mercus.	Humilis.
Dignus.	Confiteor tibi Pater.	Humilitas.

Scientia.
Gentilis.
Synagoga.
Ejicere.
Misericordia.
Complacui.
Increpare.
Distribueretur Or-Inculpatus. [bis]
Senior.
Apocalypsis.
Satisfactio.
Contentio.
Conscientia.
Peccatum.
Peccator.
Idolum.
Prudentia.
Prudenter.

Parabola.
Magnifico.
Oriens.
Subdius.
Didrachma.
Episcopus.
Gratia.
Charitas.
Tyrannus.
Concupiscentia.
Sicera.
Apostolus.
Apostolatus.
Egenus.
Siater.
Societas.
Zizania.
Christus.

Conversari.
Profitcor.
Impositio manuum.
Idololatria.
Dominus.
Sanctus.
Cnffessio.
Imitator.
Pascha.
Innumerabilis.
Inenarrabilis.
Iofidelis.
Paganus.
Commilito.
Virtutes.
Dominationes.
Throni.
Potestates.
Hostia.

Bonner omitted.

These revisers delay the business. Points in the translation debated:—Our Lord or The Lord, Church or Congregation; Charity or Love.

Gardiner proposes to add to the second Commandment.

The Old Testament to have been revised as well as the New.

The Latin taken as basis.

Ninety-nine terms proposed to be left untranslated.

Cranmer proposes that the work should be confided to the Universities. The king assents.

bishops of St. David's and Ely (Barlow and Goodrick), protested against such a measure. They spoke of both the Universities as being in a very degenerate condition, and that the chief learning in the land was to be found in the Convocation. The archbishop, however, adhered to the determination of the king, that the existing translation of the Old and New Testaments should be examined by the universities. Thus ended the proceedings of the Convocation relative to a translation of the Scriptures; but the councillors by whose advice Henry was now principally guided, took good care that nothing should be done towards the proposed revision by the universities.

Other measures were now set on foot to hinder the printing and publishing of the Bible. Grafton was summoned before the council, and first charged with the printing of Matthew's Bible, against which objections had been made on account of the introductory pieces and the marginal notes. Grafton, in fear, made excuses for himself in all things. He was afterwards examined relative to the "Great Bible," as to what notes had been intended to be affixed to it, to which the (hands) et cetera in the text and margin referred: to this he said, that he knew of none; but that his intention had been to have employed learned men to have made the notes; but when he saw the king and the clergy not willing to have any, he proceeded no farther. Grafton's excuses and answers were not deemed satisfactory; and he was sent for six weeks to the Fleet, and was not liberated until he had given security in the sum of three hundred pounds, that he would neither sell, print, nor cause to be printed, any more Bibles, until the king and the clergy could agree on a translation.

On the 12th of March in this year, the king granted an exclusive privilege to Anthony Marlar, of London, haberdasher, to print the Bible for the ensuing four years. He does not appear, however, to have acted on this patent right himself, or to have employed others to do so for him, the only object in giving him the exclusive privilege was probably to prevent the Bible being printed. This Anthony Marlar had presented the king with a splendid copy on vellum of the Bible published 1540.

VIII.

THE ENGLISH SCRIPTURES PROHIBITED.

THE opposition to the diffusion of the Scriptures increased amongst those in authority: and thus, when parliament met on the 22nd of January, 1543, complaints were made of the injury which had been done by the circulation of the Scriptures through the false glosses and interpretations which had been put upon them: accordingly there were certain proceedings, both in parliament and in the Convocation, for remedying these disorders. What the evils were, which had arisen from the reading of Scripture, is not distinctly specified; but one thing is clear, that darkness ever deems light an evil thing and shuns its approach.

The proceedings in parliament were directed to the hindering of certain translations from being circulated, and to the limiting of the perusal of Scripture to persons of particular ranks. The proceedings in the Convocation seem to have been intended as a kind of substitute for the liberty thus taken away. Did we regard exclusively the proceedings of the Convocation, it would have seemed as though the nature of that body had been changed in the past year; but the whole looks like a compromise. The parliament passed an act in consequence of the representations that were made to it, in which, after reciting that a great diversity of opinion had sprung up in consequence of the reading of Scripture, &c., it enacted, that all manner of books of the Old and New Testament, being of the crafty, false, and untrue translation of Tyndale, and all books which should contain doctrines contrary to those set forth, or to be set forth by the king, should be abolished, extinguished, and forbidden to be kept and used in this realm, or any where else in the king's dominions. The penalty for disobedience was a fine of ten pounds for the first offence for every book, together with three months' imprisonment; while an offender was liable for a second offence to forfeit all his goods, and be imprisoned perpetually.

All Bibles or New Testaments, however, which were not of Tyndale's translation were to remain in use; but if any preambles or annotations were found in any of them, then the owners should cut or blot them out, so as to make them illegible: this was under a penalty of 40s. for every Bible. Summaries of chapters, however, were to be allowed to remain. The act set forth, that although the higher Grafton summoned before the council.

Sent to the Fleet.

Privilege to print the Bible for four years granted to Marlar, March 12, 1542.

Parliament meets, Jan. 22, 1543.

The Scriptures complained of.

Proceedings of the Parliament and the Convocation.

Tyndale's translations prohibited.

Other Bibles still allowed.

classes had made a good use of the king's permission to read the Bible, yet the lower classes had, on the contrary, abused the privilege. It was, therefore, enacted, that, after the following 1st of October, no one should read the Bible aloud publicly, in a church or elsewhere, unless he were appointed so to do by the Ordinary of the place (certain exceptions are then made to this clause); the penalty for an offence was to be a month's imprisonment. It was farther enacted (and this was the severest part of the whole), that no women, artificers, apprentices, journeymen, servingmen (of the degree of yeomen or under), husbandmen or labourers, should read to themselves or any other the Bible or New Testament in English. Permission was then expressly given for all who did not belong to the classes already named, and also for every noblewoman and gentlewoman, to read the Bible in private. These exceptions are said to have been obtained by Cranmer, and that not without strenuous exertions.

Many prohibited from reading the Bible.

The effect of this, it is to be observed, was that all who had the ability of reading the Scriptures in Latin might do so also in English; that is, the Scripture in English was allowed to those who could not be prevented from using it in another tongue, while those who were unlearned might remain without the liberty of reading God's word in any language at all.

The proceedings in the Convocation, to which reference was made, were these. On February the 21st, 1543, it was ordered, that on every Sunday and holiday throughout the year, the curate of the parish should, after the Te Deum and the Magnificat, read to the people, one chapter in the New Testament in English, without exposition; and when the New Testament had thus been read through, they should then begin the Old. What a poor substitute this must have been for the free permission of reading for themselves which the people had previously possessed! No doubt, it seemed like an important grant that the priest should himself read the Scripture to the people in English: but at the rate at which this was to be done, it would be a work of many years to go through the whole Bible; if any one heard something read, and wished to recall what it was, he would have had to wait for seventeen years or thereabout before it could again be read in course. Happily the state of things changed before there was even the opportunity of once reading through the Bible at the rate proposed; and before one seventeen years had passed, that liberty of reading the word of God for ourselves without hindrance, was so granted by the gracious providence of God, that no effort of Satan or his servants has as yet prevailed in taking from the inhabitants of this land the important privilege. Do we sufficiently remember our responsibility in this matter?

One chapter to be read in church every Sunday. Feb. 21, 1543.

Not long after these proceedings in Parliament and in the Convocation, the book which the king had employed several to compile during the preceding three years, was published under the title of "A Necessary Doctrine and Erudition for any Cristen Man;" in the preface the king speaks in defence of the limitations and restraints which were now imposed upon the reading of God's word. He thus addresses his subjects:—

The Necessary Erudition published.

"We, by the helpe of God and his worde, haue traueyled to purge and clense our realme from the apparent enormities of superstition wherein by openyng of goddes trueth, with setting furth and publishyng of the scriptures, our labours (thanks be to god) haue not ben void and frustrate."

The king then speaks of there being two classes of persons, those who teach and those who are taught; for the former of these,

"the hauing, reading, and studynge of holy scripture, is not only conuenient but also necessary; But for the other part of the churche ordeined to be taught, it ought to be demed certainly that the reading of the olde and new testament is not so necessary for al those folkes, that of duty they ought and be bound to read it, but as the prince and the policy of the realme shal thinke conuenient, so to be tollerated or taken from it."

Restraints on the Scripture defended.

Let us consider this dogma of the king for a moment before continuing the quotation:—the Scripture is only to be read by the people at large, as the prince and policy of the realm think convenient. Suppose that at the time when the Apostle Paul wrote to the Thessalonians the governing powers had thought fit that that church should not read what he sent them, how would this have consisted with the apostle's inspired injunction, "I charge you by the Lord that this epistle be read unto all the holy brethren." In 1 Thess. v. short, the argument of the king rests upon a false foundation; if the authority of God be not greater than that of Kings who are ordained of Him, then the ground which Henry takes is defensible, but not else.

The king's dogma considered.

In 1 Thess. v.

The king goes on to say:—

"Consonant wherunto the politike law of our realme hath now restrained it [sc. the reading of the Scriptures] from a great meyny, esteming it sufficient for those so restrained, to here & truly bere away the doctrine of scripture taught by the preachers, and so imprint the lessons of the same, that they may obserue and kepe them inwardly in their hart, and as occasion serueth, expresse them in their dedes outwardly."

Tyndale's the only version forbidden by name.

The only translation which was forbidden by name was Tyndale's; and it seems strange why that should be singled out for prohibition, and all others allowed still to be used. It is not known how this specification was construed, because it might seem to comprehend every version of the New Testament hitherto printed, except that one which Coverdale had made in conformity with the Latin Vulgate. The New Testament in Matthew's Bible, is simply Tyndale's reprinted. A great part of the New Testament in Coverdale's Bible, is simply a recension of Tyndale's; while in the "Great Bible" the same thing is evidently and emphatically true. Were all these then to be deemed the false crafty and untrue translation of Tyndale, or were they any thing better? It would indeed be difficult to draw a distinction, and call the New Testament of the "Great Bible" a sincere and genuine version, and yet condemn that of Tyndale. In proscribing this one version, it seemed as though every printed copy of the Scriptures was placed at the mercy of those who would have to administer the enactment.

No more editions of the Bible in Henry's reign.

It is not to be wondered at that there should have been no more editions of the Bible during the reign of Henry. The copies which were in circulation may have afforded a supply which sufficed for those who were willing to retain the Scriptures at all hazards, like the "known men," or Lollards, who had been troubled on that very account in the earlier part of this reign. The only impressions of any portions of the word of God which were subsequently printed, appear to have been the Pentateuch, in 1544, and an edition of the Epistles and Gospels for the Sundays, which was printed afterwards; together with one of the New Testaments according to the text of the "Great Bible." To these, Joye's Book of Daniel (1545) should be added.

The copies in circulation.

The number of copies in circulation at this time must, however, have been very considerable. Besides the editions of Cramer's (or the "Great Bible"), which were intended for the parish churches, and were probably mostly appropriated to them; and besides Matthew's Bible, which may be supposed to have been particularly prohibited by the act of Parliament,—there were three editions of Coverdale's Bible, and the same number of Taverner's. If we suppose that these editions were in number, an average between that of Matthew's Bible and the "Great Bible," as printed at Paris, they must altogether have consisted of about twelve thousand copies; while the various versions and recensions of the New Testament which were in circulation, must, at the same rate, have amounted to about fourteen thousand copies. Thus, exclusive of the supply for the parish churches, there were about twenty-six thousand copies of a considerable portion of the Scriptures still in the hands of the people; a large part of which, especially of the editions of the New Testament, was most probably in the hands of the classes who were now prohibited to use them.*

The copies proscribed.

The number of Bibles which were distinctly proscribed by this act (the two editions of Matthew's) may have been about three thousand. The number of copies of the New Testament must have been much more considerable; because, besides the twelve separate editions which had been printed since Tyndale's revision of his version in 1534, there might probably be many even of the earlier Dutch editions in the hands of some: these copies probably amounted in number to fourteen thousand. If we suppose all the parish churches supplied with Bibles, or even enough copies of the "Great Bible" printed for a supply, this would make about twelve thousand copies more; so that the total number of printed Bibles in use may be estimated to have been about twenty-seven thousand, and the copies of the New Testament about twenty-eight thousand, besides various editions of portions of the Scriptures.

The Scriptures claimed in spite of the penalties.

It is probable (or rather almost certain) that those who possessed copies which were of a proscribed translation, did not very easily or willingly part with them: and also it is not to be supposed that those who knew the value of the word of God in their own tongue, would be more ready to refrain from reading it for themselves, than had been the case when only written copies were obtainable, or when Tyndale's New Testament had first been printed. Such an act of parliament might hinder printers, such as Grafton, from endangering themselves by printing Bibles or New Testaments, but it could not be much regarded by those who indeed knew the Scriptures to be the word of God.

The Longland causes T. Bernard and J. Morton to be burned.

In some instances great severities were resorted to, in consequence of the word of God being found in the possession of those who had, by the act of parliament, been prohibited to read it. Some who were very zealous for the "old learning," went beyond the law altogether in their persecutions. It is not to be supposed that John Longland, bishop of Lincoln, would be the last in any thing of this kind. About this time he caused two men to be burned on the same day: the one named Thomas Bernard, for teaching the

* In the above estimate I merely take undoubted editions: I should not be surprised if the actual number of copies were nearly double what is stated above. Editions which are page

for page the same, are often found, when closely examined, to be of different impressions.

Lord's prayer in English (which was expressly permitted by the law); and the other named James Morton, Fox, ii. 453. for keeping the Epistle of St. James in English in his possession. This was completely in character with the persecution which Longland had carried on in 1522; and it shews how unchanged was his enmity against the word and truth of God.

The measures which the king had taken to hinder the Scriptures from being so read as to lead persons to discuss its doctrines, appear to have been so thoroughly ineffectual that some new measures were resorted to, in order if possible to keep the consciences of the people in subjection, not to God and his word, but to the imperious will of the king. In 1542, the attempt to keep the people from freely reading the Bible had commenced; and by the beginning of 1543, this had been so far carried into effect, as could be done by an act of parliament. Nearly three years after, however, the same things were complained of by the king as before. In proroguing the Parliament, on the 24th of December, 1545, the king took occasion to address them on this subject:—

“And although you be permitted to reade holy scripture, and to haue the worde of God in your mother toungue, you must vnderstande that it is licensed you so to doo, onely to informe your awne conscience, and to instruct your children and famely, & not to dispute and make scripture a raiying and a taunting stocke against Priests and Preachers (as many light persones do). I am very sorry to knowe and here, how unrecuerently that most precious inell the worde of God is disputed, rined, sung, and iangeled in euey Alehouse and Tauerne, contrary to the true meanyng and doctryne of the same. And yet I am euen asmuche sory, that the readers of the same, folow it in dooyng so faintly and coldly. For of this I am sure that charitie was neuer so faint amongst you, and virtuous and godly huyng was neuer less used, nor was God himself amongst Christians euer less reuerenced, honoured, or serued.”

The king's address to the Parliament, Dec. 25, 1545.

This last sentence appears like a reflection upon the Lords and Commons whom the king was addressing, for they belonged to the classes who were allowed to read all versions, except that which had been prohibited: those who were said to have disputed about Scripture, may be supposed to have belonged to the classes who were now forbidden to read for themselves.

In the following year, the king published a more stringent prohibition of books of Scripture, and others which contained matter that might be deemed offensive or heretical. This proclamation, which is dated July 6th, 1546, sets forth—

Another prohibition of the Scriptures, July 6, 1546.

“The King's most excellent majesty understanding how, under the pretence of expounding and declaring the truth of God's Scripture, diuers lewd and evil disposed persons have taken upon them to utter and sow abroad, by Books imprinted in the English tonguē, sundry pernicious and detestable errors & heresies, not only contrary to the laws of this realm, but also repugnant to the true sense of God's law & his word, by reason whercof certain men of late, to the destruction of their own bodies and souls, and to the evil example of others, have attempted, arrogantly and maliciously to impugn the truth, and therewith trouble the sober, quiet, and godly religion, united and established under the King's majesty in this his realm; his Highness minding to foresee the dangers that might ensue of the said books, is enforced to use his general Prohibition, Commandment, and Proclamation, as followeth.”

The first thing enjoined is,

“That from henceforth no man, woman, or person, of what estate, condition, or degree soever he or they be, shall after the last day of August next ensuing, receive, have, take or keep in his or their possession, the Text of the New Testament of Tyndale or Coverdale's translation into English, nor any other than is permitted by the Act of Parliament made in the Session of the Parliament holden at Westminster, in the four and thirtieth and five and thirtieth year of his Majesty's most noble reign.”

Tyndale and Coverdale's versions forbidden.

The act here referred to, is that which has been already mentioned as having passed in 1543, by which Tyndale's translation was prohibited. It does not expressly permit any particular version, but leaves all except Tyndale's in the same condition that they were in before: this proclamation appears to extend the prohibition to Coverdale's New Testament, leaving whatever was not Tyndale's or Coverdale's without any condemnation.

The proclamation goes on to prohibit the receiving or possessing of any books printed, or which might afterwards be printed, in English, in the names of Frith, Tyndale, Wiclif, Joye, Roy, Basil, Bale, Barnes, Coverdale, Turner, Traey, or any of them; together with all books which might contain anything contrary to the act of parliament before referred to. All such books were to be delivered up to persons appointed for the purpose, before the last day of August, in order that they might be burned. The king published his forgiveness of those who still retained prohibited books, on this condition; namely, that they should now be given up in the manner provided; and those who were appointed to receive the books were forbidden to be curious in examining who the persons might be who brought them; all that they had to do was to receive them and burn them.

Books of certain authors prohibited.

Forgiveness for past offences if prohibited books were given up.

Penalties.

The penalty for disobedience of this proclamation was imprisonment at the king's pleasure, and also "such fine and ransom" as the king or four of his council might impose upon the offender. The same penalty, together with the king's extreme indignation, was denounced against all who should import from abroad any books concerning the Christian religion, without having first obtained the king's licence.

The "Great Bible" still unprohibited.

The prohibition of Coverdale's Testament, as well as that of Tyndale, was an extremely sweeping censure: it left comparatively few copies of any sort which were allowed to be read even by the privileged classes. It is clear, I think, that this proclamation intended some version or recension to remain as an allowed book; this must have been that of Cranmer (or the "Great Bible,") which was distinctly regarded as not being Coverdale's, although he had the charge of it while it was passing through the press. The fact of this being the one permitted version of the New Testament was probably the occasion of an edition of it being printed this year. There probably would be some considerable demand for it if those of Coverdale's translation were destroyed in any considerable numbers.

A shepherd's memorandum.

It is probable that the prohibitory act of parliament had been in many places but little attended to, until this proclamation was issued. The following memorandum was written in this year by a shepherd on Sunbury Hill in Middlesex: it stands on a spare leaf of Polydore Vergil's Invention of Arts abridged in English:—"On the invention of things, at Oxford, the yere 1546 browt down to Seynbury by John Darbye, price 14d. When I kepe Mr. Letymers shype I bout thys boke when the Testament was aberagatyn, that sheperdy's might not red hit: I prey God amende that byndnes. Wryt by Robert Wylyams, keppynge shepe vpon Seynbury Hill." This shepherd must have retained his Testament until this year; and it would seem, from this memorandum, that it was then that he dated the prohibition for those in the lower classes to read the Scriptures. It is not too much to suppose that in other places the state of things in this respect was similar.

Destruction of English Bibles.

The destruction of the copies of the Scriptures must have been carried on with great diligence; and it is probably owing to the care with which this was done, that so few copies of the three editions of Coverdale's Bible have come down to us. Only about four copies appear to be known of the two editions (taken together) of the year 1537. The destruction must have been almost as complete as that of the two first editions of Tyndale's New Testament.

But although the king carried on his arbitrary proceedings, and shewed the bent of his inclination in thus suppressing the Scriptures, there was not wanting a faithful monitor to testify to him, even as Latimer done in 1530.

Supplication of the Poor Commons. Sirype, Mem. Ecc. i. 633.

In this year, a few months apparently after the proclamation had been published, a book appeared addressed to the king, entitled, "A Supplication of the Poor Commons." It set out with a complaint concerning the state in which England was, through the conduct of the priests, &c. Speaking of their teaching, it is said:—

Priests complained of. Their teaching.

"They tell us, that vice, uncharitableness, lack of mercy, diversity of opinions, and other like enormities, have reigned in England ever since men had the Scriptures in English. . . . They say, it sufficeth a layman to believe as they teach, and not to meddle with the interpretation of Scripture. . . . They cannot abide this name, the Word of God; but they would have the Scriptures called, the Commandments of God. They have procured a law that none shall be so hardy as to have the Scriptures in his house unless he may spend 10*l.* by year. And what meaneth this, but that they would famish the souls of the residue, withholding their food from them? We appeal to your highness's judgment in this behalf, whether this would be indifferent or no; if none should be allowed meat in your highness's house, but such as were clothed in velvet, with chains of gold about their necks? What servants would your majesty have shortly? What starvelings would your servants be of all other? For no man within your realm may refuse to do you service. Hath God put immortal souls in none other, but such as be possessioners of this world? Did not Christ send word to John the Baptist, that the poor received the Gospel? . . . Why do these men disable them from reading the Scriptures, that are not endued with possessions of this world? . . . Because they are the very same that shut up the kingdom of heaven before men. They enter not in themselves, nor suffer they them to enter that would."

The prohibition on reading the Bible.

The writer then speaks of the argument which might be used, that, as it was Parliament which had made the law, so it was in effect the act of the whole people:—

"Whereunto we answer, that if we have given it over from us to the possessioners of this world, we may well be likened to the Gadarenes (Mark v.), which desired Christ to depart from their country. . . . If we have rejected this merciful proffer of our most merciful Father (to have the Scriptures the declaration of God's will), when He used your highness as His instrument to publish and set forth His most lively word; let us fall down prostrate with repentance of this contempt of His most merciful gift: most humbly beseeching Him to behold the dolours of our hearts, and to forget our obstinacy therein, giving your highness such desire of our salvation, that you will as favourably restore unto us the Scripture in our English tongue, as you did at the first translation thereof set it abroad. Let not the adversary take occasion to say, the Bible was of a traitor's setting forth, and not of your highness own doing. For so they report that Thomas Cromwell, late Earl of Essex, was the chief doer, and not your highness, but as led by him.

The writer, after this, speaks of the manner in which the king's former injunction had been abused by the bishops and clergy:—

“When your highness gave commandment that they should see that there was in every parish church, one Bible at the least, set at liberty: so that every man might freely come to it, and read therein such things as should be for his consolation; many of this wicked generation, as well priests as others their faithful adherents, would pluck it other into the quire, other else into some pew, where poor men durst not presume to come; yea, there is no small number of churches that hath no Bible at all. And yet not sufficed with the withholding it from the poor of their own parishes, they never rested till they had a commandment from your highness, that no man of what degree soever he were, should read the Bible in the time of God's service as they call it. As though the hearing of their Latin lies, and conjuring of water & salt, were rather the service of God, than the study of His most holy word, This was their diligence in setting forth the Bible at your highness commandment.”

The Bishops, &c. oppose the Scriptures.

The zeal with which the late proclamation against Tyndale's and Coverdale's versions had been carried out is next adverted to, shewing how the letter of the king's orders had been even overstepped:—“But when your highness had devised a proclamation, for the burning of certain translations of the New Testament, they were so bold to burn the whole Bible, because they were of those men's translation.”

After this, the proceedings relative to the making of a new translation are thus spoken of:—

“We heard say that they proffered your highness that if you would please to call in the Bible again, forasmuch as it was not faithfully translated in all parts, they would oversee it: and within seven years set it forth again. . . . Your bishops. . . . if they might have gotten in the Bible for seven years, they would have trusted, that by that time, either your highness should have been dead, or the Bible forgotten; or else they themselves out of your highness' reach; so that you should not have had like power over them, as you have now.”

Their unwillingness to set forth a version.

The writer next speaks of the Bible which had been overseen and perused at the king's command, by Bishops Tonstall and Heath:—“When your Majesty appointed two of them to overlook the translation of the Bible, they said, they had done your highness' commandment therein: yea they set their names thereunto. But when they saw the world somewhat like to wring on the other side; they denied it and said, they never meddled therewith: causing the printer to take out their names which were erst set before the Bible, to certify to all men that they had diligently perused it according as your highness had commanded.”

These notices of events then recent, relative to the circulation of the Scriptures, are highly interesting. It is to be observed, that in this “supplication,” facts are arranged without any regard to the actual order of time. The writer speaks at considerable length of the sufferings of the poor, through the conduct of the priests; and he earnestly treats the aid of the king. He thus presses upon him the responsibility under which he was:—

“If you suffer Christ's poor members to be thus opprest, look for none other than the rightful judgment of God, for your negligence in your office and ministry. For the blood of all them that by your negligence shall perish, shall be required at your hands. Be merciful therefore unto yourself, and unto us your most obessant subjects. . . . Remember that your hoar hairs are a token that nature maketh haste to absolve the course of your life.”

The king's responsibility.

The king's end was probably much nearer than the writer of this supplication thought. He did not survive his proclamation for widely suppressing the Scriptures more than a few months; he died on the 28th of January, 1547, in the fifty-sixth year of his age, and the thirty-eighth of his reign. Thus the effects of that proclamation passed away in a very short time.

The death of Henry, Jan. 28, 1547.

It was now about one and twenty years since the first copies of the English New Testament in print had been circulated; the consequences of this had been momentous: the earnest desire after the knowledge of the revelation of God had been excited; and it would have been impossible to have thwarted it. Many would probably have suffered, for they had learned the value of the revelation of God, and that it is worth retaining at all hazards. Every effort had at first been made to crush the Scriptures in English; but, through the blessing of God, those efforts failed; the opposers afterwards lent a helping hand, and became, for a time, the instruments of their diffusion. At length, they again hindered the spread of God's word; but just when these hindrances were endeavoured to be greatly increased, the whole scene changed, and the restrictions vanished away. In tracing out these events, how much there is to manifest the overruling power and grace of God in bringing such mighty results to pass, through the labours of two of His servants, WILLIAM TYNDALE and MYLES COVERDALE.

The knowledge of the Gospel accompanies the spread of the Scriptures.

It is very evident, in reviewing the events of the preceding twenty years, that just as the Scriptures spread in England, so did the knowledge of that Gospel which had been so long obscured; namely, that God accounts sinners righteous for the sake of that work which Christ has finished; and that, through His blood, all who believe have forgiveness of sins as their present and continuing blessing.

IX.

REIGN OF EDWARD VI.—SCRIPTURES AGAIN CIRCULATED.

State of things at the commencement of the reign of Edward VI.

UNFAVOURABLE as the close of Henry's reign had appeared to the circulation of the Scriptures, it was the prelude to better things. The restraint which had been laid upon the Scriptures in English, by the suppression of Tyndale's and Coverdale's translations, must have been very effectual in withdrawing from ostensible circulation the greater part of the copies of the whole Bible which had been printed, and all those of the New Testament, as a separate volume; until, in the same year in which this restraint was imposed, Grafton printed an edition of the New Testament, according to the "Great Bible," to meet the demand for the word of God which might yet exist amongst the privileged classes.

Thus, at the commencement of the reign of Edward VI., the Scriptures were almost entirely withdrawn from circulation; the mass of the people were forbidden to read them; and one chapter, read by the priest every week, was the only permitted manner for the people at large to obtain any knowledge of the revelation of God.

It is to be observed, that whatever liberty had been granted at times, in the reign of Henry, to the preaching of the Gospel, no steps of any importance had been taken to get clear of the ritual of Rome. Even those who held any post in the established church (such as it then was), were thorough conformists, in action, to the services of the Roman Missal; every thing relating to the Pope's jurisdiction had been weeded out, but the book was essentially the same. Some practices, which were full of idolatry and superstition, had been abrogated; and a few attempts had been made towards the introduction of English prayers, in the stead of those in Latin. In fact, the state of things, at the close of Henry's reign, was such, that a retrogradation to the owning of the Pope's authority seemed much more probable, than a steady advance in the doctrine of the Reformation.

But still, much had been done. The silent testimony of the word of God had gone forth; and, although that word had again become a volume withheld from the many, yet the seed sown in their hearts could not be so easily uprooted. Results, in the following reign, manifested that the seed which had been thus already sown, had not been wasted.

Romish ritual combined with the Gospel.

It is to be observed, that frequently, educational habit leads men into inconsistencies of conduct which seem almost inexplicable. This is found to be the case even with those who make the profession of the name and the Gospel of Christ; and thus it is that the routine of a false system is adhered to, long after the system itself has been seen to be evil. This in part explains how, in the reign of Henry VIII., even those who wished to further the Gospel of Christ, continued the usage of ceremonies which, when analysed, are found to be utterly subversive of the true doctrine of the grace of God. Thus, in England, it was long before the use of a false service was really felt to be an evil thing. The questions which occupied the minds of those who thought about righteousness and peace with God, were those which related to individual salvation, far more than those which had to do with the rectitude, or the reverse, of any particular prayer, system, or ceremony. Let this be borne in mind; and we shall understand how gradually, even after the death of Henry, the external framework of Romanism was thrown aside.

Somerset, the Protector, a supporter of the Reformation.

The Scriptures were permitted.

At the accession of King Edward, the actual weight of government fell at the first upon his uncle, who was now created Duke of Somerset, and made Lord Protector. Somerset was an instrument in the hand of God, for carrying on the Reformation in England, very much in the same way in which Cromwell had been ten years before. Among the early acts of this reign, was the reversing of the restrictions which had been laid on the circulation and the reading of the Scriptures.

In May, 1547, there were certain injunctions drawn up; which, in the following September, were published, and circulated by the king's visitors, who were appointed to visit and to preach in every diocese of the kingdom. Amongst other things required by these injunctions, were the following:—

Injunctions circulated,
Sept., 1547.
Collivry, v. 199.
Fox, b. 9, p. 5.

"Within three months after this visitation, the Bible of the larger volume in English, and within twelve months Erasmus, his Paraphrase on the Gospel was to be provided, and conveniently placed in the church for the use of the people," that they "might reverently, without any argument or contention, read and hear the same at such times as they listed, and not be inhibited therefrom by the parson and curate, but rather to be the more encouraged and provoked thereto."

"And that every ecclesiastical person under the degree of a bachelor of divinity, shall provide for himself the New Testament, in Latin and English, with Erasmus's Paraphrase. And that the bishops and their officers shall examine the parochial clergy in the study of Holy Scriptures."

The clergy were to "examine such as come to confession in Lent, whether they can repeat the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and Ten Commandments, in English. And that unless they are thus far acquainted with the fundamentals of religion, they ought not to be admitted to the blessed sacrament of the altar."

"And that in the time of high mass, he that says or sings the same, shall read the Epistle and Gospel in English, and one chapter at matins, immediately after the lessons; and at even song, after Magnificat, one chapter of the Old Testament. And that when nine lessons are to be read in the church [sc. Latin lessons], three of them shall be omitted, with the responds; and at even song the responds, with all the memories [i. e. commemorations of persons deceased], shall be likewise omitted."

A form of "bidding" prayer was at the same time set forth, and prescribed to be used, the conclusion of it ran thus:—

"You shall pray for all them that be departed out of this world, in the faith of Christ, that they with us, and we with them, at the day of judgment, may rest both body and soul with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven."

These extracts from the instructions contain what was now ordered with regard to the word of God in English: they likewise shew how little had been done to innovate upon the service of Rome; in fact, the things which but a little while after were so strenuously and rightly condemned by the Homilies, were still in the most part remaining, only the light of the word of God was introduced amongst them: and this light soon began to manifest the darkness around.

Means taken that the word of God in English should be known.

It seems probable from these injunctions that in the latter part of the preceding reign, the Bibles had been removed from some of the churches: and indeed, when they might no longer be freely read by the people, no good reason seems to have remained for their continuing where they had been so set; since their being placed there was for that object and no other. These injunctions put matters relative to the circulation of the Scriptures in precisely the same position as they had been in the year 1541; this, however, was added,—the reading of some portions of them in public, which had commenced when they were prohibited to be read by the people in general. In other respects also the greater part of the observances were retained which had been upheld in the preceding reign. It is true that in some places there were those who had a zeal for the truth of God which led them without any warrant from the government to destroy various emblems of idolatry. The cessation of persecution upon the Act of the Six Articles, may have emboldened them in these proceedings. Strype says, "From the beginning of King Edward's reign, hitherto, the old way of worship, and the rites and ceremonies continued as they had done in the former reign, without, or but small, variation:" the reason of this, he states to have been that the meeting of a Parliament was waited for before any such innovations should be made.

Holdness of some reformers.

Strype, Mem.
Ecc. ii. 56.

It is probable that the copies of the "Great Bible," which had been printed between the years 1538 and 1541, were still undestroyed and preserved; for if this had not been the case, the injunctions could not have been complied with. No edition of the Bible was published in this reign previous to the year 1549, although in the year in which the injunctions were issued, an edition of the New Testament, English and Latin, was published; and in the following year several editions in English.

Copies of the Bible yet in existence.
Cotton's list.

The Paraphrase of Erasmus of the Gospels completed Jan.
1548.
Queen Catherine Parr causes the translation to be made.

The Paraphrase of Erasmus upon the Gospels, which was enjoined to be procured within twelve months after the issuing of the injunctions, was not yet printed. It was, however, completed in the ensuing January. The translation of this paraphrase from the Latin had been in a great part executed before the death of Henry VIII., through the instrumentality of the queen, Catherine Parr, his last wife.

Myles Coverdale had been on the continent during the latter years of the reign of Henry: he appears during the latter part of Henry's reign. His second exile, 1540.

Coverdale

His wanderings.

At Tübingen made D. D. His means of subsistence.

At Augsburg, May, 1545, Nuremberg, Oct. 1545.

Appointed minister at Bergzabern.

His marriage.

Strype, Mem. Ecc. iii. 346.

Hoker, Mem. Cov. p. 139.

Coverdale's return to England.

Appointed almoner to the Q. Dowager.

The queen's death, Sept. 1548.

Her funeral sermon preached by Coverdale. MS. Coll. of Arms. Mem. Cov. p. 141.

Parliament, Nov. 1547.

Act of the Six Articles repealed.

Other changes.

Circulation of the Scriptures.

to have returned to England after the seizure of the Bibles at Paris, and to have left it again either on the passing of the Act of the Six Articles, or else soon after; probably before the trouble of Barnes and his companions. Bale says that his return, on the accession of King Edward, was after an exile of seven years. The places of his abode during the time when he had thus become, for the second time, a voluntary exile from his native land, cannot be traced with any exactness; some of them are, however, known; and these shew that his was a very wandering life. It must indeed, in many respects, have resembled "the poor Apostle's life" of Tyndale, of which Frith made mention. One of the places at which he sojourned for some time was the University of Tübingen, where the degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him. He earned his livelihood during the time partly by teaching young children. It is not unlikely that some of his pupils were persons of more advanced age.

From the dates and places at which certain of his books were printed, while he was abroad, we may, I think, gather, that, in May, 1545, he was at Augsburg; and that, at the end of the following October, he was at Nuremberg. Where he had been, besides Tübingen, during the time preceding, does not appear.

His long residence in Germany had made him a complete master of the language; and thus, although no longer able to continue to preach to his own countrymen, he was not hindered from labouring as an evangelist abroad. He must have been occupied in this manner during some of his wanderings, for the Duke of Deux-Ponts presented him, in consequence, with the benefice of Bergzabern, in his duchy, three leagues south-west of Landau. This must have occurred during the latter part of his exile; for he is said to have retained it until the accession of Edward VI., when the persecution on account of the Six Articles having been stayed, he was able to return to England in safety.

He was now a married man. When he became so is uncertain—whether during his previous exile, or during this period of banishment: if the former, then most probably that circumstance alone sufficed to hinder him from being in England after the Act of the Six Articles was passed. His wife was born, it is said, "either in Germany or Denmark:" the latter, perhaps, is the country intended;* her name was Elizabeth. She was one of two sisters, of whom Johannes Maechabæus Alpinus, a Scotchman, holding a high situation in the employ of the King of Denmark, married the other. This makes it probable that Coverdale was himself married while in Denmark, which must have been, I believe, between the years 1531 and 1534. Very little is known of his wife, except that she was "a most sober, chaste, and godlike matrone," and that she was still alive while Coverdale was bishop of Exeter.

Coverdale must have returned to England very soon after the accession of King Edward. He returned, says Bale, "poor in this world, but rich in the grace of Christ." Soon after this, Catherine Parr, the Queen Dowager, who had married the king's uncle, Thomas, Lord Seymour of Sudely, appointed him her almoner. This it was, probably, that caused him to be connected with the translation of part of the second volume of the Paraphrase of Erasmus. The first volume of this was published in January, 1548. In the following September, the queen, who had patronized the work, died at the seat of her husband, Sudely Castle, in Gloucestershire. She was buried in the chapel belonging to Sudely Castle; and Coverdale preached her funeral sermon, warning the persons who were present, that none of the funeral ceremonies were performed with the view of benefiting the deceased queen; in order that in so doing, he might clearly avoid the Popish abuses which had universally prevailed. It is to be observed, that, as yet, the dead were prayed for in the services of the church; so that Coverdale, in boldly stating the truth on this subject, was going beyond what might be styled the existing state of the English Reformation.

In November, 1547, the Parliament and the Convocation both met, the latter on the 5th, the former on the preceding day. This Parliament enacted legally many of those things which the Protector had previously done by proclamation; for instance, the Act of the Six Articles was wholly repealed; all statutes for the punishment of Lollards were likewise repealed; as also was the act which had been passed in the preceding reign, by which the reading of the Scriptures was restricted. Thus there was now, not only legal permission for all to read the word of God without any hindrance, but likewise there was a repeal of those laws by which any might have been punished on account of the truth which they might learn. To the end of this reign, no restriction was imposed upon the use and diffusion of the Scriptures: editions multiplied; and the many things in which the rites of popery were thrown off, prove that the fruit of the circulation of the Scriptures was (through the blessing of God) abundantly ample. The instrument to whom the people of England were indebted for this blessing, was the king's uncle, the Protector Somerset.

* Strype says, "He lived long in Germany and Denmark: where he had a benefice, and married a sober woman, named Elizabeth, born in those parts." This is not very definite.

It was declared that the Lord's supper ought to be received according to the institution of Christ under both kinds, bread and wine, and likewise, that the priest ought not to receive alone, without the people.

The Convocation likewise, at the same time, agreed that the Lord's supper ought to be received under both kinds, and that priests might marry; the ground on which both these decisions rested was, the testimony of God in His word. The successive steps which were taken in the succeeding convocations by Cramer, Ridley, and others, in opposition to transubstantiation, the Latin service, and other ceremonies and doctrines of Rome, cannot be recounted here.

X.

OCCURRENCES CONNECTED WITH COVERDALE AND OTHERS, IN THE REIGN OF EDWARD VI.

OTHER matters of interest relative to Coverdale remain to be mentioned, as occurring in the reign of Edward VI. Many made an evil use of the liberty which was accorded them, of freely reading the word of God: this led to harsh measures towards certain of them. Those who received the reformed doctrines had yet to learn, both that the excision of heretics was not their province, and that varying judgments as to many points need not hinder the exercise of Christian love. Many are spoken of at this period as having given trouble from their holding, some Anabaptist,* and some Arian doctrines. Certain of the former were tried on the 27th of April, 1549, before Archbishop Cramer, and others at St. Paul's; and on the Sunday after their next meeting, one of the said Anabaptists, named John Champneys, of Stratford-le-Bow, did penance at Paul's Cross, on which occasion Coverdale preached. This is the first intimation as to where he was after he had left Sndely Castle upon the death of Queen Catherine Parr.

The proceedings which were carried on in this reign, for reformation in religion, were, of course, unpopular with those who clung to "the old learning;" while, at the same time, such a thing as toleration appears never to have entered the minds of those who were in authority. These circumstances occasioned a great deal of commotion in England in the summer of 1549: insurrections broke out in various parts of the country, of which the most considerable was in Devonshire and Cornwall. This commenced in the month of June; soon after which, they sent their demands to the king, embodied in seven articles. To these a reply was sent in the king's name, which had, however, no effect in causing them to disperse, and they in return sent a supplication to the king. But although they took the place of suppliants, they were very far from thinking themselves to be merely such; for their articles are couched in a peculiarly dictatorial strain, and nothing would suffice them but a punctual compliance. The Lord Privy Seal, Lord Russell (afterwards Earl of Bedford), was sent against them; and he offering to receive their complaints, they gave him their demands, which were now increased to fifteen articles. They referred principally as before, to the re-establishment of popery, only now their demands were greater and more definite; they required that all ancient councils should be observed, that the law of the Six Articles should be re-enacted, that the Latin Mass should be restored, that all who would not worship the Sacrament should die as heretics, and other matters of a similar kind. Their tenth article is remarkable:—"We wil haue the Bible, and all books of Scripture in English, to be called in again. For we be informed that otherwise the clergy shall not of long time confound the heretics." This was an ingenious confession, it shewed how ill all that which was of man's devising, and to which his heart so fondly clung, could bear the introduction of the light of God's pure word.

* It is right to state most explicitly, that those who are called by writers of this period "Anabaptists," are not to be confounded as regards either doctrine or practice with those Christians who now reject the doctrine of infant baptism.

If any ask, "What did the Anabaptists of this period hold?" It may suffice to refer such to the examination of the Anabaptists above mentioned. They held that "the elect sinned not, and could not sin; that they that be regenerate never fall away from godly love [this was a different doctrine from that of the salvation of every justified person]; and that the elect have a right to take so much of the things of the world as may supply their necessities." That these were not misrepresentations, was proved by the confession and abjuration of John Champneys, above mentioned.

However, let the errors be grievous as they may, we no where in the New Testament find the church authorised to punish those who err, except in excluding them from the communion of God's people.

The Convocation.

The word of God issued.

Anabaptists and Arians. Anabaptists tried, April 27, 1549.

John Champneys does penance.

Coverdale preaches. Mem. Cov. p. 142.

Strype. Cran. p. 294.

Commotions in England. Summer 1549.

Devon and Cornwall.

The demands of the rebels.

Lord Russell sent against them.

Further demands of the rebels.

Their opposition to the Scripture.

Other measures were taken besides the Lords Russell and Gray having been sent against the rebels; various preachers were sent into the West on this occasion, but none seem to have shewn much willingness to undertake so dangerous a work, except Myles Coverdale. This was spoken of several years afterwards, as being greatly to his commendation.

The rebels, headed by Humphrey Arundel and Henry Bray, mayor of Bodmin, had laid siege to Exeter; and, after all attempts at a negotiation had failed, Lord Russell attacked and routed part of their men. This was in the latter part of July: the siege of Exeter had continued several weeks, and the inhabitants were nearly starved into a surrender. In spite of a partial repulse, the rebels continued their siege, which was ended by their being totally routed on the 5th of August, by a second attack of Lord Russell. Four thousand men were killed or taken prisoners: they had at this time maintained the siege for six weeks.

Coverdale having been sent into the West on this occasion, preached in various places; this was as much needed there as in any part of England, or perhaps more so. He preached a thanksgiving sermon after the victory at Exeter. The council had guaranteed to requite the preachers who undertook the service on which they were employed in this matter; accordingly, we find in the following year (July 20), a reward of forty pounds given to him from the king.

Where Coverdale was during the period which had elapsed before the victory at Exeter until the following July (almost a year) does not appear. He may have continued in the West for some considerable time, which is rendered probable from the date of the king's donation to him; or he may have gone abroad; which is rendered not improbable, from the fact of an edition of his Bible having been published this year (1550) which is said to have been printed at Zurich. If he were present himself at the place at which it was printed, he could not have remained until it was completed, which was not until the 16th of August, 1550. This edition of his Bible is clearly one of the two revisions which he mentioned in his sermon at Paul's Cross, in which he defended his version; and this circumstance makes it seem likely that he was himself present at the place where the printing was executed.*

On the 18th of January, 1551, Coverdale is mentioned as one who was appointed a commissioner, with Cramer and others, for the searching out and examining of Anabaptists and other heretics. The powers given to these commissioners was very great. Under this commission, (the second of the kind which there had been in this reign,) an Arian, named George Van Paris, was condemned as an obstinate heretic: the warrant for his execution by burning was made out by the lord chancellor in April this year. It is needful to mention this circumstance, because Coverdale belonged to this commission; although it does not appear that he was concerned in the affair, and whether he acted at all as a commissioner cannot be ascertained. Arianism is a most awful and blasphemous heresy, nearly approaching to that of Socinianism (that resort of those who are too cowardly to avow themselves infidels); but that is no ground for the putting of such to death; and the deed is to be reprehended by whomsoever it be sanctioned.

Coverdale was in favour at this time with the ruling powers.† He had been for some time spoken of as likely to succeed to the bishopric of Exeter: such a supposition was mentioned in June, 1550, by Peter Martyr, who highly commended Coverdale, expressing his opinion that nothing could tend more to the restoring of true religion in England, than for men such as Coverdale to be generally entrusted with the administration of the Church.

Veysey, the bishop of Exeter at this time, was an old man who was commonly absent from his diocese, and who was altogether opposed to the Reformation. It was therefore looked on as sound policy to endeavour to induce him to resign. This was negotiated in some manner which does not seem very clear; the ground assigned in his resignation is that of old age and infirmities. Such measures as these gave an opportunity, throughout the reign of Edward VI., for rapacious courtiers to enrich themselves, by getting possession of the estates which had previously belonged to the various bishoprics. It was so in this case: for one of the arrangements of Veysey's resignation was, that the alienation on his part of the property of the see would be connived at. The property of the see was pretty well reduced by these alienations; for whereas, in 1534, the estimated annual value of this bishopric was more than fifteen hundred pounds, it was now reduced to one-third part of that sum.

* A re-issue of this edition in 1553 had a new title page printed for it.

† The following notice of him occurs about this time:—
"On the 7th of March, 1551, Lord Wentworth, who had been Lord Chamberlain to the king, was buried at Westminster in an honourable manner, and Coverdale preached the funeral sermon."—Mem. Cov. p. 145.

His estates and lands of the bishopric, 1550, 14; 7.

An edition of Coverdale's
Bible printed, 1550.

Coverdale a commissioner for examining heretics,
Jan. 18, 1551.
Van Paris condemned.

Coverdale proposed as Bishop of Exeter.
P. Martyr's commendation of Coverdale.

Bp. Veysey induced to resign.

Preachers sent to the West.
Coverdale goes thither.

Siege of Exeter.

Rebels routed,
Aug. 5, 1549.

Coverdale
preaches in various places.

Coverdale was nominated to the vacant see, August 14th, 1551. The next day the royal letters were directed to Archbishop Cranmer, informing him of the appointment, and desiring him to consecrate him. A delay, however, occurred: Coverdale was too poor to pay his "first fruits" to the king; he therefore had to wait at court in order to get himself excused this payment, and also to do homage on his appointment. He found, however, nothing but delays; and this apparently from secret hinderers of the Gospel, so that he was obliged at last to obtain the interference of Cranmer to help on the business. Cranmer accordingly wrote to Cecil, the secretary, for Coverdale, entreating that no delays might be made, and stating the need that there was of him in his diocese.

Coverdale's nomination, Aug. 14, 1551.

This apparently brought matters to a point, and he was consecrated on the 30th of August, by Archbishop Cranmer, assisted by Nicholas Ridley, bishop of London, and John Hodgkin, suffragan of Bedford. Scory was consecrated bishop of Rochester at the same time.

His consecration, Aug. 30, 1551.

A few days after, he received his license to preach, which was, in those days, needed even by Bishops; such a fear was there of popish doctrine being preached. On the 10th of September he also had a license for himself and Elizabeth his wife, with any five or six guests who might be with them, to eat flesh upon the days which had been appropriated to fasting or abstinence.

Coverdale's name occurs about this time in the king's commission, for revising and compiling the Ecclesiastical Laws. This commission is dated October 6, 1551: it is probable, however, that Coverdale was in his diocese, and so did not act upon the commission.

Coverdale appointed a Commissioner for revising Ecc. Laws.

As Bishop of Exeter, Coverdale's diligence has been highly commended; he was especially remarked for what was then so much needed,—frequent preaching. This he attended to upon every holyday, as well as lecturing, at some one of the many churches in Exeter, twice every week. His godliness and uprightness of life seem to have procured for him general respect; and farther, they may have commended the Gospel to the consciences of some of those who thus saw its fruits. His care over his own house was likewise highly commended; which indeed is a thing most needful in any one who has the care of the Church of God: "If a man know not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God?"

Coverdale's diligence.

1 Tim. iii.

He does not appear to have been skilful in civil or canon law; and thus, he was glad to procure the services of Dr. Robert Weston, to whom he committed the charge of his ecclesiastical jurisdiction.

Dr. Robt. Weston, his chancellor.

Coverdale, however, had enemies: and surely it must be so, according to the teaching of the Apostle: "Yea, all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution." The grounds of objection to him were these: that he was a preacher of the Gospel, an enemy of papistry, and a married man. Many attempts were made by his enemies to bring him into some snare, but in vain: other attempts were likewise made to kill him by poison; but, through the merciful care of his God and Father, this was frustrated. The Lord had service for him yet; and he whom He preserves is safe, let Satan rage as he will. It is probable, that Coverdale continued mostly in his diocese, during the two years that he retained his episcopal function. The only thing which is known to have called him away, was his attendance in parliament: in this, as in other things, punctuality and diligence were his characteristics. The first assembling of parliament after he was made bishop of Exeter, was on January 23, 1552: this session continued until the dissolution on the 5th of April following. During this session, there were but two days on which he was absent. Another parliament met in March, 1553: it assembled on the first day of the month, and was prorogued on the last; from this Coverdale was absent but one day.

Coverdale's enemies. 2 Tim. iii. 12. Efforts of his enemies.

His attendance in Parliament.

This brings the narrative of the known events relative to Coverdale, down to the close of the reign of Edward VI.; a period at which (as we shall see), not only his circumstances were changed, but his liberty and life endangered.

To return to the circumstances relative to the circulation and translation of the Scriptures. It is not to be expected that, in a reign like that of Edward VI., many incidents would occur relative to this subject. The circulation of the Scriptures now went on smoothly and quietly, without being subject to those various fluctuations which had taken place in the preceding reign. The even course of the current caused its progress to be less marked, than had been the case when its surface was continually rippled.

Free circulation of the Scriptures in the reign of Edward.

Many editions of the Bible and New Testament were printed; some being reprints of Matthew's Bible, some of Cranmer's, or the "Great Bible," and some of Taverner's revision. Those who were in power were avowed favourers of the Gospel; and thus, of course, no attempts were made to abridge the free permission with regard to the Scriptures, which had been granted in the beginning of this reign. In this time of quiet, there was much likewise done, through the labours of diligent Gospellers: and by the twofold testimony—the word of God in the hands of the people, and the preaching of the true Gospel—many souls were converted.

Many editions.

Labours of Gospellers.

Some mention of the duke of Somerset.

The duke of Somerset has been already mentioned as having been, in the early part of the reign of his nephew, the principal instrument in altering the whole of that course of proceeding which had been adopted in the latter part of the reign of Henry VIII.

His actions in his high and perilous station of Lord Protector, do not belong to this place: it may suffice to say, that he shewed himself to be a favourer both of the Gospel and of those who preached it; and it was his endeavour, so far as he could, to appoint such men to be bishops as might be helpers forward of the truth.

His power of short duration.

His power and authority were, however, but of short duration. He was much beloved by the people at large; but amongst the nobility there were many who envied his authority. In consequence of this, they took occasion a little after the various insurrections, in the year 1549, to accuse him of many things connected with the administration of affairs, and thus they succeeded in depriving him of his offices, and of a considerable portion of his property. The king was now almost entirely in the hands of Dudley, earl of Warwick (afterwards duke of Northumberland), who had principally exerted himself for the deprivation of Somerset. After this, the enemies of the Reformation seem to have taken courage, hoping that the deeds of Somerset would be as transient as his power had been short-lived. They likewise hoped that the earl of Warwick would exert himself to undo what the Protector had done.

The earl of Warwick,

Collier, v. 373.

“Those who were averse to the Reformation made their court to the earl of Warwick, expecting his inclination lay for their purpose; but this nobleman, being more concerned for his own greatness than for any systems of religion, disappointed their hopes. He found the abetting the Reformation was the most effectual way to recommend him to the king. Thus he appeared in a new disguise, and appeared strongly in his master’s sentiment.”

The Reformation continues.

Thus, although Somerset was no longer able to use his power and influence, the work of Reformation went on. It is true, that the chief power was in the hands of a wicked man, but still policy made him act as the king desired; and farther, the wholesale appropriations which the courtiers made of lands which had belonged to abbies or bishoprics, could only be kept up by an apparent zeal for the farther progress of Reformation.

Somerset a prisoner.

After the duke of Somerset had been deprived by his enemies, who conspired against him, of his office of Protector, he was kept for a little while a prisoner in the Tower: his enemies, however, were unable to compass his death at this time; and, accordingly, he was set at liberty again. Two years afterwards, they appear to have been apprehensive lest he should recover his former station of Protector; and for that reason they concerted measures for his destruction. He was committed to the Tower, October the 16th, 1551, and on the first of the following December, he was tried in Westminster Hall. He was charged on several counts with high treason and felony. No evidence was brought against him except written depositions: the lords, who took the most prominent part in his trial, were his principal enemies; and yet so notoriously were the charges devoid of proof, that they could do no other than acquit him of the heavier charges of treason, although they convicted him of felony; this, however, was done without evidence which could warrant such a verdict. The people heard of his acquittal; and, without being aware that he was convicted on another charge, were loud in their acclamations: when, however, they knew the real state of the case, they gave full proof of their vexation.

Soon liberated.

He committed to the Tower,
O. S. L. 16, 1551.

Tried, Dec. 1.

Convicted of high treason.

They remained a prisoner in the Tower until the 22nd of January, 1552, on which day he was beheaded upon Tower Hill. After having prayed, he addressed the people who were there assembled, reminding them of obedience to the laws, and speaking of his willingness to die. He afterwards spoke of the progress of the Reformation:—

Beheaded, Jan.
22, 1552.

Fox, book ix.

“Moreover, dearly beloved friends, there is yet somewhat that I must put you in mind of, as touching Christian Religion, which, so long as I was in authority, I always diligently set forth and furthered to my power. Neither do I repent me of my doings, but rejoice therein, sith that now the state of Christian Religion cometh most near unto the form and order of the Primitive Church. Which thing I esteem as a great benefit given of God, both unto you and me. Most heartily exhorting you all, that this which is most purely set forth among you, you will with like thankfulness accept and embrace, and set out the same in your living. Which thing, if you do not, without doubt greater mischief and calamity will follow.”

When he had proceeded thus far in his speech, there was a considerable disturbance among the people; and it was said that a messenger was bringing the king’s pardon for the duke: this made them loud in their vociferation and acclamations; but the duke, well knowing how fully his enemies had planned his destruction, beckoned to the people to be quiet, and then continued to speak to them. He informed them that they were mistaken in the thought of a pardon being sent him, and asked them to join with him in prayer for the king, to whom he said he had ever shewn himself to be a faithful and true subject, diligent in his affairs, and in seeking the common profit of the kingdom. To this the people heartily responded, exclaiming that this was most true. He then prayed for the king, and exhorted the people to obedience; after which he thus concluded his speech:—

“Moreover, forasmuch as heretofore I have had oftentimes affairs with divers men, & hard it is to please every man, therefore if there be any that hath been offended and injured by me, I most humbly require and ask him forgiveness, but especially Almighty God, whom throughout all my life I have most grievously offended; and all other whatsoever they be that have offended me, I do with my whole heart forgive them. Now I once again require you, dearly beloved in the Lord, that you will keep yourselves quiet and still, lest through your tumult you might trouble me. For albeit the spirit be willing and ready, the flesh is frail and wavering, and through your quietness I shall be much more quieter. Moreover, I desire you all to bear me witness that I die here in the faith of Jesus Christ; desiring you to help me with your prayers, that I may persevere constant in the same unto my life’s end.”

His dying profession.

After he had again prayed, he prepared himself with very great composure for execution; binding a handkerchief over his own face, and laying himself upon the block.

“Thus this most meek and gentle duke lying along and looking for the stroke, because his doublet covered his neck he was commanded to rise up and put it off; and then laying himself down again upon the block, and calling thrice upon the name of Jesus, saying, Lord Jesus, save me! as he was the third time repeating the same, even as the name of Jesus was in uttering, in a moment he was bereft both of head and life, and slept in the Lord Jesus, being taken away from all dangers & evils of this life, and resting now in the peace of God; in the preferment of whose truth and gospel he always shewed himself an excellent instrument and member, and therefore hath received the reward of his labours.”

Fox. book ix.

“Whatsoever his other vices and virtues were, this is certain, that his end (the Lord so working with him) was constant in Christ’s truth, as his life was before a great maintainer of the same.”

It is not a little remarkable that the two great instruments in setting forth the Scriptures to be read without danger, Cromwell and Somerset, should both have similarly suffered. The latter was by far the most unblemished as to his public administration of affairs, but Cromwell was placed in a yet more difficult position than that which Somerset afterwards held. Each, doubtless, was injured by ambition, and thus their devotedness to Christ and his glory was greatly hindered. Somerset had far greater opportunities than Cromwell for carrying on the work of Reformation, and it must be granted that he used them: if the means to which he resorted were not always such as can now be approved, it must ever be borne in mind that, although in some it is more discernible than in others, the work and service of every saint on earth is hindered and marred by imperfections. The only ground which either Somerset or Cromwell could take before God is that upon which alone any will join that innumerable multitude out of every tongue, who shall be gathered before the throne, namely, the blood of the Lamb, the unfailing resource provided by God for sinners.

Cromwell and Somerset.

Although there was, in this reign, perfect liberty as regards the use and circulation of the Scriptures, yet it is not a little remarkable, that no new translation or recension was published.* This shews, I think, that the proceedings in 1542 in the convocation, however much helped on by Cranmer, in the hope that a translation might be produced to which objections could not well be made by those who were popishly inclined, did in no way prove that he much objected to the version or revision then in use, which commonly bears his name. Throughout the reign of Edward, this was the version publicly used in the parish churches; and, indeed, the Psalms taken from it are, even at the present day, read in the services of the Established Church.

No new version made in the reign of Edward.

There appears, however, to have been a project for a new translation of the Bible into English, in which it is said that Martin Bucer was principally to have aided. Bucer and Paulus Fagius had been invited into England by the Protector Somerset, and Cranmer; after their arrival, they were appointed to be professors at Cambridge, the former of divinity, the latter of Hebrew. They had arrived in England in April, 1549, and for about three months had been Cranmer’s guests. It was apparently during this interval Project for a new translation.

Bucer and Fagius arrive in England. April, 1549.

* The Bible published by Beck, can scarcely be called a new recension, for it is almost the same as Matthew’s Bible.

that the idea struck Cramer that these two learned foreigners might be fitly employed in making a revision of the English Bible.

Strype's Cran.
281.
Intended to be employed as translators.

"As it had been a great while his pious and most earnest desire, that the holy Bible should come abroad in the greatest exactness and true agreement with the original text, so he laid this work upon these two learned men. First, that they should give a clear, plain, and succinct interpretation of the Scripture, according to the propriety of the language. And, secondly, illustrate difficult and obscure places, and reconcile those that seemed repugnant to one another. And it was his will and advice, that to this end and purpose their public readings should tend. This pious and good work, by the Archbishop assigned to them, they most gladly and readily undertook. For their more regular carrying on this business, they allotted to each other, by consent, their distinct tasks. Fagius, because his talent lay in the Hebrew learning, was to undertake the Old Testament; and Bucer the New."

Both taken ill.

This proposed arrangement was presently frustrated by the illness with which both Fagius and Bucer were seized. The former wished, if possible, to get to Cambridge, to commence, if he could, his appointed lectures; he hoped, likewise, that the change thither might benefit his health. He left Bucer behind him, still sick, and unable to travel; Fagius, continuing ill, earnestly wished to be joined at Cambridge by Bucer, who arrived on the 5th November, 1549. Ten days after this, Fagius fell asleep in Christ, aged forty-five years: this event caused great sorrow to "all pious men that wished well to religion."

Fagius dies,
Nov. 15, 1549.

Tremellius succeeds him.

Upon the death of Fagius, he was succeeded as Hebrew professor by Immanuel Tremellius, who probably would have had that portion of the work which had been appointed to his predecessor, if the scheme of this translation had gone forward.

Bucer's death,
Feb. 1551.

This, however, was prevented by the death of Bucer, which took place in the end of February, 1551; his loss was much felt by the Reformed in England, to whom he had been of great service, as regarded the defence and confirmation of the Gospel of Christ.*

We do not know, very exactly, the particulars of the plan, according to which the proposed translation or revision was to have been executed; it is probable, however, that Bucer and Fagius would have had much aid from English scholars, as to the more accurate manner of expressing the originals according to the idiom of our language; otherwise, it is probable, that however learned their version might have been, it would be one but little fitted for the use of mere English readers.

Before concluding all mention of Bucer, it is to be observed, that England had, for several years before, been mediately benefited by his services. The Argentine English Psalter, published in 1530, was a translation from his Latin Version; it is not impossible that this fact may have suggested the idea of a revision of the whole of the English translation in which he was to be engaged.

Sir J. Cheek translates part of the New Testament.

During some part of this reign, Sir John Cheek (the king's Greek preceptor) executed a version of a part, at least, of the New Testament. This, if completed, would probably have been published; but it is not unlikely that it may have been begun towards the end of the reign, and thus discontinued in consequence of the change of events relative to religion and the Reformation. The following verse is given by Lewis, as a specimen of Sir John Cheek's manuscript version:—"When Jesus was born in Bethlem a city of Juri in King Herood's daïs, lo then the Wisards cam fro these parties." Lewis says, "He has many other such peculiarities, as toller, for publicane, &c." Perhaps this version was never intended for publication, but merely executed for private use.

Matt. ii. 1.

Having thus concluded an account of the events of this reign, relative either to the translation or the diffusion of the Scriptures in English, together with briefly noticing the instruments by whom these objects were principally effected; it will be well to give a general estimate of the probable number of copies of the Scriptures, which were in circulation at the close of this reign.†

Copied in circulation.

The New Testament was printed in the very first year, and very frequently in those which succeeded; some of these editions were of the translation of Tyndale, some according to the "Great Bible," some few Coverdale's version. The number of these editions amounts together to at least twenty-five; so that, perhaps, it would not be too high an estimate, if we regard them to have together comprised seventy-five thousand copies. The editions of the Bible varied as to the text, just in the same manner as did

Twenty-five editions of the New Test.
75,000 copies.

* The friends of the Reformation showed what honour was in their power to both Fagius and Bucer in their burial; a few years afterwards, however, they were disinterred, and their bodies burned, as being those of heretics. It was but a weak and foolish triumph of the restorers of popery, in the days of Mary, thus to attack the bodies of the dead; yet it was a very honourable testimony to those whose remains were thus treated.

† In the estimate given, nothing has been mentioned except what has been and is commonly acknowledged to have been published: how far the editions have been understated as to number and variety, by Dr. Cotton, &c. it is not easy to say, but probably many editions have not been, notwithstanding the diligence and ability of Dr. Cotton in this pursuit, properly noticed.

those of the New Testament; the first of these was printed in the year 1549, in which year there were also several other editions. The total number of impressions in the reign of Edward was at least thirteen, containing probably together more than thirty thousand copies: besides these, there were various editions of separate books of Scripture; and likewise it is to be remembered that at least twelve thousand copies of the "Great Bible" were in existence, and probably in use. At the close of the reign of Edward (July 6th, 1553), there were in circulation and use in England, at least one hundred and seventeen thousand copies of the whole Bible or the New Testament in English; including those used in the parish churches.

Thirteen editions of the Bible.
30,000 copies.

117,000 copies at the close of Edward's reign, July 6, 1553.

Little need be said here of the effects which resulted from this diffusion of truth; when the copies of the Scriptures were few and forbidden, results might be marked with comparative ease; not so when the word of God was so widely diffused, and the working of the Spirit of God was bringing it to so many hearts with quickening power. The occurrences of the reign of Mary give ample proof of the working of the truth of God during the time of quiet which had preceded.

XI.

THE REIGN OF MARY.—RESTORATION OF ROMANISM.—SUFFERINGS OF REFORMERS.—PARTICULARS RELATIVE TO ROGERS AND COVERDALE.

THE death of Edward VI., on the 6th of July, 1553, immediately changed the whole scene. The liberty of the circulation of the word of God, and that of the preaching of the Gospel, were no longer continued. It is probable that the attempts which were made by ambitious and designing men to hinder the accession of Queen Mary, had no inconsiderable sway in prejudicing her mind yet more than it had been before against those who held the Reformed doctrines. Mary very soon declared her dislike of all the changes, with regard to religion, which had taken place. One of the first overt acts against the spread of Reformed doctrine was the prohibition of any to preach unless they were particularly licensed by the queen so to do; at the same time the Scriptures were forbidden to be read in the churches.

Edward's death, July 6, 1553. Its consequences. Mary's accession and conduct.

Prohibition to preach.

A circumstance had occurred, just at this time, which led to this restriction. Gilbert Bourne, one of the canons of St. Paul's (afterwards bishop of Bath and Wells), who was strongly attached to the Popish doctrines, and to those who upheld them, was appointed (probably by those now in power) to preach at Paul's Cross. In his sermon, he largely justified Bonner, who was present; and he spoke of the harsh usage which he had really received in the preceding reign. The auditors, offended at the praise which they heard so bestowed upon Bonner, interrupted the preacher, telling him that the doctrine preached by Bonner was most abominable. The tumult increased, until at length some zealots sought to pull the preacher down from the pulpit: at this crisis, John Bradford, a prebendary of St. Paul's, and a faithful preacher of Christ, was requested by Bourne's brother to appease the people if possible. This he sought to do, by setting before them the duty of obedience to "the powers that be," as the ordinance of God: and this was effectual in causing the greater part of the multitude to disperse. Bourne, however, continued in fear (a dagger having been thrown at him in some part of the tumult); he therefore requested Bradford not to leave him until he should be in safety. Accordingly, Bradford and John Rogers (whose name has been already mentioned in this account as the editor of Matthew's Bible) guarded him until he was safely sheltered. The same afternoon Bradford preached in Bow Church, where he again reproved the people for the insubordination and sedition which they had just manifested.

Aug. 13, 1553. Bourne's sermon at Paul's Cross. Fox, iii. 14, 233.

A disturbance. Bradford interferes.

The date assigned to these occurrences at Paul's Cross is the thirteenth of August, 1553; and, on the next day, the restrictions which have just been mentioned, were commanded to be published. The Lord Mayor and the Recorder of London were directed to state to the Common Council that the queen had informed them, on the twelfth of the month, of the substance of the restrictions, both with regard to preaching, and to the diffusion of the Scriptures. The calling of the Common Council, to which this statement was to be made, was avowedly in consequence of the tumult at Paul's Cross. The ante-dating of the restriction, so as to make it seem to have been issued previous to this affair, was either done to make it appear that the queen was not desirous of paying too much attention to what had passed, and that she was not acting upon that provocation;—or else, the date may have been the true one: only an opportunity had to be waited for, which might seem a fit occasion for making it public.

Publication of the restrictions in preaching Aug. 14, 1553.

To prove that this proclamation against preaching and publicly reading the Scriptures was illegal, and so far invalid, would be sufficiently easy; however, it was acted upon, and thus it comes under notice here. Rogers and Bradford found but little favour with the queen: it may be, she was offended that their preaching should be so much more influential over the minds and conduct of the people, than was that of the preacher of whom she approved. On the sixteenth of August (only three days after the tumult)

This restriction wholly illegal.

Bradford was committed to the Tower, and Rogers commanded to restrain himself to his own house, "without having any conference with any other than those of his own household."

Thus the queen was resolved that if no attention were given to her preachers, no others should be listened to. By far the greater part of the clergy obeyed this order, while those who had been much marked as friends of the Reformation, were either committed to prison, or else restrained to their own houses. Those who had been in any way concerned in the setting up of the Lady Jane as queen, were sufficiently obnoxious on that account; while those who were not involved in that affair, were troubled upon real or pretended grounds. Those who were Romishly affected (however they might have previously complied with the steps which had been taken for the carrying on of the Reformation) now shewed themselves ready even to anticipate the queen's will; they set up the altars which had been removed, and again officiated in the Latin service of the Mass.

Crammer, Ridley, Hooper, and others of the bishops, were committed to prison: others were deprived of their bishoprics on various grounds, while their places were supplied by those who might, from their attachment to Romanism, be regarded as sure to comply with the queen's will. Gardiner was again placed in the see of Winchester, of which he had been deprived; and Bonner was a second time similarly put in possession of the bishopric of London. The common grounds on which the prelates who favoured the Reformation were ejected, were either—of their being married men, or else their being in possession of bishoprics of which some Romish prelates had been deprived during the previous reign. Many finding that there was no liberty in England for the profession of the Gospel, sought a refuge on the continent; while some few, at the peril of their lives (as the events proved), continued to preach to the people in various parts of England, as they might find opportunity. One of those who so remained in England was John Harley, who had been made bishop of Hereford but a little while before the death of King Edward; and having been deprived of his bishopric on the ground of his being married, he continued in England preaching when and where he could, being frequently concealed in woods and similar places, and died at length "like a banished man in his own country." This conclusion of his labours was not until the last year of the reign of Mary, when he had seen enough to shew him the resolute opposition of the Romanists to all who favoured the Reformation.

The latter half of the year 1553, and the whole of the following year, were spent by those in power in doing what they could diligently to eradicate all that had been sown of the seed of the Reformation. The prisons were crowded with those who had been active in the setting forth of the Gospel, and who had thus opposed the whole system of Rome. It does not appear that any particular measures were taken to suppress the Scriptures; indeed, that might be deemed a hopeless task, the copies in circulation were now so numerous. The attempts which were made, were rather directed to the expulsion from England of all those doctrines concerning the Gospel which had been learned from the Scriptures.

Amongst the sufferers and exiles in this reign, we find two who had been peculiarly prominent in publishing and translating the Scriptures into English; namely, John Rogers and Myles Coverdale.

Rogers, about the time of the publication of Matthew's Bible, took a wife; which was, no doubt in a great measure, the reason of his quitting England when the Act of the Six Articles was passed. Upon this he went to Wittenberg, where he was appointed to the charge of a congregation: for this he was well qualified, as having not only the needful gifts from God to fit him spiritually for the work, but likewise being so well acquainted with the German language, that his being an Englishman was no impediment to his preaching. There he remained, until the death of King Henry VIII. emboldened the exiles to return; which they did with the more confidence, seeing how fully the duke of Somerset was bent upon providing, so far as in him lay, that the word of God and the Gospel should be unhindered. Hereupon Rogers returned to England, leaving behind him the competent maintenance which he had in Saxony, in order that he might preach the Gospel of Christ in his own country, without any certainty concerning temporal things. He thus laboured diligently for some years: at length Ridley, when he was bishop of London, gave him a prebend in St. Paul's, and the Dean and Chapter chose him to lecture on divinity in the cathedral. His parochial charge was at this time the vicarage of the parish of St. Sepulchre.

There he continued until the accession of Queen Mary; when he, preaching at Paul's Cross, earnestly Bradford committed to the Tower. Rogers restrained to his own house, Aug. 16.

The Mass, &c. restored.

Several Bishops imprisoned and deprived.

Romish bishops restored.

Many leave England.

Some preachers remain.

Bp. Harley.

Efforts to restore Romanism.

No attempt apparently to destroy the Scriptures.

Some account of Rogers. His marriage, 1557.

Quits England, 1559.

At Wittenberg till the death of Henry, 1547.

His return to England.

He preaches.

Made prebend of St. Paul's, Divinity lecturer. Vicar of St. Sepulchre's.

exhorted his auditors to continue in the profession of the faith of Christ's Gospel. This sermon gave offence to the court, and he was summoned on account of it before the privy council. For the time he was discharged, until a little while after, when the queen had prohibited preaching, and the tumult had arisen about Bourne's sermon, he was again summoned before the council (August 16th, 1553); and then (as has been related) he was required to remain as a prisoner in his own house. He had now the opportunity of escaping if he would, but the obligation under which he was placed, as having been commanded by the council, as well as other causes, restrained him. He remained thus as a prisoner in his own house for several months, and then was sent by Bishop Bonner to Newgate.

Preaches at Paul's Cross after Mary's accession.

Imprisoned in his own house, Aug. 16, 1553. Sent to Newgate.

In order that the bishops and other prominent persons, who were friends to the Reformation, might be under the power of the council, they were, summoned soon after the accession of Mary. Thus, on the 22nd of August, 1553, Coverdale and Hooper, bishop of Gloucester, were both of them ordered to repair to court without delay, where they were to attend the pleasure of the council. Accordingly, on the 26th Hooper appeared, and on the 31st Coverdale did the same. It is probable that the longer period between the summons and the appearance of Coverdale, than there was in the case of Hooper, was owing to his being absent in his diocese.

Bishops Coverdale and Hooper summoned before the council, Aug. 22, 1553.

On the 1st of September, Hooper and Coverdale again appeared before the council; the former was committed a prisoner to the Fleet, and the latter was commanded to attend the pleasure of the Lords of the council. It is probable that he gave security for his appearance when summoned, and that this was deemed sufficient. It is to be observed that the systematic persecution of this reign did not commence for a considerable time; indeed as yet there were no laws enacted, which would authorise such a mode of procedure. Any of the bishops who were possessed of sees from which others had been ejected, were now in their turn deprived. Coverdale had his bishopric taken away from him on this ground; for although his predecessor had resigned, yet it was said that he had done this from intimidation.

Hooper sent to the Fleet, Sept. 1, 1553.

Coverdale deprived of his bishopric.

In October, the Parliament and the Convocation met. In the former of these, measures were taken for the restoration of every thing connected with the worship permitted by law, to much the same state in which it had been in the latter part of the reign of Henry VIII. In the Convocation, a proposition was made that the whole of the lower house should subscribe certain articles, of which one asserted the Romish doctrine of the "real presence" in the Lord's Supper. This doctrine had gradually been relinquished during the reign of Edward VI.; Ridley was convinced that it was not supported by the testimony of God in His word; and after he had suggested his doubts, Cranmer was induced to examine the subject, and he too, arrived at a negative conclusion. Latimer soon after accorded with them in judgment. The opposition to the Romish doctrine continued to spread just in proportion as the Gospel was known; so that at the accession of Mary the number was considerable of those who had on this subject renounced the Romish dogma.

Meeting of Parliament and the Convocation, Oct. 1553.

The "real presence" discussed.

Weston, the prolocutor of the Convocation, in proposing the recognition of the Romish doctrine on this subject, made a deliberate attack upon the Reformation. The whole of the lower house of Convocation were fully disposed (with the exception of six persons) to subscribe the article proposed. John Philpot, archdeacon of Winchester, one of the six who maintained on this point the reformed doctrine, requested the prolocutor that the matter might be considered and debated, instead of the whole house subscribing without consideration. He desired farther, that if a disputation were held on the subject, Bishop Ridley and John Rogers, together with a few others on the same side, might be allowed to take a part in it, as well as the six dissentients of that house.

The Reformation attacked.

All but Six subscribers.

Archdeacon Philpot opposes.

The former part of this request, namely, that there might be a disputation, was acceded to, the other was not allowed. The disputation lasted, accordingly, several days, but as might be expected, no benefit really resulted from it; to overcome in argument is a very different thing from conviction being brought to the conscience by the power of the Holy Ghost. One thing, however, was fully proved, namely, how earnestly the doctrines of Rome were held and pressed by many who had pretended to conform to all the changes adopted in the days of King Edward. Philpot and his coadjutors, although the truth was on their side, argued in vain; their adversaries were resolved to crush them by some means or other. In consequence of what passed in the Convocation house, Philpot was committed to the King's Bench prison; there he remained (after having been once examined before Gardiner, his diocesan) for a considerable time after that of which I am speaking, until the second of October, 1555, when he was examined before the queen's commissioners, who sent him to Bonner's coal-house, where other prisoners were confined. He was repeatedly examined before Bonner and others; and in these examinations Christ fulfilled unto him His gracious promise, "I will give you a mouth and wisdom which none of your adversaries shall be able to

A disputation

Philpot sent to the King's Bench.

Examined before the Commissioners, Oct. 2, 1552. Before Bonner. Luke xxi. 15.

Quod Spiritus est Vicarius Christi in terra.
Philpot burned, Dec. 18, 1555.

gainsay nor resist." In consequence of his confession of Christ, he was condemned as a heretic: one of the grounds of accusation against him was very remarkable; a sentence of Bernard's was found written in his Bible, importing that the Spirit is the vicar of Christ upon earth. This was deemed an heretical statement, and thus Bernard (and constructively our Lord himself—see John xiv—xvi.) was condemned with Philpot. He was burned, December 18th, 1555.

The Lady Jane, Lord Guildford Dudley, and Crammer tried, Nov. 1553.

In November, 1553, the Lady Jane and her husband were tried for high treason: as was also Archbishop Crammer. This was not a little harsh; for although he had acknowledged Jane as queen, yet he was far less implicated in the matter than were many others who were freely pardoned by Mary: it is not to be doubted that reasons connected with religion led to his being selected for trial.

Disputation on the Lord's Supper at Oxford, April 14, 1554. Crammer, Ridley, and Latimer sent thither.

In the spring of the following year it was determined, for the better establishing of the Romish doctrine of the Lord's Supper, that a solemn disputation should be held on the subject at Oxford; not, let it be observed, for the inquiring what the true doctrine in the matter is, but in order to triumph over those who were already in the power of their adversaries. Crammer, although attainted of treason, was to be sent to Oxford to dispute, and with him Ridley and Latimer. A deputation was sent from Cambridge to take a part in the contest; so that the conclusion might appear to be the determination of both Universities.

The disputation commenced on the 14th of April, 1554, the points were three:—

Articles disputed, Fox, iii. 96.

"I. Whether the natural body of Christ be present in the Sacrament, after the words spoken by the priest, or no?

"II. Whether in the Sacrament, after the words of consecration, any other substance do remain than the substance of the body and blood of Christ?

"III. Whether the Mass be a sacrifice propitiatory for the sins of the quick and the dead?"

The two former of these articles were questions in which much of the important truth of God was concerned; but as to the third, the very substance and essence of the Gospel was at stake; the finished work of Christ to which the Holy Ghost bears witness was set at nought, and the sacrifice of Christ was made like unto the oft-repeated offerings of the Mosaic law.

Crammer and Ridley dispute, Latimer's written statement.

Against the first and second of these especially, Crammer and Ridley held much and long contention; Latimer, because of his age and infirmities, refused to dispute: he gave in a written statement in answer to the articles, in which he briefly and solidly refuted them from Scripture. He was, however, led into some discussion, in the course of which his adversaries actually tried to confound him by appealing from the Latin version to the Greek original (of which Latimer was ignorant), and in doing so falsely affirmed that passages were other than they really are. Truly this was handling the word of God deceitfully!*

All three condemned as heretics, April 20, 1554.

Of course the three advocates for the truth were condemned as heretics; this was on the 20th of April, 1554. The Romish party by dint of numbers and authority claimed a triumphant victory over the three prisoners (one of them being already under sentence of death), against whom they had contended in the disputation.

After Dr. Weston had, in St. Mary's church, solemnly condemned them, their fautors, and patrons, they each gave a brief reply:—

Their replies to the sentence.

Crammer.—"From this your judgment and sentence, I appeal to the just judgment of God Almighty, trusting to be present with Him in heaven, for whose presence in the altar I am thus condemned."

* The sufficiency of the word of God, as applied by the Spirit, to meet the exigencies of Christians has been so often opposed that it will be fitting to give a small portion of Latimer's disputation: it shews how the opposers of the scripture seek to pervert it to their own ends. Latimer, when asked the meaning of ἀγάπη, replied, "I understand no Greek; yet I think it meaneth charity." Upon this his opponents seem to have thought that they might practise as they pleased upon Latimer's ignorance; Dr. Weston asked presently after,— "Will you have all things done that Christ did then [in the institution of the Lord's Supper]. . . . And where find you, I pray you, that a woman should receive the sacrament?" To this Latimer replied—"Will you give me leave to turn my book? I find it in the 11th chap. to the Corinthians. I trow these be his words—Probet autem seipsum homo, &c. I pray you, good master, which gender is homo?" Weston thus pressed, replied truly enough—"Marry, the common gender." This seemed to be a concession of point at issue, but Cole interposed, saying—"It is in the Greek ὁ ἄνθρωπος." His object in saying this is not very apparent; it may be that he ignorantly thought the masculine article, which he quoted (which is not really in the Greek), proved the point against Latimer. Harpsfield now interposed, making a false allegation, which was much more to the purpose; he boldly uttered this deliberate untruth, "It is ἄνθρωπος, that is vir." To this impudent falsehood Latimer simply and sufficiently replied, "It is in my book of Erasmus's translation, Probet seipsum homo." They dared not allege that Erasmus had erred in his version, they only quibbled about the word seipsum being of the masculine gender.

The self-same argument, that the Scripture does not speak of women receiving the Lord's Supper, has often been brought forward by ignorant cavillers in more recent times; but it is probable that it has rarely been supported in so unprincipled a manner.

Ridley.—“ Although I be not of your company, yet doubt I not but my name is written in another place, whither this sentence will send us sooner, than we should, by the course of nature, have come.”

Lattimer.—“ I thank God most heartily, that He hath prolonged my life to this end, that I may in this case glorify God by that kind of death.”

The Protestants had regarded the Oxford disputation with great interest, judging that it might serve as an indication of the treatment which they might expect: they looked upon the three advocates for the truth as being the representatives of all the Gospellers; and when they heard of the unfairness with which the dispute was conducted, and the consequent condemnation of the prisoners, they read the history of their own treatment.

In the following month (May) it was reported that a similar discussion was to take place at Cambridge, in which John Bradford, John Rogers, Laurence Saunders, and others of the Protestant prisoners were to be opposed and condemned, as their brethren had been at Oxford. In consequence of this, a declaration was drawn up by Bradford and Saunders, and signed by them and several other prisoners. They state that they do not refuse to dispute, but they would only do it in writing; for this, their determination, they give various reasons. They speak of their readiness to maintain the truth by any death which might be adjudged to them; at the same time earnestly disclaiming every thing which might seem like rebellion against the Queen or her authority. Then they set forth a statement of the Christian doctrine which they had received and taught; they declare their belief in the paramount authority of Scripture; that none can be the true church which does not listen to Scripture; they acknowledge various creeds and confessions as containing sound doctrine; and, in the fourth place, they declare very fully what they believed respecting the vital point of justification:—

A similar discussion proposed at Cambridge.

A statement signed by certain of the prisoners, Mays, 1554.

The doctrine they held.

“ We believe and confess, concerning justification, that as it comes only from God's mercy, through Christ, so it is perceived and had of none which be of years of discretion, otherwise than by faith only: which faith is not an opinion, but a certain persuasion wrought by the Holy Ghost in the mind and heart of man; wherethrough, as the mind is illuminated, so the heart is supplied to submit itself to the will of God unfeignedly, and so sheweth forth an inherent righteousness; which is to be discerned in the article of justification, from the righteousness with which God endueth us without, justifying us, although inseparably they go together. And thus we do not for curiosity or contention sake, but for conscience' sake, that it might be quiet, which it never can be, if we confound without distinction forgiveness of sins and Christ's justice imputed to us, with regeneration and INHERENT righteousness. By this we disallow Papistical doctrine of free-will, of works of supererogation, of merits, of the necessity of auricular confession, and satisfaction to Godwards.”

Justification by faith only.

It is evident that by “inherent righteousness” is here meant what might be now more simply understood by the term “infused righteousness;” the distinction between our being justified and our being regenerate (although they ever go together) is, as they state, most important as regards the purging of the conscience.

After this they speak of other points of doctrine, including the articles of the Oxford disputation; they conclude with praying for the Queen, and promising submission and obedience, to which they exhort all; and “where they cannot obey, but [i. e. unless] they must disobey God, there to submit themselves with all patience and humility, to suffer as the will and pleasure of the higher powers shall adjudge.” This declaration was dated the 8th of May, 1554. It was signed by several of the most prominent upholders of the Reformation, namely:—“ Robert Menaven, alias Robert Ferrar; Rowland Taylor; John Philpot; John Bradford; John Wigorn; & Glou. Episcopus, alias John Hooper; Edward Crome; John Rogers; Laurence Saunders; Edmund Lawrence; F. P., T. M.” Besides these, who were prisoners in the King's Bench, the Fleet, the Marshalsea, and Newgate, there was the following subscription:—“To these things abovesaid, do I, Myles Coverdale, late of Exon, consent and agree, with these mine afflicted brethren being prisoners, mine own hand.” It does not appear that Coverdale had been actually put in prison; and it is very probable that he it was who conveyed this declaration from one to another amongst those by whom it was signed.

Obedience to “the powers that be.”

Signatures.

Coverdale's subscription.

In the course of this year, the queen was married to Philip of Spain (July 25th). Cardinal Pole came as legate from the Pope into England, and the realm was “reconciled” to the see of Rome (Nov. 30); and thus the whole of the system of Romanism was formally re-established.

The queen's marriage, July 25, 1553. Pole “reconciles” the realm, Nov. 30.

Early in the ensuing year (1555), measures were taken for punishing some of those who were already in prison as heretics. This probably was intended to be done by way of example; and, therefore, a few of those whose opposition to the Romish rule and doctrine had been most marked were selected as victims.

It is unlikely that any of the persecutors thought that the constancy of the Gospellers would furnish so vast a number of sufferers.

John Rogers,
the first martyr in Mary's reign.

The first of that band who sealed their testimony for the doctrine of Christ by their death, was John Rogers, of whom previous mention has often been made. He remained a prisoner, at first in his own house, and afterwards at Newgate, from the 16th of August, 1553, until the 22nd of January, 1555; when he was brought, together with other preachers, before Gardiner, bishop of Winchester, the lord chancellor, in the church of St. Mary Overy, Southwark. Here he was examined upon numerous points of doctrine, and many endeavours were made to induce him to submit himself to the authority of the papal church. One of the charges against him was his being married, which he had been for eighteen years. He was again and again called on to answer to the interrogatories of the bishop on the following days: one of the things principally insisted on was, of course, the "real presence" in the Lord's supper. On these same days, Bishop Hooper and others were likewise examined. On the 29th of January, Rogers and Hooper were condemned by Gardiner as obstinate heretics, and delivered over to the secular power to be punished, "to the extirpation, terror, and confusion of the heretics;" and yet (according to the form) the rigour was directed not to be too extreme—as if burning men alive was not proceeding to extremities.

Condemned,
Jan. 29.

After Rogers and Hooper were thus condemned, Gardiner declared them to be under the sentence of the greater curse, denouncing the same against all who should eat, drink, aid, or have any communication with them. To this Rogers replied:

His reply to his sentence.

"Well, my lord, here I stand before God and you, and all this honourable audience, and take Him to witness, that I never wittingly or willingly taught any false doctrine; and therefore have I a good Conscience before God and all good men. I am sure that you and I shall come before a Judge that is righteous, before whom I shall be as good a man as you: as I nothing doubt but that I shall be found there a true member of the true Catholic Church of Christ, and everlastingly saved. And as for your false Church, ye need not to excommunicate me forth of it. I have not been in it these twenty years, the Lord be thanked therefore.

"But now ye have done what ye can, my lord, I pray you yet grant me one thing.

"Gardiner—What is that?

"Rogers—That my wife, being a stranger, may come and speak with me so long as I live. For she hath ten children which are hers and mine, and somewhat I would counsel her, what were best for her to do.

His wife for-bidden to come to him.

"Gardiner—No. She is not thy wife.

"Rogers—Yes, my lord, and hath been these eighteen years.

"Gardiner—Should I grant her to be thy wife?

"Rogers—Choose you, whether ye will or not; she shall be so nevertheless.

"Gardiner—She shall not come to thee.

"Rogers—Then I have tried out all your charity!"

After this, Rogers and Hooper were taken until night to the Clink, and then conveyed to Newgate. There they both remained until the martyrdom of Rogers, and then, on the following day, Hooper was sent to suffer at Gloucester.

While in prison, at this time, Rogers spake thus (amongst other things) to John Day, the printer, then in Newgate on account of religion:—"Thou shalt live to see the alteration of this religion, and the Gospel to be freely preached again. And therefore have me commended to my brethren, as well in exile as others, and bid them be circumspect in displacing the Papists, and putting good ministers into churches, or else their end will be worse than ours."

Degraded by Bonner.

On the morning of Monday the 4th of February, Rogers was awaked very early by the wife of the keeper of Newgate, and was thus suddenly warned that he was then to be burned. He was sleeping so soundly that he could with difficulty be awaked. When he was aroused, and understood what they wanted, he said, "Then I need not tie my points."* He was then taken with Hooper to Bonner to be degraded in the chapel of Newgate; after which he petitioned him, as he had Gardiner, to be allowed to speak a few words to his wife: this was again refused him. He was then delivered to the sheriffs, Chester and Woodroffe, to be burned. On his way to Smithfield, his request, which the two bishops had refused, was granted by the gracious providence of God. "His wife and children, being eleven in number, and ten able to go, and one sucking on her breast, met him by the way as he went towards Smithfield: this sorrowful sight of his own flesh and blood could nothing move him, but that he constantly and cheerfully took his death with wonderful patience in the defence and quarrel of Christ's Gospel."

* Alluding to a part of the dress then worn; if his points had been tied, his undressing, in order to be burned, would have taken the longer.

Woodroofe, one of the sheriffs, asked him, whether he would not revoke what he called "his abominable doctrine, and his evil opinion of the sacrament of the altar," Rogers replied, "That which I have preached, I will seal with my blood." "Then," replied Woodroofe, "thou art an heretic." Rogers answered, "That shall be known at the day of judgment." "Well," replied Woodroofe, "I will never pray for thee." "But L," said Rogers, "will pray for you!" Thus did he act on the command of the apostle, "Overcome evil with good."

On his way towards Smithfield, he repeated the fifty-first Psalm; "all the people wonderfully rejoicing at his constancy, with great praises and thanks to God for the same." The distance from Newgate to Smithfield is very little; but in that little space, he had to pass his own parish church of St. Sepulchre's; the people, probably, were many of them his own parishioners, to whom, close to the very street through which he went (Giltspur Street), he had often preached the Gospel of Christ.*

He goes to Smithfield.

After he reached Smithfield, his pardon was brought, to be given him in case he would have recanted; but this he utterly refused.

Pardon offered him. He refuses to revoke.

"He shewed most constant patience, not using many words, for he could not be permitted, but only exhorting the people constantly to remain in that faith and true doctrine which he before had taught, and they had learned; and for the confirmation whereof he was not only content patiently to suffer and bear all such bitterness and cruelty as had been shewn him, but also most gladly to resign up his life, and to give his flesh to the consuming fire, for the testimony of the same."

Thus died the faithful servant and martyr of Christ, John Rogers, who was honoured by his Master, not only to be a preacher of His Gospel for twenty years, and a setter forth of His holy word, but likewise thus to yield his body to be burned, as the first of that blessed company of saints who were at this time called to suffer for their Lord. What, though their bodies endured bitter torture, and their ashes were scattered far and wide—they were the Lord's; and even as He ransomed them by His own precious blood, so did He care for and strengthen them in the hour of their need; and so will He, when He comes in glory, gather these His saints unto Him, making their once destroyed bodies glorious and incorruptible like unto His own.

His death.

A few days after the burning of Rogers, that faithful servant of Christ, John Bradford, addressed a letter to Cranmer, Ridley, and Latimer, at Oxford. He thus adverted to the condemnation of certain of the prisoners in London:—

Bradford's mention of Rogers, Feb. 5.

"I had thought that every one of your staves had stood next the door, but now it is otherwise perceived. Our dear brother Rogers hath broken the ice valiantly: as this day (I think) or to-morrow at the uttermost, hearty Hooper, sincere Saunders, and trusty Taylor, take their course and receive their crown. The next am I, which hourly look for the Porter to open me the gates after them, to enter into the desired rest. God forgive me mine unthankfulness for this exceeding great mercy to choose me to be one in whom He will suffer."

This letter is dated the 8th of February.

Gardiner appears to have hoped that a few suffering as a terrible example would so intimidate all others, that the compliance with Romanism would be universal. However, he was disappointed; for, on the 8th of February, before all those who had been condemned were put to death, six others were examined on similar charges. But Gardiner would not meddle with their examination and condemnation, and left the whole matter in the hands of Bonner, who seemed to have found in this bloody persecution a work for which he was well suited; these six were all of them condemned the next day, although their death for the present was delayed; this was supposed to have been partly caused by a sermon which Alphonso, the confessor of King Philip, preached on the 10th of February against burning men for religion. But after a few weeks the flames were again kindled; and in less than four years, two hundred and seventy seven persons laid down their lives for the testimony of Christ. Ridley and Latimer suffered together on the 16th of October in this year; and on the following March 21st, Cranmer similarly suffered, after having been induced to recant, and then, by the merciful kindness of God, being enabled to see and condemn his weakness in having so acted.

Gardiner leaves persecution to Bonner.

Alphonso preaches against burning—277 persons burned in 4 years.

It has been already noticed that many escaped to the continent in the early part of this reign, and were thus preserved from the bitter persecution which afterwards commenced. Some of the deprived bishops were among the number of these exiles: for instance, Poinet, bishop of Winchester; and also Barlow and Many escape to the continent.

* One who had been converted by the ministry of Rogers, | burned for the confession of the truth, together with John was a youth named John Leaf, who, in the following July, was | Bradford.—Fox, iii. 254.

Scory: the two latter, however, had been taken before they could effect their escape, and only obtained their liberation by submitting to the doctrines of Rome. This submission was, it is true, only nominal: neither of them did really in their hearts renounce the doctrines which they had previously held; they did, however, by their submission, most effectually mar their testimony for Christ, and thus lost the honour which so many had, of being witnesses for Him in patient endurance.

Amongst others who at length found a refuge in a foreign country was Coverdale. Although he had not been in prison, yet the "security" under which he was to appear before the council when called upon, bound him in conscience not to leave England: so that he was as one kept waiting the will of the persecutors. The Lord, however, in whose hands his cause was, had other things in store for him. His connection with Dr. Johannes Macchabæus Alpinus (they having married two sisters) has been already noticed; in consequence of the circumstances of danger in which Coverdale was placed in England, Macchabæus had besought the king of Denmark to intercede for him with Queen Mary. The king had, accordingly, written to her on the 25th of April, 1554. He speaks of having heard that Coverdale was in prison, and in danger of his life, on account of some charge connected with the political changes which had taken place in England, notwithstanding he was assured that he was entirely innocent. He therefore besought Mary to pardon him freely; and if, on any account, he could not be allowed to remain in England, he requested that he might be sent in safety to Denmark. In return, King Christiern promised to do what he could to oblige her.

It has been questioned how Christiern could suppose that Coverdale was in trouble on account of any thing which had taken place "in hac recenti perturbatione ac motu regni Angliæ," when Wyatt and the duke of Suffolk's insurrection did not take place until some time after his summons before the council. It is probable, however, that Christiern looked at the setting up of the Lady Jane as queen, and the subsequent revolt, as belonging to one affair; and thus he may, very probably, have thought that Coverdale was called in question about something connected with the first attempt for making Jane queen.

Mary replied to the application of the king of Denmark, that Coverdale was not under restraint on the ground of religion, as he might have supposed, but for certain debts which were due from him.* She seemed, however, to intimate that Coverdale should feel the good effects of the king's interest for him. Nothing, however, was done towards his liberation; and, consequently, the king wrote again, on the 24th of September. In this letter, he expresses his satisfaction that there was nothing more serious laid to Coverdale's charge than a matter of debt; but as he understood that this must have arisen from something connected with his bishopric, of which he had been deprived, and from which he had received very little emolument; he hoped that even if his accounts should be involved, that the queen would shew him favour. He wrote as if not questioning at all that the queen would pardon Coverdale, and only apparently was glad that it was for nothing more serious than an alleged debt.

Some months passed, however, and no notice was taken of this letter. At length, however, even after the first selected band of witnesses had been condemned, and the fires of persecution were again kindled, the queen gave permission to Coverdale to leave England. She wrote to King Christiern, on February the 18th, 1555, stating that she complied with his request in consideration of the desire which he had expressed that Coverdale should be sent to him, although he was her subject, and had not paid certain sums of money which he owed to her treasury. What this complaint respecting debt might mean, is not very clear. It would hardly refer to any demand concerning his bishopric, for he had been excused his first-fruits in Edward's reign: it may, after all, have been nothing but the sum in which he was bound, together with his sureties, to appear when called upon. It may be questioned why Mary deferred so long to liberate Coverdale, and then complied just at this juncture. It is to be observed, that she had distinctly stated to King Christiern, that he was not in trouble for any matter of religion, but solely on a ground of debt; this might have been felt to be a pledge that he should not be molested on account of his non-compliance with the restoration of Romanism; and thus Mary would have been bound not to have allowed him to suffer with his brethren. It may be, indeed, that the wholesale slaughter of Protestants had not then been determined on. At a later period of this reign, so firm an adherent of the Gospel would not have been allowed to escape the flames.

Coverdale had his passport granted him for himself and two servants, February 19th, 1555. It is probable that his wife had left England, and was with her sister in Denmark. Coverdale, on his arrival thither, was * This had been also made the pretext for the imprisonment of Hooper:—"He was commanded to ward, if being declared unto him at his departure that the cause of his imprisonment was only for certain sums of money, for which he was indebted to the queen, and not for religion" (Fox, iii. 122).

Coverdale at length escapes.

Christiern of Denmark intercedes for him. April 25, 1554. Fox, iii. 149.

The queen's reply.

The king writes again, Sep. 24.

Mary writes to king Christiern, Feb. 18, 1555.

Debt alleged as the ground of Coverdale's detention.

Coverdale receives his passport, Feb. 19, 1555.

received joyfully by Macchabreus and his other friends, who, from the recent occurrences in England, had little reason to expect to see him amongst them. It was like Peter coming to the house of Mary where the saints were met in prayer for his liberation.

He reaches Denmark.

The English exiles scattered on the continent were mostly at Frankfort, Strasburgh, Wesel in Friesland, Bâle, Geneva, and a few of eminence at Zurich. After having remained for a little while in Denmark, Coverdale went away from that country, in order to be where he might have the opportunity of preaching the Lord Jesus Christ. The king of Denmark would gladly have retained this honoured confessor of Christ in his country, but he could not speak Danish, which hindered him from preaching there, and made some part of Germany a more eligible station for him; besides, in Denmark he had no opportunity of building up his own exiled countrymen in the doctrine of Christ.

Places of the abode of English exiles.

After leaving Denmark he went to Wesel, and preached for some time to the English exiles there. It was at this place that Bishop Scory remained, and regularly ministered to the exiles. He appears to have bewailed bitterly his weakness and sinful compliance in his submission, before his escape from England. Coverdale had not been long at Wesel, before Wolfgang, duke of Deux Ponts, offered him the benefice of Bergzabern, which he formerly had during his second exile in the days of Henry. It must have been to him deeply interesting again to labour, in the service of the Lord, amongst those to whom he had ministered the truth of God eight years before. At this place he probably remained for several months.

Coverdale goes to Wesel.

He goes to Bergzabern.

Now leaving for a while the exiles on the continent, let us take a brief glance at some of the occurrences in England. It is not to be supposed that the edicts of man could frustrate the power of the Spirit of God: there were not a few who, at the peril of their lives, continued to teach and preach the Lord Jesus Christ. This was now done, it is true, without courting publicity, but at the same time without shrinking from the confession of Christ. This continued during the whole of the reign of Mary, in such sort that it seemed like a revival of the days of the Lollards, when for one hundred years and more, there were not lacking such men as William Thorp and Thomas Mann, to testify and instruct, according to the gift which they had received of God.

Occurrences in England.

One of the most laborious of these evangelists, in the days of Mary, was George Eagles; who was commonly known, from his itinerant labours, by the name of Trudge-over-the-world. He would gather little companies together, and preach to them; and then secrete himself in the woods to avoid capture. At length the council offered a reward for his apprehension; and a diligent search was made, so that he was arrested. He was tried on a charge of high treason, which was endeavoured to be supported by the allegation that the small congregations to whom he preached, were traitorous assemblies: he was likewise charged with having prayed that the Lord would change the queen's heart, or else take her away: this latter clause being a mere false accusation. He was condemned, and suffered the penalties of treason at Chelmsford. This was in the middle of 1557.

George Eagles a diligent labourer.

Fox, iii. 700.

Arrested and tried for treason.

Executed, 1557.

In London there was throughout this reign a congregation of Gospellers, who used to assemble, sometimes all together, sometimes in separate companies, to worship God, and to shew the death of Christ in the Lord's supper. Several of them were taken and put to death from time to time, but still they the rather increased: several, at different times, were wont to minister among them. Two of the most prominent of these, were Cuthbert Symson, the deacon, and Augustine Bernher, a devoted Christian who had been Latimer's servant. Amongst the exiles at Wesel was one named John Rough, a Scotchman, who had laboured much in England, as a preacher, in the days of King Edward. During his exile he supported himself by knitting; to purchase yarn he came to London, on the 10th of November, 1557, and during his stay he associated with and ministered amongst the congregation of Gospellers. On the following 12th of December, they held a meeting (at which they were going to have received the Lord's supper), at the Saracen's Head, in Islington. At this meeting, through the treachery of a false brother, they were surprised, and many of them were taken; amongst others, John Rough and Cuthbert Symson. John Rough was burned in Smithfield, on the 22nd of December; and with him suffered Margaret Mearings, who belonged to the London congregation of Gospellers. She had been a little before excluded from their communion by an act of discipline, in which John Rough had taken a principal part: but so graciously did the Lord manifest the power of his restoring grace, that she sought repentantly to minister to the necessities of Rough while in prison, and thus being taken and condemned, they suffered martyrdom together.

The London congregation of Gospellers. Their sufferings.

Labourers. Cuthbert Symson, Aug. Bernher.

John Rough comes to London, Nov. 10, 1557. A meeting in Islington, Dec. 12, 1557. Many arrested, Rough, Symson, and others. Rough burned, Dec. 22. Margaret Mearings burned with him.

Cuthbert Symson burned, Mar. 25, 1558.

Cuthbert Symson was not put to death until the 28th of March, 1558. He was cruelly tortured, in order to force him to disclose the names and abodes of those who belonged to this congregation.

In 1558, Thomas Bentham, one of the exiles, returned into England for the express purpose of ministering amongst those who were "counted as sheep for the slaughter." He appears to have been greatly strengthened by the Lord, and to have been a great blessing to those to whom he had thus gone. He thus wrote to Lever in Switzerland:—

"Whiles I was in Germany at liberty of body, havynge sufficient for it for the time, I was yet many tymes in great greyf of mynd, and terrible tormentes of hell; and now here beyng every moment of an hour in danger of takynge, and fear of bodily death, I am in mynd, the Lord be prayed, most quiet and joyful, seying the fervent zeal of so many, and such increase of our congregation in the myddest of thys cruel and violeut persecution. What shold I say but, A Domino, factum est?"

In April, 1558, about forty Gospellers met in a field at Islington; and several of them were taken and imprisoned: seven of these were examined before Bonner on the 14th of June, and on the 27th were burned in Smithfield. At the burning of these martyrs, there was a proclamation made in the name of the king and queen, that no man under pain of death should approach them, touch them, speak to them, comfort them, PRAY FOR THEM, or once say, "God help them!" Such a proclamation needs no comment. Thomas Bentham, however, as well as others of the congregation who were present, in spite of the threatening proclamation, comforted, exhorted, and strengthened the souls of the sufferers.

When the fire was set to them, he turned to the people who were assembled, and said to them:—"We know that they are the people of God, and, therefore, we cannot choose but wish well to them, and say, God strengthen them!" He then prayed, "Almighty God, for Christ's sake, strengthen them!" Upon this the whole assembled multitude responded, "Amen! Amen!" So many were there that joined in the cry, that the officers, amazed, knew neither whom to take or whom to accuse. After this Bonner, fearing lest such scenes might be repeated, sent six of the prisoners to Brentford, and had them burned there.

It was thus that the Lord wrought by His Holy Spirit in providing witnesses for Himself, and preserving them (almost as the three in the fiery furnace) throughout the bitter days of this persecution.

XII.

A TRANSLATION OF THE SCRIPTURES MADE BY THE EXILES AT GENEVA. THE NEW TESTAMENT PUBLISHED.

It has been already stated, that the accession of Mary had hindered the printing and circulation of the Scriptures in English; but notwithstanding the hindrances constantly thrown in their way, those who longed to see the word of God in the hands of their countrymen, continued their efforts to this end. Certain of the exiles from England, during this reign, made a new translation of the New Testament, and also advanced considerably in a version of the Old. It was at Geneva that this work was accomplished, and on that account the version is commonly called the Genevan translation. The New Testament was published in 1557, the printing being finished (according to a statement at the end of the volume) on the tenth of June. It is not known how long before this time the work was commenced: several of the parties concerned in it had taken up their abode at Geneva, in the spring of 1555; and they seem to have used the rest which was thus afforded them, in preparing this version. The greater part of those engaged in this work had taken a part in the grievous contentions which were carried on by the refugees about the service-book and the habits. It is not my place to discuss these questions which so divided at this time those who were one in Christ, I have only to speak of the results to which they led. Many of those who left Frankfort in consequence of their objections to these things, went to Geneva and formed an English congregation there; upon this, others who held similar sentiments joined them from Strasburgh and other places, some of whom undertook the work referred to.

They probably had motives which sufficiently influenced them in executing a new translation, instead of giving a mere reprint or revision of any which had preceded. The intention of such a work had been entertained in the reign of Edward VI.; and it is probable that in this projected revision, from the manner in which the name of Bucer was connected with it, there would have been embodied whatever might be learned from the Biblical knowledge possessed by reformers on the continent. The exiles at Geneva

T. Bentham returns to England.

His letter to Lever, Strype, Mem. Ecc. v. 273.

A meeting at Islington, April, 1558. Seven burned in Smithfield, June 27. All forbidden to pray for them. Bentham's conduct.

Six burned at Brentford.

A translation of the Scriptures by the exiles at Geneva. New Testament published, 1557.

English congregation formed at Geneva.

possessed ample opportunity of profiting by such aid; and this may have been a leading motive with them for making the work entirely new, or at least entirely remodelled. Another reason which the translators themselves assign for making a new version, was, that the knowledge of Greek and Hebrew had greatly increased since the earlier English translations were made, and thus it was possible to translate with far more accuracy than could have been done some years before.

The last place at which it was noticed that Coverdale had arrived, was his old parish of Bergzabern, in the duchy of Deux Ponts; we next find him at Geneva, engaged in the execution of this translation. Whether he was invited to join the others who undertook the version, or whether he himself, hearing of what they had in hand, bent his steps to Geneva in order to aid them, does not appear. However, we find him as one of those who took the work in hand; and, therefore, we may regard the version, which was the result of much united labour, as containing Coverdale's last review of a version of the New Testament. It is very probable, however, that the principal part of the toil was borne by those who were his associates in this work. These are said to have been the following persons.

Thomas Sampson, who had been educated at Oxford, and who afterwards studied at one of the inns of court, being convinced of the erroneusness of the doctrines of Popery, and desiring to preach the truth which his own soul had received, was ordained by Bishop Ridley, and almost immediately afterwards became known as a preacher. Archbishop Cramer collated him, in 1551, to the rectory of Allhallows, Bread Street. On the accession of Mary, in 1553, when so many of the Gospellers were compelled to leave England, or else were doomed to suffer imprisonment, he went to the continent, and remained for some time at Strasburgh, at which place he became very intimate with Immanuel Tremellius, who had, in the reign of Edward, succeeded Paulus Fagius at Cambridge. At the time when the unhappy contentions troubled the English exiles, he was one of those who opposed the introduction of the service book and the habits; and, in consequence of this, it is probable that he retired to Geneva.

He returned to England after the accession of Queen Elizabeth, and, in 1561, received from her the deanery of Christ Church, Oxford. In 1564, he and Laurence Humphreys, president of Magdalen College, were cited before the ecclesiastical commissioners on a charge of not wearing the appointed habits; the result of which was that Sampson was deprived of his deanery. He appears to have been regarded, in the reign of Elizabeth, as one of the principal non-conformists.

William Whittingham was another of the translators; he was born in the city of Chester, and was educated at Oxford, at Brazen-nose College, having been admitted about the year 1540, where he became eminent as a scholar. He was elected, in 1545, fellow of All Souls; and, in 1547, was made one of the senior students of Christ Church. He was one of those who, during the exile of the Reformers, went to Frankfort, and took the part of those who opposed the introduction of the English Liturgy, &c.: on this account he went to Geneva.

Having returned to England, after the accession of Queen Elizabeth, he was made dean of Durham, July 19th, 1563. He was the translator of certain of the metrical Psalms in the version commonly called Sternhold and Hopkins's, to which the initials "W. W." are prefixed.

Another of these translators was Christopher Goodman; who was, like Whittingham, a native of Cheshire, and, like him too, educated at Brazen-nose College, Oxford. He also became one of the senior students of Christ Church in 1547, and was appointed Margaret Professor of Divinity.

On the accession of Mary, he fled to Strasburgh, where he joined with others in writing to the English at Frankfort, endeavouring to induce them to adhere to what had been instituted in England, respecting religious worship, in the days of King Edward. The ground on which they based this argument was, the scandal which variations from it might occasion amongst the Papists. After this, however, Goodman joined the refugees of Geneva: and he seems to have fully acquiesced in the Geneva model. During his exile, he wrote against Queen Mary and her government, in a manner which must be regarded as very reprehensible by those who have learned to reverence "the powers that be" (be their character or conduct what it may), as "the ordinance of God." Whittingham, and others of the exiles, approved both of his sentiments and their expression; they yielded to that provocation to which the flesh is prone, and which, at a later period, led to the lamentable resistance of the constituted powers by the Covenanters in Scotland.

Goodman, however, it is only right to say, retracted the statements which he had published. The warmth of his feelings sometimes carried him away; but Christian grace led him afterwards to acknowledge his error.

Anthony Gilby was another of these translators: he appears to have pretty nearly accorded in sentiment with Goodman.

Reasons for a new version.

Coverdale goes to Geneva.

Thos. Sampson one of the translators.

Dean of Christ Church, 1561.

Deprived, 1564.

Wm. Whittingham.

Dean of Durham, 1563.

Chr. Goodman.

A violent writer against Queen Mary.

Anthony Gilby.

Thomas Cole.

Another, was Thomas Cole. The place of his exile, after the accession of Mary, was Frankfort; from whence, in consequence of the dissension, he went to Geneva.

In the reign of Elizabeth, Edmund Grindall, who had been his fellow exile, and was now become bishop of London, collated him to the archdeaconry of Essex, January 3rd, 1559; he likewise was appointed rector of High Ongar.

Besides these, it has been said that the well known Scottish Reformer, John Knox, as well as John Bodleigh and John Pullain, took some part in the execution of this version. It does not seem very probable that the former took any active part in the translation: but there can, I think, be hardly any question that John Bodleigh was connected with this version: this may be inferred from the proprietorship of it seeming to be in his hands in the reign of Elizabeth. It does not, however, prove him to have been one of the translators.

Characteristics of this version.

This translation differed from all that had preceded it, not only in its plan, but also in its execution. The other versions had been generally the work or the revision of an individual; or at most, a revision in which certain individuals executed certain particular parts: in this translation we find, on the contrary, many acting unitedly in the formation of a version, and thus, in the plan of operation, there was a principle of completeness which had not been acted on previously.

The execution of the work also is very different from that of preceding translations. This will be evident to any one who compares a portion of it with the translation of Tyndale, or its revision in Cranmer's Bible; the Geneva translators, by the use of italic supplements, often aided the sense without seeming to insert what was not found in the original. Perhaps, in some cases, they may have carried this liberty too far; but on the whole, it enabled them to give more exactly the force of the original.

Italic supplements.

The New Testament rendered by these translators, was published (as has been already stated) in 1557, before the entire Bible. This was a small square volume printed in Roman letters, divided into verses, and with a good many notes in the margin. With regard to the division into verses, it is to be observed, that this was the first time the Scriptures had been printed thus broken into these sections. In Robert Stephens's fourth edition of the Greek Testament (1551), the notation of the verses had been for the first time appended: and in this edition, the numbers were put in the margin, while the text went on continuously. These numbers were found so convenient for purposes of reference, that they soon became universally adopted; the Geneva translators being the first to break the text into little paragraphs. It is probable, that they used Stephens's fourth edition when engaged in this work, while at the same time, in the manner of rendering not a few passages, they followed the judgment which Beza had expressed. In some places they paid a decided deference to his criticisms; with regard even to what he had considered (without adequate evidence) to be errors in the Greek text.

The N. Test of this version.

Division of verses.

Deference paid to Beza.

The following was the title of this New Testament:—

THE NEVVE TESTA-MENT OF OVR LORD IEfus Chrifit.

Conferred diligently with the Greke. and best approved translations.

*With the arguments, as w<sup>e</sup> before the chapters, as for every Boke
8. Epistle, also diuersities of readings, and most profitable annotations of all hard places: wherunto is added a copious Table.*

AT GENEVA
Printed By Conrad Badius.
M. D. LVII

of the wordes, and perspicuities of the phrase. Forthmore that the Reader might be by all meanes profitted, I haue deuded the text into verses and sections, according to the best editions in other langages, and also as to this day the ancient Greke copies mention it was wont to be used. And because the Hebrew and Greke phrases, which are strange to rendre in other tongues, and also short, shulde not be to harde, I haue sometyne interpreted them without any whit

In an address headed, "To the Reader Mercie and Peace through Christ our Sauour," some account is given of the plan pursued by the translators. This address runs in the singular number, as though some particular person had been the principal conductor of the work.* He says,

"To these therefore which are of the flocke of Christ which knowe their Fathers wil, and are affectioned to the truth, I rendre a reason of my doing in fewe lines. First, as touching the perusing of the text, it was diligently reuised by the most approved Greke examples, and conference of translations in other tonges, as the learned may easly iudge, both by the faithful rendering of the sentence, and also by the proprietie diminishing the grace of the sense, as our langage doth vse them, and sometyme haue put to that worde which lacking made the sentence obscure, but haue set it in such letters as may easily be discerned from the commun text."

* This edition of the New Testament, with its copious marginal annotations, has been carefully reprinted, somewhat in its original form, page for page, and line for line, with fac- simile initial wood cuts, &c. &c. The prefaces and the index at the end of the volume, are also exactly reprinted. 1 vol. fcap. 8vo.; large paper copies 4to.

The anonymous writer of this preface then goes on to speak of the annotations which constitute so prominent a part of the editions of this version.

The Annotations noticed.

"As concerning the Annotations, wherunto these letters a. b. c. &c. leade vs, I haue endeoured so to profit all thereby, that both the learned & others might be holpen: for to my kuollage I haue omitted nothing vnexpounded, wherby he that is any thing exercised in the Scriptures of God, might iustely complayn of hardenes: and also in respect of them that haue more profitted in the same, I haue explicat all suche places by the best learned interpreters as ether were falsly expounded of some or els absurdely applyed by others: so that by this meanes both they which haue not abilitie to by the Commentaries vpon the New testament, and they also which haue not opportunitie & leasure to reade them because of their prolixitie may vse this booke in stede therof."

In the conclusion of this address, the preservation of the New Testament by the nominal church throughout the long period of Romish apostasy is alluded to. He says:—

Preservation of Scripture.

"So may we glorifie him [God] more and more rendring to him eternal thanks and praises for his heaucny and inestimable giftes bestowed vpon his church, that all thogh Satan, Antichrist, and all his enemies rage and burst, yet are they not able to suppress them, nether wil he diminshe them: for seing he doth not only byrdel his enemies furie, but causeth them to defende and preserue his giftes for the vse of his Church (as we se the Iewes Christs professed enemies preserue the olde testament in moste integritie) what shulde we doute of his bountifull liberalitie towards vs? or why do we not rather with all humilitie and submission of mynde obey him, loue & feare him which is God blessed for euer?"

The margins of this New Testament (as well as those of the entire Bible when published) were plentifully filled with notes on the text. These were much in request amongst those who loved the word of God; so much so that several editions of King James's version were published with these notes appended to them. They appear, generally speaking, to be well written, and in them the doctrines of the Gospel are very prominently set forth. It is not unlikely that their character was partly influenced by the circumstances in which they were written; namely, by exiles, who were toiling for the benefit of their country, where Popery was again taking its stand.

XIII.

ACCESSION OF ELIZABETH. — RETURN OF THE EXILES. GENEVA BIBLE PUBLISHED.

THE time of severe trial and persecution to the professors of the Gospel, during the reign of Mary, closed at her death, November 17th, 1558. The accession of Queen Elizabeth was one of those circumstances which, through the merciful ordering of God, led to the restored circulation both of the Scriptures and of the testimony of the Gospel in England; the former of these having never since that time been withdrawn. The transfer of the crown from Mary to her sister was an event which occasioned much joy and thankfulness. The persecutions in the preceding reign had failed to commend the religion of Rome to the people at large; and it is most likely that very many besides the two hundred and seventy-seven, who gave their lives in the defence and quarrel of Christ and His Gospel, and the several hundreds who were exiles on the continent, knew and prized the Gospel of the grace of God. The previous circulation of the Scriptures had been as the sowing of the seed of truth; and the harvest was springing up, even though external circumstances caused its progress to be seen but dimly.

Accession of Queen Eliz. Nov. 17, 1558.

End of the persecution. Rejoicings

It is evident that the number of Christians in England, who were not ashamed of the profession of Christ, was considerable. Of course, the word of the Lord was then true even as it is now, that, "Wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth unto destruction, and many there are go in therat;" the word of Christ in this, as in all things else, must stand steadfast, even though heaven and earth pass away; and never can we (if Scripture be our guide) expect to find the few and the many belong to different classes until that coming of the Son of man, when every eye shall see Him, and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of Him.

Many in England not ashamed to confess Christ.

The preservation of the London congregation of Gospelers.

See above, p. 129.

Additional notices respecting them. Their collections.

Attempts to ensnare them.

Amongst those in England who were faithful to the profession of the Gospel, those Christians in London have, in the first place, to be mentioned, who continued to meet together throughout all this bitter time of trial. Their preservation was in itself a very gracious proof of the overruling care of God. It was just as the Lollards had been a continuous chain of witnesses, in the midst of almost uninterrupted persecution, connecting Wiclif and Tyndale; so these, set in the very fire, as it were, in the midst of persecution such as had never been equalled in England, were witnesses for the truth against those who slew the holy servants of the Lord. Some of the circumstances relative both to the sufferings of some of these saints in London, and to the preservation of others, have been already stated; in addition to which, it may be well here to notice, that they had collections in their meetings for the prisoners of the Lord, which sometimes, at a single meeting, amounted to ten pounds.

Many were the devices used for ensnaring them,—sometimes through treachery, sometimes through force. On one occasion, a person who had gone amongst them in order to take an opportunity of betraying them, was arrested by the grace of God: so that, instead of opposing, he cast in his lot with this company, so seemingly devoted to destruction.

At Stoke in Suffolk, and other places.

In other places, likewise, there were many who were, humanly speaking, by the accession of Elizabeth snatched from impending destruction. There was a company of such at Stoke in Suffolk; while in the North of England, where, through the lenity of Archbishop Heath and Bishop Tonstall, the persecution was comparatively little felt, there was much of testimony for the Gospel of Christ.

The exiles on the continent.

None, however, hailed the change more than did the scattered exiles who had taken refuge on the continent. Most truly might it be said of them, that their hearts yearned for their native country, which they sorrowed to see ruled over by superstition and persecution. As to themselves, they were indeed mourners and pilgrims during their exile: their subsistence was very precarious, depending mostly upon the pecuniary aid which was furnished them either from England, or else from the reformed in the countries in which they had found an asylum. Their books likewise are supposed to have aided them by their sale, but I think it may well be doubted whether they did as much as pay their own expenses. The importation of the books which the exiles might publish (amongst others those of Coverdale by name), were prohibited by a proclamation dated June the 13th, 1555; at the same time search was made for those who either had any correspondence with the exiles, or transmitted any money to them.

Importation of their books prohibited. June 13, 1555.

The minds of the exiles were much turned to the hope of again being permitted to dwell in their native land: and not only had they this as a matter of hope, but their speedy return was spoken of with confidence, even before the occurrence of that event which brought it to pass.

Fox's sermon at Basil. Strype, Mem. Ecc. V. p. 304. Ep. Elmer present.

“Those at Basil had the news of their speedy return told them the day before the Queen's death. It was strange, but true; for Elmer (bishop of London afterwards) was present when John Fox preached there, when, among other arguments which he used for the consolation of the poor English, he bad them to be of good comfort, for the time drew near that they should be restored to their own country; and said that this he told them Dei monitu, being warned of God so to do. He was reproved by the elder sort for thus preaching, but the issue of things excused him. And by comparing the times, it appeared that he preached this sermon but the day before the Queen's death.”

The Geneva version of the whole Bible published 1560.

Editions of it after the publication of King James's.

After the tidings of the accession of Elizabeth reached Strasburgh, messengers were sent to Zurich, through whom the English there learned the happy intelligence on the last day of November, 1558. On the following day, Peter Martyr, who had been professor of divinity at Oxford in the reign of Edward, and who at this time was professor at Zurich, wrote to Calvin; and thus the English at Geneva learned that they might return to their native land. The work of the translation of the Bible, in which Coverdale and some others of these were engaged, has been already noticed. The New Testament had now been printed nearly a year and a half, and thus it is probable that the version of the Old was by this time pretty far advanced; its actual publication did not take place until the year 1560, after many of the exiles had returned home. In this completed Bible it is to be observed, that the translation of the New Testament differs in several respects from that which had been separately printed in 1557. This Bible, which was stored with marginal notes, continued for many years to be the popular version in England, having been displaced only by King James's translation, which appeared fifty-one years afterwards. Even then the new version did but gradually supersede the Geneva translation, for from the year 1611 to 1621 inclusive, there were at least six editions printed of this latter version, besides the vast number of copies which were still in the hands of private possessors on every side. In some families it continued to be used for very many years after this, and I have occasionally met with copies of it which have been from the days of Queen Elizabeth, and are still in common use. Copies still in use.

The Geneva Bible of 1560 was the first edition printed in the reign of Elizabeth: hence it is probable that the copies of previous translations, which had been in use in the reign of Edward VI., were yet in existence; and were now doubtless once more freely circulated and openly used. Thus there was again the same liberty which had been enjoyed for a little season during the reign of Henry, and fully during that of Edward. The labours of the Geneva translators had been like those of Tyndale, in 1526—an endeavour to shed the light of God's word upon England from a foreign land: and if we do not find these labours as reiterated as those had been, it evidently was only because the change of events rendered such efforts needless.

And now having brought down the narrative of the connection between the circulation of the Scriptures and the progress of the Reformation, as far as the point at which the uninterrupted use of the Bible in English commenced; it is needless farther to trace the history of editions, and of circumstances relative to them. There are, however, various separate matters, such as the conclusion of the life of that veteran translator, Myles Coverdale, as well as the history of the translations called the Bishop's Bible, the Rheinish and Douay version, and King James's, which remain to be briefly noticed. No interruption to the circulation of the Scriptures, from the accession of Elizabeth to this day. Laus Deo.

XIV.

THE LATTER PART OF COVERDALE'S LIFE.

MYLES COVERDALE was at Geneva at the time of the accession of Queen Elizabeth; for he, with others at that place, wrote (December 15th, 1558) on the occasion a letter to the congregation at Frankfurt, in which they congratulate them on the event, and desire that all their private dissension might cease, concerning ceremonies, &c. It is indeed pleasant to find that such gracious sentiments had a place in the hearts of the Geneva exiles towards their brethren: for it appears to be commonly supposed, that those who retired to Geneva had been by no means well treated by their brethren who remained at Frankfurt. Indeed, it would have been well if both parties had ever been free from the charge of forcing things confessedly non-scriptural upon the consciences of their brethren. Coverdale at Geneva at the accession of Elizabeth. Letter of the Geneva exiles to those at Frankfurt, Dec. 15, 1558. Hallam.

The first intimation of Coverdale's having actually reached England is this:—That on the 12th of November, 1559, he took his turn as preacher at Paul's Cross. He may probably have been already some months in England. Coverdale now occupied a remarkable position: he was the only patriarch of the English Reformation that was left; the only one of those whose testimony had commenced forty years before, at Cambridge; and who, by preaching the Gospel, or diffusing the Scriptures in English, had introduced the bright shining of the lamp of God's truth. Coverdale had done this in both ways. Coverdale returns to England. Preaches at Paul's Cross, 1559.

Coverdale was likewise the only one of the English bishops who had aided the Reformation in the days of Edward, and who still lived without having made any compromise of conscience. Barlow and Scory, who had been bishops, the one of Bath and Wells, the other of Chichester, still survived; but they had made compliances, in the reign of Mary, to preserve their liberty. Thus, in many respects, Coverdale stood alone in a place of pre-eminence, and thus we find him honoured by those who most valued the truth and word of God. The only English bishop who had not conformed to popery.

On the 17th of December, 1559, Coverdale was one of those who took a part in the consecration of Matthew Parker, archbishop of Canterbury. On this occasion he shewed how deeply rooted was his objection to the use of the "habits," for he chose only to appear in a plain black gown. It is not unlikely that it was his non-conformity in this matter that hindered his being again appointed to a bishopric. Barlow and Scory were again so appointed, but not to the same sees which they had before held. However, at the time of Archbishop Parker's consecration, the see of Exeter had not become vacant, for Turberville, who had been appointed bishop of that diocese in the reign of Mary, was not deprived until the commencement of January, 1560; so that Coverdale could not, as yet, have had his former bishopric Coverdale at the consecration of Abp. Parker, Dec. 17, 1559. His opposition to the "habits." Bp. Turberville deprived, Jan. 1560.

Wm. Alley made bishop of Exeter, June 9, 1560.

Bp. Grindall befriends Coverdale.

Proposes him for the see of Llandaff.

offered to him. It seems probable that he was not offered any of the vacant sees, and that the cause of this was his non-conformity in the matter of the "habits," &c. William Alley was made bishop of Exeter on the 9th of June, 1560.

Coverdale, although poor and destitute of any preferment, was befriended by Edmund Grindall, bishop of London, who, on the vacancy of the see of Llandaff, wrote to the secretary of Queen Elizabeth, strongly recommending Coverdale as the bishop of that diocese. This makes it highly improbable that Coverdale had previously refused a bishopric. Grindall, however, expressed his doubts whether the see of Llandaff, despoiled as it was of its revenue, would yield sufficient for Coverdale to live on. He speaks in high commendation of Coverdale, "who was in Christ before us all," lamenting that thus in his old age he should be without means of subsistence. It is not known whether any attention was paid to Grindall's recommendation; this only is certain, that Coverdale did not receive the bishopric of Llandaff. Grindall made various attempts to befriend Coverdale, and complained that he did not receive the attention which was his due. "I cannot," he said, "excuse us bishops," although, as to himself, he stated that he had offered him many things, of which he had not thought fit to accept.

Coverdale was, however, for a short period, appointed to the rectorship of a parish; his friend, bishop Grindall having, in the beginning of 1563, presented him with the living of St. Magnus, near London Bridge. Some delay occurred in consequence of his being too poor to pay the queen her "first fruits," which amounted to 6*l.* 16*s.* 10*d.*, and thus he had to wait until he could get Elizabeth to excuse him the payment. He wrote to Archbishop Parker, as well as to others, requesting them to represent to the queen how utterly unable he was to meet this demand. He besought the archbishop to join with Grindall in soliciting her to forgive him the "first fruits." He represented how his bishopric had been taken from him ten years before, and how he had since remained in poverty. He likewise represented, that at his age it was not likely that he could enjoy the benefice, "going (he said) upon my grave as they say, and not like to live a year." If the queen would grant him this favour, he said to the archbishop, "so am I fully persuaded, God willing, to shew myself again as thankful, and in my vocation, during my short time, as fruitful and as quiet as I can." This letter to Archbishop Parker was dated, "29 Jan., New Year," and signed, "Myles Coverdale, quondam Exon."

A few days after, he wrote to Cecil on the same subject; thanking him for former help which he had received, and telling him, that if it would please him to obtain this for him, he should think this enough "to be as good as a feast." This was on the 6th of February. A few weeks afterwards, Coverdale wrote again to Archbishop Parker, stating that he had received a message from Lord Robert Dudley, (better known as the earl of Leicester), to let him know that the queen had granted his request concerning the first fruits.

Coverdale was collated to this rectory of St. Magnus the Martyr, March 3rd, 1563. He was allowed at the time to remain a nonconformist, as regards the "habits" and other matters which troubled his conscience, so that there was no compromise in his having accepted the rectory. The strict compulsion to conformity which subsequently took place, had not as yet begun; and thus, under the protection of Grindall, he enjoyed much liberty. The Act of Uniformity, which had been passed at the commencement of the reign of Elizabeth, was not, as yet, brought into any thing like full practical operation.

In this year he was taken with the plague, and, old as he was (seventy-five), recovered again, "as though God had some more work for him to do in the church before his death." What his subsequent labours may have proved as to result is not known; but he continued to preach the Gospel of Christ. It is the day of account which must shew the fruit of his subsequent, as well as of his prior testimony.

In the same year, 1563, Coverdale received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from the University of Cambridge, per gratiam; he had received this degree from that of Tubingen several years before. Barkley, bishop of Bath and Wells, took this degree at the same time as Coverdale. In the following year, Bishop Grindall desired to take his degree of Doctor of Divinity; and accordingly he wrote to the vice-chancellor of the University of Cambridge, requesting that he would either admit him himself, or else authorize some other person to do so. Upon this, the vice-chancellor transmitted the authority for this purpose (bearing date, April 10, 1564) to Coverdale, who admitted Grindall to his degree at the bishop's palace in London, on the 15th of the same month. This, at least, shews that both by the vice-chancellor and the bishop, this poor and aged servant of Christ was held in high respect.

Coverdale continued to hold the rectory of St. Magnus until the year 1566; when he, and many others, were compelled either to conform or to resign whatever benefices they held. In 1564, the Act of Uniformity was pressed in several cases: and in the two following years, it was brought into full operation.

Gives him the parish of St. Magnus London Bridge, 1563.

His poverty at this time.

He petitions to be excused his "first fruits."

The Queen grants his request.

Coverdale collated to the rectory of St. Magnus, March 3, 1563. Strict conformity not yet pressed.

Coverdale taken with the plague. Strype.

Made D.D. by the university of Cambridge.

Appointed to admit Bishop Grindall, Apr. 10, 1564.

Conformity pressed, 1564 and the following two years.

It has been questioned, but I think needlessly, whether it was on account of age and infirmity that Coverdale resigned, or whether it was on account of the uniformity required. That it was the latter is evident from the fact, that he was a nonconformist, and it was needful for him to conform, unless he preferred resigning; and he did not cease preaching until after this time.

Coverdale in consequence resigns his rectory, 1566.

Other ministers in London (about forty-six in all), were deprived at the same time, on the same ground. Strype thus speaks of them:—

Forty-six ministers deprived, Mar. 26, 1566. Collier, vi. 429.

“After the deprivation of the London ministers for seven or eight weeks, their hearers either came to the churches and heard the conformable preachers, or went no whither. Many of them ran after father Coverdale, who took that occasion to preach the more constantly; but yet with much fear, so that he would not be known where he preached, though many came to his house to ask where he would preach the next Lord’s day. This it is likely he did, because he did not care for tumultuous meetings, lest he might give offence to the government.”

He was now more than seventy-eight years old; and yet we find him still continuing to preach thus diligently: this, indeed, was what had peculiarly marked him forty years before amongst his cotemporaries, when the profession of the Gospel began at Cambridge.

Coverdale a zealous preacher.

His long and laborious life was now near its close: of its conclusion we know no particulars beyond what is learned from his having continued to preach until, at the farthest, a few months of his death. This took place in the beginning of the year 1569; and, on the 19th of February, he was buried in the chancel of St. Bartholomew’s Church, behind the Royal Exchange. His funeral was attended by vast crowds of persons, by whom he had been admired and loved.

Coverdale’s death, 1569. His funeral, Feb. 19.

His tomb was marked by “a fair plated stone,” with an inscription stating his age—eighty-one years; but this stone, together with much of the building, was destroyed by the fire of London. In the year 1840, this church was pulled down, to make way for certain improvements; on which occasion much care was taken in the removal of the remains of those who had been interred within its walls. A particular search was made for the bones of Coverdale; and the remains which were supposed to be his were carefully raised and removed to the church of St. Magnus, of which, till forced to resign, he had been rector. In this place the supposed remains of Coverdale were re-interred. The parishioners of St. Magnus had erected a monument to his memory in the year 1837; so that now his mouldering ashes are located in the place in which he has been more honoured in death than he was in life.

The disinterment of his remains, 1840. Re-interred at St. Magnus, London Bridge.

The long and weary life of service, exile, and suffering which Coverdale led, was but the result of the knowledge of grace received; proving blessedly that he who is freely forgiven, instead of being careless about the bringing forth of fruit, is the most diligent and devoted in so doing.

Coverdale seems in himself to connect together the two distinct periods of the history of the circulation of the English Scriptures—the time of restriction and that of liberty. He had been the associate of Tyndale, the martyr for the word of God; he was, in part, the means of the conversion of Rogers, another honoured instrument; and now, surviving his former fellow-workers, both his predecessors and successors in labour, he lived to see that liberty of circulation of the word of God restored in England which still exists, and has continued without interruption. There are but two names which occupy as high a place with regard to the diffusion of the word of God in English, and these are Wiclif and Tyndale; each of these three had his distinct work, and each was honoured by the blessing of God.

Long period of Coverdale’s connection with the history of the English Scriptures.

It is impossible to take leave of Coverdale without regarding him as one of the most devoted and honoured amongst the many instruments of the Reformation raised up by God in the sixteenth century. He appears as the successor of Tyndale,—toiling to the same end, aided by the same grace, and, after a longer pilgrimage, entering into the same rest, and waiting for the full fruition of glory when Christ comes again, and raises all his sleeping saints in bodies of glory like unto His own.

XV.

THE “BISHOPS’ BIBLE” PREPARED AND PUBLISHED.

AFTER the Scriptures were again permitted, in the reign of Elizabeth, to be freely read and used, one of the first steps for bringing them publicly into notice was their being again set up in the parish churches, where they were publicly read every Lord’s day. The version which was thus “authorized” was of course the "Great Bible," which had been adopted for this purpose in the reigns of Henry and of Edward; indeed no other Bibles would be so placed, unless, perhaps, enough copies of the Bible which bears the name of Thomas Matthew could have been gathered together for the purpose. The new version, by the Geneva exiles, was not yet published. It would therefore have been a needless delay, to have waited till that were obtainable; and even if it had been already completed, it is not very likely that those who now held ecclesiastical authority in England would have regarded, without suspicion, the version which had been executed by those who had separated from the other English exiles, on account of their dislike to the English service-book, "habits," &c.

The Bibles again placed in the parish churches.

In the early part of the reign of Elizabeth, Cranmer's Bible was thus restored to the place which it had previously occupied. It was not, however, long before many complaints were made against this translation; various statements were alleged as reasons for condemning the version altogether. It is probable that many now set to work to examine the English Bible more critically than had been done before, and thus many real or supposed corrections were suggested. The advocates of the Geneva version are mentioned as having depreciated Cranmer's. It is probable that the charges of corruption which they made might have had some reference to the insertion in it (in smaller type) of passages from the Latin Vulgate, which do not exist in the Hebrew or Greek originals. The Romanists of course objected to this version; but they had done the same with regard to every previous translation; and they have now done so with regard to all since, except indeed their own.

One of the Protestant objectors was Edwin Sandys, at this time bishop of Worcester, and, subsequently, archbishop of York. In writing to Archbishop Parker, Feb. 6, 1564-5, he charged the setters forth of Cranmer's Bible with having "followed Munster too much, who doubtless was a very negligent man in his doings, and often swerved very much from the Hebrew." This was after the preparation for a new Bible had commenced, for with this letter he returned a certain portion of the Bible, which the archbishop had sent to him for revision. Now let us see, first, how far Cranmer's Bible followed the Latin interpretation of Munster; and, secondly, how far the character which Archbishop Sandys thus gave to Munster is correct.

First, then, the basis of the Old Testament, in Cranmer's Bible, is in part the translation of Tyndale, and in part that of Coverdale. Now Tyndale published his version of the Pentateuch four years before Munster put forth his Hebrew and Latin Bible, so that in that part Tyndale could not possibly have followed Munster. Again, the other portion of Tyndale's labour, namely, from Joshua to the Chronicles inclusive, was in all probability executed before his imprisonment, which took place in the year when the first volume of Munster's Bible appeared. Tyndale could have made no use of it: for his occupation, during several months previous to his imprisonment, was not the translation of the Old Testament, but the revision of his version of the New. The basis of the rest of the Old Testament was Coverdale's version; one of his "subsidia" was certainly Munster's Latin version; but it cannot be proved that he followed it servilely: nay, it is most easy to shew, that while he used it as an aid, he did not take it as his basis. It would be difficult to prove, that the revisors of the joint labour of Tyndale and Coverdale, made too great a use of Munster.

Secondly, it has to be inquired whether Munster really "executed his version negligently, often swerving from the Hebrew." I do not think that this charge can be proved: for it appears to me that Munster adheres very closely to the original, always preferring literal exactness to elegance of phraseology. It is not to be denied that he has committed oversights (Who has not?); but the character here given to him was one by no means deserved. If particular examples had been brought forward, the question could have been fairly examined; but as it now stands, the general charge made by Archbishop Sandys can only receive a general answer. It seems to me that the existing version, which was publicly read, was made an object of attack; and those who disliked it, without having any particular objection which they could define, stated reasons which they supposed were sound. All such charges ought, however, to be examined, if we would form a true judgment.

Another objector was a person named Laurence, who is described as being "a noted Grecian at this time." He stated to Archbishop Parker, that various passages in the New Testament of the existing versions were inadequately rendered. He gave a list of particular texts, in which he noticed something to be amended; referring apparently, in his criticisms, to any of the existing translations indiscriminately. Several of his remarks apply apparently to some particular edition of these various versions; so that they refer not merely to errors of translation, but to those of editing and printing likewise. Although Laurence may be classed amongst the objectors to the "Great Bible;" yet his suggestions, if acted on, would not have amounted to any thing more than a revision.

Complaints made of Cranmer's Bible.

Bishop Sandys writes to Abp. Parker, Feb. 6, 1564-5, Strype's Par. i. 415.

The criticisms of Bp. Sandys considered. How far does the "Great Bible" follow Munster?

Was Munster a careful translator?

Laurence's objections to Cranmer's Bible.

Another reason, which had probably a good deal of weight in causing a new translation to be undertaken, was the fact of the Geneva version having become the one in daily use, in private families: this at least was the case very soon; and it is probable that it had begun to be preferred, before the Bishop's Bible was undertaken. It is likely that a version was thus desired by Archbishop Parker, which should be free from the objections urged by Bishop Sandys, Laurence, and others; and which should not only be authorised and appointed for public use, but also be calculated to compete with the Geneva translation for private reading. This last mentioned version had been, like all that had originally preceded it, the undertaking of private individuals. What Archbishop Parker wished for was, a version executed by those whose position and station might give the translation a kind of weight. In this Parker acted very differently from Crammer, Crammer had taken the best version that he could find which was then in existence, and used it with comparatively little revision: Parker, on the contrary, would have the work to be thoroughly remodelled, and made, not the adoption of the previous labours of others, but a version of a different character; in this respect resembling more the Geneva translation, than any of those of an earlier date.

Bishop Sandys, in another letter, urged on the archbishop to complete and carry out his design of publishing a new version of the Bible. He says, "Those which we have be not only false printed, but also give great offence to many, by reason of the depravity in reading."

The Book of Psalms had been sent to Guest, bishop of Rochester, for revision. He sent it back "with his notes and advertisements." In writing to Parker, he said—

That he "had not altered the translation but where it gave occasion of an error. As at the first Psalm, at the beginning, I turn the preterperfect tense into the present tense; because the sense is too harsh in the preterperfect tense. Where in the New Testament one piece of a Psalm is reported, I translate it in the Psalms according to the translation thereof in the New Testament, for the avoiding of the offence that may rise to the people upon divers translations. Where two great letters be joined together or one great letter is twice put, it signifieth that both the sentences or the words be expounded together."

This latter sentence evidently refers to some of the marks of reference which Guest had made use of, in his manuscript.

Another portion was sent to Parkhurst, bishop of Norwich, who wrote in reply to Archbishop Parker, that he would labour in it to the best of his ability.

Davies, bishop of St. David's, had another part. He was at this time employed in aiding William Salesbury, in translating the New Testament into Welsh; he was thus taken away from his previous work, and the whole Bible in Welsh (which apparently they would have undertaken) was not executed for twenty years.

In the year 1566, Bishop Cox, of Ely, wrote to Archbishop Parker (May 3), in which he thus refers to the progress of the translation:—

"I trust your grace is well forward with the Bible by this time. I perceive the greatest burden will lie upon your neck, touching care and travail. I would wish that such usual words as we English people be acquainted with, might still remain in their form & sound, so far forth as the Hebrew will well bear; ink-horn terms to be avoided."

The version of the Bible which Archbishop Parker thus superintended was published in the year 1568, with simply the following title:—

The holie Bible.

This is in the upper compartment of an engraved plate, the centre of which is occupied with a portrait of the queen, having the arms of England and France quarterly in a shield over her head, with those of Ireland in a shield to the right of it, and those of Wales in a shield to the left. Beneath the portrait of the queen is the following text:—

Non me pudet Euangelii Christi.
Virtus enim Dei est ad salutem Omni credenti. Rom. i.

At the end of various portions of this Bible there are initial letters, which are supposed to intimate the respective individuals by whom they were executed. However, it is doubtful, in some instances, who were the persons intimated.

At the end of the Pentateuch are the letters, W. E., standing, as is supposed, for William Exoniensis; that is, William Alley, bishop of Exeter. This translator was born at Great Wycombe, in Buckinghamshire; he was educated at Eton, and afterwards, in 1528, was admitted at King's College, Cambridge; he Spread of the Geneva translation.

The "Bishops Bible" intended to supersede it.

Bp. Sandys again writes to Abp. Parker. Strype's Par. i. 416. The Psalms revised by Bp. Guest.

A portion revised by Bp. Parkhurst. Another by Bp. Davies.

Bp. Cox writes to Abp. Parker, May 3, 1566.

The "Bishops' Bible" published 1568.

Initials at the ends of various portions.

End of Pentateuch, W. E.

Wm. Alley, bishop of Exeter.

Notice of him. took his degree of Bachelor of Arts and then removed to Oxford, where he continued for some time. He became a zealous reformer, and like many others married (this was, I suppose, in the reign of Edward VI.). He had a benefice, which he left on the accession of Queen Mary, being probably deprived on the ground of matrimony. He spent his time during the reign of Mary in wandering "from place to place in the north parts of England where he was not known; and by his sometimes practising of physic and teaching of youths he obtained a comfortable subsistence for himself and his wife." Several of the professors of the Gospel appear to have found at the same time a shelter in the northern counties of England, where they were comparatively safe in the dioceses of the non-persecuting prelates, Heath, Tonstall, and Oglethorp. Thus there were many thrown together who were the means of strengthening one another's hands.

On the accession of Elizabeth, Alley was appointed Divinity Lecturer at St. Paul's, the situation which had six years before been filled by John Rogers. Some of his lectures thus delivered on the first epistle of St. Peter, were published under the title of "The Poor Man's Library."

In 1560 he was appointed bishop of Exeter, and consecrated in July of that year. He died April 15, 1570.

It is probable that he was one of the best Hebraists at this time in England: he wrote a Hebrew grammar, which he appears to have left behind in manuscript. In his epitaph he is described as being, "acerrimus Evangelicæ veritatis propugnator," no mean commendation, when it is remembered that earnestly contending for the faith once delivered to the saints would, in a part of his days, have put a man in peril of his life.

End of 2 Sam.
R. M.
Rt. Davies,
Bishop of St.
David's.
A notice of him, Bliss's Wood's
Athenæ Oxon.

The next portion appears to conclude at the end of the second book of Samuel, where the initials R. M. are placed. These are regarded as standing for "Richard Menevensis." Richard Davies, bishop of St. David's, has been already mentioned as having been previously engaged about a version in his native language—the Welsh. He was born probably in Denbighshire, about the year 1509, and educated at New Inn, Oxford. He was one of the exiles in the reign of Mary; but, returning on the accession of Elizabeth, he was made bishop of St. Asaph, from which see he was in the following year translated to that of St. David's. He died in October, 1581. He published some small works in his native language, especially designed to set before them the Gospel which had been so long obscured and kept out of sight. In the Welsh New Testament, already referred to, he translated certain of the epistles.

End of 2 Chr.
E. W.
Edwin Sandys,
bishop of Worcester.
Some notice of him.

The third portion concludes at the end of the second book of Chronicles, where the letters E. W. appear, standing for "Edwin Wigornensis." This was Edwin Sandys, who has already been mentioned as one of the great promoters of this version. He was born near Hawkshead, in Lancashire, in the year 1519. He went to St. John's College, Cambridge, in the year 1532, or the following year. This college was, at that time, and for many years afterwards, the most remarkable place for the number of persons it contained who were professors of the Gospel; and it is probable that whilst there Sandys was converted. In 1547, Sandys was elected master of Catherine Hall. During the reign of Edward he received various benefices, but continued to reside at Cambridge. In 1552 he married a lady who appears from her surname to have been a relative of his own.

Master of Catherine Hall, 1547.

In the following year, when he was vice-chancellor of the University, Edward VI. died, and the Lady Jane having been proclaimed queen, he preached in support of her title. In consequence of this, he was, after the close of her brief reign, deprived of his vice-chancellorship, and committed to the Tower. Here he was deprived of everything, except a Bible, which his faithful servant, Quintin Swainton, brought to him. After having been kept in a vile prison for three weeks, he was removed to the same apartment with John Bradford, who was his companion for more than half a year. By the joint labour of Bradford and Sandys, their gaoler was converted, not only from Romanism, but to Christ: he used, from time to time, to bring them bread and wine, and thus these three united in happily receiving the Lord's supper.

His liberation and escape to the continent.

He was subsequently removed to the Marshalsea; whence, after nine weeks, he was liberated by the intercession of Sir Thomas Holcroft, knight-marshal. Upon this he escaped from England, although with great difficulty, the lord chancellor, bishop Gardiner, being very earnest to retake him. On the 6th May, 1554, he embarked for Flanders; two emissaries, sent to apprehend him, arriving at the shore while the vessel was yet in sight. His last act, before leaving England, had been preaching on the beach, to a congregation of sailors.

When he reached Antwerp, he found that even there orders had been already given for his apprehension. However, by the good hand of his God upon him, he escaped; and, at length, reached Strasburgh. His life at this place was saddened in very many ways; he was one who took some part in the grievous dissension, which divided the English exiles; but not, of course, to the same extent as was done by those at Frankfurt.

At the time of the accession of queen Elizabeth, he was at Zurich, with Peter Martyr: but he forthwith set out for England; and after preaching at Strasburgh, he returned with Grindall, and reached England on the day of the coronation of Queen Elizabeth. He was very soon after this appointed bishop of Worcester, and was consecrated by Archbishop Parker, December 21st, 1559. In 1570, when Grindall, bishop of London, was translated to the arch-diocese of York, Sandys succeeded him; and six years afterwards, when Grindall was translated to Canterbury, Sandys succeeded him at York. He died July 10th, 1588. His life, after his return to England, was disquieted by the schemes and projects of various enemies; so that few have experienced more continued turmoil. His judgment respecting the earlier English translations, and respecting Sebastian Munster, are, I think, very erroneous; but, in spite of his errors in judgment, he is to be regarded as a man deeply attached to the principles of the Reformation, and willing, if called upon, to suffer for their defence.

His return to England.
Bp. of Worcester, 1559.

Of London, 1570.
Abp. of York, 1576.
Died, 1588.

The fourth portion of Archbishop Parker's Bible concludes with the book of Job, where the letters A. P. ℄ appear; these are supposed to indicate Andreas Peerson, Cantuarensis; Andrew Peerson, prebend of Canterbury, being at this time one of Archbishop Parker's chaplains. He had been fellow of Bene't College, Cambridge; he was the reader of the service at the consecration of Archbishop Parker. Throughout the archbishop's life, he appears to have been highly esteemed by him.

End of Job, A. P. ℄.
Andrew Peerson, prebend of Canterbury.

The fifth portion consists of the book of Psalms; after which occur the letters T. B. It is very uncertain who was indicated by these letters: some have thought that they stand for Thomas Bentham; but as Bentham was at this time bishop of Lichfield and Coventry, it seems very unlikely that the initial of his surname would be used; especially, considering that the other bishops used the initial indicating their respective sees. It is, I think, much more probable, that Thomas Becon was the translator of this portion. It may be that he gave it a final revision, since it is certain that Edmund Guest, bishop of Rochester, had sent Archbishop Parker his "notes and advertisements" for this book.

End of Psalms, T. B.
Probably Thos. Becon.

Thomas Becon was distinguished amongst the Reformers by his writings. He was born in 1512, and was educated at Cambridge, where he took his bachelor's degree, in 1530; this was at the time when the Reformed doctrines had made considerable progress in that University. He was for some time one of Cranmer's chaplains; and, on May 24th, 1547, he was presented to the rectory of St. Stephen, Walbrook. In the reign of Mary, after having been twice imprisoned, he escaped to the continent, where he continued, by writing, to do what he could for the upholding of the doctrines of the Gospel amongst his countrymen. Becon died about the year 1570.

Notice of him.

At the close of the Proverbs, the letters A. P. ℄ again occur; making this book a sixth portion. It has been supposed that the person indicated, was not the same as the previous A. P. ℄; but for this I see no sufficient ground. The reason assigned for this opinion has been, that the C. stands at a greater distance from the A. P. in the latter case, than in the former. It is true that the space is a minute partitelle greater (not more than a thin space, in printing); but in each case the C. is purposely separated. I believe the indication to be simply that of the same individual, namely, Andrew Peerson.

End of Proverbs, A. P. ℄.

The seventh portion consists only of Ecclesiastes and the Canticles. At the end is A. P. ℄, denoting, it is said, Andreas Pern Eliensis, Andrew Perne being at this time prebendary of Ely.

End of Canticles, A. P. ℄.
Andrew Perne, Prebend of Ely.

The eighth portion concludes with the Lamentations, at the end of which the letters R. W. occur, indicating, as is supposed, Robert Wintonensis. Robert Horne, bishop of Winchester, was a person of considerable eminence amongst the reformers. He had been an exile at Frankfort during the reign of Queen Mary, and afterwards at Zurich. On his return to England at the accession of Queen Elizabeth, he was employed in various steps which were taken for the re-establishment of the Protestant doctrines as the professed religion. When he was made bishop of Winchester, he was regarded as one of those who were very friendly to the nonconformists with respect to the "habits," &c.

R. W.
Robert Horne, Bp. of Winchester.

At the end of the ninth allotment, which contains the two books, Ezekiel and Daniel, the initials are T. C. L. Strype asks, "Might it not be Thomas Cole of Lincolnshire?" Lewis assents to this without hesitation; but it would have been expected, if this had been the case, that the L would have been (as in the similar instances) at a distance from the other two letters, and in a different character, whereas the End of Daniel, T. C. L.

Probably Thos. Bentham, Bp. of Lichfield and Coventry.

interval is between the T and the two other letters, all being in the same character. This shews, I think, that it must have been Thomas Bentham, bishop of Lichfield and Coventry (who in his signature used to place Coventry the first), who had this portion assigned him. Thomas Bentham was born about the year 1513, in Yorkshire. He was admitted a fellow of Magdalen College, November 16, 1546, and became one of the most eminently learned in Hebrew of any of his cotemporaries at Oxford. In the reign of Mary he was deprived of his fellowship, because of the zeal which he shewed for the reformed doctrines; and in consequence of the proceedings against the reformers, he fled to the continent. His return to preach to the London congregation of Gospellers, and his merciful preservation through the close of the reign of Mary, have been already narrated.

On the accession of Elizabeth, when the popish bishops were deprived, he was appointed to the see of Lichfield and Coventry, to which he was consecrated March 24, 1560. He was one of the most learned in the original languages of Scripture of all who were occupied in the preparation of the Bishops' Bible. He died February 21, 1579.

The minor prophets form the tenth of the allotted portions. At the end of them are the letters E. L., for Edmund Londinensis, as is supposed. Edmund Grindall, who was at this time bishop of London, was born in Cumberland in 1519. He was educated at Cambridge, belonging first to Magdalen College, then to Christ's, and afterwards to Pembroke Hall, of which in 1538 he was chosen fellow. In 1549 he became president (vice-master) of his college, and being now a bachelor of divinity, he was chosen Lady Margaret preacher.

In 1550, Bishop Ridley appointed him his chaplain, and in 1551 he was made precentor of St. Paul's, and also chaplain to the king. Not long after, when it was intended to divide the bishopric of Durham into two, Grindall was nominated to be one of the bishops. Ridley himself was to have been translated to the other portion.

At the accession of Mary, when so many fled for safety wherever they could find shelter, Grindall took up his abode at Strasburgh, where he studied German, in order to be able to preach in the churches in that city. He took some part, but not a prominent one, in the unhappy disputes by which the English exiles were divided. On the accession of Elizabeth he returned, arriving with Sandys on the day of her coronation. On the deprivation of Bonner, he was appointed to the bishopric of London, after having been chosen Master of Pembroke Hall, Cambridge. As bishop of London, he has been already noticed for the care and consideration with which he treated Myles Coverdale; indeed, he appears to have done what he could to hinder the deprivation of the non-conformist ministers. In several things he had to act with Archbishop Parker, to whom his unwillingness to molest those who scrupled about the "habits," &c., soon became very apparent. He was translated to the see of York in 1570; Parker is said to have procured this promotion, in order that there might be a bishop of London more decided in his promotion of uniformity.

On the death of Archbishop Parker, he was appointed his successor, in 1576; but in that very year he fell under the displeasure of the queen, because of the favour which he shewed to what were termed "prophesyings." These "prophesyings" were expositions or exhortations, mutually delivered by various ministers, others also being present as auditors. Grindall also encouraged the preaching of the Gospel; while, on the other hand, Elizabeth thought that it was good for the church that the preachers should be few, and that three or four in a county were amply sufficient. The queen, on these grounds, required Grindall to lessen the number of preachers, and to put down the "prophesyings." In consequence of his refusal to comply, the queen sequestered him from his office, and for some time confined him to his own house. His sequestration continued almost up to the time of his death, which occurred July 6th, 1583. It may be interesting to mention that he aided Fox in the compilation of his "Acts and Monuments."

At the end of the Apocrypha, which forms the eleventh portion, are the letters F. N. indicating, as is supposed, Johannes Norwicensis. John Parkhurst, bishop of Norwich, had been educated at Oxford, at Merton College, of which he was elected a probationer-fellow in 1529. In the reign of Edward VI. he was appointed rector of Cleve, in Gloucestershire; but, on the accession of Mary, he became one of the Protestant exiles.

After his return, on the accession of Elizabeth, he was appointed bishop of Norwich. In this situation he was regarded as being more favourable to those who did not conform to the "habits" than any of the other prelates; this often brought him into collision with Archbishop Parker. He died in 1574.

The Four Gospels and the Acts formed the twelfth portion: the letters at the end are R. E. for, as is supposed, Richardus Eliensis. This was Richard Cox, who forty years before had been brought into

End of Malachi. E. L., Edmund Grindall, Bp. of London. Notice of him.

Bp. of London on Bonner's deprivation.

Abp. of York, 1570.

Abp. of Canterbury, 1576.

His sequestration. His death, 1583.

End of Apocrypha. J. N. Parkhurst, bishop of Norwich.

End of Gospels and Acts. R. E. Richard Cox.

trouble when the Scriptures were first printed in English. He had been elected from Eton as a scholar to King's College, Cambridge, whence, in December, 1525, he was removed to the New College of St. Frideswide at Oxford, which Cardinal Wolsey had founded. Here he, together with Frith and others, as has been already narrated, were persecuted and imprisoned on account of charges of heresy connected with the diffusion of Tyndale's New Testament.

At a subsequent period, we find him (1540) made archdeacon of Ely, and afterwards dean, first of Osney, and afterwards of Christ Church. In 1547, he was made chancellor of the University of Oxford, where he carried on the work of Reformation in a manner which has been bitterly censured. The search for superstitious books, which he instituted, is said to have led to the destruction of most valuable documents.

During the reign of Mary, he, like others, left England, when he fixed his abode at Frankfort, where he took a very prominent part in the unhappy contentions by which the English there were divided. So forward was he in pressing the introduction of the English service-book, &c., that the party who urged these things were denominated, from him, "the Coxians."

After his return to England, on the accession of Elizabeth, he was appointed bishop of Ely. He died in 1581.

At the end of the Epistle to the Romans, the letters R. E. are again placed: this is supposed to be by mistake for E. R., Edmund Roffensis. Edmund Guest, bishop of Rochester, has been already mentioned as one who took a part in this translation, having in some measure revised the book of Psalms. This makes it not improbable that the Romans was really his portion as a final revision, and that the letters, which as they stand, seem to intimate Bishop Cox of Ely, are really transposed.

End of Romans, R. E. Doubtful who is meant.

At the end of the First Epistle to the Corinthians are the letters G. G., which are supposed to be for Gabriel Goodman, Dean of Westminster. No initials are subjoined to the remainder of the New Testament.

End of 1 Cor. G. B. Gabriel Goodman.

To this Bible was prefixed, amongst other things, the sum of Scripture, setting forth the Scripture doctrines, tables of genealogy, &c., and a preface written by Archbishop Parker.

The providential care of God in preserving the Scriptures is noticed, and also the endeavours which had been made to decree the translating of Scripture to be so perilous a thing that it can scarcely be hoped that it may be well performed.

This Bible was known by the name of "The Bishop's Bible," either from the greater part of those who were engaged in its preparation being bishops, or else from its having been executed under their direction. The name of "Matthew Parker's Bible" has sometimes been given to it, from the archbishop who first set it on foot. It continued to be the version authorised to be read in the parish churches for forty-three years; but in private use it never displaced the Geneva version. As a whole, it was not nearly so good a translation as that of the Geneva exiles, and now one of the things which especially gives it importance, is the fact of its having been the basis in the reign of James I. of the translation which we still use. But although the avowed basis of our authorised version, this latter was executed upon wholly different principles, and is very different in its general character from that which is now under consideration.

Character of the Bishops' Bible.

XVI.

THE ANGLO-RHEMISH VERSION.

THE circumstances which led to the execution and publication of this version, are to be found in the history of the expulsion of Romanism during the reign of Elizabeth. The versions of the New Testament previously executed, from that of Tyndale to the Bishops' Bible inclusively (the English text of Coverdale's Duoglott New Testament excepted), had been made from the original Greek; but the Rhemish translators took for their basis the Vulgate Latin.

Circumstances leading to the making of the Rhemish version.

The authority of the Latin Vulgate was a point of dissension between Papists and Protestants: the latter were disposed to depreciate it very much, the former to extol it, as though it surpassed in authority even the original texts themselves. Its authenticity (whatever that may mean) had been declared by the Council of Trent, so that it could not be expected that zealous Romanists, in translating the Scriptures into English, would use any other basis than that version. One of the principal objects which the Rhemish translators had in view, was evidently to circulate their doctrinal and controversial notes, together with the Scripture translated by them. This had been done by the Geneva translators with regard to their version, and from this probably the idea was taken by the Rhemish translators.

Cardinal Allen, the chief director of the Rhemish version. Some account of him.

The chief agent in causing the Rhemish version to be made, was WILLIAM ALLEN (or Alleyne), more commonly known as Cardinal Allen. He was born about the year 1532, at Rossal, in Lancashire; and in 1547, entered at Oriel College, Oxford, where he became very distinguished for his learning and abilities: in 1550, he was chosen fellow of his college. He became principal of St. Mary's Hall in 1556, and in 1558 he was appointed canon of York.

He leaves England on the accession of Elizabeth.

On the accession of Elizabeth, Allen quitted his country, and gave up his church preferment. About the year 1560, he went to Louvain, where many of the more zealous English Romanists had taken up their abode. After this he returned to England for his health.

English seminary of Douay founded, 1568.

He subsequently removed to Douay, where an academy had been set up about the year 1562; at this place he took the degree of Doctor of Divinity. Soon after he was made canon of Cambrai; and about the year 1568, by his endeavours, the English seminary at Douay was established, to receive such of the English Romanists as fled from their country on account of their religion.

English seminary at Rheims.

Upon the appointment of Dr. Allen to be canon of Rheims, he exerted himself to establish an English seminary at this latter place; the state of the Netherlands having become so unsettled, that the English scholars were driven from Douay. Allen's efforts did not stop here; he procured the establishment of a similar institution at Rome, and two others in Spain, for the express object of furnishing England with missionaries for the dissemination of Romanism.

The Rhemish version an effort to oppose the Reformation.

Allen was a strenuous opposer of Queen Elizabeth's interest in every way: he was one who fully carried out the principles enjoined by the excommunicating bull of Pope Pius against her. Amongst his other efforts against Protestantism, the execution of the Rhemish and Douay version must be regarded as one. It is to be questioned whether he was personally concerned in its execution; but at all events, his counsels and directions led to its being undertaken. In 1589, Pope Sixtus V. created him a cardinal, and two years afterwards he was made archbishop of Mechlin.

His principal coadjutors in this translation were Gregory Martin, Richard Bristow, and Thomas Worthington: of these, it is probable that the first was the one chiefly concerned in the translation.

The New Testament prepared by these translators was published under the following title:—

Translator's preface.

THE
NEW TESTAMENT
OF IESVS CHRIST, TRANSLATED FAITHFULLY INTO ENGLISH.

out of the authentical Latin, according to the best corrected copies of the same, diligently conferred with the Greeke and other editions in diuers languages: With ARGUMENTS of bookes and chapters, ANNOTATIONS, and other necessarie helpes. for the better vnderstanding of the text, and specially for the discoerie of the CORRUPTIONS of diuers late translations, and for clearing the CONTROVERSIES in religion of these daies:

IN THE ENGLISH COLLEGE OF RHEMES.

Account of the version.

Psal. 118.

Da mihi intellectum, & seruator legem tuam, & custodiam illam in toto corde meo.

That is,

Give me vnderstanding, and I will serue thy law, and will keepe it with my whole hart.

S. Aug. tract. 2. in Epist. Ioan.

Omnia quae leguntur in scripturis sanctis, ad instructionem & salutem nostram intent, oportet audire: maxime tamen memorie commendanda sunt, quae aduersus Haereticos valent plurimum: quorum iustitia, infirmiores quoque & negligentiores circumuenire non cessant.

That is,

All things that are reade in holy Scriptures, we must heare with great attention, to our instruction and saluation: but those things specially must be commended to memorie, which make most against Heretikes: whose deceit ceaseth not to circumeunt and beguile al the weaker sort and the more negligent persons.

PRINTED AT RHEMES.
by Iohn Fogny.

1582.

CVM PRIVILEGIO.

In a preface to the Reader of some length, they state their reasons for having translated out of the Latin instead of from the Greeke; together with noticing various other matters connected with translations of the Scripture in general, and this version in particular. They say that they had their translation of the whole Bible lying by them for some time; and that at length having means of publishing the New Testament, they have this printed first.

“ which translation we doe not for all that publish, vpon erroneous opinion of necessitie, that the holy Scriptures should alwaies be in our mother tonge, or that they ought or vvere ordained by God, to be read indifferently of all, or could be easily vnderstood of euery one that readeth or heareth them in a knouen language: or that they vwere not often, through mans malice or infirmite, pernicious and much hurtful to many: or that we generally and absolutely deemed it more conuenient in itself, & more agreeable to Gods word and honour, or edification of the faithful, to haue them turned into vulgar tonges, than to be kept & studied only in the Ecclesiastical learned languages. Not for these nor any such like causes doe vve translate this sacred booke, but vpon special consideration of the present time, state, and condition of our countrie, vnto vvhich, diuers things are either necessarie, or profitable and medicinable novv, that otherwise in the peace of the Church vvere neither much requisite, nor perchance vvholly tolerable."

Thus cautiously do they guard against the supposition that the publication of this version was to be deemed an acknowledgment that the former opposition which had been made to the circulation of the English Scriptures, had been an error on the part of the Church of Rome.

They speak of the wisdom of the church in making regulations, both as to what translations of the Scriptures might be published, and also by whom they might be read. On the latter point they recite that it had been lately decreed by the Council of Trent, "that the holy Scriptures, though truly and Catholically translated into vulgar tonges, yet may not be indifferently readde of all men, nor of any other then such as haue expresse licence therevnto of their lawful ordinaries, with good testimonie from their Curates or Confessors, that they be humble, discrete, and deuout persons, and like to take much good, and no harme thereby."

Wisdom of the church in regulating translatiuns commended.

They enlarge on the subjection with which Scripture is to be read; not, however, subjection to what God has seen fit there to reveal, but subjection with regard to Scripture to the authorities in the church: as if any authority could be in any way so constituted of God as to make void the requirements of His holy word.

The Rhemish Translators find great fault with all the Protestant versions which had been made; they speak of the liberties taken with the text as having been most unwarranted: the translations of words deemed "ecclesiastical," and the manner in which proper names were expressed, being part of the ground of this charge. In consideration of the alleged state of the English translations of the Bible, they say:—

Protestant versions blamed.

"Vve therefore hauing compassion to see our beloued countrie men, vvith extreme danger of their soules, to vse onely such prophane translations, and erroneou mens mere phantasies, for the pure and blessed vvord of truth, much also moued therevnto by the desires of many deuout persons: haue set forth, for you (benigne readers) the nevv Testament to begin vvithal, trusting that it may giue occasion to you, after diligent perusing thereof, to lay avvay at lest such their impure versions as hitherto you haue ben forced to occupie."

The Rhemish version intended to supersede them.

They state that the annotations appended were for the purpose of proving that the Romish Church was conformable to the Scripture. If this had been the case, why should she have taken such pains to keep them back, until they could no longer be withheld. In fact, the real truth was most unconsciously acknowledged in the demands of the Popish insurgents in the West, in the reign of Edward VI., who required that the English Scriptures might be suppressed; because they said that "they had heard that until this were done their priests could not refute the 'heretics.'"

Alleged object of the annotations.

The translators, in their preface, give ten reasons why they adopted the Latin Vulgate as their basis. They speak of its antiquity, gravity, sincerity, impartiality, and the like; but what were all these worth when assigned as reasons for preferring the Latin version to the Greek original? The fifth of their reasons for this preference was clearly that which decided the point in their minds, namely, that the Latin Vulgate had been declared, by the Council of Trent, to be authentic, and to be refused of none.

Reasons for translating from the Latin.

The ninth reason which they assign is this, "It is not onely better then al other Latin translations, but then the Greeke text it selfe, in those places where they disagree." This is a bold assertion, and one which at the time when it was made no one was competent to advance. It is quite true that the Vulgate Latin is valuable as an aid for judging amongst discrepant readings of Greek manuscripts; but to praise the version more than the original was, to say the least, a mere gratuitous assertion.

The Latin asserted to be better than the Greek.

They strengthen their arguments in favour of the Vulgate by alleging that various interpreters had, in some places, at least preferred its readings to those of the Greek copies then in use. This argument, however, amounts to very little worth for their purpose; the alleged passages in which the Greek was said to be deserted, and the Latin followed being in fact such as contained some supplied word or words to make the rendering clear.

The Rhemish translators likewise object to the authority of the Greek text, that in some places Erasmus and other critics had regarded it as preserving the genuine reading, when the Greek text, as then commonly read, had some variation; this argument has considerable weight when applied solely to the individual passages in question. In fact, the Rhemish translators incline to speak of the Latin Vulgate very much in the same strain as did the Complutensian editors: these latter actually compared the Latin text in the Old Testament of their Bible, standing between the Hebrew and the Septuagint, to Christ crucified between two thieves!

Critical reasons advanced for deserting the Greek text.

"Pessimus, tanquam duos hinc et inde latrones, medium autem Jesum."

The Latin Vulgate defended.

The Rhemish translators afterwards defend the Vulgate on critical grounds; and in this they speak with much more propriety. They defend it thus: first, that it commonly agrees with the Greek text; secondly, that when it differs from the common Greek text, it frequently accords with some of the various readings of Stephens's third edition; thirdly, they say that even Protestants do not unfrequently prefer the marginal reading to that in the text; fourthly, that in the passages in which the printed Greek authority does not agree with the Latin, there is sometimes to be found a manuscript Greek copy which does accord with the Latin; fifthly, they allege that where no Greek copy accords with the Latin text, not unfrequently the citation of some ancient Greek "father" supplies a confirmation; sixthly, they suppose in passages where some variation is found which cannot otherwise be accounted for, that the Latin interpreter followed some other Greek copy; seventhly, they bring forward the Latin "fathers" as witnesses of what the reading of the text was in their days; lastly, they account for variations in the citations made by the Latin "fathers" by the fact that the Latin versions were in the early days very numerous, and thus when their quotations vary from the Vulgate, they suppose that they may have cited some other of these versions. This last reason is merely apologetic; the rest contain, on the whole, a great deal of truth. One thing, however, they ought to have stated, namely, that the Vulgate contains not a few passages which are clearly the corruptions of copyists. Candour on the part of the Rhemish translators would have acknowledged this; but as that version had been declared "authentic" they were willing fully to carry out this Tridentine decree.

It is quite true that they do acknowledge some faults to have crept in, but merely such as would, in a printed book, be regarded as typographical errata; those to which I have just referred, are such as have a more serious character.

The Greek text asserted to favour Romanism more than the Latin.

They strenuously deny that they prefer the Latin to the Greek text, because of its being more favourable to their views and opinions; alleging that the Greek text makes for them more than the Latin. This they endeavour to prove by examples which they bring forward; and I think that it must be admitted, by any one who dispassionately considers the subject, that very few of the variations of the Latin from the Greek text bear the mark of having been made to serve a purpose. They almost all must have crept in just like various readings in Greek copies, through the negligence or oversight of transcribers.

The Rhemish translators give the following account of their version:—

The Rhemish' account of their version.

"In this our translation, because we wish it to be most sincere, as becometh a Catholike translation, and haue endeouored so to make it: we are very precise & religious in following our copie, the old vulgar approved Latin: not indeed in sense, which we hope we alwaies do, but sometime in the very wordes also and phrases, which may seeme to the vulgar Reader & to common English eares, not yet acquainted therewith, rudenesse or ignorance: but to the discrete Reader that deeply weigheth and considereth the importance of sacred wordes and speeches, and how easily the voluntarie Translatour may misse the true sense of the Holy Ghost, we doubt not but our consideration and doing therein, shal seeme reasonable and necessarie: yea and that al sortes of Catholike Readers wil in short time thinke that familiar which at the first may seeme strange, & wil esteeme it more when they shal otherwise be taught to vnderstand it, then if it were the common known English."

By "otherwise," they mean by a table of explanations given at the end of the book.

Examples of unusual words.

They give several examples of unusual words which they introduced. They do not, however, give any good reason for not translating them; and, what is more, the meaning given in their glossary would, generally speaking, be far better if introduced into the text, than the comparatively unused word which they have adopted. The following are a few of the strange words thus introduced: Parasceue, Pasche, Azymes, Depositum, and such like.

Some of the words which they thus use, and speak of as newly introduced, are, however good and intelligible, such, for instance, as Evangelize, which alone fittingly and fully expresses εὐαγγελίζω; and, in such cases, this novelty of the Rhemish translators is not to be reprehended.

"Our Lord substituted for
"The Lord."

One of their peculiarities is, the use of the expression, "Our Lord," in cases where the Scripture has simply "The Lord." For an explanation of this, they refer from their preface to their notes on the 6th of Timothy. In the note they give no better reason for thus altering the text than this;—that the heretics (i. e. the Reformed) used the simple phrase; a strange reason, truly.

They farther thus expound their manner of translating:—

Their manner of translating.

"Morcouer, we presume not in hard places to mollifie the speeches or phrases, but religiously keepe them vvord for vvord, and point for point, for feare of missing, or restraining the sence of the holy Ghost to our phantasie: as Eph. 6. Against the spirituals of wickedness in the celestials. And what to me and thee, woman."

They then give other instances, in some of which they not only add no new sense of their own, but absolutely exclude all meaning from the passages.

This account of portions of the preface will serve to give some idea of the plan pursued by these translators. They had their minds fully bent upon preserving, untouched, the whole of what they deemed "Catholic verity;" and their minds recoiled from whatever seemed to oppose this. In a previous part of their preface, they had spoken thus of their version:—

"Hovv vcell vve haue done it, vve must not be iudges, but referre all to Gods Church and our superiors in the same. to them vve submit our selues, and this, and all other our labours, to be in part or in the vvhole, reformed, corrected, altered, or quite abolished: most humbly desiring pardon, if through our ignorance, temeritie, or other humane infirmite, vve haue any vvhere mistaken the sense of the holy Ghost, further promising, that if hereafter vve espie any of our ovvne errors, or if any other, either frende of good vvill, or aduersarie for desire of reprehension, shal open vnto vs the same: vve vvill not (as Protestants doe) for defense of our estimation, or of pride and contention, by vvranling vvordes vvillfully persist in them, but be most glad to heare of them, and in the next edition or otherwise to correct them: for it is truth that vve seek for, and Gods honour: which being had, either by good intention or by occasion, al is vvell. This vve professe onely, that vve haue done our endeouour vvith praier, much feare and trembling, lest vve should dangerously erre in so sacred, high, and diuine a vvorke: that vve haue done it vvith all faith, diligence, and sinceritie: that vve haue used no partialitie for the disadvantage of our aduersaries, nor no more licence then is sufferable in translating of holy Scriptures: continually keeping our selues as neere as is possible, to our text & to the very vvordes and phrases vvich by long vse are made venerable, though to some prophane or delicate eares they may seeme more hard or barbarous, as the whole style of Scripture doth lightly to such at the beginning: acknowledging with S. Hierom, that in other writings it is ynough to giue in translation, sense for sense, but that in Scriptures, lest vve misse the sense vve must keepe the very vvordes."

The professors of the translators.

They thus invite criticism as to their labours, and the invitation has been very fully responded to. They attacked all previous versions, and in their turn were attacked, both as it regards their text and their notes.* It may, I believe, be said, as an impartial judgment on this version, that the translators were fully competent to execute the task before them, so far as learning and ability could go; but their minds were so imbued with the same feelings which had led but fifty years before, to persecution in England for the word of God, that they desired any thing rather than to give the rendering of the text simply and fairly. Very few passages, however, shew in their rendering a really dishonest perversion; but very many exhibit a desire of expressing the sense obscurely, or at least, in such a way that a common reader may find not a little difficulty in gathering from the words a definite meaning. If we take the whole version, we shall, however, find a very large portion well translated, and truly exhibiting the sense of the Latin Vulgate such as they had it. I say, such as they had it; for although the council of Trent had defined the Latin Vulgate to be the "authentic" version, it remained a considerable question what copy was to be regarded as such.

Criticism invited.

Learning of the translators.

Intentional obscurity.

At the time when the Rhemish version was printed, there had been no decision as to what this "authentic" Latin Vulgate might be. In 1589, Pope Sixtus V. published an edition, which by his bull prefixed, was declared to be what the Tridentine Council sought to establish. This edition was presently suppressed. Romish writers say, that it was in consequence of Pope Sixtus perceiving that it contained errors. But be that as it may, Pope Clement VIII. published his edition of the Vulgate in 1592, which he declared by his prefixed bull to be the only authentic edition of the Latin Vulgate. This has fared better, for this continues to be the standard text adopted and used by the Church of Rome.

The "authentic" Latin Vulgate. Edition of Pope Sixtus V. 1589.

Edition of Pope Clement VIII. 1592.

The Rhemish translators, as may be supposed, do not exactly agree with either the Clementine or the Sixtine edition. Sometimes they have the reading adopted afterwards by the one, sometimes that which is found in the other. This may be said to be a matter of comparatively small importance, so long as they used the best readings which were within their reach: it is, however, thus far of importance, that they give as a conclusive reason for translating from the Latin rather than the Greek, that the Council of Trent had decreed the authenticity of the Latin Vulgate. Now of what avail was this decree, if it could not be definitely said what this authentic copy was?

In the same year (1582) in which this New Testament appeared, Gregory Martin, one of the translators, published an attack upon the hitherto printed English Bibles and Testaments. This was evidently done to make way for this version. Dr. William Fulke, master of Pembroke Hall, Cambridge, published in the following year an ample refutation of the most part of the objections made, shewing very conclusively that the true ground of objection in the mind of Martin was the opposition which the circulation of the Scriptures gave to Romish doctrine.

Gregory Martin's attack on the English versions. 1582. Answered by Fulke, 1583.

* A complete confutation of these arguments, glosses, and annotations, was published in 1617, by Fulke: and a second, in 1618, by Cartwright.

Rom. Cath. version of Old Test., published, 1609-10.

The Roman Catholic translation of the Old Testament, which appears to have been executed on the same principles as that of the New, was not published till the years 1609 and 1610, when it was printed at Douay, in two volumes. The editors of this part of the version, speak of it as having been executed many years before, but that the poor estate of the English Romanists, in their banishment, hindered its publication. They say, that they have revised the version according to the Clementine edition of the Vulgate, that thus it might be fully in accordance with "the authentical Latin."

The Rheinish translation has a considerable value to a Protestant reader; for if he would see what can be done, in order to evade the force of those passages which set forth the Gospel, the great weapon against Rome, it may, of course, be expected here. While the general and substantial accordance of this version with Protestant translations, is a cause for great thankfulness to the overruling providence of God.

Modern editions of this version.

In the modern editions of the Douay Bible and the Rheinish Testament but few changes have been introduced: these are, however, some of them, not improvements.

XVII.

KING JAMES'S TRANSLATION.

THERE were, at the commencement of the reign of James I., two translations of the Bible in common use—that of Geneva and the Bishops'; the latter being what might be termed the then "authorised" version, while the former was the one in daily use among the people. It is not, therefore, surprising that another version, or revision, should have been projected. The following were the actual circumstances which led to the undertaking of a new version,—which has succeeded in supplanting both the one and the other of those which were at that time in use.

Accession of James I.
Mar. 24, 1603.

At the time of the accession of James I. to the throne, March 24, 1603, many of those whose conformity to the Church of England by law established was of an uneasy character, hoped that the accession of a monarch who had been educated like James in Presbyterianism, might lead either to a change in the system of the Anglican Establishment, or else to a permission of non-conformity. Accordingly, a petition running in the name of more than a thousand ministers was presented to the king, in which the "redress of divers abuses in the Church" was earnestly solicited. From the number of ministers in whose names it ran, it was called the "Millenary Petition," although the names actually subscribed are said to have been very far short of a thousand. Their complaints were ranged under four heads; 1st. Things connected with the Church service; 2nd. Church ministers; 3rd. Church living and maintenance; and 4th. Church discipline.

The "Millenary" petition.

The Oxford
answer.

The University of Oxford drew up an answer to this petition, for which a letter of thanks was sent them by that of Cambridge. The king, however, chose to interfere in the matter, and bring it to a public conference. To this end certain delegates of each party received a summons to be at the palace of Hampton Court on the ensuing 12th of January. On the part of the Anglican establishment there were, the archbishop of Canterbury, Whitgift; the bishop of London, Bancroft, and several other prelates and dignitaries. The delegates on the part of the petitioners were, Dr. John Reynolds, and Dr. Thomas Sparke of Oxford, and Mr. Chadderton and Mr. Knewstubs from Cambridge.

Hampton Court conference, Jan.
12, 1604.
Collin.

Dr. Reynolds requests that a new version of the Bible should be made.

This conference led incidentally to the execution of the translation of the Scriptures which is still in use. Dr. Reynolds, who took the lead on the part of the petitioners, made a request to the king on the second day of the conference "for a New Translation of the Bible." The ground upon which this request was made was, that the versions which were extant, did not in all places come up to the force and meaning of the original text. In proof of this, Dr. Reynolds brought forward a few instances; first, that in Gal. iv. 25, the word συστοχέει is rendered in the Bishops' Bible by "bordreth," which is very wide of the mark; next in Psalm cv. 28, the translation says, "they were not obedient," whereas it ought to have been just the contrary; and thirdly, in Psalm cvi. 30, the translation said, "then stood up Phineas and prayed," whereas the last of these words should have been rendered "executed judgment."* It is probable that Dr. Reynolds, in specifying these three instances of mistranslation, did it in order to shew that a

Faults in previous versions.

* The last two of these objections applied to the version of the Psalms in Cranmer's Bible, which is still retained in the Liturgy.

revision of the existing versions was desirable, if the full meaning of the original text were wished to be transfused into the English version.

Little notice appears to have been taken of these specific objections themselves: they had, it was said, been often brought before, and were already answered in print; what the answering of these objections may mean I do not know; for if they be mistranslations they ought to be acknowledged as such; if they had not been such, then they ought to have been preserved when a new version was made.

During the whole of this conference, Bancroft, the bishop of London, (who soon after succeeded Whitgift as archbishop of Canterbury,) had been foremost in the opposition to everything which was proposed by Dr. Reynolds and his fellow-delegates. On this ground he seems to have offered a kind of opposition to the proposal for a new version or recension of the Bible in English: he said, that there would be no end of translating if this were to be done to please every man's humour; the king, however, liked Dr. Reynolds's proposition, and said that he had never seen a good English version of the Bible as yet, though he thought that of all hitherto executed, the Geneva Bible was the worst. He wished the work of translation to be taken up, and that some special pains might be taken for there to be one uniform translation. The method proposed by the king was this;—that the version should be made by some of the most learned men in both the Universities, that it should then be reviewed by the bishops and other of the most learned ecclesiastics, that it should then be laid before the Privy Council, and last of all be ratified by Royal authority, so that in the whole Anglican establishment this translation so made should be used, and no other. Bancroft hinted the undesirableness of any marginal notes being allowed to be appended, to which the king assented, on the ground of his having found in those annexed to the Geneva Bible some that were very partial, untrue, seditious, and savouring too much of dangerous and traitorous conceits.

This assent of the king to the proposal of Dr. Reynolds requires a little explanation: perhaps the judgment of the king, relative to the previously existing English versions, may be regarded by all as very unjust and severe: granted that they were all of them capable of a good deal of emendation in many places, but still to say that none of them was a good translation, was going a great deal too far. In this point, the judgment of the translators employed by the king, differed greatly from that which the king himself had expressed. They say, in their preface, that their object was to make a good version better;—that it was good before, but they sought to improve it, and the like, and in this they clearly spoke the truth. It is to be observed, that the translation of the Bible had become a kind of party question between the thorough conformists and the partial conformists: the latter were considered to prefer and uphold the Geneva version, which was by far the most read in private, while the former were considered to uphold the Bishops' Bible, as being the one authoritatively set forth as being appointed to be read in public service. Thus the proposition of Dr. Reynolds for a new version might be regarded as savouring strongly of his party, while the whole of the king's reply was so directed as to express a very severe though not a deserved censure on the Geneva Bible. The proposal of Dr. Reynolds would, if acceded to, have the effect of rendering the Bishops' Bible obsolete; the king, however, so turns the matter, as to make it appear as though it were the Geneva version of which the suppression was desired, a result which, it is probable, was but little desired by Dr. Reynolds.

The exclusion of marginal notes was, doubtless, a good suggestion: but the remarks made by King James with respect to those annexed to the Geneva version, were very far from just. The notes to which the king is said to have referred were the following:—On Exodus i. 19, where the non-compliance of the Hebrew midwives with the orders of Pharaoh is spoken of, they say, "Their disobedience herein was lawfull, but their dissembling euill." Now, I do not see what objection can be made to this note, the very next verse speaks of the blessing of God being bestowed upon these women, on the very ground of their non-compliance with the king's murderous commands, and the object of the note seems to be to shew, that although they acted rightly, yet they excused themselves to the king in a manner in which they ought not to have done. But if the non-compliance of the midwives was wrong, what would follow? That a king is to be obeyed, even if he command murder to be committed: and further, that this is to be done even when it is the murder of an indefinite number of helpless infants; and yet further, that it is to be done even when it is nothing short of a deliberate attempt to frustrate the declared purpose and counsel of God. I think that even King James would have acknowledged that some non-compliance with the orders of a king were more admissible than all this train of necessary consequences.

The other note to which the king objected, was that on 2 Chron. xv. 16, where the account is given of Asa deposing Maachah, his mother, or grandmother, from being queen, on account of her idolatry. They say, "Herein he shewed that he lacked zeale, for she ought to have died, both by the couenant, as verse

Bancroft opposes the making of a new version.

King James wishes a new version. The plan proposed.

Marginal notes objected to.

The king's censures on previous versions.

The Geneva Bible depreciated for party reasons.

The king's objections to the Geneva notes. Ex. i. 19.

2 Chr. xv. 16.

13, & by the Law of God: but he gave place to foolish pitie, and would also seeme after a sort to satisfie the Lawe." Would king James or any other objector say, that the law of Moses did not command the punishing of idolatry with death; death without pity, and without respect of persons? Or, can it be said that the covenant into which Asa and the people had just entered, did not pledge them to the self-same thing? I really believe, that such objections, however they arose, must have rested upon a basis of prejudice, and not of dispassionate judgment.

It seems, however, that King James thought the Geneva notes to be opposed to that obedience which is due from subjects to their sovereigns: if they had been, they would have been highly reprehensible; but before judgment is given let the facts be proved. "The powers that be are ordained of God, he therefore that resisteth the power resisteth the ordinance of God; and they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation," is the recorded sentence of the Holy Ghost against all who, under what lying pretext soever it be, dare to act in insubordination: but if we would see where the limit of obedience is to be found, we have only to look at the history of the three servants of God whom He preserved in the midst of the fiery furnace (Dan. iii.).

Thus it is very plain, that King James acquiesced in the proposal of Dr. Reynolds upon grounds wholly different from those upon which it was originally suggested; but whatever were the circumstances which led to the execution of the translation which was in consequence made, it cannot be controverted that the plan which was suggested by the king (and with some modifications at length adopted) was admirably devised for the procuring of a version well considered in all its parts. There was, as might have been expected, some little delay before the preliminary arrangements could be brought to bear. Some time probably was needed for the consideration of the fittest scholars to be employed upon the work, and also in the arrangement of the different companies of translators who should work together, and in the allotment of their respective portions of the Bible.

Some progress had been made in the outline of the proceedings before the lapse of many months; for on the 22d of July, 1604, the king wrote to the archbishop of Canterbury (Bancroft*) concerning some provision to be made for those who were to be employed in the proposed work. He states that he had appointed certain learned men, to the number of fifty-four, for the translation of the Bible into English. Of those who were so appointed, some had very little church preferment, some none, and for this cause he directs the archbishop to write to the archbishop of York, and also to the other bishops, commanding them in the king's name, that when any benefice valued in the king's books at twenty pounds or upwards should become void, that instead of presenting any one to supply the vacancy, the king should be informed, in order that some of the learned persons whom he had appointed might be presented. This was to be done by the bishop whether the benefice were in his own gift or in any other patronage. The latter part of the letter chiefly relates to the obtaining of aid from other learned men, besides those who had been named as the four and fifty appointed by the king.

He says:—"Furthermore, we require you to move all our bishops to inform themselves of such learned men within their several dioceses, as having especial skill in the Hebrew and Greek tongues, have taken pains in their private studies of the Scriptures, for the clearing of any obscurities, either in the Hebrew or in the Greek, or touching any difficulties or mistakings in the former English translation, which we have now commanded to be thoroughly viewed and amended; and thereupon to write unto them, earnestly charging them, and signifying our pleasure therein, that they send such their observations, either to Mr. Livelie, our Hebrew reader in Cambridge, or to Dr. Harding, our Hebrew reader in Oxford, or to Dr. Andrewes, dean of Westminster, to be imparted to the rest of their several companies, that so our said intended translation may have the help and furtherance of all our principal learned men within this our kingdom."

It is not known what arrangements were made relative to the selection and appointment of the translators; but it would seem that some part of them were chosen by the University of Cambridge, and approved by the king: it is probable also, that the University of Oxford made a similar nomination. This selection at Cambridge must have taken place previous to the day on which the king wrote the letter already referred to, and in part quoted, namely, July 22, 1604, for on the same day the chancellor of the University of Cambridge, Robert Cecil, earl of Salisbury, wrote to the vice chancellor and heads, mentioning that such an appointment had been made by the king. The order for the translation was stated to be placed in the hands of Livelie, the Hebrew lecturer. The king's commandment was, that if they could remember any

* In some of the proceedings at this time, Bancroft is spoken of as archbishop of Canterbury, in some as bishop of London. The proceedings relative to his translation to the archiepiscopal see were not complete, although he was Archbishop elect.

King James's judgment that the Geneva notes encourage insubordination.

The king's plan for a version excellent.

The king writes to Bancroft, July 22, 1604. Fifty-four translators appointed.

Lewis.

Inquiry to be made for learned men.

Translators nominated by the University.

fit men to join with those already appointed, they should, in the king's name, add such to those who had been previously selected for the work. The king likewise required that the University should give to those employed all the aid that could be afforded:—

“That such as are to be called out of the countrie may be intertayned in such colleges as they shall make choice of, without any charge unto them either for their entrance, their chamber, or their commons, except it happen that any doe make choice to remaine in any of the poorer colleges, that are not well able to heare that charge; and then such order will be taken by the Lord Bishop of London, as that the same shall be defrayed.”

Cecil's letter to the Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge.

On the last day of the same month (July, 1604), Bancroft sent a copy of the king's letter in favour of the translators, to all of those at Cambridge, whose names appear in the list. From this it would appear, that that University had not made any addition to the number originally appointed. The bishop, in his letter, told them, that the king (as Mr. Livelie could inform them), very much approved of the choice. And because the king was very desirous that the work should proceed with as little delay as possible, his pleasure was, that they should, with all possible speed, meet together in the University, and begin the same. They were directed to write to the bishop so soon as they were actually assembled, and had prepared themselves for the work.

Bancroft's letter, July 31, 1604.

The work urged on.

On the same day, the bishop wrote to the vice-chancellor and the heads of the University of Cambridge, earnestly urging them to expedite the work which had been assigned to the translators. They were particularly desired to write to any who might be absent from Cambridge, in order that they might, without any delay, repair thither, and commence their work.

It is probable, that similar letters were sent also to the University of Oxford at the same time; and that, just as the copy of the rules to be observed in the translation, were sent to Cambridge, to Livelie, the king's Hebrew reader, so were they, probably, to Dr. Harding, who held the similar station at Oxford.

Similar letters probably sent to Oxford.

The list of persons actually employed in the work (which will be given after the preliminary proceedings have been detailed), contains only forty-seven names, whereas, the king's letter to the archbishop mentions fifty-four as having been appointed. Some have supposed, that the deficiency was occasioned by the decease of certain who had been named for the work: but this is improbable; because, the number of those who actually met at Cambridge, was exactly the same, and the individuals were the same, as those who were at first proposed; whereas, if there had been any deficiencies through the decease of those appointed, it is very unlikely that the Oxford and Cambridge numbers would have been precisely the same. Others have supposed, that some who were appointed at first, were afterwards withdrawn; and that thus the numbers were reduced to forty-seven. But this, likewise, is improbable; for the learned Hugh Broughton, who has been supposed to have been thus excluded from having a part in the execution of this version, was clearly not one of the persons named; for on the 30th of August, 1604, the bishop of London sent to Cambridge, for the perusal of Livelie, and the rest of the translators there, “a certain learned epistle of Mr. Broughton's:” this, it can hardly be supposed, he would have done, had Broughton himself been proposed as a translator. Lewis suggests another way of accounting for the discrepancy, which, however, is equally open to objection. A kind of supplementary rule directed, that three or four of the most learned and grave divines of each University, should be assigned as having an oversight of the version; especially to see that the rules prescribed were attended to. He supposes, that these three or four may make up the deficiency; but, however, it is to be observed, that this rule was not communicated until August 30, 1604; whereas, the number of translators is spoken of by the king, as having been completed on the 22nd of July: and, farther, the fifty-four persons are distinctly said to be appointed for the purpose of executing the translation; whereas, the three or four of each University are distinctly excluded from that work.

Forty-seven names in the list of those actually engaged; Fifty-four mentioned in the king's letter.

Hugh Broughton not named.

Who then were the seven whose names do not appear in the list? It is to be remembered, that at the Hampton Court conference the method of translating proposed by the king was, that the version should be made by the most learned of the Universities, and then pass the examination of certain of the Bishops. Now, in the list of persons appointed, although several of them were made bishops before the work was completed, yet none of them were so at the time of their appointment; and thus the plan would have been incomplete (according to the king's original draught), had not certain prelates been named as having the work in some manner under their control. I do not doubt but that the number needed to make up the deficiency is to be found in the fact of certain bishops having been especially named to this work; who these were, it may be more difficult to say: but Dr. Bancroft, the archbishop of Canterbury, has been said to have made some alterations in the version. This (if true) he would hardly have done, had he not been in some manner appointed to an oversight of it; and (if incorrect) it would hardly have been said, if he had not been connected with the work. It is evident, from the letters which were written by him (as bishop of London), that he had some important share in the conducting of the preliminary arrangements for the commencement of the work; so that I think it is not too much to conclude that he was one of the prelates so appointed. Bilson, bishop of Winchester, was one of those who gave the work its final revision; so that it may be deemed probable that he too was one appointed to the work.

Who were the seven not in the list?

Certain bishops appointed to superintend the work.

Abp. Bancroft connected with the version.

The translators were, as has been said, some of them appointed by the University of Cambridge, some, in all probability, by that of Oxford, in a similar manner; while, besides these, there were several who were to meet at Westminster: these may have been appointed directly by the king. The translators meeting at each of these three places, were severally divided into two companies, so that there were in all six companies of translators. The instructions for their proceedings were conveyed for their information to the several places at which they were to meet, about the month of July, 1604. I give the instructions themselves, together with any elucidatory remarks which may appear needful.

“(1.) The Bible ordinarily read in the church, commonly called the ‘Bishops’ Bible,’ to receive as few alterations as may be. And to pass throughout, unless the originals plainly call for an amendment.” It was a good plan to take a previously existing version, and make it, as much as might be, the material of the new recension. The Bishops’ Bible was apparently specified as the one which was to be used for this purpose, because else, some of the translators might have been disposed to have taken the more popular Geneva translation as their basis.

“(2.) The names of the prophets and the holy writers, with the other names in the text, to be kept as near as may be, according as they are vulgarly used.” There was good sense in this rule; for it makes extremely little difference what the precise form may be in which any Hebrew or Greek name is transused into English; and, indeed, we have good authority for acting on such a rule as this, from the manner in which Old Testament names are found written in the New. We read those names which were known and familiar in their accustomed forms, while those which were altogether still unaturalized, are taken in the forms in which they had been written in Greek letters by the Septuagint translators. We do not find the inspired writers busying themselves about writing Hebrew proper names in precisely equivalent Greek characters. Thus, in English, Hezekiah serves for all practical purposes, as well as “Yehkizkiyahû,” and so on of the rest. However, it would have been well if the translators had been admonished to give the same person the same name, whether found in Hebrew or in Greek; for instance, to have used the name Hosea in the New Testament, instead of Osee; and likewise to translate the same proper name uniformly in the same manner; for instance, not to call the same person sometimes Luke, and sometimes Lucas.

“(3.) The old ecclesiastical words to be kept, as the word Church not to be rendered Congregation.” It would have been desirable if some more explicit statement had been made as to what words are to be regarded as “ecclesiastical.” For instance, ἐπίσκοπος is rendered in Acts xx. by “overseer” (though the vulgate Latin takes it literally), and in other places by “bishops.” Probably the want of sufficient definitiveness prevented the full observance of this rule.

“(4.) When any word hath divers significations, that to be kept which hath been most commonly used by the most eminent Fathers, being agreeable to the propriety of the place, and the analogy of faith.” This may perhaps be regarded, as well as the preceding, as a check against the introduction of what might be deemed Puritanism: but, however intended, I suppose that no right-minded Christian (whether called Episcopalian or Puritan), could object to words being used in the same sense in which they are taken by the writers called “Fathers,” with the defined limitation above expressed.

“(5.) The division of the chapters to be altered either not at all, or as little as may be, if necessity so require.”

“(6.) No marginal notes at all to be affixed, but only for the explanation of the Hebrew or Greek words, which cannot, without some circumlocution, so briefly and fitly be expressed in the text.” This regulation is one of great importance; because its tendency was to cause the translators to do what they could to give, in the text, the precise meaning of the original. A loose translation may be aided by an expository note; but if the original is to be transused into another tongue, without any such appendage, it can only be achieved by a version as close as may be made. One great evil of notes, in a commonly circulated version of the Scriptures, is this, that they lead the thoughts of a reader away from the text which the Spirit of God has given forth, to the thoughts and judgments of men (often perhaps very true, but still not authoritative) about that very text.

“(7.) Such quotations of places to be marginally set down, as shall serve for the fit reference of one Scripture to another.”

Bp. Bilson a reviser.

Some of the translators at Westminster. Six companies in all.

Instructions. Bishops' Bible to be the basis.

Proper names to be unchanged.

Ecclesiastical words to be retained.

Doubtful words according to the "Fathers."

Division of chapters.

No marginal notes.

Marginal references.

The preceding seven rules are the general directions for proceeding in the work; the rest contain the precise directions for its execution.

“(8) Every particular man of each company to take the same chapter or chapters; and having translated or amended them severally by himself, where he thinks good, all to meet together, to confer what they have done, and agree for their part what shall stand.” Thus in each company there would be as many separate revisions made, as there were individuals in the company (that is, from seven to ten); these various revisions would then be compared together, and from the whole they would digest one revised or re-translated copy of the particular portion.

Manner of proceeding with the execution of the translation.

“(9) As any one company hath dispatched any one book in this manner, they shall send it to the rest, to be considered of seriously and judiciously; for his Majesty is very careful in this point.

“(10) If any company, upon the review of the book so sent, shall doubt or differ upon any places, to send them word thereof, to note the places, and therewithal to send their reasons; to which, if they consent not, the difference to be compounded at the general meeting, which is to be of the chief persons of each company, at the end of the work.”

These rules would have to be carried into execution thus:—Each company, when they had made their version of a book, would have to send a transcript of it to each of the other five companies, for their judgments and criticism; so that every portion of the Bible would pass through the hands of the whole body of translators. Every part of the Bible would thus have been considered: first, by each of the translators in the company to which it was assigned, separately; secondly, by the whole of that company unitedly; thirdly, by the other five companies separately; and fourthly, by the committee of revision, who are hinted at in the close of the tenth rule. As the number of companies was six, and the numbers in each company varied from seven to ten, it follows that every several part would be examined at the least fourteen times distinctly; many parts fifteen times, and some seventeen. These rules were framed, in this part, with remarkable judgment and sagacity.

All the companies to revise each part.

Every part examined fourteen times at least.

“(11) When any place of special obscurity is doubted of, letters to be directed by authority, to send to any learned in the land for his judgment in such a place.

“(12) Letters to be sent from every bishop to the rest of his clergy, admonishing them of this translation in hand, and to move and charge as many as being skilful in the tongues have taken pains in that kind, to send their particular observations to the company, either at Westminster, Cambridge, or Oxford, according as it was directed before in the king's letter to the archbishop.” This regulation explains why Bancroft communicated the king's letter to all of those who had been appointed at Cambridge as translators, the letter itself containing some things which related to the ordering of the version itself.

Inquiry to be made for learned men.

“(13.) The directors in each company to be the deans of Westminster and Chester for the Westminster company, and the king's professors in Hebrew and Greek in the two Universities.

The directors in the companies.

“(14.) These translations to be used, when they agree better with the text than the Bishops' Bible, viz. Tyndale's, Coverdale's, Matthew's, Whitchurch's, Geneva.” In this list “Matthew's Bible” might quite as well have been omitted, as containing simply, in part the translation of Tyndale, in part that of Coverdale. “Whitchurch's Bible” evidently means the Bible commonly known as Cramer's, or the Great Bible, of which Whitchurch was, in conjunction with Grafton, the printer. This regulation was a good one for making the newly revised translation as little as possible with the character of novelty stamped upon it. It is likely that in many cases, when they deserted the version of the Bishops' Bible, they might find some one or other of the four above-named versions expressing the sense which they wanted to give.

Early English versions to be used.

These fourteen were the whole of the original rules as sent to Livell, at Cambridge; similar ones being, of course, also transmitted to Oxford and Westminster. Questions, however, seem to have arisen at Cambridge on two points connected with the third and fourth of the above regulations. What words are to be deemed old “ecclesiastical,” and as such to be retained? How should it be determined in what sense words were used by the most eminent fathers, and when should such a sense be regarded as agreeable to the propriety of the place and the analogy of faith? It is evident that queries of this kind did actually arise, for Bancroft wrote a letter on the 30th of August, 1604, to Dr. Cowell, vice-chancellor of the University of Cambridge, in which he answers the difficulty. He states that it was the king's pleasure, that besides the learned persons employed for the Hebrew and Greek, there should be three or four of the most eminent and grave divines of the University assigned by the vice-chancellor upon conference with the rest of the heads, to be overseers of the translations, as well Hebrew as Greek, for the better observing of the rules appointed by the king; and especially concerning the third and fourth rule. The bishop further directed the vice-chancellor to inform him who the persons appointed for this part of the work were, when they should have been agreed on. It does not appear whether any such appointments were actually made, or how the difficulties which the third and fourth rules might occasion were actually met.

Questions with regard to the third and fourth rules.

Bancroft's letter to the Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge, Aug. 30, 1604.

Overseers of the translation to be appointed.

The bishop mentioned a letter of Hugh Broughton's, which was, he says, brought to him at that very time: he sends a copy of it to Cambridge, in order that Livelie and the rest of the translators there might have the perusal of it, if they had not seen it before. This letter was doubtless one of those which this learned but untoward man had written relative to the manner in which a translation of the Bible should be undertaken and executed.

On the 31st of July, Bancroft had written to the other bishops, in pursuance of the king's command, with regard to a provision being made for those of the translators who possessed but little, or else no church preferment: he explains the king's meaning to be, that in each diocese two livings should be reserved, one in the presentation of the bishop himself, and another belonging to a lay-patron.

It was, however, necessary to raise money for the current expenses of the work. The king spoke in his letter about another point to be by the bishops imparted to the deans: this Bancroft also communicated to the bishops. On the same day as his letter just mentioned, he wrote to them a distinct letter on this point, which was, he said, reserved for his relation: it was simply this, that in order to meet the expenses, the king requested that the bishops and the deans and chapters would raise a contribution. Bancroft suggested that a thousand marks would be a sufficient sum to meet the whole charges, and thus he left it to the several bishops and deans to judge what their respective proportions ought to be. Bancroft's letters contained the following clause:—"I must requier yow, in his Majesty's name, accordinge to his good pleasure in that behalfe, that, as soon as possibly yow can, yow send me word what shall be expected from yow and your said Deane and Chapter. For I am to acquainte his Majestie with every man's liberality towards this most golly worke."

And now, after all things were so far arranged, a considerable delay took place before the work was actually commenced. No sufficient or satisfactory reason for this detention has, I think, been assigned. The death of Livelie, which took place in the year subsequent to the above proceedings, has been supposed to have been one reason; this may be quite true as it regards Cambridge, but how need this have affected the other companies of translators? Besides, if this had been the cause of detention, how was it that they had not begun their labour during the several months which elapsed after the appointment was made before Livelie's death took place? To me, it seems not improbable, that the delay was in some measure connected with the difficulty which the king found in raising the sum needed for the purpose, and thus, until something else could be devised, the matter was obliged to rest.

It might also be a difficult thing to get together the various translators, whose abodes were in such different parts; and this would be especially difficult, if the needful aid were not provided, in order to defray their expenses. At length, however, the work commenced in the early part of the year 1607. The companies who met at Oxford and Cambridge being provided for in several of the colleges, but receiving no farther compensation for their labours. Those who met at Westminster, probably provided for themselves, which the most part of them were well able to do.

In giving the list of the translators (as preserved by Fuller), together with the respective portions of the Bible which were appropriated to the several companies, it will be well briefly to state who and what they respectively were. It is a matter of peculiar interest to trace out by what means the Lord was pleased to work, in first causing the printed Scriptures to be published in English, and just so it ought to be of no small interest to know to whose labours we are indebted for the translation which has now continued as that daily used for two hundred and thirty years wherever the English language is spoken.

The First Company of Translators met at WESTMINSTER: they were ten in number; and the portion which was assigned them was the Pentateuch, and the historical books to the Kings, inclusive.

They consisted of the following persons:—

1st. DR. LAUNCELOT ANDREWS, who presided in this company, and who was, at the time of his having been appointed to the work of translation, dean of Westminster.

He was born in the year 1565, in London; he went to Pembroke Hall, Cambridge, having received one of the then newly founded Greek fellowships at that house. After the erection of Jesus College, he became one of the first fellows upon that foundation; subsequently he became one of the fellows of Pembroke Hall, of which, on the death of Dr. Fulke, he was afterwards master. Previously to this, however, his lectures at his college had attracted considerable attention. He became subsequently particularly known as a preacher. After having received preferment in various ways, he became a prebendary of Westminster, when Bancroft was made bishop of London. He afterwards succeeded Dr. Gabriel Goodman (one of the translators of the "Bishops' Bible") as dean of Westminster. This was his position

A copy of
H. Broughton's letter sent to Cambridge.

Bancroft writes to the bishops,
July 31, 1604.

Money to be raised for the expenses of the work.

1000 marks supposed to be sufficient.

A considerable delay.

Livelie's death,
1605.

The translators not easily brought together.
Commencement of the work, 1607.

List of the translators.

The First Company ten, at Westminster.

Genesis to Kings, inclusive,
Bp. Andrews.

Dean of Westminster.

when appointed president of the first company of translators. Before, however, the work itself commenced, he was made bishop of Chichester (consecrated Nov. 3, 1605). From this see he was translated to that of Ely, Sep. 22, 1609; this was before the translation was completed. He was made bishop of Winchester, February 18, 1618. He died, September 25, 1626, in the seventy-first year of his age, leaving behind a high reputation for learning, no less than for godliness. His labour as presiding over the translation of so large a portion of the Old Testament, must have been considerable.

Bp. of Chichester.
Of Ely.
Of Winchester.

2nd. DR. JOHN OVERALL. He was born in 1559; became a fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge; and in 1596 he was appointed Regius professor of Divinity in that university. In 1601, he succeeded Dr. Alexander Nowell, as dean of St. Paul's. This was the station which he held when appointed one of the translators. In April, 1614, he was made bishop of Lichfield and Coventry; and in 1618, he was translated to the see of Norwich. He died May 12, 1619.

Bp. Overall
dean of St.
Paul's, Bp. of Lichfield, Coventry, and of Norwich.

3rd. DR. ADRIAN DE SARAVIA. This translator was a learned foreigner, of Spanish extraction, but born at Artois, in the year 1531. In 1582, he was invited to become professor of divinity at Leyden; where he was also preacher in the French church. He continued there about five years, and then removed to Jersey; where he kept a school, and preached in French. He subsequently removed to Southampton, where he also became a schoolmaster. He was treated with much favour by Archbishop Whitgift; and was successively appointed a prebendary of Gloucester, Canterbury, and Westminster. He was reinvented to Leyden after he had settled in England, with which request he did not incline to comply. He died, aged eighty-two, in 1613; two years after the publication of King James's translation of the Bible. It is probable that he was appointed to this work, rather on account of his great abilities as a linguist, than as being peculiarly qualified to translate critically into the English language.

Dr. Saravia.

Prebendary of Gloucester, &c.

4th. DR. RICHARD CLARKE, vicar of Mynstre and Monkton, in Thanet, and one of the six preachers, Canterbury.

Dr. Clarke.

5th. DR. JOHN LAIFIELD, rector of St. Clement Danes, fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge. "Being skilled in architecture, his judgment was much relied on for the fabric of the tabernacle and temple."

Dr. Laifield.

6th. DR. LEIGH, archdeacon of Middlesex, parson of Allhallows, Barking.

Dr. Leigh.

7th. MASTER BURGLEY. [Lewis adds "Stretford."]

Burgley.

8th. MR. KING. [Lewis adds "Sussex."]

King.

9th. MR. THOMSON. [Lewis adds "Clare."]

Thomson.

10th. WILHELM BEDWELL, of St. John's College, Cambridge. He was appointed vicar of Tottenham 1607, where he died, May 5, 1632. He appears to have been an eminent oriental scholar.

Bedwell.

The Second Company of Translators assembled at CAMBRIDGE, having for their portion of the translation, from the commencement of the Chronicles to the end of the Canticles, inclusive.

Second company of eight at Cambridge.
Chron. to Cant. inclusive.

Those who belonged to this company were the following persons:—

1st. EDWARD LIVELIE; who has been already mentioned as the Regius professor of Hebrew, as such, he was nominated the president of this company; but he died before the work was actually commenced. This is supposed to have occasioned a considerable delay.

Livelie.

2nd. DR. JOHN RICHARDSON, fellow of Emanuel College, then master of Peterhouse, and, lastly, master of Trinity College.

Dr. Richardson.

3rd. DR. LAURENCE CHADERTON. He was one of the Cambridge delegates at the conference at Hampton Court; and, as such, has been already mentioned, together with Dr. Reynolds. In his early life, he suffered much from the unkind treatment of his parents, in consequence of his embracing the reformed doctrines. He studied at Cambridge; where he became a fellow of Christ's College, in 1567. When Emanuel College was refounded, in 1584, he was appointed the first master. In the latter part of his life, when Arminianism was spreading in England, he so much feared, lest he might have a successor who did not hold the doctrines of grace, that he resigned in favour of one who held the same doctrine as himself. However, he not only survived this successor, but lived to see two other masters of the college. He died in November, 1640, aged ninety-four.

Dr. Chaderton.

4th. FRANCIS DILLINGHAM, "fellow of Christ-College, beneficed at —, in Bedfordshire, where he died."

Dillingham.

5th. MR. ANDREWS, afterwards D.D., brother to the bishop of Winchester, and master of Jesus-College.

Dr. Andrews.

6th. THOMAS HARRISON, vice-master of Trinity College.

Harrison.

7th. ROBERT SPALDING, fellow of St. John's. He succeeded Livelie, as Regius professor of Hebrew.

Spalding.

8th. ANDREW BING, fellow of Peterhouse. He succeeded Spalding in his professorship.

Bing.

The Third Company of Translators met at OXFORD, their portion being the remainder of the Old Testament, namely, from Isaiah to Malachi, inclusive. This company consisted of the following individuals:—

The Third Company of Seven at Oxford.
Isaiah to Malachi
inclusive.

1st. DR. JOHN HARDING, president of Magdalen College, the Regius professor of Hebrew. He presided in this company.

Dr. Harding.

- Dr. Reynolds. 2nd. Dr. JOHN REYNOLDS, who has been already mentioned as one of the delegates at the Hampton Court Conference; at whose suggestion, indeed, this translation itself (as has been already said) was undertaken. This eminent scholar was born at Pinhoe, near Exeter, about the year 1549; he studied at Corpus Christi College, Oxford, of which, in 1598, he became president. In the reign of Queen Elizabeth, he refused to be promoted to a bishopric; probably objecting then to many of those things which were afterwards discussed in the conference at Hampton Court. He did not live long after the work of translation was commenced, dying on the 21st of May, 1607. Had he lived to continue the work, it is probable, that from his extraordinary learning, his aid would have been peculiarly valuable to his coadjutors.
- Dr. Holland. 3rd. Dr. THOMAS HOLLAND, who was for many years rector of Exeter College, and stood high as a scholar. He is particularly mentioned for the part which he took in the labour of this translation; for which he was qualified, not merely by his extensive learning, but also by his knowledge of Scripture. He died, March 17th, 1612, a few months after the completion and publication of the version itself.
- Dr. Kilbye. 4th. Dr. RICHARD KILBYE, rector of Lincoln College; he was eminent as a Hebrew Scholar, and became Regius professor in the University of Oxford. He died in 1620, aged about sixty years.
- Bp. Smith. 5th. Dr. MILES SMITH. He was, on the whole, regarded as the person who had the chief hand in the execution of this version; he was very learned, both as a classical and as an oriental scholar. He was made, in 1612 (Sept. 20th), Bp. of Gloucester. This see was conferred upon him for the indefatigable pains which he had taken in the execution and final revision of the translation, to which he wrote the preface. He died in November, 1624. In doctrine he strenuously opposed Laud, during the time when the latter was dean of Gloucester.
- Dr. Brett. 6th. RICHARD BRETT, B.D. This translator was for some time fellow of Lincoln College. He became rector of Quainton, near Aylesbury, in or about the year 1595. He died, April 15th, 1637, aged seventy.
- Faireclowe. 7th. "MR. FAIRECLOWE." This must, I think, have been Daniel Fairclough (otherwise called Featley), who was afterwards rector of Northill, in Cornwall. He died in 1645, aged sixty-three. He was the author of many works.
- Fourth Company of Eight at Oxford.
Gospels, Acts, Rev.
Bp. Ravis.
Of Gloucester.
Of London.
- A Fourth Company who met at OXFORD, had assigned to them, for their portion, the four Gospels, the Acts of the Apostles, and the Revelations.
This company consisted of eight persons:—
1st. Dr. THOMAS RAVIS, the president of this company. He was, at the time of his appointment as a translator, dean of Christ Church. On March 19th, 1605, he was made bishop of Gloucester; from whence he was translated to London, June 2nd, 1607, but a little while after the labour of this translation of the Bible had commenced. He died, December 14th, 1609, before the work was completed.
- Abp. Abbott.
Bp. of Lichfield.
Of London.
Abp. of Canterbury.
- 2nd. Dr. GEORGE ABBOT. He was, at the time of his appointment, dean of Winchester, and master of University College. He was made bishop of Lichfield and Coventry in 1609 (December 3). In February, 1610, he was translated to the see of London, vacant by the death of Dr. Ravis; and, in the following year (April 9), he was made archbishop of Canterbury. He died in 1633, aged 71. In doctrine, he was a striking contrast to his successor, Archbishop Laud.
- Dr. Eedes. 3rd. Dr. RICHARD EEDES. He was at this time dean of Worcester; but although appointed to this part of the translation he did not live until it was actually commenced. He died, November 19, 1604.
- Bp. Tomson.
Of Gloucester.
- 4th. Dr. GILES TOMSON, dean of Windsor; bishop of Gloucester, June 9, 1611; died June 14, 1612, aged fifty-nine.
- Savile. 5th. "MR. SAVILE;" this may perhaps be Sir Henry Savile, knighted in the latter part of 1604. If not, I do not know who it can have been.
- Dr. Peryn. 6th. "DR. PERYN." This was, I conceive, Dr. John Perin, Regius Greek Professor: he was of St. John's College. He died May 9, 1615.
- Dr. Ravens. 7th. "DR. RAVENS." This must have been Ralph Ravens, D.D., Jan. 20, 1596; afterwards rector of Eystan Magna. He died in 1616.
- Dr. Harmer. 8th. Dr. JOHN HARMER; he was some time Regius Greek professor, chief master of Winchester School for nine years, and warden of the college there for seventeen years. He died October 11, 1613.
- Fifth Company of Seven at Westminster.
The Epistles.
- A Fifth Company of Translators met at WESTMINSTER, whose portion of the work was the whole of the Epistles of the New Testament.
This company consisted of the following persons:—
1st. Dr. WILLIAM BARLOWE, then dean of Chester; before the translation was commenced, he was made bishop of Rochester, 1605; he subsequently became bishop of Lincoln.
- 2nd. "DR. HUTCHINSON."
3rd. "DR. SPENCER."
- 4th. "MR. FENTON."
5th. "MR. RABBET."
- 6th. "MR. SANDERSON."
7th. "MR. DAKINS."

The Sixth Company of Translators met at CAMBRIDGE. They had the Apocrypha for their portion; the whole of the Canonical Scripture having been distributed to the other companies. This body of translators, however, had as much to do as any of the others, in revising those portions which when completed by any one company, were sent to the rest for revision.

Sixth company of seven at Cambridge. The Apocrypha.

In this company of translators there were the following individuals:—

1st. DR. JOHN DUPOURT, master of Jesus College, and prebendary of Ely.

Dr. Duport.

2nd. DR. BRAINTHWAITTE, fellow of Emanuel, then master of Gonvil and Caius College."

Dr. Braintwhaitte.

3rd. DR. JEREMIAH RATCLIFFE, one of the senior fellows of Trinity College.

Dr. Ratcliffe.

4th. DR. SAMUEL WARD, then of Emanuel College. He afterwards became master of Sidney College, and Lady Margaret professor of divinity. In 1618, he was one of the English delegates to the Synod of Dort.

Dr. Ward.

5th. ANDREW DOWNES, fellow of St. John's College, and Regius Greek professor.

Downes.

6th. JOHN BOYS, fellow of St. John's Collage, prebendary of Ely, rector of Boxworth, near Cambridge. This was one of the most learned and laborious of all the body of translators. It is difficult to say whether he was more distinguished for his knowledge of Greek or of Hebrew. After the portion which was assigned to him was completed, he acceded to the earnest request that was made to him to undertake another; this must have been the portion from the Chronicles to Canticles inclusive, which had been assigned to the other company who met at Cambridge. It is probable that the loss of Livelie's assistance was much felt; and they were glad to call in the aid of so distinguished a scholar as Boys. He appears to have been regarded as the principal Hebraist in that company whom he thus joined; although the then Hebrew professor, as well as his successor, belonged to it. This may be inferred from the fact, that he and Andrew Downes, the Regius professor of Greek, were the two who were delegated from Cambridge to the kind of committee of revision, which met in London.

Boys.

7th. DR. WARD, of King's College, prebendary of Chichester, rector of Bishop-Waltham, in Hampshire.

Dr. Ward.

These are the forty-seven men to whose hands the task was assigned of preparing a new translation of the Bible. It will be seen that this list contains the names of many, who were eminent no less as scholars than as Christians; while it is also probable that those of whom but little is known, were men of very competent learning. Two persons are omitted in this list, who, although of singular eminence as Hebrew scholars, were not appointed to this service, Hugh Broughton, and William Bedell. The former was probably omitted on account of his overbearing spirit and temper: the latter was scarcely known in England till about the year 1613, although in other countries he was famed as an Oriental scholar: he subsequently became bishop of Kilmore.

Broughton and Bedell not employed.

The manner in which the translators proceeded has been already described: according to this system of management, each company formed a copy of the whole Bible, with the version revised. For convenience' sake, as it would seem, the translators at each of the three places met respectively together, and digested their corrections: this reduced the number of copies to three, and then it remained for one corrected Bible to be framed out of them. It must have been about the beginning of the year 1610, that they had proceeded thus far in their labour.

Three revised copies of the Bible.

For the completion of the work, two persons were dispatched from each place. The delegates from Cambridge, were John Boys and Andrew Downes, who went to London; where they were joined by the two delegates from Westminster, and the two from Oxford. These met daily at Stationers' Hall, for about three quarters of a year; during this part of their work they received, each of them, from the Stationers' Company, thirty pounds a week, although before they had received nothing.

Six delegates form a Committee of Revision.

Selden says that the translators, in one part of their work, met together and read what had been done; each one of them having a Bible in some language in his hand: if any thing struck any of them as requiring alteration, he spoke, otherwise they read on. It is probable that this was when one company received some book of the Scripture from another, that this was done: it seems to have been a very good method of observing variations in rendering. This may perhaps have belonged to some other stage of the proceedings; I therefore mention it in this place.

Selden's account of the revision.

At the Synod of Dort in 1618, when a new Dutch translation of the Scriptures was proposed (November 20) the English delegates who were present gave an account of the manner in which the authorized English version had been made. Their account states that, out of the whole number to whom the work was committed, twelve select men met together to review the version which had been prepared. This is not to be questioned; for, to say nothing of the notoriety of events which had occurred but seven years before, one of the English delegates, namely, Dr. Samuel Ward, was one of those who had been engaged in the work. Thus, in the committee of revision, there were six persons besides the six delegates; who those were cannot be positively stated; but it appears probable that they were six bishops to whom the task was assigned by the King. This accords with what has been before said relative to the number of the translators.

Account of the version given at the Synod of Dort.

Six revisers besides the delegates.

Hp. Bilson one of them. He and Hp. Smith finally revise the version.

One of these six bishops was, I suppose, Dr. Bilson, of Winchester, who, with one of the Oxford translators, Dr. Miles Smith (soon afterwards bishop of Gloucester), gave the version a final revision. In doing this they prefixed the summaries of contents to the several chapters, and then Dr. Smith wrote the preface which was appended to this Bible when first printed, and which is in some editions still retained.

The Bible published 1611.

This Bible was published in London in 1611, in a large black letter folio, with the following title:—

The dedication to King James.

THE
H O L Y
B I B L E
Containing the Old Testament, and the New:

¶ Newly translated out of the Original Tongues: and with the former Translations diligently compared and revised by his Maiesties speciall Com-mandement.

¶ Appointed to be read in Churches.

¶ IMPRINTED
at London by Robert Barker, Printer to the Kings most excellent Maiestie.

ANNO DOM. 1611.

The translator's preface.

The dedication of the translators to King James the First is still prefixed to almost all the editions of this version, so that any reference to it would be almost superfluous. It is couched in a strain sufficiently adulatory for a court like that of King James; while, at the same time, the recognition of the hand of God, and the blessings coming from Him, are equally unlike what is found in modern times. Mere foolish adulation may be well dispensed with; but how rarely in later times have those who have addressed monarchs, rejoiced in the "preaching of God's sacred word," as being "that inestimable treasure which excelleth all the riches of the earth!"

The Scripture to be circulated in vernacular tongues.

The preface of the translators to the reader, which is of some length, is not often now printed with the Bible. In it Dr. Miles Smith, in the name of his colleagues, brings before the reader a great variety of topics connected with the translations of the Scripture which had been made in former times, demonstrating that it is not a new fancy of any that the Scriptures ought to be diffused in the vernacular tongues. One argument used on this point is good and simple; amongst the Jews, when God gave a revelation of his will, He gave it in Hebrew, the language of the people; had the Scripture been intended by Him not to be circulated amongst men at large, surely He would at first have veiled it in a language not commonly known by the nation to whom it was given.

A new version desirable.

They speak of various versions which had been made both in early and in then recent times; after which they defend what had been by some opposed, namely, that a new version or revision was a desirable work. These objectors appear to have been chiefly Romanists, who were only too glad to find something against which to cavil with regard to the translation of the Scriptures. The objections are stated thus:—"Was their translation good before? Why do they now mend it? Was it not good? Why then was it obtruded upon the people?" The reply made to such objections is this:—"We do not deny; nay, we affirm and avow, that the very meaneest translation of the Bible in English, set forth by men of our profession . . . containeth the word of God, nay, is the word of God." They then speak of the substantial correctness of any version not being any reason for abstaining from seeking to make it exact in every respect.

Objectors answered.

Another class of objectors to whom they reply, consisted of "certain brethren" who were, it seems, scandalized by a new version having been long in hand, asking why such a thing should be necessary? and whether the church had been deceived through all the time of the Reformation as to what the Scripture is? To these they reply, by speaking in terms of high commendation of all who had preceded them in their work, in the reign of Henry VIII. or since; while they speak of their own work as having consisted in the perusal of translations already made. In this reply, they refer to the objections of the Puritans and the Hampton Court conference, in consequence of which this version had been made.

Other objections answered.

After discoursing at some length upon these topics, they at last speak of their own labours:—

The labours of the translators.

"We never thought from the beginning, that we should need to make a new Translation, nor yet to make of a bad one a good one, . . . but to make a good one better, or out of many good ones, one principal good one, not justly to be excepted against; that hath been our endeavour, that our mark. To that purpose there were many chosen, that were greater in other men's eyes than in their own, and that sought the truth rather than their own praise. . . . And in what sort did these assemble? In the trust of their own knowledge, or of their sharpness of wit, or deepness of judgment, as it were in an arm of flesh? At no hand. They trusted in him that hath the key of David, opening and no man shutting; they prayed to the Lord the Father of our Lord, to the effect that S. Augustine did; O let thy Scriptures be my pure delight, let me not be deceived in them, neither let me deceive by them. In this confidence, and with this devotion did they assemble together; not too many, lest one should trouble another; and yet many, lest many things haply might escape them. If you ask what they had before them, truly it was the Hebrew text of the Old Testament, the Greek of the New. . . . These tongues therefore the Scriptures we say in those tongues, we set before us to translate, being the tongues wherein God was pleased to speak to his Church by his Prophets and Apostles. Neither did we run over the work with that posting haste that the Septuagint did, if that be true which is reported of them, that they finished it in seventy-two days; neither were we barred or hindered from going over it again, having once done it, . . . neither, to be short, were we the first that fell in hand with translating the Scripture into English, and consequently destitute of former helps. . . . None of these things: the work hath not been huddled up in seventy-two days, but hath cost the workmen, as light as it seemeth, the pains of twice seven times seventy-two days and more: . . . Neither did we think much to consult the Translators or Commentators, Chaldee, Hebrew, Syrian, Greek, or Latin; no, nor the Spanish, French, Italian, or Dutch; neither did we disdain to revise that which we had done, and to bring back to the anvil that which we had hammered: but having and using as great helps as were needful, and fearing no reproach for slowness, nor coveting praise for expedition, we have at the length, through the good hand of the Lord upon us, brought the work to that pass that you see."

The length of time which is thus intimated as having been occupied in this version, is about three years; The work three years in hand. it refers, probably, to all that was done previous to the three copies of the Bible being put into the hands of the committee for revision at Stationer's Hall. This revision lasted three quarters of a year more.

After this, they speak of the reasons which induced them to put sometimes another version in the margin than that which they let stand in the text. They assign as the reason, that they thought it not well to dogmatize with regard to passages of which the rendering, whether from the words occurring but rarely, or from the construction being peculiar, were in some measure doubtful. The marginal renderings explained.

They next speak of the variety of phraseology which they have used in translating, not having tied themselves down to rendering any one Greek or Hebrew word constantly by the same English term, even when the sense is identical. They seem, in fact, to have been fond of using synonyms: indeed they could hardly avoid it; for how could the three different companies to whom the Old Testament was assigned, without some previous concert, know what particular word to take to represent the same in Hebrew? Some of the variations are evidently to be accounted for in this manner, while others seem simply to have arisen from a love of synonyms. This was, I think, a mistake in judgment: it was one, however, which Coverdale had made before them; but a mistake it was, for how could an unlearned person be supposed to apprehend that one and the same thing is meant when the word varies? Would not such a one rather suppose, that if the word is varied there is at least some shade of variation in the meaning also? It is not with unkindly feelings that I mention this as being a flaw in our version. It was not occasioned by the incompetency of the translators, nor by their negligence, but simply from the judgment which they formed with regard to minor points in translating, and from the separation of the companies. Variations in phraseology. Synonyms to be avoided.

Before concluding the preface, they state how they have sought to steer clear between Puritanism and Popery. The former would have sought to change what were then termed ecclesiastical words, such (they say) as Baptism into Washing, Church into Congregation; the latter sought (they say) by an affected obscurity to hinder the true meaning of the Scripture from appearing. Perhaps the former of these would have seemed too much like innovation for the mere sake of it; but still it is to be observed, that the early English printed versions used Congregation as the representative of ἐκκλησία, and thus the introduction of the word Church into printed Bibles and New Testament, had been an innovation. The great thing, after all is, that all such words should be so rendered as to give the most intelligible meaning in the language of the version. Popery and Puritanism avoided.

In concluding, they thus address the "gentle reader":—

"It remaineth, that we commend thee to God, and to the Spirit of his grace, which is able to build further than we can ask or think. He removeth the scales from our eyes, the veil from our hearts, opening our wits that we may understand his word, enlarging our hearts, yea correcting our affections, that we may love it above gold and silver, yea that we may love it to the end. . . . It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God; but a blessed thing it is, and will bring us to everlasting blessedness in the end, when God speaketh unto us, to hearken; when he setteth His word before us, to read it; when he stretcheth out his hand and calleth, to answer, Here am I; here we are to do thy will, O God, The Lord work a care and conscience in us to know him and serve him, that we may be acknowledged of him at the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ, to whom with the holy Ghost, be allpraise and thanksgiving. Amen." Concluding address to the reader.

As to the execution of this translation, it combined the advantages both of the Geneva version and the Advantages of

The Geneva and Bishops' Bible combined.

Bishops' Bible. In the latter of these, different portions were distributed to various persons; so here a similar distribution was made to companies of translators. In the former, many acted in concert with regard to the version: so here, the translations made separately by each individual in a company were compared together, and the compared translations were, as has been already said, repeatedly revised.

How was this version received? The Bishops' Bible had been the translation read in churches previously, and this became wholly superseded by the new version: the Geneva Bible, which was the household version, maintained its ground for some time, but gradually gave way; so that this translation soon became the only one in general use. Perhaps it has too entirely superseded all those which were formerly in use: at least, the advantage which was enjoyed during the reign of Elizabeth has been let go, namely, that of comparing the various renderings of the same passage as a help to the true understanding of what the Scripture teaches.

The ground maintained by this version.

If a testimony were needed to the general excellence of this version, an appeal need only be made to the fact, that it has maintained its ground for two hundred and thirty years. It has been as highly esteemed by the learned as by the unlearned; and although many minor particulars might (as has often been shewn,) be corrected to advantage, yet the version taken as a whole is admirable. It is impossible to form any estimate of the blessing in result which has flowed from this version: the translators acted in their labour as being the servants of Christ; they knew that it was vain to trust in themselves, and thus, like Tyndale and Coverdale before them, they laid their work before the Lord in prayer, and found, in so doing, that He to whom they trusted was indeed faithful.

PLAN OF THE ENGLISH HEXAPLA.

---

THE nature of the present work needs very little explanation, beyond what a simple inspection of its contents will at once convey. The name "Hexapla," signifies six-fold, or six-columned, and appropriately describes the arrangement of the Six English Versions.*

I. THE TRANSLATION BY WICLIF has been printed with the most scrupulous care, from a valuable manuscript in the library of His Royal Highness the Duke of Sussex, who has graciously permitted its use. The text of Wiclif's version, as here presented, is, in many respects, much more accurate and complete than the editions of Lewis and Baber. The present edition of this version has been minutely collated with the previously printed text, and every variation from it has been compared with the readings of twenty-one other MSS., so that not only have numerous transcriptional and typographical errors received correction, but it is believed that the genuine version of Wiclif is far more faithfully exhibited than by either of the two previous editions.

The introductory verses to the Gospel by St. Luke, which appear to be omitted in every known Wiclif MS., are supplied from a MS. in the library of Queen's College, Oxford, communicated by the kindness of Mr. Eastwick.

II. THE VERSION OF WILLIAM TYNDALE is reprinted from a copy of the edition which was revised by himself, and published in 1534; for the use of which the Publishers are indebted to the Trustees of the Baptist College, Bristol, where it forms part of the valuable collection of English Bibles and Testaments bequeathed by Dr. Gifford. Tyndale's "revision" has been adopted in preference to his first translation, because it far better exhibits him as a translator, and manifests the care which he took in revising what he had previously executed. The first edition, of 1526, has already been reprinted by the Publishers in 1836.

III. CRANMER'S, or "THE GREAT BIBLE" version, has been reprinted from a very fine copy of the first edition, 1539; also furnished by the kindness of the Trustees of the Baptist College, Bristol.

IV. THE GENEVA NEW TESTAMENT, is from a copy of the first edition, 1557.

An exact reprint of this edition has also been prepared in a separate form, in which the text is printed line for line and word for word, with the whole of the interesting marginal doctrinal notes, the prefaces and indexes, with fac-simile initial letters and other ornaments.

V. THE ANGLO-RHEMISH TRANSLATION has been reprinted from the original edition, 1582.

VI. KING JAMES'S, or THE AUTHORISED VERSION, is printed from a large black letter copy, of the year 1611. The Rev. John Henry Montagu Luxmoore has obligingly allowed the use of a copy from his Library.

It will be found to differ in several minor respects, as to the punctuation and the use of italics, from the modern copies in general use; and it may therefore be necessary to state, that great care has been taken to follow the original copy very exactly.

The notation of the verses has been inserted in all the translations, for convenience of reference from one to another; which is difficult when these modern divisions are wholly omitted.

* The term "Hexapla" Ἑξαπλά, was originally applied to the work executed by Origen in the 3rd century; in which the first column contained the Hebrew Text of the Old Testament; the second, the Hebrew text in Greek letters; the third,

Aquila's Greek version; the fourth, the translation of Symmachus; the fifth, the LXX version; the sixth, Theodotion's version.

In illustration of the utility of the comparison of the various translations, much that is interesting might be advanced, but which the use of the volume will at once afford. The varied, although ordinarily equivalent manner in which the different translators render the same phrase, often throws much light upon the exact meaning; and when the versions vary in sense, the enquiry suggested with reference to the Original cannot fail to afford profit while it interests.

THE GREEK TEXT.

THE Greek text has been placed in the upper part of each page, for the purpose of facilitating the comparison of the versions with the Original, so desirable when they vary in rendering any passage.

An instance or two may suffice to exhibit this:—

καὶ ἄλλα πρόβατα ἔχω, ἃ οὐκ ἔστιν ἐκ τῆς ἀλλῆς ταύτης· κἀκεῖνά με δεῖ ἀγαγεῖν, καὶ τῆς φωνῆς μου ἀκούσουσι· καὶ γενήσεται μία ποίμνη, εἰς ποιμῆν.—JOHN X. 16.

WICLIF.	TYNDALE.	CRANMER.	GENEVA.	RHEIMS.	AUTHORISED.
I haue other sheep that ben not of this fold, and it bihoueth me to bryng hem to gidre, and the schulen here my vois, and it schal be made o foold: & o sचेepheard.	and other shepe I haue, which are not of this folde. Them also must I bryng, that they maye heare my voyce, and that there maye be one flocke and one shep-herde.	and other shepe I haue, which are not of this fold. Them also must I bring, and they shall heare my voyce, and ther shall be one folde and one shepheard.	Other shepe I haue also which are not of this folde: them also must I bring, and they shall heare my voyce: and ther shall be one shepe-folde, and one shep-herde.	And other sheepe I haue that are not of this folde: them also I must bring, and they shal heare my voyce, and there shal be made one folde and one Pas-tor.	And other sheepe I haue, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall heare my voyce; and there shall be one fold, and one shep-herd.

It will be observed, that in this verse, Tyndale's version differs from the other five, in having "folde" in the early part of the verse, and "flocke" in the latter; the Geneva version also makes some variation, but still calls each a fold. The bare inspection of the Greek shews that two different words are used, namely, ἀλλῆ and ποιμῆ: the solitary testimony of Tyndale is thus confirmed. Wiclif and the Rhemish translators have correctly followed their Latin basis, which has ovile in each case.

κατέχωμεν τὴν ὁμολογίαν τῆς ἐλπίδος ἀκλινη—HEB. X. 23.

WICLIF.	TYNDALE.	CRANMER.	GENEVA.	RHEIMS.	AUTHORISED.
and holde we the confession of our hope bowinge to no side,	and let us kepe the profession of our hope, with oute waveringe	let vs kepe the profession of our hope without waterynge	let vs kepe the profession of our hope, without wateryng	let vs hold the confession of our hope vndeclining.	Let vs hold fast the profession of our faith without wauering

In this passage our authorised version has faith where the other five translations have hope: the original shews at once that hope is the right word. It is quite inexplicable how the word faith was introduced into this passage: it changes the whole meaning of the exhortation.

THE GREEK TEXT OF DR. M. A. SCHOLZ having been adopted in the present work, it will be needful to offer some remarks upon it, and to state briefly in what it differs from the ordinary text.

The commonly printed copies of the Greek New Testament are taken from the third edition of Robert Stephens (Paris, 1550); or else from the Elzevir edition of 1624 (styled in the preface of the reprinted edition of 1633, "Textus ab omnibus receptus"), which but rarely varies from the text of Stephens.

The early editions of Erasmus and Cardinal Ximenes, which form the basis of Stephens' text, were printed from but few manuscripts, and these were neither very ancient nor accurate. Although in more modern times the collation of many other manuscripts had been accomplished, and several attempts made to revise the Greek text, yet but little was really done, prior to the publication of the first edition of Griesbach (1775-1777). In his second and larger edition (1796-1806), he states the grounds upon which he founded his matured judgment: and in his "manual edition" (1805), he exhibits the results of his labours in a condensed form.

Griesbach collated very few manuscripts himself; but he used and arranged the previous labours of Mill, Wetstein, Birch, Matthæi, and Alter. He distributed Greek MSS. into three families: the Alexandrine, to which the most ancient manuscripts belong; the Western, mostly agreeing with the Latin versions; and the Byzantine or Constantinopolitan, which comprises by far the larger number of manuscripts. Griesbach highly valued those readings which were supported by the two former of the above mentioned classes.

Dr. Scholz spent several years in the examination of Greek manuscripts of the New Testament; and his collations are formed from many MSS. which had never before been cited. They do not, however, present much that is new; their chief value consists in their shewing the general agreement of the more modern Greek manuscripts. His system of arrangement is that of dividing all manuscripts into two families, ALEXANDRINE and CONSTANTINOPOLITAN: the former including the Alexandrine and Western of Griesbach, the latter the great mass of more modern manuscripts. To the latter Dr. Scholz, in almost every instance, gives the preference; so that the text of his Greek Testament (1830-1836) generally represents that of the Constantinopolitan MSS. Beneath his text, Dr. Scholz gives those readings of the common, or "received" text, which he rejects; and also those which he considers peculiarly Constantinopolitan, or Alexandrine. The latter denomination, however, includes many readings which, according to Griesbach's classification, would be considered exclusively Western. This is peculiarly the case in the Epistles. He also gives some few readings without any designation.

These various readings of Scholz's edition, are placed under the Greek text of the present work; and the same distinguishing signs have been retained: + denoting an addition, and = an omission.

As it was known that the text of Scholz's edition was in several places incorrectly printed, the whole has been carefully revised, and the several corrections made. The punctuation throughout has been amended, and in general adapted to that of Bishop Lloyd's Oxford Greek Testament.

LIST OF CORRECTIONS IN SCHOLZ.

The following is a List of the places, in which the text of Scholz has been corrected to that which it appears he intended to have given:—

SCHOLZ PRINTED.	CORRECTED.	SCHOLZ PRINTED.	CORRECTED.
Matt. 4:18. βάλλοντες .....	βάλλοντες.	1Thes. 1: 7. τῶ Ἀγαίφ. ....	τῶ Ἀγαίφ.
A manifest error, which is noticed simply because another word is formed.		1Tim. 2:15. omitted .....	καὶ ἀγάπη.
12:13. ἀποκατεστάθη .....	ἀπεκατεστάθη.	2Tim. 3: 8. αὐτῶ .....	οὐτῶ.
It is evident from Scholz's note that he intended to remove the "received" reading from his Text.		Philem. 1. συνηργῶ .....	συνιργῶ ἡμῶν.
19: 5. προσκολληθήσεται .....	κολληθήσεται.	11. καὶ .....	καὶ ἐμοί.
21:41. ἐκδώσεται .....	ἐκδύσεται.	Heb. 6:11. ἡμῶν .....	ἐμῶν.
As Scholz does not intimate any intention of departing from the Elzevir reading, it has been restored.		7:14. Μωσῆς .....	Μωσῆ.
8:5. " .....	"	8: 5. " .....	"
Mark 14:35. προσελθὼν .....	προελθὼν.	Scholz, when he varies in this proper name from the received text, generally notices it; the variations have therefore been treated as errata when this has not been done.
Luke 6:47. ὁ πρὸς .....	πρὸς.	9: 2. ἐν ᾧ τε .....	ἐν ᾧ ἢ τε.
19: 4. συγκομοριαίαν .....	συκομοριαίαν.	28. οὐτῶ .....	οὐτῶς.
John 8:54. ὁτις ἡμῶν .....	ὁτις ἡμῶν.	10:28. Μωσῆος .....	Μωσῆος.
The words in the text and in the margin are reversed.		31. ἡμπεσι .....	ἡμπεσι.
10:37. πιστεύετε μοι .....	πιστεύετε μοι.	11:23. Μωσῆς .....	Μωσῆς.
11:23. ἀδελφός .....	ἀδελφός σου.	24. " .....	"
32. αὐτοῖς εἰς τοὺς πόδας .....	εἰς τοὺς πόδας αὐτοῦ.	12: 4. ἀντικατήσθη .....	ἀντικατήσθη.
20:19. τῇ ἐκείνῃ μῆ. ....	ἐκείνῃ τῇ μῆ.	21. Μωσῆς .....	Μωσῆς.
Rom. 4:19. πιστεῖ .....	τῇ πιστεῖ.	James 4: 3. ἡμῶν .....	ἡμῶν.
5: 8. ἡμᾶς .....	εἰς ἡμᾶς.	4. φιλία .....	ἢ φιλία.
1Cor. 11:14. ἡ αὐτῆ .....	αὐτῆ ἡ.	2 Pet. 1:15. ἐκάστοτε .....	καὶ ἐκάστοτε.
2Cor. 2:13. εἶρεῖν .....	εἶρεῖν με.	Rev. 3:20. omitted .....	καὶ αὐτὸς μετ' ἡμοῦ.
8:20. ταῦτῃ .....	ταῦτῃ τῇ.	13:17. ἔχων .....	ὁ ἔχων.
Eph. 6: 1. ἡμῶν .....	ἡμῶν.	15: 2. ἔχοντες .....	ἔχοντες.
Col. 2:19. αἰξυ .....	αἰξυ.	16:11. ἐκ τῶν ἰλκῶν .....	καὶ ἐκ τῶν ἰλκῶν.
		17: 1. ἰτῶν .....	τῶν.
		21: 2. κκοσμίην .....	κκοσμημίην.

Besides these places in which the Text has been corrected, the Readings in his inner margin have required considerable attention, as they also were very inaccurately printed. In the Acts of the Apostles, especially, it was often difficult to make the correction, because it was by no means easy to ascertain what Scholz meant to convey. Misprints, as to letters, &c., when new words were not formed, are not of course noticed in the preceding list.

COLLATION OF THE GREEK TEXT OF SCHOLZ WITH THAT OF GRIESBACH'S MANUAL EDITION.

(LEIPSIC, 1805.)

THE following "Collation of the corrected text of Scholz with that of Griesbach's manual edition of 1805," exhibits at a view the variations of the two texts as compared with one another, and also with the "Received text." The readings both of Griesbach and Scholz being given, "Rec. ib." implies that the "Received text" agrees with the reading to which it is affixed.

In this collation, the "Received text" is not restricted, as is commonly done, to that of the Elzevir editions, but is used to mark the coincidence of Stephens' third edition and the Elzevir text of 1633, which commonly agree. When these vary, the abbreviations "St. 3." and "Elz." are used. Mere variations in the manner in which words are written, such as εἰα τῆ or, διατῆ, have not been noticed in this collation. *

Griesbach's probable and not improbable readings have also been inserted when they accord with Scholz's text.

The following are Griesbach's marks with his explanation of them:—

- ∞ signifies a reading almost or quite equal, or perhaps to be preferred to the reading which he retains or inserts in his text.
- ~ signifies a reading not to be despised, and worthy of further examination, but which seems inferior to the reading in his text.
- ± signify a probable omission.
- + signifies a less probable omission.

When the variation in this Collation arises from a correction of Scholz's text, the reading is marked *.

SCHOLZ.	GRIESBACH.
Mat. 1:18. γίνουσις [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞] .....	γίνουσις.
5:28. αὐτὴν [Gb. ∞] .....	αὐτῆς [Rec. ib.]
47. τῶδων [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞] .....	ἰθακίαι.
6: 1. ἐλεημοσύνην [Rec. ib.] .....	ἐλεημοσύνην.
8:15. αὐτῶ [Gb. ∞] .....	αὐτοῖς [Rec. ib.]
28. Γαζαρηνῶν [Gb. ∞] .....	Γεργασηνῶν [Rec. ib.]
29. Ἰησοῦ [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
31. ἐπιτρέπων ἡμῖν ἀπιθεῖν [Rec. ib.] & Gb. ∞] .....	ἀπόστειλον ἡμᾶς
32. τὴν ἀγλίαν τῶν χοίρων [Rec. ib.] .....	τοῖς χοίροις.
— τῶν χοίρων (2nd) [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
9: 5. ἔγχετε [Gb. ∞] .....	ἔγχεαι [Rec. ib.]
13. εἰς μετάνοιαν [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
10: 8. λεπροῖς καθαρίζετε [Rec. λεπρ. καθ. νεκρ. ἐγείρ.] .....	νεκροῖς ἐγείρετε [Rec. καθ. Gb. + νεκρ. ἐγείρ.]
10. ῥάβδους [Gb. ∞] .....	ῥάβδον [Rec. ib.]
23. εἰς τὴν ἄλλην [Rec. ib.] .....	 {  εἰς τὴν ἑτέραν κἂν ἐκ ταύτης ἑώκωσαν ἡμᾶς, οὐ γέγετε εἰς τὴν ἄλλην [The added words +].
11: 8. βασιλείων [Gb. ∞] .....	βασιλείων [Rec. ib.]
12: 6. μείζων [Gb. ∞] .....	μείζων [Rec. ib.]
* 13. ἀπικαταστάθῃ .....	ἀποκαταστάθῃ [Rec. ib.]
32. ἐν τῷ νῦν αἰῶνι [Gb. ∞] .....	ἐν ταύτῃ τῷ αἰῶνι [Rec. ib.]
35. ἀγαθὰ [Gb. + τὰ] .....	τὰ ἀγαθὰ [Rec. ib.]
13:15. συνῶναι [Gb. ∞] .....	συνῶναι [Rec. ib.]
52. εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν [Rec. ib.] .....	τῆ βασιλείᾳ.
10: 8. Ἐγγίζετε μοι [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
— τῷ σπέρματι αὐτῶν καὶ [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
19. ἰν-βῆ [Rec. ib.] .....	ἀνι-βῆ.
16:11. ἄστον [Gb. ∞] .....	ἄρπον [Rec. ib.]
24. οἳ ἐστίνων [Rec. τῶν οἳ ἐστίνων] .....	οἳ ἐστίνων.
17: 5. φωταῖοι [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞] .....	φωταῖοι.
18: 4. ταπεινώσει [Gb. ∞] .....	ταπεινώσῃ [Rec. ib.]
6. εἰς τὴν τράχῃ. [Gb. ∞] .....	ἐπὶ τῶν τράχῃ [Rec. ib.]
15. καὶ ἐλεγχοῦ [Rec. ib.] .....	omit καὶ.
29. εἰς τοὺς πόδας αὐτοῦ [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
Mat. 18:29. ἀποδώσω [Gb. + πάντα] .....	 {  πάντα ἀποδώσω [Rec. ib.] omitted. προσκόλληθήσεται [Rec. ib.]
35. τὰ παραπτώματα αὐτῶν [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
* 19: 5. κολληθήσεται [Gb. ∞] .....	προσκόλληθήσεται [Rec. ib.]
9. εἰ μὴ [Rec. ib.] .....	μὴ.
17. Τί με λίγους ἀγαθῶν; οὐδεὶς ἀγαθός· εἰ μὲν εἰς, ὁ Θεός [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞] .....	Τί με ἰρωτῆς περὶ τοῦ ἀγαθοῦ; εἰς ἑστὼν ὁ ἀγαθός.
20: 6. ἀργούς [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
22. ἢ τὸ βάπτισμα, ἢ ἐγὼ βαπτίζομαι, βαπτισθῆμαι; [Rec. καὶ τὸ βάπτ. κ. τ. λ.] .....	omitted.
23. ἢ τὸ βάπτισμα, ἢ ἐγὼ βαπτίζομαι, βαπτισθήσθε [Rec. καὶ τὸ βάπτ. κ. τ. λ.] .....	omitted.
22: 7. καὶ ἀκούσας ὁ βασιλεὺς ἐκείνος .....	ἀκούσας δὲ ὁ βασιλεὺς [Rec. ib.]
23: 8. ὁ Χριστός [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
23. ταῦτα ἴει [Rec. ib.] .....	ταῦτα εἶ ἔει.
24:27. ἴσταί [Gb. ± καὶ] .....	ἴσταί καὶ [Rec. ib.]
35. παραλίσσονται [Rec. ib.] .....	παραλείπεται.
36. πατήρ μου [Rec. ib.] .....	omit μου.
45. ἐξιδῶν [Rec. ib. ε Gb. ∞] .....	ἐξιδῶνα.
49. ἀνθρώπους αὐτοῦ [Gb. ∞] .....	omit αὐτοῦ [Rec. ib.]
25: 2. αἱ πίστες [St. 3, ib. Gb. ∞] .....	omit αἱ [Elz. ib.]
9. οὐ μὴ [Gb. ∞] .....	οὐκ [Rec. ib.]
31. ἀγαπᾷ ἀγγίλοι [Rec. ib.] .....	omit ἀγαπᾷ.
26: 9. τοῖς πτωχοῖς [Gb. ∞] .....	omit τοῖς [Rec. ib.]
26. ἐπιχρηστήσασιν [Gb. ∞] .....	ἐλόγησας [Rec. ib.]
35. ὁμοῖος ἐστὶ .....	omit ἐστὶ [Rec. ib.]
36. Γερμανοὶ [Gb. ∞] .....	Γερμανοῦν [Rec. ib.]
38. ὁ Ἰησοῦς .....	omitted [Rec. ib.]
39. προσιλθῶν [Gb. ∞] .....	προσιλθῶν [Rec. ib.]
59. θανατώσασιν αὐτὸν .....	αὐτὸν θανατώσασιν [Rec. ib.]
60. καὶ πολλ. ψευδομαρ. προσελθ. οὐχ εἶπον [Rec. ib.] .....	omit καὶ ὅτι οὐχ εἶπον.
71. αὐτοῖς ἐκεί [Gb. ∞] .....	τοῖς ἐκεί [Rec. ib.]
27: 4. οὐ γάρ .....	οὐαί [Rec. ib.]

SCHOLZ.	GRIESBACH.
Mat. 27:42. ἐπ' αὐτῷ [Gb. ∞] .....	omit ἐπ' [Rec. ib.]
28:20. ἀμήν [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
Mark 1: 5. καὶ ἰβαντίζοντο πάντες [Rec. ib.]	πάντες, καὶ ἰβαντίζοντο.
13. ἦν ἕκλι [Rec. ib.] .....	omit ἕκλι .
16. αὐτοῦ τοῦ Σίμωνος .....	{ omit τοῦ Σίμωνος [Rec. ib.] }
37. σε Ἰησοῦσι .....	Ἰησοῦσι σε [Rec. ib.]
39. ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς [Rec. ib.] .....	εἰς τὰς συναγωγὰς.
45. πάνθους [Gb. ∞] .....	πανταθῶν [Rec. ib.]
2: 1. ἰσιγήθη πάλιν .....	πάλιν ἰσιγήθη [Rec. ib.]
5. σε αἰ ἀμαρτία σου [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞]	σου αἰ ἀμαρτία.
3: 7. ἀνεχώρησε μετὰ τὸν μαθητῶν .....	μετὰ τὸν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ αὐτοῦ [Rec. ib.]
— πρὸς [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞] .....	ἀνεχώρησεν.
28. τὰ ἀμαρτήματα τοῖς υἱοῖς τῶν ἀν.	τοῖς υἱοῖς τῶν ἀνθρώπων
— θρώπων [Rec. ib.] .....	τὰ ἀμαρτήματα.
32. καὶ αἰ ἀέθλια σου .....	omitted [Rec. ib.]
4: 7. εἰς τὰς ἀκάνθας [Rec. ib.] .....	omit τὰς.
18. αὐτοῖ [Rec. ib.] .....	ἀλλοι.
19. τούτων [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
24. καὶ προστιθήσεται ἑμὶν τοῖς ἀκού.	omitted.
— ουσι [Rec. ib.] .....
36. πλιύατα [Rec. ib.] .....	πολιὰ.
38. ἐπὶ (1st) [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞] .....	ἐν.
5:40. ἀνακείμενον [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
6:11. Ἄμὴν λέγω ἑμὶν, ἀνεκτότερον ἴσται	{ omitted.
Σατόμος ἡ Γουμάριος ἐν ἡμέρᾳ
κρίσεως, ἢ τῆ πόλεϊ ἰκίον [Rec. ib.]
15. ἄλλοι εἶ (1st) .....	omit εἶ [Rec. ib.]
33. αὐτὸν (1st) [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
— καὶ προσήλθον αὐτοῖς, καὶ συνήλθον	πρὸς αὐτὸν [Rec. ib.]
— πρὸς αὐτὸν [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
34. ὁ Ἰησοῦς [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
52. αὐτῶν ἡ καρδία .....	ἡ καρδία αὐτῶν [Rec. ib.]
7: 5. ἀρίπτοις [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞] .....	κοιναῖς.
24. οἰκίαν [Gb. † τὴν] .....	τὴν οἰκίαν [Rec. ib.]
26. Συροφοικίσσα .....	Συροφοικίσσα.
— [Rec. Συροφοικίσσα]
31. πρὸς τὴν θαλ. [Rec. ib.] .....	εἰς τὴν θαλ.
8:25. ἀπαντα [Gb. ∞] .....	ἀπαντας [Rec. ib.]
9:16. τοῖς γραμματέσι [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞]	αἰνοῦσι.
22. τὸ πῦρ .....	omit τὸ [Rec. ib.]
26. κράζαν [Rec. ib.] .....	κράσας.
— σπαράξαν αὐτὸν [Rec. ib.] .....	σπαράξας.
38. ὅς οἱ ἀκολουθεῖ ἡμῖν [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
45. ἰστί σε .....	ἰστί σοι [Rec. ib.]
10:16. εὐλόγει .....	φιλῶγει [Rec. ib.]
29. καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς .....	ἀποκριθεὶς.
— [Rec. ἀποκριθεὶς εἶ]
31. οἱ ἔσχατοι [Rec. ib.] .....	omit οἱ.
49. ἐγχεῖται [Rec. ib.] .....	ἐγχετε.
52. τὰ ἴησὺ [Rec. ib.] .....	αὐτῷ.
11: 7. ἐπιβάλον [Rec. ib.] .....	ἐπιβάλλουσιν.
13. ἀπὸ μακρόθεν [Gb. ∞] .....	omit ἀπὸ [Rec. ib.]
15. ὁ Ἰησοῦς [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
32. ἄλλ' [Gb. ∞] .....	ἄλλ' ἰάν [Rec. ib.]
12: 5. πάλιν [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
— ἀποκρινόμενους [Rec. ib.] .....	ἀποκρινόμενους.
29. τὴν ἰησοῦν [Rec. ib.] .....	ἰησοῦν.
43. λέγει [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞] .....	ἀπεν.
13: 9. ἀρχῆ [Gb. ∞] .....	εἰρχαί [Rec. ib.]
14. τὸ ῥῆθιν ἵπὸ Δαυιδ τοῦ προφήτου	omitted.
— [Rec. ib.] .....
14:51. ἠεολοῦθησεν [Gb. ∞] .....	ἠεολόθη [Rec. ib.]
71. ἄμηναι [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞] .....	ἀμνίναι.
72. καὶ εἰθίως .....	omit εἰθίως [Rec. ib.]
— τὸ ῥῆμα, ὃ [Gb. ∞] .....	{ τοῦ ῥήματος, ὃ [Rec. ib.] }
Luke 1:15. τοῦ Κυρίου [Rec. ib.] .....	omit τοῦ.
2: 9. ἔτι εἰδὸσα ἐισταράχθη ἐπὶ τῷ λόγῳ	ἔτι εἰπέ τῷ λογῷ ἑστα-
— αὐτοῦ [Rec. ib.] .....	αὐτοῦ.
2:33. Ἰωσήφ καὶ ἡ μήτηρ αὐτοῦ [Rec. ib.]	ὁ πατήρ αὐτοῦ καὶ ἡ
— καὶ ἡ μήτηρ.	μήτηρ.

SCHOLZ.	GRIESBACH.
Luke 2:44. καὶ ἐν [Rec. ib.] .....	omit ἐν.
45. ἐφάρτες αὐτὸν [Rec. ib.] .....	omit αὐτὸν.
3:10. ποήσωμεν [Gb. ∞] .....	ποιήσωμεν [Rec. ib.]
4: 8. ἔπαγε ὀπίσω μου, Σαρανὰ [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
18. ἰάσασθα τοὺς συνετραμμένους τὴν	{ omitted.
καρδίαν [Rec. ib.] .....
23. ἐν τῇ [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞] .....	εἰς.
29. εἰς τὸ [Rec. ib.] .....	ὤστε.
35. τὸ μέσον [Rec. ib.] .....	omit τὸ.
41. ὁ Χριστὸς [Rec. ib.] .....	omit ῥῆμα.
5:20. εἶπεν αὐτῷ [Rec. ib.] .....	omit αὐτῷ.
6: 7. παρετήρουν εἰ [Gb. ∞] .....	{ παρητήρουν εἰ αὐτὸν
— [Rec. ib.] .....	{ [Rec. ib.] }
8. ἐγχεῖται [Rec. ib.] .....	ἐγχετε.
10. ἰποῖσιν οὐτῶν [Rec. ib.] .....	omit οὐτῶν.
— ἀποκαταστάθῃ [Rec. ib.] .....	ἀπεκ.
7:46. μον τοὺς πόδας [Rec. ib.] .....	τοὺς πόδας μου. [ & + ]
8. 3. αὐτοῖς [Gb. ∞] .....	αὐτῷ [Rec. ib.]
21. αὐτὸν [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
33. εἰσῆλθον [Gb. ∞] .....	εἰσῆλθεν [Rec. ib.]
45. μετ' αὐτοῦ [Rec. ib.] .....	σὺν αὐτῷ
9: 1. μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
12. ἀπλόθιτες [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞] .....	πορευθίντες.
21. ἰπῆιν [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞] .....	λέγειν.
23. ἰθὺς, ἀπαρηπάσθω [Rec. ib.] .....	ἔρχεσθαι, ἀρηπάσθω.
— omitted [Gb. †] .....	καθ' ἡμέραν [Rec. ib.]
43. ἰποῖσιν [Rec. ib.] .....	ἰποῖσι.
49. ἐαυμία [Gb. † τὰ] .....	τὰ ἐαυμία [Rec. ib.]
10:11. ἐφ' ἡμάς [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
23. καὶ σπασθεὶς πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς,	{ omitted [Elz. ib.] }
εἶπε, [St. 3, ib.] .....
37. οὐν [Rec. ib.] .....	εἶ.
11: 2. ἡμῶν, ὃ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
— ἡ βασιλεία σου [Rec. ib.] .....	ἡ βασιλεία.
— γεννηθῆναι τὸ θελήμα σου, ὡς ἐν	{ omitted.
ὀφθαλμῷ, καὶ ἰπὶ τῆς γῆς [Rec. ib.]
11. εἰ ἡμῶν [Gb. ∞] .....	omit εἰ [Rec. ib.]
28. αὐτὸν [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
29. τοῦ προφήτου [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
32. Νουεῖται [Gb. ∞] .....	Νουεῖ [Rec. ib.]
34. ὀφθαλμοῦ σου [1st] [Gb. ∞] .....	omit σου [Rec. ib.]
44. γραμματεῖς καὶ φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταὶ	{ omitted.
[Rec. ib.] .....
52. εἰσῆλθετε [Rec. ib.] .....	εἰσῆλθατε.
13:15. ὑποκριταὶ [Gb. ∞] .....	ὑποκριταὶ [Rec. ib.]
20. omitted [Gb. †] .....	καὶ [Rec. ib.]
24. πῶληρ [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞] .....	θήρας.
14: 5. αἰὶς [Gb. ∞] .....	ὄνως [Rec. ib.]
10. ἀνάπεισι .....	ἀνάπεισαι.
— [Rec. ἀνάπεισιν]
16: 9. ἐδῆλθη [Gb. ∞] .....	ἐδῆλθητε [Rec. ib.]
25. ὤτε [Gb. ∞] .....	ὤτε [Rec. ib.]
17:36. εἴδο ἴσταναι ἐν τῷ ἀρχῷ, ὃ εἰς παρα-	{ omitted [St. 3, ib.] }
λήρηθησται, καὶ ὁ ἕτερος ἀρσῆθῆ-
σται [Elz. ib.] .....
*19: 4. σκομορῖαιον [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞] .....	σκομορῖαιον.
21:15. ὄψις [Rec. ib.] .....	ἦ.
25. ἡκούσης [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞] .....	ἡκούσι.
22:30. καθίστηθαι [Rec. ib.] .....	καθίστασθαι.
62. ὁ Πίτρω [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
66. αὐτῶν [Gb. ∞] .....	ἰαντῶν [Rec. ib.]
24:10. ἦν εἰ .....	ἦσαν εἰ [Rec. ib.]
36. ὁ Ἰησοῦς [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
24:49. Ἰερουσαλὴμ [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
John 1:16. καὶ [Rec. ib.] .....	ἴτι.
27. αὐτὸς ἴσταν [Rec. ib.] .....	omitted.
— ὡς ἑμπροσθῖν μου γίγονιν [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
44. ὁ Ἰησοῦς [Rec. transposed] .....	omitted.
3: 5. ὁ Ἰησοῦς [Rec. ib.] .....	omit ὁ.
4:36. καὶ ὁ θριζῶν [Rec. ib.] .....	omit καὶ.
46. ὁ Ἰησοῦς [Rec. trans.] .....	omitted.
50. ὁ Ἰησοῦς [2nd] [Gb. ∞] .....	omit ὁ [Rec. ib.]

	SCHOLZ.	GRIESBACH.
John 5: 8.	Ἔγρει.	Ἔγραφα [Rec. ib.]
16.	καὶ ἐξήρασαν αὐτὸν ἀποκτείνει	omitted.
	[Rec. ib.]
6: 5.	ἀγοράσωμεν	ἀγοράσωμεν [Rec. ib.]
22.	κεῖνον, εἰς δὲ ἐνήθησαν οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ	omitted.
	[Rec. ib.]
—	πλοῦσιον [2nd] [Rec. ib.]	πλοῖον.
39.	πατρός [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
45.	ἀκούων [Gb. ~]	ἀκούσας [Rec. ib.]
54.	ἐν	omitted [Rec. ib.]
58.	τὸ μάγμα [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
63.	λίλιλλα [Gb. ~]	λίλλω [Rec. ib.]
69.	Χριστός ὁ υἱός [Rec. & Gb. ~]	ἄγιος.
7: 1.	μετὰ ταῦτα περιπάτει ὁ Ἰησοῦς	{ περιπάτει ὁ Ἰησοῦς μετὰ ταῦτα [Rec. ib.]
16.	οὖν [Gb. ~]	omitted [Rec. ib.]
8: 3.	omitted	πρὸς αὐτὸν [Rec. ib.]
—	ἐπὶ μοιχείῃ	ἐν μοιχείᾳ [Rec. ib.]
5.	λυθάζουν	λυθοδοκίῃσθα [Rec. ib.]
—	περὶ αὐτῆς	omitted [Rec. ib.]
6.	κατηγορίαν καθ'	κατηγορεῖν [Rec. ib.]
9.	οἴσα	ἰστοῦσα [Rec. ib.]
10.	ἴνα	ἢ γυνή [Rec. ib.]
39.	ἦτε [Rec. ib.]	ἴσατε.
*4.	ἠῶν [Gb. ~]	ἠῶν [Rec. ib.]
59.	ἐυλόγησαν εἰς μίσην αὐτῶν, καὶ παρεῖπον οὕτως [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
9:11.	τῆν κολυμβήθραν τοῦ Σιλωᾶ	τὸν Σιλωᾶ.
	[Rec. ib.]
10: 8.	πρὸ ἡμῶ ἦλθον [Rec. ib.]	ἦλθον πρὸ ἡμῶ.
11:21.	ἢ Μάρθα [Rec. ib.]	omitted ἢ.
*22.	εἰς τοὺς πόδας αὐτοῦ [Rec. ib.]	αὐτοῦ εἰς τοὺς πόδας.
44.	καὶ ἐξήθη [Rec. ib.]	omitted καί.
51.	δὲ Ἰησοῦς [Rec. ib.]	omitted ὃ.
12:12.	δὲ Ἰησοῦς [Rec. ib.]	omitted ὃ.
13:33.	ἐπάγω ἐγὼ [Rec. ib.]	ἐγὼ ἐπάγω.
15: 6.	τὸ πῶρ [Gb. ~]	omitted τὸ [Rec. ib.]
16: 7.	ἐν [3rd] [Gb. ~]	omitted [Rec. ib.]
19.	ἐγρω οὖν [Rec. ib.]	omitted οὖν.
18: 8.	δὲ Ἰησοῦς [Rec. ib.]	omitted ὃ.
20.	πάντοτε [2nd] [St. 3, ib. Gb. ~]	πάντες.
	[πάντοθεν Elz.]
28.	πρωί [Rec. ib.]	πρωί.
36.	δὲ Ἰησοῦς [Rec. ib.]	omitted ὃ.
19: 4.	οὖν [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
11.	δὲ Ἰησοῦς [Rec. ib.]	omitted ὃ.
26.	ἰδοὺ [Rec. ib. & Gb. ~]	ἴδε.
40.	ἐν θόνοις [Gb. ~]	omitted ἐν [Rec. ib.]
20:11.	τὸ μνημεῖον [1st] [Rec. ib.]	τὸ μνημεῖον.
14.	δὲ Ἰησοῦς [Rec. ib.]	omitted ὃ.
16.	Ἐβραῖσι [Gb. ~]	omitted [Rec. ib.]
28.	καὶ ἀπεκρίθη [Rec. ib.]	omitted καί.
21:13.	οὖν [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
Acts 1:14.	καὶ τῇ ἑνῆσσι [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
2: 7.	omit πάντες [Gb. +]	πάντες καὶ [Rec. ib.]
30.	τὸ κατὰ πόδα ἀναστήσαν τῶν Χριστῶν [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
31.	ἢ ἄνχη αὐτῶν [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
33.	οὖν [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
3:22.	Μωσῆς [Rec. ib.]	Μουσῆς.
5:39.	αὐτῶ [Rec. ib. & Gb. ~]	αὐτοῦ.
6: 3.	ἀγιστὸν [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
7:10.	ἑξήκατο [Rec. ib.]	ἑξήκαστο.
21.	ἀνέγνω [Rec. ib.]	ἀνέλατο.
8:21.	ἰνώπιον [Rec. ib.]	ἰμνήσει.
3:18.	παράκλημα [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
1.	τις ἦν [Rec. ib. & Gb. ~]	omitted ἦν.
20.	οὔτι [Rec. ib. & Gb. ~]	οὔτι.
13:31.	ἀνείων ἐν [Gb. ~]	omitted ἐν [Rec. ib.]
33.	τῇ Φαλαγγ τῇ ἐκτετατῇ [Rec. ib. & Gb. ~]	τῇ πρώτῃ Φαλαγγ.
29.	Μωσῆς [Rec. ib.]	Μωυσῆς.
41.	ἢ [Gb. ~]	ἢ [Rec. ib.]

	SCHOLZ.	GRIESBACH.
Acts 13:43.	omitted [Gb. +]	αὐτῶς [Rec. ib.]
15:21.	Μωσῆς [Rec. ib.]	Μωυσῆς.
16:16.	τῆν προσηχίν [Gb. ~]	omit τῆν [Rec. ib.]
32.	καὶ πᾶς [Rec. ib.]	οὖν πᾶσι.
17: 5.	οἱ ἀπεθώοντο [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
18.	ταῖς ἐκ καὶ [Gb. ~]	omit καὶ [Rec. ib.]
19: 4.	μὲν [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
—	Χριστῶν [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
20:16.	ἔκαμε [Rec. ib. & Gb. ~]	ἐκέρει.
22.	ἐγὼ ἐλείψω [Rec. ib.]	ἐλείψω ἐγὼ.
28.	θεοῦ [Rec. ib. & Gb. ~]	Κυρίου.
21:20.	Κόρινθ [Rec. ib.]	θεῶν.
21.	Μωσῆς [Rec. ib.]	Μωυσῆς.
27.	τὰς χεῖρας ἐπ' αὐτὸν [Rec. ib.]	ἐπ' αὐτὸν τὰς χεῖρας.
22:24.	αὐτὸν ὁ χιλιάρχος εἰσάγεισθαι	{ ὁ χιλιάρχος εἰσάγεισθαι αὐτὸν.
	[Rec. αὐτ. ὁ χιλ. ἀγεσθαι]
23:15.	ἀφῶν [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
16.	τὸ ἐπίγραν [St. 3, ib. Gb. ~]	τὴν ἐπίγραν [Elz. ib.]
24:18.	αἰς [Gb. ~]	εἰς [Rec. ib.]
24.	Ἰησοῦν	omitted [Rec. ib.]
26.	omitted [Gb. ±]	{ ἰβη. λέσθαι αὐτὸν [Rec. ib.]
5: 5.	δοῦνατο ἰν ἱμῖν, φησὶ [Rec. ib.]	ἰν ἱμῖν, φησὶ, δοῦνατο.
—	τοῦτο [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
16.	εἰς ἀπώλειαν [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
26: 6.	πατρίας ἡμῶν [Gb. ~]	omitted ἡμῶν [Rec. ib.]
17.	οὖν [Rec. ib. & Gb. ~]	ἐγὼ.
27:12.	κεῖθεν	καίθεν [Rec. ib.]
14.	Εὐρωκλίων [Rec. ib.]	Εὐρωκλίων.
19.	ἰρήφλων [Rec. ib. & Gb. ~]	ἰρήφλων.
28: 3.	ἑξήλοισθα [Gb. ~]	ἑξήλοισθα [Rec. ib.]
5.	ἀποναθάμωτος	ἀποναθάμωτος [Rec. ib.]
Rom. 1:29.	πορνεία [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
2: 8.	θυμὸς καὶ ὄργη [Rec. ib.]	ὄργη καὶ θυμὸς.
4:12.	τῆς πίστεως τῆς ἐν τῇ ἀκροβυστίᾳ	{ τῆς ἐν ἀκροβυστίᾳ πίστεως.
	[Rec. τῆς ἐν τῇ ἀκροβ. πίστ.]
5: 1.	ἴχθυον	ἴχθυον [Rec. ib.]
6.	ἀσθημῶν [Rec. ib.]	ἀσθημῶν ἐτι.
6: 1.	ἐπινομοῦμεν [Rec. ib. & Gb. ~]	ἐπινομοῦμεν.
12.	ἰσοκρίων ἀντῆ [Rec. ib.]	omitted ἀντῆ.
10: 3.	δικαιοσύνην [2nd] [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
11: 9.	Δαβὶδ [Rec. ib.]	Δαβὶδ.
30.	καὶ ἡμεῖς [Rec. ib.]	omitted καί.
12:11.	Κυρίῳ [Elz. ib. Gb. ~]	καρῷ [St. 3, ib.]
14:18.	νοῦτοῖς [Rec. ib. & Gb. ~]	τοῦτο.
	chap. 16, vs. 25—27, inserted at the end of chap. 14.
15: 4.	καὶ ἐὰν τῆς [Gb. ~]	καὶ τῆς [Rec. ib.]
16.	verses 25—27	transposed.
1 Cor. 1:28.	τὰ μὴ [Gb. ± καὶ]	καὶ τὰ μὴ [Rec. ib.]
1.	σαρκῶτες [Rec. ib.]	σαρκῶτες.
5:13.	ἰερατεῖ [Rec. ib. & Gb. ~]	ἰερατεῖ.
7:29.	ἰσῆν τὸ λυτῶν	τὸ λυτῶν ἰσῆν [Rec. ib.]
34.	μεμῆρται, καὶ	omit καὶ [Rec. ib.]
9: 2.	Μωσῆς [Rec. ib.]	Μωυσῆς.
11:15.	ἑξοῖσα [Gb. ± αὐτῆ]	ἑξοῖσα ἀντῆ [Rec. ib.]
26.	omitted [Gb. ±]	τοῦτο [Rec. ib.]
12: 2.	ἦτι ὅτε [Gb. ~]	ὅτι [Rec. ib.]
12.	omitted [Gb. ±]	τοῦ ἐνός [Rec. ib.]
15:14.	ἄρα καὶ [Gb. ~]	omit καὶ [Rec. ib.]
2Cor. 1:6, 7.	τῆς ἐνεργουμένης ἐν ἡμῶν τῶν αὐτῶν παθημάτων, ὧν καὶ ἡμεῖς πάσχομεν, καὶ ἡ ἑλπίς ἡμῶν βεβαία ἐπὶ ἡμῶν εἴτε παρακληθήσθε ἐπὶ τῆς ἡμῶν παρακαλήσεως καὶ σωτηρίας [Gb. ~]	{ τῆς ἡμῶν παρακαλήσεως τῆς ἐνεργουμένης ἐν ἡμῶν τῶν αὐτῶν παθημάτων, ὧν καὶ ἡμεῖς πάσχομεν καὶ ἡ ἑλπίς ἡμῶν βεβαία ἐπὶ ἡμῶν.
	[Rec. τῆς ἐνεργουμένης ἐν ἡμῶν τῶν αὐτῶν παθημάτων, ὧν καὶ ἡμεῖς πάσχομεν εἴτε παρακαλοῦ-

SCHOLZ.

GRIESBACH.

	μῆθα, ἐπὶ τῆς ἡμῶν παρακλήσεως καὶ σωτηρίας, καὶ ἡ ἰατρικὴ ἡμῶν βελτίαι ἐπὶ ἡμῶν.]
2 Cor. 1:17.	βουλεύμενος [Gb. ∞]	βουλευόμενος [Rec. ib.]
18.	ἴσται [Gb. ∞]	ἴγινετο [Rec. ib.]
3:14.	σήμερον ἡμέρας [Gb. ∞]	ομίει ἡμέρας [Rec. ib.]
	— ἢ τι [Rec. ib.]	ἴσται.
8:16.	ζῶντι [Gb. ∞]	ἐπιζῶντι [Rec. ib.]
21.	πρωσοῦμεν [Gb. ∞]	πρωσοῦμεθα [Rec. ib.]
12:1.	δαΐ [Rec. ib.]	δαΐ [Rec. ib.]
21.	μὲ ὁ θὸς	omit με [Rec. ib.]
Gal. 1:18.	Κηρᾶν [Gb. ∞]	{ Πίτρον [Rec. ib.]
2.	καταδουλώσουσιν	{ καταδουλώσουσται [Rec. ib.]
	11. κηρᾶς [Gb. ∞]	Πίτρος [Rec. ib.]
	14. κηρᾶ [Gb. ∞]	Πετροῦ [Rec. ib.]
3:23.	συνελευμένοι	συνεκλησμένοι [Rec. ib.]
4.	8. μὲ φῶσι [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞]	φῶσι μὲ.
	15. omitted [Gb. ∞]	ἦν [Rec. ib.]
5.	1. Χριστὸς ἡμᾶς [Rec. ib.]	ἡμᾶς Χριστὸς.
	στίχεται οὖν	omit οὖν.
	[Rec. trans. οὖν.]
6:13.	πειρατημένοι [Gb. ∞]	πειρατιζόμενοι [Rec. ib.]
Eph. 1:12.	ζῶσης [Gb. ∞ τῆς]	τῆς ζῶσης [Rec. ib.]
3:7.	τῶν δοθεισᾶν [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞]	τῆς δοθείσης.
4:27.	μηδὲ [Rec. ib.]	ἴμετε [Rec. ib.]
Phil. 1:7.	καὶ ἐν τῷ [Gb. ∞]	omit ἐν [Rec. ib.]
30.	εἰσέτι [Gb. ∞]	ἔδειξε [Rec. ib.]
2.	4. ἔτιρων ἕκαστος [Rec. ib.]	ἐτίρων ἕκαστοι.
3.	3. θεοῦ [Gb. ∞]	ἐπὶ [Rec. ib.]
11.	τῶν ἐκ νεκρῶν	τῶν νεκρῶν [Rec. ib.]
16.	καυῶν, τὸ αὐτὸ φρονεῖν [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
4:23.	omitted [Gb. ∞]	ἡμῶν [Rec. ib.]
Col. 1:7.	καθῶς [Gb. ∞] καὶ	καθὼς καὶ [Rec. ib.]
2:13.	συναζωοποιήσαν ἡμᾶς [Gb. ∞]	συναζωοποίηται [Rec. ib.]
23.	ψαλμοῦ	ψαλμοῦ καὶ [Rec. ib.]
5:1.	παροργίζετε [Gb. ∞]	ἱρθεῖτε [Rec. ib.]
	22. ὀφθαλμοδουλείᾳ [Gb. ∞]	{ ὀφθαλμοδουλείαις [Rec. ib.]
23.	ὁ ἰάν.	καὶ πᾶν τὸ ἰάν [Rec. ib.]
4.	γνώτες τὰ περὶ ἡμῶν [Gb. ∞]	γνωτὰ περὶ ἡμῶν [Rec. ib.]
1 The. 1:7.	*7. ἐν τῷ Ἀχαΐᾳ [Gb. ∞]	omit ἐν [Rec. ib.]
	8. ἐν τῷ Ἀχαΐᾳ [Gb. ∞]	omit ἐν τῷ.
	— ἔχεν ἡμᾶς	ἡμᾶς ἔχεν [Rec. ib.]
2.	8. ἐγενήθητε [Gb. ∞]	γενήθησθε [Rec. ib.]
	περιπατεῖν	περιπατήσατε [Rec. ib.]
3.	2. καὶ ἰακόνων τοῦ θεοῦ	καὶ σενιγρῶν τοῦ Θεοῦ.
	[Rec. καὶ ἰακόνων τοῦ Θεοῦ καὶ σενιγρῶν ἡμῶν.]
	— ἡμᾶς περὶ [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞]	ἡμᾶς ἐπὶ.
	7. ἀνάγκη καὶ θλιψί	{ θλιψί καὶ ἀνάγκη [Rec. ib.]
4.	8. ἡμᾶς [Gb. ∞]	ἡμᾶς [Rec. ib.]
5.	15. ἔλωτες [Gb. ∞ καὶ]	ζῶντες καὶ [Rec. ib.]
2 The. 1:8.	8. φλογὶ πύρος [Gb. ∞]	πυρὶ φλογῆς [Rec. ib.]
2:10.	τοῖς ἀπολλυμένοις [Gb. ∞ ἐν]	{ ἐν τοῖς ἀπολλυμένοις [Rec. ib.]
	11. πύριτι [Gb. ∞]	πύρῃσι [Rec. ib.]
	13. ἔλατο [Rec. ib. & Gb. ∞]	ἔλατο.
	17. omitted [Gb. ∞]	ἡμᾶς.
	— ἔργη καὶ λόγῳ [Gb. ∞]	λόγῳ καὶ ἔργῳ [Rec. ib.]
3.	6. παρέλαθον	παρελάθονα.
	[Rec. παρέλαβε.]
1 Tim. 3:16.	θεός [Rec. ib.]	θεός.
5:21.	omitted [Gb. ∞]	Κυρίου [Rec. ib.]
	— Χριστοῦ Ἰησοῦ	Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ [Rec. ib.]
6:11.	πραιβάτιαν [Gb. ∞]	πράοτητα [Rec. ib.]
2 Tim. 2:3.	Χριστοῦ Ἰησοῦ	Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ [Rec. ib.]
	7. ῥῶσι [Gb. ib. ∞]	ῥῶψ [Rec. ib.]
	8. Δαβὶδ [Rec. ib.]	Δαβὶδ.
	13. ἀρνῆσθαι γὰρ [Gb. ∞]	omit γὰρ [Rec. ib.]
4.	1. κατὰ [Rec. & Gb. ∞]	καί.
	14. ἀποώσι [Gb. ∞]	ἀποώψ [Rec. ib.]

SCHOLZ.

GRIESBACH.

Tit. 1:	4. χάρις καὶ εἰρήνη [Gb. ∞]	{ χάρις εὐαε εἰρήνη [Rec. ib.]
	5. ἐπιτορθώσης	ἐπιτορθεῖ [Rec. ib.]
2:10.	ἐδασκαλίαν τῶν [Gb. ∞]	omit τῶν [Rec. ib.]
Heb. 3:	2. Μωσῆς [Rec. ib.]	Μωσῆς.
	3. Μωσῆς [Rec. ib.]	Μωσῆν.
	5. Μωσῆς [Rec. ib.]	Μωσῆς.
4:	7. Δαβὶδ [Rec. ib.]	Δαβὶδ.
*7:14.	Μωσῆς [Rec. ib.]	Μωσῆς.
16.	σρακιῆς [Rec. & Gb. ∞]	σρακιῶν.
26.	ἡμῶν καὶ [Gb. ∞]	omit καὶ [Rec. ib.]
4.	4. εἰ μιν οὖν	εἰ μιν γὰρ [Rec. ib.]
	*5. Μωσῆς [Rec. ib.]	Μωσῆς.
9:	5. τῆς ἐδῆς	omit τῆς [Rec. ib.]
	9. ἦν [Gb. ∞]	ἦν [Rec. ib.]
10.	ἐκαύματα [Gb. ∞]	ἐκαύματα [Rec. ib.]
10:12.	οὐτος [Gb. ∞]	αὐτός [Rec. ib.]
*12:21.	Μωσῆς [Rec. ib.]	Μωσῆς.
26.	σιωῶ [Gb. ∞]	σιωῶ [Rec. ib.]
Jas. 3:12.	οὐδὲμία πηγὴ ἀλκυῶν καὶ [Rec. ib.]	οὐτὲ ἀλκυῶν.
4:	1. καὶ πῶν [Gb. ∞]	omit πῶν [Rec. ib.]
15.	ποιήσω [Elz. ib.]	ποιήσωμεν [St. 3, ib.]
1 Pet. 2:1.	ἔπιρον ἡμῶν [St. 3, ib. & Gb. ∞]	ἔπιρον ἡμῶν [Rec. ib.]
3:	12. ὀφθαλμοῖ	ὁ ὀφθαλμοῖ [Elz. ib.]
4:	14. καὶ ἐνάματα	omitted [Rec. ib.]
2 Pet. 2:12.	γεγεννημένα	γεγεννημένα [Rec. ib.]
1 John: 8.	ἐν ἡμῖν οὐκ ἔστιν	{ οὐκ ἔστιν ἐν ἡμῖν [Rec. ib.]
4:	3. ἐν σαρκὶ ἠληθῆστα [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
Jude 25.	πρὸ παντὸς τοῦ αἰῶνος [Gb. ∞]	omitted [Rec. ib.]
Rev. 1:12.	βαλέην [Gb. ∞]	ἄβαλες [Rec. ib.]
	10. βαλέην	βαλέην [Rec. ib.]
	15. Νικολαΐτων	τῶν Νικολαΐτων [Rec. ib.]
3:	7. Δαβὶδ [Rec. ib.]	Δαβὶδ.
	20. καὶ ἐισελίσσονται [Gb. ∞]	omit καὶ [Rec. ib.]
4:	5. θρόνων αὐτῶν [Gb. ∞]	omit αὐτῶν [Rec. ib.]
5:	1. ἔσθλεν [Gb. ∞]	ἔσθλεν [Rec. ib.]
	3. ἀνω [Gb. ∞]	omitted [Rec. ib.]
	5. Δαβὶδ [Rec. ib.]	Δαβὶδ.
6:	7. φωνῶν [Rec. ib.]	omitted.
7:	1. σουτῶ [Gb. ∞]	ταῦτα [Rec. ib.]
9:10.	καὶ ἐν ταῖς	ἦν ἐν ταῖς [Rec. ib.]
	— ἡ ἰξουσία αὐτῶν τοῦ	{ καὶ ἡ ἰξουσία αὐτῶν [Rec. ib.]
	11. ἔχουσαι [Gb. ∞]	ἔχουσιν [Rec. ib.]
12:	2. ἱκραῶν [Gb. ∞]	κοῦτά [Rec. ib.]
13:13.	καταβαίνε·	καταβῆ.
	[Rec. ποιῆ καταβαίνε·]
16:	1. μεγάλης φωνῆς	φωνῆς μεγάλῃ [Rec. ib.]
	2. εἰς τῶν ἡν [Gb. ∞]	εἰ τῶν ἡν [Rec. ib.]
	— ἐπὶ τοῖς ἀνθρ. [Gb. ∞]	εἰς τοῖς ἀνθρ [Rec. ib.]
3.	omitted [Gb. ∞]	ζῶσις.
	[Rec. ζῶσα.]
9.	ὁ ἀνθρωπὸς τὸ ὄνομα [Gb. ∞]	{ omit ὁ ἀνθρωπὸς [Rec. ib.]
17:	4. ποτήριον χρυσοῦν	{ χρυσοῦν ποτήριον [Rec. ib.]
	8. τὸ ὄνομα	τὰ ὀνόματα [Rec. ib.]
18:	9. ἐκλάσονται [Gb. ∞]	ἐκλάσονται [Rec. ib.]
	16. λήγοντες [Gb. ∞ καὶ]	καὶ λήγοντες [Rec. ib.]
	19. τὰ πλοτα [Gb. ∞]	omit τὰ [Rec. ib.]
19:15.	ἐπιστομοῖ [Gb. ∞]	omitted [Rec. ib.]
	16. τὸ ὄνομα [Rec. ib.]	omit τὸ.
	18. μικρῶν τε [Gb. ∞]	omit τε [Rec. ib.]
	19. τὸν πόλιμον [Gb. ∞]	omit τὸν [Rec. ib.]
20:	8. τὸν πόλιμον [Gb. ∞]	omit τὸν [Rec. ib.]
	14. ἡ λίγη τοῦ πυρὸς [Gb. ∞]	omitted [Rec. ib.]
21:	6. αὐτῶ [Gb. ∞]	omitted [Rec. ib.]
	8. καὶ ἀμωστωλεῖς [Gb. ∞]	omit [Rec. ib.]
	9. ἐκ τῶν [Gb. ∞]	omit ἐκ [Rec. ib.]
	13. καὶ ἀπὸ [Gb. ∞]	omit καὶ [Rec. ib.]
	[Three times.]
22:16.	Δαβὶδ [Rec. ib.]	Δαβὶδ.

THE

ENGLISH

HEXAPLON

ΕΥΑΓΓΕΛΙΟΝ ΚΑΤΑ ΜΑΤΘΑΙΟΝ.

Κεφάλαιον Α.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MATTHEW.

CHAPTER I.

ΒΙΒΛΟΣ γενέσεως Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ, υἱοῦ Ἐδουίδ | υἱοῦ Ἀβραάμ. Ἀβραάμ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰσαάκ· Ἰσαάκ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰακώβ· Ἰακώβ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰούδαν καὶ τοὺς ἀδελφοὺς αὐτοῦ. Ἰούδας δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Φαρέσ καὶ τὸν Ζαρά ἐκ τῆς Θάμαρ· Φαρέσ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἐσρώμ· Ἐσρώμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀράμ· Ἀράμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀμιναδάβ· Ἀμιναδάβ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ναασσών· Ναασσών δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Σαλμών· Σαλμών δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Βοὺς ἐκ τῆς Ῥαχάβ· Βοὺς δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ὠββὴδ ἐκ τῆς Ῥούθ· Ὠββὴδ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰεσσαί· Ἰεσσαί δὲ

<sup>a</sup> Rec. Δηβιδ. [et sic passim.]

WICLIF — 1380.	TYNDALE — 1534.	CRANMER — 1539.
THE boke of the generacioun of ihesus crist : the sone of dauith, the sone of abraham;	THIS is the boke of the generacion of Iesus Christ the sonne of David, the sonne also of Abraham.	THYS is the boke of the generacion of Iesus Christ, the sonne of David, the sonne of Abraham.
<sup>2</sup> abraham bigat Isaac; Isaac : bigat Iacob; Iacob bigat Iudas; ⁊ hise britheren;	<sup>2</sup> Abraham begat Isaac : Isaac begat Iacob : Iacob begat Iudas and his brethren :	<sup>2</sup> Abraham begat Isaac : Isaac begat Iacob : Iacob begat Iudas and his brethren :
<sup>3</sup> Iudas bigat fares ⁊ zaram of thamar; Fares bigat Esrom; Esrom bigat Aram;	<sup>3</sup> Iudas begat Phares and zaram of Thamar : Phares begat Hesrom : Hesrom begat Aram :	<sup>3</sup> Iudas begat Phares and zaram of Thamar. Phares begat Esrom : Esrom begat Aram :
<sup>4</sup> Aram bigat Amynadab. Amynadab bigat Naason; nason bigat Salmon;	<sup>4</sup> Aram begat Aminadab : Aminadab begat Naasson : Naasson begat Salmon :	<sup>4</sup> Aram begat Aminadab : Aminadab begat Naasson : Naasson begat Salmon :
<sup>5</sup> Salmon bigat Booz of raab; Booz bigat obeth of ruth; Obeth bigat Iesse; <sup>6</sup> Iesse bigat Dauith the king. Dauith the king bigat Salomon of hir that was vries wijf;	<sup>5</sup> Salmon begat Boos of Rahab : Boos begat Obed of Ruth : Obed begat Iesse : <sup>6</sup> Iesse begat Dauid the kyng : Dauid the kyng begat Salomon; of her that was the wyfe of Ury :	<sup>5</sup> Salmon begat Boos of Rahab : Boos begat Obed of Ruth : Obed begat Iesse : <sup>6</sup> Iesse begat Dauid the kyng : Dauid the kyng begat Salomon. of her that was the wyfe of Ury :
<sup>7</sup> Salomon bigat Roboam; Roboam bigat abias; Abias bigat Asa; <sup>8</sup> Asa bigat Iosaphat. Iosaphat bigat Ioram; Ioram bigat Osias;	<sup>7</sup> Salomon begat Roboam : Roboam begat Abia : Abia begat Asa : <sup>8</sup> Asa begat Iosaphat : Iosaphat begat Ioram : Ioram begat Osias :	<sup>7</sup> Salomon begat Roboam : Roboam begat Abia : Abia begat Asa : <sup>8</sup> Asa begat Iosaphat : Iosaphat begat Ioram : Ioram begat Osias :
<sup>9</sup> Osias bigat ioatham; Ioatham bigat Achaz. Achaz bigat ezechie; <sup>10</sup> Ezechie bigat manasses; Manasses bigat Amon; Amon bigat Iosias; <sup>11</sup> Iosias bigat Ieconyas ⁊ hise britheren in to the	<sup>9</sup> Osias begat Ioatham : Ioatham begat Achas : Achas begat Ezechias : <sup>10</sup> Ezechias begat Manasses : Manasses begat Amon : Amon begat Iosias : <sup>11</sup> Iosias begat Ieconias and his brethren aboute	<sup>9</sup> Osias begat Ioatham : Ioatham begat Achas : Achas begat Ezechias : <sup>10</sup> Ezechias begat Manasses : Manasses begat Amon : Amon begat Iosias : <sup>11</sup> Iosias begat Ieconias ⁊ his brethren aboute the tyme they

ΕΥΑΓΓΕΛΙΟΝ ΚΑΤΑ ΜΑΤΘΑΙΟΝ.

Κεφάλαιον Α.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MATTHEW.

CHAPTER I.

ἐγέννησε τὸν Δαυὶδ τὸν βασιλέα. Δαυὶδ δὲ ὁ βασιλεὺς ἐγέννησε τὸν <sup>β</sup> Σολομῶνα | ἐκ τῆς τοῦ Οὐρίου. <sup>7</sup> Σολομὼν δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ῥοβοάμ. Ῥοβοάμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀβιά. Ἀβιά δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀσά. <sup>8</sup> Ἀσά δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰωσαφάτ. Ἰωσαφάτ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰωράμ. Ἰωράμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ὀζιάν. <sup>9</sup> Ὀζίας δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰωάθαμ. Ἰωάθαμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀχαζ. Ἀχαζ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἐζεκίαν. <sup>10</sup> Ἐζεκίας δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Μανασσῆ. Μανασσῆς δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀμών. | Ἀμών δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰωσίαν. <sup>11</sup> Ἰωσίας δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰεχονίαν καὶ τοὺς ἀδελφοὺς αὐτοῦ,

<sup>β</sup> Rec. Σολομῶνα.

<sup>ε</sup> Alex. Ἀσάφ.

<sup>δ</sup> Alex. Ἀμός.

GENEVA — 1557.

RHEIMS — 1582.

AUTHORISED — 1611.

THE Booke of the generation of Iesus Christe, the sonne of Dauid, the sonne of Abraham. <sup>2</sup> Abraham begate Isaac. And Isaac, begate Iacob. And Iacob, begate Iudas and his brethren. <sup>3</sup> And Iudas, begate Phares and Zaram of Thamar. And Phares begate Esrom. And Esrom begate Aram. <sup>4</sup> And Aram begate Aminadab. And Aminadab begate Naasson. And Naasson begate Salmon. <sup>5</sup> And Salmon begate Booz of Rachab. And Booz begate Obed of Ruth. And Obed begate Iesse. <sup>6</sup> And Iesse begate Dauid the Kyng. And Dauid the Kyng begate Solomon, of her that was the wife of Vrie. <sup>7</sup> And Solomon begate Roboam. And Roboam begate Abia. And Abia begate Asa. <sup>8</sup> And Asa begate Iosaphat. And Iosaphat begate Ioram. And Ioram begate Ozias. <sup>9</sup> And Ozias begate Ioatham. And Ioatham begate Achaz. And Achaz begate Ezechias. <sup>10</sup> And Ezechias begate Manasses. And Manasses begate Amon. And Amon begate Iosias. <sup>11</sup> And Iosias begate Iacim. And Iacim begate Iechonias and his brethern, about the time they

THE booke of the generation of Iesus Christ, the sonne of Dauid, the sonne of Abraham. <sup>2</sup> Abraham begat Isaac, And Isaac begat Iacob. And Iacob begat Iudas and his brethren: <sup>3</sup> And Iudas begat Phares and Zaram of Thamar. And Phares begat Esrom. And Esrom begat Aram. <sup>4</sup> And Aram begat Aminadab. And Aminadab begat Naasson. And Naasson begat Salmon. <sup>5</sup> And Salmon begat Booz of Raab. And Booz begat Obed of Ruth. And Obed begate Iesse.

<sup>6</sup> And Iesse begat Dauid the King. And Dauid the King begat Solomon of her that was the vvife of Vrias. <sup>7</sup> And Solomon begat Roboam. And Roboam begat Abia. And Abia begat Asa. <sup>8</sup> And Asa begate Iosaphat. And Iosaphat begate Ioram. And Ioram begate Ozias. <sup>9</sup> And Ozias begate Ioatham. And Ioatham begate Achaz. And Achaz begate Ezechias. <sup>10</sup> And Ezechias begat Manasses. And Manasses begate Amon. And Amon begate Iosias. <sup>11</sup> And Iosias begat Iechonias &

THE Booke of the generation of Iesus Christ, the sonne of Dauid, the sonne of Abraham. <sup>2</sup> Abraham begate Isaac, and Isaac begate Iacob, and Iacob begate Iudas and his brethren. <sup>3</sup> And Iudas begate Phares and Zara of Thamar, and Phares begate Esrom, and Esrom begate Aram. <sup>4</sup> And Aram begate Aminadab, and Aminadab begate Naasson, and Naasson begate Salmon. <sup>5</sup> And Salmon begate Boos of Rachab, and Boos begate Obed of Ruth, and Obed begate Iesse.

<sup>6</sup> And Iesse begate Dauid the King, & Dauid the King begate Solomon of her that had bin the wife of Urias. <sup>7</sup> And Solomon begate Roboam, and Roboam begate Abia, and Abia begate Asa. <sup>8</sup> And Asa begate Iosaphat, and Iosaphat begate Ioram, and Ioram begate Ozias. <sup>9</sup> And Ozias begate Ioatham, and Ioatham begate Achas, and Achas begate Ezechias. <sup>10</sup> And Ezechias begate Manasses, and Manasses begate Amon, and Amon begate Iosias. <sup>11</sup> And Iosias begate Iechonias and his

ἐπὶ τῆς μετοικεσίας Βαβυλῶνος. <sup>12</sup> Μετὰ δὲ τὴν μετοικεσίαν Βαβυλῶνος, Ἰεχονίας ἐγέννησε τὸν Σαλαθιὴλ· Σαλαθιὴλ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ζοροβάβελ· <sup>13</sup> Ζοροβάβελ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀβιοῦδ· Ἀβιοῦδ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἐλιακεὶμ· Ἐλιακεὶμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀζῶρ· <sup>14</sup> Ἀζῶρ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Σαδῶκ· Σαδῶκ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἀχειμ· Ἀχειμ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἐλιοῦδ· <sup>15</sup> Ἐλιοῦδ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἐλεάζαρ· Ἐλεάζαρ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ματθάν· Ματθάν δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰακώβ· <sup>16</sup> Ἰακώβ δὲ ἐγέννησε τὸν Ἰωσήφ τὸν ἄνδρα Μαρίας, ἐξ ἧς ἐγεννήθη Ἰησοῦς ὁ λεγόμενος Χριστός.

<sup>17</sup> Πᾶσαι οὖν αἱ γενεαὶ ἀπὸ Ἀβραὰμ ἕως Δαυὶδ, γενεαὶ δεκατέσσαρες· καὶ ἀπὸ Δαυὶδ ἕως τῆς μετοικεσίας Βαβυλῶνος, γενεαὶ δεκατέσσαρες· καὶ ἀπὸ τῆς μετοικεσίας Βαβυλῶνος ἕως τοῦ Χριστοῦ, γενεαὶ δεκατέσσαρες.

<sup>18</sup> Τοῦ δὲ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ ἡ γέννησις | οὕτως ἦν. μνηστευθείσης γὰρ τῆς μητρὸς

· Const. γίννησις. Alex. γίνισις.

WICLIF—1380.

transmygracioun of babuloyne, <sup>12</sup> and after the transmygracioun of babuloyne: Ieonynas bigat Salatiel Salatiel bigat zorobabel <sup>13</sup> zorobabel bigat Abyut. Abyut bigat eliachym Eliachym bigat Asor.

<sup>14</sup> Asor bigat Sadoch Sadoch bigat achym Achym bigat Elyut. <sup>15</sup> Eliut bigat Eliusar Eliasar bigat mathan Mathan bigat Jacob. <sup>16</sup> Jacob bigat Joseph the housbonde of mari: of whom ihesus was borun that is elepid crist.

And so alle generaciouns fro abraham to dauith ben fouretene generaciouns: τ fro Dauith to the transmygracioun of babuloyne: ben xiiij. generaciouns: τ fro the transmygracioun of babuloyne to crist: ben fouretene generaciouns.

but the generacioun of crist was thus. Whan mari the modir of ihesus was spoused to ioseph: bifor they eamen to gidre, seche was founde haunge of the holy goost in the wombe. <sup>19</sup> τ ioseph hir housbonde for he was ritiful τ wold not pupplische hir: he wold prouly haue lefte hir. <sup>20</sup> but while he thought these thingis: lo the angel of the lord apperid to hym in sleep and seide: ioseph the sone of dauith: nyle thou drede to take marie thi wijf for that thing that is borun in hir: is of the holi goost. <sup>21</sup> τ seche schal ber a sone: τ thou schalt clepe his name ihesus: for he schal make his peple saaf fro her synnes.

<sup>22</sup> For al this thing was don, that it schulde be fulfilled that was seid of the lord bi a prophet: sayinge: <sup>23</sup> lo a virgin schal broue in wombe τ seche schal ber a sone: τ thi schulen clepe his name emmanuel. that is: to-ge-wi-th god with us.

<sup>24</sup> τ ioseph roos fro sleep, and dide as the angel of the lord comaundid him, τ took marie his wijf.

TYNDALE—1534.

the tyme they were caried away to Babylon.

<sup>12</sup> And after they were brought to Babylon: Iechonias begat Salathiel: Salathiel begat zorobabel: <sup>13</sup> zorobabel begat Abiud: Abiud begat Eliachim: Eliachim begat Azor:

<sup>14</sup> Azor begat Sadoc: Sadoc begat Achin: Achin begat Eliud: <sup>15</sup> Eliud begat Eleasar: Eleasar begat Matthan: Matthan begat Jacob: <sup>16</sup> Jacob begat Joseph the husbunde of Mary: of which was boren that Iesus: that is called Christ.

<sup>17</sup> All the generaciouns from Abraham to David are fowretene generaciouns. And from David vnto the captiuite of Babylon are fowretene generaciouns. And from the captiuite of Babylon vnto Christ: are also fowrtene generaciouns.

<sup>18</sup> The byrthe of Iesus Christ was on this wyse. When hys mother Mary was betrothred to Ioseph: before they came to dwell togedder, she was founde with chylde by the holy goost. <sup>19</sup> Then Ioseph her husbunde beinge a perfect man and loth to make an example of hir: was mynded to put her away secretly. <sup>20</sup> Whill he thus thought: beholde the angel of the lord appered vnto him in a dreame: sayinge: Ioseph the sone of David: feare not to take vnto the Mary thy wyfe. For that which is conceaued in her is of the holy goost. <sup>21</sup> She shall brynge forth a sonne: τ thou shalt call his name Iesus. For he shall save his peple from their synnes.

<sup>22</sup> All this was done to fulfill that which was spoken of the Lorde by the Prophet: sayinge: <sup>23</sup> Beholde a mayde shall be with chylde: and shall brynge forth a sonne: and they shall call his name Emmanuel: which is by interpretacion: God with vs.

<sup>24</sup> And Ioseph assone as he awoke out of slepe: did as the angel of the Lorde bade hym: and toke hys wyfe vnto hym:

CRANMER—1539.

were caried away to Babylon. <sup>12</sup> And after they were brought to Babylon. Iechonias begat Salathiel: Salathiel begat zorobabel: <sup>13</sup> zorobabel begat Abiud: Abiud begat Eliachim: Eliachim begat Azor:

<sup>14</sup> Azor begat Sadoc: Sadoc begat Achin: Achin begat Eliud: <sup>15</sup> Eliud begat Eleasar: Eleasar begat Matthan: Matthan begat Jacob: <sup>16</sup> Jacob begat Ioseph the husbunde of Mary: of whom was borne Iesus, euen he that is called Christ.

<sup>17</sup> And so all the generaciouns from Abraham to David, are fouretene generaciouns: And from David vnto the captiuite of Babylon, are fouretene generaciouns. And from the captiuite of Babylon vnto Christ, are fouretene generaciouns.

<sup>18</sup> The byrth of Iesus Christ was on this wyse. When his mother Mary was maryed to Ioseph (before they came to dwell togedder) she was founde with chylde by the holy goost. <sup>19</sup> Then Ioseph her husbunde (because he was a righteous man, and wold not put her to shame) he was mynded preuely to departe from her. <sup>20</sup> But whill he thus thought, beholde, the angel of the Lorde appered vnto him in slepe sayinge: Ioseph, thou sone of David: feare not to take vnto the Mary thy wyfe. For that which is conceaued in her, cometh of the holy goost. <sup>21</sup> She shall bringe forth a sonne, and thou shalt call his name Iesus. For he shall save his people from their synnes. <sup>22</sup> All this was done, that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken of the Lorde by the Prophet. sayinge: <sup>23</sup> Beholde, a mayde shall be with chylde, and shal bringe forth a sonne, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which ys a man interpret, it is asmoeth to say as God with vs.

<sup>24</sup> And Ioseph as soon as he awoke out of slepe, dyd as the angel of the Lorde had bydden him, and he toke hys wyfe vnto seid, called me, are, fe, from, us, w, t, are, their, right, ought, us, thought, thought.

αὐτοῦ Μαρίας τῇ Ἰωσήφ, πρὶν ἢ συνελθεῖν αὐτοὺς, εὐρέθη ἐν γαστρὶ ἔχουσα ἐκ Πνεύματος ἁγίου. <sup>19</sup> Ἰωσήφ δὲ ὁ ἀνὴρ αὐτῆς, δίκαιος ὢν καὶ μὴ θέλων αὐτὴν παραδειγματίσαι, ἐβουλήθη λάθρα ἀπολύσαι αὐτήν. <sup>20</sup> ταῦτα δὲ αὐτοῦ ἐνθυμηθέντος, ἰδὸν, ἄγγελος Κυρίου κατ' ὄναρ ἐφάνη αὐτῷ, λέγων, Ἐγὼ εἰμι Ἰωσήφ, υἱὸς Δαυὶδ, μὴ φοβηθῆς παραλαβεῖν Μαριάμ τὴν γυναικὰ σου· τὸ γὰρ ἐν αὐτῇ γεννηθὲν ἐκ Πνεύματος ἁγίου. <sup>21</sup> τέξεται δὲ υἱόν, καὶ καλέσεις τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ Ἰησοῦν· αὐτὸς γὰρ σώσει τὸν λαὸν αὐτοῦ ἀπὸ τῶν ἁμαρτιῶν αὐτῶν. <sup>22</sup> Τοῦτο δὲ ὄλον γέγονεν, ἵνα πληρωθῇ τὸ ρηθὲν ἵπὸ τοῦ Κυρίου | διὰ τοῦ προφήτου, λέγοντος, <sup>23</sup> Ἰδοὺ, ἡ παρθένος ἐν γαστρὶ ἔξει καὶ τέξεται υἱόν, καὶ καλέσουσι τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ Ἐμμανουήλ, ὃ ἐστι μεθερμηνεύμενον, Μεθ' ἡμῶν ὁ Θεός. <sup>24</sup> Διεγερθεῖς | δὲ ὁ Ἰωσήφ ἀπὸ τοῦ ὕπνου ἐποίησεν ὡς προσέταξεν αὐτῷ ὁ ἄγγελος Κυρίου· καὶ

f Alex. ἐπὶ Κυρίου.

f Alex. ἡγεθεις.

GENEVA — 1557.

were carried a waie to Babylon. <sup>12</sup> And after they were brought to Babylon, Iechonias begate Salathiel. And Salathiel begate Zorobabel. <sup>13</sup> And Zorobabel begate Abiud. And Abiud begate Eliacim. And Eliacim begate Azor. <sup>14</sup> And Azor begate Sadoc. And Sadoc begate Achim. And Achim begate Eliud. <sup>15</sup> And Eliud begate Eleazar. And Eleazar begate Matthan. And Matthan begate Iacob. <sup>16</sup> And Iacob begate Ioseph, the husband of Marie, of whome was borne Iesus, that is called Christe. <sup>17</sup> And so all the generations from Abraham to Dauid, are fourtene generations. And from Dauid to the tyme they were caryed into Babylon, are fourtene generations. And from the tyme they were caryed into Babylon to Christe, are also fourtene generations.

<sup>18</sup> Now the byrth of Iesus Christ was on thys wyse. When his mother Marie was betrothed to Ioseph (before they came together) she was found wyth chylde of the holy Gost. <sup>19</sup> Then Ioseph her husband beyng a iust man, and loth to make her a publike example of infamie, was mynded to put her a way secretly.

<sup>20</sup> Whye he thus reasoned with him self beholde the Angel of the Lord appeared vnto him in a dreame, saying, Ioseph the sonne of Dauid, feare not to take Marie for thy wife: For that whyeh is conceaued in her, is of the holy Gost. <sup>21</sup> She shal bring forth a sonne, and thou shalt call his name Iesus. For he shal saue his people from their synnes. <sup>22</sup> All this was done to fulfil that which was spoken of the Lord by the Prophet,

<sup>23</sup> Behold, that mayds shal be wyth chylde, and shal bring forth a sonne, and they shal call his name Emmanuel, which is by interpretation, God with vs. <sup>24</sup> And Ioseph as some as he awoke out of slepe, dyd as the Angel of the Lord bade and his brethern in the Transmigration of Babylon. <sup>12</sup> And after the Transmigration of Babylon, Iechonias begat Salathiel. And Salathiel begat Zorobabel. <sup>13</sup> And Zorobabel begat Abiud. And Abiud begat Eliacim. And Eliacim begat Azor. <sup>14</sup> And Azor begat Sadoc. And Sadoc begat Achim. And Achim begat Eliud.

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>15</sup> And Eliud begat Eleazar. And Eleazar begat Matthan. And Matthan begat Iacob.

<sup>16</sup> And Iacob begat Ioseph the husband of MARIE: of vvhom vvas borne IESVS, vvhio is called CHRIST.

<sup>17</sup> Therefore al the generations from Abraham vnto Dauid, fourtene generations. And from Dauid to the Transmigration of Babylon, fourtene generations. And from the Transmigration of Babylon vnto CHRIST, fourtene generations.

<sup>18</sup> And the generation of CHRIST vvas in this vwise. When his mother MARIE vvas sponed to Ioseph, before they came together, she vvas found to be vwith childe by the Holy Ghost. <sup>19</sup> Wherevpon Ioseph, for that he vvas a iust man, & vwould not put her to open shame: vvas minded secretly to dismishe her. <sup>20</sup> But as he vvas thus thinking, behold the Angel of our Lord appeared to him in sleepe saying: Ioseph sonne of Dauid, feare not to take MARIE thy vvife, for that vvwhich is borne in her, is of the Holy Ghost. <sup>21</sup> And she shal bring forth a sonne: and thou shalt call his name IESVS. For he shal saue his people from their sinnes. <sup>22</sup> And al this vvas done that it might be fulfilled vvhich our Lord spake by the Prophet saying, <sup>23</sup> Behold a Virgin shal be vwith childe, and bring forth a sonne, and they shal call his name Emmanuel, vvhich being interpreted is, God vvith vs. <sup>24</sup> And Ioseph rising vp from sleepe, did as the Angel of our Lord commanded him, and brethren, about the time they were carried away to Babylon. <sup>12</sup> And after they were brought to Babylon, Iechonias begate Salathiel, and Salathiel begate Zorobabel. <sup>13</sup> And Zorobabel begate Abiud, and Abiud begate Eliakim, and Eliakim begate Azor. <sup>14</sup> And Azor begate Sadoc, and Sadoc begate Achim, and Achim begate Eliud. <sup>15</sup> And Eliud begate Eleazar, and Eleazar begate Matthan, and Matthan begate Iacob. <sup>16</sup> And Iacob begate Ioseph the husband of Mary, of whom was borne Iesus, who is called Christ. <sup>17</sup> So all the generations from Abraham to Dauid, are fourtene generations: and from Dauid vntill the carying away into Babylon, are fourteteen generations: and from the carying away into Babylon vnto Christ, are fourteteen generations.

AUTHORISED — 1611.

<sup>18</sup> Now the birth of Iesus Christ was on this wise: When as his mother Mary was espoused to Ioseph (before they came together) shee was found with childe of the holy Ghost. <sup>19</sup> Then Ioseph her husband being a iust man, and not willing to make her a publike example, was minded to put her away priuily. <sup>20</sup> But while he thought on these things, behold, the Angel of the Lord appeared vnto him in a dreame, saying, Ioseph thou sonne of Dauid, feare not to take vnto thee Mary thy wife; for that which is conceiued in her, is of the holy Ghost. <sup>21</sup> And she shall bring forth a sonne, and thou shalt call his Name Iesus: for he shall saue his people from their sinnes. <sup>22</sup> (Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the Prophet, saying, <sup>23</sup> Behold, a Virgin shall be with childe, and shall bring forth a Sonne, and they shall call his Name Emmanuel, which being interpreted, is, God with vs.) <sup>24</sup> Then Ioseph, being raised from sleepe, did as the Angel of the Lord had bidden him, and tooke vnto him his παρέλαβε τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ, <sup>25</sup> καὶ οὐκ ἐγίνωσκει αὐτὴν, ἕως οὗ ἔτεκε τὸν υἱὸν ἅ αὐτῆς τὸν πρωτότοκον· καὶ ἐκάλεσε τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ Ἰησοῦν.

* Or, his name shall be called

11. Τοῦ δὲ Ἰησοῦ γεννηθέντος ἐν Βηθλεὲμ τῆς Ἰουδαίας, ἐν ἡμέραις Ἡρώδου τοῦ βασιλέως, ἰδοὺ, μάγοι ἀπὸ ἀνατολῶν παρεγένοντο εἰς Ἱερουσόλυμα, λέγοντες, 'Ποῦ ἐστὶν ὁ τεχθεὶς βασιλεὺς τῶν Ἰουδαίων; εἶδομεν γὰρ αὐτοῦ τὸν ἀστέρα ἐν τῇ ἀνατολῇ, καὶ ἤλθομεν προσκυνῆσαι αὐτόν.' <sup>3</sup> Ἀκούσας δὲ Ἡρώδης ὁ βασιλεὺς ἐταράχθη, καὶ πᾶσα Ἱερουσόλυμα μετ' αὐτοῦ· <sup>4</sup> καὶ συναγαγὼν πάντας τοὺς ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ γραμματεῖς τοῦ λαοῦ, ἐπυνθάνετο παρ' αὐτῶν, ποῦ ὁ Χριστὸς γεννᾶται. <sup>5</sup> οἱ δὲ εἶπον αὐτῷ, 'Ἐν Βηθλεὲμ τῆς Ἰουδαίας. οὕτω γὰρ γέγραπται διὰ τοῦ προφήτου, <sup>6</sup> "Καὶ σὺ, Βηθλεὲμ, γῆ Ἰούδα, οὐδαμῶς ἐλαχίστη εἶ ἐν τοῖς ἡγεμόσιν Ἰούδα· ἐκ σοῦ γὰρ ἐξελεύσεται ἡγούμενος, ὅστις ποιμανεῖ τὸν λαόν μου τὸν

<sup>a</sup> Alex. = αὐτῆς τὸν πρωτότοκον.<sup>1</sup> Alex. Ἱερουσαλήμ.<sup>b</sup> Alex. ὁ βασιλεὺς Ἡρώδης.

WICLIF — 1380.

<sup>25</sup> and he knew hir not til sche hadde borun hir first bigetun sone, & clepid his name ihesus.

2. THERFOR whanne ihesus was borun in Bethleem of iuda, in the dayes of king Eroude; lo astronomys camen fro the east to ierusalem <sup>2</sup> & seiden; where is he that is borun king of iewis? for we han seen his sterre in the east; and we comen for to worschip hym. <sup>3</sup> But kyng croude herde that was troubled; & al ierusalem with hym; <sup>4</sup> & he gaderid to gidre al the princis of prestis and scribis of the puple, & enquerid of hem where crist shulde be borun; <sup>5</sup> & thei seiden to him in bethleem of iuda; for so it is writun bi a profete. <sup>6</sup> And thou bethleem the lond of iuda are not the leest among the princis of iuda; for of thee a duk schal go out that schal gouerne ny puple israhel.

<sup>7</sup> than eroude clepid pryvyli the astro-myenes, and lerned of hem bisili the tyme of the sterre that apperid to hem; <sup>8</sup> and he seke hem in to bethleem; & seide; go ye & axe ze bisili of the child; & whanne ze han founden tel ze it to me; that I also come & worschip him; <sup>9</sup> & whan thei hadde herd the king; thei wenten forth; and lo the sterre that thei saien in the east, went bifor hem; til it came & stode aboue wher the child was; <sup>10</sup> & thei sijen the sterre; & ioiciden with a ful grete ioie; <sup>11</sup> & thei entriden in to the hous; & founden the child, with marie his modir; & thei fillen down; <sup>12</sup> & worschpiden him; & whanne thei hadden opened her tresouris; thei offriden to hym ziftis, gold, encence, and myrre; <sup>12</sup> And whanne thei hadden take an answer in slepe; that thei schulden not turne agen to eroude; thei turneden agen bi another weye in to her cuntre.

<sup>13</sup> & whanne thei werun gon awai; lo the angell of the lord, apperid to ioseph bigetun, begotten astronomys, astronomen, or wise men. clepid, called. saien, sawe. warden, rejoiced. her, their. duk, dux, a captain or leader. agen, ager. -fuls, gyfte. agen, again.

TYNDALE — 1534.

<sup>25</sup> and knewe her not tyll she had brought forth hir fyrst sonne; and called his name Iesus.

2. WHEN Iesus was borne at Bethleem in Iury, in the tyme of Herode the kyng. Beholde, there came wyse men from the east to Ierusalem <sup>2</sup> saynge: Where is he that is borne kyng of the Iues? We have sene his starre in the east; and are come to worschp him.

<sup>3</sup> When Herode the kyng had herd this; he was troubled, and all Ierusalem with hym; <sup>4</sup> and he gathered all the chefe Prestes and Scribes of the people; and axed of them where Christ shulde be borne. <sup>5</sup> And they sayde vnto hym: at Bethleem in Iury. For thus it is written by the Prophet. <sup>6</sup> And thou Bethleem in the londe of Iury; art not the leest concerninge the Princes of Iuda. For out of the shall come the captayne; that shall govern my people Israhel.

<sup>7</sup> Then Herod prevely called the wyse men; and dyligently enqyred of them; the tyme of the starre that appered; <sup>8</sup> and sent them to Bethleem saynge: Goo and searche dyligently for the chylde. And when ye have founde hym; bringe me worde; & I maye come & worshippe hym also.

<sup>9</sup> When they had heard the kyng; they departed; and lo the starre which they sawe in the eeste; went before them; tyll it came and stode over the place wher the chylde was. <sup>10</sup> When they sawe the starre; they were marvelously glad; <sup>11</sup> and went into the house; and found the chylde with Mary his mother; and kneled doune and worshipped hym; and opened their treasures; and offred vnto hym gyftes; gold; francysence and myrre. <sup>12</sup> And after they were warned of God in a dreame; that they shuld not go agayne to Herod; they returned into their awne countrie another waye.

<sup>13</sup> When they were departed; beholde the angell of the Lorde appered to Ioseph

CRANMER — 1539.

hym, <sup>25</sup> and knewe her not, till she had brought forth hir fyrst begotten sonne, and called his name Iesus.

2. WHEN Iesus was borne at Bethleem a cite of Iewri, in the tyme of Herode the kyng. Beholde, there came wysemen from the east to Ierusalem, <sup>2</sup> saynge; where is he that is borne kyng of Iewes? For we haue sene his starre in the east, and are come to worschp him. <sup>3</sup> When Herode the kyng had herd these things, he was troubled, & all the cite of Ierusalem with hym: <sup>4</sup> And when he had gathered all the chefe Prestes & scribes of the people together, he demaunded of them, where Christ shulde be borne. <sup>5</sup> And they saide vnto hym: at Bethleem in Iewry. For thus it is written by the Prophet: <sup>6</sup> And thou Bethleem in the lande of Iuda, art not the leest amonge the Princes of Iuda. For out of the shal there come vnto me the captayne, that shall gouerne my people Israel.

<sup>7</sup> Then Herode (when he had preuely called the wysemen) he enqyred of them dyligently, what tyme the starre appered; <sup>8</sup> and he had them go to Bethleem and saide: Goo your waye thither, and searche dyligently for the chylde. And when ye haue founde hym, bringe me worde againe, that I maye come and worschp hym also. <sup>9</sup> When they had heard the kyng, they departed; and lo, the starre which they sawe in the easte, went before them, tyll it came, & stode ouer the place, wher the chylde was: <sup>10</sup> When they sawe the starre, they were excedyng glad: <sup>11</sup> and went into the house, and found the chylde with Mary his mother & fell doune flat and worschp'd hym, and opened their treasures, and offred vnto hym gyftes, gold, francysence & myrre. <sup>12</sup> And after they were warned of God in slepe (that they shuld not go agayne to Herode) they returned into their awne countrie another waye.

<sup>13</sup> When they were departed: beholde, the angell of the Lord appered to Ioseph

“Ἰσραήλ.” <sup>7</sup> *Τότε Ἡρώδης, λάθρα καλέσας τοὺς μάγους, ἠκρίβωσε παρ’ αὐτῶν τὸν χρόνον τοῦ φαινομένου ἀστέρος, καὶ πέμψας αὐτοὺς εἰς Βηθλεὲμ εἶπε, ‘Πο-
 ρευθέντες ἄκριβως ἐξετάσατε| περὶ τοῦ παιδίου ἐπὰν δὲ εὔρητε, ἀπαγγείλατε μοι, ὅπως καγὼ ἐλθὼν προσκυνήσω αὐτῷ.’* <sup>8</sup> Οἱ δὲ ἀκούσαντες τοῦ βασιλέως ἐπορεύθησαν· καὶ ἰδοὺ, ὁ ἀστὴρ, ὃν εἶδον ἐν τῇ ἀνατολῇ, προῆγεν αὐτοὺς, ἕως ἐλθῶν ἔστη| ἐπάνω οὐ ἦν τὸ παιδίον. <sup>10</sup> *ἰδόντες δὲ τὸν ἀστέρα, ἐχάρησαν χαρὰν μεγάλην
 σφόδρα·* <sup>11</sup> καὶ ἐλθόντες εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν, ἔειδον| τὸ παιδίον μετὰ Μαρίας τῆς μητρὸς αὐτοῦ, καὶ πεσόντες προσεκύνησαν αὐτῷ, καὶ ἀνοίξαντες τοὺς θησαυροὺς αὐτῶν προσήνεγκαν αὐτῷ δῶρα, χρυσὸν καὶ λίβανον καὶ σμύρναν. <sup>12</sup> καὶ χρηματισθέντες κατ’ ὄναρ μὴ ἀνακάμψαι πρὸς Ἡρώδη, δι’ ἄλλης ὁδοῦ ἀνεχώρησαν εἰς τὴν χώραν αὐτῶν.
<sup>13</sup> Ἀναχωρησάντων δὲ αὐτῶν, ἰδοὺ, ἄγγελος Κυρίου φαίνεται κατ’ ὄναρ τῷ

<sup>1</sup> Alex. Ἐστράται ἀκριβῶς.<sup>m</sup> Alex. ἰσράηλ.<sup>n</sup> Rec. ἴσον.

GENEVA—1557.

toke his wife vnto him. <sup>25</sup> And knewe her not, till she had brought forth her first borne sonne, and called his name IESVS.

2. WHEN IESVS was borne at Bethlehem in Iurie, in the tyme of Herode the king: Beholde there came wise men from the East to Ierusalem, <sup>2</sup> Saying, Where is that king of Iewes that is borne? For we haue sene his starre in the East, and are come to worship him. <sup>3</sup> When king Herode heard this, he was troubled, and all Ierusalem with him. <sup>4</sup> And gathering together all the chiefe Priests & Scribes of the people, he asked of them, where Christe should be borne. <sup>5</sup> And they said vnto him, at Bethlehem in Iurie:
 For so it is written by the Prophet:
<sup>6</sup> And thou Bethlehem in § land of Iurie, art not the least among the Princes of Iuda: for out of thee shal come vnto me, the captaine that shal governe my people Israel.

¶ Then Herode pryncely called the wise men and diligently inquired of them
 the time of the starre that appeared.
<sup>8</sup> And sent them to Bethlehem, saying,
 Go, and search diligently for the babe.
 And when ye haue found him, bring me worde againe, that I may come and worship him also. <sup>9</sup> When they had heard the king, they departed: and lo,
 the starre which they saw in the East,
 went before them, till it came & stode ouer the place wher the childe was.
<sup>10</sup> When they saw the starre, they reioyced with an exceeding great gladnes. <sup>11</sup> And went into the house, and found the child with Marie his mother, and falling downe, worshipped him, and opened their treasures, and offered vnto him gyftes, gold, frankensence, and myrrhe. <sup>12</sup> And after they were warned of God in a dreame, that they should not go againe to Herode:
 they returned into their owne contrey an other waie.

<sup>13</sup> After their departure, beholde the Angel of the Lord appeared to Ioseph in

RHEIMS—1582.

tooke his wvife. <sup>25</sup> And he knewv her not till she brought forth her first borne sonne:
 and called his name IESVS.

2. WHEN IESVS therefore vvas borne in Bethlehem of Iuda in the dayes of Herod the King, behold, there came Sages from the East to Hierusalem, <sup>2</sup> saying, vvhether is he that is borne King of the Iewes? For vve haue sene his starre in the East, and are come to adore him.
<sup>3</sup> And Herod the King hearing this, vvas troubled, & all Hierusalem vwith him.
<sup>4</sup> And assembling together all the high Priests & the Scribes of the people, he inquired of them vvhether Christ should be borne. <sup>5</sup> But they said to him, In Bethlehem of Iuda. For so it is vvritten by the Prophet: <sup>6</sup> And thou Bethlehem the land of Iuda, art not the least among the Princes of Iuda: for out of thee shal come forth the Capitaine that shal rule my people Israel.

¶ Then Herod secretly calling the Sages, learned diligently of them the time of the starre which appeared to them: <sup>8</sup> and sending them into Bethlehem, said, Go, and inquire diligently of the childe: and when you shal finde him, make reporte to me, that I also may come and adore him. <sup>9</sup> Who hauing heard the king, went their way: and behold the starre which they had seen in the East, went before them, vntill it came & stode ouer, where the childe was. <sup>10</sup> And seing the starre, they reioyced vwith exceeding great ioy. <sup>11</sup> And entring into the house, they found the childe vwith MARIE his mother, & falling downe adored him: and opening their treasures, they offered to him gyftes: gold, frankincense, & myrrhe.
<sup>12</sup> And hauing receiued an ansver in sleepe that they should not returne to Herod, they vvent backe an other vvay into their countrey.

<sup>13</sup> And after they vvere departed, behold an Angel of our Lord appeared in sleepe

AUTHORISED—1611.

wife: <sup>25</sup> And knew her not, till shee had brought forth her first borne Sonne, and he called his Name IESUS.

2. NOW when IESUS was borne in Bethlehem of Iudea, in the dayes of Herod the king, behold, there came Wise men from the East to Hierusalem, <sup>2</sup> Saying,
 Where is he that is borne King of the Iewes? for we haue sene his Starre in the East, and are come to worship him.
<sup>3</sup> When Herod the King had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Hieru-salem with him. <sup>4</sup> And when he had gathered all the chiefe Priests and Scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where Christ should be borne. <sup>5</sup> And they said vnto him, In Bethlehem of Iudea:
 For thus it is written by the Prophet:
<sup>6</sup> And thou Bethlehem in the land of Iuda, art not the least among the Princes of Iuda:
 for out of thee shall come a Govern-our, that shall <sup>a</sup> rule my people Israel.

¶ Then Herod, when he had pryncely called the Wise men, enquired of them diligently what time the Starre appeared: <sup>8</sup> And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, Go, and search diligently for the yong child, and when ye haue found him, bring me worde againe, that I may come and worship him also. <sup>9</sup> When they had heard the King, they departed, and lo,
 the Starre which they saw in the East,
 went before them, till it came and stood ouer where the yong childe was. <sup>10</sup> When they saw the Starre, they reioyced with exceeding great ioy.

<sup>11</sup> And when they were come into the house, they saw the yong child with Mary his mother, and fell downe, and worshipped him:
 and when they had opened their treasures, they <sup>b</sup> presented vnto him gyfts, Gold, and Frankincense, and Myrrhe. <sup>12</sup> And being warned of God in a dreame, that they should not returne to Herode, they departed into their owne countrey another way.

<sup>13</sup> And when they were departed, behold, the Angel of the Lord appeareth to

<sup>a</sup> Or, feed. <sup>b</sup> Or, offer.

Ἰωσήφ, λέγων, Ἐγερθεὶς παράλαβε τὸ παιδίον καὶ τὴν μητέρα αὐτοῦ, καὶ φεῦγε εἰς Αἴγυπτον, καὶ ἴσθι ἐκεῖ ἕως ἂν εἶπω σοί· μέλλει γὰρ Ἡρώδης ζητεῖν τὸ παιδίον, τοῦ ἀπολέσαι αὐτό.<sup>14</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἐγερθεὶς παρέλαβε τὸ παιδίον καὶ τὴν μητέρα αὐτοῦ νυκτὸς, καὶ ἀνεχώρησεν εἰς Αἴγυπτον,<sup>15</sup> καὶ ἦν ἐκεῖ ἕως τῆς τελευτῆς Ἡρώδου· ἵνα πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθὲν ὑπὸ τοῦ Κυρίου διὰ τοῦ προφήτου, λέγοντος, Ἐξ Αἰγύπτου ἐκάλεσα τὸν υἱόν μου.<sup>16</sup> Τότε Ἡρώδης, ἰδὼν ὅτι ἐνεπαίχθη ὑπὸ τῶν μάγων, ἐθυμώθη λίαν, καὶ ἀποστείλας ἀνεῖλε πάντας τοὺς παῖδας τοὺς ἐν Βηθλεὲμ καὶ ἐν πᾶσι τοῖς ὀρίοις αὐτῆς, ἀπὸ διετοῦς καὶ κατωτέρω, κατὰ τὸν χρόνον ὃν ἠκρίβωσε παρὰ τῶν μάγων.<sup>17</sup> Τότε ἐπληρώθη τὸ ῥηθὲν ὑπὸ Ἰερεμίου τοῦ προφήτου, λέγοντος, Φωνὴ ἐν Ῥαμᾷ ἠκούσθη, ὀρθῆνος καὶ κλαυθμὸς καὶ ὄδυρος πολὺς, Ῥαχὴλ κλαίουσα τὰ τέκνα αὐτῆς· καὶ οὐκ ἤθελε παρακληθῆναι, ὅτι

<sup>o</sup> Alex. = τοῦ.

<sup>p</sup> Alex. εὐά.

<sup>q</sup> Alex. = Ἐρῆνος καί.

WICLIF — 1380.

in slep, and seide; rise up ⁊ take the child ⁊ his modir and fle in to egipt; ⁊ be thou there til that I seye to thee. for it is come; that eroude seke the child for to distri hym.<sup>14</sup> and ioseph roos; ⁊ took the child ⁊ his modir by nyȝt, and wente in to egipt,<sup>15</sup> ⁊ he was there to the deeth of eroude; that it schulde be fulfilled that was seid of the lord bi the profete seynge; Fro egipt I haue clepid my sone.

<sup>16</sup> Thanne eroude seynge that he was disceuyd of the astromyens was ful wrooth; ⁊ he sente ⁊ slew alle the children that weren in bethelem ⁊ in al the coostis therof, fro ij jere age ⁊ with yn, after the tyme that he had enquerid of the astromyenes.<sup>17</sup> Than it was fulfilled that was seid bi ieremy the profete seynge.<sup>18</sup> A voyce was herd an his wepyng ⁊ moch weylng, rachel bi wepyng hir sones, and sche wolde not be comfortid for thei ben not.

<sup>19</sup> But whanne eroude was deed: lo the angell of the lord aperid to ioseph in slep in egipt.<sup>20</sup> ⁊ seide; rise up ⁊ take the child ⁊ his modir; ⁊ go in to the lond of israel; for thei that sousten the lif of the child ben deed.<sup>21</sup> Ioseph roos ⁊ took the child and his modir ⁊ cam in to the lond of israel.

<sup>22</sup> ⁊ he herde that archelaus regned in sude for eroude his fadre, ⁊ drede for to go thidir; and he was warnid in slep; and wente in to the parties of galilee; and cam ⁊ dwelte in a cite that is clepid nazareth; that it schulde be fulfilled that was seid bi profetis, for he schal be clepid a nazarey.

3. IN tho daies ioon baptist cam ⁊ prechid in the desert of iudee.<sup>2</sup> ⁊ seide; do ye penancee for the kyngdom of seye, tell, distri, destroy, nyȝt, night, wepyng, wepyng, seyn, yore, his, high, sousten, sought, ben, are,

TYNDALE — 1534.

seph in dreame sayinge: arise; and take the chyld and his mother; and flye into Egypte; and abyde there tyll I bryng the worde. For Herod wyll seke the chyld to destroye hym.<sup>14</sup> Then he arose; and toke the chyld and his mother by nyght; and departed into Egypte;<sup>15</sup> and was there vnto the deeth of Herod; to fulfill that which was spoken of the Lorde; by the Prophet which sayeth; out of Egypte have I called my sonne.

<sup>16</sup> Then Herod perceauynge that he was moocked of the wyse men; was excedyng wroth; and sent forth and slue all the chyldren that were in Bethleem; and in all the costes thereof; as many as were two yere olde and vnder; accordyng to the tyme which he had diligently searched oute of the wyse men.

<sup>17</sup> Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by the Prophet Ieremy sayinge: <sup>18</sup> On the hillis was a voyce herde; mornynge; wepyng; and greate lamentacion; Rachel wepyng for her chyldren; and wolde not be comforted; because they were not.

<sup>19</sup> When Herode was deed: beholde; an angell of the Lorde appered in a dreame to Ioseph in Egypte.<sup>20</sup> sayinge: arise and take the chyld and his mother; and go into the lond of Israel. For they are deed which sought the chyldes life.<sup>21</sup> Then he arose vp; and toke the chyld and his mother; and cam into the lond of Israel.<sup>22</sup> But when he hearde that Archelaus did raygne in Iury; in the roume of his father Herode; he was afrayde to goo thither. Not withstandinge after he was warnid of god in a dreame; he turned a syde into the parties of Galilee;<sup>23</sup> and went and dwelt in a cite called Nazareth; to fulfill that which was spoken by the Prophetes; he shalbe called a Nazarete.

3. IN those dayes Ihon the Baptyst came and preached in the wilderness of Iury; ⁊ sayng: Repent the kyngdome of heuen

CRANMER — 1539.

in slepe sayinge: arise and take the chyld and his mother, and flye into Egypt, ⁊ be thou there, tyll I bryng the worde. For it will come to passe, that Herode shal seke the chylde, to destroye hym.<sup>14</sup> So whan he awoke, he toke the chyld and his mother by nyght, and departed into Egypt,<sup>15</sup> and was there vnto the deeth of Herod: that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken of the Lorde by the Prophet, sayenge: out of Egypte haue I called my sonne.

<sup>16</sup> Then Herod, whan he sawe that he was mocked of the wyse men, he was exceddyng wroth, ⁊ sent forth men of warre, and slue all the chyldren that were in Bethleem, and in all the coastes (as many as were two yere olde or vnder) accordyng to the tyme, whiche he had diligently knowne out of the wyse men.

<sup>17</sup> Then was fulfilled that, which was spoken by the Prophet Ieremy: wher as he sayd: <sup>18</sup> in Rama was there a voyce hearde lamentacion, wepyng, and greate mourning; Rachel wepyng for hir chyldren, and wold not be comforted because they were not.

<sup>19</sup> But when Herode was deed; beholde, an angell of the Lorde appered in a slepe to Ioseph, in Egypte,<sup>20</sup> sayinge: arise, and take the chyld and his mother, and go into the lande of Israel. For they are deed which sought ⁊ chyldes lyfe.<sup>21</sup> And he arose, and toke the chyld and his mother, and came into the lande of Israel.

<sup>22</sup> But when he heard, that Archelaus dyd raygne in Iewry, in the rowme of his father Herode, he was afrayde to go thither. Notwithstandyng, after he was warnid of God in a slepe, he turned asyde into the parties of Galie,<sup>23</sup> ⁊ went ⁊ dwelt in a cite which is called Nazareth; that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Prophetes: he shal be called a Nazurite.

3. IN those dayes came Iohn the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Iewry ⁊ saying Repent, of the life that is past, for

“ οὐκ εἰσί.” <sup>19</sup> Τελευτήσαντος δὲ τοῦ Ἡρώδου, ἰδοὺ, ἄγγελος Κυρίου κατ’ ὄναρ φαίνεται | τῷ Ἰωσήφ ἐν Αἰγύπτῳ, <sup>20</sup> λέγων, ‘ Ἐγερθεὶς παράλαβε τὸ παιδίον καὶ τὴν μητέρα αὐτοῦ, καὶ πορεύου εἰς γῆν Ἰσραὴλ· τεθνήκασι γὰρ οἱ ζητοῦντες τὴν ψυχὴν τοῦ παιδίου.’ <sup>21</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἐγερθεὶς παρέλαβε τὸ παιδίον καὶ τὴν μητέρα αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἦλθεν εἰς γῆν Ἰσραὴλ. <sup>22</sup> ἀκούσας δὲ ὅτι Ἀρχέλαος βασιλεύει ἐπὶ τῆς Ἰουδαίας ἀντὶ Ἡρώδου τοῦ πατρὸς αὐτοῦ, ἐφοβήθη ἐκεῖ ἀπελθεῖν· χρηματισθεὶς δὲ κατ’ ὄναρ, ἀνεχώρησεν εἰς τὰ μέρη τῆς Γαλιλαίας, <sup>23</sup> καὶ ἐλθὼν κατώκησεν εἰς πόλιν λεγομένην <sup>3</sup> Ναζαρέτ· ὅπως πληρωθῆ τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ τῶν προφητῶν, ὅτι Ναζωραῖος κληθήσεται.

III. Ἐν ἑδὲ | ταῖς ἡμέραις ἐκείναις παραγίνεται Ἰωάννης ὁ βαπτιστῆς, κηρύσσων ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ τῆς Ἰουδαίας, <sup>2</sup> καὶ λέγων, ‘ Μετανοεῖτε· ἤγγικε γὰρ ἡ βα-

<sup>1</sup> Alex. φαίνεται κατ’ ὄναρ.

<sup>2</sup> Alex. Ναζαρίθ.

<sup>3</sup> Alex. — ζι.

GENEVA — 1557.

a dreame, saying, Arise, and take the babe and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be there til I bring thee word. For it wil come to passe, that Herode wil secke the babe to destroy him. <sup>14</sup> Then he arose & toke the childe and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt. <sup>15</sup> And was there vnto the death of Herode, to fulfil that which was spoken of the Lord by the Prophet, which sayeth, Out of Egypt haue I called my sonne. <sup>16</sup> Then Herode perceauing that he was mocked of the wise men, was exceeding wroth, & sent forth and slewe al the male children that were in Bethlehem, and in all the coastes therof, as many as were two yere olde & vnder, according to the time which he had diligently searched out of the wise men. <sup>17</sup> Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by the Prophet Ieremie, saying, <sup>18</sup> In Rhama was a voyce heard, mourning wepyng, and great lamentation: Rachel wepyng for her children, and would not be comforted, because they were not.

<sup>19</sup> When Herode was dead, beholde, an Angel of the Lord appeared in a dreame to Ioseph in Egypt, <sup>20</sup> Saying, Arise and take the childe and his mother, & go into the land of Israel: for they are dead which sought the childes lyfe. <sup>21</sup> Then he arose vp, and toke the childe and his mother, and came into the land of Israel. <sup>22</sup> But when he heard that Archelaus dyd raygne in Iewrie, in the roume of his father Herode, he was afrayed to go thither. Notwithstanding, after he was warned of God in a dreame, he turned asyde into the parties of Galile, <sup>23</sup> And went and dwelt in a citie called Nazaret, to fulfil that which was spoken by the Prophetes: which was, that he shulde be called a Nazarite.

3. AND in those daies, Iohn the Baptist came and preached in the wilderness of Iewrie, <sup>2</sup> Saying, Repent, for the king-to Ioseph, saying: Arise, & take the childe & his mother, & flee into Egypt: and be there vntil I shal tel thee. For it wil come to passe that Herod wil secke the childe to destroy him. <sup>14</sup> Who arose, & tooke the childe and his mother by night, and retured into Egypt: and he was there vntil the death of Herod: <sup>15</sup> that it might be fulfilled vvhich was spoken of our Lord by the Prophet, saying, Out of Aegypt haue I called my sonne. <sup>16</sup> Then Herod perceauing that he was deluded by the Sages, was exceeding angry: and sending murdered al the men children that were in Bethlehem, & in al the borders therof, from two yere old & vnder, according to the time which he had diligently sought out of the Sages. <sup>17</sup> Then was fulfilled that vvhich was spoken by Ieremie the Prophet saying, <sup>18</sup> A voice in Rama was heard, crying out & much weaying: Rachel beweyling her children, & would not be comforted, because they are not.

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>19</sup> But vvhhen Herod was dead, behold an Angel of our Lord appeared in sleepe to Ioseph in Egypt, <sup>20</sup> saying, Arise, and take the childe & his mother, & goe into the land of Israel. for they are dead that sought the life of the childe. <sup>21</sup> Who arose, & tooke the childe & his mother, and came into the land of Israel. <sup>22</sup> But hearing that Archelaus reigned in Iewrie for Herod his father, he feared to goe thither: and being warned in sleepe retured into the quarters of Galilee. <sup>23</sup> And coming he dwelt in a citie called Nazareth: that it might be fulfilled vvhich was sayd by the Prophetes: That he shal be called a Nazarite.

3. AND in those dayes cometh Iohn the Baptist preaching in the desert of Iewrie, <sup>2</sup> & saying, Doe penance: for the King-

AUTHORISED — 1611.

Ioseph in a dreame, saying, Arise and take the yong childe, and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and hee thou there vntill I bring thee word: for Herode wil secke the yong childe, to destroy him. <sup>14</sup> When he arose, he tooke the yong childe and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt: <sup>15</sup> And was there vntill the death of Herode, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the Prophet, saying, Out of Egypt haue I called my Sonne.

<sup>16</sup> Then Herode, when hee saw that he was mocked of the Wise men, was exceeding wroth, and sent forth, and slew all the children that were in Bethlehem, and in all the coastes therof, from two yeeres olde and vnder, according to the time, which he had diligently enquired of the Wise men. <sup>17</sup> Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Ieremie the Prophet, saying, <sup>18</sup> In Rama was there a voyce heard, lamentation, and weeping, and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not.

<sup>19</sup> But when Herode was dead, behold, an Angel of the Lord appeareth in a dreame to Ioseph in Egypt, <sup>20</sup> Saying, Arise, and take the yong child and his mother, and goe into the land of Israel: for they are dead which sought the yong childes life. <sup>21</sup> And he arose, and tooke the yong childe and his mother, and came into the land of Israel. <sup>22</sup> But when he heard that Archelaus did reigne in Iudea in the roume of his father Herod, hee was afraid to goe thither: notwithstanding, being warned of God in a dreame, he turned asyde into the parts of Galilee: <sup>23</sup> And he came and dwelt in a citie called Nazareth, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Prophetes, He shalbe called a Nazarene.

3. IN those daies came Iohn the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Iudea <sup>2</sup> And saying, Repent yee: for the king-

‘σιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν.’ <sup>3</sup> Οὗτος γάρ ἐστιν ὁ ῥηθεὶς ὑπὸ Ἡσαίου τοῦ προφήτου, λέγοντος, “Φωνὴ βοῶντος ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ, Ἐτοιμάσατε τὴν ὁδὸν Κυρίου εὐθείας “ποιεῖτε τὰς τρίβους αὐτοῦ.” <sup>4</sup> Αὐτὸς δὲ ὁ Ἰωάννης εἶχε τὸ ἔνδυμα αὐτοῦ ἀπὸ τριχῶν καμήλου, καὶ ζώνην δερματίνην περὶ τὴν ὀσφύν αὐτοῦ· ἡ δὲ τροφή αὐτοῦ ἦν ἀκρίδες καὶ μέλι ἄγριον.

<sup>5</sup> Τότε ἐξεπορεύετο πρὸς αὐτὸν Ἱεροσόλυμα καὶ πᾶσα ἡ Ἰουδαία καὶ πᾶσα ἡ περιχώρος τοῦ Ἰορδάνου· <sup>6</sup> καὶ ἐβαπτίζοντο ἐν τῷ Ἰορδάνῳ ὑπ’ αὐτοῦ, ἐξομολογούμενοι τὰς ἁμαρτίας αὐτῶν. <sup>7</sup> Ἴδὼν δὲ πολλοὺς τῶν Φαρισαίων καὶ Σαδδουκαίων ἐρχομένους ἐπὶ τὸ βάπτισμα αὐτοῦ, εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ‘Γεννήματα ἐχιδνῶν, τίς ὑπέδειξεν ὑμῖν φυγεῖν ἀπὸ τῆς μελλούσης ὀργῆς; <sup>8</sup> ποιήσατε οὖν <sup>9</sup> καρπὸν ἄξιον | τῆς μετανοίας· <sup>9</sup> καὶ μὴ δόξητε λέγειν ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, Πατέρα ἔχομεν τὸν Ἀβραάμ·

<sup>a</sup> Alex. ἐὶδ.

<sup>b</sup> Alex. + ποταμῷ.

<sup>c</sup> Rec. καρποὺς ἀξίου.

WICLIIF—1380.

heuenes schal nyȝ, <sup>3</sup> for this is he of whom it is seid bi Isaac the profete seynge/ a vois of a crier in desert, make ȝe redi the weyes of the lord: make ȝe riȝt the pathis of hym, <sup>4</sup> and this Iohn hadde clothing of camels heris: and a girdil of skyn aboute his leendis: ⁊ his mete was hony soukis and hony of the wode.

<sup>5</sup> Thanne ierusalem wente out to hym and all iudee, ⁊ al the cuntre aboute iordan: <sup>6</sup> ⁊ thei werun waichsen of hym in iordan, ⁊ knowlechiden her synnes.

<sup>7</sup> But he sij many of farisies ⁊ of saduces comynge to his baptem: and seide to hem, generaciouns of eddris: who schewid to you to fle fro wrath that is to come, <sup>8</sup> therfor do ȝe worthi fruytis of penaunce: <sup>9</sup> ⁊ nyle ȝe seic with yme ȝou: we han abraham to fadir, for I seie to ȝou that god is myȝti to rise up of this stones the nyzts of abraham, <sup>10</sup> ⁊ now the axe is putte to the root of the tre, therfor every tre that makith not goodfrut: schal be kutte down, ⁊ schal be cast in to the fire,

<sup>11</sup> I waisch ȝou in watyr: in to penaunce, but he that schal come after me, is stronger than I whos schoon I am not worthi to bere, he schal baptise ȝou in the holi goost and fier, <sup>12</sup> whos wene-wynge clooth is in his hond, and he schal fulli clense his corn flour, and schal gadere his whete in to his berne: but the chaf he schal brenne with fier that mai not be quenched.

<sup>13</sup> Thanne ihesus cam fro galilee in to iordan to loon: to he baptisid of him, <sup>14</sup> ⁊ Iohn forbode hym and seide, I owe to be baptisid of thee: ⁊ thou comest to me? <sup>15</sup> but ihesus answerid: ⁊ seide to hym, suffre now, for thus it fallith to us to fullille alle riȝtfulnesse: than Ioun saidid

nyȝ, nigh, or draw near. riȝt, riȝht. leendis, leendis. soukis, socks. her, thei. siȝ, saw. eddris, adder. nyle, ȝe nyle. nyle not myȝti, mighty. wene-wynge, winnowing. owe, ought. riȝtfulnesse, rightwinesse.

TYNDALE—1534.

is at honde. <sup>3</sup> This is he of whom it is spoken by the Prophet Esay, which sayeth: The voyce of a cryer in wyldernes, prepare the Lordes waye, and make hys pathes strayght.

<sup>4</sup> This Iohn had hys garment of camels heer and a gerdell of a skynne aboute his loynes. Hys meate was locustes and wyldre hony. <sup>5</sup> Then went oute to hym Ierusalem, and all Iury, and all the region rounde aboute Iordan, <sup>6</sup> and were baptised of him in Iordan, confessynge their synnes.

<sup>7</sup> When he saw many of the Pharises and of the Saduces come to hys baptem, he sayde vnto them: O generacion of vipers, who hath taught you to fle from the vengeance to come? <sup>8</sup> Brynge forth therefore the frutes belongynge to repentance. <sup>9</sup> And se that ye ons thynke not to saye in your selues, we haue Abraham to oure father. For I saye vnto you, that God is able of these stones to rase up chylidren vnto Abraham. <sup>10</sup> Euen now is the axe put vnto the rote of the trees: soo that every tree which bringeth not forthe goode frute, is hewen doune and cast into the fyre.

<sup>11</sup> I baptise you in water in token of repentance: but he that cometh after me, is myghtier then I, whose shues I am not worthy to beare. He shall baptise you with the holy goest and with fyre: <sup>12</sup> which hath also his fan in his hond, and will pouрге his flour, and gadre the wheet into his garner, and will burne the chaffe with unquenecheable fyre.

<sup>13</sup> Then cam Iesus from Galile to Iordan, unto Iohn, to be baptised of hym. <sup>14</sup> But Iohn forbode hym, sayynge: I ought to be baptised of thee: and comest thou to me?

<sup>15</sup> Iesus answerid and sayd to hym: Let it be so now. For thus it becommeth vs to fulfill all rightwesnes. Then he suffrid

CRANMER—1539.

the kyngdome of heauen is at hande <sup>3</sup> For thys is he, of whom the Prophet Esay spake, which sayeth The voyce of a cryer in the wyldernes, prepare ye the waye of the lord: ⁊ make hys pathes strayght. <sup>4</sup> Thys Iohn had hys garment of camels heer and a gyrdell of a skynne aboute hys loynes. His meate was locustes and wyldre hony.

<sup>5</sup> Then went out to hym Ierusalem and all Iewry, and all the region rounde aboute Iordan, <sup>6</sup> and were baptised of hym in Iordan, confessynge theyr synnes.

<sup>7</sup> But when he saw many of the Pharises and Saduces come to his baptytyme, he sayd vnto them: O generacyon of vyppers: who hath taught you to fle from the vengeance to come? <sup>8</sup> Brynge forth therefore the frutes that belong to repentance. <sup>9</sup> And be not of such mynde that ye wolde saye with in youre selues: we haue Abraham to oure father. For I saye vnto you, that God is able to bring to passe, that of these stones ther shall ryse vp chylidren vnto Abraham. <sup>10</sup> Euen now is the axe also put vnto the rote of the trees: so that every tree which bryngeth not forth good frute, is hewen doune, and cast into the fyre.

<sup>11</sup> I baptise you in water vnto repentance, but he that shall come after me is mightier then I, whose shoes I am not worthy to beare. He shall baptise you with the holy goost and with fyre: <sup>12</sup> whose fan is in his hand, and he will purge his flour, and gether his wheet into the barn, but will burne the chaffe with vnquenecheable fyre.

<sup>13</sup> Then cometh Iesus from Galile to Iordan vnto Iohn to be baptised of hym. <sup>14</sup> But Iohn forbode him, sayynge: I haue neede to be baptised of thee: and comest thou to me? <sup>15</sup> Iesus answerid and sayde vnto hym: Let it be so now. For thus it becommeth vs to fulfill all rightwesnes. Then he suffrid hym.

λέγω γὰρ ὑμῖν, ὅτι δύναται ὁ Θεὸς ἐκ τῶν λίθων τούτων ἐγεῖραι τέκνα τῷ Ἀβραάμ.
 10 ἦδη δὲ καὶ ἡ ἀξίνη πρὸς τὴν ῥίζαν τῶν δένδρων κείται· πᾶν οὖν δένδρον μὴ ποιοῦν καρπὸν καλὸν ἐκκόπτεται, καὶ εἰς πῦρ βάλλεται. 11 Ἐγὼ μὲν βαπτίζω ὑμᾶς ἐν ὕδατι εἰς μετάνοιαν· ὁ δὲ ὀπίσω μου ἐρχόμενος ἰσχυρότερός μου ἐστίν, οὗ οὐκ εἰμὶ ἰκανὸς τὰ ὑποδήματα βαστάσαι· αὐτὸς ὑμᾶς βαπτίσει ἐν Πνεύματι ἁγίῳ 12 καὶ πυρί· 13 οὗ τὸ πτύον ἐν τῇ χειρὶ αὐτοῦ, καὶ διακαθαριεῖ τὴν ἄλωνα αὐτοῦ, καὶ συναξει τὸν σίτον αὐτοῦ εἰς τὴν ἀποθήκην, τὸ δὲ ἄχυρον κατακαύσει πυρὶ ἀσβέστω.
 14 Τότε παραγίνεται ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀπὸ τῆς Γαλιλαίας ἐπὶ τὸν Ἰορδάνην πρὸς τὸν Ἰωάννην, τοῦ βαπτισθῆναι ὑπὸ αὐτοῦ. 15 ὁ δὲ Ἰωάννης διεκώλυεν αὐτὸν, λέγων, Ἐγὼ χρεῖαν ἔχω ὑπὸ σοῦ βαπτισθῆναι, καὶ σὺ ἔρχῃ πρὸς με· 16 Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε πρὸς αὐτὸν, Ἄφες ἄρτι· οὕτω γὰρ πρέπειν ἐστὶν ἡμῖν πληρῶσαι

* Alex. = καί.

* Const. = καὶ πυρί.

GENEVA — 1557.

dome of heauen is at hand. 3 For this he of whom it hath bene spoken by the Prophet Esaiæ, who saith, The voyce of him that crieth in wilderness is, Prepare the way of the Lord, make his pathes straight. 4 This Iohn had his garment of Camels heare, and a gyrdle of a skyn about his loynes. His meate was locustes and wilde hony. 5 Then went out to him Ierusalem & all Iewrie, & all the region round about Iordan. 6 And were baptized of him in Iordan, confessing their synnes.

7 When he sawe many of the Pharises
 & of the Sadduces come to his baptisme, he sayd vnto them, O generations of vipers, who hath taught you before to flee from the vengeance to come? 8 Bring forth therefore the frutes belongyng to amendement of life. 9 And presume not to say with your selues, we haue Abraham to our father: For I say vnto you, that God is able euen of these stones to raise vp children vnto Abraham. 10 Euen now is the axe put to the roote of the trees: so that euery tree which bryngeth not forth good fruit, is hewen downe, and cast into the fyre.

11 In deed I baptize you with water amendement of life: but he that cometh after me, is myghtier then I, whose shoes I am not worthy to beare: He shall baptize you with the holy Gost and wyth fyre, 12 Whych hath his fanne in his hand, & wil make cleane his floore, and gather the wheate into his garner, but will burne vp the chaffe with vnquencheable
 fyre.

13 Then came Iesus from Galilee to Iordan vnto Iohn, to be baptized of him. 14 But Iohn put him backe, saying, I haue neede to be baptized of thee, and comest thou
 to me?

15 Iesus answering, saied to him,
 Let it be so now: For thus it becometh vs to fulfill all rightousnes.
 Then he suffered him.

RHEIMS — 1582.

dom of heauen is at hand. 3 For this is he that vvas spoken of by Esay the Prophet, saying, A voyce of one crying in the desert, prepare ye the way of our Lord, make straight his pathes. 4 And the sayd Iohn had his garment of camels heare, & a gyrdle of a skinnie about his loynes: and his meate was locustes & wilde honie.

5 Then vvent forth to him Hierusalem
 & all Ievvrie, and al the country about Iordan: & vvere baptized of him in Iordan, confessing their sinnes.

7 And seeing many of the Pharisees & Sadducees coming to his baptisme, he sayd to them. Ye vipers brood, who hath shevved you to flee from the vvrath to come? 8 Yeld therfore fruite vvorthing of penance. 9 And delite not to say vwithin your selues, vve haue Abraham to our father. For I tel you that God is able of these stones to raise vp children to Abraham. 10 For novv the axe is put to the roote of the trees. Euery tree that doth not yeld good fruite, shal be cut dovvne, & cast into the fyre.

11 In deede baptize you in vwater vnto penance. but he that shal come after me, is stronger then I, vwhose shoes I am not vvorthing to beare, he shal baptize you in the Holy Ghost & fyre. 12 Whose fanne is in his hand, and he shal cleane purge his floore: and he vvill gather his vvheate into the barnne, but the chaffe he vvill burne vwith vnquencheable
 fyre.

13 Then cometh Iesus from Galilee to Iordan, vnto Iohn, to be baptized of him. 14 But Iohn stayd him, saying, I ought to be baptized of thee, and comest thou to me?

15 And Iesus answering, sayd to him, Suffer me for this time. for so it becometh vs to fulfill al iustice.
 Then he suffered him.

AUTHORISED — 1611.

dome of heauen is at hand. 3 For this is he that was spoken of by the Prophet Esaias, saying, The voyce of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight. 4
 And the same Iohn had his raiment of camels haire, and a leatherne girdle about his loynes, and his meate was locusts and wilde honie. 5 Then went out to him Hierusalem, and all Iudea, and all the region round about Iordane, and were baptized of him in Iordane, confessing their sinnes.

7 But when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees come to his Baptisme, he said vnto them, O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come? 8 Bring forth therefore frutes meete for repentance. 9 And thinke not to say within your selues, Wee haue Abraham to our father: For I say vnto
 you, that God is able of these stones to raise vp children vnto Abraham. 10
 And now also the axe is layd vnto the roote of the trees: Therefore euery tree which bringeth not forth good fruite, is hewen downe, and cast into the fire.

11 I indeed baptize you with water vnto repentance: but he that cometh after mee, is myghtier then I, whose shoes I am not worthy to beare, hee shall baptize you with the holy Ghost, and with fyre. 12 Whose fanne is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge his floore, and gather his wheate into the garner: but will burne vp the chaffe with vnquencheable fyre. 13 Then cometh Iesus from Galilee to Iordane, vnto Iohn, to be baptized of him: 14 But Iohn forbad him, saying, I haue neede to be baptized of thee, and comest thou
 to me?

15 And Iesus answering, said vnto him, Suffer it to be so now: for thus it becometh vs to fulfill all righteousnes. Then he suffered him.

* Or, answerable to amendment of life.

‘πᾶσαν δικαιοσύνην.’ Τότε ἀφήσιν αὐτόν. <sup>16</sup> Καὶ βαπτισθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀνέβη εὐθὺς ἀπὸ τοῦ ὕδατος· καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἀνεώχθησαν αὐτῷ οἱ οὐρανοὶ, καὶ εἶδε τὸ Πνεῦμα τοῦ Θεοῦ καταβαῖνον ὡσεὶ περιστέραν, καὶ ἐρχόμενον ἐπ’ αὐτόν. <sup>17</sup> καὶ ἰδοὺ, φωνὴ ἐκ τῶν οὐρανῶν λέγουσα, ‘Οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ υἱός μου ὁ ἀγαπητός, ἐν ᾧ εὐδόκησα.’

IV. Τότε ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀνήχθη εἰς τὴν ἔρημον ὑπὸ τοῦ Πνεύματος, πειρασθῆναι ὑπὸ τοῦ διαβόλου. <sup>2</sup> καὶ νηστεύσας ἡμέρας τεσσαράκοντα καὶ νύκτας τεσσαράκοντα, ἕστερον ἐπέπεισε. <sup>3</sup> καὶ προσελθὼν αὐτῷ ὁ πειράζων εἶπεν, | ‘Εἰ υἱὸς εἶ τοῦ Θεοῦ, εἶπε, ἵνα οἱ λίθοι οὗτοι ἄρτοι γένωνται.’ <sup>4</sup> ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπε, ‘Γέγραπται, “Οὐκ ἐπ’ ἄρτω μόνῳ ζήσεται ἄνθρωπος, ἀλλ’ ἐπὶ παντὶ ῥήματι ἐκπορευομένου διὰ στόματος Θεοῦ.”’ <sup>5</sup> Τότε παραλαμβάνει αὐτὸν ὁ διάβολος εἰς τὴν ἁγίαν πόλιν, καὶ ἵσθησιν αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τὸ πτερίγιον τοῦ ἱεροῦ, <sup>6</sup> καὶ λέγει

<sup>2</sup> Alex. εὐθὺς ἀνέβη.<sup>3</sup> Alex. ὁ πειράζων εἶπεν αὐτῷ.<sup>4</sup> Alex. + ὁ.<sup>5</sup> Alex. ἴσθησιν.

WICLIF—1380.

hym, <sup>16</sup> ⁊ whanne ihesus was baptised ⁊ anon he wente up to the watir, ⁊ lo heueneis weren opened to hym! and he saye the spirit of god comyng doune as a dowue, ⁊ comyng on him, <sup>17</sup> ⁊ lo a vois fro heueneis: seynge, this is my loved sone in whiche I haue plesid to me.

4. THANNE ihesus was ledde of a spirit in to desert to be temptid of the fende, <sup>2</sup> ⁊ whanne he hadde fastid fourti dayes and fourti nyctis: aftirward he hungrið.

<sup>3</sup> ⁊ the tempter cam nyze: and seide to hym, if thou art goddis sone: seye that the stones be made louces: <sup>4</sup> whiche answerid and seide to hym, it is writun, not oonli in breed lyueth man, but in euery word that cometh of goddis mouth, <sup>5</sup> thanne the fend took him in to the holi citee: ⁊ settid him on the pyname of the temple <sup>6</sup> and seide to him, if thou art goddis sone: sende the adoum, for it is writun, that to hise aungels he comaundid of thee: ⁊ thei schul take thee in bondis, leost parenture thou hurt thi foot at a stoorn, <sup>7</sup> eftsones ihesus seide to hym, it is writun thou schal not tempte thi lord god.

<sup>8</sup> eftsones the fend took him in to a ful biȝ hille, ⁊ schewid to hym all the rewmes of the world ⁊ the ioie of hem: <sup>9</sup> and seide to hym, alle these I schal geue to thee, if thou falle doune ⁊ worship me, <sup>10</sup> thanne ihesus seide to hym, go sathanas, for it is writun, thou schalt worship thi lord god: ⁊ to hym aloune thou schalt serue, <sup>11</sup> thanne the fende lefte hym: ⁊ lo aungels camen nyȝ: and serueden to hym.

<sup>12</sup> But whanne ihesus hadde herde that ion was takun: he wente in to galilee, <sup>13</sup> ⁊ he lefte the citee of nazareth: and cam ⁊ dwelte in the citee of capernaum

TYNDALE—1534.

hym, <sup>16</sup> And Iesus assone as he was baptised came straight out of the water. And lo heuen was open over hym: and Ihon sawe the spirite of God descende lyke a doue: and lyght vpon hym. <sup>17</sup> And lo there came a voyce from heven saying: Thys ys that my beloved sonne in whom is my delyte.

4. THEN was Iesus ledd awaye of the spirite into wildernes to be tempted of the deuyll. <sup>2</sup> And when he had fasted fourtye dayes and fourtye nightes, he was aftirward an hungred. <sup>3</sup> Then came to hym the tempter, and sayde: yf thou be the sonne of God, commaunde that these stones be made breed. <sup>4</sup> He answered and sayde: yt is written man shall not lyve by brede onlye, but by every worde that procedeth out of the mouth of God.

<sup>5</sup> Then the deuyll tooke hym vp into the holi citee, and set hym on a pyname of the temple: <sup>6</sup> and sayd vnto hym: yf thou be the sonne of God, cast thyslyfe doune. For it is written, he shall geve his angels charge over the, and with their handes they shall holde the vp, that thou dashe not thy fote agaynst a stone. <sup>7</sup> And Iesus sayde to hym, it ys written also: Thou shalt not tempte thy Lorde God.

<sup>8</sup> The deuyll toke hym vp agayne and ledde hym in to an exceedyng hie mountayne, and shewed hym all the kyngdomes of the world, and all the glorie of them, <sup>9</sup> and sayde to hym: all these wyl I geve the, if thou wilt faulle doune and worship me. <sup>10</sup> Then sayde Iesus vnto hym. Avoyd Satan. For it is written, thou shalt worship the Lorde thy God, and hym onely shalt thou serve. <sup>11</sup> Then the dyvell left hym: and beholde, the angels came and ministred vnto hym.

<sup>12</sup> When Iesus had hearde that Ihon was taken, he departed into Galilee, <sup>13</sup> and left Nazareth, and went and dwelte in Capernaum.

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>16</sup> And Iesus whan he was baptised, came straight waye out of the water. And lo heuene was open vnto hym: and he sawe the spirite of God descending lyke a done, and lighting vpon him. <sup>17</sup> And loo, there came a voyce from heauen sayyng. This is my beloved sonne, in whom I am well pleased.

4. THEN was Iesus led awaye of the spirite into wyldernes: to be tempted of the deuyll. <sup>2</sup> And when he had fasted fortye dayes and fortye nyghtes, he was at the last an hungred. <sup>3</sup> And whan the tempter came to him, he sayde: yf thou be the sonne of God commaunde, that these stones be made bread. <sup>4</sup> But he answered and sayde: it is written man shall not lyue by bread onlye, but by euery worde that procedeth out of the mouth of God. <sup>5</sup> Then the deuyll taketh hym vp into the holi citee, ⁊ setteth hym on a pyname of the temple, <sup>6</sup> and sayeth vnto hym: yf thou be the sonne of God, cast thy selfe doune headling. For it is written he shall geue his angels charge over the, ⁊ wyth their handes they shall holde the vp, lest at anye tyme thou dashe thy fote agaynst a stone. <sup>7</sup> And Iesus saide to hym: it is written agayne Thou shalt not tempte the Lorde thy God.

<sup>8</sup> Agayne, the deuyll taketh hym vp in to an exceedyng hie mountayne, and sheweth him all the kingdomes of the worlde, and the glorie of them, <sup>9</sup> and sayeth vnto hym: all these wyl I geue the, yf thou wilt fall doune, and worship me. <sup>10</sup> Then sayeth Iesus vnto him: Auoyde Satan. For it is written Thou shalt worship the Lorde thy God, and hym onely shalt thou serue. <sup>11</sup> Then the deuyll leueth him and beholde the angels came, ⁊ ministred vnto hym. <sup>12</sup> When Iesus had hearde that Iohn was taken, he departed into Galilee, <sup>13</sup> and left Nazareth, and went and dwelt in Capernaum, which is a citee vpon the sea

⁊ ⁊ ⁊. done, desc. nyctis, nightis nyze or nyȝ, nyȝ. «θεωματος or εθεωματος, agayn, or yntreatyng. biȝ, biȝ. rewmes, realmes. geue, geue.

αὐτῶ, ‘ Εἰ υἱὸς εἶ τοῦ Θεοῦ, βάλε σεαυτὸν κάτω γέγραπται γὰρ, “ Ὅτι τοῖς ἀγγέλοις αὐτοῦ ἐντελεῖται περὶ σοῦ, καὶ ἐπὶ χειρῶν ἀροῦσί σε, μήποτε προσκώψῃς πρὸς λίθον τὸν πόδα σου.” ’ <sup>7</sup> Ἐφ’ αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ‘ Πάλιν γέγραπται, “ Οὐκ ἐκπειράσεις Κύριον τὸν Θεόν σου.” ’ <sup>8</sup> Πάλιν παραλαμβάνει αὐτὸν ὁ διάβολος εἰς ὄρος ὑψηλὸν λίαν, καὶ δείκνυσιν αὐτῷ πάσας τὰς βασιλείας τοῦ κόσμου καὶ τὴν δόξαν αὐτῶν, <sup>9</sup> καὶ <sup>α</sup>λέγει| αὐτῷ, ‘ Ταῦτα πάντα σοι| δώσω, ἐὰν πεσὼν προσκυνήσῃς μοι.’ <sup>10</sup> Τότε λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ‘ Ἔπαγε, <sup>β</sup> ὅπισόν μου,| Σατανᾶ· γέγραπται γὰρ, “ Κύριον τὸν Θεόν σου προσκυνήσεις, καὶ αὐτῷ μόνῳ λατρεύσεις.” ’ <sup>11</sup> Τότε ἀφίησιν αὐτὸν ὁ διάβολος· καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἄγγελοι προσήλθον καὶ διεκόνουν αὐτῷ.

<sup>12</sup> Ἀκούσας δὲ <sup>γ</sup> ὁ Ἰησοῦς| ὅτι Ἰωάννης παρεδόθη ἀνεχώρησεν εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν· <sup>13</sup> καὶ καταλιπὼν τὴν <sup>δ</sup> Ναζαρετ,| ἐλθὼν κατώκησεν εἰς <sup>ε</sup> Καπερναοὺμ| τὴν παρα-

<sup>4</sup> Alex. εἰπεν.

<sup>ε</sup> Alex. σοι πάντα.

<sup>β</sup> Rec. = ὀπίσω μου.

<sup>γ</sup> Alex. = ὁ Ἰησοῦς.

<sup>δ</sup> Alex. Ναζαρίθ.

<sup>ε</sup> Alex. Καφερναοὺμ.

GENEVA — 1557.

him. <sup>16</sup> And Iesus as sone as he was baptized, came straight out of the water : and lo, the heauens were open vnto him : and Iohn saw the Sprite of God descending like a doue, and lighting vpon him. <sup>17</sup> And lo, there came a voice from heauen, saying, This is my beloved Sonne, in whome I am well pleased.

4. THEN was Iesus led asyde of the Spirit into the wilderness, to be tempted of the deuil. <sup>2</sup> And when he had fasted forty dayes and forty nightes, hee was afterward an hongred. <sup>3</sup> Then came to him the tempter, & said, if thou be the Sonne of God, commaund that these stones be made bread. <sup>4</sup> But he answering, sayd, It is written, Man shall not lue by bread onely, but by euery worde that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. <sup>5</sup> Then the deuil toke him vp into the holy Citie, and set him on a pinacle of the temple. <sup>6</sup> And sayd vnto him, If thou be the Sonne of God, cast thy self downe : For it is written, that he shal geue his Angels charge ouer thee, and with their handes they shal hold thee vp, lest at any time thou shouldst dashe thy fote against a stone.

<sup>7</sup> Iesus said vnto him, It is written also, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God. <sup>8</sup> The deuil toke him vp againe vnto an exceeding hye mountaine, and shewed him all the kingdomes of the worlde, and the glorie of them. <sup>9</sup> And said to him, Al these wil I geue thee, if thou fallyng downe wilt worship me. <sup>10</sup> Then said Iesus vnto him, Auoyde Satan, For it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, & him onely shalt thou serue. <sup>11</sup> Then the deuil left him : and beholde the Angels came and ministred vnto him. <sup>12</sup> And when Iesus had heard that Iohn was taken, he returned into Galile. <sup>13</sup> And leauing Nazareth, went and dwelt in Capernaum, which is nere the sea in the

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>16</sup> And Iesus being baptized, forthwith came out of the water: and loe the heauens were opened to him: and he saw the Spirit of God descending as a doue, & coming vpon him. <sup>17</sup> And behold a voyce from heauen saying, This is my beloved sonne, in whom I am well pleased.

4. THEN Iesus was ledde of the Spirit into the desert, to be tempted of the Deuil. <sup>2</sup> And vwhen he had fasted fourtie daies and fourtie nightes, afterward he vvas hungrie. <sup>3</sup> And the tempter approached & sayd to him, If thou be the sonne of God, commaund that these stones be made bread. <sup>4</sup> Who answered & said, It is vvritten, Not in bread alone doth man lue, but in euery word that proceedeth from the mouth of God. <sup>5</sup> Then the Deuil tooke him vp into the holy cite, and set him vpon the pinnacle of the Temple, <sup>6</sup> and sayd to him, If thou be the sonne of God, cast thy self downe, for it is vvritten, That he wil giue his Angels charge of thee, & in their hands shal they hold thee vp, lest perhaps thou knocke they foote agaynst a stone.

<sup>7</sup> Iesus sayd to him againe, It is vvritten, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God. <sup>8</sup> Againe the Deuil tooke him vp into a very high mountaine: and he shewed him all the Kingdoms of the vvorld, and the glorie of them, <sup>9</sup> and sayd to him, Al these vvil I giue thee, if fallyng downe thou vvilt adore me. <sup>10</sup> Then Iesus sayth to him, Auant Satan: for it is vvritten, The Lord thy God shalt thou adore, & him onely shalt thou serue. <sup>11</sup> Then the Deuil left him: and behold Angels came, and ministred to him. <sup>12</sup> And vwhen Iesus had heard that Iohn vvas deliuered vp, he retvred into Galilee: <sup>13</sup> and leauing the cite Nazareth, came & dvvelt in Capernaum a sea tovne,

AUTHORISED — 1611.

he suffered him. <sup>16</sup> And Iesus, when hee was baptized, went vp straightway out of the water : and loe, the heauens were opened vnto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a doue, and lighting vpon him. <sup>17</sup> And loe, a voice from heauen, saying, This is my beloved Sonne, in whom I am well pleased.

4. THEN was Iesus led vp of the Spirit into the wilderness, to be tempted of the deuil. <sup>2</sup> And when hee had fasted forty dayes and forty nightes, hee was afterward an hungred. <sup>3</sup> And when the tempter came to him, he sayd, If thou be the sonne of God, commaund that these stones be made bread. <sup>4</sup> But he answered, and said, It is written, Man shall not lue by bread alone, but by euery word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. <sup>5</sup> Then the deuil taketh him vp into the holy Citie, and setteth him on a pinacle of the Temple, <sup>6</sup> And saith vnto him, If thou bee the Sonne of God, cast thy selfe downe : For it is written, He shall giue his Angels charge concerning thee, and in their handes they shall beare thee vp, lest at any time thou dash thy foote against a stone. <sup>7</sup> Iesus said vnto him, It is written againe, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God. <sup>8</sup> Againe the deuil taketh him vp into an exceeding high mountaine, and sheweth him all the kingdomes of the world, and the glory of them : <sup>9</sup> And sayth vnto him, All these things wil I giue thee, if thou wilt fall downe and worship me. <sup>10</sup> Then saith Iesus vnto him, Get thee hence, Satan : for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him onely shalt thou serue. <sup>11</sup> Then the deuill leaueh him, and behold, Angels came and ministred vnto him. <sup>12</sup> Now when Iesus had heard that Iohn was <sup>a</sup> cast into prison, he departed into Galilee. <sup>13</sup> And leauing Nazareth, he came and dwelt in Capernaum,

<sup>a</sup> Or, deliuered vp.

θαλασσίαν, ἐν ὄροις Ζαβουλὸν καὶ Νεφθαλεὶμ, <sup>14</sup> ἵνα πληρωθῆ τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ Ἡσαΐου τοῦ προφήτου, λέγοντος, <sup>15</sup> “ Γῆ Ζαβουλὸν καὶ γῆ Νεφθαλεὶμ, ὁδὸν θαλάσσης πέραν τοῦ Ἰορδάνου, Γαλιλαία τῶν ἐθνῶν, <sup>16</sup> ὁ λαὸς ὁ καθήμενος ἐν σκότει εἶδε φῶς μέγα, καὶ τοῖς καθημένοις ἐν χώρα καὶ σκιᾷ θανάτου, φῶς ἀνέτειλεν αὐτοῖς.”

<sup>17</sup> Ἀπὸ τότε ἤρξατο ὁ Ἰησοῦς κηρύσσειν καὶ λέγειν, ‘ Μετανοεῖτε ἤγγικε γὰρ ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν.’ <sup>18</sup> Περιπατῶν δὲ ἑκπὰρὰ τὴν θάλασσαν τῆς Γαλιλαίας εἶδε δύο ἀδελφούς, Σίμωνα τὸν λεγόμενον Πέτρον, καὶ Ἀνδρέαν τὸν ἀδελφὸν αὐτοῦ, βάλλοντας ἀμφίβληστρον εἰς τὴν θάλασσαν ἦσαν γὰρ ἀλιεῖς. <sup>19</sup> καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, ‘ Δεῦτε ὀπίσω μου, καὶ ποιήσω ὑμᾶς ἀλιεῖς ἀνθρώπων.’ <sup>20</sup> Οἱ δὲ εὐθὺς ἀφέντες τὰ δίκτυα ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ. <sup>21</sup> Καὶ προβάς ἐκέλευεν, εἶδεν ἄλλους δύο ἀδελφούς,

<sup>a</sup> Rec. + ὁ Ἰησοῦς.

WICLIFF—1380.

bisidis the see, in the coostis of sabulon and neptalim, <sup>14</sup> that it schuld be fulfilled that was seide bi Isaye the profete seynge, <sup>15</sup> the lond of sabulon & the lond of neptalim, the wey of the see ouer Iordan of galile of hethen men, <sup>16</sup> the puple that walkid in darknes; say greet hi; & while men saten in the cuntre of schadewe of death: li;ȝt aroos to hem,

<sup>17</sup> fro that tyme ihesus bi gan to preche & seye, do ȝe penaunce: for the kingdom of heuencs schal come ny. <sup>18</sup> And ihesus walkid bisidis the see of galilee: & saȝ twei bretheren, Symount that is clepid petir: & andrew his brother casting netis in to the see; for they werun fishers; <sup>19</sup> & he seide to hem; come ȝe aftir me: & I schal make ȝou to be made fishers of men; <sup>20</sup> & anon thei leften the nettis: & sueden hym

<sup>21</sup> & he zede forth fro that place; & he saie tweȝ other bretheren, James of zebede & Iohn his brother, in a schip with zebede her fadii, amendinge her nettis; and he clepid hem; <sup>22</sup> & anon thei leften the nettis and the fadir: & sueden hym.

<sup>23</sup> And ihesus zede aboute al galilee: techinge in the synagogis of hem and prechynge the gospel of the kingdom, & heelynge cueri languor & eche sikenesse amonge the puple; <sup>24</sup> & his fame: wente in to al sirie; & thei brougten to hym alle that werun at male ese; & that werun takun with dyuers languoris & turmentis; & hem that hadden fendis, & lunatik men, & men in palsi: and he heclid hem. <sup>25</sup> & thei sueden hym myche puple; of galile, & of decaþoli, & of ierusalem, and of iude & of byzonde iordan.

5. AND ihesus seynge the puple: wente up in to an hil; & when he was sette;

TYNDALE—1534.

which is a cite upon the see, in the coostes of zabulon and Neptalim, <sup>14</sup> to fulfill that whiche was spoken by Esay the Prophet, sayinge: <sup>15</sup> The lond of zabulon and Neptalim; the waye of the see beyonde Iordan; Galile of the Gentylys, <sup>16</sup> the people which sat in darknes; sawe greate light; and to them which sat in the region and shadowe of death; light is begone to shyne.

<sup>17</sup> From that tyme Iesus beganne to preache, and to saye: repent; for the kingdom of heven is at hande.

<sup>18</sup> As Iesus walkid by the see of Galilee, he sawe two bretheren: Simon which was called Peter, and Andrew his brother, castynge a nett into the see; for they were fishers; <sup>19</sup> and he sayde vnto them; folowe me and I will make you fishers of men. <sup>20</sup> And they strayght waye lefte their nettes; and folowed hym.

<sup>21</sup> And he went forth from thence; and sawe other two bretheren, James the sonne of zebede, and Iohn his brother, in the shippe with zebede their father, mendynge their nettes; and called them. <sup>22</sup> And they with out tarynge lefte the shyp and their father and folowed hym.

<sup>23</sup> And Iesus went aboute al Galilee; teachyn in their synagoges; and prechynge the gospel of the kyngdome; and healed all maner of sicknes; and all maner diseases amonge the people. <sup>24</sup> And his fame spreed abroad throughoute all Siria. And they brought vnto hym all sicke people that were taken with diuers diseases and gripinges; and them that were possessed with devils; and those which were lunatyke; and those that had the palsie; and he healed them. <sup>25</sup> And they folowed hym a greate nombre of people; from Galilee; and from the ten cyties; and from Ierusalem; and from Iury; and from the regions that lye beyonde Iordan.

5. WHEN he sawe the people; he went vp into a mountayne; and when he was set;

CRANMER—1539.

coast, in the borders of zabulon & Neptalim: <sup>14</sup> that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esay the Prophet, sayinge: <sup>15</sup> The lande of zabulon & Neptalim, by the waye of the see beyonde Iordan, Galile of the Gentylys: <sup>16</sup> the people whych sat in darknes & in the shadow of death, sawe great light: & to them which sat in the region & shadowe of death, is the light sprong vp.

<sup>17</sup> From that tyme, Iesus beganne to preache, and to saye: repent, for the kyngdome of heauen his at hande.

<sup>18</sup> As Iesus walkid by the see of Galilee he sawe two bretheren: Simon, whych was called Peter, & Andrew his brother, castynge a nett into the see (for they were fysshers) <sup>19</sup> & he sayeth vnto them: folowe me, and I wyl make you (to become) fysshers of men. <sup>20</sup> And they streight waye lefte the nettes, and folowed hym.

<sup>21</sup> And when he was gone forth from thence, he sawe other two bretheren, James the sonne of zebede, & Iohn his brother, in the shyp wyth zebede their father, mendynge their nettes, & he called them. <sup>22</sup> And they immediatly lefte the shyp and their father, and folowed him.

<sup>23</sup> And Iesus went aboute all Galile, teachyn in their synagoges, & preachynge the gospel of the kyngdome, & healing all maner of syknes, & all maner of disease amonge the people. <sup>24</sup> And his fame spreed abroad throughout all Siria. And they brought vnto him all sycke people that were taken with diuers diseases and gripinges, and them that were possessed with deylys: and those which were lunatyke, & those that had the palsey: & he healed them. <sup>25</sup> And they folowed him greate multitudes of people, from Galilee, and from the ten cities, and from Ierusalem, and from Iewry, and from the regions that lye beyonde Iordan.

5. WHEN he sawe the people, he went vp into a mountayne, and when he was say, saȝ, of saie, sawe. liȝt, light. nyȝ, night. twei, or twey, two. clepid, called. vnto, followed. ȝe, went. ber, their, male ese, disease.

Ἰάκωβον τὸν τοῦ Ζεβεδαίου καὶ Ἰωάννην τὸν ἀδελφὸν αὐτοῦ, ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ μετὰ Ζεβεδαίου τοῦ πατρὸς αὐτῶν, καταρτίζοντας τὰ δίκτυα αὐτῶν, καὶ ἐκάλεσεν αὐτούς. <sup>23</sup> οἱ δὲ εὐθέως ἀφέντες τὸ πλοῖον καὶ τὸν πατέρα αὐτῶν ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ.

<sup>23</sup> Καὶ περιῆγεν ὅλην τὴν Γαλιλαίαν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, | διδάσκων ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς αὐτῶν, καὶ κηρύσσων τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τῆς βασιλείας, καὶ θεραπεύων πᾶσαν νόσον καὶ πᾶσαν μαλακίαν ἐν τῷ λαῷ. <sup>24</sup> καὶ ἀπῆλθεν ἡ ἀκοὴ αὐτοῦ εἰς ὅλην τὴν Συρίαν· καὶ προσήνεγκαν αὐτῷ πάντας τοὺς κακῶς ἔχοντας, ποικίλαις νόσοις καὶ βασάνοις συνεχόμενους, καὶ δαιμονιζομένους, καὶ σεληνιαζομένους, καὶ παραλυτικούς· καὶ ἐθεράπευσεν αὐτούς. <sup>25</sup> καὶ ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ ὄχλοι πολλοὶ ἀπὸ τῆς Γαλιλαίας καὶ Δεκαπόλεως καὶ Ἱεροσολύμων καὶ Ἰουδαίας, καὶ πέραν τοῦ Ἰορδάνου.

V. Ἰδὼν δὲ τοὺς ὄχλους ἀνέβη εἰς τὸ ὄρος· καὶ καθίσαντος αὐτοῦ, προσῆλθον

<sup>1</sup> Alex. ὁ Ἰησοῦς ὅλην τὴν Γαλιλαίαν.

GENEVA — 1557.

borders of Zabulon, and Nephthaim. <sup>14</sup> That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaiæ the Prophet, saying,

<sup>15</sup> The land of Zabulon and the land of Nephthaim the waie of the sea beyond Iordan, Galile of the Gentiles: <sup>16</sup> The people which sate in darknes sawe great light: and to them which sate in the region and shadowe of death, light is begone to shyne. <sup>17</sup> From that time Iesus began to preach, and to saie, Amend your luyes, for the kingdome of heauen is at hand. <sup>18</sup> And Iesus walking by the sea of Galile, sawe two brethern, Simon which was called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea: for they were fysers. <sup>19</sup> And he said vnto them, Follow me, & I will make you fishers of men. <sup>20</sup> And they straght way leauing their nettes, folowed him.

<sup>21</sup> And when he was gone forth from thence, he sawe other two brethern, Iames the sonne of Zebede, and Iohn his brother in a ship wyth Zebede theyr father, mending their nettes: and he called them.

<sup>22</sup> And they without taryng leauing the ship and their father, folowed him. <sup>23</sup> And Iesus went about all Galile, teaching in their Synagoges, and preaching the gospel of the kingdome, and healing all manner of sicknesses, and all manner of diseases among the people. <sup>24</sup> And his fame spread abroad through all Siria: and they broght vnto him all sycke people, that were taken wyth diuers diseases and grypings, and them that were possessed with deuils, & those which were lunatike, and those that had the palsey: and he healed them. <sup>25</sup> And there folowed him great numbres of people from Galile, and from Decapolis, and from Ierusalem, and from Iurie, and from the regions that lye beyond Iordan.

5. AND seeing the presse of the people, he went vp into a mountayne: & when he

RHEIMS — 1582.

in the borders of Zabulon & Nephthali, <sup>14</sup> that it might be fulfilled vvhich vvvas sayd by Esay the Prophet.

<sup>15</sup> Land of Zabulon & land of Nephthali, the way of the sea beyond Iordan of Galilee, of the Gentils: <sup>16</sup> the people that sate in darknesse, hath seen great light: and to them that sate in a cuntry of the shadow of death, light is risen to them.

<sup>17</sup> From that time Iesus began to preach, and to say, Doe penance, for the Kingdome of heauen is at hand. <sup>18</sup> And Iesus vvalking by the sea of Galilee, sawv two brethern, Simon vvho is called Peter, & Andrew his brother, casting a nette into the sea (for they vvere fishers) <sup>19</sup> & he sayth to them, Come ye after me, & I vvill make you to be fishers of men. <sup>20</sup> But they vvcontinent leauing the nettes, folloved him.

<sup>21</sup> And going forvvard from thence, he sawv other two brethern, Iames of Zebede & Iohn his brother in a shippe vvith Zebedee their father, reparying their nettes: and he called them. <sup>22</sup> And they furthvvith left their nettes & father and folloved him.

<sup>23</sup> And Iesus vvent round about all Galilee, teaching in their Synagoges; & preaching the Gospel of the Kingdome: and healing euery maladic and euery infirmite in the people.

<sup>24</sup> And the brute of him vvent into all Siria, and they presented to him all that vvere ill at ease, diuersly taken vvith diseases and torments, and such as vvere possessed, and lunatikes, and sicke of the palsey, and he cured them: <sup>25</sup> And much people folloved him from Galilee and Decapolis, and Hierusalem, and from beyond Iordan.

5. AND seeing the multitudes, he vvent vp into a mountayne: and vvhen he vvvas

AUTHORISED — 1611.

which is vpon the Sea coast, in the borders of Zabulon and Nephthali, <sup>14</sup> That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the Prophet, saying,

<sup>15</sup> The land of Zabulon, and the land of Nephthali, by the way of the Sea beyond Iordane, Galilee of the Gentiles: <sup>16</sup> The people which sate in darknesse, saw great light: and to them which sate in the region and shadow of death, light is sprung vp.

<sup>17</sup> From that time Iesus began to preach, and to say, Repent, for the kingdome of heauen is at hand. <sup>18</sup> And Iesus vvalking by the sea of Galilee, saw two brethern, Simon, called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea (for they were fishers) <sup>19</sup> And he saith vnto them, Follow me: and I will make you fishers of men. <sup>20</sup> And they straightway left their nets, and followed him.

<sup>21</sup> And going on from thence, hee sawe other two brethren, Iames the sonne of Zebedee, and Iohn his brother, in a ship vvith Zebedee their father, mending their nets: and he called them. <sup>22</sup> And they immediately left the ship and their father, and followed him. <sup>23</sup> And Iesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their Synagogues, and preaching the Gospel of the kingdome, and healing all manner of sicknesse, and all manner of disease among the people. <sup>24</sup> And his fame went throughout all Siria: and they brought vnto him all sicke people that were taken vvith diuers diseases and torments, and those which were possessed vvith deuils, and those which were lunaticke, and those that had the palsey, and he healed them. <sup>25</sup> And there folloved him great multitudes of people, from Galilee, and from Decapolis, and from Hierusalem, and from Iudæa, and from beyond Iordane.

5. AND seeing the multitudes, hee went vp into a mountayne: and when hee ἀντὼ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ· <sup>2</sup> καὶ ἀνοίξας τὸ στόμα αὐτοῦ, ἐδίδασκεν αὐτοὺς, λέγων, <sup>3</sup> Μακάριοι οἱ πτωχοὶ τῷ πνεύματι· ὅτι αὐτῶν ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν.

<sup>4</sup> μακάριοι οἱ πενθούντες· ὅτι αὐτοὶ παρακληθήσονται. <sup>5</sup> μακάριοι οἱ πραεῖς· ὅτι αὐτοὶ κληρονομήσουσι τὴν γῆν. <sup>6</sup> μακάριοι οἱ πεινώντες καὶ διψῶντες τὴν δι-καίωσιν· ὅτι αὐτοὶ χορτασθήσονται. <sup>7</sup> μακάριοι οἱ ἐλεήμονες· ὅτι αὐτοὶ ἐλεηθήσονται. <sup>8</sup> μακάριοι οἱ καθαροὶ τῇ καρδίᾳ· ὅτι αὐτοὶ τὸν Θεὸν ὄψονται.
<sup>9</sup> μακάριοι οἱ εἰρηνοποιοί· ὅτι αὐτοὶ υἱοὶ Θεοῦ κληθήσονται. <sup>10</sup> μακάριοι οἱ δε-διωγμένοι ἕνεκεν δικαιοσύνης· ὅτι αὐτῶν ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν. <sup>11</sup> μακάριοι ἐστε, ὅταν ὀνειδίσωσιν ὑμᾶς καὶ διώξωσι, καὶ εἴπωσι πᾶν πονηρὸν ῥῆμα καθ' ὑμῶν ψευδόμενοι, ἕνεκεν ἐμοῦ. <sup>12</sup> χαίrete καὶ ἀγαλλιᾶσθε, ὅτι ὁ μισθὸς ὑμῶν πολὺς ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς. οὕτω γὰρ ἐδίωξαν τοὺς προφῆτας τοὺς πρὸ ὑμῶν.

WICLIFF—1380.

hise discipulis camen to hym, <sup>2</sup> ⁊ he opened his mouth ⁊ taught hem, and seide.

<sup>3</sup> Blessed be pore men in spirit: for the kyngdom of heuencs is hern, <sup>4</sup> Blessed be mylde men; for thei schulen weeld the erthe. <sup>5</sup> Blessed be thei that moornen; for thei schulen be counfortide. <sup>6</sup> Blessed ben thei that hungren and thirsten riȝtwisnesse: for thei schulen be fulfillid. <sup>7</sup> Blessed ben merciful men: for thei schulen gete merci. <sup>8</sup> Blessed ben thei that ben of clene herte: for thei schulin se god. <sup>9</sup> Blessed be pesible men: for thei schulin be clepid goddis children, <sup>10</sup> Blessed ben thei that suffren persecucioun for riȝtwisnesse: for the kyngdom of heuencs is hern. <sup>11</sup> ⁊e schulen be blessid whanne men schulin curse ⁊ou, ⁊ schulin pursue ⁊ou, ⁊ schulin seye al yuel aȝens ⁊ou: lyvinge for me. <sup>12</sup> ioie ⁊e and be ⁊e gladde: for ⁊oure mede is plentyuous in heuencs; for so thei han pursued profetis that weren also bifor ⁊ou.

<sup>13</sup> ⁊e ben salte of the erthe; that if the salte vanysch away: where ynne schal it be saltid; to no thing it is worthe ouere: no but that it be caste out and ben defoulid of men. <sup>14</sup> ⁊e ben liȝt of the world; a citec set on an hill may not be hidde. <sup>15</sup> ne me[n] tencdith not a lanterne ⁊ puttith it vnder a busshel; but on a candelstik that it ⁊eue liȝt to alle that ben in the hous. <sup>16</sup> so, schyne ⁊oure liȝt bifor men: that thi ⁊e ⁊oure good werkis: ⁊ gloriefi ⁊oure fadir that is in heuencs.

<sup>17</sup> nyle ⁊e deme that I cam to vndo the lawe or the profetis; I cam not to vndo the lawe but to fulfillen. <sup>18</sup> forsothe I sey to ⁊ou til heuene ⁊ erthe passe, o lettir, o titil, schal not passe for the lawe: til alle thing ben doon. <sup>19</sup> therfor he that brekith oon of thes leest munde-mentis, ⁊ techith thus men, schal be clepid leest in the rewne of heuencs; but his discipules came to hym, <sup>2</sup> and he opened his mouth, and taught them sayinge: <sup>3</sup> Blessed are the pore in sprete: for theirs is the kyngdome of heuen. <sup>4</sup> Blessed are they that mourne: for they shalbe confortid. <sup>5</sup> Blessed are the meke: for they shall inheret the erth. <sup>6</sup> Blessed are they which hunger and thirst for rightwesnes: for they shal be filled. <sup>7</sup> Blessed are the mercifull: for they shall obteyne mercy. <sup>8</sup> Blessed are the pure in herte: for they shall se God. <sup>9</sup> Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shalbe called the children of God. <sup>10</sup> Blessed are they which suffre persecucion for rightwesnes sake: for theirs ys the kyngdome of heuen. <sup>11</sup> Blessed are ye when men reuyle you, and persecute you, and shall falsly say al manner of yvell saynges agaynst you for my sake. <sup>12</sup> Reioyce and be glad for greate is your rewarde in heuen. For so persecuted they the Prophetes which were before youre daues.

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>13</sup> ye are the salt of the erthe: but and yf the salt have lost hir saltnes; what can be salted therwith? It is thence forthe good for nothyng, but to be cast out; and to be troaden vnder fote of men. <sup>14</sup> ye are the light of the world. A cite that is set on an hill, cannot be hid.

<sup>15</sup> nether do men lyght a candell and put it vnder a busshell; but on a candelstyk; and it lighteth all that are in the house. <sup>16</sup> Let your light so shyne before men; that they maye se your good workes; and glorify your father which is in heuen. <sup>17</sup> Thinke not that I am come to destroye the lawe; or the Prophets: no I am nott come to destroye them; but to fulfill them. <sup>18</sup> For truly I saye vnto you; till heuen and erth perishe; one iott or one tytle of the lawe shall not scape; tyll all be fulfilled.

<sup>19</sup> Whosoever breaketh one of these lest commandmentes; and teacheth men so; he shalbe called the leest in the kyngdome of heuen. But whosoever obserueth and set, his discipules came to hym: <sup>2</sup> and after that he had opened his mouth, he taught them, sayinge: <sup>3</sup> blessed are the pore in sprete, for theirs is the kyngdom of heauen. <sup>4</sup> Blessed are they that mourne: for they shall recceue comforte. <sup>5</sup> Blessed are the meke: for they shall recceue the inheritance of the erth. <sup>6</sup> Blessed are they which hunger and thyrst after ryghtwesnes: for they shalbe satisfied. <sup>7</sup> Blessed are the mercifull: for they shall obteyne mercy. <sup>8</sup> Blessed are the pure in herte: for they shall se God. <sup>9</sup> Blessed are the peace makers: for they shalbe called the children of God.

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>10</sup> Blessed are they which suffre persecution for ryghtwesnes sake; for theirs is the kyngdom of heauen. <sup>11</sup> Blessed are ye, when men reuyle you, and persecute you, and shall falsly say, all manner of euill sayings agaynst you, for my sake. <sup>12</sup> Reioyce ⁊ be glad, for greate is youre rewarde in heuen. For so persecuted they the Prophetes, which were before you. <sup>13</sup> Ye are the salt of the erthe: But yf the salt haue lost the saltnes, what shalbe seasoned therwith? It is thence forth good for nothyng, but to be cast out, and to be troaden downe of men. <sup>14</sup> ye are the lyght of the world. A cite that is set on an hill, cannot be hid. <sup>15</sup> nether do men lyght a candell, and put it vnder a busshell, but on a candelstyk, and it geeth light vnto all that are in the house. <sup>16</sup> Let youre lyght so shyne before men; That they maye se youre good workes, ⁊ glorify youre father which is in heauen.

<sup>17</sup> Thinke not that I am come to destroye the lawe, or the Prophetes: no, I am nott come to destroye, but to fulfill. <sup>18</sup> For truly I saye vnto you; tyll heauen and erth passe, one iott or one tytle of the lawe shall not scape, tyll all be fulfilled.

<sup>19</sup> Whosoever therefore breaketh one of these lest commandmentes, and teacheth men so, he shalbe called the leest in the kyngdom of heuen. But whosoever uen, theirs. lpt, light. pesible, possible. clepid, called. aȝens, against. no me, nobody. tencdith, teacheth. erth, or kindred. ⁊oure, yere. nyle ⁊e deme, deem ⁊e not. ⁊e, we.

<sup>13</sup> ε' Ὑμεῖς ἐστε τὸ ἄλας τῆς γῆς· ἐὰν δὲ τὸ ἄλας μωραυθῆ, ἐν τίνι ἀλισθήσεται; εἰς οὐδὲν ἰσχύει ἔτι, εἰ μὴ βληθῆναι ἔξω, καὶ καταπατεῖσθαι ὑπὸ τῶν ἀνθρώπων. <sup>14</sup> Ὑμεῖς ἐστε τὸ φῶς τοῦ κόσμου· οὐ δύναται πόλις κρυβῆναι ἐπάνω ὄρους κειμένη· <sup>15</sup> οὐδὲ καίουσιν λύχων καὶ τιθέασιν αὐτὸν ὑπὸ τὸν μύδιον, ἀλλ' ἐπὶ τῇ λυχνίαν, καὶ λάμπει πᾶσι τοῖς ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ. <sup>16</sup> οὕτω λαμψάτω τὸ φῶς ὑμῶν ἐμπροσθεν τῶν ἀνθρώπων, ὅπως ἴδωσιν ὑμῶν τὰ καλὰ ἔργα, καὶ δοξάσωσι τὸν πατέρα ὑμῶν τὸν ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς. <sup>17</sup> Μὴ νομίσητε ὅτι ἦλθον καταλύσαι τὸν νόμον ἢ τοὺς προφῆτας· οὐκ ἦλθον καταλύσαι, ἀλλὰ πληρῶσαι. <sup>18</sup> ἄμην γὰρ λέγω ὑμῖν, ἕως ἂν παρέλθῃ ὁ οὐρανὸς καὶ ἡ γῆ, ἴωτα ἐν ἧ μία κεραία οὐ μὴ παρέλθῃ ἀπὸ τοῦ νόμου, ἕως ἂν πάντα γένηται. <sup>19</sup> ὃς ἐὰν οὖν λύσῃ μίαν τῶν ἐντολῶν τούτων τῶν ἐλαχίστων, καὶ διδάξῃ οὕτω τοὺς ἀνθρώπους, ἐλάχιστος

GENEVA — 1557.

was set, his disciples came to him. <sup>2</sup> And he opened his mouth and taught them, saying, <sup>3</sup> Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. <sup>4</sup> Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted. <sup>5</sup> Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth. <sup>6</sup> Blessed are they which hunger & thirst for righteousness: for they shall be filled. <sup>7</sup> Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy. <sup>8</sup> Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God. <sup>9</sup> Blessed are the peace makers: for they shall be called the children of God. <sup>10</sup> Blessed are they which suffer persecution for righteousness sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

<sup>11</sup> Blessed are ye when men reuile you, and persecute you, and say all manner of euil against you for my sake, falsely. <sup>12</sup> Reioyce and be glad, for great is your reward in heauen: For so persecuted they the prophetes which were before you. <sup>13</sup> Ye are the salte of the earth: but if the salte haue lost his sauour wher with shall one salt? It is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be troden vnder foote of men. <sup>14</sup> Ye are the light of the worlde. A citie that is set on an hyl, can not be hid. <sup>15</sup> Neither do men light a candel, and put it vnder a bushell, but on a candelstye: and it lygeth all that are in the house. <sup>16</sup> Let your lyght so shyne before men, that they may see your good workes, and glorifie your father which is in heauen. <sup>17</sup> Thinke not that I am come to destroye the lawe, or the Prophetes: I am not come to destroye them, but to fulfil them. <sup>18</sup> For truly I say vnto you, Tyl heauen and earth perishe, one iote, or one tittle of the law shall not scape, til all thinges be fulfilled.

<sup>19</sup> Whosoever therefore shall breake one of these least commandementes, and teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heauen: But whosoever set, his Disciples came vnto him, <sup>2</sup> and opening his mouth he taught them, saying. <sup>3</sup> Blessed are the poore in Spirit: for theirs is the Kingdom of heauen. <sup>4</sup> Blessed are the meeke: for they shal possesse the land. <sup>5</sup> Blessed are they that mourne: for they shal be comforted. <sup>6</sup> Blessed are they that hunger & thirst after iustice: for they shal haue their fil. <sup>7</sup> Blessed are the mercifull: for they shal obtayne mercie. <sup>8</sup> Blessed are the cleane of hart: for they shal see God. <sup>9</sup> Blessed are: the peace-makers: for they shal be called the children of God. <sup>10</sup> Blessed are they that suffer persecution for iustice: for theirs is the Kingdom of heauen.

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>11</sup> Blessed are ye vwhen they shal reuile you, and persecute you, & speake al that naught is agaynst you, vntruely, for my sake: <sup>12</sup> be glad & reioyce, for your reward is very great in heauen. For so they persecuted the Prophetes, that vvere before you. <sup>13</sup> You are the salt of the earth. <sup>14</sup> But if the salt lesse his vertue, vwherevwith shal it be salted? It is good for nothing any more but to be cast forth, and to be troden of men. <sup>15</sup> You are the light of the vworld. A citie cannot be hid, situated on a mountaine. <sup>16</sup> Neither do men light a candel and put it vnder a bushell, but vpon a candlesticke, that it may shine to al that are in the house.

<sup>17</sup> So let your light shine before men: that they may see your good vworkes, and glorifie your father vvhich is in heauen. <sup>18</sup> Do not thinke that I am come to breake the Lavy or the Prophetes. I am not come to breake: but to fulfil. <sup>19</sup> For assuredly I say vnto you, til heauen and earth passe, one iote or one tittle shal not passe of the Lavy: til al be fulfilled.

<sup>20</sup> He therefore that shall breake one of these least commandementes, & shall so teach men: shall be called the least in the Kingdom of heauen. But he that shall was set, his disciples came vnto him. <sup>2</sup> And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying, <sup>3</sup> Blessed are the poore in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. <sup>4</sup> Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted. <sup>5</sup> Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth. <sup>6</sup> Blessed are they which doe hunger & thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled. <sup>7</sup> Blessed are the mercifull: for they shall obtaine mercie. <sup>8</sup> Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God. <sup>9</sup> Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God. <sup>10</sup> Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

AUTHORISED — 1611.

<sup>11</sup> Blessed are ye, when men shall reuile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of euil against you falsely for my sake. <sup>12</sup> Reioyce, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heauen: For so persecuted they the Prophetes which were before you. <sup>13</sup> Ye are the salt of the earth: But if the salt haue lost his sauour, wherewith shall it be salted? It is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out, and to be troden vnder foote of men. <sup>14</sup> Ye are the light of the world. A citie that is set on an hill, cannot be hid. <sup>15</sup> Neither doe men light a candle, and put it vnder a bushell: but on a candlesticke, and it giveth light vnto all that are in the house. <sup>16</sup> Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good workes, and glorifie your father which is in heauen. <sup>17</sup> Thinke not that I am come to destroy the lawe or the Prophetes. I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill. <sup>18</sup> For verily I say vnto you, Till heauen and earth passe, one iote or one tittle, shall in no wise passe from the law, till all be fulfilled.

<sup>19</sup> Whosoever therefore shall breake one of these least commandementes, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heauen: but whoso-

τῷ ἀντιδίκῳ σου ταχὺ, ἕως ὅτου εἶ <sup>26</sup> ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ μετ' αὐτοῦ· | μήποτε σε παραδῶ
 ὁ ἀντιδικὸς τῷ κριτῇ, καὶ ὁ κριτὴς σε παραδῶ τῷ ὑπηρέτῃ, καὶ εἰς φυλακὴν βληθήσῃ. <sup>25</sup> ἀμὴν λέγω σοι, οὐ μὴ ἐξέλθῃς ἐκεῖθεν, ἕως ἂν ἀποδῶς τὸν ἔσχατον κοδράντην. <sup>27</sup> Ἠκούσατε ὅτι ἐρρήθη<sup>n</sup>, Οὐ μοιχεύσεις· <sup>28</sup> ἐγὼ δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι
 κὰρ ὁ βλέπων γυναῖκα πρὸς τὸ ἐπιθυμήσαι<sup>o</sup> αὐτήν | ἤδη ἐμοίχευσεν αὐτήν ἐν τῇ καρδίᾳ αὐτοῦ. <sup>29</sup> εἰ δὲ ὁ ὀφθαλμὸς σου ὁ δεξιὸς σκανδαλίζει σε, ἔξελε αὐτὸν καὶ βάλε ἀπὸ σοῦ· συμφέρεи γάρ σοι ἵνα ἀπόληται ἐν τῶν μελῶν σου, καὶ μὴ ὅλον τὸ σῶμά σου βληθῆ<sup>i</sup> εἰς γέενναν. <sup>30</sup> καὶ εἰ ἡ δεξιὰ σου χεῖρ σκανδαλίζει σε, ἔκκοψον αὐτήν καὶ βάλε ἀπὸ σοῦ· συμφέρεи γάρ σοι ἵνα ἀπόληται ἐν τῶν μελῶν σου, καὶ μὴ ὅλον τὸ σῶμά σου<sup>p</sup> βληθῆ<sup>i</sup> εἰς γέενναν. | <sup>31</sup> Ἐρρήθη δὲ, <sup>q</sup> ὅτι |
 ὃς ἂν ἀπολύσῃ τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ, δότω αὐτῇ ἀποστάσιον· <sup>32</sup> ἐγὼ δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν,

<sup>o</sup> Rec. αὐτῆς.

<sup>p</sup> Alex. εἰς γέενναν ἀπόδηγ.

<sup>q</sup> Alex. = ὅτι.

GENEVA—1557.

shal obserue and teache them, the same shal be called great in the kyngdome of heauen. <sup>20</sup> For I say vnto you, except your righteousnesse exceede the righteousnes of the Scribes and Pharises, ye shal not enter in to the kyngdome of heauen. <sup>21</sup> Ye haue heard how it was said vnto them of the olde time, Thou shalt not kil: For whoesoer killeth, shal be culpable of iudgement. <sup>22</sup> But I say vnto you, whoesoer is angry with his brother vnadvisedly shal be culpable of iudgement. And whoesoer saith vnto his brother Racha, shal be worthis to be punished by the Council: And whoesoer shal say, thou Foole, shal be worthy to be punished with hel fire.

<sup>23</sup> Yf then thou bringe thy gyft to the altare, and there rememberst that thy brother hath ought against thee, <sup>24</sup> Leave there thine offerings before the altare, and go thy way: first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gyft. <sup>25</sup> Agree with thine aduersarie quickly, whiles thou art in the way with him, lest thy aduersarie deliuer thee to the iudge, and thy iudge deliuer thee to the sargeant, and then thou be cast into prison. <sup>26</sup> Verely I say vnto thee, thou shalt not come out thence, tyl thou hast paid the vtmost farthyng. <sup>27</sup> Ye haue heard that it was sayd to them of olde time: Thou shalt not commit aduourtie. <sup>28</sup> But I say vnto you, that whoesoer lokech on a woman to lust after her, hath committed aduourtie with her already in his hart. <sup>29</sup> Wherefore if thy right eye cause thee to offend, plucke it out, and cast it from thee: for better it is for thee, that one of thy members perish, then that thy whole body shoulde be cast into hel. <sup>30</sup> Also if thy right hand make thee to offend, cut it of, and cast it from thee: better it is that one of thy membres perish, then that all thy body shoulde be cast into hel. <sup>31</sup> It is sayd, whoesoer shal put away his wife, let him gene her a testimonial of diuorcement. <sup>32</sup> But I say vnto you, who-doe and teach: he shal be called great in the Kingdom of heauen. <sup>21</sup> For I tel you, that vnles you iustice abound more then that of the Scribes and Pharisees, you shal not enter into the Kingdom of heauen. <sup>22</sup> You haue heard that it was sayd to them of old. Thou shalt not kil, and vvhoso killeth, shal be in danger of iudgement. <sup>23</sup> But I say to you, that vvhoso-euer is angry vwith his brother, shal be in danger of iudgement. And vvhoso-euer shal say to his brother, Raca: shal be in danger of a council. And whoesoer shal say, Thou foole: shal be guilty of the hel of fyre.

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>24</sup> If therefore thou offer thy gift at the altar, and there thou remember that thy brother hath ought agaynst the: <sup>25</sup> leave there thy offering before the altar, and goe first to be reconciled to thy brother: and then coming thou shalt offer thy gift. <sup>26</sup> Be at agreement vwith thy aduersarie betimes vvhiles thou art in the vway vwith him: lest perhaps the aduersarie deliuer thee to the iudge, and the iudge deliuer thee to the officer, and thou be cast into prison. <sup>27</sup> Amen I say to thee, thou shalt not goe out from thence til thou repay the last farthing. <sup>28</sup> You haue heard that it was sayd to them of old, Thou shalt not committe aduourtie. <sup>29</sup> But I say to you, that vvhoso-euer shal see a vwoman to lust after her, hath already committed aduourtie vwith her in his hart.

<sup>30</sup> And if thy right eie scandalize thee, plucke it out, & cast it from thee. for it is expedient for thee that one of thy limmes perish, rather then thy vvhole body be cast into hel. <sup>31</sup> And if thy right hand scandalize thee, cut it of, and cast it from thee: for it is expedient for thee that one of thy limmes perish, rather then that thy vvhole body goe into hel. <sup>32</sup> It was sayd also, vvhoso-euer shal dimisse his vwife, let him giue her a bil of diuorcement. <sup>33</sup> But I say to you, vvhoso-

AUTHORISED—1611.

euer shall doe, and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heauen. <sup>20</sup> For I say vnto you, That except your righteousnesse shall exceede the righteousnesse of the Scribes and Pharises, yee shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heauen. <sup>21</sup> Yee haue heard, that it was saide<sup>a</sup> by them of old time, Thou shalt not kill: and, Whoesoer shall kill, shalbe in danger of the iudgment. <sup>22</sup> But I say vnto you, that whoesoer is angry with his brother without a cause, shall be in danger of the Iudgement: and whoesoer shall say to his brother, Racha, shal be in danger of the counsel: but whoesoer shall say, Thou foole, shalbe in danger of hell fire. <sup>23</sup> Therefore if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberst that thy brother hath ought against thee: <sup>24</sup> Leave there thy gift before the altar, and goe thy way, first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift. <sup>25</sup> Agree with thine aduersarie quickly, whiles thou art in the way with him: least at any time the aduersarie deliuer thee to the iudge, and the iudge deliuer thee to the officer, and thou be cast into prison. <sup>26</sup> Uerily I say vnto thee, thou shalt by no meanes come out thence, til thou hast payed the vtmost farthing. <sup>27</sup> Yee haue heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not commit adultery. <sup>28</sup> But I say vnto you, That whoesoer lookech on a woman to lust after her, hath committed adultery with her already in his heart.

<sup>29</sup> And if thy right eye<sup>b</sup> offend thee, plucke it out, and cast it from thee. For it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell. <sup>30</sup> And if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off, and cast it from thee. For it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell. <sup>31</sup> It hath bene said, Whoesoer shall put away his wife, let him giue her a writing of diuorcement. <sup>32</sup> But I

<sup>a</sup> Or, to them.

<sup>b</sup> Or, do cause thee to offend.

ὅτι ὁς ἀν ἀπολύσῃ| τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ, παρεκτὸς λόγου πορνείας, ποιεῖ αὐτὴν
 μοιχᾶσθαι,| καὶ ὁς ἐὰν ἀπολελυμένην γαμήσῃ, μοιχᾶται. <sup>33</sup> Πάλιν ἠκούσατε ὅτι ἐρρήθη τοῖς ἀρχαίοις, Οὐκ ἐπιπορήσεις, ἀποδώσεις δὲ τῷ Κυρίῳ τοὺς ὄρκους σου· <sup>34</sup> ἐγὼ δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν μὴ ὁμόσαι ὅλως· μήτε ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ, ὅτι θρόνος ἐστὶ τοῦ Θεοῦ· <sup>35</sup> μήτε ἐν τῇ γῇ, ὅτι ὑποπόδιόν ἐστι τῶν ποδῶν αὐτοῦ· μήτε εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα, ὅτι πόλις ἐστὶ τοῦ μεγάλου βασιλείως· <sup>36</sup> μήτε ἐν τῇ κεφαλῇ σου ὁμόσης, ὅτι οὐ δύνασαι μίαν τρίχα λευκὴν ἢ μέλαιναν ποιῆσαι. <sup>37</sup> ἔστω δὲ ὁ λόγος ὑμῶν, ναὶ ναὶ, οὐ οὐ· τὸ δὲ περισσὸν τούτων ἐκ τοῦ πονηροῦ ἐστίν.
<sup>38</sup> Ἠκούσατε ὅτι ἐρρήθη, Ὁφθαλμὸν ἀντὶ ὀφθαλμοῦ, καὶ ὀδόντα ἀντὶ ὀδόντος·
<sup>39</sup> ἐγὼ δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν μὴ ἀντιστῆναι τῷ πονηρῷ· ἀλλ' ὅστις σε ραπίσει ἐπὶ τὴν δεξιάν σου σιαγόνα, στρέψου αὐτῷ καὶ τὴν ἄλλην· <sup>40</sup> καὶ τῷ θέλοντί σοι κρι-

* Alex. πᾶς ὁ ἀπολύων.

* Alex. μοιχευθήσεται.

WICLIIF—1380.

I seie to zou that eueri man that leueth his wiif, outakun cause of fornicacioun: makith hir to do lechchery; he that weddyth the forsaken wiif doith auoutrie. <sup>33</sup> Eitsonne ze han herd, that it was seid to oold men, thou schal not forswere; but thou schalt zilde thin othis to the lord.

<sup>34</sup> But I seye to zou: that ze swere not for any thing, nether bi heuene: for it is the tron of god; <sup>35</sup> nether bi erthe: for it is the stool of his feet; nether bi ierusalem: for it is the citee of a greet kyng; <sup>36</sup> nether thou schalt swere bi thin heed: for thou maist not make oon heere whyt ne black; <sup>37</sup> but be youre word, ze ze, nay nay, & that that is more thanne these is of yuel; <sup>38</sup> ze han herd that it hath be seid i ze for i ze, and tooth for tooth; <sup>39</sup> but I seie to zou that ze azenstonde not an yuel man; but if ony man smyte thee in the riht cheke: schewe to hym the tother, <sup>40</sup> & to hym that wole stryue with thee in dom, and take away thi coote: leue thou to hym also thi mantil; <sup>41</sup> and who euer constreyneth thee a thousand schal go thou with hym othere tweyne; <sup>42</sup> zeue thou to hym that axith of the: and turne not aweye fro hym that wol borowe of thee.

<sup>43</sup> ze han herd that it was seid; thou schalt loue thi neigbore, & hate thin enemy; <sup>44</sup> but I sei to zou, loue ze youre enemyes, do ze wel to hem that haten zou, and preie ze for hem that pursuen zou & scaundre; <sup>45</sup> that ze ben the sones of youre fadir that is in heuene, that makith his sunne to rise up on good & yuel men: & reyneth on iust men and uniuert; <sup>46</sup> for if ze louen hem that louen zou! what mede schulen ze haue? whether puppicanes don not this? <sup>47</sup> and if ze gretzen youre britheren oonli: what schulen ze do more? ne don not hetthen men this? <sup>48</sup> therfore

outakun, except ofsonne, again. zilde, shield or pay.
 11e, eye. azenstonde, resist, withstand. dom, judgment.
 1100e, give. mede, reward.

TYNDALE—1534.

vnto you: whosoever put away his wyfe, (except it be for fornicacion) causeth her to breake matrimony. And whosoever maryeth her that is deversed, breaketh wedlocke.

<sup>33</sup> Agayne ye haue hearde how it was sayd to them of olde tyme; thou shalt not forswere thy selfe; but shalt performe thyne othe to God. <sup>34</sup> But I saye vnto you; swere not at all: nether by heuen/ for it ys Goddes seate: <sup>35</sup> nor yet by the erth/ for it is his fote stole: nether by Ierusalem/ for it ys the cyte of that greete kyng: <sup>36</sup> nether shalt thou swere by thy heed, because thou canst not make one white heer/ or blacke: <sup>37</sup> But your communicacion shalbe, ye, ye: nay/ nay. For what soeuer is more then that, cometh of yvell.

<sup>38</sup> ye haue hearde how it ys sayd, an eye for an eye: a tothe for a tothe. <sup>39</sup> But I saye to you; that ye resist not wronge. But whosoever geue the a blowe on thy right cheke, tourne to him the other. <sup>40</sup> And yf eny man will sue the at the lawe, and take away thy coote; let hym have thy cloocke also. <sup>41</sup> And whosoever wyll compell the to goo a myle, goo wyth him twayne. <sup>42</sup> Geue to him that axeth, and from him that wolde borowe tourne not away.

<sup>43</sup> Ye haue hearde how it is sayde; thou shalt loue thyne neighbour, and hate thine enemy. <sup>44</sup> But I saye vnto you, loue youre enemyes. Blesse them that curse you. Do good to them that hate you. Praye for them which doo you wronge and persecute you, <sup>45</sup> that ye maye be the chyldern of youre fater that is in heauen: for he maketh his sunne to aryse on the yvell, and on the good; and sendeth his reyn on the iuste and vniuert. <sup>46</sup> For yf ye love them, which loue you: what rewarde shall ye haue? Doo not the Publicans euen so? <sup>47</sup> And yf ye be frendly to youre brethren onely: what singuler thyng doo ye? Do not the Publicans lyk wyse? <sup>48</sup> ye

CRANMER—1539.

you: that whosoever doth put away his wyfe (except it be for fornicacyon) causeth her to breake matrimony. And whosoever maryeth her that is deoursed, committeth adoutrye. <sup>33</sup> Agayne, ye haue heard how it was sayed to them of olde tyme: thou shalt not forswere thy selfe, but shalt performe vnto the lord those things that thou swearest. <sup>34</sup> But I saye vnto you. swere not at all: nether by heauen for it is Goddeseste, <sup>35</sup> nor by the erth, for it is hys fote stole: nether by Ierusalem: for it is the cyte of the great kyng: <sup>36</sup> nether shalt thou swere by thy head, because thou canst not make one heare whyte or blacke. <sup>37</sup> But your communicacion, shalbe, ye, ye: nay/ nay. For what soeuer is added more then these, it cometh of euyl. <sup>38</sup> Ye haue hearde that it is sayde: an eye for an eye: and a toth for a toth. <sup>39</sup> But I saye vnto you, that ye resist not euell. But whosoever geue the a blowe on the right cheke, turne to hym the other also. <sup>40</sup> And yf eny man wyll sue the at the law, and take away thy coate, let him haue thy cloocke also. <sup>41</sup> And whosoever will compell the to go a myle, go with him twayne. <sup>42</sup> Geue to him that asketh the: and from him that wolde borowe, turne not thou away.

<sup>43</sup> Ye haue heard that it is sayde thou shalt loue thine neyghbour, and hate thyne enemy. <sup>44</sup> But I saye vnto you, loue youre enemyes. Blesse them that curse you. Do good to them that hate you. Praye for them which hurt you and persecute you, <sup>45</sup> that ye maye be the children of youre fater which is in heauen: for he maketh hys sonne to aryse on the euell, & on the good, & sendeth rayne on the iuste & vniuerte. <sup>46</sup> For yf ye loue them, which loue you: what rewarde haue ye? Do not the publicans also euen the same? <sup>47</sup> And yf ye make moche of youre brethren onely, what singuler thyng do ye? Do not also the Publicans lykewyse? <sup>48</sup> ye shal therefore be perfecte, euen as ἔθῃμαι, καὶ τὸν χιτῶνά σου λαβεῖν, ἄφες αὐτῷ καὶ τὸ ἱμάτιον· <sup>41</sup> καὶ ὅστις σε ἄγγαρεύσει μίλλον ἓν, ὑπάγε μετ' αὐτοῦ δύο. <sup>42</sup> τῷ αἰτιούντῃ σε δίδου· καὶ τὸν θέλοντα ἀπὸ σοῦ δανείσασθαι μὴ ἀποστραφῆς. <sup>43</sup> Ἠκούσατε ὅτι ἐρρήθη, Ἀγα-πῆσεις τὸν πλησίον σου, καὶ μισήσεις τὸν ἐχθρόν σου· <sup>44</sup> ἐγὼ δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν, ἀγαπάτε τοὺς ἐχθροὺς ὑμῶν, εὐλογεῖτε τοὺς καταρωμένους ὑμᾶς, καλῶς ποιεῖτε τοῖς μισοῦσιν | ὑμᾶς, καὶ προσεύχεσθε ὑπὲρ τῶν ἐπηρεάζοντων ὑμᾶς, καὶ διωκόντων ὑμᾶς· <sup>45</sup> ὅπως γένησθε υἱοὶ τοῦ πατρὸς ὑμῶν τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς, ὅτι τὸν ἥλιον αὐτοῦ ἀνατέλλει ἐπὶ πονηροῦς καὶ ἀγαθοῦς, καὶ βρέχει ἐπὶ δικαίους καὶ ἀδίκους.

<sup>46</sup> εἰ ἂν γὰρ ἀγαπήσητε τοὺς ἀγαπῶντας ὑμᾶς, τίνα μισθὸν ἔχετε; οὐχὶ καὶ οἱ τελῶναι τὸ αὐτὸ ποιοῦσι; <sup>47</sup> καὶ εἰ ἂν ἀσπάσησθε τοὺς ἀδελφοὺς ὑμῶν μόνον, τί
 περισσὸν ποιεῖτε; οὐχὶ καὶ οἱ ἂν τελῶναι | ὡ αὐτῷ | ποιοῦσιν; <sup>48</sup> ἔσεσθε οὖν ὑμεῖς

<sup>1</sup> Rec. τοὺς μισοῦντας.

<sup>2</sup> Alex. ἰθρυκοί.

<sup>3</sup> Alex. τὸ αὐτὸ.

GENEVA—1557.

soeuer shal put away his wife (except it be for fornication) causeth her to be an aduouterer, And whosoever shal marie her that is deoured, committeth aduoutrie.

<sup>33</sup> Againe, ye haue heard that it was sayd to them of olde time, Thou shalt not forswear thy self, but shalt performe thine othe to God. <sup>34</sup> But I say vnto you, sweare not at all, neither by heauen, for it is Goddes seat. <sup>35</sup> Nor yet by the earth, for it is his fote stole: nether by Ierusalem, for it is the citie of the great king. <sup>36</sup> Nether shalt thou swere by thy heade, because thou canst not make one haire white or blacke. <sup>37</sup> But let your communication be, Yea, yea: Nay nay. For what soeuer is more then these, commeth of euil. <sup>38</sup> Ye haue heard that it hath bene sayed An eye, for & eye: & a tooth, for a tooth. <sup>39</sup> But I say vnto you, Resist not wrong: but whose euer shall smite thee on thy right cheke, turne to him the other. <sup>40</sup> And if any man wil sue thee at the law, and take away thy coate, let him haue thy cloke also. <sup>41</sup> And whosoever wil compell thee to go a myle, go wyth him twaine. <sup>42</sup> Geue to him that asketh, and from him that would borow, turne not away.

<sup>43</sup> Ye haue heard that it hath bene said, Thou shalt loue thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy. <sup>44</sup> But I say vnto you, Loue your enemies, blesse them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, praye for them which hurt you, and persecute you: <sup>45</sup> That ye may be the children of your father that is in heauen: for he maketh his sunne to arise on the euil and on the good, and sendeth his raine on the iust, and vnjust. <sup>46</sup> For if ye loue them, which loue you, what reward shal you haue? Do not the Publicans euen the same? <sup>47</sup> And if ye be frendly to your brethern only: what singular thing do ye? do not the Publicans likewise? <sup>48</sup> Ye shal therefore be perfect, soeuer shal dimisse his wvife, excepting the cause of fornication, maketh her to committe aduoutrie: And he that shal marie her that is dimissed, committeth aduoutrie.

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>34</sup> Agayne you haue heard that it vvas sayd to them of old, Thou shalt not committe perurie: but thou shalt performe thy othes to our Lord. <sup>35</sup> But I say to you not to svweare at al: neither by heauen, because it is the throne of God: neither by the earth, because it is the foote-stole of his feete: neither by Hierusalem, because it is the citie of the great King. <sup>36</sup> Neither shalt thou svweare by thy head, because thou canst not make one haire vvwhite or blacke. <sup>37</sup> Let your take be, yea, yea: no, no: and that vvwhich is ouer & aboue these, is of euil.

<sup>38</sup> You haue heard that it vvas sayd, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth. <sup>39</sup> But I say to you not to resist euil: but if one strike thee on thy right cheeke, turne to him also the other: <sup>40</sup> and to him that vvil contend vvith thee in iudgment, and take away thy cote, let goe thy cloke also vnto him. <sup>41</sup> and vvwhoesoeur vvil force thee one mile, goe vvith him other tvwayne.

<sup>42</sup> He that asketh of thee, giue to him: and to him that vvould borovv of thee, turne not avvay.

<sup>43</sup> You haue heard that it vvas sayd, Thou shalt loue thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy. <sup>44</sup> But I say to you, loue your enemies, doe good to them that hate you: and pray for them that persecute and abuse you: <sup>45</sup> that you may be the children of your father vvwhich is in heauen, vvho maketh his sunne to rise vpon good & bad, and rayneth vpon iust & vnjust. <sup>46</sup> For if you loue them that loue you, vvhat revvard shal you haue? do not also the Publicans this? <sup>47</sup> And if you salute your brethern only, vvhat do you more? do not also the heathen this? <sup>48</sup> Be

AUTHORISED—1611.

say vnto you, that whosoever shall put away his wife, sauing for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery: and whosoever shall marie her that is divorced, committeth adulterie. <sup>33</sup> Againe, ye haue heard that it hath bene said by them of old time, Thou shalt not forswear thy selfe, but shalt performe vnto the Lord thine othes. <sup>34</sup> But I say vnto you, Swear not at all, neither by heauen, for it is Gods throne: <sup>35</sup> Nor by the earth, for it is his footstole: neither by Hierusalem, for it is the citie of the great king. <sup>36</sup> Neither shalt thou swear by thy head, because thou canst not make one haire white or blacke. <sup>37</sup> But let your communication bee Yea, yea: Nay, nay: For whatsoeuer is more then these, commeth of euil.

<sup>38</sup> Yee haue heard that it hath bene said, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth. <sup>39</sup> But I say vnto you, that yee resist not euill: but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheeke, turne to him the other also. <sup>40</sup> And if any man wil sue thee at the law, and take away thy coate, let him haue thy cloake also. <sup>41</sup> And whosoever shall compell thee to goe a mile, goe with him twaine. <sup>42</sup> Giue to him that asketh thee: and from him that would borrow of thee, turne not thou away.

<sup>43</sup> Yee haue heard, that it hath bene said, Thou shalt loue thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy: <sup>44</sup> But I say vnto you, Loue your enemies, blesse them that curse you, doe good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully vse you, and persecute you: <sup>45</sup> That yee may be the children of your father which is in heauen: for he maketh his sunne to rise on the euill and on the good, and sendeth raine on the iust, and on the vnjust. <sup>46</sup> For if ye loue them which loue you, what reward haue ye? Doe not euen the Publicans the same? <sup>47</sup> And if yee salute your brethren only, what do you more then others? Doe not euen the Publicans so? <sup>48</sup> Be

‘ θρώποις· ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, <sup>6</sup> ὅτι | ἀπέχουσι τὸν μισθὸν αὐτῶν. <sup>6</sup> σὺ δὲ, ὅταν
 ‘ προσεύχη, εἰσελθε εἰς τὸ ταμιεῖόν σου, καὶ κλείσας τὴν θύραν σου, πρόσευξαι τῷ ‘ πατρὶ σου τῷ ἐν τῷ κρυπτῷ· καὶ ὁ πατήρ σου ὁ βλέπων ἐν τῷ κρυπτῷ ἀπο-
 ‘ δώσει σοι <sup>7</sup> ἐν τῷ φανερωῷ. | <sup>7</sup> Προσευχόμενοι δὲ μὴ βατπολογήσητε, ὡς περ οἱ
 ‘ ἔθνηκοί· δοκοῦσι γὰρ ὅτι ἐν τῇ πολυλογίᾳ αὐτῶν εἰσακουσθήσονται. <sup>8</sup> μὴ οὖν ‘ ὁμοιωθῆτε αὐτοῖς· οἶδε γὰρ ὁ πατήρ ὑμῶν ὃν χρεῖαν ἔχετε, πρὸ τοῦ ὑμᾶς αἰτη-‘σαι αὐτόν. <sup>9</sup> οὕτως οὖν προσεύχεσθε ὑμεῖς· Πάτερ ἡμῶν ὁ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς, ‘ ἁγιασθήτω τὸ ὄνομά σου, <sup>10</sup> ἐλθέτω ἡ βασιλεία σου, γεννηθῶ τὸ θέλημά σου, ‘ ὡς ἐν οὐρανῷ καὶ ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς· <sup>11</sup> τὸν ἄρτον ἡμῶν τὸν ἐπιούσιον δός ἡμῖν σήμε-
 ‘ρον· <sup>12</sup> καὶ ἄφες ἡμῖν τὰ ὀφειλήματα ἡμῶν, ὡς καὶ ἡμεῖς ἀφίεμεν τοῖς ὀφειλέταις ‘ ἡμῶν· <sup>13</sup> καὶ μὴ εἰσενέγκῃς ἡμᾶς εἰς πειρασμόν, ἀλλὰ ῥύσαι ἡμᾶς ἀπὸ τοῦ πονη-

<sup>6</sup> Alex. προσεύχασθε, οὐκ ἔσασθε.

<sup>4</sup> Alex. = ἄν.

<sup>6</sup> Alex. = ὄτι.

<sup>7</sup> Alex. = ἐν τῷ φανερωῷ.

GENEVA — 1557.

euen as your father which is in heauen is perfect.

6. TAKE heed that ye geue not your almes in the syght of men, to the intent ye might be looked at of them: Or els ye get no reward of your father whych is in heauen.

<sup>2</sup> Whensoeuer therefore thou geuest thine almes, thou shalt not make a trumpet to be blown before thee, as the hypocrites do in the Synagoges and in the stretes, for to be prayed of men. Verely I say vnto you, they haue their rewarde.

<sup>3</sup> But when thou doest thine almes, let not thy left hand knowe what thy right hand doth. <sup>4</sup> That thine almes may be secret; and thy father seyng it in secret, shal rewarde thee openly.

<sup>5</sup> And when thou prayest, be not as the hypocrites are: for they loue to pray standyng in the Synagoges and in the corners of the stretes, because they would be seene of mene. verely I say vnto you, they haue theyrrewarde. <sup>6</sup> But when thou prayest, enter into thy chamber, and when thou hast shut thy doore, pray thou to thy father which is in secret: and thy father which seeth in secret, shal rewarde thee openly. <sup>7</sup> Also when ye pray, bable not much as the heathen do: for they thyncke to be heard for their much babling sake.

<sup>8</sup> Be ye not like them therefore: For your father knoweth wherof ye haue nede, before ye aske of him. <sup>9</sup> After this maner therefore pray ye, Our father which art in heauen, halowed be thy name. <sup>10</sup> Let thy kingdome come. Thy wil be done euen in earth, as it is in heauen. <sup>11</sup> Geue vs this day our daily bread. <sup>12</sup> And forgiue vs our debtes, euen as we forgiue our debtors. <sup>13</sup> And lead vs not into tentation, but deliuer vs from euil. For thyne

RHEIMS — 1582.

ye perfect therefore, as also your heauenly father is perfect.

6. TAKE good heede that you doe not your iustice before men, to be seen of them: otherwise reward you shall not haue with your father which is in heauen.

<sup>2</sup> Therefore when thou doest an almes-deede, sound not a trompet before thee, as the hypocrites doe in the Synagogues and in the streetes, that they may be honoured of men: Amen I say to you, they haue received their reward.

<sup>3</sup> But when thou doest an almes-deede, let not thy left hand knowe what thy right hand doeth: <sup>4</sup> that thy almes-deede may be in secret, and thy father which seeth in secret, will repay thee. <sup>5</sup> And when ye pray, you shal not be as the hypocrites, that loue to stand & pray in the Synagoges and corners of the streetes, that they may be seen of men: Amen I say to you, they haue receiued their reward.

<sup>6</sup> But thou when thou shalt pray, enter into thy chamber, & hauing shut the doore, pray to thy father in secret: and thy father which seeth in secret, will repay thee.

<sup>7</sup> And when you are praying, speake not much, as the heathen. For they think that in their much-speaking they may be heard. <sup>8</sup> Be not you therefore like to them, for your father knoweth what is needefull for you, before you aske him.

<sup>9</sup> Thus therefore shal you pray. Our Father which art in heauen, sanctified be thy name. <sup>10</sup> Let thy Kingdom come. Thy wil be done, as in heauen, in earth also. <sup>11</sup> Geue us to day our supersubstantial bread. <sup>12</sup> And forgiue vs our dettes, as we also forgiue our debtors. <sup>13</sup> And leade vs not into tentation. But deliuer

AUTHORISED — 1611.

ye therefore perfect, euen as your father, which is in heauen, is perfect.

6. TAKE heed that ye doe not your almes before men, to bee seene of them: otherwise yee haue no reward <sup>a</sup> of your father which is in heauen. <sup>2</sup> Therefore, when thou doest thine almes, <sup>b</sup> doe not sound a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites doe, in the Synagogues, and in the streetes, that they may haue glory of men. Verely, I say vnto you, they haue their rewarde. <sup>3</sup> But when thou doest almes, let not thy left hand know, what thy right doeth: <sup>4</sup> That thine almes may be in secret: And thy father which seeth in secret, himselfe shall reward thee openly.

<sup>5</sup> And when thou prayest, thou shalt not bee as the hypocrites are: for they loue to pray standyng in the Synagogues, and in the corners of the streetes, that they may be seene of men. Verely I say vnto you, they haue their rewarde. <sup>6</sup> But thou when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy doore, pray to thy father which is in secret, and thy father which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly. <sup>7</sup> But when yee pray, see not vaine repetitions, as the heathen doe. For they thinke that they shall be heard for their much speaking. <sup>8</sup> Be not yee therefore like vnto them: For your father knoweth what things yee haue neede of, before yee aske him. <sup>9</sup> After this maner therefore pray yee: Our father which art in heauen, halowed be thy Name. <sup>10</sup> Thy kingdome come. Thy wil be done, in earth, as it is in heauen. <sup>11</sup> Geue vs this day our daily bread. <sup>12</sup> And forgiue vs our debtes, as we forgiue our debtors.

<sup>13</sup> And leade vs not into temptation, but deliuer vs from euill: For thine is the kingdome, and the power, and the glory,

<sup>a</sup> Or, with.

<sup>b</sup> Or, cause not a trumpet to be sounded.

ῥου.<sup>9</sup> <sup>14</sup> Ἐὰν γὰρ ἀφήτε τοῖς ἀνθρώποις τὰ παραπτώματα αὐτῶν, ἀφήσει καὶ ὑμῖν ὁ πατήρ ὑμῶν ὁ οὐράνιος· <sup>15</sup> ἐὰν δὲ μὴ ἀφήτε τοῖς ἀνθρώποις τὰ παραπτώματα αὐτῶν, οὐδὲ ὁ πατήρ ὑμῶν ἀφήσει τὰ παραπτώματα ὑμῶν. <sup>16</sup> Ὅταν δὲ νηστεύητε, μὴ γίνεσθε ὥσπερ οἱ ὑποκριταὶ σκυθρωποί· ἀφανίζουσι γὰρ τὰ πρόσωπα αὐτῶν, ὅπως φανῶσι τοῖς ἀνθρώποις νηστεύοντες· ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἀπέχουσι τὸν μισθὸν αὐτῶν. <sup>17</sup> σὺ δὲ νηστεύων, ἀλειψαί σου τὴν κεφαλὴν, καὶ τὸ πρόσωπόν σου ἴψαι· <sup>18</sup> ὅπως μὴ φανῆς τοῖς ἀνθρώποις νηστεύων, ἀλλὰ τῷ πατρὶ σου τῷ ἐν τῷ κρυπτῷ· καὶ ὁ πατήρ σου ὁ βλέπων ἐν τῷ κρυπτῷ ἀποδώσει σοί· ἅ.

<sup>19</sup> Μὴ θησαυρίζετε ὑμῖν θησαυροὺς ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, ὅπου σὴς καὶ βρῶσις ἀφανίζει, καὶ ὅπου κλέπται διορύσσουσι καὶ κλέπτουσι· <sup>20</sup> θησαυρίζετε δὲ ὑμῖν θησαυροὺς

† Rec. et fam. Const. + ὄτι σὺ ἴσων ἡ βασιλεία καὶ ἡ ζῆναμις καὶ ἡ ἔδξα εἰς τοὺς αἰῶνας. Ἄμην.

‡ Rec. + ἐν τῷ φανερῷ.

WICLIIF—1380.

forȝeuen to men her synnes: ȝoure heuēnli fadir, schal forȝeue to ȝou ȝoure trespassis; <sup>15</sup> sothli if ȝe forȝeuen not to men: nether ȝoure fadir schal forȝeue to ȝou ȝoure trespassis.

<sup>16</sup> But whanne ȝe fasten: nyle ȝe be made as ypocritis sorowful; for thei defacen hem self to seme fastyng to men; truli I scie to ȝou: thei han rescēued her mede; <sup>17</sup> but whanne thou fastist anyoynte thin hede, and waich thi face; <sup>18</sup> that thou be not seen fastyng to men; but to thi fadir that is in hidlis; and thi fadir that seeth in pryuy schal ȝilde to thee; <sup>19</sup> Nyle ȝe tresoure to ȝou tresouris in erthe: where rust and mouȝte distrieth, and where theues deluen out and stelen; <sup>20</sup> but gadir to ȝou tresouris in heuēn: where nether rust ne mouȝte distrieth, and where theues deluen not out ne stelen; <sup>21</sup> for where thi tresoure is: there also thin herte is;

<sup>22</sup> the lanterne of thi bodi: is thin iȝe; if thin iȝe be symple: al thi bodi schal be litful; <sup>23</sup> but if thin iȝe be weiard: al thi bodi schal be derk; if thanne the list that is in thee, be derknessis: how gret schuln thiike derknessis be?

<sup>24</sup> No man mai serue twei lordis; for ether he schal hate the toon and loue the tother: eithere he schal susteyne the toon, and dispise the tother; ȝe mouu not serue god and richesse; <sup>25</sup> therefore I scie to ȝou, that ȝe ben not bisie to ȝoure liif, what ȝe schuln ete, nether to ȝoure bodi with what ȝe schuln be clothid; where lif is not more thanne mete: and the bodi more thanne clothe? <sup>26</sup> biholdē ȝe the foulis of the air, for thei sowen not nether repen nether gaderen in to barnes; and ȝoure fadir of heuēne fedith hem;

sothli, truly. nyle ȝe be, be ȝe not. hidli, private. nyle ȝe tresoure, treasure ȝe not. mouȝte, moth. deluen, dy- ȝe, eye. thiike, that. mouu, may. eu, air.

TYNDALE—1534.

and the power, and the glorye for ever. Amen.

<sup>14</sup> For and yf ye shall forgeve other men their trespasses, youre heavenly father shall also forgeve you. <sup>15</sup> But and ye wyll not forgeve men their trespasses; nomore shall youre father forgeve youre trespasses.

<sup>16</sup> Moreouer when ye faste; be not sad as the ypocrytes are. For they desfigure their faces: that they myght be sene of men how they faste. Verely I say vnto you: they haue their rewarde. <sup>17</sup> But thou; when thou fastest; annoynte thyne heed; and washe thy face. <sup>18</sup> that it appere not vnto men howe that thou fastest: but vnto thy father which is in secrete: and thy father which seeth in secret; shall rewarde the openly.

<sup>19</sup> Se that ye gadre you no treasure vpon the erth; where rust and mothes corrupte; and where theues breake through and steale. <sup>20</sup> But gadre ye treasure togeder in heuen; where nether rust nor mothes corrupte; and where theues nether breake vp nor yet steale. <sup>21</sup> For where soeuer your treasure ys; there will youre hertes be also.

<sup>22</sup> The light of the body is thyn eye. Wherefor if thyn eye besyngle; all thy body shalbe full of light. <sup>23</sup> But and if thyn eye be wycked then all thy body shalbe full of derkenes. Wherefor yf the light that is in the; be derkenes; how greate is that derkenes.

<sup>24</sup> No man can serue two masters. For ether he shall hate the one and love the other: or els he shall lene to the one and despise the other: ye can not serue God and mammon. <sup>25</sup> Therefore I saye vnto you; be not carefull for your lyfe; what ye shall eate; or what ye shall drinke; nor yet for youre body; what ye shall put on. ys not the lyfe more worth then meate; and the body more of value then rayment? <sup>26</sup> Beholde the foulis of the ayer: for they sowe not; nether reepe; nor yet cary in to the barnes: and yet youre power, and the glorye for euer. Amen.

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>14</sup> Therefore yf ye forgene other men their trespasses, youre heuēnly father shall forgene you (your trespasses) <sup>15</sup> But yf ye wyll not forgeve men their trespasses, no more shal youre father forgeve you youre trespasses.

<sup>16</sup> Moreouer when ye fast, be not sad as the ypocrites are. For they disfigure their faces that it maye appere vnto men, how that they fast. Verely I say vnto you: they haue their rewarde. <sup>17</sup> But thou, when thou fastest, annoynte thyne head, and wash thy face, <sup>18</sup> that it appere not vnto men, how that thou fastest: but vnto thy father, whych is in secrete: ȝ thy father whych seeth in secrete, shall rewarde the openly.

<sup>19</sup> Laye not vp for your selues treasure vpon earth, where the rust ȝ mothe doth corrupte, and where theues breake through, ȝ steale. <sup>20</sup> But laye vp for you treasures in heauen, where nether rust nor mothe doth corrupte, and where theues do not breake thorow nor steale. <sup>21</sup> For where youre treasure is, there wyll youre hert be also.

<sup>22</sup> The light of the bodis is the eye. Wherefor yf thyn eye be syngle, all thy body shalbe full of lyght. <sup>23</sup> But and yf thyn eye be wycked, all thy body shalbe full of derkenes. Wherefor, if the light that is in the be derkenes, how greate is that derkenes.

<sup>24</sup> No man can serue two masters. For ether he shall hate the one and loue the other, or elles leane to the one, and despise the other: ye cannot serue God and Mammon. <sup>25</sup> Therefore I saye vnto you: be not carefull for your lyfe, what ye shall eate, or drinke nor yet for youre body, what rayment ye shall put on. Is not the lyfe more worth then meate, and the body more of value then rayment?

<sup>26</sup> Beholde the foulis of the ayer: for they sowe not, nether do they reepe, nor cary into the barnes: and youre heuēnly father ἐν οὐρανῷ, ὅπου οὔτε σῆς οὔτε βρώσις ἀφανίζει, καὶ ὅπου κλέπται οὐ διορίσσουσιν οὐδὲ κλέπτουσιν. <sup>21</sup> ὅπου γὰρ ἐστὶν ὁ θησαυρὸς ὑμῶν, ἐκεῖ ἔσται καὶ ἡ καρδία ὑμῶν. <sup>22</sup> Ὁ λύχνος τοῦ σώματος ἐστὶν ὁ ὀφθαλμὸς· ἐὰν οὖν ὁ ὀφθαλμὸς σου ἀπλοῦς ᾖ, ὅλον τὸ σῶμά σου φωτεινὸν ἔσται. <sup>23</sup> ἐὰν δὲ ὁ ὀφθαλμὸς σου πονηρὸς ᾖ, ὅλον τὸ σῶμά σου σκοτεινὸν ἔσται. εἰ οὖν τὸ φῶς τὸ ἐν σοὶ σκότος ἐστὶ, τὸ σκότος πόσον; <sup>24</sup> Οὐδεὶς δύναται δυοὶ κυρίως δουλεύειν· ἢ γὰρ τὸν ἕνα μισήσει, καὶ τὸν ἕτερον ἀγαπήσει· ἢ ἐνὸς ἀντιθέξεται, καὶ τοῦ ἑτέρου καταφρονή-

 σει. οὐ δύνασθε Θεῷ δουλεύειν καὶ μαμωνᾷ. | <sup>25</sup> διὰ τοῦτο λέγω ὑμῖν, μὴ με-ριμνᾶτε τῇ ψυχῇ ὑμῶν, τί φάγητε, καὶ τί πίητε· μηδὲ τῷ σώματι ὑμῶν, τί ἐνδύσησθε. οὐχὶ ἡ ψυχὴ πλείον ἐστι τῆς τροφῆς, καὶ τὸ σῶμα τοῦ ἐνδύματος;
<sup>26</sup> ἐμβλέψατε εἰς τὰ πετεινὰ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ, ὅτι οὐ σπεύρουσιν, οὐδὲ θερίζουσιν, οὐδὲ

<sup>1</sup> Rec. μαμωνᾶ.

GENEVA—1557.

is the kingdome, and the power, and the glorie for euer, Amen. <sup>14</sup> For if ye do forgeue other men their trespasses, your heauenly father shal also forgeue you.
<sup>15</sup> But if ye do not forgeue men their trespasses, no more shal your father forgeuee yours.

<sup>16</sup> Moreouer, when ye fast, loke not sowre as the hypocrites do: for they disfigure their faces, that they might be sene of men how they fast. Verely I say vnto you that they haue their rewarde.
<sup>17</sup> But thou when thou fastest, anoynt thyne head, and washe thy face. <sup>18</sup> That thou seme not vnto men to fast but vnto thy father which is in secret: and thy father which seeth in secret, shal rewarde thee openly. <sup>19</sup> Se that ye gather you not treasure vpon the earth, wher the mothe and kanker corrupt, and wher thees digge through, and steale. <sup>20</sup> But gather vp your treasures in heauen, wher nether the mothes nor kanker corrupt, and wher thees nether perce through, nor yet steale. <sup>21</sup> For wher soeuer your treasure is, there wil your harte be also.
<sup>22</sup> The light of the body is the eye. Then if thine eye be cleare, all thyne eye shal-be ful of lyght. <sup>23</sup> But if thyne eye be wycked, then all thyne eye shalbe ful of darknes. Wherfore if the lyght that is in thee be darknes how great is that darknes?

<sup>24</sup> No man can serue two maisters: for either he shal hate the one, and loue the other: or els he shal leane to the one, and despise the other. Ye can not serue God and riches. <sup>25</sup> Therefore I say vnto you, be not careful for your life, what ye shal eat, or what ye shal dryncke: nor yet for your body, what ye shal put on. Is not the life more worth then meat, and the body more of value then rayment? <sup>26</sup> Be-holde the fowles of the ayre: for they sowe not, neither reape, nor yet cary into the barnes: and yet your heauenly father

RHEIMS—1582.

vs from euil. Amen. . . . <sup>14</sup> For if you vvil forgive men their offenses, your heauenly father vvil forgive you also your offenses. <sup>15</sup> But if you vvil not forgive men, neither vvil your father forgive you your offenses.

<sup>16</sup> And vwhen you fast, be not as the hypocrites, sad. For they disfigure their faces, that they may appear vnto men to fauce. Amen I say to you, that they haue receiued their reward. <sup>17</sup> But thou vwhen thou doest fast, anoynte thy head, and vvashe thy face: <sup>18</sup> that thou appeare not to men to fast, but to thy father vvhich is in secret: and thy father vvhich seeth in secret, vvil repay thee.

<sup>19</sup> Heape not vp to your selues treasures on the earth: vvhether the rust & mothe do corrupt, & vvhether thees digge through & steale.

<sup>20</sup> But heape vp to your selues treasures in heauen: vvhether neither the rust nor mothe doth corrupt, and vvhether thees do not digge through nor steale.

<sup>21</sup> For vvhether thy treasure is, there is thy hart also. <sup>22</sup> The candle of thy body is thine eye. If thine eye be simple, thy vvhole body shal be lightsome. <sup>23</sup> But if thine eye be naught: thy vvhole body shal be darkesome. If then the light that is in thee, be darkenes: the darkenes it self hovv great shal it be? <sup>24</sup> No man can serue tvo masters. For either he vvil hate the one, and loue the other: or he vvil sustayne the one, and conteme the other.
 You cannot serue God and Mammon.

<sup>25</sup> Therefore I say to you, be not careful for your life vvhath you shal eat, neither for your body vvhath rayment you shal put on. Is not the life more then the meate: and the body more then the ray-ment? <sup>26</sup> Behold the foules of the ayre, that they sovv not, neither reape, nor gather into barnes: and yet your heauenly

AUTHORISED—1611.

for euer, Amen. <sup>14</sup> For, if ye forgue men their trespasses, your heauenly Father will also forgue you. <sup>15</sup> But, if ye for-gue not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgue your trespasses.

<sup>16</sup> Moreouer, when ye fast, bee not as the hypocrites, of a sad countenance: for they disfigure their faces, that they may appear vnto men to fast: Verily I say vnto you, they haue their reward. <sup>17</sup> But thou, when thou fastest, anoint thine head, and wash thy face: <sup>18</sup> That thou appe-are not vnto men to fast, but vnto thy father which is in secret: and thy father which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly.

<sup>19</sup> Lay not vp for your selues treasures vpon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thees breake thorow, and steale. <sup>20</sup> But lay vp for your selues treasures in heauen, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, & where thees doe not breake thorow, nor steale.

<sup>21</sup> For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also. <sup>22</sup> The light of the body is the eye: If therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shalbe full of light. <sup>23</sup> But if thine eye be euil, thy whole body shal-be full of darkenes. If therefore the light that is in thee be darkenesse, how great is that darkenesse?

<sup>24</sup> No man can serue two masters: for either he vil hate the one and loue the other, or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serue God and Mammon. <sup>25</sup> Therefore I say vnto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drinke, nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on: Is not the life more then meate? and the body then rayment?
<sup>26</sup> Behold the foules of the aire: for they sowe not, neither do they reape, nor gather into barnes, yet your heauenly Father

‘ συνάγουσιν εἰς ἀποθήκας, καὶ ὁ πατὴρ ὑμῶν ὁ οὐράνιος τρέφει αὐτά· οὐχ ὑμεῖς ‘ μᾶλλον διαφέρετε αὐτῶν; <sup>27</sup> τίς δὲ ἐξ ὑμῶν μεριμνῶν δύναται προσθεῖναι ἐπὶ τὴν ‘ ἡλικίαν αὐτοῦ πῆχυν ἓνα; <sup>28</sup> καὶ περὶ ἐνδύματος τί μεριμνᾶτε; καταμαίετε τὰ
 ‘ κρίνα τοῦ ἀγροῦ, πῶς ἀυξάνει· οὐ κοπιᾷ, οὐδὲ νήθει· <sup>29</sup> λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, ὅτι οὐδὲ
 ‘ Σολομὸν ἐν πάσῃ τῇ δόξῃ αὐτοῦ περιεβάλετο ὡς ἐν τούτων. <sup>30</sup> εἰ δὲ τὸν χόρτον
 ‘ τοῦ ἀγροῦ, σήμερον ὄντα, καὶ αὔριον εἰς κλίβανον βαλλόμενον, ὁ Θεὸς οὕτως ‘ ἀμφιένυσσιν, οὐ πολλῶ μᾶλλον ὑμᾶς, ὀλιγόπιστοι; <sup>31</sup> μὴ οὖν μεριμνήσητε, λέ‘ γοιτες, τί φάγομεν, ἢ τί πῖομεν, ἢ τί περιβαλώμεθα; <sup>32</sup> πάντα γὰρ ταῦτα τὰ
 ‘ εἶη ἐπιζητεῖ· οἶδε γὰρ ὁ πατὴρ ὑμῶν ὁ οὐράνιος ὅτι χρῆζετε τούτων ἀπάντων·
 ‘ <sup>33</sup> ζητεῖτε δὲ πρῶτον τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ καὶ τὴν δικαιοσύνην αὐτοῦ, καὶ
 ‘ ταῦτα πάντα προστεθήσεται ὑμῖν· <sup>34</sup> μὴ οὖν μεριμνήσητε εἰς τὴν αὔριον· ἢ γὰρ

WICLIF—1380.

when ze ben not more worthi thanne thei? <sup>27</sup> but who of zou thinking, mai putte to his stature o cubit? <sup>28</sup> and of clothing what ben ze bisie? biholde ze the lilies of the feld hou thei wexen, thei traucilen not: nether spynnen <sup>29</sup> and I seye to zou that salomon in all his glorie: was not keuerid as oon of thes, <sup>30</sup> and if god clothith thus the heye of the feld, that to dai is and to morewe is cast in to an ouene: hou myche more zou of litil feith?

<sup>31</sup> therfor nyle ze be bisie seynge, what schuln we ete or what schuln we drinke or withr what thing schuln we be keuerid? <sup>32</sup> for hethen men sechen alle these things, and your fadir woot ze se han nedde to alle these things, <sup>33</sup> therfor seke ze first the kyngdom of god and his rihtfulness: and alle these thingis schuln be cast to zou.

<sup>34</sup> therfor nyle ze be bisie in to the morewe for the morewe schal be bisie to hym silf for it sufficith to the dai, his owne malice.

7. Nyle ze deme ze schuln not be demed, <sup>2</sup> for in what dome ze demen: ze schuln be demed, and in what mesure ze meten: it schal be metun agen to zou <sup>3</sup> but what seest thou a litil mote, in the ipe of thi brothir: and seest not a beam in thim owne ipe? <sup>4</sup> or hou seist thou to thi brother, brother suffre I schal do out a moot for thim ipe: and lo a beam is in thim owne ipe? <sup>5</sup> Ipoerite do out first the beam of thim ipe: and thanne thou schalt se to do out the moot of the ipe of thi brother.

<sup>6</sup> Nyle ze zeue holi thing to houndis, nether cast ze youre margaritis bifor swyne: leest paraureture thei defoulen hem with her feet, and the houndis be turned: til to tere zou.

<sup>7</sup> Axe ze and it schal be zounn to zou, seke ze, and ze schuln fynde: knoeke zou, and it schal be opened to zou. <sup>8</sup> For eche

TYNDALE—1534.

hevenly father fedeth them. Are ye not moche better then they?

<sup>27</sup> Which of you (though he toke thought therfore) coulde put one cubit vnto his stature? <sup>28</sup> And why care ye then for rayment? Consider the lylies of the felde, how they growe. They labour not nether spyne. <sup>29</sup> And yet for all that I saye vnto you, that euen Salomon in all his royalte was not arayed lyke vnto one of these. <sup>30</sup> Wherefor yf God so clothe the grasse, which ys to daye in the felde, and to morowe shalbe caste into the founnace: shall he not moche more do the same vnto you, o ye of lytle fayth?

<sup>31</sup> Therefore take no thought saynge: what shall we eate, or what shall we drinke, or wherwith shall we be clothed? <sup>32</sup> After all these thynges seke the gentyls. For youre hevenly father knoweth that ye haue neede of all these thynges. <sup>33</sup> But rather seke ye fyrst the kyngdome of heuen and the rihtwisnes therof, and all these thynges shalbe ministred vnto you.

<sup>34</sup> Care not then for the morow, but let the morow care for it selfe: for the daye present hath ever ynough of his awne trouble.

7. IUDGE not that ye be not iudged. <sup>2</sup> For as ye iudge so shall ye be iudged. And with what mesure ye mete, with the same shall it be mesured to you agayne.

<sup>3</sup> Why seist thou a mote in thy brothers eye, and perceavest not the beam that ys yn thine awne eye. <sup>4</sup> Or why sayest thou to thi brother: suffre me to plucke out the mote oute of thyne eye, and behold a beam is in thine awne eye. <sup>5</sup> Ipoerite, fyrst cast oute the beam oute of thyne awne eye, and then shalt thou se clearly to plucke oute the mote oute of thy brothers eye.

<sup>6</sup> Geve not that which is holy, todogges, nether cast ye youre pearles before swyne, lest they treade them vnder thir fete, and the other tourne agayne, and all to rent you.

<sup>7</sup> Axe and it shalbe geven you. Seke and ye shall fynd, knoeke and it shalbe opened vnto you. <sup>8</sup> For whosoev axeth receaveth

CRANMER—1539.

fedeth them. Are ye not moche better then they? <sup>27</sup> Whych of you (by taking careful thought) can adde one cubit vnto his stature? <sup>28</sup> And why care ye for rayment? Consydre the lylies of the felde, how they growe. They labour not, nether do they spyne. <sup>29</sup> And yet I saye vnto you, that euen Salomon in all his royalte was not arayed lyke unto one of these.

<sup>30</sup> Wherefor, yf God so cloth the grass of the felde (which though it stand to daye, is to morowe cast into the fourmasse) shall he not moche more do the same for you, O ye of lytle fayth? <sup>31</sup> Therefore, take no thought, saynge: what shall we eate, or what shall we drynck, or wher with shal we be clothed? <sup>32</sup> after all these things do the gentyls seke. For youre heuently father knoweth, that ye haue neede of all these thinges. <sup>33</sup> But rather seke ye fyrst the kyngdome of God, and the rihtwisnes therof, and all these things shalbe mynystred vnto you. <sup>34</sup> Care not then for the morow, for to morowe day shall care for it selfe: sufficient vnto the daye, is the traunyle therof.

7. IUDGE not, that ye be not iudged. (condemne not and ye shal not be condemned) <sup>2</sup> For as ye iudge, so shall ye be iudged. And with what mesure ye meete, with the same shall other men measure to you. <sup>3</sup> Why seest thou a mote in thy brothers eye, but consistest not the beam that is in thine awne eye? <sup>4</sup> Or how sayest thou to thi brother (Brother) suffre me, I will plucke out a mote out of thyne eye, and beholde a beam is in thine awne eye: <sup>5</sup> Thou ypoerite, fyrst cast oute the beam out of thine awne eye, and then shalt thou se clearly to plucke out the mote out of thy brothers eye. <sup>6</sup> Geue not ye that which is holy vnto dogges, nether cast ye youre pearles before swyne, lest they treade them vnder thir fete and the other tourne against you, and all to rent you.

<sup>7</sup> Aske, and it shalbe geven you. Seke, te ye shall fynd: Knoeke, and it shalbe opened vnto you. <sup>8</sup> For whosoev asketh, ποσειν, grow. κειραειν, covered. τραυηλο, travail. οτι το το, te go not. κωσ, knoweth. ονως, demen. ηυλο, demed, iudged. ipe, eye. zeue, give. μαργαρις, pearls. 7530. B. given.

αὐριον μεριμνήσει τὰ ἑαυτῆς. ἀρκετὸν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ ἢ κακία αὐτῆς.

VII. <sup>1</sup> Μὴ κρίνετε, ἵνα μὴ κριθῆτε. <sup>2</sup> ἐν ᾧ γὰρ κρίματι κρίνετε, κριθήσεσθε· καὶ ἐν ᾧ μέτρῳ μετρέετε, <sup>3</sup> μετρηθήσεται ὑμῖν. <sup>4</sup> Τί δὲ βλέπετε τὸ κάρφος τὸ ἐν τῷ ὀφθαλμῷ τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ σου, τὴν δὲ ἐν τῷ σῶ ὀφθαλμῷ δοκὸν οὐ κατανοεῖς; <sup>5</sup> ἢ πῶς εἶρεῖς τῷ ἀδελφῷ σου, Ἄφες ἐκβάλω τὸ κάρφος ἀπὸ τοῦ ὀφθαλμοῦ σου· καὶ ἰδοῦ, ἡ δοκὸς ἐν τῷ ὀφθαλμῷ σου; <sup>6</sup> ὑποκριτὰ, ἐκβαλε πρῶτον τὴν δοκὸν ἐκ τοῦ ὀφθαλμοῦ σου, καὶ τότε διαβλέψεις ἐκβαλεῖν τὸ κάρφος ἐκ τοῦ ὀφθαλμοῦ τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ σου. <sup>7</sup> Μὴ δῶτε τὸ ἅγιον τοῖς κυσί· μηδὲ βάλητε τοὺς μαργαρίτας ὑμῶν ἐμπροσθεν τῶν χοίρων, μήποτε καταπατήσωσιν αὐτοὺς ἐν τοῖς ποσίν αὐτῶν, καὶ στραφέντες ῥήξωσιν ὑμᾶς. <sup>8</sup> Αἰτεῖτε, καὶ δοθήσεται ὑμῖν ζητεῖτε, καὶ εὐρήσετε· κρούετε, καὶ ἀνοιγήσεται ὑμῖν. <sup>9</sup> πᾶς γὰρ ὁ αἰτῶν λαμβάνει, καὶ

<sup>1</sup> Rec. ἀντιμετρηθήσεται.

GENEVA — 1557.

feedeth them. Are ye not muche better then they? <sup>27</sup> Which of you by takinge careful thought, is able to put one cubit vnto his stature? <sup>28</sup> And why care ye for rayment? Learne, therefore of the lilies of the fielde, how they growe: They labour not, nether spinne. <sup>29</sup> And yet for al that I say vnto you, that euen Solomon in all his rovalty, was not arayed lyke one of these. <sup>30</sup> Wherefore if God so clothe the grasse, of the fielde which standeth to daye, and to morowe is cast into the ouen, shal he not muche more do the same vnto you, O ye of little fayth?

<sup>31</sup> Therefore take no thought, saying, What shal we eat? or what shal we drinke? or wherwith shal we be clothed? <sup>32</sup> For after all these thynges seke the Gentiles. For your heavenly father knoweth that ye haue nede of all these thynges. <sup>33</sup> But seke ye first the kyngdome of heauen, and the righteousnes therof, and all these thynges shalbe ministred vnto you. <sup>34</sup> Care not then for the morow: for the morow shal care for it selfe: The day present hath euer ynough to do with it owne grief.

7. IVDGE not, that ye be not iudged. <sup>2</sup> For as ye iudge, so shal ye be iudged: And wyth what measure ye meate, with the same shal it be measured to you agayne. <sup>3</sup> And why seest thou a mote in thy brothers eye, and perceauest not the beame that is in thine owne eye? <sup>4</sup> Or how sayest thou to thy brother: suffer me to cast out the mote out of thine eye, and behold a beame is in thine owne eye? <sup>5</sup> Hypocrite, first cast out the beame out of thine owne eye, and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brothers eye. <sup>6</sup> Geue not that which is holy to dogges, nether cast ye your pearles before swyne: lest they treade them vnder their fete, and turninge agayne, all to rent you.

<sup>7</sup> Aske, and it shalbe geuen you: Seke, & ye shal fynde: Knocke and it shalbe opened vnto you. <sup>8</sup> For whosoer asketh

RHEIMS — 1582.

father feedeth them. Are not you much more of price then they? <sup>27</sup> And vvich of you by caring, can adde to his stature one cubite? <sup>28</sup> And for rayment vvvay are you careful? Consider the lilies of the field hovv they grovv: they labour not, neither do they spinne. <sup>29</sup> But I say to you, that neither Salomon in all his glorie vvas arayed as one of these. <sup>30</sup> And if the grasse of the field, vvich to day is, and to morovv is cast into the ouen, God doth so clothe: hovv much more you O ye of very smal fayth? <sup>31</sup> Be not careful therefore, saying, vvhat shal we eat, or vvhat shal we drinke, or vvherewvvith shal we be couered? <sup>32</sup> For all these thynges the Heathen do seeke after. For your father knowveth that you neede al these thynges. <sup>33</sup> Seeke therefore first the Kingdom of God, & the iustice of him: and al these thynges shal be giuen you besides. <sup>34</sup> Be not careful therfore for the morovv. For the morovv day shal be careful for it self. sufficient for the day is the euill thereof.

7. IVDGE not, that you be not iudged. <sup>2</sup> For in what iudgment you iudge, you shal be iudged: and in what measure you mete, it shal be measured to you agayne. <sup>3</sup> And why seest thou the mote that is in thy brothers eye: and the beame that is in thine ovvne eye thou seest not? <sup>4</sup> Or how sayest thou to thy brother, Let me cast out the mote of thine eye: and behold a beame is in thine owne eye? <sup>5</sup> Hypocrite, cast out first the beame out of thine owne eye, and then shalt thou see to cast out the mote out of thy brothers eye. <sup>6</sup> Giue not that which is holy to dogges: neither cast ye your pearles before swine, lest perhaps they treade them with their feete, and turning, al to teare you.

<sup>7</sup> Aske, and it shal be giuen you: seeke, and you shal finde, knocke, and it shal be opened to you. <sup>8</sup> For every one that

AUTHORISED — 1611.

feedeth them. Are yee not much better then they? <sup>27</sup> Which of you by taking thought, can adde one cubite vnto his stature? <sup>28</sup> And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow: they toile not, neither doe they spinne. <sup>29</sup> And yet I say vnto you, that euen Solomon in all his glory, was not arayed like one of these. <sup>30</sup> Wherefore, if God so clothe the grasse of the field, which to day is, and to morrow is cast into the ouen: shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little fayth? <sup>31</sup> Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eate? or, what shall we drinke? or wherewithall shall we be clothed? <sup>32</sup> (For after all these thynges doe the Gentiles seeke:) for your heavenly father knoweth that ye haue neede of all these thynges. <sup>33</sup> But seeke ye first the kingdome of God, and his righteousnesse, and all these thynges shalbe added vnto you. <sup>34</sup> Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the thyngs of it selfe: sufficient vnto the day is the euill thereof.

7. IVDGE not, that ye be not iudged. <sup>2</sup> For with what iudgment ye iudge, ye shal be iudged: and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you agayne. <sup>3</sup> And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brothers eye, but considerest not the beame that is in thine owne eye? <sup>4</sup> Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Let mee pull out the mote out of thine eye, and beholde, a beame is in thine owne eye? <sup>5</sup> Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beame out of thine owne eye: and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brothers eye.

<sup>6</sup> Giue not that which is holy vnto the dogges, neither cast ye your pearles before swine: lest they trample them vnder their feet, and turne agayne and rent you. <sup>7</sup> Aske, and it shalbe giuen you: seeke, and ye shall finde: knocke, and it shalbe opened vnto you. <sup>8</sup> For every one that

ἄλκοι ἄρπαγες. <sup>16</sup> ἀπὸ τῶν καρπῶν αὐτῶν ἐπιγνώσεσθε αὐτούς· μήτι συλλέγου-σιν ἀπὸ ἀκανθῶν σταφυλὴν, ἢ ἀπὸ τριβόλων σῦκα; <sup>17</sup> οὕτω πᾶν δένδρον ἀγαθὸν καρποὺς καλοὺς ποιεῖ· τὸ δὲ σαπρὸν δένδρον καρποὺς πονηροὺς ποιεῖ. <sup>15</sup> οὐ δύναται δένδρον ἀγαθὸν καρποὺς πονηροὺς ποιεῖν, οὐδὲ δένδρον σαπρὸν καρποὺς καλοὺς ποιεῖν. <sup>19</sup> πᾶν δένδρον μὴ ποιοῦν καρπὸν καλὸν ἐκκόπτεται καὶ εἰς πῦρ βάλλεται.
<sup>20</sup> ἄραγε ἀπὸ τῶν καρπῶν αὐτῶν ἐπιγνώσεσθε αὐτούς. <sup>21</sup> Οὐ πᾶς ὁ λέγων μοι, Κύριε, Κύριε, εἰσελεύσεται εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τῶν οὐρανῶν· ἀλλ' ὁ ποιῶν τὸ θέλημα τοῦ πατρὸς μου τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς. <sup>22</sup> πολλοὶ ἐροῦσί μοι ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ, Κύριε, Κύριε, οὐ τῷ σῶ ὀνόματι προσηφητεύσαμεν, καὶ τῷ σῶ ὀνόματι δαιμόνια ἐξεβά-λομεν, καὶ τῷ σῶ ὀνόματι δυνάμεις πολλὰς ἐποιήσαμεν; <sup>23</sup> καὶ τότε ὁμολογήσω αὐτοῖς, ὅτι οὐδέποτε ἔγνων ὑμᾶς· ἀποχωρεῖτε ἀπ' ἐμοῦ οἱ ἐργαζόμενοι τὴν

GENEVA — 1557.

receatheth, & he that seeketh findeth, & to him that knocketh, it shalbe opened. <sup>9</sup> For what man is there among you, which if is some aske him bread, would geue hym a stone? <sup>10</sup> Or if he aske fyshe, wil he profer hym a serpent? <sup>11</sup> If ye then which are euil can geue to your children good gyftes, how much more shal your Father whych is in heauen, geue good thinges to them that aske him?

<sup>12</sup> Therefore what so euer ye would that men should do to you, euen so do ye to them: for this is the lawe and the Prophetes. <sup>13</sup> Enter in at the streit gate: for it is the wide gate, and broad way that leadeth to destruction: and many there be which go in ther at. <sup>14</sup> Because the gate is streit, and the way narowe which leadeth vnto lyfe: and fewe there be that finde it.

<sup>15</sup> Beware of false prophetes, which come to you in shespes clothing, but inwardly they are rauening wolues. <sup>16</sup> Ye shal know them by their fruites. Do men gather grapes of thornes? or figges of thystels? <sup>17</sup> Euen so euery good tre bringeth forth good fruit: and a corrupt tre bringeth forth euyl fruit. <sup>18</sup> A good tre, can not bryng forth bad fruit: nor ye a bad tre, can bryng forth good fruit. <sup>19</sup> Euery tre not bringyn forth good fruit, is hewen downe, & cast into the fyre. <sup>20</sup> Then, by their fruites ye shal know them.

<sup>21</sup> Not al they that say vnto me, Lord, Lord, shal enter into the kingdome of heauen: but he that doth my fathers wyl whych is in heauen.

<sup>22</sup> Many wyl say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, haue we not by thy name prophesied? and by thy name haue cast out deuilles? And by thy name haue done many miracles? <sup>23</sup> And then wil I professe to them, I neuer knewe you. Departe from me ye that worke iniquitie.

RHEIMS — 1582.

asketh, receieth: and that seeketh, findeth: and to him that knocketh, it shal be opened. <sup>9</sup> Or vwhat man is there of you, vvhom if his childē shal aske bread, vvil he reach him a stone? <sup>10</sup> Or if he shal aske him fish, vvil he reach him a serpent? <sup>11</sup> If you then being naught, knowv hovv to giue good giftes to your children: hovv much more vvil your father vvhich is in heauen, giue good thinges to them that aske him? <sup>12</sup> Al thinges therfore vvhatsocuer you vvil that men doe to you doe you also to them. For this is the Lavv and the Prophetes.

<sup>13</sup> Enter ye by the narrow gate: because brode is the gate, and large is the vvvay that leadeth to perdition, and many there be that enter by it. <sup>14</sup> Hovv narrow is the gate, and straite is the vvvay that leadeth to life: and fevv there are that finde it! <sup>15</sup> Take ye geard heede of false Prophetes, vvhich come to you in the clothing of sheepe, but inwardly are rauening vvoolues. <sup>16</sup> By their fruites you shal knowv them. Do men gather grapes of thornes, or figges of thistels? <sup>17</sup> Euen so euery good tree yeldeth good fruites, and the euil tree yeldeth euil fruites. <sup>18</sup> A good tree can not yeld euil fruites, neither an euil tree yeld good fruites. <sup>19</sup> Euery tree that yeldeth not good fruit, shal be cut downe, and shal be cast into fyre. <sup>20</sup> Therefore by their fruites you shal knowv them.

<sup>21</sup> Not euery one that sayth to me, Lord, Lord, shal enter into the Kingdome of heauen: but he that doeth the vvil of my father vvhich is in heauen, he shal enter into the kingdom of heauen. <sup>22</sup> Many shal say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, haue not vve prophesied in thy name, and in thy name cast out diuels, and in thy name vvrought many miracles? <sup>23</sup> And then I vvil confesse vnto them, That I neuer knewe you. depart from me you that vvorkē iniquitie.

AUTHORISED — 1611.

asketh, receieth: and he that seeketh, findeth: and to him that knocketh, it shalbe opened. <sup>9</sup> Or what man is there of you, whom if his sonne aske bread, will hee giue him a stone? <sup>10</sup> Or if hee aske a fish, will hee giue him a serpent? <sup>11</sup> If ye then being euill, know how to giue good giftes vnto your children, how much more shall your Father which is in heauen, giue good thinges to them that aske him? <sup>12</sup> Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should doe to you, doe ye euen so to them: for this is the Law and the Prophetes.

<sup>13</sup> Enter ye in at the strait gate, for wide is the gate, and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which goe in therat: <sup>14</sup> Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way which leadeth vnto life, and fewe there be that finde it. <sup>15</sup> Beware of false prophetes which come to you in sheepes clothing, but inwardly they are rauening wolues. <sup>16</sup> Yee shall know them by their fruites: Doe men gather grapes of thornes, or figges of thistels? <sup>17</sup> Euen so, euery good tree bringeth forth good fruit: but a corrupt tree bringeth forth euil fruit. <sup>18</sup> A good tree cannot bring forth euil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit. <sup>19</sup> Euery tree that bringeth not forth good fruit, is hewen downe, and cast into the fire. <sup>20</sup> Wherefore by their fruites ye shall know them.

<sup>21</sup> Not euery one that saith vnto mee, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heauen: but he that doeth the wil of my father which is in heauen. <sup>22</sup> Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, haue we not prophesied in thy Name? and in thy Name haue cast out deuils? and in thy Name done many wonderful workes? <sup>23</sup> And then will I professe vnto them, I neuer knew you: Depart from me, ye that worke iniquitie.

ἀνομίαν. <sup>24</sup> Πᾶς ὃν ὅστις ἀκούει μου τοὺς λόγους τούτους, καὶ ποιεῖ αὐτοὺς, ὁμοιώσω αὐτὸν ἄνδρὶ φρονίμῳ, ὅστις ὠκοδόμησε τὴν οἰκίαν αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ τὴν πέτραν <sup>25</sup> καὶ κατέβη ἡ βροχὴ καὶ ἦλθον οἱ ποταμοὶ καὶ ἔπνευσαν οἱ ἄνεμοι, καὶ <sup>7</sup> προσέπεσον ἡ οἰκία ἐκείνη, καὶ οὐκ ἔπεσε· τεθεμελίωτο γὰρ ἐπὶ τὴν πέτραν. <sup>26</sup> καὶ πᾶς ὁ ἀκούων μου τοὺς λόγους τούτους καὶ μὴ ποιῶν αὐτοὺς, ὁμοιωθήσεται ἄνδρὶ μορφῷ, ὅστις ὠκοδόμησε τὴν οἰκίαν αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ τὴν ἄμμου. <sup>27</sup> καὶ κατέβη ἡ βροχὴ καὶ ἦλθον οἱ ποταμοὶ καὶ ἔπνευσαν οἱ ἄνεμοι, καὶ προσέκοψαν τὴν οἰκία ἐκείνη, καὶ ἔπεσε· καὶ ἦν ἡ πτώσις αὐτῆς μεγάλη.

<sup>28</sup> Καὶ ἐγένετο ὅτε <sup>9</sup> συντετέλεσεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τοὺς λόγους τούτους, ἐξέπλήσσαντο οἱ ὄχλοι ἐπὶ τῇ διδασχῇ αὐτοῦ. <sup>29</sup> ἦν γὰρ διδάσκων αὐτοὺς ὡς ἐξουσίαν ἔχων, καὶ οὐχ ὡς ὁ γραμματεὺς <sup>r</sup>.

<sup>r</sup> Alex. ὁμοιωθήσεται.

<sup>r</sup> Alex. προσέπεσαν.

<sup>r</sup> Alex. ἐπίσειν.

<sup>r</sup> Alex. + αὐτῶν.

WICLIȚ—1380.

<sup>24</sup> therof ech man that herith these my wordis, & doth hem: schal be made like to a wise man that hath bildid his hous on a stoon, <sup>25</sup> & reyn fildoun, & flodis camen, & wyndis blewen, & russchiden in to that hous, & it fil not doum for it was foundid on a stoon, <sup>26</sup> & euery man that herith these my wordis & doith hem not: is like to a fool, that hath bildid his hous on grauel, <sup>27</sup> & reyn cam doum and flodis camen, and wyndis blewen & thei hurleden aȝen that hous, and it fill doum, and the fallinge doum therof was grete.

<sup>28</sup> And it was don whanne ihesus had endid thes wordis: the puple wondrid on his techynge, <sup>29</sup> for he taughte hem as he that hadde power: & not as the scribis of hem and the farisies.

8. BUT whanne ihesus was come doum of the hill: moche puple succd hym, <sup>2</sup> and lo a leprous man cam, & worschpid him and seide, lord if thou wilt: thou maist make me clene, <sup>3</sup> and ihesus heeld forth the hond: & touchid hym and seide, I wole: be thou made clene, and anon the lepre of hym was clenid, <sup>4</sup> and ihesus seide to hym, se, seie thou to no man: but go schewe thee to preestis, and offre the gifte that Moises comaundid in witnessynge to hem.

<sup>5</sup> And whanne he hadde entrid in to cafernaum: the centurion nyged to hym, and preid him <sup>6</sup> and seid, lord my child lithe in the hous, sike on the palse: and is yuel turmentid: <sup>7</sup> and ihesus seide to hym I schal come & schal hele him.

<sup>8</sup> and the centurion answerid and seide to hym, lord I am not worthi that thou entre vnder my roof, but onli seie thou bi word: and my child schal be heclid.

<sup>r</sup> Filhou feld down, russchiden, rusked, grauel seu beach, or sand. <sup>10</sup>, <sup>11</sup>, <sup>12</sup>, <sup>13</sup>, follow followed seie say, or tell <sup>14</sup> <sup>15</sup> <sup>16</sup> <sup>17</sup> <sup>18</sup> <sup>19</sup> <sup>20</sup> <sup>21</sup> <sup>22</sup> <sup>23</sup> <sup>24</sup> <sup>25</sup> <sup>26</sup> <sup>27</sup> <sup>28</sup> <sup>29</sup> <sup>30</sup> <sup>31</sup> <sup>32</sup> <sup>33</sup> <sup>34</sup> <sup>35</sup> <sup>36</sup> <sup>37</sup> <sup>38</sup> <sup>39</sup> <sup>40</sup> <sup>41</sup> <sup>42</sup> <sup>43</sup> <sup>44</sup> <sup>45</sup> <sup>46</sup> <sup>47</sup> <sup>48</sup> <sup>49</sup> <sup>50</sup> <sup>51</sup> <sup>52</sup> <sup>53</sup> <sup>54</sup> <sup>55</sup> <sup>56</sup> <sup>57</sup> <sup>58</sup> <sup>59</sup> <sup>60</sup> <sup>61</sup> <sup>62</sup> <sup>63</sup> <sup>64</sup> <sup>65</sup> <sup>66</sup> <sup>67</sup> <sup>68</sup> <sup>69</sup> <sup>70</sup> <sup>71</sup> <sup>72</sup> <sup>73</sup> <sup>74</sup> <sup>75</sup> <sup>76</sup> <sup>77</sup> <sup>78</sup> <sup>79</sup> <sup>80</sup> <sup>81</sup> <sup>82</sup> <sup>83</sup> <sup>84</sup> <sup>85</sup> <sup>86</sup> <sup>87</sup> <sup>88</sup> <sup>89</sup> <sup>90</sup> <sup>91</sup> <sup>92</sup> <sup>93</sup> <sup>94</sup> <sup>95</sup> <sup>96</sup> <sup>97</sup> <sup>98</sup> <sup>99</sup> <sup>100</sup> <sup>101</sup> <sup>102</sup> <sup>103</sup> <sup>104</sup> <sup>105</sup> <sup>106</sup> <sup>107</sup> <sup>108</sup> <sup>109</sup> <sup>110</sup> <sup>111</sup> <sup>112</sup> <sup>113</sup> <sup>114</sup> <sup>115</sup> <sup>116</sup> <sup>117</sup> <sup>118</sup> <sup>119</sup> <sup>120</sup> <sup>121</sup> <sup>122</sup> <sup>123</sup> <sup>124</sup> <sup>125</sup> <sup>126</sup> <sup>127</sup> <sup>128</sup> <sup>129</sup> <sup>130</sup> <sup>131</sup> <sup>132</sup> <sup>133</sup> <sup>134</sup> <sup>135</sup> <sup>136</sup> <sup>137</sup> <sup>138</sup> <sup>139</sup> <sup>140</sup> <sup>141</sup> <sup>142</sup> <sup>143</sup> <sup>144</sup> <sup>145</sup> <sup>146</sup> <sup>147</sup> <sup>148</sup> <sup>149</sup> <sup>150</sup> <sup>151</sup> <sup>152</sup> <sup>153</sup> <sup>154</sup> <sup>155</sup> <sup>156</sup> <sup>157</sup> <sup>158</sup> <sup>159</sup> <sup>160</sup> <sup>161</sup> <sup>162</sup> <sup>163</sup> <sup>164</sup> <sup>165</sup> <sup>166</sup> <sup>167</sup> <sup>168</sup> <sup>169</sup> <sup>170</sup> <sup>171</sup> <sup>172</sup> <sup>173</sup> <sup>174</sup> <sup>175</sup> <sup>176</sup> <sup>177</sup> <sup>178</sup> <sup>179</sup> <sup>180</sup> <sup>181</sup> <sup>182</sup> <sup>183</sup> <sup>184</sup> <sup>185</sup> <sup>186</sup> <sup>187</sup> <sup>188</sup> <sup>189</sup> <sup>190</sup> <sup>191</sup> <sup>192</sup> <sup>193</sup> <sup>194</sup> <sup>195</sup> <sup>196</sup> <sup>197</sup> <sup>198</sup> <sup>199</sup> <sup>200</sup> <sup>201</sup> <sup>202</sup> <sup>203</sup> <sup>204</sup> <sup>205</sup> <sup>206</sup> <sup>207</sup> <sup>208</sup> <sup>209</sup> <sup>210</sup> <sup>211</sup> <sup>212</sup> <sup>213</sup> <sup>214</sup> <sup>215</sup> <sup>216</sup> <sup>217</sup> <sup>218</sup> <sup>219</sup> <sup>220</sup> <sup>221</sup> <sup>222</sup> <sup>223</sup> <sup>224</sup> <sup>225</sup> <sup>226</sup> <sup>227</sup> <sup>228</sup> <sup>229</sup> <sup>230</sup> <sup>231</sup> <sup>232</sup> <sup>233</sup> <sup>234</sup> <sup>235</sup> <sup>236</sup> <sup>237</sup> <sup>238</sup> <sup>239</sup> <sup>240</sup> <sup>241</sup> <sup>242</sup> <sup>243</sup> <sup>244</sup> <sup>245</sup> <sup>246</sup> <sup>247</sup> <sup>248</sup> <sup>249</sup> <sup>250</sup> <sup>251</sup> <sup>252</sup> <sup>253</sup> <sup>254</sup> <sup>255</sup> <sup>256</sup> <sup>257</sup> <sup>258</sup> <sup>259</sup> <sup>260</sup> <sup>261</sup> <sup>262</sup> <sup>263</sup> <sup>264</sup> <sup>265</sup> <sup>266</sup> <sup>267</sup> <sup>268</sup> <sup>269</sup> <sup>270</sup> <sup>271</sup> <sup>272</sup> <sup>273</sup> <sup>274</sup> <sup>275</sup> <sup>276</sup> <sup>277</sup> <sup>278</sup> <sup>279</sup> <sup>280</sup> <sup>281</sup> <sup>282</sup> <sup>283</sup> <sup>284</sup> <sup>285</sup> <sup>286</sup> <sup>287</sup> <sup>288</sup> <sup>289</sup> <sup>290</sup> <sup>291</sup> <sup>292</sup> <sup>293</sup> <sup>294</sup> <sup>295</sup> <sup>296</sup> <sup>297</sup> <sup>298</sup> <sup>299</sup> <sup>300</sup> <sup>301</sup> <sup>302</sup> <sup>303</sup> <sup>304</sup> <sup>305</sup> <sup>306</sup> <sup>307</sup> <sup>308</sup> <sup>309</sup> <sup>310</sup> <sup>311</sup> <sup>312</sup> <sup>313</sup> <sup>314</sup> <sup>315</sup> <sup>316</sup> <sup>317</sup> <sup>318</sup> <sup>319</sup> <sup>320</sup> <sup>321</sup> <sup>322</sup> <sup>323</sup> <sup>324</sup> <sup>325</sup> <sup>326</sup> <sup>327</sup> <sup>328</sup> <sup>329</sup> <sup>330</sup> <sup>331</sup> <sup>332</sup> <sup>333</sup> <sup>334</sup> <sup>335</sup> <sup>336</sup> <sup>337</sup> <sup>338</sup> <sup>339</sup> <sup>340</sup> <sup>341</sup> <sup>342</sup> <sup>343</sup> <sup>344</sup> <sup>345</sup> <sup>346</sup> <sup>347</sup> <sup>348</sup> <sup>349</sup> <sup>350</sup> <sup>351</sup> <sup>352</sup> <sup>353</sup> <sup>354</sup> <sup>355</sup> <sup>356</sup> <sup>357</sup> <sup>358</sup> <sup>359</sup> <sup>360</sup> <sup>361</sup> <sup>362</sup> <sup>363</sup> <sup>364</sup> <sup>365</sup> <sup>366</sup> <sup>367</sup> <sup>368</sup> <sup>369</sup> <sup>370</sup> <sup>371</sup> <sup>372</sup> <sup>373</sup> <sup>374</sup> <sup>375</sup> <sup>376</sup> <sup>377</sup> <sup>378</sup> <sup>379</sup> <sup>380</sup> <sup>381</sup> <sup>382</sup> <sup>383</sup> <sup>384</sup> <sup>385</sup> <sup>386</sup> <sup>387</sup> <sup>388</sup> <sup>389</sup> <sup>390</sup> <sup>391</sup> <sup>392</sup> <sup>393</sup> <sup>394</sup> <sup>395</sup> <sup>396</sup> <sup>397</sup> <sup>398</sup> <sup>399</sup> <sup>400</sup> <sup>401</sup> <sup>402</sup> <sup>403</sup> <sup>404</sup> <sup>405</sup> <sup>406</sup> <sup>407</sup> <sup>408</sup> <sup>409</sup> <sup>410</sup> <sup>411</sup> <sup>412</sup> <sup>413</sup> <sup>414</sup> <sup>415</sup> <sup>416</sup> <sup>417</sup> <sup>418</sup> <sup>419</sup> <sup>420</sup> <sup>421</sup> <sup>422</sup> <sup>423</sup> <sup>424</sup> <sup>425</sup> <sup>426</sup> <sup>427</sup> <sup>428</sup> <sup>429</sup> <sup>430</sup> <sup>431</sup> <sup>432</sup> <sup>433</sup> <sup>434</sup> <sup>435</sup> <sup>436</sup> <sup>437</sup> <sup>438</sup> <sup>439</sup> <sup>440</sup> <sup>441</sup> <sup>442</sup> <sup>443</sup> <sup>444</sup> <sup>445</sup> <sup>446</sup> <sup>447</sup> <sup>448</sup> <sup>449</sup> <sup>450</sup> <sup>451</sup> <sup>452</sup> <sup>453</sup> <sup>454</sup> <sup>455</sup> <sup>456</sup> <sup>457</sup> <sup>458</sup> <sup>459</sup> <sup>460</sup> <sup>461</sup> <sup>462</sup> <sup>463</sup> <sup>464</sup> <sup>465</sup> <sup>466</sup> <sup>467</sup> <sup>468</sup> <sup>469</sup> <sup>470</sup> <sup>471</sup> <sup>472</sup> <sup>473</sup> <sup>474</sup> <sup>475</sup> <sup>476</sup> <sup>477</sup> <sup>478</sup> <sup>479</sup> <sup>480</sup> <sup>481</sup> <sup>482</sup> <sup>483</sup> <sup>484</sup> <sup>485</sup> <sup>486</sup> <sup>487</sup> <sup>488</sup> <sup>489</sup> <sup>490</sup> <sup>491</sup> <sup>492</sup> <sup>493</sup> <sup>494</sup> <sup>495</sup> <sup>496</sup> <sup>497</sup> <sup>498</sup> <sup>499</sup> <sup>500</sup> <sup>501</sup> <sup>502</sup> <sup>503</sup> <sup>504</sup> <sup>505</sup> <sup>506</sup> <sup>507</sup> <sup>508</sup> <sup>509</sup> <sup>510</sup> <sup>511</sup> <sup>512</sup> <sup>513</sup> <sup>514</sup> <sup>515</sup> <sup>516</sup> <sup>517</sup> <sup>518</sup> <sup>519</sup> <sup>520</sup> <sup>521</sup> <sup>522</sup> <sup>523</sup> <sup>524</sup> <sup>525</sup> <sup>526</sup> <sup>527</sup> <sup>528</sup> <sup>529</sup> <sup>530</sup> <sup>531</sup> <sup>532</sup> <sup>533</sup> <sup>534</sup> <sup>535</sup> <sup>536</sup> <sup>537</sup> <sup>538</sup> <sup>539</sup> <sup>540</sup> <sup>541</sup> <sup>542</sup> <sup>543</sup> <sup>544</sup> <sup>545</sup> <sup>546</sup> <sup>547</sup> <sup>548</sup> <sup>549</sup> <sup>550</sup> <sup>551</sup> <sup>552</sup> <sup>553</sup> <sup>554</sup> <sup>555</sup> <sup>556</sup> <sup>557</sup> <sup>558</sup> <sup>559</sup> <sup>560</sup> <sup>561</sup> <sup>562</sup> <sup>563</sup> <sup>564</sup> <sup>565</sup> <sup>566</sup> <sup>567</sup> <sup>568</sup> <sup>569</sup> <sup>570</sup> <sup>571</sup> <sup>572</sup> <sup>573</sup> <sup>574</sup> <sup>575</sup> <sup>576</sup> <sup>577</sup> <sup>578</sup> <sup>579</sup> <sup>580</sup> <sup>581</sup> <sup>582</sup> <sup>583</sup> <sup>584</sup> <sup>585</sup> <sup>586</sup> <sup>587</sup> <sup>588</sup> <sup>589</sup> <sup>590</sup> <sup>591</sup> <sup>592</sup> <sup>593</sup> <sup>594</sup> <sup>595</sup> <sup>596</sup> <sup>597</sup> <sup>598</sup> <sup>599</sup> <sup>600</sup> <sup>601</sup> <sup>602</sup> <sup>603</sup> <sup>604</sup> <sup>605</sup> <sup>606</sup> <sup>607</sup> <sup>608</sup> <sup>609</sup> <sup>610</sup> <sup>611</sup> <sup>612</sup> <sup>613</sup> <sup>614</sup> <sup>615</sup> <sup>616</sup> <sup>617</sup> <sup>618</sup> <sup>619</sup> <sup>620</sup> <sup>621</sup> <sup>622</sup> <sup>623</sup> <sup>624</sup> <sup>625</sup> <sup>626</sup> <sup>627</sup> <sup>628</sup> <sup>629</sup> <sup>630</sup> <sup>631</sup> <sup>632</sup> <sup>633</sup> <sup>634</sup> <sup>635</sup> <sup>636</sup> <sup>637</sup> <sup>638</sup> <sup>639</sup> <sup>640</sup> <sup>641</sup> <sup>642</sup> <sup>643</sup> <sup>644</sup> <sup>645</sup> <sup>646</sup> <sup>647</sup> <sup>648</sup> <sup>649</sup> <sup>650</sup> <sup>651</sup> <sup>652</sup> <sup>653</sup> <sup>654</sup> <sup>655</sup> <sup>656</sup> <sup>657</sup> <sup>658</sup> <sup>659</sup> <sup>660</sup> <sup>661</sup> <sup>662</sup> <sup>663</sup> <sup>664</sup> <sup>665</sup> <sup>666</sup> <sup>667</sup> <sup>668</sup> <sup>669</sup> <sup>670</sup> <sup>671</sup> <sup>672</sup> <sup>673</sup> <sup>674</sup> <sup>675</sup> <sup>676</sup> <sup>677</sup> <sup>678</sup> <sup>679</sup> <sup>680</sup> <sup>681</sup> <sup>682</sup> <sup>683</sup> <sup>684</sup> <sup>685</sup> <sup>686</sup> <sup>687</sup> <sup>688</sup> <sup>689</sup> <sup>690</sup> <sup>691</sup> <sup>692</sup> <sup>693</sup> <sup>694</sup> <sup>695</sup> <sup>696</sup> <sup>697</sup> <sup>698</sup> <sup>699</sup> <sup>700</sup> <sup>701</sup> <sup>702</sup> <sup>703</sup> <sup>704</sup> <sup>705</sup> <sup>706</sup> <sup>707</sup> <sup>708</sup> <sup>709</sup> <sup>710</sup> <sup>711</sup> <sup>712</sup> <sup>713</sup> <sup>714</sup> <sup>715</sup> <sup>716</sup> <sup>717</sup> <sup>718</sup> <sup>719</sup> <sup>720</sup> <sup>721</sup> <sup>722</sup> <sup>723</sup> <sup>724</sup> <sup>725</sup> <sup>726</sup> <sup>727</sup> <sup>728</sup> <sup>729</sup> <sup>730</sup> <sup>731</sup> <sup>732</sup> <sup>733</sup> <sup>734</sup> <sup>735</sup> <sup>736</sup> <sup>737</sup> <sup>738</sup> <sup>739</sup> <sup>740</sup> <sup>741</sup> <sup>742</sup> <sup>743</sup> <sup>744</sup> <sup>745</sup> <sup>746</sup> <sup>747</sup> <sup>748</sup> <sup>749</sup> <sup>750</sup> <sup>751</sup> <sup>752</sup> <sup>753</sup> <sup>754</sup> <sup>755</sup> <sup>756</sup> <sup>757</sup> <sup>758</sup> <sup>759</sup> <sup>760</sup> <sup>761</sup> <sup>762</sup> <sup>763</sup> <sup>764</sup> <sup>765</sup> <sup>766</sup> <sup>767</sup> <sup>768</sup> <sup>769</sup> <sup>770</sup> <sup>771</sup> <sup>772</sup> <sup>773</sup> <sup>774</sup> <sup>775</sup> <sup>776</sup> <sup>777</sup> <sup>778</sup> <sup>779</sup> <sup>780</sup> <sup>781</sup> <sup>782</sup> <sup>783</sup> <sup>784</sup> <sup>785</sup> <sup>786</sup> <sup>787</sup> <sup>788</sup> <sup>789</sup> <sup>790</sup> <sup>791</sup> <sup>792</sup> <sup>793</sup> <sup>794</sup> <sup>795</sup> <sup>796</sup> <sup>797</sup> <sup>798</sup> <sup>799</sup> <sup>800</sup> <sup>801</sup> <sup>802</sup> <sup>803</sup> <sup>804</sup> <sup>805</sup> <sup>806</sup> <sup>807</sup> <sup>808</sup> <sup>809</sup> <sup>810</sup> <sup>811</sup> <sup>812</sup> <sup>813</sup> <sup>814</sup> <sup>815</sup> <sup>816</sup> <sup>817</sup> <sup>818</sup> <sup>819</sup> <sup>820</sup> <sup>821</sup> <sup>822</sup> <sup>823</sup> <sup>824</sup> <sup>825</sup> <sup>826</sup> <sup>827</sup> <sup>828</sup> <sup>829</sup> <sup>830</sup> <sup>831</sup> <sup>832</sup> <sup>833</sup> <sup>834</sup> <sup>835</sup> <sup>836</sup> <sup>837</sup> <sup>838</sup> <sup>839</sup> <sup>840</sup> <sup>841</sup> <sup>842</sup> <sup>843</sup> <sup>844</sup> <sup>845</sup> <sup>846</sup> <sup>847</sup> <sup>848</sup> <sup>849</sup> <sup>850</sup> <sup>851</sup> <sup>852</sup> <sup>853</sup> <sup>854</sup> <sup>855</sup> <sup>856</sup> <sup>857</sup> <sup>858</sup> <sup>859</sup> <sup>860</sup> <sup>861</sup> <sup>862</sup> <sup>863</sup> <sup>864</sup> <sup>865</sup> <sup>866</sup> <sup>867</sup> <sup>868</sup> <sup>869</sup> <sup>870</sup> <sup>871</sup> <sup>872</sup> <sup>873</sup> <sup>874</sup> <sup>875</sup> <sup>876</sup> <sup>877</sup> <sup>878</sup> <sup>879</sup> <sup>880</sup> <sup>881</sup> <sup>882</sup> <sup>883</sup> <sup>884</sup> <sup>885</sup> <sup>886</sup> <sup>887</sup> <sup>888</sup> <sup>889</sup> <sup>890</sup> <sup>891</sup> <sup>892</sup> <sup>893</sup> <sup>894</sup> <sup>895</sup> <sup>896</sup> <sup>897</sup> <sup>898</sup> <sup>899</sup> <sup>900</sup> <sup>901</sup> <sup>902</sup> <sup>903</sup> <sup>904</sup> <sup>905</sup> <sup>906</sup> <sup>907</sup> <sup>908</sup> <sup>909</sup> <sup>910</sup> <sup>911</sup> <sup>912</sup> <sup>913</sup> <sup>914</sup> <sup>915</sup> <sup>916</sup> <sup>917</sup> <sup>918</sup> <sup>919</sup> <sup>920</sup> <sup>921</sup> <sup>922</sup> <sup>923</sup> <sup>924</sup> <sup>925</sup> <sup>926</sup> <sup>927</sup> <sup>928</sup> <sup>929</sup> <sup>930</sup> <sup>931</sup> <sup>932</sup> <sup>933</sup> <sup>934</sup> <sup>935</sup> <sup>936</sup> <sup>937</sup> <sup>938</sup> <sup>939</sup> <sup>940</sup> <sup>941</sup> <sup>942</sup> <sup>943</sup> <sup>944</sup> <sup>945</sup> <sup>946</sup> <sup>947</sup> <sup>948</sup> <sup>949</sup> <sup>950</sup> <sup>951</sup> <sup>952</sup> <sup>953</sup> <sup>954</sup> <sup>955</sup> <sup>956</sup> <sup>957</sup> <sup>958</sup> <sup>959</sup> <sup>960</sup> <sup>961</sup> <sup>962</sup> <sup>963</sup> <sup>964</sup> <sup>965</sup> <sup>966</sup> <sup>967</sup> <sup>968</sup> <sup>969</sup> <sup>970</sup> <sup>971</sup> <sup>972</sup> <sup>973</sup> <sup>974</sup> <sup>975</sup> <sup>976</sup> <sup>977</sup> <sup>978</sup> <sup>979</sup> <sup>980</sup> <sup>981</sup> <sup>982</sup> <sup>983</sup> <sup>984</sup> <sup>985</sup> <sup>986</sup> <sup>987</sup> <sup>988</sup> <sup>989</sup> <sup>990</sup> <sup>991</sup> <sup>992</sup> <sup>993</sup> <sup>994</sup> <sup>995</sup> <sup>996</sup> <sup>997</sup> <sup>998</sup> <sup>999</sup> <sup>1000</sup>

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>24</sup> Whosoever heareth of me these sayings and doethe the same, I wyll lyken hym vnto a wyse man which bylt hys housse on a rocke: <sup>25</sup> and abundance of rayne descended, and the fluddes came, and the wyndes blew and bet vpon that same housse, and it fell not because it was grounded on the rocke. <sup>26</sup> And whosoever heareth of me these sayings and doth them not, shalbe lykened vnto a folysh man which bilt hys housse apon the sonde: <sup>27</sup> and abundance of rayne descended, and the fluddes came, and the wyndes blew and bet vpon that housse, and it fell, and great was the fall of it.

<sup>28</sup> And it came to passe, that when Iesus had ended these saynges, the people were astonnyed at hys doctryne. <sup>29</sup> For he taught them as one havyng power, and not as the Scribes.

8. WHEN he was come downe from the mountayne, moche people folowed him. <sup>2</sup> And beholde ther came a leper, & worshipped him sayinge: Master, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clene. <sup>3</sup> And Iesus put forth hys hand and touched hym sayinge: I wyll, be thou cleney, and immediatly hys leprosie was clenid. <sup>4</sup> And Iesus sayde vnto him. Se thou tell no man: but go and shewe thy selfe to the preste, and offer the gyfte that Moises commaunded, in wittes to them.

<sup>5</sup> When Iesus was entred into Capernaum, ther came vnto him a certayne Centurion, and besought hym sayinge: Master my seruauit lyeth sicke at home of the palsey, and ys greuously payned. <sup>7</sup> And Iesus sayd vnto hym: I will come and heale him. <sup>8</sup> The Centurion answered and sayde: Syr I am not worthy that thou shuldest come vnder my rofe: but speake the worde only and my seruauit shalbe healed.

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>24</sup> For whosoever heareth of me these wordes, & doth the same, I will liken him vnto a wise man, which built his house vpon a rocke: <sup>25</sup> and a shower of rayne descended, & the floudes came, & the wyndes blew, and bet vpon that house, & it fell not, because it was grounded on the rocke.

<sup>26</sup> And euery one that heareth of me these wordes, & doth them not, shalbe lykened vnto a folysh man, which buylt hys house vpon sande: <sup>27</sup> and a shower of rayne descended, and the floudes came, & the wyndes blew, & bet vpon that house and it fell, and great was the fall of it.

<sup>28</sup> And it came to passe, that when Iesus had ended these saynges, the people were astonnyed at hys doctryne. <sup>29</sup> For he taught them as one hauing power, & not as the scribes. (of them, and the Pharises.)

8. WHEN he was come downe from the mountayne, moche people folowed him. <sup>2</sup> And beholde ther came a leper, & worshipped him sayinge: Master, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clene. <sup>3</sup> And Iesus put forth his hand and touched him sayinge: I will, be thou clene, and immediatly hys leprosy was clenid. <sup>4</sup> And Iesus sayth vnto him: se thou tell no man: but go & shewe thy selfe to the preast, and offer the gyfte (that Moyses commaunded to be offered) for a wytnes vnto them.

<sup>5</sup> And when Iesus was entred into Capernaum, ther came vnto hym a Centurion, and besought hym, sayinge: <sup>6</sup> Master, my seruauit lyeth at home sicke of the palsey, & is greuously payned. <sup>7</sup> And Iesus sayeth: when I come vnto hym, I will heale hym. <sup>8</sup> The Centurion answered, & sayde: Syr, I am not worthy, that thou shuldest come vnder my rofe: but speake the worde only, and my seruauit shalbe healed.

VIII. <sup>5</sup> Καταβάντι δὲ αὐτῷ ἀπὸ τοῦ ὄρους, ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ ὄχλοι πολλοί. <sup>2</sup> καὶ ἰδοὺ, λεπρὸς ἐλθὼν προσεκύνη αὐτῷ λέγων, ‘Κύριε, ἐὰν θέλῃς, δύνασαι με καθαρίσαι.’ <sup>3</sup> Καὶ ἐκτείνας τὴν χεῖρα, ἥψατο αὐτοῦ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, λέγων, ‘Θέλω, καθαρίσθητι.’ Καὶ εὐθέως ἐκαθαρίσθη αὐτοῦ ἡ λέπρα. <sup>4</sup> καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ‘Ὅρα μηδεὶ εἶπῃς· ἀλλὰ ὕπαγε, σεαυτὸν δεῖξον τῷ ἱερεῖ, καὶ προσέγεγε τὸ δῶρον ὃ προσέταξε Μωσῆς, εἰς μαρτύριον αὐτοῖς.’

<sup>5</sup> Εἰσελθόντι δὲ αὐτῷ εἰς Καπερναοὺμ, προσῆλθεν αὐτῷ ἑκατόνταρχος παρακαλῶν αὐτὸν, καὶ λέγων, ‘Κύριε, ὁ παῖς μου βέβληται ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ παραλυτικὸς, δεινῶς βασανιζόμενος.’ <sup>7</sup> Καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ‘Ἐγὼ ἐλθὼν θεραπεύσω αὐτόν.’ <sup>8</sup> Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ ἑκατόνταρχος ἔφη, ‘Κύριε, οὐκ εἰμὶ ἰκανὸς ἵνα μου ὑπὸ τὴν στέγην εἰσελθῆς· ἀλλὰ μόνον εἶπέ μοι λόγῳ, καὶ ἰαθήσεται ὁ παῖς μου.

<sup>4</sup> Alex. καταβάντος αὐτοῦ.

<sup>4</sup> Alex. = ὁ Ἰησοῦς.

<sup>5</sup> Rec. Εἰσελθόντι ἐν τῷ Ἰησοῦ.

Alex. εἰσελθόντος ἐν αὐτοῦ.

<sup>5</sup> Rec. λέγον.

GENEVA—1557.

<sup>24</sup> Whosoever then heareth of me these sayings, & doth the same, I wil liken him to a wise man, which hath builded his house on a rocke: <sup>25</sup> And the rayne fel, and the floodes came, and the wyndes blew, & beat vpon that same house, and it fel not: for it was grounded on a rocke.

<sup>26</sup> But whosoever heareth these wordes which I speake, and doth them not: shalbe lykened vnto a folysh man, whych hath buylded his house vpon the sand: <sup>27</sup> And the rayne fel, and the floodes came, and the windes blew, and beat vpon that house, and it fel, and great was the fall of it. <sup>28</sup> And it came to passe, when Iesus had ended these sayings, the people were astonied at his doctrine. <sup>29</sup> For he taught them as one hauyng autoritie, and not as the Scribes.

8. VVHEN he was come downe from the mountayne, great presse of people folowed him. <sup>2</sup> And lo, there came a leper and worshipped him, saying, Maister, If thou wylt, thou canst make me cleane. <sup>3</sup> And Iesus putting forth his hand, touched him, saying, I wil, be thou cleane: and immediatly his leprosie was censed. <sup>4</sup> And Iesus sayed vnto him, se thou tel no man, but go, and shewe thy self vnto the Priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, for a witnes to them.

<sup>5</sup> When Iesus was entred into Capernaum, there came vnto him a Centurion, beseeching him. <sup>6</sup> And said, Master, my seruaut lieth sycke at home of the palsy, and is greuously payned.

<sup>7</sup> And Iesus sayed vnto him, I wil come and heale him. <sup>8</sup> And the Centurion answered, saying, Syr, I am not worthy that thou shouldest come vnder my rofe: but speake the worde only, and my seruaut shalbe healed.

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>24</sup> Eury one therefore that heareth these my vvordes, and doeth them: shal he likened to a vvise man that built his house vpon a rocke, <sup>25</sup> and the rayne fel, and the fluddes came, & the vvindes blew, and they beate agaynst that house, and it fel not, for it vvas founded vpon a rocke.

<sup>26</sup> And euery one that heareth these my vvordes, & doeth them not, shal be like a foolish man that built his house vpon the sand, <sup>27</sup> and the rayne fel, and the fluddes came, and the vvindes blew, and they beate agaynst that house, and it fel, & the fall thereof vvas great.

<sup>28</sup> And it came to passe, vvhen Iesus had fully ended these vvordes, the multitude vvore in admiration vpon his doctrine. <sup>29</sup> For he vvas teaching them as hauing povver, and not as their Scribes and Pharisees.

8. AND vvhen he vvas come downe from the mountaine, great multitudes folowed him: <sup>2</sup> And behold a leper came and adored him saying, Lord, if thou wylt, thou canst make me cleane. <sup>3</sup> And Iesus stretching forth his hand, touched him, saying, I vvil, be thou made cleane. And forthvvith, his leprosy vvas made cleane. <sup>4</sup> And Iesus sayth to him, See thou tel no body: but goe, shew thy self to the priest, & offer the gift vvich Moyses commaunded for a testimonie to them.

<sup>5</sup> And vvhen he vvas entred into Capernaum, there came to him a Centurion, beseeching him, <sup>6</sup> & saying, Lord my boy lieth at home sicke of the palsey, & is sore tormented. <sup>7</sup> And Iesus sayth to him, I vvil come, & cure him.

<sup>8</sup> And the Centurion making ansver, said, Lord I am not vvorthie that thou shouldest enter vnder my rofe: but only say the vvord, and my boy shal be healed.

AUTHORISED—1611.

<sup>24</sup> Therefore, whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I wil liken him vnto a wise man, which built his house vpon a rocke: <sup>25</sup> And the raine descended, and the floods came, and the windes blew, and beat vpon that house: and it fell not, for it was founded vpon a rocke.

<sup>26</sup> And euery one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened vnto a foolish man, which built his house vpon the sand: <sup>27</sup> And the raine descended, and the floods came, and the windes blew, and beat vpon that house, and it fell, and great was the fall of it. <sup>28</sup> And it came to passe, when Iesus had ended these sayings, the people were astonied at his doctrine. <sup>29</sup> For he taught them as one hauing authority, and not as the Scribes.

8. WHEN he was come downe from the Mountaine, great multitudes followed him. <sup>2</sup> And behold, there came a Leper, and worshipped him, saying, Lord, if thou wylt, thou canst make me cleane. <sup>3</sup> And Iesus put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I wyl, be thou cleane. And immediatly his leprosie was cleansed. <sup>4</sup> And Iesus saith vnto him, See thou tell no man, but go thy way, shew thy selfe to the Priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, for a testimonie vnto them.

<sup>5</sup> And when Iesus was entred into Capernaum, there came vnto him a Centurion, beseeching him, <sup>6</sup> And saying, Lord, my seruaut lieth at home sicke of the palsey, grievously tormented. <sup>7</sup> And Iesus saith vnto him, I wil come, and heale him.

<sup>8</sup> The Centurion answered, and said, Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldest come vnder my rofe: but speake the word onely, and my seruaut shalbe healed.

‘καὶ γὰρ ἐγὼ ἄνθρωπος εἰμι ὑπὸ ἐξουσίαν, ἔχων ὑπ’ ἐμαντὸν στρατιώτας· καὶ λέγω τούτῳ, Πορεύθητι, καὶ πορεύεται· καὶ ἄλλῳ, Ἐρχου, καὶ ἔρχεται· καὶ τῷ δούλῳ μου, Ποίησον τούτο, καὶ ποιεῖ.’<sup>10</sup> Ἀκούσας δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐθαύμασε, καὶ εἶπε τοῖς ἀκολουθοῦσιν, ‘Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, οὐδὲ ἐν τῷ Ἰσραὴλ τοσαύτην πίστιν εὔρον.’<sup>11</sup> λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, ὅτι πολλοὶ ἀπὸ ἀνατολῶν καὶ δυσμῶν ἥξουσιν, καὶ ἀνακληθήσονται μετὰ Ἀβραὰμ καὶ Ἰσαὰκ καὶ Ἰακώβ ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τῶν οὐρανῶν.<sup>12</sup> οἱ δὲ υἱοὶ τῆς βασιλείας ἐκβληθήσονται εἰς τὸ σκότος τὸ ἐξώτερον· ἐκεῖ ἔσται ὁ κλαυθμὸς καὶ ὁ βρυγμὸς τῶν ὀδόντων.’<sup>13</sup> Καὶ εἶπεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τῷ ἑκατοντάρχῳ, | ‘Ὑπαγε, καὶ ὡς ἐπίστευσας γενήθητω σοι.’<sup>14</sup> Καὶ ἰάθη ὁ παῖς αὐτοῦ ἐν τῇ ὥρᾳ ἐκείνῃ.<sup>15</sup>

<sup>14</sup> Καὶ ἔλθων ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν Πέτρου εἶδε τὴν πενθερὰν αὐτοῦ βεβλη-

<sup>10</sup> Rec. ἑκατοντάρχῳ.

<sup>15</sup> Alex. + καὶ ὑποστρίψας ὁ ἑκατοντάρχος εἰς τὸν οἶκον αὐτοῦ ἐν αὐτῇ τῷ ὥρᾳ εἶρε τὸν παῖδα ἰγιαύοντα.

WICLIF—1380.

<sup>9</sup> For why I am a man ordeyned vndir power and haue knyghtis vndir me; and I seie to this go: and he goeth; and to another come; and he cometh; and to my seruauit do this: and he doith it;

<sup>10</sup> and ihesus herd these thingis, and wondrid t̄ seide to men that succden hym; truly I seie to you: I found no so greet feith in israel, <sup>11</sup> and I seie to you, that many schulen come fro the east, and the west; and schuln reste with abraham Isaac and Iacob in the kyngdom of heuene; <sup>12</sup> but the sones of the rewme schuln be cast out in to uttner derknessis; there schal be wepinge and gryntinge of teeth; <sup>13</sup> and ihesus seide to the centurion go; and as thou hast bileued, be it don to thee; and the child was heclid fro that our;

<sup>14</sup> and whanne ihesus was come in to the hous of Symound Petre; he saie his wyues modir liggynge and schakun with feours; <sup>15</sup> and he touchid hir hond, and the feuer lefte hir; and shec roos and serued hem;

<sup>16</sup> and whanne it was euen thei brougten to hym many that hadden deuldis; and he castid out spiritis bi word, and heclid al that weren yuel at ese; <sup>17</sup> that it were fulfilled, that was seide bi Isaie the profete sayynge; he tok oure in firmytes, and bare oure siknessis;

<sup>18</sup> And ihesus saie moch puple aboute hym; and badde hise discipulis go ouer the watir; <sup>19</sup> and a scribe nyzed; and seide to hym; Maister I schal sue thee whidur euer thou schalt go; <sup>20</sup> and ihesus seide to hym; foxis hau denmes, and briddis of heuene han nestis; but mannes some hath not where he schal reste his hecd; <sup>21</sup> another of hise discipulis seide to hym; lord suffre me to go first; and biric my fadir; <sup>22</sup> but ihesus seide to hym; sue thou

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>9</sup> For I also myselfe am a man vndre power; and haue souldiers vndre me; and I saye to one; go; and he goeth; and to another come; and he cometh; and to my seruauit; do this; and he doeth it.

<sup>10</sup> When Iesus hearde that; he marueled and sayd to them that folowed hym. Verely I say vnto you; I haue not founde so great fayth: no; not in Israel. <sup>11</sup> I say therefore vnto you; that many shall come from the east and weest; and shall rest with Abraham; Isaac and Iacob in the kyngdome of heuen: <sup>12</sup> and the chyldren of the kyngdome shalbe cast out in to vtter darcknes: there shalbe wepinge and gnattering of tethe. <sup>13</sup> Then Iesus sayd vnto the Centurion; go thy waye; and as thou belest so be it vnto the. And his seruaunt was healed the selfe houre.

<sup>14</sup> And then Iesus went to Peters housse; and sawe hys wyues mother lvyng sicke of a fevre; <sup>15</sup> and touchid her hande; and the fevre left hir: and she arose; and ministred vnto them.

<sup>16</sup> When the euen was come; they brought vnto him many that were possessed with devyllis. And he cast out the spirites with a word; and healed all that were sicke; <sup>17</sup> to fulfill that which was spoken by Esay the Prophet sayynge. He toke on him oure infirmities; t̄ bare oure siknesses.

<sup>18</sup> When Iesus sawe moche people about him; he commaunded to go ouer the watir. <sup>19</sup> And ther came a scribe and sayd vnto hym; master; I wyll folowe the whither so ever thou goest. <sup>20</sup> And Iesus sayd vnto him; the foxes haue holes; and the bryddes of the ayer have nestes; but the sonne of the man hath not wheron to rest his hecde. <sup>21</sup> A notrue that was one of hys discipulis sayd vnto hym; master; suffre me fyrst to go and burye my fader. <sup>22</sup> But Iesus sayd vnto

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>9</sup> For I also my selfe am a man subject to the aucthorite of another, and haue souldiers vnder me, and I saye to this man, go, t̄ he goeth: t̄ to another come, and he cometh, and to my seruauit do this, and he doeth it. <sup>10</sup> When Iesus heard these wordes, he marueled and sayd to them that folowed hym: Uerely I saye vnto you; I haue not founde so great fayth in Israel. <sup>11</sup> I saye vnto you; that many shal come from the east and west, and shall rest with Abraham and Isaac and Iacob in the kyngdome of heauen: <sup>12</sup> but the chyldren of the kyngdome shalbe cast out into vtter darcknes: there shalbe wepyng t̄ gnaschyng of teth. <sup>13</sup> And Iesus sayde vnto the Centurion: go thy waye, and as thou beuest, so be it vnto the. And hys seruauent was healed in the selfe same houre.

<sup>14</sup> And when Iesus was come in to Peters housse, he sawe his wyues mother lvyng in bed, and sycke of a feuer. <sup>15</sup> And he touchid her hande, and the feuer left hir: and she arose, t̄ mynystred vnto them.

<sup>16</sup> When the euen drue on, they brought vnto hym many that were possessed with denylls. And he cast out the sprites with a word, t̄ healed all that were sycke, <sup>17</sup> that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken by Esay the Prophet, when he saith: He toke on him oure infirmities, and bare oure sycknesses.

<sup>18</sup> When Iesus sawe moche people about hym, he commaunded that they shulde go vnto the other syde of the watir. <sup>19</sup> And a certayne scribe (whan he was come) sayd vnto hym; Master: I wyll folowe the whither soeuer thou goest. <sup>20</sup> And Iesus sayeth vnto hym; the foxes haue holes, and the byrdes of the ayer haue nestes, but the sonne of man hath not wher to rest hys hecd. <sup>21</sup> Another of the number of hys Discipulis sayde vnto hym; Master, suffre me fyrst to go and burye my fader. <sup>22</sup> But Iesus sayde vnto

kyngis, souldiers vnder, followed, remme, realme, or kyngdome. liggynge, lvyng. yuel at ese, diseased nyzed, drewe neer.

μένην καὶ πυρέσσουσαν, <sup>15</sup> καὶ ἤψατο τῆς χειρὸς αὐτῆς, καὶ ἀφήκεν αὐτὴν ὁ πυρετός· καὶ ἠγέρθη, καὶ διηκόνει <sup>9</sup> αὐτῷ. | <sup>16</sup> Ὀφίας δὲ γενομένης προσήνεγκαν αὐτῷ δαιμονιζομένους πολλούς· καὶ ἐξέβαλε τὰ πνεύματα λόγῳ, καὶ πάντας τοὺς κακῶς ἔχοντας ἐθεράπευσεν· <sup>17</sup> ὅπως πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ Ἡσαίου τοῦ προφήτου, λέγοντος, “Αὐτὸς τὰς ἀσθενείας ἡμῶν ἔλαβε, καὶ τὰς νόσους ἐβάστασεν.”

<sup>18</sup> Ἰδὼν δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς πολλοὺς ὄχλους περὶ αὐτὸν ἐκέλευσεν ἀπελθεῖν εἰς τὸ πέραν. <sup>19</sup> καὶ προσελθὼν εἰς γραμματεὺς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, “Διδάσκαλε, ἀκολουθήσω σοι, ὅπου ἐὰν ἀπέρχῃ.” <sup>20</sup> Καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, “Αἱ ἀλώπεκες φωλεὺς ἔχουσι, καὶ τὰ πετεινὰ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ κατασκηνώσουσι· ὁ δὲ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου οὐκ ἔχει, πού τὴν κεφαλὴν κλίνη.” <sup>21</sup> Ἄλλος δὲ τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, “Κύριε, ἐπίτρεψόν μοι πρῶτον ἀπελθεῖν καὶ θάψαι τὸν πατέρα μου.” <sup>22</sup> Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς

<sup>v</sup> Rec. αἰροῖς.

GENEVA—1557.

<sup>9</sup> For I am a man subject to the authority of another, and haue souldiers vnder me: and I say to one, Go: and he goeth, and to another, Come: and he cometh, and to my seruant, doe this, & he doeth it. <sup>10</sup> And Iesus hearing this, marvelled: and said to them that folowed him, Verely I say vnto you, I haue not founde so great fayth: no, not in Israel. <sup>11</sup> I say therefore vnto you, that many shal come from the east and west, and shal sitt doune with Abraham, Isaac, and Iacob in the kingdome of heauen. <sup>12</sup> And the children of the kingdome shal be cast out into vter darknes: there shalbe weeping and gnashing of teeth. <sup>13</sup> Then Iesus said vnto the Centurion, Go thy way, and as thou hast beleued, so be it vnto thee. And his seruant was healed the self same houre.

<sup>14</sup> And Iesus comming to Peters house, sawe his wyues mother lying, and sycke of a feuer. <sup>15</sup> And he touched her hand, & the feuer left her: so she arose, & ministered vnto them. <sup>16</sup> When that euen was come, they brought vnto him many that were possessed with deuils: And he cast out the spirites with a worde and healed all that were sicke.

<sup>17</sup> To fulfil that which was spoken by Esai the Prophet, saying, He toke on him our infirmities, and bare our sicknesses.

<sup>18</sup> And when Iesus saw much people about him, he commanded them to go ouer the water. <sup>19</sup> And there came a certayne Scribe and sayed vnto him, Master, I wil follow thee whether soeuer thou goest. <sup>20</sup> And Iesus said vnto him: The foxes haue holes, & the byrdes of the ayre haue nestes, but the sonne of man hath not where on to rest his head. <sup>21</sup> And another that was of his disciples sayed vnto him: master, suffer me first to go and bury my father. <sup>22</sup> But Iesus sayed vnto him,

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>9</sup> For I also am a man subject to authority, hauing vnder me souldiers: and I say to this, goe, and he goeth: and to another, come, & he cometh: and to my seruant, doe this, & he doeth it. <sup>10</sup> And Iesus hearing this, marvelled: and said to them that folowed him, Amen I say to you, I haue not found so great faith in Israel.

<sup>11</sup> And I say to you, that many shal come from the East and West, and shal sitte doune vwith Abraham & Isaac & Iacob in the kingdom of heauen: <sup>12</sup> but the children of the kingdom shal be cast out into the exterior darknesse: there shal be vweeping & gnashing of teeth.

<sup>13</sup> And Iesus said to the Centurion, Goe: and as thou hast beleued, be it done to thee. And the boy vvas healed in the same houre.

<sup>14</sup> And vwhen Iesus was come into Peters house, he savv his vyvies mother layde, & was in a fitte of a feuer: <sup>15</sup> and he touched her hand, and the feuer left her, and she arose, and ministered to him. <sup>16</sup> And vwhen eueing vvas come, they brought to him many that had dyuels: and he cast out the spirites vwith a vvord: and all that vvere ill at ease he cured: <sup>17</sup> that it might be fulfilled vwith vvay spoken by Esay the Prophete saying, He tooke our infirmities, and bare our diseases.

<sup>18</sup> And Iesus seeing great multitudes about him, commanded to goe beyond the vvater. <sup>19</sup> And a certayne Scribe came, and said to him, Master, I vvill folovv thee vvithersoever thou shalt goe. <sup>20</sup> And Iesus sayth to him, the foxes haue holes, and the foules of the ayre nestes: but the sonne of man hath not vvhere to lay his head. <sup>21</sup> And another of his Disciples said to him, Lord permit me first to goe & burie my father. <sup>22</sup> But Iesus said to

AUTHORISED—1611.

<sup>9</sup> For I am a man vnder authority, hauing souldiers vnder me: and I say to this man, Goe, and he goeth: and to another, Come, and he cometh: and to my seruant, Doe this, and he doth it. <sup>10</sup> When Iesus heard it, he marvelled, and said to them that folowed, Verely, I say vnto you, I haue not found so great faith, no not in Israel. <sup>11</sup> And I say vnto you, that many shall come from the East and West, and shal sit doune with Abraham, and Isaac, & Iacob, in the kingdome of heauen: <sup>12</sup> But the children of the kingdome shall bee cast out into outer darknesse: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. <sup>13</sup> And Iesus said vnto the Centurion, Go thy way, and as thou hast beleued, so be it done vnto thee. And his seruant was healed in the self-same houre.

<sup>14</sup> And when Iesus was come into Peters house, he saw his wifes mother layd, and sicke of a feuer: <sup>15</sup> And he touched her hand, and the feuer left her: and she arose, and ministered vnto them.

<sup>16</sup> When the Euen was come, they brought vnto him many that were possessed with deuils: and he cast out the spirites with his word, and healed all that were sicke, <sup>17</sup> That it might bee fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the Prophet, saying, Himselfe tooke our infirmities, and bare our sicknesses.

<sup>18</sup> Now when Iesus saw great multitudes about him, hee gaue commandement to depart vnto the other side. <sup>19</sup> And a certayne Scribe came, and said vnto him, Master, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest. <sup>20</sup> And Iesus saith vnto him, The foxes haue holes, and the birds of the aire haue nestes: but the Sonne of man hath not where to lay his head. <sup>21</sup> And another of his disciples said vnto him, Lord, suffer me first to goe, and bury my father. <sup>22</sup> But Iesus said vnto him, εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἐκολούθει μοι, καὶ ἄφες τοὺς νεκροὺς θάψαι τοὺς ἐαυτῶν νεκρούς.<sup>23</sup> Καὶ ἐμβάντι αὐτῷ εἰς τὸ πλοῖον, ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ.<sup>24</sup> καὶ ἰδοὺ, σεισμὸς μέγας ἐγένετο ἐν τῇ θαλάσῃ, ὥστε τὸ πλοῖον καλύπτεσθαι ὑπὸ τῶν κυμάτων· αὐτοὺς δὲ ἐκάθευδε.<sup>25</sup> καὶ προσελθόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ ἤγειραν αὐτὸν, λέγοντες, Κύριε, σῶσον ἡμᾶς, ἀπολλύμεθα.<sup>26</sup> Καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Τί δειλοὶ ἐστε, ὀλιγόπιστοι; Τότε ἐγερθεὶς ἐπετίμησε τοῖς ἀνέμοις καὶ τῇ θαλάσῃ, καὶ ἐγένετο γαλήνη μεγάλη.<sup>27</sup> οἱ δὲ ἄνθρωποι ἐθαύμασαν, λέγοντες, Ποταπὸς ἐστὶν οὗτος, ὅτι καὶ οἱ ἄνεμοι καὶ ἡ θάλασσα ὑπακούουσιν αὐτῷ;<sup>28</sup> Καὶ ἔλθόντι αὐτῷ εἰς τὸ πέραν εἰς τὴν χώραν τῶν Γαδαρηνῶν, ὑπήνησαν αὐτῷ δύο δαιμονιζόμενοι ἐκ τῶν μνημείων ἐξερχόμενοι, χαλπεὶ λίαν, ὥστε μὴ ἰσχύειν τιὰ παρελθεῖν διὰ τῆς ὁδοῦ ἐκείνης.<sup>29</sup> καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἔκραξαν, λέγοντες,

<sup>23</sup> Alex. = τῷ.

<sup>24</sup> Rec. + αὐτοῦ.

<sup>25</sup> Alex. ἰδιότροπος αὐτοῦ.

<sup>26</sup> Rec. Γεργασηῶν.

WICLIFF—1380.

me: and lete deed men birie her deed men.

<sup>23</sup> And whanne he was gon up, in to a litil schep: his discipulis sueden him,<sup>24</sup> and to a greet stirringe was made in the see: so that the litil schip was hidil with wawis, but he slepte.<sup>25</sup> And hisse discipulis camen ny: to him: and reisenen hym and seiden, lord saue us: we perischen.<sup>26</sup> and ihesus seide to hem, what ben ye of litil feith agast? thanne he roos and comaundid to the wyndis and the see: and a greet pesibleness was made.<sup>27</sup> and men wondriden and seiden, what maner man is he this? for the wyndis and the see obeischen to hym?

<sup>28</sup> and whan ihesus was come ouer the watir in to the cuntrey of men of gerasa: two men metten him that hadden deuylis and camen out of graues ful wood, so that no man mygte go bi that weye.<sup>29</sup> and lo thei crieden and seiden, what to us and to thee thou ihesus the sone of god? art thou comen hider bifor the tyme to tormente us? <sup>30</sup> and not fer from hem was a flock of many swyne leswinger.<sup>31</sup> and the deuyls preiden him and seiden, if thou castist us out from hennes: sende us in to the droue of swyne.<sup>32</sup> and he seide to hem, go ye, and thei seiden out and wenten in to the swyne, and lo in a greet birre, al the droue went heddinge in to the see: and thei wrecan deed in the watris.<sup>33</sup> and the herdiss fledden awei: and camen in to the cite and tellden alle thes thingis, and of hem that hadden alle the fendis.<sup>34</sup> and lo al the cite wente out agens ihesus, and whanne thei hadden scen him, thei preiden that he wolde passe for her coostis.

9. AND ihesus wente up in to a boot and passid ouer the watir, and cam in to his cite:

TYNDALE—1534.

him: folowe me, and let the deed burie their deed.

<sup>23</sup> And he entred in to a shyppe, and his discipulis folowed him.<sup>24</sup> And beholde there arose a greete tempest in the see, in so moche that the shippe was covered with waves, and he was a slepe.<sup>25</sup> And his discipulis came vnto him, and awoke hym sayinge: master save vs, we perishe.<sup>26</sup> And he sayd vnto them: why are ye fearfully, o ye of lytell faythe? Then he arose, and rebuked the wyndes and the see, and they folowed a greete calme.<sup>27</sup> And the men marveyled and sayd: what man is this, that bothe wyndes and see obey hym?

<sup>28</sup> And when he was come to the other syde, in to the countre of the Gergesites, ther met him two possessed of devylles, which came out of the graves, and were out of measure feare, so that no man myght go by that waye.<sup>29</sup> And behold they cryed out sayinge: O Iesu the sonne of God, what have we to do with the? Art thou come hyther to torment vs before the tyme be come? <sup>30</sup> And ther was a good waye of from them a greete heerd of swyne fedinge.<sup>31</sup> Then the devyls besought him sayinge: if thou cast vs out, suffre vs to go oure waye in to the heerd of swyne.<sup>32</sup> And he sayd vnto them: go your wayes. Then went they out, and departed into the heerd of swyne. And beholde the whoole heerd of swyne was caryed with violence heddinge in to the see, and perished in the water.<sup>33</sup> Then the heerdmen fled and went their ways in to the cyte, and tolde every thyng, and what had fortunyd vnto the possessed of the devyls.<sup>34</sup> And beholde alle the cyte came out and met Iesus. And when they sawe hym, they besought hym to departe out of their costes.

9. THEN he entred in to a shyppe and passed over and came in to his awne cite.

CRANMER—1539.

him: folowe me, and let the deed burye theyr deed.

<sup>23</sup> And when he entred into a shyppe, his Disciples folowed hym.<sup>24</sup> And beholde there arose a greete tempest in the see, in so moche that the shippe was couered with wauces, but he was a slepe.<sup>25</sup> And hys Discyple came to hym, and awoke him sayinge: Master, saue vs, we perysshe.<sup>26</sup> And he sayth vnto them: Why are ye fearful, O ye of lytell fayth? Then he arose and rebuked the wyndes and the see, and then folowed a greete calme.<sup>27</sup> But the men marveyled saying: what maner of man is thys, that both wyndes and see obey hym?

<sup>28</sup> And when he was come to the other syde, in to the countre of the Gergesites, ther met him two possessed of deuyls, whych came out of the graues, and were out of measure feare, so that no man myght go by that waye. And beholde, they cryed out sayinge: O Iesu thou sonne of God what haue we to do with the? Art thou come hither to torment vs before the tyme? <sup>30</sup> And ther was a good waye of from them a heerd of many swyne, fedying.

<sup>31</sup> So, the deuyls besought him, sayinge: if thou cast vs out, suffre vs to go oure waye into the heerd of swyne.<sup>32</sup> And he sayde vnto them: go your wayes. Then went they out, and departed into the heerd of swyne. And beholde, the whole heerd of swyne was caryed headlyng into the see, and perished in the waters.<sup>33</sup> Then they that kepte them, fledd, and went their wayes in to the cytie, and tolde euery thyng, and what had fortunyd vnto the possessed of the deuyls: <sup>34</sup> And beholde, the whole cytie came out to mete Iesus: and when they sawe hym, they besought hym that he wolde departe out of their coastes.

9. HE entred also in to a shyppe, and passed ouer, and came into his awne cytie.

<sup>23</sup> covered, dry, near, near, afraid. obey-him, bey, full wood, very mad. leswinger, grazing or passing. hurte, hurry or confusion. avens, against.

‘Τί ἡμῖν καὶ σοί, Ἰησοῦ,| υἱὲ τοῦ Θεοῦ; ἦλθες ὧδε πρὸ καιροῦ βασιλεῖσαι ἡμᾶς;’ <sup>30</sup> Ἦν δὲ μακρὰν ἀπ’ αὐτῶν ἀγέλη χοίρων πολλῶν βοσκομένη. <sup>31</sup> οἱ δὲ δαίμονες παρεκάλουν αὐτὸν, λέγοντες, ‘Εἰ ἐκβάλλεις ἡμᾶς, ἀπίτρεψον ἡμῖν| ἀπελθεῖν εἰς τὴν ἀγέλην τῶν χοίρων.’ <sup>32</sup> Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ‘Ὑπάγετε.’ Οἱ δὲ ἐξεληθόντες ἀπῆλθον εἰς τὴν ἀγέλην τῶν χοίρων| καὶ ἰδοὺ, ὄρμησε πᾶσα ἡ ἀγέλη <sup>3</sup> τῶν χοίρων| κατὰ τοῦ κρημνοῦ εἰς τὴν θάλασσαν, καὶ ἀπέθανον ἐν τοῖς ὕδασι. <sup>33</sup> οἱ δὲ βόσκοντες ἔφυγον, καὶ ἀπελθόντες εἰς τὴν πόλιν ἀπήγγειλαν πάντα, καὶ τὰ τῶν δαμονιζομένων. <sup>34</sup> καὶ ἰδοὺ, πᾶσα ἡ πόλις ἐξῆλθεν εἰς συνάντησιν τῷ Ἰησοῦ· καὶ ἰδόντες αὐτὸν, παρεκάλεσαν ὅπως μεταβῆ ἀπὸ τῶν ὀρίων αὐτῶν.

IX. Καὶ ἐμβαὸς εἰς <sup>9</sup> τὸ | πλοῖον διεπέρασε καὶ ἦλθεν εἰς τὴν ἰδίαν πόλιν.

<sup>9</sup> Alex. = Ἰησοῦ.

<sup>d</sup> Alex. ἀπίστειλον ἡμᾶς.

<sup>e</sup> Alex. τοῖς χοίρων.

<sup>f</sup> Alex. = τῶν χοίρων.

<sup>g</sup> Alex. = τὸ.

GENEVA — 1557.

Folow me, & let the dead bury their dead, <sup>23</sup> And when he was entred into the shyp, his disciples folowed him. <sup>24</sup> And beholde, there arose a great tempest in the sea, in so much that the shyp was covered with waues, but he was a slepe. <sup>25</sup> And his disciples came, and awoke him, saying, Master saue vs, we peryshe. <sup>26</sup> And he said vnto them, Why are ye fearful, O ye of litle fayeth. Then he arose, and rebuked the windes and the sea: & there folowed a great calme. <sup>27</sup> And the men marueyled, saying, What man is this, that both windes and seas obey him?

<sup>28</sup> And when he was come to the other syde, into the cuntry of the Gergesites, there met him two possessed of deuills which came out of the graues, and were out of measure feare: so that no man myght go by that same way. <sup>29</sup> And behold, they cryed out, saying, O Iesu thou Sonne of God, what haue we to do with thee? Art thou come hyther to torment vs before the tyme? <sup>30</sup> And there was a good way off from them, a great heard of swyne feedyng. <sup>31</sup> Then the deuyls besought him, saying, if thou cast vs out, suffer vs to go our way into the heard of swyne. <sup>32</sup> And he sayd vnto them go your wayes. Then they went out, and departed into the heard of swine. And beholde, the whole heard of swyne was caried with violence from a steepe downe place into the sea, and died in the water.

<sup>33</sup> Then the heardmen fled, and went their wayes into the cite, and tolde euerything, and what had fortuntd vnto the possessed of the deuyls. <sup>34</sup> And beholde all the cite came out, and met Iesus, and when they saw him, they besought him to departe out of their coastes.

9. THEN he entred into a shyp, and passed ouer and came into his own cite.

RHEIMS — 1582.

him, Folow me, and let the dead burie their dead. <sup>23</sup> And vhen he entred into the boate, his Disciples folowed him: <sup>24</sup> and loe a great tempest arose in the sea, so that the boate vvas covered vwith vvaues, but he slept. <sup>25</sup> And they came to him, and raised him, saying, Lord, saue vs, vve perish. <sup>26</sup> And he saith to them, Why are you fearful O ye of litle faith? Then rising vp he commaunded the vvindes & the sea, and there ensued a great calme. <sup>27</sup> Moreouer the men marueled saying, What an one is this, for the vvindes and the sea obey him?

<sup>28</sup> And vhen he vvas come beyond the vvater into the cuntry of the Gergasens, there mette him tvvo that had diuels, coming forth out of the sepulchres, exceeding fierce, so that none could passe by that vvay.

<sup>29</sup> And behold they cried saying, What is betvvene vs and thee Iesus the sonne of God? art thou come hither to torment vs before the time? <sup>30</sup> And there vvas not farr frome them an heard of many svvine feeding. <sup>31</sup> And the diuels besought him saying, If thou cast vs out, send vs into the heard of svvine. <sup>32</sup> And he said to them, Goe. But they going forth vvent into the svvine, and behold the vvhole heard vvent vvith a violence headlong into the sea: and they dyed in the vvaters.

<sup>33</sup> And the svvineheardes fled: and coming into the cite, told al, and of them that had been possessed of diuels. <sup>34</sup> And behold the vvhole cite vvent out to meete Iesus, and vwhen they savv him, they besought him that he vvould passe from their quarters.

9. AND entring into a boate, he passed ouer the vvater, and came into his ovvne cite.

AUTHORISED — 1611.

Follow me, & let the dead bury their dead.

<sup>23</sup> And when he was entred into a ship, his disciples followed him. <sup>24</sup> And behold, there arose a great tempest in the Sea, insomuch that the ship was covered with the waues: but he was asleepe. <sup>25</sup> And his disciples came to him, and awoke him, saying, Lord, saue vs: we perish. <sup>26</sup> And he saith vnto them, Why are ye fearful, O ye of litle faith? Then he arose, and rebuked the winds and the Sea, and there was a great calme. <sup>27</sup> But the men maruelled, saying, What maner of man is this, that euen the winds and the Sea obey him?

<sup>28</sup> And when hee was come to the other side, into the cuntry of the Gergesenes, there met him two possessed with deuils, coming out of the tombes, exceeding fierce, so that no man might passe by that way. <sup>29</sup> And behold, they cryed out, saying, What haue wee to doe with thee, Iesus thou Sonne of God? Art thou come hither to torment vs before the time?

<sup>30</sup> And there was a good way off from them, an herd of many swine, feeding. <sup>31</sup> So the deuils besought him, saying, If thou cast vs out, suffer vs to goe away into the herd of swine. <sup>32</sup> And he said vnto them, Goe. And when they were come out, they went into the herd of swine: and behold, the whole herd of swine ranne violently downe a steepe place into the Sea, and perished in the waters. <sup>33</sup> And they that kept them, fled, and went their wayes into the cite, and told euery thing, and what was befallen to the possessed of the deuils. <sup>34</sup> And behold, the whole cite came out to meet Iesus: and when they saw him, they besought him that hee would depart out of their coasts.

9. AND hee entred into a ship, and passed ouer, and came into his owne cite.

<sup>2</sup> καὶ ἰδὼν, προσέφερον αὐτῷ παραλυτικὸν ἐπὶ κλίνης βεβλημένον· καὶ ἰδὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὴν πίστιν αὐτῶν εἶπε τῷ παραλυτικῷ, 'Θάρσει, τέκνον, ἀφέωται <sup>3</sup> σοι αἱ ἁμαρτίαι σου.' <sup>4</sup> Καὶ ἰδὼν, τινὲς τῶν γραμματέων εἶπον ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, 'Οὗτος βλασφημεῖ.' Καὶ ἰδὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὰς ἐνθυμήσεις αὐτῶν εἶπεν, 'Ἰνα τί ὑμεῖς ἐνθυμείσθε ποιηρὰ ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις ὑμῶν; <sup>5</sup> τί γὰρ ἔστιν εὐκοπώτερον, εἰπεῖν, 'Ἀφέωται <sup>6</sup> σοι αἱ ἁμαρτίαι· ἢ εἰπεῖν, 'Ἐγειρε καὶ περιπάτει; <sup>7</sup> ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε, ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς ἀφίειν ἁμαρτίας,' (τότε λέγει τῷ παραλυτικῷ,) 'Ἐγερθεὶς ἄρον σου τὴν κλίνην, καὶ ἵπαγε εἰς τὸν οἶκόν σου.' Καὶ ἐγερθεὶς ἀπῆλθεν εἰς τὸν οἶκον αὐτοῦ. <sup>8</sup> ἰδόντες δὲ οἱ ὄχλοι <sup>9</sup> ἐθαύμασαν, καὶ ἐδόξασαν τὸν Θεόν, τὸν δόντα ἐξουσίαν τοιαύτην τοῖς ἀνθρώποις. <sup>10</sup> Καὶ παράγων ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐκείθεν εἶδεν ἄνθρωπον καθήμενον ἐπὶ τῷ τελώ-

<sup>2</sup> Alex. τοῦτον παραλυτικόν.

<sup>3</sup> Alex. = εὐαρίσ.

<sup>4</sup> Rec. eos.

<sup>5</sup> Rec. ἱσμοῦ.

<sup>6</sup> Alex. ἰσοδόμησαν.

WICLIF—1380.

<sup>2</sup> & he thei brought to him a man sike in palse, liggynge in a bedde; & ihesus sawe the feith of hem; & seid to the man sike in palse; some haue thou trust? thi synnes ben forgyuen to thee. <sup>3</sup> & lo summe of the scribes; seiden with ynnre hem self; this blasphemeth. <sup>4</sup> & whanne ihesus hadde seen her thoughtis; he seide; wherto thenke ye yuel thingis in youre hertis? <sup>5</sup> what is it lighte to seyn thi synnes ben forgyuen to thee; ether to seyn; rise thou walke? <sup>6</sup> but that ye wite that mannes some hath power to forgyve synnes in erthe; thanne he seide to the sike man in palse; rise up; & take thi bedde; & go in to thine hous; <sup>7</sup> and he arose; & wente in to his hous; <sup>8</sup> and the people seyng drede; & glorified god; that had suchre power to men.

<sup>9</sup> And whanne ihesus passid fro thens; he sawe a man mathew by name sittynge in a tollbothe; and he seide to hym; se thou me; and he roos; & folowid him. <sup>10</sup> & it was don the while he sette at the mete in the hous; lo many puppilycans; & synful men camen; seten at the mete with ihesus; & esse disciples.

<sup>11</sup> and farisies saien; & seiden to hise disciples; whi etith your master with puppilycans; & synful men? <sup>12</sup> & ihesus herd and seide; a lorde is not nedeful to men that faren well; but to men that ben yuel at esse; <sup>13</sup> but go ye; and lerne what it is. I wole mercy; and sacrifice; for I cam not to clype ryful men; but synful men.

<sup>14</sup> Thanne the disciples of iohann camen to hym; & seiden; whi we and farisies fasten ofte; <sup>15</sup> but thi disciples fasten not? & ihesus seid to hem; whether the sones of the spouse make mowne; as long as the spouse is with hem; but dayes comen comen. Whanne the spouse schal be taken

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>2</sup> And lo, they brought to him a man sicke of the palse, lyinge in his bed. And when Iesus sawe the feith of them, he sayd to the sicke of the palse; some be of good cheere; thy synnes be forgyuen the. <sup>3</sup> And beholde certeyne of the scribes sayd in them selves; this man blasphemeth. <sup>4</sup> And when Iesus sawe their thoughtes; he sayd; wherfore thinke ye evill in youre hertes? <sup>5</sup> Whether ys eysy to saye; thy synnes be forgyuen the; or to saye; arise and walke? <sup>6</sup> That ye maye knowe that the sonne of man hath power to forgyve synnes in erth; then sayd he vnto the sicke of the palse; arise; take vp thy bed; and go home to thine housse. <sup>7</sup> And he arose and departed to his awne housse. <sup>8</sup> And when the people sawe it; they marvelled and glorified god which had geven suchre power to men.

<sup>9</sup> And as Iesus passed forth from thence; he sawe a man syt a receyvinge of custome named Mathew; and sayd to him; folowe me. And he arose and folowed him. <sup>10</sup> And it came to passe; as he sat at meate in the housse; beholde many publicans and synners came and sate downe also with Iesus and hys disciples.

<sup>11</sup> When the Pharises sawe that; they sayd to hys disciples; why eateth youre master with publicans and synners? <sup>12</sup> Wher Iesus herde that; he sayde vnto them; The whole neade not the phisicion; but they that are sicke. <sup>13</sup> Goo and learne; what that meaneth; I have pleasure in mercy; and not in offerynge. For I am not come; to call the rightewes; but the synners to repentance.

<sup>14</sup> Then came the disciples of Iohn to hym; sayynge; why do we and the Pharises fast ofte; but thy disciples fast not? <sup>15</sup> And Iesus sayde vnto them; Can the widdowes chylidren moune as long as the brydegrome is with them? The tyme will come; when the brydegrome shalbe

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>2</sup> and beholde; they brought to hym a man sycke of the palse; lyinge in a bed. And when Iesus sawe the fayth of them; he sayde vnto the sycke of the palse; sonne; be of good cheare; thy synnes be forgyuen the. <sup>3</sup> And beholde; certayne of the Scribes sayde with in them selues; this man blasphemeth. <sup>4</sup> And when Iesus sawe their thoughtes; he sayde; Wherfore thyncke ye euill in youre hartes? <sup>5</sup> Whether is easer to saye; thy synnes be forgyuen the; or to saye; arise and walke? <sup>6</sup> But that ye maye knowe; that the sonne of man hath power to forgyve synnes in erth; then saith he vnto the sicke of the palse; arise; take vp thy bed; and go vnto thine housse. <sup>7</sup> And he arose; & departed to his housse. <sup>8</sup> But the people that sawe it; marvelled; and glorified God; which had geven such power vnto men.

<sup>9</sup> And as Iesus passed forth from thence; he sawe a man (named Mathew) syttyng at the reccate of custome; and he sayeth vnto hym; folowe me. And he arose; & folowed hym. <sup>10</sup> And it came to passe; as Iesus sat at meate in his housse; beholde; many Publicyans also and synners that came; sat downe with Iesus and hys disciples.

<sup>11</sup> And when the Pharises sawe it; they sayd vnto hys disciples; why eateth youre master with publicans and synners? <sup>12</sup> But when Iesus heard that; he sayde vnto them; They that be stronge; neade not the phisyeyon; but they that are sicke. <sup>13</sup> Goo ye rather and learne what that meaneth. I will haue mercy; and not sacrifice. For I am not come to call the ryghtewes; but synners to repentance.

<sup>14</sup> Then came the Discyples of Iohn vnto him; saying; why do we and the Pharises fast; for the most parte; but thy disciples fast not? <sup>15</sup> And Iesus sayd vnto them; can the brydegromes chylidren moune; as long as the brydegrome is with them? But the dayes wyl come; when the bryde-

ἐπιπέσει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
<sup>2</sup> ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
<sup>3</sup> ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
<sup>4</sup> ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
<sup>5</sup> ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
<sup>6</sup> ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
<sup>7</sup> ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
<sup>8</sup> ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
<sup>9</sup> ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
<sup>10</sup> ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
<sup>11</sup> ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
<sup>12</sup> ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
<sup>13</sup> ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
<sup>14</sup> ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου
<sup>15</sup> ἵνα δὲ εἰδῆτε ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου

ιον, Ματθαῖον λεγόμενον, καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, ‘Ἀκολούθει μοι.’ καὶ ἀναστὰς ἠκολούθησεν αὐτῷ. <sup>10</sup> Καὶ ἐγένετο αὐτοῦ ἀνακειμένου ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ, καὶ ἰδού, πολλοὶ τελῶναι καὶ ἁμαρτωλοὶ ἐλθόντες συναρέκειντο τῷ Ἰησοῦ καὶ τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ. <sup>11</sup> καὶ ἰδόντες οἱ Φαρισαῖοι εἶπον τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, ‘Διὰ τί μετὰ τῶν ‘τελωνῶν καὶ ἁμαρτωλῶν ἐσθίει ὁ διδάσκαλος ὑμῶν;’ <sup>12</sup> Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἀκούσας εἶπεν ἑαυτοῖς, | ‘Ὁὐ χρεῖαν ἔχουσιν οἱ ἰσχύοντες ἰατροῦ, ἀλλ’ οἱ κακῶς ἔχοντες. <sup>13</sup> πορευθέντες δὲ μάθετε τί ἐστίν, “Ὁ Ἐλεον| θέλω, καὶ οὐ θυσίαν.” οὐ γὰρ ἦλθον καλέσαι δικαίους, ἀλλ’ ἁμαρτωλοὺς εἰς μετάνοιαν.’ | <sup>14</sup> Τότε προσέρχονται αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ Ἰωάννου, λέγοντες, ‘Διὰ τί ἡμεῖς καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι νηστεύομεν πολλὰ, οἱ δὲ μαθηταὶ σου οὐ νηστεύουσιν;’ <sup>15</sup> Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ‘Μὴ δύνανται οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ νυμφῶνος πενθεῖν, ἐφ’ ὅσον μετ’ αὐτῶν ἐστίν ὁ νυμ-

* Alex. = αὐτοῖς.

* Alex. Δεος.

* Alex. = εἰς μετάνοιαν.

GENEVA — 1557.

<sup>2</sup> And lo, they brought to him a man sycke of the palsy, lying in his bed. And Iesus seying their fayeth, sayed to the sicke of the palsy: sonne be of good cheare, thy synnes be foreguen thee. <sup>3</sup> And beholde, certaine of the Scribes sayed with them selues, this man blasphemeth. <sup>4</sup> And when Iesus saw their thoghtes, he sayed, Wherefore thynke ye euil thinges in your hartes?

<sup>5</sup> For whether is it easier to say, thy synnes are foreguen thee: or to say, arise and walke? <sup>6</sup> And that ye may know that the sonne of man hath power to forgeue synnes in earth: (then sayed he vnto the sycke of the palsy), Arise, take vp thy bed, and go home to thine house. <sup>7</sup> And he arose, and departed to his own house. <sup>8</sup> And when the people saw it they marueyled, and glorified God whych had geuen such power to me. <sup>9</sup> And as Iesus passed forth from thence, he saw a man sytting at the receyte of custome named Matthew, and said to him Follow me. And he arose, and folowed him.

<sup>10</sup> And it came to passe as Iesus sate at meat in his house, beholde many Publicans & sinners that came thither, sate down also wyth Iesus and his disciples. <sup>11</sup> When the Pharises saw that, they sayed to his disciples, Why eateth your master with Publicans and sinners? <sup>12</sup> And when Iesus heard that, he sayed vnto them, The whole nede not a physicion, but they that are sicke. <sup>13</sup> Go ye rather and learne what that meaneth: I wil haue mercie, and not sacrifice. For I am not come to call the righteous but the sinners to repentance.

<sup>14</sup> Then came the disciples of Iohn to him, saying, Why do we and the Pharises fast oft: and thy disciples fast not? <sup>15</sup> And Iesus sayed vnto them, Can the wedding children mourne as long as the bridegrome is with them? But the dayes wil

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>2</sup> And behold they brought to him one sicke of the palsey lying in bedde. And Iesus seeing their faith, said to the sicke of the palsey, Haue a good hart sonne, thy synnes are forguien thee.

<sup>3</sup> And behold certaine of the Scribes sayd vwithin them selues, He blasphemeth. <sup>4</sup> And Iesus seeing their thoughtes, said, Wherefore thinke ye euil in your hartes? <sup>5</sup> Whether is easier, to say, thy synnes are forguien thee: or to say, Arise and vwalke? <sup>6</sup> But that you may know that the Sonne of man hath power in earth to forgieue synnes, (then sayd he to the sicke of the palsey), Arise, take vp thy bedde, and goe into thy house. <sup>7</sup> And he arose, and vwent into his house. <sup>8</sup> And the multitudes seeing it, vvere afrayd, and glorified God that gaue such power to men.

<sup>9</sup> And vwhen Iesus passed forth from thence, he savv a man sitting in the custome-house, named Matthew: And he sayth to him, Follow me. And he arose vp, and folovved him. <sup>10</sup> And it came to passe as he vvas sitting at meate in the house, behold many Publicans and sinners came, and sate dovvrne vwith Iesus and his Disciples. <sup>11</sup> And the Pharisees seeing it, sayd to his Disciples: vwhy doth your Master eate vwith Publicans & sinners? <sup>12</sup> But Iesus hearing it, sayd: They that are in health, neede not a physicion, but they that are ill at ease. <sup>13</sup> But go your vvayes and learne vwhat it is, I euil mercie, and not sacrifice. For I am not come to cal the iust, but sinners.

<sup>14</sup> Then came to him the Disciples of Iohn, saying, vwhy do vve and the Phariseses fast oft, but thy Disciples do not fast? <sup>15</sup> And Iesus sayd to them, Can the children of the bridegrome mourne, as long as the bridegrome is vwith them? But the dayes vvill come vwhen the bride-

AUTHORISED — 1611.

<sup>2</sup> And behold, they brought to him a man sick of the palsey, lying on a bed: and Iesus seeing their faith, said vnto the sicke of the palsey, Son, be of good cheere, thy synnes be forguien thee. <sup>3</sup> And behold, certaine of the Scribes said within them selues, This man blasphemeth. <sup>4</sup> And Iesus knowing their thoughts, said, Wherefore thinke yee euill in your hearts? <sup>5</sup> For whether is easier to say, Thy synnes be forguien thee: or to say, Arise, and walke? <sup>6</sup> But that yee may know that the sonne of man hath power on earth to forgieue synnes, (Then saith hee to the sicke of the palsey) Arise, take vp thy bed, and goe vnto thine house. <sup>7</sup> And he arose, and departed to his house. <sup>8</sup> But when the multitudes saw it, they maruelled, & glorified God, which had giuen such power vnto men.

<sup>9</sup> And as Iesus passed fourth from thence, he saw a man named Matthew, sitting at the receit of custome: and he saith vnto him, Follow me. And he arose and followed him.

<sup>10</sup> And it came to passe, as Iesus sate at meate in the house, behold, many publicanes and sinners, came and sate downe with him and his Disciples.

<sup>11</sup> And when the Pharisees saw it, they said vnto his disciples, Why eateth your master with publicanes & sinners? <sup>12</sup> But when Iesus heard that, hee said vnto them, They that bee whole neede not a Physician, but they that are sicke. <sup>13</sup> But goe ye and learne what that meaneth, I will haue mercy and not sacrifice: for I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.

<sup>14</sup> Then came to him the disciples of Iohn, saying, Why doe we and the Pharisees fast oft, but thy disciples fast not? <sup>15</sup> And Iesus sayd vnto them, Can the children of the bride-chamber mourne, as long as the bridegrome is with them? But the dayes will come when the bridegrome

‘ φίλος; ἐλεύσονται δὲ ἡμέραι ὅταν ἀπαρθῆ ἀπ’ αὐτῶν ὁ νυμφίος, καὶ τότε νη-‘ στεύσουσιν. <sup>16</sup> οὐδεὶς δὲ ἐπιβάλλει ἐπίβλημα ῥάκους ἀγράφου ἐπὶ ἱματίῳ παλαιῷ.
 ‘ ἀρεὶ γὰρ τὸ πλήρωμα αὐτοῦ ἀπὸ τοῦ ἱματίου, καὶ χεῖρον σχίσμα γίνεται.
 ‘ <sup>17</sup> οὐδὲ βάλλουσιν οἶνον νέον εἰς ἀσκοὺς παλαιούς· εἰ δὲ μῆγε, ῥήρουνται οἱ
 ‘ ἀσκοί, καὶ ὁ οἶνος ἐκχέεται, καὶ οἱ ἀσκοὶ ἀπολούνται· ἀλλὰ βάλλουσιν οἶνον ‘ νέον εἰς ἀσκοὺς καινοὺς, καὶ ἁμφότεροι συντηροῦνται.’ <sup>18</sup> Ταῦτα αὐτοῦ λα-‘ λούντος αὐτοῖς, ἰδοὺ, ἄρχων ἔεις ἐλθὼν προσκύνει αὐτῷ λέγων, ‘ Ὅτι ἡ θυγά‘ τηρ μου ἄρτι ἐτελεύτησεν· ἀλλὰ ἐλθὼν ἐπίθες τὴν χεῖρά σου ἐπ’ αὐτήν, καὶ ‘ ζῆσεται.’ <sup>10</sup> Καὶ ἐγερθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἠκολούθησεν αὐτῷ καὶ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ.
<sup>20</sup> Καὶ ἰδοὺ, γυνὴ αἰμορροῦσα δώδεκα ἔτη, προσελθοῦσα ὀπισθεν, ἤψατο τοῦ
 κρασπέδου τοῦ ἱματίου αὐτοῦ· <sup>21</sup> ἔλεγε γὰρ ἐν ἑαυτῇ, ‘ Ἐὰν μόνου ἄψωμαί τοῦ

ῥ. Rec. ἀμώστια.

ῥ. Rec. ἰθῶν.

WICLIF—1380.

aweie fro hem; ⁊ thanne thei schul faste, <sup>16</sup> and no man puttith a cloute of boistous clooth in to an old clothing, for it doith awei the fulnes of the clothe, and a worse brekyng is made. <sup>17</sup> nether men putte newe wyne in to olde botels; els the botels ben to brokun ⁊ destried, and the wyne schodde out; but men putten newe wyne in to newe botels: and bothe ben kepte.

<sup>18</sup> Whilis that ihesus spake these thingis to hem: lo a prince came, ⁊ worshipid hym and seide, lord my dougter is now deed: but come thou and putte thin hond on hir: and sche schal lyeve. <sup>19</sup> and ihesus roos ⁊ hise discipulis: ⁊ sueden hym. <sup>20</sup> and lo to a womman that had the blodid fluxe twelwe yer: nygd bihynde and touchid the hemme of his clothe. <sup>21</sup> for sche seide with ynne hir silf, if I touche onnli the cloth of him: I schal be saaf. <sup>22</sup> and ihesus turned ⁊ saie hir and seide, dougter haue thou trist, thi feith hath made the saaf; and the womman was hool fro that our.

<sup>23</sup> and whanne ihesus cam in to the hous of the prince and saie mynystrelis and the puple makynge noise: <sup>24</sup> he seide, go ye awei; for the damysel is not deed: but slepeth; and thei scorneden hym. <sup>25</sup> and whanne the folk was putte out: he wente
 in to heold hir hond; and the damysel roos; <sup>26</sup> and this fame wente out in to al that lond.

<sup>27</sup> And whanne ihesus pas-ide fro thennes, two blind men crynge sueden hym and seiden, thou some of dauth haue merci on us? <sup>28</sup> and whanne he cam in to the hous: the blynde men camen to hym; and ihesus seid to hem, what wolten ye that I do to you? and thei seiden, lord:
 that oure ijen ben opened; and ihesus seide, blyuen ye, that I mai do this thing to you? thei seiden to hym, the lord.
<sup>29</sup> thanne he touchid hir ijen; and seide,

⁊ houts a puce. boistous, rough or hard. swolen, full about. nether; in time nigh. ijen, eyes. trist, confidence.

TYNDALE—1534.

taken from them; and then shall they faste. <sup>16</sup> Noo man peeth and olde garment with a peece of newe cloothe.
 For then taketh he awaye the peece agayne from the garment; and the rent ys made greater. <sup>17</sup> Nether do men put newe wyne into olde vessels; for then the vessels breake; and the wyne runneth out; and the vessels perysse. But they powre newe wyne into newe vessels; and so are both saved togeder.

<sup>18</sup> Whye he thus spake vnto them; be-holde they came a certayne ruler; and worshipped him saynge: my doghter is euen now deceased; but come and lay thy honde on her; and she shall liue. <sup>19</sup> And ihesus arose and folowed hym with hys discipulis. <sup>20</sup> And beholde, a woman which was diseased with an yssue of bloude .xii.
 yeres; came behynde hym and toched the hem of hys vesture. <sup>21</sup> For she sayd in her silfe: yf I maye toche but euen his vesture only; I shalbe safe. <sup>22</sup> Then ihesus tourned him about; and behelde her sayynge: Doughter be of good comforte; thy faith hath made the safe. And she was made whole euen that same houre.

<sup>23</sup> And when ihesus came into the rulers housse; and sawe the minstrels and the people raging; <sup>24</sup> he sayde vnto them:
 Get you hence; for the mayde is not deed;
 but slepeth. And they laughed hym to scorne. <sup>25</sup> Assone as the people were put forth; he went in and toke her by the honde; and the mayde arose. <sup>26</sup> And this was noysed through out all that lande.

<sup>27</sup> And as ihesus departed thence; two blynde men folowed hym crying and sayynge: O thou sonne of David; haue mercy on vs. <sup>28</sup> And when he was come to house; the blynd came to hym; And ihesus sayde vnto them: Beleue ye that I am able to do this? And they sayde vnto hym: ye Lorde. <sup>29</sup> Then touchid he their eyes; saynge: acordynge to youre faythe;

CRANMER—1539.

grome shalbe taken from them, and then shall they fast. <sup>16</sup> No man putteth a peece of new cloth in an olde garment. For then taketh he awaye the peece from the garment, and the rent is made worse.
<sup>17</sup> Nether do men put new wyne in to olde bottels: els the bottels breake, and the wyne runneth out, and the bottels perysh.
 But they putt new wyne into new bottels, and both are saued togeder.

<sup>18</sup> Whye he thus spake vnto them, be-holde, there came a certayne ruler, and worshipped him, saying: my daughter is euen now diseased, but come and laye thy hand vpon her, ⁊ she shall lyeve.
<sup>19</sup> And ihesus arose, and folowed him, and (so dyd) his discipulis. <sup>20</sup> and beholde, a woman which was diseased with an yssue of bloude twelwe yeres, came behynde him, and touchid the hemme of his vesture. <sup>21</sup> For she sayd within her selfe: yf I maye touche but enen hys vesture only, I shalbe safe. <sup>22</sup> But ihesus tourned hym aboute, and when he sawe her, he sayde: Doughter, be of good comforte, thy fayth hath made the safe.
 And the woman was made whole, euen that same time.

<sup>23</sup> And when ihesus came into the rulers house, and sawe the minstrels, and the people makynge a noyse, <sup>24</sup> he sayde vnto them: get you hence, for the mayde is not deed but slepeth. And they laughed him to scorne. <sup>25</sup> But when the people were put forth, he went in, ⁊ toke her by the hande, (and sayde: damsell, arise.) and the damsell arose. <sup>26</sup> And this noyse wente abroade into all that lande.

<sup>27</sup> And when ihesus departed thence, two blynde men folowed hym, crynge ⁊ sayynge: O thou sonne of David, haue mercy on vs. <sup>28</sup> And when he was come into the house, the blynde came to him. And ihesus sayeth vnto them: Beleue ye, that I am able to do this? They saye vnto hym: Lorde, we beleue. <sup>29</sup> Then touchid he their eyes, saynge: accordinge to

‘ ἵματίου αὐτοῦ, σωθήσομαι.’ <sup>22</sup> ‘ Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἐπιστραφεὶς καὶ ἰδὼν αὐτὴν εἶπε, ‘ Θάρσει, θύγατερ· ἡ πίστις σου σέσωκέ σε.’ Καὶ ἐσώθη ἡ γυνὴ ἀπὸ τῆς ὥρας ἐκείνης. <sup>23</sup> Καὶ ἔλθων ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν τοῦ ἄρχοντος, καὶ ἰδὼν τοὺς ἀλητὰς καὶ τὸν ὄχλον θορυβούμενον, <sup>24</sup> λέγει αὐτοῖς, ‘ Ἀναχωρεῖτε· οὐ γὰρ ἀπέθαυε τὸ κοράσιον, ἀλλὰ καθεῦδει.’ Καὶ κατεγέλων αὐτοῦ. <sup>25</sup> Ὅτε δὲ ἐξεβλήθη ὁ ὄχλος, εἰσελθὼν ἐκράτησε τῆς χειρὸς αὐτῆς, καὶ ἠγέρθη τὸ κοράσιον. <sup>26</sup> καὶ ἐξῆλθεν ἡ φήμη αὐτῆ εἰς ὅλην τὴν γῆν ἐκείνην. <sup>27</sup> Καὶ παράγοντι ἐκείθεν τῷ Ἰησοῦ, ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ δύο τυφλοὶ, κράζοντες καὶ λέγοντες, ‘ Ἐλέησον ἡμᾶς, υἱὲ Δαυὶδ.’ <sup>28</sup> Ἐλθόντι δὲ εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν, προσῆλθον αὐτῷ οἱ τυφλοὶ, καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ‘ Πιστεῦτε ὅτι δύναμαι τοῦτο ποιῆσαι;’ Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, ‘ Ναί, Κύριε.’ <sup>29</sup> Τότε ἤψατο τῶν ὀφθαλμῶν αὐτῶν, λέγων, ‘ Κατὰ τὴν πίστιν

<sup>4</sup> Alex. Ἰαγην.

GENEVA — 1557.

come when the brydegrome shalbe taken from them, and then shal they fast. <sup>16</sup> No man peeth an olde garment with a peece of new clothe and vndressed. For that same peece taketh away something from the garment, and the cutte is made worse. <sup>17</sup> Nether do men put new wine into olde vessels: for then the vessels breake, and the wyne runneth out, and the vessels perishe: but they powre new wine into new vessels, and so are both preserued together.

<sup>18</sup> While he thus spake vnto them, behold ther came a certayne ruler, and worshipped him, saying, My daughter is euen now deceased, but come and lay thy hand on her, and she shal lye. <sup>19</sup> And Iesus arose and folowed him and his disciples.

<sup>20</sup> (And behold a woman which was diseased wyth an issue of bloud. 12. yeres, came behind him, and touched the heme of his vesture. <sup>21</sup> For she sayd in her selfe, If I may touche but euen his vesture onely, I shalbe safe. <sup>22</sup> Then Iesus turned him about, and seeyng her, did say, Daughter, be of good comfort, thy faith hath made thee safe. And the woman was made whole euen that same houre.) <sup>23</sup> Now when Iesus came into the rulers house, and saw the mynstrels and the people making noyse, <sup>24</sup> He sayed vnto them, Get you hense, the mayde is not dead, but sleapeth. And they laughed him to scorn. <sup>25</sup> And when the people were put forth he went in, and toke her by the hand, and the mayde arose. <sup>26</sup> And this was noysed through out all that lande.

<sup>27</sup> As Iesus departed thence, two blynd men folowed him crying, and saying, O thou sonne of Daud, haue mercie vpon vs.

<sup>28</sup> And when he was come into the house, the blynde came to him: and Iesus said vnto them, Beleue ye that I am able to do this? And they sayd vnto him, yea Lord. <sup>29</sup> Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your fayth be it vnto

RHEIMS — 1582.

grome shal be taken away from them, and then they shal fast. <sup>16</sup> And no body putteth a peece of ravy cloth to an old garment. For he taketh away the peeceing therof from the garment, and there is made a greater rent. <sup>17</sup> Neither do they put new wine into old bottles. Otherwise the bottles breake, and the wine runneth out, and the bottles perish. But new wine they put into new bottles: and both are preserued together.

<sup>18</sup> As he vvas speaking this vnto them, behold a certayne Governour approached, and adored him, saying, Lord, my daughter is euen now dead: but come, lay thy hand vpon her, and she shal lye. <sup>19</sup> And Iesus rysing vp folowed him, and his Disciples. <sup>20</sup> And behold a vwoman vvith vvas troubled vvith an issue of bloud twelve yeres, came behind him, and touched the heme of his garment.

<sup>21</sup> For she sayd vvithin her self, If I shal touch only his garment: I shal be safe. <sup>22</sup> But Iesus turning and seeing her, sayd, Haue a good hart daughter, thy faith hath made the safe. And the vwoman became vvhole from that houre. <sup>23</sup> And vvhen Iesus vvas come into the house of the Governour, & savv mynstrels and the multitude keeping a sturre, <sup>24</sup> he sayd, Depart: for the vvenche is not dead, but sleapeth. And they laughed him to skorne. <sup>25</sup> And vvhen the multitude vvas put forth, he entred in, and held her hand. And the mayde arose. <sup>26</sup> And this bruite vvnt forth into al that cuntrye.

<sup>27</sup> And as Iesus passed forth from thence, there folowed him tvvo blinde men crying and saying, Haue mercie on vs, O sonne of Daud. <sup>28</sup> And vvhen he vvas come to the house, the blynde came to him. And Iesus sayth to them, Do you beleue, that I can doe this vnto you? They say to him, Yea, Lord. <sup>29</sup> Then he touched their eyes, saying, According shal bee taken from them, and then shall they fast. <sup>16</sup> No man putteth a piece of a new cloth vnto an olde garment: for that which is put in to fill it vp, taketh from the garment, & the rent is made worse. <sup>17</sup> Neither doe men put new wine into old bottles: else the bottles breake, and the wine runneth out, and the bottles perish: but they put new wine into new bottles, and both are preserued.

AUTHORISED — 1611.

<sup>18</sup> While hee spake these things vnto them, beholde, there came a certaine ruler and worshipped him, saying, My daughter is euen now dead: but come, and lay thy hand vpon her, and she shall lye. <sup>19</sup> And Iesus arose, and followed him, and so did his disciples. <sup>20</sup> (And behold, a woman which was diseased with an issue of blood twelue yeres, came behinde him, and touched the heme of his garment. <sup>21</sup> For she said within her selfe, If I may but touch his garment, I shall be whole. <sup>22</sup> But Iesus turned him about, and when he saw her, he said, Daughter, bee of good comfort, thy faith hath made thee whole. And the woman was made whole from that houre.) <sup>23</sup> And when Iesus came into the rulers house, and saw the minstrels and the people making a noise, <sup>24</sup> He said vnto them, Giue place, for the mayd is not dead, but sleepeth. And they laughed him to scorne. <sup>25</sup> But when the people were put forth, he went in, and tooke her by the hand, and the mayd arose. <sup>26</sup> And the fame hereof went abroad into all that land.

<sup>27</sup> And when Iesus departed thence, two blinde men followed him, crying, and saying, Thou sonne of Daud, haue mercie on vs. <sup>28</sup> And when he was come into the house, the blinde men came to him: and Iesus saith vnto them, Beleue ye that I am able to doe this? They said vnto him, Yea, Lord. <sup>29</sup> Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your fayth, bee

<sup>a</sup> Or, raw, or vnwrought cloth. <sup>b</sup> Or, this fame.

‘ ὑμῶν γεννηθήτω ὑμῖν.’ <sup>30</sup> Καὶ ἀνεῳχθησαν αὐτῶν οἱ ὀφθαλμοί· καὶ ἐνεβριμήσατο αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, λέγων, ‘ Ὁράτε μηδεὶς γινωσκέτω.’ <sup>31</sup> Οἱ δὲ ἐξελθόντες διεφύημισαν αὐτὸν ἐν ὅλῃ τῇ γῇ ἐκείνῃ.

<sup>32</sup> Αὐτῶν δὲ ἐξερχομένων, ἰδὼν, προσήνεγκαν αὐτῷ ἄνθρωπον κωφὸν δαιμονιζόμενον. <sup>33</sup> καὶ ἐκβληθέντος τοῦ δαιμονίου, ἐλάλησεν ὁ κωφός· καὶ ἐθαύμασαν οἱ ὄχλοι, λέγοντες, ‘ Οὐδέποτε ἐφάνη οὕτως ἐν τῷ Ἰσραὴλ.’ <sup>34</sup> Οἱ δὲ Φαρισαῖοι ἔλεγον, ‘ Ἐν τῷ ἄρχοντι τῶν δαιμονίων ἐκβάλλει τὰ δαιμόνια.’

<sup>35</sup> Καὶ περιήγεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὰς πόλεις πάσας καὶ τὰς κόμας, διδάσκων ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς αὐτῶν, καὶ κηρύσσων τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τῆς βασιλείας, καὶ θεραπεύων πᾶσαν νόσον καὶ πᾶσαν μαλακίαν. <sup>36</sup> ἰδὼν δὲ τὸς ὄχλους, ἐσπλαγχνίσθη περὶ αὐτῶν, ὅτι ἦσαν ἑσकुλμένοι καὶ ἐρμυμένοι ὡσεὶ πρόβατα μὴ ἔχοντα

<sup>1</sup> Rec. + ὄτι.

<sup>2</sup> Rec. et Const. + ἐν τῷ λαῷ.

<sup>3</sup> Rec. ἐκλυμένοι.

WICLIFFE—1380.

aftir ȝoure feith : he it don to ȝou, <sup>30</sup> and the ȝen of hem weren opened, and ihesus thretened hem : and seide, se ȝe that no man wite, <sup>31</sup> but thei ȝeden out and defameden hym thorȝ al that lond,

<sup>32</sup> ⁊ when thei werun gon out : lo thei brouȝt to hym a doumbe man hauȝne a deuyl, <sup>33</sup> and whanne the deuyl was cast out : the doumbe man spak, ⁊ the puple wondrid and seide, it hath not been thus in Israel, <sup>34</sup> but the farisies seiden, in the prince of denels he castith out deuils.

<sup>35</sup> And ihesus wente aboute alle the citees and castels : teching in synagogis of hem, and prechyng the gospel of the kyngdom : and helyng euery languor, and euery siknesse, <sup>36</sup> and he saie the puple, and hadde ruthe on hem : for thei weren traucilid and liggyng as schep not hauȝne a scheperd, <sup>37</sup> thanne he seide to hise discipulis, sothli there is myche ripe corne, but fewe werke men,

<sup>38</sup> therfor preie ȝe the lord of the ripe corne : that he sende werkmen in to hise ripe corne.

10. AND whanne hes twelue discipulis werun clepid togidre : he ȝaf to hem power of vnclene spiritis : to cast hem out of men, and to hele euery languore and siknesse.

<sup>2</sup> And then ben the names of the twelue apostlis, the first symound that is named Petir ⁊ Andrewe, his brother, James of zebede : <sup>3</sup> and Iohn his brother, philip and Bartilmew, thomas and mathew puppican, and James alfeȝe ⁊ thaddee, <sup>4</sup> Symound canane, and Iudas scarioth, that bitraid crist

<sup>1</sup> ȝen, ȝra. wite. Anou. ȝeden, weni. defameden, spreid abroad his fame. castels, townes. ruthe, pity. luyngre, luyng. sothli, truly. clepid, called.

TYNDALE—1534.

he it vnto you. <sup>30</sup> And their eyes were opened. And Iesus charged them saying: Se that no man knowe of it. <sup>31</sup> But they assone as they were departed, spreed abroad his name through oute all the londe.

<sup>32</sup> As they went out, beholde, they brought to hym a dome man possessed of a devyll. <sup>33</sup> And as sone as the devyll was cast out, the domme spake: And the people merueled, saying: it was neuer so sene in Israel. <sup>34</sup> But the Pharises sayde: he casteth oute devyls, by the power of the chefe devyll.

<sup>35</sup> And Iesus went about all cities and townes, teacheyng in their synagoges and preaching the glad tidinges of the kyngdome, and healinge all manner sicknes and desense amonge the people. <sup>36</sup> But when he sawe the people, he had compassion on them, because they were pyned awaye, and scattered abroade, even as shepe havyng no shepherd.

<sup>37</sup> Then sayde he to hys disciples: the heruest is greates; but the laborers are fewe. <sup>38</sup> Wherefore praye the Lorde of the harvest, to sende forthe laborers into hys harvest.

10. AND he called his .xii. disciples vnto hym, and gave them power over vnclene sprites: to cast them oute, and to heale all manner of sicknesses, and all manner of diseases.

<sup>2</sup> The names of the .xii. Apostles are these. The fyrst, Simon called also Peter; and Andrew his brother. James the sonne of zebede, and Ihon his brother. <sup>3</sup> Philip and Bartlemew. Thomas and Mathew the Publican. James the sonne of Alphe, and Lebbeus otherwys called Taddes. <sup>4</sup> Simon of Cane, and Iudas Iscarioth, which also betrayed hym.

CRANMER—1539.

youre fayth be it vnto you. <sup>30</sup> And their eyes were opened. And Iesus charged them, saying: Se that no man knowe of it? <sup>31</sup> But they, when they were departed, spreed abroade his name in all that lande.

<sup>32</sup> As they went out, beholde they brought to him a domme man possessed of a devyll. <sup>33</sup> And when the devyll was cast out, the domme spake. And the people merueyled, saying: it was neuer so sene in Israel. <sup>34</sup> But the Pharises sayde: he casteth out denyls, thorow the prynce of denels.

<sup>35</sup> And Iesus went about all cyties and townes, teaching in their synagoges: and preaching the glad tydings of the kyngdome, and healyng euery syknes and euery dyscense amonge the people. <sup>36</sup> But when he sawe the people: he was moued with compassion on them, because they were destitute, and scattered abroade, euen as shepe hauyng no shepherd.

<sup>37</sup> Then sayeth he vnto his disciples, the heruest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are feaw. <sup>38</sup> Praye ye therefore the lorde of the haruest, that he will sende labourers into his haruest.

10. AND whan his .xii. disciples were called vnto him, he gauē them power agaynst vnclene spretes, to cast them out, ⁊ to heale all manner of sicknesse, and all manner of dyscense.

<sup>2</sup> The names of the .xii. Apostles are these: The fyrst, Simon which is called Peter: ⁊ Andrew his brother: James the sonne of zebedee, ⁊ Iohn his brother:

<sup>3</sup> Philip ⁊ Bartholomew: Thomas and Mathew, which had bene a Publican. James the sonne of Alphe, and Lebbeus (whose synname was Taddes) <sup>4</sup> Simon of Canaan, and Iudas Iscarioth, which also betrayed him.

ποιμένα. <sup>37</sup> τότε λέγει τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, ‘Ὁ μὲν θερισμὸς πολλὺς, οἱ δὲ ἐργάται ὀλίγοι.’ <sup>38</sup> δεήθητε οὖν τοῦ κυρίου τοῦ θερισμοῦ, ὅπως ἐκβάλῃ ἐργάτας εἰς τὸν θερισμὸν αὐτοῦ.’

X. Καὶ προσκαλεσάμενος τοὺς δώδεκα μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ, ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς ἐξουσίαν πνευμάτων ἀκαθάρτων, ὥστε ἐκβάλλειν αὐτὰ, καὶ θεραπεύειν πᾶσαν νόσον καὶ πᾶσαν μαλακίαν. <sup>2</sup> Τῶν δὲ δώδεκα ἀποστόλων τὰ ὀνόματά ἐστι ταῦτα· πρῶτος Σίμων ὁ λεγόμενος Πέτρος, καὶ Ἀνδρέας ὁ ἀδελφὸς αὐτοῦ· Ἰάκωβος ὁ τοῦ Ζεβεδαίου, καὶ Ἰωάννης ὁ ἀδελφὸς αὐτοῦ· <sup>3</sup> Φίλιππος, καὶ Βαρθολομαῖος· Θωμᾶς, καὶ Ματθαῖος ὁ τελώνης· Ἰάκωβος ὁ τοῦ Ἀλφαιού, καὶ Λεββαῖος ὁ ἐπικληθεὶς Θαδδαῖος· <sup>4</sup> Σίμων ὁ <sup>w</sup> Κανανήτης, καὶ Ἰούδας <sup>x</sup> ὁ Ἰσκαριώτης ὁ καὶ παραδόνς αὐτόν.

<sup>w</sup> Alex. Καναθαῖος.<sup>x</sup> Alex. = ὁ.

GENEVA—1557.

you. <sup>30</sup> And their eyes were opened: and Iesus charged them, saying, See that no man knowe of it.

<sup>31</sup> But they as sone as they were departed, spred abroad his name throughout all the lande.

<sup>32</sup> As they went out, beholde, they brought to him a dumme man possessed of a deuyll. <sup>33</sup> And as sone as the deuyll was cast out, the dumme spake: then the people marueyled, saying, The like was neuer sene in Israel. <sup>34</sup> But the Pharises sayd, he casteth out deuilles, through the prince of deuilles. <sup>35</sup> And Iesus went about all cities and townes, teaching in their Synagoges, and preaching the glad tidynges of the kyngdome, and healyng all manner of sycknes and disease among the people.

<sup>36</sup> But when he saw the people, he had compassion vpon them, because they were destitute and scatered abroad, euen as sheepe hauing no shepherde.

<sup>37</sup> Then said he to his disciples, The harvest is great, but the labourers are fewe. <sup>38</sup> Wherefore, pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth labourers into his harvest.

10. AND he called his twelue disciples, & gaue them power agaynst vncleane spirites, to cast them out, and to heale all manner of sicknesse, and disease.

<sup>2</sup> The names of the twelue Apostles are these. The first is Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother: Iames the sonne of Zebede, and Iohn his brother. <sup>3</sup> Philip and Bartlemew: Thomas, and Matthew which had bene a Publican: Iames the sonne of Alphe, and Lebbeus whose surname was Thaddeus: <sup>4</sup> Simon of Canan, and Iudas Iscariote, which also betrayed him.

RHEIMS—1582.

to your faith, be it done to you. <sup>30</sup> And their eyes were opened, and Iesus threatened them, saying, See that no man know it. <sup>31</sup> But they went forth, & bruited him in all that countrey.

<sup>32</sup> And when they were gone forth, behold they brought him a dumme man, possessed with a diuel. <sup>33</sup> And after the diuel was cast out, the dumme man spake, and the multitudes marueled saying, Neuer was the like sene in Israel. <sup>34</sup> But the Pharisees sayd, In the prince of diuels he casteth out diuels.

<sup>35</sup> And Iesus went about all the cities, and townes, teaching in their synagoges, and preaching the Gospel of the kingdom, and curing every disease, and every infirmite.

<sup>36</sup> And seeing the multitudes, he pitied them because they were vexed, and lay like sheepe that haue not a shepherd.

<sup>37</sup> Then he sayth to his Disciples, The harvest surely is great, but the workemen are few. <sup>38</sup> Pray therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth workemen into his harvest.

10. AND hauing called his twelue Disciples together, he gaue them power ouer vncleane spirites, that they should cast them out, and should cure al manner of disease, and al manner of infirmite.

<sup>2</sup> And the names of the twelue Apostles be these: the first, Simon vwho is called Peter, and Andrew his brother, <sup>3</sup> Iames of Zebedee, and Iohn his brother, Philip and Bartlemev, Thomas and Mathevny the publican, and Iames of Alpheus, and Thaddeus, <sup>4</sup> Simon Cananæus, and Iudas Iscariote, vwho also betrayed him.

AUTHORISED—1611.

it vnto you. <sup>30</sup> And their eyes were opened: and Iesus straitly charged them, saying, See that no man know it. <sup>31</sup> But they, when they were departed, spread abroad his fame in all that countrey.

<sup>32</sup> As they went out, beholde, they brought to him a dumme man possessed with a deuyll. <sup>33</sup> And when the deuyll was cast out, the dumme spake, and the multitudes marueiled, saying, It was neuer so sene in Israel. <sup>34</sup> But the Pharisees said, He casteth out the deuils through the prince of the deuils.

<sup>35</sup> And Iesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their Synagogues, and preaching the Gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sicknesse, and every disease among the people. <sup>36</sup> But when he saw the multitudes, he was moued with compassion on them, because they <sup>a</sup> fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheepe hauing no shepherd.

<sup>37</sup> Then saith he vnto his disciples, The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few. <sup>38</sup> Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest.

10. AND when hee had called vnto him his twelue disciples, he gaue them power <sup>β</sup> against vncleane spirites, to cast them out, and to heale all manner of sicknesse, and all manner of disease. <sup>2</sup> Now the names of the twelue Apostles are these: The first, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother, Iames the sonne of Zebedee, and Iohn his brother:

<sup>3</sup> Philip, and Bartholomew, Thomas, and Matthew the Publicane, Iames the sonne of Alpheus, and Lebbeus, whose surname was Thaddeus: <sup>4</sup> Simon the Cananite, and Iudas Iscariot, who also betrayed him.

<sup>a</sup> Or, were tyred and lay downe.<sup>β</sup> Or, ouer.

<sup>5</sup> Τούτους τοὺς δώδεκα ἀπέστειλεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, παραγγέλων αὐτοῖς, λέγων, Ἐἰς ὄδον ἐθνῶν μὴ ἀπέλθητε, καὶ εἰς πόλιν Σαμαρειτῶν μὴ εἰσέλθητε· <sup>6</sup> πορεύεσθε δὲ μᾶλλον πρὸς τὰ πρόβατα τὰ ἀπολλοῦτα οἴκου Ἰσραὴλ. <sup>7</sup> πορευόμενοι δὲ κηρύσσετε, λέγοντες, Ὅτι ἤγγικεν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν. <sup>8</sup> ἀσθενοῦντας θεραπεύετε, <sup>9</sup> λεπροὺς καθαρίζετε,| δαιμόνια ἐκβάλλετε. δωρεὰν ἐλάβετε, δωρεὰν δότε. <sup>9</sup> Μὴ κτήσησθε χρυσόν, μηδὲ ἄργυρον, μηδὲ χαλκὸν εἰς τὰς ζῶνας ὑμῶν. <sup>10</sup> μὴ πήραν εἰς ὄδον, μηδὲ δύο χιτῶνας, μηδὲ ὑποδήματα, μηδὲ ῥάβδους·| ἄξιός γάρ ὁ ἐργάτης τῆς τροφῆς αὐτοῦ ἔστιν. | <sup>11</sup> Εἰς ἣν δ' ἂν πόλιν ἢ κώμην εἰσέλθητε, ἐξετάσατε τίς ἐν αὐτῇ ἄξιός ἐστι· κἀκεῖ μεῖναιτε, ἕως ἂν ἐξέλθητε. <sup>12</sup> εἰσερχόμενοι δὲ εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν, ἀσπάσασθε αὐτήν. <sup>13</sup> καὶ εἰ μὲν ἦ ἡ οἰκία ἄξια, ἐλθέτω ἡ εἰρήνη ὑμῶν ἐπ' αὐτήν· εἰ δὲ μὴ ἦ ἄξια, ἡ εἰρήνη ὑμῶν πρὸς

<sup>7</sup> Rec. λεπροὺς καθαρίζετε, νεκροὺς ἰγίρειτε. Alex. νεκροὺς ἰγίρειτε, λεπροὺς καθαρίζετε. <sup>9</sup> Rec. ῥάβδων. <sup>11</sup> Alex. = ἰστιν.

WICLIF—1380.

<sup>5</sup> Thesus sente these twelue; τ commaundid hem and seide; go 3e not in to the weye of hethen men: and entre 3e not in to the citeis of samaritanis: <sup>6</sup> but rather go 3e to the schepe of the hous of israel that han perischid. <sup>7</sup> And go 3e, and preche 3e and seie that the kingdom of heuenes schal nyȝ: <sup>8</sup> hele 3e sike meȝ, reise 3e deed men clense 3e mysels, cast 3e out deuells; freli 3e han takun: freli 3e seȝ. <sup>9</sup> Nile 3e weeld gold ne siluer ne money in ȝoure girdlis. <sup>10</sup> not a scrippe in the weye, nether two cootis, nether schon nether a ȝerd, for a werk man is worthi his mete, <sup>11</sup> in to what euer cite or castel 3e schuln entre: axe 3e who theyrinne is worthi, τ there dwelle 3e til 3e gon out. <sup>12</sup> and whanne 3e goen in to an hous, grete 3e it, and seien: pees to this hous, <sup>13</sup> and if thilke hous be worthi: ȝoure pees schal come on it, but if that hous be not worthi, ȝoure pees schal turne agen to ȝou. <sup>14</sup> and who euer rese-cyueth not ȝou nether heerith ȝour wordis: go 3e for that hous or citee, and sprynge of the dust of ȝoure feet, <sup>15</sup> truli I seie to ȝou, it schal be more suffrable to the lond of men of sodom and of Gommor, In the dai of iudgement: thanne to thilke cite. <sup>16</sup> lo I sende ȝou as sheep in the myddil of wolues; therfor be 3e sliȝe as serpentis: and symple as dowues, <sup>17</sup> but be 3e ware of men, for thei schuln take ȝou in counceils: and thei schuln bete ȝou in her synagogis, <sup>18</sup> τ to meȝris or precidentis τ to kynȝis 3e schuln be led for me, in witnessynge to hem, and to hethen men: <sup>19</sup> but whanne thei taken ȝou, nyle 3e thanke hou or what thing 3e schuln speke, for it schal be ȝoun to ȝou in that our what 3e schuln speke. <sup>20</sup> for it ben not 3e that speken: but the spirit of ȝoure fadir that spekith in ȝou. <sup>21</sup> τ the

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>5</sup> These .xii. sent Iesus; and commaunded them sayinge: Go not in to the wayes that leade to the gentylis, and in to the citeis of the Samaritanis enter ye not. <sup>6</sup> But go rather to the lost shepe of the housse of Israel. <sup>7</sup> Go and preach sayinge: that the kyngdome of heven is at hande. <sup>8</sup> Heale the sick, clense the lepers, rayse the deed, caste oute the devils. Frely ye have receaved, freely geve agayne. <sup>9</sup> Posses not golde, nor silver, nor brasse yn youre gerdels, <sup>10</sup> nor yet scrip towards your iorney: nether two cotes, nether shues, nor yet a staffe. For the workman is worthy to have his meate. <sup>11</sup> In to whatsoever cite or toune ye shall come, enquire who ys worthy yn it, and there abyde till ye goo thence.

<sup>12</sup> And when ye come in to an housse salute the same. <sup>13</sup> And yf of the housse be worthy, youre peace shall come upon it. But yf it be not worthy, youre peace shall retourne to you agayne.

<sup>14</sup> And whosoever shal not receave you, nor will heare youe preachynge: when ye departe oute of that housse or that cite, shake of the duste of youre fete. <sup>15</sup> Truly I say vnto you: it shalbe easier for the londe of zodoma and Gommora in the daye of iudgement, then for that cite.

<sup>16</sup> Beholde I sende you forthe as shepe amonge wolues. Be ye therfore wyse as serpentis, and innocent as doves. <sup>17</sup> Beware of men; for they shal deliyer you vp to the counceils, and shall scourge you yn their synagoges. <sup>18</sup> And ye shall be brought to the heed rulers and kynȝes for my sake, in wintes to them and to the gentylis.

<sup>19</sup> But when they deliyer you vp, take no thought how or what ye shall speake; for yt shalbe geuen you, even in that same houre, what ye shall saye. <sup>20</sup> For it is not ye that speke; but the sprite of your father which speaketh in you.

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>5</sup> Iesus sent forth these twelue in nombre, whom he commaunded, sayinge. Go not into the waye of the gentylis, and into the ctytie of the Samaritanis enter ye not. <sup>6</sup> But goo rather to the lost shepe of the house of Israel. <sup>7</sup> Go and preache, saying: The kyngdome of heauen is at hand: <sup>8</sup> Heale the sycke, clense the lepers, rayse the deed, cast out devyls. Frely ye have receaved: geue frely. <sup>9</sup> Possesse not golde nor syluer, nor brasse in youre purses, <sup>10</sup> nor yet scrip towards your iorney: nether two cotes, nether shoes, nor yet a rodde.

For the workman is worthy of his meate. <sup>11</sup> But to whatsoever cite or towne ye shall come, enquire who is worthy in it, and there abyde tyll ye go thence. <sup>12</sup> And when ye come into an house, salute the same. <sup>13</sup> And yf of the house be worthy, let your peace come vpon it. But yf it be not worthy, let your peace retourne to you agayne.

<sup>14</sup> And whosoener shal not receave you, nor will heare youe preachynge: when ye departe oute of the house or that ctytie shake of the duste of your fete. <sup>15</sup> Uerely I saye vnto you: it shalbe easyer for the land of zodoma and Gommora in the daye of iudgement, then for that ctytie.

<sup>16</sup> Beholde, I sende you forth, as shepe amonge wolues. Be ye therfore wyse as serpentis and innocent as doves. <sup>17</sup> But be ware of men, for they shal deliyer you vp to the counceils, and shall scourge you in their synagoges. <sup>18</sup> And ye shall be brought to the heed rulers, and kynȝes, for my sake, in wintes to them and to the Gentylis.

<sup>19</sup> But when they deliyer you vp, take ye no thought, how or what ye shall speake: for it shalbe geuen you, euen in that same houre, what ye shall speake. <sup>20</sup> For it is not ye that speke, but the spryte of your father which speaketh in you. <sup>21</sup> The brother shall deliyer vp the

<sup>5</sup> Draw near. mysels, lepers. ȝeur, give. nyle, not. worthi, posses. scrippe, a small bag or wallet. schon, shous. a ȝerd, a stick to stand in walking or for defence. castel, town. thilke, that. sliȝe, sly or cunning. dowues, doves. meȝris, magors. ȝouwen, given.

ἡμᾶς ἐπιστραφήτω. <sup>14</sup> καὶ ὃς ἐὰν μὴ δέξηται ἡμᾶς, μηδὲ ἀκούσῃ τοὺς λόγους ἡμῶν, ἔξερχόμενοι τῆς οἰκίας ἢ τῆς πόλεως ἐκείνης, ἐκτινάξατε τὸν κοινορτὸν τῶν ποδῶν ὑμῶν. <sup>15</sup> ἄμην λέγω ὑμῖν, ἀνεκτότερον ἔσται γῆ Σοδομων καὶ ἡ Γο-μόρρων ἐν ἡμέρᾳ κρίσεως, ἢ τῇ πόλει ἐκείνῃ. <sup>16</sup> Ἰδοὺ, ἐγὼ ἀποστέλλω ἡμᾶς ὡς πρόβατα ἐν μέσῳ λύκων· γίνεσθε οὖν φρόνιμοι ὡς οἱ ὄφεις, καὶ ἀκέραιοι ὡς αἱ περιστεραί. <sup>17</sup> προσέχετε δὲ ἀπὸ τῶν ἀνθρώπων· παραδόσουσι γὰρ ὑμᾶς εἰς συνδῆρια, καὶ ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς αὐτῶν μαστιγώσουσιν ὑμᾶς· <sup>18</sup> καὶ ἐπὶ ἡγεμόνας δὲ καὶ βασιλεῖς ἀχθήσεσθε ἕνεκεν ἐμοῦ, εἰς μαρτύριον αὐτοῖς καὶ τοῖς ἔθνεσιν. <sup>19</sup> ὅταν δὲ <sup>d</sup> παραδιδῶσιν ὑμᾶς, μὴ μεριμνήσητε πῶς ἢ τί λαλήσητε· δοθήσεται γὰρ ὑμῖν ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ὥρᾳ τί λαλήσετε· <sup>20</sup> οὐ γὰρ ὑμεῖς ἐστε οἱ λα-λούντες, ἀλλὰ τὸ Πνεῦμα τοῦ πατρὸς ὑμῶν τὸ λαλοῦν ἐν ὑμῖν. <sup>21</sup> Παραδόσει

<sup>b</sup> Alex. + Ἀλγόντες, Εἰρήνη τῆ οἴκῃ τούτῳ.

<sup>c</sup> Alex. Γομόρρας.

<sup>d</sup> Alex. παραδόσουσι.

GENEVA—1557.

<sup>5</sup> These twelve did Iesus send, and commanded them, saying, <sup>6</sup> Go not into the way of the Gentils, and into the cities of the Samaritans, enter ye not: But go rather to the lost shepe of the house of Israel. <sup>7</sup> Go and preach, saying, the kyngdome of heauen is at hand. <sup>8</sup> Heale the sycke, cleanse the lepers, raysse the dead, cast out the deuites: Freely ye haue receaued, freely geue. <sup>9</sup> Possesse not golde, nor siluer, nor brasse in your gyrdels <sup>10</sup> Nor yet scrip toward your iorney, neither two cotes, neither shoes, nor a staffe. For the workman is worthy to haue his meate.

<sup>11</sup> And into what so euer citie or towne ye shal come, enqyre who is worthy in it, and there abide tyl ye go thence. <sup>12</sup> And when ye come into an house, salute the same. <sup>13</sup> And if the house be worthy, let your peace come vpon it. But if it be not worthy, let your peace returne to you againe. <sup>14</sup> And whosoever shal not receaue you, nor wil heare your preaching: When ye departe out of that house, or that citie, shake out the dust of your fete. <sup>15</sup> Truly I say vnto you, it shalbe easier for the land of Sodoma and Gomorra in the day of iudgment, then for that citie.

<sup>16</sup> Beholde I send you as shepe among wolues: Be ye therefore wise as serpentes, and innocēt as doves. <sup>17</sup> But beware of men, for they shal deliuer you vp to the Councils, & shal scourge you in their Synagoges. <sup>18</sup> And ye shal be brought to the head rulers and kynges for my sake, in wytnes to them, and to the Gentils.

<sup>19</sup> But when they deliuer you vp, take no thought how or what ye shal speake: for it shalbe geuen you, euen in that same houre, what ye shal say. <sup>20</sup> For it is not ye that speake, but the spirit of your father which speaketh in you. <sup>21</sup> And the brother shal betray the brother to death,

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>5</sup> These twelue did Iesus send: commanding them, saying, Into the vvvay of the Gentiles goe ye not, and into the cities of the Samaritans enter ye not: <sup>6</sup> but goe rather to the sheepe that are perished of the house of Israel. <sup>7</sup> And go preaching, saying, That the kyngdom of heauen is at hand. <sup>8</sup> Cure the sicke, raise the dead, cleanse the lepers, cast out diuells: gratis you haue receiued, gratis giue ye. <sup>9</sup> Do not possesse gold, nor siluer, nor money in your purses: <sup>10</sup> nor a skrippe for the vvay, neither two coates, neither shoes, neither rodde. For the vvorkeman is vvorthie of his meate.

<sup>11</sup> And into vvhatsoever citie or tovne you shal enter, inquire vvho in it is vvorthie: and there tarie til you goe forth. <sup>12</sup> And vvhen ye enter into the house, salute it, saying, Peace be to this house. <sup>13</sup> And if so be that house be vvorthie, your peace shal come vpon it, but if it be not vvorthie: your peace shal returne to you.

<sup>14</sup> And vvhatsoever shal not receiue you, nor heare your vvordes: going forth out of the house or the citie shake of the dust from your feete. <sup>15</sup> Amen I say to you, it shal be more tolerable for the land of the Sodomites and Gomorrhians in the day of iudgement, then for that citie.

<sup>16</sup> Behold I send you as sheepe in the middes of vvolves. Be ye therefore vvise as serpents, and simple as doves. <sup>17</sup> And take heede of men. For they vvill deliuer you vp in Councils, and in their synagoges they vvill scourge you. <sup>18</sup> And to Presidents and to Kinges shal you be ledde for my sake, in testimonie to them and the Gentiles. <sup>19</sup> But vvhen they shal deliuer you vp, take no thought hovv or vvhat to speake: for it shal be giuen you in that houre vvhat to speake. <sup>20</sup> For it is not you that speake, but the spirit of your father that speaketh in you. <sup>21</sup> The brother also shal deliuer vp the brother

AUTHORISED—1611.

<sup>5</sup> These twelue Iesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Goe not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not: <sup>6</sup> But go rather to the lost sheepe of the house of Israel. <sup>7</sup> And as yee goe, preach, saying, The kyngdome of heauen is at hand: <sup>8</sup> Heale the sicke, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out deuils: freely ye haue receiued, freely giue. <sup>9</sup> Provide neither gold, nor siluer, nor brasse in your purses: <sup>10</sup> Nor scrip for your iourney, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves: (for the workeman is worthy of his meate.)

<sup>11</sup> And into whatsoever citie or towne ye shall enter, inquire who in it is worthy, and there abide till ye goe thence. <sup>12</sup> And when ye come into an house, salute it. <sup>13</sup> And if the house be worthy, let your peace come vpon it: but if it be not worthy, let your peace returne to you. <sup>14</sup> And whosoever shall not receiue you, nor heare your words: when ye depart out of that house, or citie, shake off the dust of your feet. <sup>15</sup> Verely I say vnto you, it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrhia in the day of iudgment, then for that citie.

<sup>16</sup> Behold, I send you forth as sheepe in the midst of wolues: be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves. <sup>17</sup> But beware of men: for they will deliuer you vp to the Councils, and they will scourge you in their Synagogues. <sup>18</sup> And ye shall be brought before Governours and Kings for my sake, for a testimonie against them, and the Gentiles.

<sup>19</sup> But when they deliuer you vp, take no thought, how or what ye shall speake, for it shall be giuen you in that same houre what ye shall speake. <sup>20</sup> For it is not ye that speake, but the Spirit of your Father, which speaketh in you. <sup>21</sup> And the brother shall deliuer vp the brother to death,

‘ δὲ ἀδελφὸς ἀδελφὸν εἰς θάνατον, καὶ πατὴρ τέκνον· καὶ ἐπαναστήσονται τέκνα
 ‘ ἐπὶ γονεῖς, καὶ θανατώσουσιν αὐτούς. <sup>22</sup> καὶ ἔσεσθε μισούμενοι ὑπὸ πάντων ‘ διὰ τὸ ὄνομά μου· ὁ δὲ ὑπομείνας εἰς τέλος, οὗτος σωθήσεται. <sup>23</sup> ὅταν δὲ διώ‘ κωσιν ὑμᾶς ἐν τῇ πόλει ταύτῃ, φεύγετε εἰς τὴν ἄλλην. ἀμὴν· γὰρ λέγω ὑμῖν, ‘ οὐ μὴ τελήσητε τὰς πόλεις τοῦ Ἰσραὴλ, ἕως ἂν ἔλθῃ ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου.
 ‘ <sup>24</sup> Οὐκ ἔστι μαθητὴς ὑπὲρ τὸν διδάσκαλον, οὐδὲ δούλος ὑπὲρ τὸν κύριον αὐτοῦ.
 ‘ <sup>25</sup> ἄρκετὸν τῷ μαθητῇ ἵνα γένηται ὡς ὁ διδάσκαλος αὐτοῦ, καὶ ὁ δούλος ὡς ὁ
 ‘ κύριος αὐτοῦ. εἰ τὸν οἰκοδεσπότην Βεελζεβούλ ἑπέκαλεσαν, | πόσω μᾶλλον
 ‘ τοὺς οἰκιακοὺς αὐτοῦ; <sup>26</sup> Μὴ οὖν φοβηθῆτε αὐτούς· οὐδὲν γὰρ ἔστι κεκαλυμ‘ μένον, ὃ οὐκ ἀποκαλυφθήσεται· καὶ κρυπτόν, ὃ οὐ γνωσθήσεται. <sup>27</sup> ὃ λέγω ‘ ὑμῖν ἐν τῇ σκοτίᾳ, εἶπατε ἐν τῷ φωτί· καὶ ὃ εἰς τὸ οὐς ἀκούετε, κηρύξατε ἐπὶ

‘ Alex. = γὰρ. / Rec. ἰκαλῶσαν.

WICLIF—1380.

brother schal take the brother in to to deeth; and the fadir the sone, and sones schulu rise agens fadir and modir; ⁊ schulu turnente hem bi deeth. <sup>22</sup> and ⁊e schulu be in hate to alle men for my name, but he that schal dwelle stille in to the ende: schal be saaf.

<sup>23</sup> And whanne they persue ⁊ou in this citee, fle ⁊e in to an other, truli I seie to ⁊ou, ⁊e schulu not ende the citees of Israel: to for that maunes some come:
<sup>24</sup> the disciple is not aboute the maistr, ne the serraunt aboute his lord: <sup>25</sup> it is Inow to the disciple, that he be as his maistr, ⁊ to the serraunt as his lord:
 if they han clepid the houshonde man belsabub: hou myeche more his hous-hoold meyne? <sup>26</sup> Therfor drede ⁊e not hem, for nothing is hid that schal not be schewid and nothing is priuy that schal not be wist:

<sup>27</sup> that thing that I seye to ⁊ou in derknessis, seie ⁊e in the lijt: and preche ⁊e on housis: that thing that ⁊e heren in the cere:

<sup>28</sup> ⁊ nyle ⁊e drede hem that sleen the bodi: for they mouen not sle the soule but rather drede ⁊e hym that mai lese bothe bodi and soule in to helle: <sup>29</sup> whethir two sparowis ben not seeld for oon halpeny:
 and oon of hem schal not falle on the erthe without ⁊our fadir? <sup>30</sup> and al the heris of ⁊oure hecd ben noumbrid: <sup>31</sup> ther-for nyle ⁊e drede, ⁊e ben better thamne
 many sparowis:

<sup>32</sup> therfor cueri man that schal know-leche me bifor men: I schal knowleche him bifor my fadir that is in heuenes:
<sup>33</sup> but he that schal denye me bifor men:
 I schal denye hym bifor my fadir that is in heuenes. <sup>34</sup> Nyle ⁊e deme that I can to sende pees in to the erthe: I came not to sende pees: but swerde: <sup>35</sup> for I can to departe a man agens his fadir:

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>21</sup> The children shall betraye the brother to deeth, and the father the sonne. And the children shall aryse agaynste their fathers and mothers, and shall put them to deethe: <sup>22</sup> and ye shall be hated of all men for my name. But he that endureth to the ende, shalbe saved.

<sup>23</sup> When they persecute you in one cite, flye in to another. I tel you for a treuth, ye shall not fynyshe alle the cities of Israel, tyll the sonne of man be come.
<sup>24</sup> The disciple ys not above hys master:
 nor yet the serraunt above his lorde. <sup>25</sup> It is ynough for the disciple to be as hys master ys, and that the serraunt be as his lorde ys, yf they have called the lorde of the house beelzebub: how moche more shall they call them of his housholde so?
<sup>26</sup> Feare them not therfore.

There is no thing so close, that shall not be openned; and no thing so hyd, that shall not be known.

<sup>27</sup> What I tel you in dereknes, that speake ye in lyght. And what ye heare in the eare, that preache ye on the house toppes.

<sup>28</sup> And feare ye not them which kylle the body, and be not able to kylle the soule.
 But rather feare hym, which is able to destroye bothe soule and body into hell.
<sup>29</sup> Are not two sparowes solde for a farthing? And one of them shall not lyght on the grounde, with out youre fadir. <sup>30</sup> And now are all the heeres of youre heedis nombred. <sup>31</sup> Feare ye not therfore:
 ye are of more value then many sparowes.

<sup>32</sup> Who soever therfore shall knowledge me before men, hym will I knowledge also before my father, which is in heuen.
<sup>33</sup> But whoso ever shall denye me before men, hym will I also denye before my father, which is in heuen.

<sup>34</sup> Think not, that I am come to sende peace into the erth. I came not to send peace, but a swerde. <sup>35</sup> For I am come to set a man at varyaunce agaynst his father, and the daughter agaynst hyr

CRANMER—1539.

brother to deeth, ⁊ the father the sonne.
 And the children shall aryse agaynst their fathers and mothers, and shall put them to deeth: <sup>22</sup> ⁊ ye shall be hated of all men for my name sake. But he that endureth to the ende, shalbe saued.

<sup>23</sup> But when they persecute you in this citty, flye ye into another. For verely I save vnto you: ye shall not go thorow all the cittyes of Israel, tyll the sonne of man be come. <sup>24</sup> The disciple is not aboute the master: nor the serraunt aboute his Lord. <sup>25</sup> It is ynough for the disciple, that he be as his master is, ⁊ that the serraunt be as his Lorde is. If they have called the Lord of the house, Beelzebub: how moche more
 shall they call them of his housholde so?
<sup>26</sup> Feare them not therfore. For there is nothyng close, that shall not be opened:
 and nothyng hyd, that shall not be known.

<sup>27</sup> What I tel you in darknes, that speake ye in lyght. And what ye heare in the eare, that preache ye on the house toppes.

<sup>28</sup> And feare ye not them which kylle the body, but are not able to kill the soule.
 But rather feare him, which is able to
 destroye bothe soule and body into hell.
<sup>29</sup> Are not two litle sparowes sold for a farthyng? And one of them shall not lyght on the ground with out youre fadir: <sup>30</sup> Yee, euen all the heeres of your head are nombred. <sup>31</sup> Feare ye not therfore:
 ye are of more value then many
 sparowes.

<sup>32</sup> Euery one therfore that shall knowledge me before men, him will I knowledge also before my father, which is in heauen. <sup>33</sup> But whosoever shall denye me before men, him will I also denye before my father, which is in heauen.

<sup>34</sup> Think not that I am come to sende peace into the erth. I came not to send peace, but a swerd. <sup>35</sup> For I am come to set a man at varyaunce agaynst his father, ⁊ the daughter agaynst her mother.

ἄπειρος, against. ἰσως, enough. μετρητος, servants of family. ἢ ἢ, not. wist, known. ἠνε, destroy. deme, wily.

τῶν δωματίων. <sup>25</sup> καὶ μὴ <sup>9</sup> φοβήσθε| ἀπὸ τῶν <sup>h</sup> ἀποκτενόντων| τὸ σῶμα, τὴν δὲ ψυχὴν μὴ δυναμένον ἀποκτείνει· φοβήθητε δὲ μᾶλλον τὸν δυνάμενον καὶ ψυχὴν καὶ σῶμα ἀπολέσαι ἐν γένει. <sup>26</sup> οὐχὶ δύο στρουθία ἀσσαρίον πωλεῖται ;
 καὶ ἐν ἐξ αὐτῶν οὐ πσεῖται ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν ἀνευ τοῦ πατρὸς ἡμῶν. <sup>30</sup> ἡμῶν δὲ καὶ
 αἱ τρίχες τῆς κεφαλῆς πᾶσαι ἠριθμημέναι εἰσί. <sup>31</sup> μὴ οὖν <sup>k</sup> φοβηθῆτε| πολλῶν
 στρουθίων διαφέρετε ἡμεῖς. <sup>32</sup> Πᾶς οὖν ὅστις ὁμολογήσει ἐν ἐμοὶ ἔμπροσθεν τῶν ἀνθρώπων, ὁμολογήσω καὶ ἐν αὐτῷ ἔμπροσθεν τοῦ πατρὸς μου τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς. <sup>33</sup> ὅστις δ' ἂν ἀρνήσῃται με ἔμπροσθεν τῶν ἀνθρώπων, ἀρνήσομαι αὐτὸν καὶ ἐμπροσθεν τοῦ πατρὸς μου τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς. <sup>34</sup> Μὴ νομίσητε ὅτι ἦλθον βαλεῖν εἰρήνην ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν· οὐκ ἦλθον βαλεῖν εἰρήνην, ἀλλὰ μάχαιραν.
<sup>35</sup> ἦλθον γὰρ διχάσαι ἄνθρωπον κατὰ τοῦ πατρὸς αὐτοῦ, καὶ θυγατέρα κατὰ τῆς

† Rec. φοβηθήτε.

h Rec. ἀποκτενόντων.

i Const. τὴν ψυχὴν καὶ τὸ σῶμα.

k Alex. φοβίσητε.

GENEVA — 1557.

RHEIMS — 1582.

AUTHORISED — 1611.

and the father the sonne, and the children shal arise against their fathers and mothers, and shal cause them to dye. <sup>25</sup> And ye shalbe hated of al men for my name ;
 but he that endureth to the ende, shalbe saued.

<sup>25</sup> When they persecute you in one citie, flye into another : for verely I say vnto you, ye shal not finish all the cities of Israel, tyl the sonne of man become. <sup>26</sup> The disciple is not aboue his master : nor yet the seruaut aboue his lord.

<sup>25</sup> It is inough for the disciple to be as his master is, and that the seruaut be as his Lord is. If they haue called the Lord of the house Beelzebub, how muche more them of his household ? <sup>26</sup> Feare them not therefore : for there is nothinge so hid, that shal not be disclosed, and nothing so secret, that shal not be knowen.

<sup>25</sup> What I tel you in darknes, that speake ye in lyght. And what ye heare in the eare, that preach ye on the house toppes. <sup>26</sup> And feare ye not them which kil the body, but are not able to kyl the soule : but rather feare hym, which is able to destroy both soule and body in hel. <sup>29</sup> Are not two sparrows solde for an halfe pennye ?
 and one of them shal not fall on the ground without your father. <sup>30</sup> Yea, and al the heares of your heade are numbred. <sup>31</sup> Feare ye not therefore, ye are of more value then many sparrows. <sup>32</sup> Whosoever therefore shal confesse me before men, him will I confesse also before my father which is in heauen. <sup>33</sup> But whosoever shal deny me before men, him wil I also deny before
 my father which is in heauen.

<sup>34</sup> Thinke not that I am come to send peace into the earth. I came [not] to send peace, but the sword. <sup>35</sup> For I am come to set a man at variance against his father, and the daughter agaynst her mother, to death, and the father the sonne ; and the children shal rise vp agaynst the parents, and shal vvorke their death, <sup>25</sup> and you shal be odious to al men for my name.

 but he that shal perseuere vnto the end, he shal be saued.

<sup>25</sup> And vwhen they shal persecute you in this citie, flee into an other. Amen I say to you, you shal not finish all the cities of Israel, til the sonne of man come.

<sup>24</sup> The Disciple is not aboue the maister, nor the seruaut aboue his lord. <sup>25</sup> It suffiseth the disciple that he be as his maister : and the seruaut as his lord. If they haue called the goodman of the house Beelzebub, how much more them of his household ? <sup>26</sup> Therefore feare ye not them.
 For nothing is hid, that shal not be reucaled : and secreete, that shal not be knouven.

<sup>27</sup> That vvhich I speake to you in the darke, speake ye in the light : and that vvhich you heare in the eare, preach ye vpon the house toppes. <sup>28</sup> And feare ye not them that kil the body, and are not able to kil the soul : but rather feare him that can destroy both soul and body into hel.

<sup>29</sup> Are not tttwo sparovves sold for a farthing : and not one of them shal fall vpon the ground vwithout your father ?
<sup>30</sup> But your very heares of the head are al numbred. <sup>31</sup> Feare not therefore : better are you then many sparovves. <sup>32</sup> Euery one therefore that shal confesse me before men, I also vvil confesse him before my father vvhich is in heauen. <sup>33</sup> But he that shal denie me before men, I also vvil denie him before my father vvhich is in heauen. <sup>34</sup> Do not ye thinke that I came to send peace into the earth : I came not to send peace, but the svword.
<sup>35</sup> For I came to separate man agaynst his father, and the daughter agaynst her and the father the childe ; and the children shal rise vp against their parents, and cause them to be put to death. <sup>25</sup> And ye shall be hated of all men for my Names sake : but he that endureth to the end, shalbe saued. <sup>26</sup> But when they persecute you in this citie, flee ye into another : for verely I say vnto you, ye shall not<sup>a</sup> haue gone ouer the cities of Israel, till the Sonne of man be come.

<sup>24</sup> The disciple is not aboue his master, nor the seruant aboue his lord. <sup>25</sup> It is enough for the disciple that he be as his master, and the seruant as his Lord : If they haue called the Maister of the house Beelzebub, how much more shall they call them of his household ? <sup>26</sup> Feare them not therefore : for there is nothing covered, that shall not be reuiled ; and hidde, that shall not be knowen. <sup>27</sup> What I tell you in darkenesse, that speake ye in light : and what ye heare in the eare, that preach ye vpon the house tops.

<sup>28</sup> And feare not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soule : but rather feare him which is able to destroy both soule and body in hell. <sup>29</sup> Are not two Sparrowes solde for a farthing ? And one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father. <sup>30</sup> But the very haire of your head are all numbred.
<sup>31</sup> Feare ye not therefore, ye are of more value then many Sparrowes.

<sup>32</sup> Whosoever therefore shall confesse me before men, him will I confesse also before my Father which is in heauen. <sup>33</sup> But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heauen. <sup>34</sup> Thinke not that I am come to send peace on earth : I came not to send peace, but a sword. <sup>35</sup> For I am come to set a man at variance against his Father, & the daughter against her mother, ἡ μητὸς αὐτῆς, καὶ ἡ νύμφη κατὰ τῆς πενθερᾶς αὐτῆς· <sup>36</sup> καὶ ἔχθροὶ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου οἱ οἰκιακοὶ αὐτοῦ. <sup>37</sup> Ὁ φιλῶν πατέρα ἢ μητέρα ὑπὲρ ἐμὲ, οὐκ ἔστί μου ἄξιος· καὶ ὁ φιλῶν υἱὸν ἢ θυγατέρα ὑπὲρ ἐμὲ, οὐκ ἔστί μου ἄξιος· <sup>38</sup> καὶ ὃς οὐ λαμβάνει τὸν σταυρὸν αὐτοῦ καὶ ἀκολουθεῖ ὀπίσω μου, οὐκ ἔστί μου ἄξιος. <sup>39</sup> ὁ εὐρῶν τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ ἀπολέσει αὐτῆν· καὶ ὁ ἀπολέσας τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ ἔνεκεν ἐμοῦ εὐρήσει αὐτήν. <sup>40</sup> Ὁ δεχόμενος ὑμᾶς ἐμὲ δέχεται· καὶ ὁ ἐμὲ δεχόμενος δέχεται τὸν ἀποστείλαντά με. <sup>41</sup> Ὁ δεχόμενος προφήτην εἰς ὄνομα προφήτου μισθὸν προφήτου λήψεται· καὶ ὁ δεχόμενος δίκαιον εἰς ὄνομα δικαίου μισθὸν δικαίου λήψεται· <sup>42</sup> καὶ ὃς ἐὰν ποτίσῃ ἓνα τῶν μικρῶν τούτων ποτήριον ψυ-χροῦ μόνον εἰς ὄνομα μαθητοῦ, ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, οὐ μὴ ἀπολέσῃ τὸν μισθὸν αὐτοῦ.

WICLIF—1380.

and the douȝtr agens hir modir : and the sones wyf agens the housbondis modir :
 and the enemyes of a man, ben thei that ben homeli with hym.

<sup>37</sup> He that loueth fadir or modir more thanne me is not worthi to me, and he that loneth sone or douȝter ouer me : is not worthi to me : <sup>38</sup> and he that takith not his eras and sueth me : is not worthi to me. <sup>39</sup> he that fyndith his lif, schal lose it : ⁊ he that lestith his lif for me, schal fynde it : <sup>40</sup> he that reseceyueh zou reseceyueh me, and he that reseceyueh me, reseceyueh him that sente me : <sup>41</sup> he that reseceyueh a profete in the name of a profete : schal take the mede of a profete :
 and he that reseceyueh a iust man in the name of a iust man : schal take the mede of a iust man. <sup>42</sup> and who ener geueh drinke to oon of these leest a cuppe of cold water onli in the name of a disciple : truly I scie to ȝou he schal not lose his mede.

11. AND it was don whanne ihesus hadde endid : he comaundid to his twelve discipulis ⁊ passid for theus to preche and teche in the citees of hem. <sup>2</sup> But whan Iohn in boondis hadde werde the werkis of crist : he sente tweyne of hise discipulis, ⁊ seide to hym, art thou he that schal come : or we abiden an other ? <sup>4</sup> and ihesus answerid and seide to hem, go ȝe and telle agen to Iohn thoo thingis that ȝe han herd and seyn : <sup>5</sup> blinde men seen, crokid men gon, mysels ben made cleyer, deaf men heren : deed men risen agen, pore men ben taken to prechynge of the gospel : <sup>6</sup> and he is blessed that schal not lose schuandrid in me : <sup>7</sup> ⁊ whanne thei weren gon aweye : ihesus bigan to scie of Iohn to the puple, what thing wenten ye out in to desert to se ? a reed wawid abot the wynde ? <sup>8</sup> or what thing wenten ye out to se, a man clothid with softe clothus : lo thei that ben clothid with against homeli familiar, with followeth.

 sones, reward agen, again, mysels, lepers.

TYNDALE—1534.

mother, and the daughterlawe ageynst her motherlawe : <sup>36</sup> And a mannes foes shalbe they of hys owne houshold.

<sup>37</sup> He that lovith hys father, or mother more then me, is not mete for me. And he that loveth his sonne, or daughter more then me, is not mete for me. <sup>38</sup> And he that taketh not his crosse and foloweth me, ys not mete for me. <sup>39</sup> He that fyndeth hys lyfe, shall lose it : and he that losith hys lyfe for my sake, shall fynde it.

<sup>40</sup> He that receavith you, receavith me :
 and he that receavith me, receavith him that sent me. <sup>41</sup> He that receavith a prophet in the name of a prophet, shall receave a prophetes rewarde. And he that receavith a righteous man in the name of a righteous man, shall receive the rewarde of a righteous man. <sup>42</sup> And whosoever shall geve vnto one of these litle ones to drinke, a cuppe of colde water only, in the name of a disciple : I tel you of a trueth, he shall not lose his rewarde.

11. AND it came to passe when Iesus had made an ende of commaundynge his .xiiij. disciples, that he departed thence, to teache and to preache in their citees.

<sup>2</sup> When Iohn beynge in prison hearde
 the workes of Christ, he sent two of his disciples, and sayde vnto him, Art thou he that shall come : or shall we loke for another. <sup>4</sup> Iesus answered and sayde vnto them. Go and shewe Iohn what ye have hearde and sene. <sup>5</sup> The bynd ye the halt go, the lepers are cleynd : the deaf heare the deed ryse ageyne, and the glad tidynge is preached to the povre. <sup>6</sup> And happy is he that is not offended by me.

<sup>7</sup> And as they departed Iesus begane to speake vnto the people of Iohn. What for to se went ye out in to the wyldernes ?
 went ye out to se a reed shakyn with the wynde ? <sup>8</sup> other what went ye out for to se ? A man clothid in softe rayment ?
 Beholde they that weare softe clothing,

CRANMER—1539.

⁊ the daughter in lawe agaynst her mother in lawe : <sup>36</sup> And a mannes foes shalbe they that are of his awne houshold.

<sup>37</sup> He that loneth father, or mother more then me, is not worthy of me. And he that loneth sonne or daughter more then me, is not worthy of me. <sup>38</sup> And he that taketh not hys crosse and foloweth me, is not worthy of me. <sup>39</sup> He that fyndeth hys lyfe, shall lose it : and he that losyth his lyfe for my sake, shall fynde it.

<sup>40</sup> He that receaueh you, receaueh me :
 ⁊ he that receaueh me, receaueh hym that sent me. <sup>41</sup> He that receaueh a prophet in the name of a prophet, shall receave a prophetes rewarde. And he that receaueh a ryghteous man, in the name of a ryghteous man, shall receave a ryghteous mans rewarde : <sup>42</sup> And whosoeuer shall geue vnto one of these litle ones to drynke, a cuppe of colde water onely (in the name of a disciple) verely I saye vnto you : he shall not lose hys rewarde.

11. AND it came to passe, that when Iesus had made an ende of commaund-ynge hys twelve disciples, he departed thence, to teache and to preache in their cyties.

<sup>2</sup> When Iohn beynge in prison hearde
 the workes of Christ, he sent two of hys disciples, ⁊ sayde vnto him : Art thou he that shall come : or do we loke for another. <sup>4</sup> Iesus answered ⁊ sayde vnto them. Go, and shewe Iohn agayne, what ye haue heard and sene. <sup>5</sup> The bynd receaue their sight : the lame walke, the lepers are cleynd : ⁊ the deaf heare, the deed are rased vp, ⁊ the poore receaue the glad tidynge of the gospell. <sup>6</sup> And happy is he, that is not offended by me.

<sup>7</sup> And as they departed, Iesus beganne to saye vnto the people concerning Iohn.
 What went ye out in to the wyldernes to se ? A rede that is shakyn with the wynde ? <sup>8</sup> Or what went ye out for to se ?
 A man clothid in softe rayment ? Beholde : they

XI. Καὶ ἐγένετο ὅτε ἐτέλεσεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς διατάσσω τοῖς δώδεκα μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, μετέβη ἐκείθεν τοῦ διδάσκειν καὶ κηρύσσειν ἐν ταῖς πόλεσιν αὐτῶν.

<sup>2</sup> Ὁ δὲ Ἰωάννης ἀκούσας ἐν τῷ δεσμοτηρίῳ τὰ ἔργα τοῦ Χριστοῦ, πέμψας ἄνδρ<sup>1</sup> τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ, <sup>3</sup> εἶπεν αὐτῷ, <sup>4</sup> Σὺ εἶ ὁ ἐρχόμενος, ἢ ἕτερον προσδοκῶμεν; <sup>4</sup> Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, <sup>5</sup> Πορευθέντες ἀπαγγείλατε Ἰωάννῃ, ἃ ἀκούετε καὶ βλέπετε. <sup>5</sup> τυφλοὶ ἀναβλέπουσι, καὶ χωλοὶ περιπατοῦσι <sup>6</sup> λεπροὶ καθαρίζονται, καὶ κωφοὶ ἀκούουσι. <sup>6</sup> νεκροὶ ἐγείρονται, καὶ πτωχοὶ εὐαγγελίζονται. <sup>6</sup> καὶ μακάριός ἐστιν, ὃς ἐὰν μὴ σκανδαλισθῇ ἐν ἐμοί. <sup>7</sup> Τούτων δὲ πορευομένων, ἤρξατο ὁ Ἰησοῦς λέγειν τοῖς ὄχλοις περὶ Ἰωάννου, <sup>8</sup> Τι <sup>8</sup> ἐξήλθετε | εἰς τὴν ἔρημον θεάσασθαι; κάλαμον ὑπὸ ἀνέμου σαλευόμενον; <sup>8</sup> ἀλλὰ τί <sup>9</sup> ἐξήλθετε | ἰδεῖν; ἄνθρωπον ἐν μαλακοῖς ἱματίοις ἡμφιεσμένον; ἰδού,

<sup>1</sup> Alex. εἰδ.<sup>3</sup> Alex. + καὶ.<sup>6</sup> Alex. ἐξήλθατε.<sup>9</sup> Alex. ἐξήλθατε.

GENEVA — 1557.

and the daughter in lawe against her mother in lawe. <sup>36</sup> And a mans foes, shalbe they of his own householde. <sup>37</sup> He that loueth his father or mother more then me, is not mete for me. And he that loueth his sonne, or daughter more then me, is not mete for me. <sup>38</sup> And he that taketh not is crosse and foloweth after me, is not mete for me. <sup>39</sup> He that will saue his life, shall lose it: and he that loseth this life for my sake, shall saue it.

<sup>40</sup> He that receaueh you, receaueh me: and he that receaueh me, receaueh him that sent me. <sup>41</sup> He that receaueh a prophet in the name of a prophet, shal receaue a prophetes rewarde: and he that receaueh a righteous man, in the name of a righteous man shal receaue the rewarde of a righteous man. <sup>42</sup> And who so euer shal geue vnto one of these litle ons to drincke a cup of colde water onely, in the name of a Disciple: verely I say vnto you, he shal not lose his rewarde.

II. AND it came to passe that when Iesus had made an ende of commanding his twelue disciples, he departed thence to teach and to preach in their cities. <sup>2</sup> And when Iohn beyng in pryson heard the workes of Christe, he sent two of his disciples, <sup>3</sup> To saie vnto him, Art thou he that ought to come, or shall we loke for another? <sup>4</sup> And Iesus answering, sayed vnto them, Go and shewe Iohn what ye haue heard, and sene. <sup>5</sup> The blinde see, the halt go, the lepers are censed, and the deafe heare, the dead ryse agayne, and the poore receaue the Gospell. <sup>6</sup> And blessed is he that shal not be offended in me.

<sup>7</sup> And as they departed, Iesus began to speake vnto the people of Iohn: What went ye out into the wilderness to see? A reede shaken with the wynde? <sup>8</sup> But what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft rayment? Behold, they mother, and the daughter in law against her mother in law. <sup>36</sup> And a mans enemies, they of his owne householde.

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>37</sup> He that loueth father or mother more then me, is not wvorthy of me: and he that loueth sonne or daughter aboute me, is not wvorthy of me. <sup>38</sup> And he that taketh not his crosse, and foloweth me, is not wvorthy of me. <sup>39</sup> He that hath found his life, shall lose it: and he that hath lost his life for me, shal finde it.

<sup>40</sup> He that receiueh you, receiueh me: and he that receiueh me, receiueh him that sent me. <sup>41</sup> He that receiueh a Prophet in the name of a Prophet, shal receiue the reward of a prophet. and he that receiueh a iust man in the name of a iust man, shal receiue the reward of a iust man. <sup>42</sup> And whosoever shal giue drinke to one of these litle ones a cuppe of cold vwater, only in the name of a disciple, amen I say to you, he shal not lose his reward.

II. AND it came to passe: vwhen Iesus had done commaunding his twelue Disciples, he passed from thence, to teach & preach in their cities.

<sup>2</sup> And vwhen Iohn had heard in pryson the workes of Christ: sending two of his disciples, he said to him, <sup>3</sup> Art thou he that art to come, or looke vve for an other? <sup>4</sup> And Iesus making ansver said to them, Goe and report to Iohn vwhat you haue heard and seen. <sup>5</sup> The blinde see, the lame vvalke, the lepers are made cleane, the deafe heare, the dead rise againe, to the poore the Gospell is preached: <sup>6</sup> and blessed is he that shal not be scandalized in me.

<sup>7</sup> And vwhen they vvent their vvay, Iesus began to say to the multitudes of Iohn, What went you out into the desert to see? a reede shaken vvith the vvinde? <sup>8</sup> But vwhat went you out to see? a man clothed in soft garments? Behold they that are

AUTHORISED — 1611.

and the daughter in law against her mother in law. <sup>36</sup> And a mans foes shalbe they of his owne householde. <sup>37</sup> He that loueth father or mother more then me, is not worthy of me: and he that loueth sonne or daughter more then me, is not worthy of me. <sup>38</sup> And he that taketh not his crosse, and followeth after me, is not worthy of me. <sup>39</sup> He that findeth his life, shall lose it: and he that loseth his life for my sake, shall find it.

<sup>40</sup> He that receiveth you, receiveth me: and he that receiveth me, receiveth him that sent me. <sup>41</sup> He that receiveth a Prophet in the name of a Prophet, shall receive a Prophets reward: and he that receiveth a righteous man, in the name of a righteous man, shall receive a righteous mans reward. <sup>42</sup> And whosoever shall giue to drinke vnto one of these litle ones, a cup of cold water onely, in the name of a disciple, verely I say vnto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward.

II. AND it came to passe, when Iesus had made an end of commanding his twelue Disciples, he departed thence to teach and to preach in their cities. <sup>2</sup> Now when Iohn had heard in the prison the workes of Christ, he sent two of his disciples, <sup>3</sup> And said vnto him, Art thou he that should come? Or doe we looke for another?

<sup>4</sup> Iesus answered and said vnto them, Go and shew Iohn againe those things which ye doe heare and see: <sup>5</sup> The blind receive their sight, and the lame walke, the lepers are censed, and the deafe heare, the dead are raised vp, and the poore haue the Gospell preached to them. <sup>6</sup> And blessed is he, whosoener shal not be offended in me.

<sup>7</sup> And as they departed, Iesus began to say vnto the multitudes concerning Iohn, what went ye out into the wilderness to see? a reede shaken with the wind? <sup>8</sup> But what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? Behold, οὐ τὰ μαλακὰ φοροῦντες ἐν τοῖς οἴκοις τῶν βασιλείων εἰσίν· ἄλλα τί ἐξήλθετε ἰδεῖν; προφήτην; ναὶ, λέγω ὑμῖν, καὶ περισσότερον προφήτου· οὗτος γάρ ἐστι περὶ οὗ γέγραπται, “Ἰδοὺ, ἐγὼ ἀποστέλλω τὸν ἄγγελόν μου πρὸ προσώπου σου, ὃς κατασκευάσει τὴν ὁδὸν σου ἔμπροσθέν σου.” Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, οὐκ ἐγήγερται ἐν γεννητοῖς γυναικῶν μείζων Ἰωάννου τοῦ βαπτιστοῦ· ὁ δὲ μικρότερος ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τῶν οὐρανῶν μείζων αὐτοῦ ἐστιν. ἀπὸ δὲ τῶν ἡμερῶν Ἰωάννου τοῦ βαπτιστοῦ ἕως ἄρτι, ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν βιάζεται, καὶ βιασταὶ ἀρπάζουσιν αὐτήν. πάντες γὰρ οἱ προφῆται καὶ ὁ νόμος ἕως Ἰωάννου προεφήτευσαν· καὶ εἰ θέλετε δεῦξασθαι, αὐτός ἐστιν Ἡλίας ὁ μέλλων ἔρχεσθαι. ὁ ἔχων ἅπα ἀκούειν, ἀκουέτω. Τίνι δὲ ὁμοίωσω τὴν γενεὰν ταύτην; ὁμοία ἐστὶ παιδοῖς | ἑν ἀγοραῖς καθημένοις, | καὶ προσφωνοῦσι

† Rec. βασιλίων. † Rec. παύριος.

† Alex. καθημίαις ἐν ἀγ.

† Alex. ἀ προσφωνοῦντα τοὺς ἰσῆροις αὐτῶν λίγισιν.

WICLIUF—1380.

softe clothis : ben in the housis of kyngis : but what thing wenten ȝe out to se : a profete ? ȝhe I seie to ȝou ? ⁊ more thanne a profete. <sup>10</sup> For this is he of whom it is writun, lo I sende myn angel bifor thi face, that schal make redi thi weye bifor thee.

<sup>11</sup> truli I seie to ȝou : there roos noon more thanne Iohn Baptist among the children of women, but he that is lesse in the kyngdom of heuenes : is more thanne he, <sup>12</sup> and for the daies of Ioon Baptist til now : the kyngdom of heuenes suffriþ violence, ⁊ violent men rauyschen it, <sup>13</sup> for alle profetis and the lawe til to Ioon profeciden, <sup>14</sup> and if ȝe wolen resceuye : he is elie that is to come, <sup>15</sup> he that hath criis of herynge : here he.

<sup>16</sup> But to whom schal I gesse this generacion like ? it is like to children sittynge in chepyng, that crien to her peeris <sup>17</sup> and sciēn, we han sungun to ȝou : ⁊ ȝe han not dauncid, we han moorned to ȝou : and ȝe han not weild, <sup>18</sup> for Ioon cam nether etyng ne drinkynge : and thei sciēn he hath a deuil, <sup>19</sup> the sonne of man cam etyng ⁊ drinkynge : and thei sciēn lo a man a gloton and a drynker of wyne, ⁊ a frende of puppiens and of sylful men : and wisdom is iustified of her sones.

<sup>20</sup> thanne iesus bigan to seie reproof to citeis in whichē ful many vertues of hym wercn don : for thi diden not penaunce, <sup>21</sup> wo to thee corasayn, wo to thee bethsaida, for if the vertues that ben don in ȝou hadde ben don in tere ⁊ sidon : sum tyme thei badden dou penaunce in heire ⁊ aisch, <sup>22</sup> nethles I seie to ȝou it schal be lesse peyne to tere and sidon, in the dai of doom, than to ȝou, <sup>23</sup> and thou saternaum whether thou schilt be aried ip in to heuene ? thou schalt go down in to helle, for if the vertues that ben

done in corasayn, chepyng, the market, peers, fellows or equalis : vertues, powers of miracles.

TYNDALE—1534.

are in kynges houses. <sup>9</sup> But what went ye out for to se ? A prophete ? Ye I say to you, and more then a prophete. <sup>10</sup> For this is he of whom it is writtyn. Beholde, I sende my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before the.

<sup>11</sup> Verely I saye vnto you amonge the chyldren of women arose there not a gretter then Iohn the baptist. Notwithstandinge he that ys lesse in the kyngdome of heven, ys gretter then he. <sup>12</sup> From the tyme of Iohn Baptist lytherto, the kyngdome of heven suffreth violence, and they that go to it with violence pluck it vnto them. <sup>13</sup> For all the prophetes and the lawe prophesed vnto the tyme of Iohn. <sup>14</sup> Also yf ye wyl receaue it this is Helyas which shuld come. <sup>15</sup> He that hath care to heare let him heare.

<sup>16</sup> But wher vnto shall I lyken this generacion ? It ys lyke vnto chyldren which syt in the market and call vnto their felowes, <sup>17</sup> and saye : we haue pyppid vnto you, and ye haue not daunced ? We haue moorned vnto you, and ye haue not sorowed. <sup>18</sup> For Iohn came nether eatynge nor drinkynge, and they saye, he hath the deuyll. <sup>19</sup> The sonne of man came eatynge and drinkynge, and they saye, beholde a glutton and drynker of wyne, and a frend vnto publicans and synners. Nevertelater wysdome ys iustified of hir children.

<sup>20</sup> Then began he to vprayd the cities, in which most of his miracles were done, because they mended not. <sup>21</sup> Wo be to the Chorasyn. Wo be to the Bethsaida : for if the miracles which were shewed in you, had bene done in Tyre and Sidon, they had repented longe agoon in sackcloth and ashes. <sup>22</sup> Nevertheless I say to you : it shall be esier for Tyre and Sidon at the day of iudgement then for you. <sup>23</sup> And thou Capernaum which art lift vp vnto heuen, shalt be brought doune to hell. For if the miracles which haue that were softe clothing— are in kynges houses. <sup>9</sup> But what went ye out for to se ? A prophete : Verely I saye vnto you : and more then a Prophete. <sup>10</sup> For thys is he, of whom it is writtyn. Beholde, I sende my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before the.

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>11</sup> Verely I saye vnto you : amonge them that are borne of women, arose not a greater then Iohn the Baptist. Notwithstandyng he that is lesse : in the kyngdome of heauen is gretter then he. <sup>12</sup> From the dayes of Iohn Baptist vntill this daye, the kyngdome of heuen suffreth vyolence, and the violent pluck it vnto them. <sup>13</sup> For all the prophetes, and the lawe it selfe prophesyed vnto Iohn. <sup>14</sup> And yf ye wyl receaue it thys is Helyas, which was for to come. <sup>15</sup> He that hath cares to heare : let him heare.

<sup>16</sup> But wher vnto shall I liken this generacion ? It is like vnto chyldren, which syt in the market places, and call vnto their felowes, <sup>17</sup> and saye : we haue pyppid vnto you, and ye haue not daunced ? We haue moorned vnto you, ⁊ ye haue not sorowed. <sup>18</sup> For Iohn came nether eatynge nor drinkynge, ⁊ they saye, he hath the deuyll. <sup>19</sup> The sonne of man came eatynge and drynkeynge, and they saye, beholde a glutton, ⁊ an vmeasurable dryncker of wyne, and a frende vnto publicans ⁊ synners. And wysdome is iustified of her chyldren.

<sup>20</sup> Then began he to vprayd the cyties, which most of his myracles were done in, because they repented not of their sines. <sup>21</sup> Wo vnto the Chorasyn. Wo vnto the Bethsaida : for yf the myracles which were shewed in you, had bene done in the cite of Tyre or Sidon, they had repented of their synnes longe agoon in sack cloth ⁊ ashes. <sup>22</sup> Neuertelless I saye vnto you : it shall be esier for Tyre ⁊ Sidon at the daye of iudgement, then for you. <sup>23</sup> And thou Capernaum, which art lyft vp vnto heuen, shall be brought doune to hell. For yf the myracles which haue bene

‘ τοῖς ἑταίροις αὐτῶν, <sup>17</sup> καὶ λέγουσιν, | Ἠυλόησαμεν ὑμῖν, καὶ οὐκ ὠρχήσασθε·
 ‘ ἔβρηνησαμεν ὑμῖν, | καὶ οὐκ ἐκόψασθε. <sup>15</sup> ἤλθε γὰρ Ἰωάννης μῆτε ἐσθίω
 ‘ μῆτε πίνω, καὶ λέγουσι, Δαιμόνιον ἔχει. <sup>19</sup> ἦλθεν ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐσθίω
 ‘ καὶ πίνω, καὶ λέγουσιν, Ἰδοὺ, ἄνθρωπος φάγος καὶ οἰνοπότης, τελωνῶν φίλος ‘ καὶ ἁμαρτωλῶν. καὶ ἐδικαιώθη ἡ σοφία ἀπὸ τῶν τέκνων αὐτῆς.’ <sup>20</sup> Τότε ἤρξ-‘ ατο οὐνειδίξειν τὰς πόλεις, ἐν αἷς ἐγένοντο αἱ πλείσται δυνάμεις αὐτοῦ, ὅτι οὐ
 ‘ μετενόησαν. <sup>21</sup> Οὐαὶ σοι, Χοραζὶν· οὐαὶ σοι, Βηθσαϊδάν· | ὅτι εἰ ἐν Τύρῳ καὶ
 ‘ Σιδῶνι ἐγένοντο αἱ δυνάμεις αἱ γινόμεναι ἐν ὑμῖν, πάλαι ἂν ἐν σάκκῳ καὶ σποδῷ ‘ μετενόησαν. <sup>22</sup> πλὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, Τύρῳ καὶ Σιδῶνι ἀνεκτότερον ἔσται ἐν ἡμέρᾳ
 ‘ κρίσεως, ἢ ὑμῖν. <sup>23</sup> Καὶ σὺ, Καπερναοῦμ, ἢ ἕως τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ὑψωθείσα, ἕως |
 ‘ ἄδου καταβιβασθήσῃ· ὅτι εἰ ἐν Σοδόμοις ἐγένοντο αἱ δυνάμεις αἱ γινόμεναι ἐν ‘ Alex. = ἱμῖν.      * Alex. Βηθσαϊδ.      * Const. ἢ ἕως τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ὑψώθη, ἕως . . . Alex. μὴ ἕως οὐρανοῦ ὑψώθησ; ἕως . . .

GENEVA — 1557.

that weare softe clothing are in kings houses.

<sup>9</sup> But what went ye out for to see? A Prophet? Yea, I say vnto you, and more then a Prophet. <sup>10</sup> For this is he of whom it is written, Beholde, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee. <sup>11</sup> Verily I say vnto you, among them which are begotten of women, arose ther not a greater then Iohn the Baptist: Notwithstanding, he that is lesse in the kingdome of heauen, is greater then he. <sup>12</sup> From the tyme of Iohn Baptist hitherto, the kingdome of heauen suffereth violence, and the violent plucke it vnto them. <sup>13</sup> For all the Prophetes and the law, prophced vnto the tyme of Iohn. <sup>14</sup> And if ye wil receaue him, this is Elias which was to come. <sup>15</sup> He that hath eares to heare let him heare. But where vnto shal I liken this generation? <sup>16</sup> It is lyke vnto children which sit in the markets, and call vnto their fellows saying, <sup>17</sup> We haue pyepd vnto you, and ye haue not daunced: We haue songe mourning songes vnto you, and ye haue not wept.

<sup>18</sup> For Iohn came nether eatyng nor drynkyng, and they say, he hath the deuil. <sup>19</sup> The sonne of man came eatyng and drynkyng and they say, Behold a glotton and drincker of wine, a friende vnto publicans and synners, not with standing wysdome is justified of her children. <sup>20</sup> Then began he to vprayne the cities, in which moste of his miracles were done, because they repented not. <sup>21</sup> Wo be to thee Chorazin: Wo be to thee Bethsaida: for if the miracles which were shewed in you, had ben done in Tyre and Sidon, they had repented longe agoe in sackcloth and ashes. <sup>22</sup> Neuertheles I say to you: It shalbe easier for Tyre and Sidon at the day of iudgement, then for you.

<sup>23</sup> And thou Capernaum, which art lyfted vp vnto heauen, shalt be brought downe to hel: For yf the miracles which haue clothed in soft garments, are in Kings houses. <sup>9</sup> But vwhat vvent you out to see? a Prophet? yea I tel you and more then a Prophet. <sup>10</sup> For this is he of vvhom it is vvritten, Behold I send mine angel before thy face, vvhich shal prepare thy way before thee.

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>11</sup> Amen I say to you, there hath not risen among the borne of women a greater then Iohn the Baptist: yet he that is the lesser in the kingdom of heauen, is greater then he. <sup>12</sup> And from the dayes of Iohn the Baptist vntil now, the kingdom of heauen suffereth violence, and the violent beare it avway. <sup>13</sup> For all the Prophetes and the Law prophced vnto Iohn: <sup>14</sup> and if you vvil receiue it, he is Elias that is for to come. <sup>15</sup> He that hath eares to heare, let him heare.

<sup>16</sup> And vvherevnto shal I esteeme this generation to be like? It is like to children sitting in the market place: vvhich crying to their companions, <sup>17</sup> say, We haue piped to you, and you haue not daunced: vve haue lamented, and you haue not mourned. <sup>18</sup> For Iohn came neither eating nor drinking: and they say, He hath a deuil. <sup>19</sup> The Sonne of man came eating and drinking, and they say, Behold a man that is a glotton and a vvinedrinker, a frende of Publicans and sinners. And vvisedom is iustified of her children.

<sup>20</sup> Then began he to vvpraiide the cities, vvherein vvcre done the most of his miracles, for that they had not done penance.

<sup>21</sup> Wo be to thee Corozain, vvo be to thee Beth-saida: for if in Tyre & Sidon had been vvrought the miracles that haue been vvrought in you, they had done penance in hearecloth and ashes long agoe. <sup>22</sup> But neuertheles, I say to you, it shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon in the day of iudgement, then for you. <sup>23</sup> And thou Capharnaum, shalt thou be exalted vp to heauen? thou shalt come dovne euen vnto hel, for if in Sodom had been vvrought the miracles that haue been

AUTHORISED — 1611.

they that weare soft clothing, are in kings houses. <sup>9</sup> But what went ye out for to see? A Prophet? yea, I say vnto you, and more then a Prophet. <sup>10</sup> For this is he of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee. <sup>11</sup> Verely I say vnto you, Among them that are borne of women, there hath not risen a greater then Iohn the Baptist: notwithstanding, he that is least in the kingdom of heauen, is greater then he. <sup>12</sup> And from the dayes of Iohn the Baptist, vntill now, the kingdome of heauen suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force. <sup>13</sup> For all the Prophetes, and the Law prophesied vntill Iohn. <sup>14</sup> And if ye wil receiue it, this is Elias which was for to come. <sup>15</sup> He that hath eares to heare, let him heare.

<sup>16</sup> But whereunto shall I liken this generation? It is like vnto children, sitting in the markets, and calling vnto their fellows, <sup>17</sup> And saying, We haue piped vnto you, and ye haue not daunced: we haue mourned vnto you, and ye haue not lamented. <sup>18</sup> For Iohn came neither eating nor drinking, and they say, He hath a deuil. <sup>19</sup> The sonne of man came eating and drinking, and they say, Behold a man gluttonous, and a wine bibber, a friend of publicanes and sinners: but wisdom is iustified of her children.

<sup>20</sup> Then began he to vvpraiide the cities vvherein most of his mighty vvorks were done, because they repented not. <sup>21</sup> Woe vnto thee Chorazin, vwo vnto thee Bethsaida: for if the mighty vvorkes which were done in you, had bene done in Tyre and Sidon, they vvould haue repented long agoe in sackcloth and ashes. <sup>22</sup> But I say vnto you, It shall bee more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the day of iudgement, then for you. <sup>23</sup> And thou Capernaum, vvich art exalted vnto heauen, shalt be brought downe to hel: For if the mighty vvorks vvich haue bene done in thee,

* Or, is gotten by force, and they that thrust men.

‘ σοί, ἔμειναν ἄν μέχρι τῆς σήμερον. <sup>24</sup> πλὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι γῆ Σοδομων ἀνεκ-
 ‘ τότερον ἔσται ἐν ἡμέρᾳ κρίσεως, ἢ σοί.’ <sup>25</sup> Ἐν ἐκείνῳ τῷ καιρῷ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, ‘ Ἐξομολογοῦμαι σοι, πάτερ, κύριε τοῦ οὐρανοῦ καὶ τῆς γῆς, ὅτι ‘ ἀπέκρυψας ταῦτα ἀπὸ σοφῶν καὶ συνειτῶν, καὶ ἀπεκάλυψας αὐτὰ νηπιόις.
 ‘ <sup>26</sup> ναὶ, ὁ πατήρ, ὅτι οὕτως ἐγένετο εὐδοκία ἔμπροσθέν σου. <sup>27</sup> Πάντα μοι παρε-
 ‘ δόθη ὑπὸ τοῦ πατρός μου· καὶ οὐδεὶς ἐπιγινώσκει τὸν υἱόν, εἰ μὴ ὁ πατήρ· οὐδὲ ‘ τὸν πατέρα τίς ἐπιγινώσκει, εἰ μὴ ὁ υἱός, καὶ ὃ ἔαν βούληται ὁ υἱὸς ἀποκα-
 ‘ λύψαι. <sup>28</sup> Δεῦτε πρὸς με πάντες οἱ κοπιῶντες καὶ πεφορτισμένοι, καγὼ ἀνα‘ παύσω ὑμᾶς. <sup>29</sup> ἄρατε τὸν ζυγόν μου ἐφ’ ὑμᾶς, καὶ μάθετε ἀπ’ ἐμοῦ, ὅτι ‘ πρῶός εἰμι καὶ ταπεινὸς τῇ καρδίᾳ· καὶ εὐρήσετε ἀνάπαυσιν ταῖς ψυχαῖς ὑμῶν.
 ‘ <sup>30</sup> ὁ γὰρ ζυγός μου χρηστός, καὶ τὸ φορτίον μου ἐλαφρόν ἐστίν.’

WICLIF—1380.

don in thee hadde be doon in zodom: peraventure thi schulden haue dwelled in to this dai; <sup>24</sup> nethes I seie to you that to the lond of sodom it schal be lesse peyne in the dai of dome, thanne to thee.

<sup>25</sup> In that tyme ihesus answered & seide,
 I knowleche to the fadir, lord of heuene & of erthe for thou hast hidde these thingis fro wise men & prudent; and hast schewed hem to litil children; <sup>26</sup> so fadir: for so it was plesinge to fore thee; <sup>27</sup> alle thingis ben goun to me of my fadir; & no man knewe the sone: but the fadir; nether
 omy man knewe the fadir, but the sone,
 & to whom the sone wolde shewe;

<sup>28</sup> alle ze that traucilen & ben chargid come to me: & I schal fulfille you. <sup>29</sup> take ze my zok on you & lerne ze of me for I am mylde and meke in herte: and ze schulen finde rest to zoure soulis; <sup>30</sup> for my zok is softe & my charge lycht.

12. IN that tyme ihesus wente bi cornes in the saboth dai; & hise discipulis hungriiden, & bigunnen to pluk eris of corne & ceter; <sup>2</sup> & farisics seynge, seiden to hym; lo thi discipulis do that thing that is not leyful to hem to do in sabotis;

<sup>3</sup> and he seide to hem; whether ze han not red: what dauith dide whanne he hungrid; & thei that weren with hym?
<sup>4</sup> how he entrid in to the hous of god, and ete lounes of proposicioun; whiche lounes it was not leyful to hym to ete, nether to hem that weren with him: but to prestis aloun; <sup>5</sup> or whether ze han not redde in the lawe that in sabotis, prestis in the temple defoulen the sabotis: and thei ben with out blame? <sup>6</sup> & I seye to you that here is a gretter thanne the temple; <sup>7</sup> and if ze wisten what it is I wole merci & not sacrifice: ze schulden neuer haue condemnid innocentis; <sup>8</sup> for mannes sone is here, zhe of the saboth;

TYNDALE—1534.

bene done in the; had bene shewed in zodom; they had remayned to this daye, <sup>24</sup> Nevertheless I saye vnto you: it shalbe easier for the lond of zodom in the daye of iudgement, then for the.

<sup>25</sup> At that tyme Iesus answered and sayd:
 I praye the o father lorde of heven and erth; because thou hast hid these things from the wyse and prudent; and hast opened them vnto babes; <sup>26</sup> even so father; for so it pleased the. <sup>27</sup> All things are geuen vnto me of my father. And noman knoweth the sone but the father: nether knoweth eny man the father, save the sone; and he to whome the sone will open him.

<sup>28</sup> Come vnto me all ye that labour and are laden; and I wyll ease you. <sup>29</sup> Take my yoke on you and lerne of me; for I am meke and lowly in herte: and ye shall fynd rest vnto youre soules. <sup>30</sup> For my yoke is easy; and my burden is light.

12. IN that tyme went Iesus on the Sabot dayes throw the corne and his discipules were an hongred; and begane to plucke the eares of corne; and to eate. <sup>2</sup>
 When the pharises sawe that; they sayde vnto him: Beholde; thy discipules do that which is not lawfull to do upon the saboth daye. <sup>3</sup> He sayde vnto them:
 Hauē ye not reed what David did; when he was anhungered; and they also which were with him? <sup>4</sup> How he entred into the housse of God; and ate the halowed loaves; which were not lawfully for him to eate; nether for them which were with him; but only for the prestes. <sup>5</sup> Or have ye not reed in the lawe; how that the prestes in the temple breake the saboth daye; and yet are blamelesse? <sup>6</sup> But I saye vnto you: that here is one greater then the temple. <sup>7</sup> Wherefore yf ye had wist what this sayinge meneth: I require mercy and not sacrifice: ye wold neuer have condemned innocentes. <sup>8</sup> For the sone of man is lord even of the saboth daye.

CRANMER—1539.

done in the, had bene shewed in zodom:
 they had remayned vntil thys daye. <sup>24</sup> Ne-uerthelesse, I saye vnto you: that it shalbe easier for the land of zodom in the daye of iudgement, then for the.

<sup>25</sup> At that tyme Iesus answered & sayde:
 I thanke the O father, Lord of heauen and erth, because thou hast hid these thinges
 from the wyse and prudent, and hast shewed them vnto babes, <sup>26</sup> verely father, euen so was it thy good pleasure. <sup>27</sup> All thinges are geuen ouer vnto me of my father. And noman knoweth the sone but the father: nether knoweth eny man the father, saue the sone, and he to whomsoeuer the sone wyll open him.
<sup>28</sup> Come vnto me all ye that labour; and are laden, and I will ease you. <sup>29</sup> Take my yocke vpon you, and lerne of me, for I am meke & lowly in herte: and ye shall fynde rest vnto youre soules. <sup>30</sup> For my yocke is easy, and my burden is light.

12. AT that tyme Iesus went on the Sabbath dayes thorow the corne, and hys discipules were an hongred, and begane to plucke the eares of corne, and to eate. <sup>2</sup>
 But when the Pharises sawe it, they sayde vnto him: Beholde, thy discipules do that which is not lawfull (for them) to do vpon the Saboth daye. <sup>3</sup> But he sayde vnto them: Hauē ye not reed what David did, when he was an hongred, and they that were with him? <sup>4</sup> How he entred into the house of God, and dyd eate the shew breades whiche were not lawfull for hym to eate, nether for them which were with hym, but only for the prestes? <sup>5</sup> Or haue ye not reed in the lawe, how that (on the Sabbath dayes) the prestes in the temple breake the Saboth, & are blame-lesse? <sup>6</sup> But I saye vnto you: that in this place is one greater then the temple.
<sup>7</sup> Wherefore, yf ye wist what thys meaneth
 I require mercy, & not sacrifice: ye wold not haue condemned innocentes. <sup>8</sup>
 For the sone of man also, is lord euen of the Saboth daye.

XII. Ἐν ἐκείνῳ τῷ καιρῷ ἐπορεύθη ὁ Ἰησοῦς τοῖς σάββασιν διὰ τῶν σπορίμων· οἱ δὲ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ἐπέινασαν, καὶ ἤρξαντο τίλλειν στάχνας καὶ ἐσθίειν. οἱ δὲ Φαρισαῖοι ἰδόντες εἶπον αὐτῷ, Ἰδοὺ, οἱ μαθηταὶ σου ποιοῦσιν, ὃ οὐκ ἐξέστι ποιεῖν ἐν σαββάτῳ. Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Οὐκ ἀνέγνωτε τί ἐποίησε Δαυὶδ, ὅτε ἐπέινασε καὶ οἱ μετ' αὐτοῦ; πῶς εἰσῆλθεν εἰς τὸν οἶκον τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ τοὺς ἄρτους τῆς προθέσεως ἔφαγεν, οὓς οὐκ ἐξὸν ἦν αὐτῷ φαγεῖν, οὐδὲ τοῖς μετ' αὐτοῦ, εἰ μὴ τοῖς ἱερεῦσι μόνοις; Ἡ οὐκ ἀνέγνωτε ἐν τῷ νόμῳ, ὅτι τοῖς σάββασιν οἱ ἱερεῖς ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ τὸ σάββατον βεβηλοῦσι, καὶ ἀναίτιοί εἰσι; λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, ὅτι τοῦ ἱεροῦ μείζον ἐστὶν ὠδε. εἰ δὲ ἐγνώκετε τί ἐστίν, “Ἐλεον θέλω καὶ οὐ θυσίαν,” οὐκ ἂν κατεδικάσατε τοὺς ἀναίτιους. κύριος γὰρ ἐστὶ τοῦ σαββάτου ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου.

<sup>1</sup> Rec. + αὐτοῦ.

<sup>2</sup> Rec. μείζων.

<sup>3</sup> Rec. + καὶ.

GENEVA—1557.

bin done in this, had bin shewed in Sodome, they had remayned to this day.

<sup>24</sup> Neuerthes I say vnto you, that it shalbe easier for the land of Sodome in the day of iudgement, then for thee. <sup>25</sup> At that tyme Iesus answered, and sayed, I prayse thee O father, Lorde of heauen and earth, because thou hast hid these thynges from the wise and men of vnderstanding and hast opened them vnto babes. <sup>26</sup> Verly father, euen so it was thy good pleasure. <sup>27</sup> All thynges are geuen vnto me of my father: And no man knoweth the sonne but the father: nether knoweth any man the father, saue the sonne, and he to whome the sonne wil open him.

<sup>28</sup> Come vnto me all ye that are wearie and laden, and I will ease you. <sup>29</sup> Take my yoke on you, and learne of me that I am meke and lowly in heart: and ye shall finde rest vnto your soules. <sup>30</sup> For my yoke is easy, & my burden is light.

12. AT that tyme Iesus went on the Sabbath daye through the corne, and his disciples were an hongred, and began to plucke the eares of corne and to eate. <sup>2</sup> But when the Pharisees sawe that, they sayed vnto him, Beholde, thy disciples do that which is not lawfull to do vpon the Sabbath day. <sup>3</sup> And he sayed vnto them, Haue ye not read what Dauid did when he was an hongred, and they also which were with him? <sup>4</sup> How he entred into the house of God, & ate the shewe loues, which were not lawfull for him to eate, nether for them which were with him, but only for the priestes. <sup>5</sup> Or haue ye not read in the lawe how that on the Sabbath dayes the prestes in the temple break the Sabbath, and are blamelesse? <sup>6</sup> But I say vnto you, that here is one greater then the temple. <sup>7</sup> Wherefor if ye wist what this meaneth, I require mercie and not sacrifice: ye would not haue condemned innocents. <sup>8</sup> For the sonne of man is Lord euen of the Sabbath day.

RHEIMS—1582.

wrought in thee, perhaps it had remained vnto this day. <sup>24</sup> But notwithstanding I say to you, that it shal be more tolerable for the land of Sodom in the day of iudgement, then for thee.

<sup>25</sup> At that time Iesus answered and said, I confesse to thee O Father lord of heauen and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast reuealed them to litle ones. <sup>26</sup> Yea Father: for so hath it vvel pleased thee. <sup>27</sup> Al things are deliuered me of my Father. And no man knoweth the Sonne but the Father: neither doth any knovv the Father, but the Sonne, and to vvhom it shal please the Sonne to reueale. <sup>28</sup> Come ye to me al that labour, and are burdened, and I vvil refresh you. <sup>29</sup> Take vp my yoke vpon you, and learne of me, because I am mecke, and humble of hart: and you shal finde rest to your soules. <sup>30</sup> For my yoke is svvete, and my burden light.

12. AT that time Iesus vvent through the corne on the Sabbath: and his Disciples being hungrie, began to plucke the eares, and to eate. <sup>2</sup> And the Pharisees seeing them, said to him, Loe, thy Disciples doe that vvhich is not lawfull for them to doe on the Sabbath-dayes. <sup>3</sup> But he sayd to them, Haue you not read vvhath Dauid did vvhhen he vvas an hungred, and they that vere vwith him: <sup>4</sup> how he entred into the house of God, and did eate the loaves of proposition, vvhich it vvas not lawfull for him to eate, nor for them that vere vwith him, but for priestes only? <sup>5</sup> Or haue ye not read in the Lavv, that on Sabbath-dayes the priestes in the temple do breake the Sabbath, and are vwithouth blame? <sup>6</sup> but I tel you that there is here a greater then the temple. <sup>7</sup> And if you did knovv vvhath it is, I will mercie, and not sacrifice: you would never haue condemned the innocents. <sup>8</sup> For the Sonne of man is lord of the Sabbath also.

AUTHORISED—1611.

had bene done in Sodome, it would haue remained vntill this day. <sup>24</sup> But I say vnto you, that it shall bee more tolerable for the land of Sodom, in the day of iudgement, then for thee.

<sup>25</sup> At that time Iesus answered, and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heauen and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise & prudent, & hast reueiled them vnto babes. <sup>26</sup> Euen so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight. <sup>27</sup> All things are deliuered vnto me of my Father: and no man knoweth the Sonne but the father: neither knoweth any man the Father, saue the Sonne, and hee to whomsoever the Sonne will reueile him, and are heauie laden, and I will giue you rest. <sup>29</sup> Take my yoke vpon you, and learne of me, for I am meeke and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest vnto your soules. <sup>30</sup> For my yoke is easie, and my burden is light.

12. AT that time, Iesus went on the Sabbath day thorow the corne, and his disciples were an hungred, and beganne to plucke the eares of corne, and to eate. <sup>2</sup> But when the Pharisees saw it, they said vnto him, Behold, thy disciples doe that which is not lawfull to doe vpon the Sabbath day. <sup>3</sup> But hee said vnto them, Haue yee not read what Dauid did when hee was an hungred, and they that were with him, <sup>4</sup> How hee entred into the house of God, and did eate the Shew-bread, which was not lawfull for him to eate, neither for them which were with him, but only for the Priests? <sup>5</sup> Or haue ye not read in the Law, how that on the Sabbath dayes the Priests in the Temple prophane the Sabbath, and are blamelesse? <sup>6</sup> But I say vnto you, that in this place is one greater then the Temple. <sup>7</sup> But if yee had known what this meaneth, I will haue mercie, and not sacrifice, ye would not haue condemned the guiltlesse. <sup>8</sup> For the Some of man is Lord euen of the Sabbath day.

<sup>9</sup> Καὶ μεταβάς ἐκεῖθεν, ἦλθεν εἰς τὴν συναγωγὴν αὐτῶν. <sup>10</sup> καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἄνθρωπος ἦν τὴν χεῖρα ἔχων ξηράν· καὶ ἐπηρώτησαν αὐτὸν, λέγοντες, ‘Εἰ ἔξεστι τοῖς σάββασι θεραπεύειν;’ ἵνα κατηγορήσωσιν αὐτοῦ. <sup>11</sup> Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ‘Τίς ἔσται ἐξ ὑμῶν ἄνθρωπος, ὃς ἔξει πρόβατον ἐν, καὶ ἐὰν ἐμπέσῃ τοῦτο τοῖς σάββασι εἰς βόθυνον, οὐχὶ κρατήσῃ αὐτὸ καὶ ἐγερεῖ; <sup>12</sup> πῶς οὖν διαφέρει ἄνθρωπος πρόβατος; ὥστε ἔξεστι τοῖς σάββασι καλῶς ποιεῖν.’ <sup>13</sup> Τότε λέγει τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ, ‘Ἐκτεινον τὴν χεῖρά σου.’ Καὶ ἐξέτεινε, καὶ ἀπεκατεστάθη ἰγῆς ὡς ἡ ἄλλη. <sup>14</sup> Οἱ δὲ Φαρισαῖοι συμβούλιον ἔλαβον κατ’ αὐτοῦ ἐξελλοίτες, ὡς αὐτὸν ἀπολέσωσιν. <sup>15</sup> Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς γνοὺς ἀνεχώρησεν ἐκεῖθεν· καὶ ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ ὄχλοι πολλοί, καὶ ἐθεράπευσεν αὐτοὺς πάντας· <sup>16</sup> καὶ ἐπετίμησεν αὐτοῖς, ἵνα μὴ φανερὸν αὐτὸν ποιήσωσιν· <sup>17</sup> ὅπως πληρωθῆ τὸ ῥῆθ<sup>εν</sup> διὰ Ἡσαΐου τοῦ

Rec. ἀποκατεστάθη.

Alex. Ἐξελλοίτες δι’ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι συμβούλιον ἔλαβον κατ’ αὐτοῦ.

WICLIFFE—1380.

<sup>9</sup> τ thanne he passid fro thennes, he cam in to the synagoge of hem, <sup>10</sup> τ lo a man that hadde a drie hond, and thei axeden hym τ seiden, wher it be leful to heele in the sabboth? that thei schulden accuse hym, <sup>11</sup> τ he seid to hem, what man of zou schal be that hath oo sheep, and if it falle in to a diche in the sabbotis; where he schal not hold τ lifte it vp, <sup>12</sup> hou myche more is a man better thanne a sheep? therfor it is leful to do good in the sabbotis, <sup>13</sup> thanne he seide to the man, stretche forth thin hond, and he strautez forth; and it was restorid to helthe as the thoter.

<sup>14</sup> And the farisies wenten out, and maden a counsel agens hym; hou thei schulden distrie hym, <sup>15</sup> and ihesus knewe it; and wente away fro thennes; and many suden him; and he heeled hem alle <sup>16</sup> and he comaundide to hem; that thei schulden not make hym knowun, <sup>17</sup> that that thing were fulfillid; that was seid bi Isave the profete seynge; <sup>18</sup> lo my child whom I haue chosun; my derlyng in whom it hath wel plesid to my soule; I schal putte my spirit on hym; and he schal telle doom to hethen men; <sup>19</sup> he schal not stryue ne crye; nether any man schal here his vois in stretis; <sup>20</sup> a brisid reed he schal not breke; τ he schal not quenche smokynge flexe, til he cast out dome to victory; <sup>21</sup> and hethen men schuln hope in his name.

<sup>22</sup> thanne a man blynde and dombe that hadde a fende; was brought to hym; and he heeled hym; so that he spake and seide; <sup>23</sup> and al the puple wondrid and seiden; whether this be the sone of dauith? <sup>24</sup> but the farisies herden and seiden; he this castith not out fendis; but in belsabung prouce of fendis;

<sup>25</sup> and ihesus wytinge her thougtis; seid

αγαυτε, stretched. αγω, against. βουμ, judgment. wytinge, knowing.

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>9</sup> And he departed thence, and went into their synagoge; <sup>10</sup> and beholde there was a man, whiche had his hande dryed vp. And they axed him sayinge; ys it lawfull to heale upon the sabboth dayes? because they myght accuse him. <sup>11</sup> And he sayde vnto them; whiche of you wolde it be; yf he had a shepe fallen into a pitte on the sabboth daye, that wolde not take him and lyft him out? <sup>12</sup> And how moche is a man better then a shepe? Wherefore it is leful to do a good dede on the sabboth dayes. <sup>13</sup> Then sayde he to the man; stretch forth thy hand. And he stretched it forth. And it was made whole agayne lyke vnto the other.

<sup>14</sup> Then the Pharyses went out, and helde a counsell agaynst hym; how they myght destroye hym. <sup>15</sup> When Iesus knewe that he departed thence; and moche people folowed him; and he healed them all, <sup>16</sup> and charged them; that they shuld not make him knownen; <sup>17</sup> to fulfill that which was spoken by Esay the Prophet, which sayeth. <sup>18</sup> Beholde my chyld; whom I haue chosun; my beloved; in whom my soule delytheth. I wyll put my spryte on hym; and he shall shewe iudgement to the gentylis. <sup>19</sup> He shall not stryue; he shall not crye; nether shall any man here his voyce in the stretes; <sup>20</sup> a brosed reed shall he not breake; and flaxe that begynneth to burne; he shall not quenche; tyll he sende forth iudgement vnto victory; <sup>21</sup> and in hys name shall the gentylis truste.

<sup>22</sup> Then was brought to hym; one possessed with a devyll which was both blynde and domme; and he healed hym; insomoch that he which was blynd and domme; both spake and sawe. <sup>23</sup> And all the people were amased; and sayde; Ys not this that sonne of David? <sup>24</sup> But when the pharises heard that they sayde; This felow dryveth the devyls no nether wyse out; but by the helpe of Belzebub the chefe of the devyls.

<sup>25</sup> But Iesus knewe their thoughtes; and

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>9</sup> And he departed thence and went into their synagoge; <sup>10</sup> and beholde, there was a man which had his hande dryed vp. And they asked hym, sayinge is it lawfull to heale vpon the Sabboth dayes? that they myght accuse him. <sup>11</sup> And he seide vnto them; whych of you will it be, that shall haue a shepe, and if it fall into a pytte on the Sabboth daye, wyche not take it and lyft it out? <sup>12</sup> Howe much more then is a man better then a shepe? Wherefore, it is leful to do a good dede on the Sabboth dayes. <sup>13</sup> Then sayeth he to the man; stretch forth thy hand. And he stretched it forth. And it was restored vnto health, like as the other.

<sup>14</sup> Then the Pharises went out, and helde a counsell agaynst hym, how they might destroye him. <sup>15</sup> But when Iesus knewe it, he departed thence, and moche people folowed him, and he healed them all, <sup>16</sup> and charged them, that they shuld not make him knownen; <sup>17</sup> that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esay the Prophet, which sayeth; <sup>18</sup> Beholde, my childe, whom I haue chosen, my beloved, in whom my soule delytheth. I will put my spryte vpon him, and he shall shewe iudgement to the gentylis. <sup>19</sup> He shal not stryue ne crye, nether shall any man here his voyce in the stretes. <sup>20</sup> a brosed reed shall he not breake, and smokynge flax shall he not quenche, till he sende forth iudgement vnto victory, <sup>21</sup> τ in his name shall the gentylis trust.

<sup>22</sup> Then was brought to hym a blynd τ domme man, that was vexed with a devyll; and he healed hym, insomoch, that the blynde and domme, both spake τ sawe. <sup>23</sup> And all the people were amased, and sayde; Is not this that sonne of David? <sup>24</sup> But when the Pharises heard it, they sayd; This felow dryeth the deuyls no nether wyse out, but by the helpe of Belzebub the chefe of the deuyls.

<sup>25</sup> But whan Iesus knewe their thoughtes, and

προφήτου, λέγοντος, “<sup>18</sup> Ἰδοῦ, ὁ παῖς μου, ὃν ἠρέτισα ὁ ἀγαπητός μου, εἰς ὃν εὐδόκησεν ἡ ψυχὴ μου· θήσω τὸ πνεῦμά μου ἐπ’ αὐτὸν, καὶ κρίσιν τοῖς ἔθνεσιν ἀπαγγελεῖ.”<sup>19</sup> οὐκ ἐρίσει, οὐδὲ κραυγάσει· οὐδὲ ἀκούσει τις ἐν ταῖς πλατείαις τὴν φωνὴν αὐτοῦ.<sup>20</sup> καλαμον συντετριμμένον οὐ κατεάξει, καὶ λῖνον τυφόμενον οὐ σβέσει· ἕως ἂν ἐκβάλῃ εἰς ὕκος τὴν κρίσιν.<sup>21</sup> καὶ <sup>b</sup> τῷ ὀνόματι αὐτοῦ ἔθνη ἐλπιοῦσι.”

<sup>22</sup> Τότε προσηνέχθη αὐτῷ δαιμονιζόμενος τυφλὸς καὶ κωφός· καὶ ἑθεράπευσεν αὐτὸν, ὥστε τὸν τυφλὸν καὶ κωφὸν καὶ λαλεῖν καὶ βλέπειν.<sup>23</sup> καὶ ἐξίσταντο πάντες οἱ ὄχλοι καὶ ἔλεγον, ‘ Μήτι οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ υἱὸς Δαυὶδ ;’<sup>24</sup> Οἱ δὲ Φαρισαῖοι ἀκούσαντες εἶπον, ‘ Οὗτος οὐκ ἐκβάλλει τὰ δαιμόνια, εἰ μὴ ἐν τῷ Βεελζεβούλ ἄρχοντι τῶν δαιμονίων.’<sup>25</sup> Εἰδὼς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὰς ἐνθυμήσεις αὐτῶν

<sup>b</sup> Rec. + iv.

GENEVA — 1557.

<sup>9</sup> And he departed thence, and went in to their Synagoge : <sup>10</sup> And behold there was a man which had his hand dried vp. And they asked him, saying, Is it lawful to heale vpon the Sabbath dayes? that they myght accuse him. <sup>11</sup> And he sayed vnto them, What man shalbe among you, that shall haue a shepe, and if it fall on the Sabbath day into a pyt, wil not he take it and lift it out?

<sup>12</sup> How much more then is a man better then a shepe? Wherefore, it is lawful to do a good deede on the Sabbath dayes. <sup>13</sup> Then sayd he to the man, Stretch forth thy hand : And he stretched it forth, and it was made whole agayne as the other. <sup>14</sup> Then the Phariseis went out, and consulted against hym, how they myght destroy him. <sup>15</sup> But when Iesus knewe that, he departed thence, and moche people folowed hym, and he healed them all. <sup>16</sup> And charged them that they should not make hym knownen. <sup>17</sup> That it myght be fulfilled, which was spoken by Esai the Prophet, which sayeth. <sup>18</sup> Beholde my seruant whome I haue chosen, my beloued in whom my soule delyteth :

I wyl put my Spirit on hym, and he shal shewe iudgement to the Gentiles. <sup>19</sup> He shal not strue, nor cry, nether shal any man heare his voyce in the streates. <sup>20</sup> A brused reed shal he not breake, & smokynge flaxe he shal not quenche, til he bring forth iudgement vnto victorie. <sup>21</sup> And in his name shal the Gentiles trust. <sup>22</sup> Then was brought to hym, one possessed with a deuyll, which was both blynde, and domme, and he healed hym, in so moche that he which was blynde and domme, both spake and sawe. <sup>23</sup> And all the people were amased, and sayd, Is not this the sonne of Dauid? <sup>24</sup> But when the Pharises heard that, they sayd, This felow dryueth the deuils no otherwyse out, but through Beelzebub the prince of the deuyls.

<sup>25</sup> But when Iesus knewe theyr thoughtes,

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>9</sup> And vvhhen he had passed from thence, he came into their synagogue. <sup>10</sup> And behold there vvas a man vvhich had a vwithered hand, and they asked him saying, Whether is it lawfull to cure on the Sabbathos? that they might accuse him. <sup>11</sup> But he sayd to them, what man shal there be of you, that shal haue one sheepe: and if the same fall into a ditche on the Sabbathos, vvil he not take hold and lift it vp? <sup>12</sup> Hovv much better is a man more then a sheepe? therefore it is lawfull on the Sabbathos to doe a good deede. <sup>13</sup> Then he sayth to the man, Stretch forth thy hand. and he stretched it forth, and it vvas restored to health euen as the other.

<sup>14</sup> And the Pharisees going forth made a consultation agaynst him, hovv they might destroy him. <sup>15</sup> But Iesus knovving it, retired from thence: and many folovved him, and he cured them all. <sup>16</sup> and he charged them that they should not disclose him. <sup>17</sup> That it might be fulfilled vvhich vvas spoken by Esay the Prophete, saying, <sup>18</sup> Behold my seruant vvhom I haue chosen, my beloued in vvhom my soul hath vvel liked. I wrl put my spirit vpon him, and iudgement to the Gentiles shal he shew. <sup>19</sup> He shal not contend, nor crie out, neither shal any man heare in the streetes his voyce. <sup>20</sup> The reede bruised he shal not breake, and smokynge flaxe he shal not extinguish: til he cast forth iudgement vnto victorie. <sup>21</sup> And in his name the Gentiles shal hope.

<sup>22</sup> Then vvas offered to him one possessed vwith a deuil, blinde and dumme: and he cured him, so that he spake & saw. <sup>23</sup> And all the multitudes vvere amased, and sayd, Whether this be the Sonne of Dauid? <sup>24</sup> But the Pharisees hearing it, sayd, This felow casteth not out diuels but in Beelzebub the Prince of the diuels. <sup>25</sup> And Iesus knovving their cogitations, said to them,

AUTHORISED — 1611.

<sup>9</sup> And when hee was departed thence, he went into their Synagogue.

<sup>10</sup> And behold, there was a man which had his hand withered, and they asked him, saying, Is it lawful to heale on the Sabbath daies? that they might accuse him. <sup>11</sup> And hee saide vnto them, What man shall there bee among you, that shall haue one sheepe: and if it fall into a pit on the Sabbath day, will hee not lay hold on it, and lift it out? <sup>12</sup> How much then is a man better then a sheepe? Wherefore it is lawful to doe well on the Sabbath dayes. <sup>13</sup> Then saith he to the man, Stretch fourth this hand: and hee stretched it fourth, and it was restored whole, like as the other.

<sup>14</sup> Then the Pharisees went out, and <sup>a</sup> heide a counsell against him, how they might destroy him. <sup>15</sup> But when Iesus knew it, hee withdrew himselfe from thence: and great multitudes folowed him, and he healed them all, <sup>16</sup> and charged them that they should not make him knownen: <sup>17</sup> That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the Prophet, saying, <sup>18</sup> Beholde, my seruant whom I haue chosen, my beloued in whom my soule is well pleased: I will put my spirit vpon him, and hee shall shew iudgement to the Gentiles. <sup>19</sup> He shall not strue, nor cry, neither shall any man heare his voyce in the streets. <sup>20</sup> A bruised reed shall he not breake, and smoking flaxe shall he not quench, til he send forth iudgment vnto victorie. <sup>21</sup> And in his Name shall the Gentiles trust.

<sup>22</sup> Then was brought vnto him one possessed with a deuil, blinde, and dumbe: and hee healed him, insomuch that the blinde and dumbe both spake and saw. <sup>23</sup> And all the people were amazed, and sayd, Is this the sonne of Dauid? <sup>24</sup> But when the Pharisees heard it, they sayd, This fellow doeth not cast out deuils, but by Beelzebub the prince of the deuils. <sup>25</sup> And Iesus knew their thoughts, and

<sup>a</sup> Or, tooke counsell.

' εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ' Πᾶσα βασιλεία μερισθεῖσα καθ' ἑαυτῆς ἐρημοῦται· καὶ πᾶσα
 ' πόλις ἢ οἰκία μερισθεῖσα καθ' ἑαυτῆς οὐ σταθήσεται. <sup>26</sup> καὶ εἰ ὁ Σατανᾶς τὸν
 ' Σατανᾶν ἐκβάλλει, ἐφ' ἑαυτὸν ἐμερίσθη· πῶς οὖν σταθήσεται ἡ βασιλεία αὐτοῦ;
 ' <sup>27</sup> καὶ εἰ ἐγὼ ἐν Βεελζεβούλ ἐκβάλλω τὰ δαιμόνια, οἱ υἱοὶ ὑμῶν ἐν τίνι ἐκβάλ-
 ' λουσι; διὰ τοῦτο αὐτοὶ ὑμῶν ἔσονται κριταί. <sup>28</sup> εἰ δὲ ἐν Πνεύματι Θεοῦ ἐγὼ
 ' ἐκβάλλω τὰ δαιμόνια, ἄρα ἔφθασεν ἐφ' ὑμᾶς ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ. <sup>29</sup> ἢ πῶς
 ' δύναται τις εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν τοῦ ἰσχυροῦ καὶ τὰ σκεύη αὐτοῦ διαρπάσαι,
 ' εἰ μὴ πρῶτον δῆσῃ τὸν ἰσχυρὸν, καὶ τότε τὴν οἰκίαν αὐτοῦ διαρπάσει; <sup>30</sup> ὁ ' μὴ ὢν μετ' ἐμοῦ, κατ' ἐμοῦ ἔστι· καὶ ὁ μὴ συνάγων μετ' ἐμοῦ, σκορπίζει.
 ' <sup>31</sup> Διὰ τοῦτο λέγω ὑμῖν, Πᾶσα ἁμαρτία καὶ βλασφημία ἀφεθήσεται τοῖς ἀν-
 ' θρώποις· ἡ δὲ τοῦ Πνεύματος βλασφημία οὐκ ἀφεθήσεται τοῖς ἀνθρώποις.

† Rec. γὰρ ἐν Πνεύματι Θεοῦ.

WICLIFF—1380.

to hem, eche kyngdom departid agens it self, schal be desolat, and eche cite or hous departid agens it self: schal not stonde; <sup>26</sup> ¶ if sathanas cast out sathanas, he is departid agens hym self; therfor hou
 schal his kyngdom stonde?

<sup>27</sup> And if I in belsabus caste out deuylis;
 in whom your sones casten out? ther-for thei schulen be youre domesmen; <sup>28</sup> but if I in spirit of god cast out fendis:
 thanne the kyngdom of god is comun in to you.

<sup>29</sup> ether hou mai ony man entre in to the hous of a strong man, and take awaye hisse vessels: but first he bynde the stronge man, and thanne he schal spuyle his hous.

<sup>30</sup> He that is not with me: is agens me/and he that gaderith not to gidre with me: scatterith abroad, <sup>31</sup> therfor I seie to you, al synne y blasfemy schal be forjoun to men: but the sperit of blasfemye schal not be forjoun; <sup>32</sup> and who euer seith a word agens mannes sone, it schal be forjoun to hym; but who that seith a word agens the holi goost: it schal not be forjoun to hym, nether in this world ne in that other.

<sup>33</sup> ether make ye the tree good and his fruyt good: ether make ye the tree yuel, and his fruyt yuel; for a tree is knowun of the fruyt; <sup>34</sup> se generaciouns of eddris:
 hou moun ye speke good thyngis, whan ye ben yuel? for the mouth spekieth of the plente of the hert; <sup>35</sup> a gode man bringith forth gode thyngis of good tresourer; an yuel man bringith forth yuel thyngis of yuel tresourer; <sup>36</sup> ¶ I sei to you, that of every wyl word that men speken: thei schulen gid resoun thereof in the dai of doom; <sup>37</sup> for of thi wordis thou schalt be iustified:
 and of thi wordis thou schalt be dampned.

<sup>23</sup> agens agens domesmen, judges, yuel, evil, eddris, eddris, nouns, may yul, yield.

TYNDALE—1534.

sayde to them. Every kyngdome devided with in it sylfe, shalbe brought to naught.
 Nether shall eny cite or housholde de-vyded agens it sylfe, contynue. <sup>26</sup> So if satan cast out satan, then is he devyded agens hym sylfe. How shall then his kyngdome endure? <sup>27</sup> Also if I by the helpe of Belzebul cast oute deuyls: by whose helpe do youre chyldren cast them out? Therefore thei shalbe your iudges.
<sup>28</sup> But if I cast out the deuyls by the sprite of God: then is the kyngdome of god come on you?

<sup>29</sup> Ether how can a man enter into a stronge mannes housse, and violently take awaye his goodes: excepte he fyrst binde the stronge man, and then spoyle his housse? <sup>30</sup> He that is not with me, is agensyt me. And he that gaddereth not with me, scattereth abroad. <sup>31</sup> Wherefor
 I say vnto you, all maner of synne and blasphemye shalbe forgyuen vnto men: but the blasphemye of the sprite, shall not be forgyuen vnto men. <sup>32</sup> And whosoever speaketh a worde agensyt the sone of man, it shalbe forgyuen hym. But whosoever speaketh agensyt the holy goost, it shall not be forgyuen hym: no, nether in this worlde, nether in the worlde to come.

<sup>33</sup> Ether make the tree good, and his frute good also: or els make the tree evyll, and his frute evyll also. For the tree is knowen by his frute. <sup>34</sup> O generacion of vyperes; how can ye saye well, when ye youre selves are evyll? For of the aboundance of the hert, the mouth speaketh. <sup>35</sup> A good man oute of the good treasure of his hert, bringeth forth good thynges. And an evyll man out of his evyll treasure, bringeth forth evyll thynges. <sup>36</sup> But I say vnto you, that of every ydell worde that men shall have spoken: they shall geve accountes at the daye of iudgement. <sup>37</sup> For by thy wordes thou shalt be iustified; and by thy wordes
 thou shalt be condemned.

CRANMER—1539.

he sayde vnto them: Euery kyngdome deuided agensyt it selfe, shalbe brought to naught. And euery cite or house deuyded agensyt it selfe shall not stande.
<sup>26</sup> And yf Satan cast out Satan, then is he deuyded agensyt hym selfe. How shall then his kyngdome endure? <sup>27</sup> Also, yf I by the helpe of Belzebul cast out deuyls, by whose helpe do youre chyldren cast them out? Therefore, thei shalbe your iudges. <sup>28</sup> But yf I cast out the deuyls by the spryte of God: then is the kyngdome of God come vnto you:

<sup>29</sup> Or els how can one enter into a stronge mannes house, and spoyle yse Jewels, excepte he fyrst bynde the stronge man, and then spoyle his house? <sup>30</sup> He that is not with me, is agensyt me. And he that gathereth not with me, scattereth abroad. <sup>31</sup> Wherefor, I saye vnto you, all maner of synne and blasphemye shalbe forgyuen vnto men; but the blasphemye agensyt the sprete, shall not be forgyuen vnto men. <sup>32</sup> And whosoever speaketh a worde agensyt the sone of man, it shalbe forgyuen hym. But whosoever speaketh agensyt the holy gost, it shall not be forgyuen hym, nether in this worlde, nether in the worlde to come:

<sup>33</sup> Ether make the tree good, and his frute good, or els make the tree euyll, and his frute euyll. For the tree is knowen by his frute.

<sup>34</sup> O generacyon of vyperes, how can ye speake good thynges, when ye youre selues are evyll? For out of the aboundance of the hert, the mouth speaketh. <sup>35</sup> A good man out of the good treasure of the hert, bringeth forth good thynges. And an euyll man, out of euyll treasure, bryngeth forth euyll thynges. <sup>36</sup> But I say vnto you, of euery ydell worde that men shall haue spoken, they shall geue accountes in the daye of iudgement. <sup>37</sup> For out of thy wordes thou shalt be iustified: out of thy wordes thou shalt be condemned.

32 καὶ ὃς ἂν εἶπῃ λόγον κατὰ τοῦ υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου, ἀφεθήσεται αὐτῷ· ὃς
 33 δ' ἂν εἶπῃ κατὰ τοῦ Πνεύματος τοῦ ἁγίου, οὐκ ἀφεθήσεται αὐτῷ, οὔτε ἐν
 34 τῷ ἡνῶν αἰῶνι οὔτε ἐν τῷ μέλλοντι. 35 ἢ ποιήσατε τὸ δένδρον καλόν, καὶ
 36 τὸν καρπὸν αὐτοῦ καλόν, ἢ ποιήσατε τὸ δένδρον σαπρὸν, καὶ τὸν καρπὸν
 37 αὐτοῦ σαπρὸν· ἐκ γὰρ τοῦ καρποῦ τὸ δένδρον γινώσκεται. 38 Γεννήματα 39 ἐχιδνῶν, πῶς δύνασθε ἀγαθὰ λαλεῖν, πονηροὶ ὄντες; ἐκ γὰρ τοῦ περισσεύ-
 40 ματος τῆς καρδίας τὸ στόμα λαλεῖ. 41 ὁ ἀγαθὸς ἄνθρωπος ἐκ τοῦ ἀγαθοῦ
 42 θησαυροῦ ἐκβάλλει ἀγαθὰ· καὶ ὁ πονηρὸς ἄνθρωπος ἐκ τοῦ πονηροῦ
 43 θησαυροῦ ἐκβάλλει πονηρά. λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, ὅτι πᾶν ῥῆμα ἀργόν, ὃ ἐὰν
 44 λαλήσωσιν οἱ ἄνθρωποι, ἀποδώσουσι περὶ αὐτοῦ λόγον ἐν ἡμέρᾳ κρίσεως. 45 46 γὰρ τῶν λόγων σου δικαιοθήσῃ, καὶ ἐκ τῶν λόγων σου καταδικασθήσῃ.

<sup>d</sup> Rec. τούτῳ τῷ.

<sup>e</sup> Rec. + τῆς καρδίας.

<sup>f</sup> Rec. τὰ ἀγαθὰ.

GENEVA—1557.

he sayd to them, Every kyngdome deuided agaynst it selfe, shalbe brought to naught: And every citie or house, de-uided agaynst it self, shal not stand. 26 If Satan cast out Satan, then he is deuided agaynst him self: How shal then his kyngdome endure? 27 Also if I through Beelzebub cast out deuyls, by whose helpe do your chyldren cast them out? Therefore they shalbe your iudges. 28 But if I cast out the deuyls by the Spirite of God, then is the kyngdome of God come to you. 29 Or els, how can a man enter into a stronge mans house, & spoyle his iewels, except he fyrst bynd the stronge man, and then spoyle his house. 30 He that is not with me, is agaynst me: and he that gathereth not with me, scattereth abrode.
 31 Wherefore I say vnto you, all maner of synne and blasphemie shalbe forgeuen vnto men: but the blasphemie agaynst
 the holy Ghost, shal not be forgeuen vnto men.

32 And whosoever shal speake agaynst
 the Sonne of man, it shalbe forgeuen him.
 But whosoever shal speake agaynst the holy Gost, it shal not be forgeuen him, neither in this world, nether in the world to come.

33 Either make the tree good, and his fruit good: or els make the tree euyl, and his fruit euyl. For the tree is known by his fruite. 34 O generations of vipers, how can you speake good thynges, when ye your selues are euyl? For of the abundance of the hart, the mouth speaketh. 35 A good man out of the good treasure of his hart, bryngeth forth good thynges. And an euyl man out of his euyl treasure, bryngeth forth euyl thynges.

36 But I say vnto you, that of euery ydel worde that men shal speake, they shal geue accomte, at the day of iudgement.

37 For by thy wordes thou shalt be iustified:
 and by thy wordes thou shalt be condemned.

RHEIMS—1582.

Every kyngdom deuided agaynst it self shal be made desolate: and every citie or house deuided agaynst it self, shal not stand. 26 And if Satan cast out Satan, he is deuided agaynst him self: how then shal his kyngdom stand? 27 And if I in Beelzebub cast out deuyls: your children in vvhom do they cast out? Therefore they shal be your iudges. 28 But if I in the Spirit of God do cast out deuyls, then is the kyngdom of God come vpon
 you.

29 Or how can a man enter into the house of the strong, and rifle his vessel, vyles he first binde the strong? and then he vvil rifle his house.

30 He that is not with me, is agaynst me:
 and he that gathereth not vvith me, scat-tereth. 31 Therefore I say to you, every sinne and blasphemie shal be forgiuen men, but the blasphemie of the Spirit shal not be forgiuen.

32 And vvhsocuer shal speake a vvord agaynst the Sonne of man, it shal be forgiuen him: but he that shal speake agaynst the Holy Ghost, it shal not be forgiuen him neither in this vvorld, nor in the vvorld to come.

33 Either make the tree good, and his fruite good: or make the tree euil, and his fruite euil. for of the fruite the tree is known.

34 You vipers broodes, how can you speake good thynges, vvhereas you are euyl?
 for of the abundance of the hart the mouth speaketh. 35 A good man out of a good treasure bringeth forth good things:
 and an euil man out of an euil treasure bringeth forth euil thynges.

36 But I say vnto you, that euery idle
 vvord that men shal speake, they shal render an accomt for it in the day of iudgement. 37 For by thy wordes thou shalt be iustified, and by thy vvordes
 thou shalt be condemned.

AUTHORISED—1611.

said vnto them, Every kyngdome diuided against it selfe, is brought to desolation:
 and every citie or house diuided against it selfe, shall not stand. 26 And if Satan cast out Satan, he is diuided against himselfe; how shall then his kyngdome stand?
 27 And if I by Beelzebub cast out deuyls, by whom doe your chyldren cast them out?
 Therefore they shall be your Iudges. 28
 But if I cast out deuyls by the Spirit of God, then the kyngdome of God is come vnto you. 29 Or else, how can one enter into a strong mans house, & spole his goods, except hee first binde the strong man, and then he will spole his house.

30 He that is not with me, is agaynst me:
 and hee that gathereth not with me, scat-tereth abroad.

31 Wherefore I say vnto you, All maner of sinne and blasphemie shall be forgiuen
 vnto men: but the blasphemie agaynst
 the holy Ghost, shall not be forgiuen vnto men. 32 And whosoever spenketh a vvord agaynst the sonne of man, it shall be forgiuen him: but whosoever speaketh agaynst the holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiuen him, neither in this vvorld, neither in the vvorld to come. 33 Either make the tree good, and his fruite good: Or else make the tree corrupt, and his fruite corrupt: For the tree is known by his fruite.

34 O generation of vipers, how can ye, being euil, speake good thynges? For out of the abundance of the hart the mouth
 speaketh. 35 A good man out of the good treasure of the hart, bringeth fourth good thynges: and an euill man out of the euill treasure, bringeth fourth euill thynges.

36 But I say vnto you, That euery idle
 vvord that men shal speake, they shal giue accomt thereof in the day of Iudge-ment. 37 For by thy vvords thou shalt be iustified, and by thy vvordesthou shalt be condemned.

<sup>38</sup> Τότε ἀπεκριθῆσάν<sup>9</sup> τινες τῶν γραμματέων καὶ Φαρισαίων, λέγοντες, ‘ Διδάσκαλε, θέλομεν ἀπὸ σοῦ σημεῖον ἰδεῖν.’ <sup>39</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ‘ Γενεὰ πονηρὰ καὶ μοιχαλὶς σημεῖον ἐπιζητεῖ· καὶ σημεῖον οὐ δοθήσεται αὐτῇ, εἰ μὴ τὸ σημεῖον Ἰωνᾶ τοῦ προφήτου. <sup>40</sup> Ὅσπερ γὰρ ἦν Ἰωνᾶς ἐν τῇ κοιλίᾳ τοῦ κήτους τρεῖς ἡμέρας καὶ τρεῖς νύκτας, οὕτως ἔσται ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐν τῇ καρδίᾳ τῆς γῆς τρεῖς ἡμέρας καὶ τρεῖς νύκτας. <sup>41</sup> Ἄνδρες Νινευῖται ἀναστήσονται ἐν τῇ κρίσει μετὰ τῆς γενεᾶς ταύτης, καὶ κατακρινοῦσιν αὐτήν· ὅτι μετενόησαν εἰς τὸ κήρυγμα Ἰωνᾶ· καὶ ἰδοὺ, πλείον Ἰωνᾶ ᾧδε. <sup>42</sup> Βασίλισσα νότου ἐγερθήσεται ἐν τῇ κρίσει μετὰ τῆς γενεᾶς ταύτης, καὶ κατακρινεῖ αὐτήν· ὅτι ἦλθεν ἐκ τῶν περάτων τῆς γῆς ἀκοῦσα τὴν σοφίαν ἡ Σολομῶνος· καὶ ἰδοὺ, πλείον ἡ Σολομῶνος! ᾧδε. <sup>43</sup> Ὅταν δὲ τὸ ἀκάθαρτον πνεῦμα ἐξέλθῃ ἀπὸ τοῦ

<sup>9</sup> Alex. + αὐτῶ.

<sup>h</sup> Rec. Σολομῶνος.

WICLIF—1380.

<sup>38</sup> thanne summe of the fariseis & of the scribis: answered to him & seiden; Maistrir we wolcn se a token of thei; <sup>39</sup> which answerid & seide to hem, an yuel kynrede & a spouse breker: sekith a tokene; & a token schal not be zoun to it: but the token of Ionas the profete; <sup>40</sup> for as Ionas was in the wombe of a whaal thre daies & thre nyghtis, so mannes soune schal be in the herte of the erthe thre daies and thre nyghtis; <sup>41</sup> & men of nynyue schulen rise in doom with this generacion and schulen condempne it: for thei diden penaunce in the prechyng of Ionas; and lo here a gretter than Ionas;

<sup>42</sup> the queene of the south schal rise in doom with this generacion & schal condempne it: for she cam from the endis of the erthe to here the wisdom of salomon; & lo here a gretter than salomon;

<sup>43</sup> whann an vnclene spirit goith out from a man: he goith bi drie plaies & sekith reste & findith not; <sup>44</sup> than he seith, I schal turne agen in to myn hous for whens I wente out; & he cometh & fyndith it noide; & clenxid with bisoms & made faire;

<sup>45</sup> than he goith & takith with hym seuen other spiritis worse than him self: & thei entren & dwellen there, & the last thingis of that man, ben made worse thanne the former; so it schal be to this worst generacion.

<sup>46</sup> jit while he spake to the puple: lo his modir & hise bretheren stoden without forth sekinge to speke with hym; <sup>47</sup> & a man seid to him; lo thi modir & thi bretheren stoden with out forth: sekinge the; <sup>48</sup> he answered to the man that spake to hym: and seide; who is my modir, & who ben my bretheren? <sup>49</sup> & he held forth his hond in to his discipulis &

<sup>9</sup> eril. pousse breker, adulterer. yonun, giron. <sup>h</sup> Ninesch. agen, again. wode, roid. bisoms, <sup>9</sup> and yet

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>38</sup> Then answered certeyne of the scribes and of the Phariseis sayinge: Master, we wolde fayne se a sygne of the. <sup>39</sup> He answered and sayde to them: The evyll and advoutrous generacion seketh a signe; but ther shall no signe be geven to them; saue the signe of the Prophete Ionas.

<sup>40</sup> For as Ionas was thre dayes and thre nyghtes in the whales belly: soo shall the sonne of man be thre dayes and thre nyghtes in the hert of the erth. <sup>41</sup> The men of Ninivie shall rise at the daye of iudgement with this nacion, and condempne them: for they amended at the preachinge of Ionas. And beholde, a greater then Ionas is here. <sup>42</sup> The queene of the south shall ryse at the daye of iudgement with this generacion; and shall condempne them: for she came from the vtmost parties of the worlde to heare the wysdome of Salomon. And beholde a greater then Salomon is here.

<sup>43</sup> When the vnclene sprite is gone out of a man, he walketh throughout dry places, sekyng rest and fyndeth none.

<sup>44</sup> Then he sayeth: I will retourne ageyne into my housse; from whence I came out. And when he is come, he fyndeth the housse empty and swete and garnished. <sup>45</sup> Then he goeth his waye; and taketh vnto him seven other spretes worse then him selfe; and so entre they in and dwell there. And the ende of that man is worse then the beginning. Even so shall it be with this cvell nacion.

<sup>46</sup> While he yet talked to the people: behold his mother and his bretheren stode without, desyringe to speake with him.

<sup>47</sup> Then one sayde vnto hym: beholde thy mother and thy bretheren stonde without, desyringe to speke with the. <sup>48</sup> He answered and sayd to him that tolde hym: Who is my mother? or who are my bretheren? <sup>49</sup> And he stretched forth his hond over his discipulis and sayd:

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>38</sup> Then certayne of the Scribes and of the Phariseis asked him saying. Master, we wyl se a sygne of the. <sup>39</sup> But he answered & sayde to them. The enyll and aduoutrous generacyon seketh a sygne and ther shall no sygne be geuen to them, but the sygne of the Prophet Ionas. <sup>40</sup> For as Ionas was thre dayes and thre nyghtes in the whales belly: so shall the sonne of man be thre dayes and thre nyghtes in the herte of the erth: <sup>41</sup> The men of ninive shall ryse in the iudgement with this nacyon, & condempne it, because they amended at the preachinge of Ionas. Behold, here is one greater then Ionas.

<sup>42</sup> The queene of the south shall ryse in the iudgement, with this generacyon, and shall condempne it: for she came from the vtmost partes of the worlde to heare the wysdome of Salomon. And beholde, in this place is one greater then Salomon.

<sup>43</sup> When the vnclene spryte is gone out of a man, he walketh throughout dry places, sekyng rest, and fyndeth none.

<sup>44</sup> Then he sayeth: I wyl retourne into my house, from whence I came out. And when he is come, he fyndeth it empty, and swete, and garnished. <sup>45</sup> Then goeth he, & taketh vnto him seuen other spretes worse then hym selfe, and so entere he in, and dwelleth there. And the ende of that man is worse then the beginning. Euen so shall it be also, vnto this froward generacyon.

<sup>46</sup> Why! he yet talked to the people: beholde his mother and his bretheren stode without, desyringe to speake with him. <sup>47</sup> Then one sayd vnto him: beholde, thy mother and thy bretheren stande without, desyringe to speake with the.

<sup>48</sup> But he answered, & saide vnto hym that had tolde him: Who is my mother? or who are my bretheren? <sup>49</sup> And he stretched forth his hand towarde his ‘ ἀνθρώπου, διέρχεται δι’ ἀνδρῶν τόπων, ζητοῦν ἀνάπαυσιν, καὶ οὐχ εὐρίσκει.

 ‘ <sup>44</sup> τότε λέγει, Ἐπιστρέψω εἰς τὸν οἶκόν μου, ὅθεν ἐξῆλθον· καὶ ἔλθον εὐρίσκει ‘ σχολάζοντα, σεσαρωμένον καὶ κεκοσμημένον. <sup>45</sup> τότε πορεύεται καὶ παρα‘ λαμβάνει μεθ’ ἑαυτοῦ ἑπτὰ ἕτερα πνεύματα πονηρότερα ἑαυτοῦ, καὶ εἰσελθόντα ‘ κατοικεῖ ἐκεῖ· καὶ γίνεται τὰ ἔσχατα τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐκείνου χεῖρονα τῶν πρώτων.
 ‘ οὕτως ἔσται καὶ τῇ γενεᾷ ταύτῃ τῇ πονηρᾷ.’

<sup>46</sup> Ἐτι δὲ αὐτοῦ λαλοῦντος τοῖς ὄχλοις, ἰδοῦ, ἡ μήτηρ καὶ οἱ ἀδελφοὶ αὐτοῦ
 εἰστήκεισαν ἔξω, ζητοῦντες αὐτῷ λαλήσαι. <sup>47</sup> εἶπε δέ τις αὐτῷ, ‘ Ἰδοῦ, ἡ μήτηρ ‘ σου καὶ οἱ ἀδελφοὶ σου ἔξω ἐστήκασιν, ζητοῦντές σοι λαλήσαι.’ <sup>48</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπε τῷ εἰπόντι αὐτῷ, ‘ Τίς ἐστὶν ἡ μήτηρ μου; καὶ τίνες εἰσὶν οἱ ‘ ἀδελφοὶ μου;’ <sup>49</sup> Καὶ ἐκτείνας τὴν χεῖρα αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ εἶπεν,

GENEVA — 1557.

<sup>38</sup> Then answered certayne of the Scribes and of the Pharises, saying, Master, we will see a sygne of thee.

<sup>39</sup> But he answered, and said to them, The euil and aduouterous generation seeketh a signe, but there shal no sygne be giuen to them, saue the signe of the Prophet Ionas. <sup>40</sup> For as Ionas was three dayes, & three nyghtes in the whales belly: so shal the Sonne of man be three dayes and three nyghtes in the hart of the earth.

<sup>41</sup> The Ninuities shal ryse in iudgement with this nation, and condemne them; for they amended at the preaching of Ionas. And behold, a greater then Ionas is here. <sup>42</sup> The Queene of the south shal ryse in iudgement with this generation, and shal condemne it: for she came, from the vtmost parties of the world to heare the wysedome of Solomon. And beholde a greater then Solomon is here.

<sup>43</sup> When the vnclene sprite is gone out of a man, he walketh throughout dry places, seeking rest, and findeth none. <sup>44</sup> Then he saeth, I will returne into my house, from whence I came out. And when he is come, he fyndeth it empty, swept, & garnished.

<sup>45</sup> Then he goeth hys way, & taketh vnto hym seuen other spirites worse then hym selfe, and so entre they in, and dwel there: and the ende of that man is worse then the begynnynge. Euen so shal it be with this euil nation. <sup>46</sup> Whyhe he yet talked to the people, beholde his mother, and his brethren stode without, desyring to speake with him. <sup>47</sup> Then one said vnto hym, Beholde thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desyring to speake with thee. <sup>48</sup> But he answered, and said to hym that told him, Who is my mother? And who are my brethren? <sup>49</sup> And he stretched forth his hand

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>38</sup> Then answered him certayne of the Scribes and Pharisees, saying, Maister, vve vould see a signe from thee. <sup>39</sup> who answered, and said to them,

The vicked and aduouterous generation seeketh a signe: and a signe shal not be giuen it, but the signe of Ionas the Prophet. <sup>40</sup> For as Ionas vvas in the vvholes belly three dayes and three nyghtes: so shal the Sonne of man be in the hart of the earth three dayes and three nyghtes.

<sup>41</sup> The men of Ninuee shal rise in the iudgement with this generation, and shal condemne it: because they did penance at the preaching of Ionas. And behold more then Ionas here. <sup>42</sup> The Queene of the South shal rise in the iudgement vvith this generation, and shal condemne it: because she came from the endes of the earth to heare the vvisedom of Salomon, and behold more then Salomon here.

<sup>43</sup> And vvhen an vnclene spirit shal goe out of a man, he vvalketh through dry places, seeking rest, and findeth not. <sup>44</sup> Then he saith, I vvill returne into my house vvhen I came out. And coming he findeth it vacant, svvept vvith besoms, and trimmed.

<sup>45</sup> Then goeth he, and taketh vvith him seuen other spirites more vicked then him self, and they enter in and dvvel there: and the last of that man be made vvorse then the first. So shal it be also to this vicked generation.

<sup>46</sup> As he vvvas yet speaking to the multitudes, behold his mother and his brethren stode vvithout, seeking to speake to him. <sup>47</sup> And one said vnto him, Behold thy mother and thy brethren stand vvithout, seeking thee. <sup>48</sup> But he answering him that told him, said, Who is my mother, and vvho are my brethren? <sup>49</sup> And stretching forth his hand vpon his Disciples, he

AUTHORISED — 1611.

<sup>38</sup> Then certayne of the Scribes, and of the Pharisees, answered, saying, Master, we would see a signe from thee. <sup>39</sup> But hee answered, and saide to them, An euill and adulterous generation seeketh after a signe, and there shal no signe be giuen to it, but the signe of the Prophet Ionas.

<sup>40</sup> For as Ionas was three dayes and three nights in the whales belly: so shal the Son of man be three dayes and three nights in the heart of the earth. <sup>41</sup> The men of Ninuee shall rise in iudgement with this generation, and shall condemne it, because they repented at the preaching of Ionas, and behold, a greater then Ionas is here.

<sup>42</sup> The Queene of the South shall rise vp in the iudgement with this generation, and shall condemne it: for she came from the vttermost parts of the earth to heare the wisedome of Solomon, and behold, a greater then Solomon is here. <sup>43</sup> When the vnclene spirit is gone out of a man, hee walketh thorow dry places, seeking rest, and findeth none. <sup>44</sup> Then he saith, I will returne into my house from whence I came out: And when he is come, he findeth it empty, swept, and garnished.

<sup>45</sup> Then goeth he, and taketh with himselfe seuen other spirits more wicked then himselfe, and they enter in and dwell there: And the last state of that man is worse then the first. Euen so shall it be also vnto this wicked generation.

<sup>46</sup> While he yet talked to the people, beholde, his mother and his brethren stood without, desiring to speake with him. <sup>47</sup> Then one saide vnto him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to speake with thee. <sup>48</sup> But he answered, and said vnto him that told him, Who is my mother? And who are my brethren? <sup>49</sup> And he stretched forth his hand toward his disciples, and said,

‘ Ἰδοὺ, ἡ μήτηρ μου καὶ οἱ ἀδελφοί μου. <sup>50</sup> ὅστις γὰρ ἂν ποιήσῃ τὸ θέλημα
 τοῦ πατρὸς μου τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς, αὐτὸς μου ἀδελφὸς καὶ ἀδελφὴ καὶ μήτηρ ἐστίν.’

XIII. Ἐν δὲ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ ἐκείνῃ ἐξελλθὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀπὸ τῆς οἰκίας ἐκάθητο παρὰ τὴν θάλασσαν· <sup>2</sup> καὶ συνήχθησαν πρὸς αὐτὸν ὄχλοι πολλοί, ὥστε αὐτὸν εἰς τὸ πλοῖον ἐμβάντα καθῆσθαι· καὶ πᾶς ὁ ὄχλος ἐπὶ τὸν αἰγιαλὸν εἰστήκει.
<sup>3</sup> καὶ ἐλάλησεν αὐτοῖς πολλὰ ἐν παραβολαῖς, λέγων, ‘ Ἰδοὺ, ἐξῆλθεν ὁ σπείρων
 τοῦ σπείρειν. | <sup>4</sup> καὶ ἐν τῷ σπείρειν αὐτὸν, ἃ μὲν ἔπεσε παρὰ τὴν ὁδὸν· καὶ
 ἤλθε | τὰ πετεινὰ, καὶ κατέφαγεν αὐτά. <sup>5</sup> ἄλλα δὲ ἔπεσεν ἐπὶ τὰ πετρώδη, ὅπου οὐκ εἶχε γῆν πολλήν· καὶ εὐθέως ἐξανέτειλε, διὰ τὸ μὴ ἔχειν βάθος γῆς· <sup>6</sup> ἥλιου δὲ ἀνατείλαντος ἐκαυματίσθη, καὶ διὰ τὸ μὴ ἔχειν ρίζαν, ἐξηράνθη.

<sup>1</sup> Alex. σπείραι.

<sup>2</sup> Alex. ἤθον.

WICLIF—1380.

seyde, lo my modir and my brithren/<sup>50</sup> For who euer doith the wille of my furdr that is in heuenes : he is my brothir ⁊ sistr ⁊ modir.

13. IN that dai ihesus zede out of the hous : ⁊ sat besidis the see, <sup>2</sup> ⁊ moche puple was gaderid to hym : so that he wente up in to a boot ⁊ sat, ⁊ al the puple stood on the brinke : <sup>3</sup> ⁊ he spake to hem many thingis in parabis ⁊ seyde, lo he that sowth zede out to sowe his seede.

<sup>4</sup> and while he sowth : sum seedis fillen bisidis the wey, and briddis of the cir cimen : and eten hem, <sup>5</sup> but othir sedis fillen in to stony placis : where thei hadden not moch erthe, ⁊ anon thei sprangun vp, for thei hadden not depnes of erthe, <sup>6</sup> but when the sunne was risen : thei swaliden ⁊ for thei hadden not roote thei dried up, <sup>7</sup> ⁊ othir sedis fillen among thornes : ⁊ thornes woxen up : ⁊ strangliden hem, <sup>8</sup> but othir seedis fillen in to good lond : and zauen fruyt, sum an hundred fold, another sixti fold, an othir thritti fold, <sup>9</sup> he that hath ceris of herringe : here he

<sup>10</sup> ⁊ the discipul camen ny, ⁊ seyden to hym, whi spekest thou in parabis to hem?
<sup>11</sup> ⁊ he answerde ⁊ seid to hem, for to you it is souun to knowe the priuytees of the kyngdom of heuenes : but it is not souun to hem, <sup>12</sup> for to thei schal be souun to hym that hath, ⁊ he schal haue plente, but if a man hath not, also that thing that he hath, schal be taken away fro him, <sup>13</sup> therfor I speke to hem in parabis, for thei seinge : se not, ⁊ thei heringe heren not, nether vnderstonen : <sup>14</sup> that the profecie of Isaac seiynge be fulfillid in hem, with heringe ge schulen here ⁊ ge schulen not vnderston and ge seiynge : schulen se : and ge schulen not se, <sup>15</sup> for the herte of this puple is greetli fattid : and thei sebe, went walden, neither, zauen, gare ny, high þou n. grom pri stes, secrets.

TYNDALE—1534.

behold my mother and my brethren, <sup>50</sup> For whosoever dothe my fathers will which is in heven, the same is my brother, suster and mother.

13. THE same daye went Iesus out of the house, and sat by the see syde, <sup>2</sup> and moch people resorted vnto him, so gretly that he went and sat in a shippe, and all the people stode on the shoore. <sup>3</sup> And he spake many thynges to them in simili-tudes, sayinge : Beholde, the sower went forth to sow. <sup>4</sup> And as he soweth, some fell by the wayes syde, and the fowls came and deuoured it vp. <sup>5</sup> Some fell upon stony grounde where it had not moche erth, and a nonne it spronge vp, because it had no depth of erth : <sup>6</sup> and when the sunne was vp, it cauh heat, and for lake of rotyng wyddred awaye.
<sup>7</sup> Some fell amonge thornes, ⁊ the thornes spronge vp and chooked it. <sup>8</sup> Parte fell in good ground, ⁊ brought forth good frute :
 some an hundred fold, some sixtie fold, some thyrti folde. <sup>9</sup> Whosoever hath cares to heare, let him heare.

<sup>10</sup> And the disciples came and sayde to him : Why speakest thou to them in parables? <sup>11</sup> He answered and sayde vnto them : it is geuen vnto you to knowe the secrets of the kyngdome of heven, but to them it is not geuen. <sup>12</sup> For whosoever hath to him shall be geuen : and he shall haue abundance. But whosoever hath not : from hym shal be takyn a waye euen that he hath. <sup>13</sup> Therefore speake I to them in similitudes : for though they se, they se not : ⁊ hearinge they heare not :
 nether vnderstonde. <sup>14</sup> And in them is fulfillid the Prophesie of Esayas which prophesie sayth : with the eares ye shall heare and shall not vnderstonde, and with the eyes ye shall see and shall not perceau. <sup>15</sup> For this peoples hertes are waxed grosse, ⁊ their cares were dull of hearinge,

CRANMER—1539.

disciples, ⁊ sayd : beholde, my mother and my brethren. <sup>50</sup> For whosoever doth the will of my father which is in heauen, the same is my brother, systere, and mother.

13. THE same daye went Iesus out of the house, ⁊ sat by the see side, <sup>2</sup> and moch people were gathered together vnto hym, so gretly that he went, and sat in a shippe, and all the people stode on the shore. <sup>3</sup> And he spake many thynges to them by symylitudes, sayinge : Beholde, the sower went forth to sow. <sup>4</sup> And when he sowed, some sedes fell by the wayes syde, and the fowles came, and deuoured them vp. <sup>5</sup> Some fell vpon stony places, where they had not moche erth, and anon they spronge vp, because they had no depnesse of erth : <sup>6</sup> ⁊ when the sonne was vp, they caught heat, ⁊ because they had no rote, they wyddred awaye. <sup>7</sup> Again, some fell amonge thornes, and the thornes spronge vp and chooked them. <sup>8</sup> But some fell into good ground, ⁊ brought forth frute : some an hundred fold, some sixtite folde, some thirtie folde.
<sup>9</sup> Whosoever hath cares to heare, let him care.

<sup>10</sup> And the disciples came, ⁊ sayde vnto hym : Why speakest thou to them by parabes? <sup>11</sup> He answered and sayde vnto them : it is geuen vnto you to knowe the secretes of the kyngdome of heuen, but to them it is not geuen. <sup>12</sup> For whosoeuer hath, to him shall be geuen : and he shall haue abundance. But whosoeuer hath not : from him shalbe taken a waye euen that also which he hath.
<sup>13</sup> Therefore speake I to them by symili-tude : for they seing, se not : and hear-inge, they heare not : nother do they vnderstand. <sup>14</sup> And in them is fulfillid the prophecie of Esayas, which sayth : with the eares ye shall heare, and shall not vnderstand, and seiinge ye shall se, and shall not perceau. <sup>15</sup> For these peoples herts is waxed grosse, ⁊ their cares are dull of

‘ ἄλλα δὲ ἔπεσεν ἐπὶ τὰς ἀκάνθας, καὶ ἀνέβησαν αἱ ἀκάνθαι, καὶ ἀπέπνυξαν αὐτά. <sup>8</sup> ἄλλα δὲ ἔπεσεν ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν τὴν καλὴν, καὶ ἐδίδου καρπὸν, ὃ μὲν ἑκατὸν, ὃ δὲ ἐξήκοντα, ὃ δὲ τριάκοντα. <sup>9</sup> ὃ ἔχων ὅτα ἀκούειν ἀκούετω. <sup>10</sup> Καὶ προσελθόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ εἶπον αὐτῷ, ‘ Διὰ τί ἐν παραβολαῖς λαλεῖς αὐτοῖς; ’ <sup>11</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ‘ Ὅτι ὑμῖν δέδοται γινῶναι τὰ μυστήρια τῆς βασιλείας τῶν οὐρανῶν, ἐκείνοις δὲ οὐ δέδοται. <sup>12</sup> ὅστις γὰρ ἔχει, δοθήσεται αὐτῷ, καὶ περισσευθήσεται· ὅστις δὲ οὐκ ἔχει, καὶ ὃ ἔχει, ἀρθήσεται ἀπ’ αὐτοῦ. <sup>13</sup> διὰ τοῦτο ἐν παραβολαῖς αὐτοῖς λαλῶ, ὅτι βλέποντες οὐ βλέπουσι, καὶ ἀκούοντες οὐκ ἀκούουσιν οὐδὲ συνιοῦσι. <sup>14</sup> καὶ ἀναπληροῦται αὐτοῖς ἡ προφητεία Ἡσαίου, ἣ λέγουσα, ‘ Ἀκοῆ ἀκούσετε, καὶ οὐ μὴ συνήτε· καὶ βλέποντες βλέψετε, καὶ οὐ μὴ ἴδητε. <sup>15</sup> Ἐπαχύνθη γὰρ ἡ καρδία τοῦ λαοῦ

<sup>1</sup> Rec. + ἐπ’.

GENEVA — 1557.

towards his disciples, and said, Behold my mother and my brethren. <sup>50</sup> For whosoever shall do my fathers will which is in heaven, the same is my brother and sister, and mother.

13. THE same day went Iesus out of the house, and sate by the sea side. <sup>2</sup> And muche people resorted vnto him, so that he went, and sate in a ship, and al the people stode on the shore. <sup>3</sup> And he spake many thynges to them in similitudes, saying, Beholde, a sower went forth to sowe. <sup>4</sup> And as he sowed, some fell by the wayes syde, and the foules came and deuoured them vp. <sup>5</sup> And some fell vpon stony grounde, where they had not much earth, & a none they sprong vp, because they had no depth of earth. <sup>6</sup> And when the sonne was vp, they were parched, and for lacke of rotyng, wythred away. <sup>7</sup> And some fel among thornes, and the thornes sprong vp, and choked them. <sup>8</sup> Some agayne fel in good ground, and brought forth frute : one corne an hundred folde, some sixty folde, and another thyrty folde. <sup>9</sup> Whosoever hath eares to heare, let hym heare.

<sup>10</sup> And the disciples came, and sayd to hym, Why speakest thou to them in parables? <sup>11</sup> He answered and sayd vnto them, because it is giuen vnto you, to knowe the secretes of the kyngdome of heauen, but to them it is not giuen. <sup>12</sup> For whosoever hath, to hym shalbe giuen, and he shal haue abundance. But whosoever hath not, from hym shalbe taken away, euen that he hath. <sup>13</sup> Therefore speake I to them in similitudes, because they seying, do not see; & hearing, they heare not, nether vnderstand. <sup>14</sup> And in them is fulfilled the Prophecie of Esai, which prophecie sayth: with the eares ye shal heare, and shal not vnderstand: and with the eyes ye shal see, & shal not perceiue. <sup>15</sup> For this peoples hart is waxed fatt, and their said, Behold my mother and my brethren. <sup>50</sup> For whosoever shall do the will of my Father, that is in heaven: he is my brother, and sister, and mother.

RHEIMS — 1582.

13. THE same day IESVS going out of the house, sate by the sea side. <sup>2</sup> And great multitudes were gathered together vnto him, in so much that he went vp into a boate & sate: and al the multitude stode in the shore. <sup>3</sup> and he spake to them many things in parables, saying,

Behold the sower went forth to sove. <sup>4</sup> And whyles he soveveth, some fell by the vway side, and the foules of the aire did come and eate it. <sup>5</sup> Othersome also fell vpon rockie places, where they had not much earth: and they shot vp incontinēt, because they had not deepenes of earth, <sup>6</sup> and after the sunne vvas vp, they parched: and because they had not roote, they withered. <sup>7</sup> And other fell among thornes: and the thornes grevve and choked them. <sup>8</sup> And othersome fell vpon good ground: and they yelded fruite, the one an hundredfold, the other threescore, and an other thirtie. <sup>9</sup> He that hath eares to heare, let him heare.

<sup>10</sup> And his Disciples came and said to him. Why speakest thou to them in parables? <sup>11</sup> Who answered and said vnto them, Because to you it is giuen to knovv the mysteries of the kingdom of heauen: but to them it is not giuen. <sup>12</sup> For he that hath, to him shal be giuen, and he shal abound: but he that hath not, from him shal be taken away that also vvich he hath. <sup>13</sup> Therefore in parables I speake to them: because seeing they see not, and hearing they heare not, neither do they vnderstand: <sup>14</sup> and the prophecie of Esay is fulfilled in them, vvich saith, With hearing shal you heare, and you shal not vnderstand: and seeing shal you see, and you shal not see. <sup>15</sup> For the hart of this people is vvaxed grosse, and vvith

AUTHORISED — 1611.

Behold, my mother and my brethren. <sup>50</sup> For whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother.

13. THE same day went Iesus out of the house, and sate by the sea side. <sup>2</sup> And great multitudes were gathered together vnto him, so that hee went into a ship, and sate, and the whole multitude stood on the shore. <sup>3</sup> And hee spake many things vnto them in parables, saying, Behold, a sower went fourth to sow. <sup>4</sup> And when he sowed, some seedes fell by the way side, and the foules came, and deuoured them vp. <sup>5</sup> Some fell vpon stony places, where they had not much earth: and forthwith they sprong vp, because they had no depenesse of earth. <sup>6</sup> And when the Sunne was vp, they were scorched: and because they had not roote, they withered away. <sup>7</sup> And some fell among thornes: and the thornes sprong vp, & choked them. <sup>8</sup> But other fell into good ground, and brought fourth fruit, some an hundred folde, some sixtie folde, some thirtie folde. <sup>9</sup> Who hath eares to heare, let him heare.

<sup>10</sup> And the disciples came, and sayd vnto him, Why speakest thou vnto them in parables? <sup>11</sup> He answered, and sayd vnto them, Because it is giuen vnto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heauen, but to them it is not giuen. <sup>12</sup> For whosoever hath, to him shall be giuen, and he shall haue more abundance: but whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken away, euen that hee hath. <sup>13</sup> Therefore speake I to them in parables; because they seeing, see not: and hearing, they heare not, neither doe they vnderstand.

<sup>14</sup> And in them is fulfilled the prophecie of Esaias, which saith, By hearing ye shall heare, and shall not vnderstand: and seeing ye shall see, and shall not perceiue. <sup>15</sup> For this peoples heart is waxed grosse, and their eares are dull of

“τούτου, καὶ τοῖς ὡσὶ βαρέως ἤκουσαν, καὶ τοὺς ὀφθαλμοὺς αὐτῶν ἐκάμυσαν “μήποτε ἴδωσι τοῖς ὀφθαλμοῖς, καὶ τοῖς ὠσὶν ἀκούσωσι, καὶ τῇ καρδίᾳ συνιώσι, “καὶ ἐπιστρέψωσι, καὶ ἴασωμαι αὐτούς.”<sup>16</sup> Ὑμῶν δὲ μακάριοι οἱ ὀφθαλμοί, “ὅτι βλέπουσι· καὶ τὰ ὄψα ὑμῶν, ὅτι ἀκούει·|<sup>17</sup> ἄμην γὰρ λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι
 “πολλοὶ προφήται καὶ δίκαιοι ἐπεθύμησαν ἰδεῖν ἃ βλέπετε, καὶ οὐκ εἶδον· καὶ “ἀκούσαι ἃ ἀκούετε, καὶ οὐκ ἤκουσαν.<sup>18</sup> Ὑμεῖς οὖν ἀκούσατε τὴν παραβολὴν “τοῦ σπεύροντος.<sup>19</sup> Παντὸς ἀκούοντος τὸν λόγον τῆς βασιλείας καὶ μὴ συνιέντος, “ἔρχεται ὁ πονηρὸς, καὶ ἀρπάξει τὸ ἐσπαρμένον ἐν τῇ καρδίᾳ αὐτοῦ· οὗτός ἐστιν “ὁ παρὰ τὴν ὁδὸν σπαρεῖς.<sup>20</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἐπὶ τὰ πετρώδη σπαρεῖς, οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ τὸν “λόγον ἀκούων, καὶ εὐθὺς μετὰ χαρᾶς λαμβάνων αὐτόν·<sup>21</sup> οὐκ ἔχει δὲ ῥίζαν ἐν “ἐαυτῷ, ἀλλὰ πρόσκαιρός ἐστι· γενομένης δὲ θλίψεως ἢ διωγμοῦ διὰ τὸν λόγον,

<sup>16</sup> Alex. ἴασομαι.

<sup>17</sup> Alex. ἀκούουσιν.

WICLIFF—1380.

herden heuyl̄ with eris : and thei han closid her isen/ leest sumtyme thei seen with isen and heren with eris ⁊ vnderstonden in herte; ⁊ thei ben conuertid ⁊
 I heele hem/

<sup>16</sup> but soure isen that seen ben blessid :
 ⁊ soure eris that heren. <sup>17</sup> forsothe I sey to you, that many profetis ⁊ iust men, coueitiden to se tho thingis that se seen :
 ⁊ thei saien not ⁊ to here tho thingis that se heren : ⁊ thei herden not,<sup>18</sup> therfor here se the parable of the sower,<sup>19</sup> eche that herith the word of the rewme, and vnder-standith not : the yuel spirit cometh ⁊ raynschith that, that is sowen in his herte,
 this is that is sowen hisidis the weye.
<sup>20</sup> but this that is sowen on the stony lond : this is that herith the word of god, and anon with ioie takith it,<sup>21</sup> and he hath not root in hym self : but is temperal, for whan tribulacioun ⁊ persecucioun is made for the word : anon he is schlaundrid/

<sup>22</sup> but he that is sowen in thornes :
 is this that herith the word, and the bisynes of this world, and the falluce of richess strengith the word : and it is made without fruyt,<sup>23</sup> but he that is sowen in to good lond : is this that herith the word and vnderstandith, and bryngith forth fruyt, and summe makith an hundrid fold, truli another sixti foold : ⁊ another thritti
 folde.

<sup>24</sup> Another parable ihesus puttid forth to hem and seide, the kyngdom of heuenes is made like to a man that sewe good seed in his feld,<sup>25</sup> and whanne men slepen :
 his enemy cam and sewe aboue taris in the myddel of whete, ⁊ wente awei.<sup>26</sup> but whanne the erbe was growun ⁊ made fruyt : thanne the taris appereden,<sup>27</sup> ⁊ the seruauntis of the housbonde man camen and seiden to him, lord where thou hast not sowid good seed in this feld :

3. 10. 19. 20. 21. 22. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 28. 29. 30. 31. 32. 33. 34. 35. 36. 37. 38. 39. 40. 41. 42. 43. 44. 45. 46. 47. 48. 49. 50. 51. 52. 53. 54. 55. 56. 57. 58. 59. 60. 61. 62. 63. 64. 65. 66. 67. 68. 69. 70. 71. 72. 73. 74. 75. 76. 77. 78. 79. 80. 81. 82. 83. 84. 85. 86. 87. 88. 89. 90. 91. 92. 93. 94. 95. 96. 97. 98. 99. 100. 101. 102. 103. 104. 105. 106. 107. 108. 109. 110. 111. 112. 113. 114. 115. 116. 117. 118. 119. 120. 121. 122. 123. 124. 125. 126. 127. 128. 129. 130. 131. 132. 133. 134. 135. 136. 137. 138. 139. 140. 141. 142. 143. 144. 145. 146. 147. 148. 149. 150. 151. 152. 153. 154. 155. 156. 157. 158. 159. 160. 161. 162. 163. 164. 165. 166. 167. 168. 169. 170. 171. 172. 173. 174. 175. 176. 177. 178. 179. 180. 181. 182. 183. 184. 185. 186. 187. 188. 189. 190. 191. 192. 193. 194. 195. 196. 197. 198. 199. 200. 201. 202. 203. 204. 205. 206. 207. 208. 209. 210. 211. 212. 213. 214. 215. 216. 217. 218. 219. 220. 221. 222. 223. 224. 225. 226. 227. 228. 229. 230. 231. 232. 233. 234. 235. 236. 237. 238. 239. 240. 241. 242. 243. 244. 245. 246. 247. 248. 249. 250. 251. 252. 253. 254. 255. 256. 257. 258. 259. 260. 261. 262. 263. 264. 265. 266. 267. 268. 269. 270. 271. 272. 273. 274. 275. 276. 277. 278. 279. 280. 281. 282. 283. 284. 285. 286. 287. 288. 289. 290. 291. 292. 293. 294. 295. 296. 297. 298. 299. 300. 301. 302. 303. 304. 305. 306. 307. 308. 309. 310. 311. 312. 313. 314. 315. 316. 317. 318. 319. 320. 321. 322. 323. 324. 325. 326. 327. 328. 329. 330. 331. 332. 333. 334. 335. 336. 337. 338. 339. 340. 341. 342. 343. 344. 345. 346. 347. 348. 349. 350. 351. 352. 353. 354. 355. 356. 357. 358. 359. 360. 361. 362. 363. 364. 365. 366. 367. 368. 369. 370. 371. 372. 373. 374. 375. 376. 377. 378. 379. 380. 381. 382. 383. 384. 385. 386. 387. 388. 389. 390. 391. 392. 393. 394. 395. 396. 397. 398. 399. 400. 401. 402. 403. 404. 405. 406. 407. 408. 409. 410. 411. 412. 413. 414. 415. 416. 417. 418. 419. 420. 421. 422. 423. 424. 425. 426. 427. 428. 429. 430. 431. 432. 433. 434. 435. 436. 437. 438. 439. 440. 441. 442. 443. 444. 445. 446. 447. 448. 449. 450. 451. 452. 453. 454. 455. 456. 457. 458. 459. 460. 461. 462. 463. 464. 465. 466. 467. 468. 469. 470. 471. 472. 473. 474. 475. 476. 477. 478. 479. 480. 481. 482. 483. 484. 485. 486. 487. 488. 489. 490. 491. 492. 493. 494. 495. 496. 497. 498. 499. 500. 501. 502. 503. 504. 505. 506. 507. 508. 509. 510. 511. 512. 513. 514. 515. 516. 517. 518. 519. 520. 521. 522. 523. 524. 525. 526. 527. 528. 529. 530. 531. 532. 533. 534. 535. 536. 537. 538. 539. 540. 541. 542. 543. 544. 545. 546. 547. 548. 549. 550. 551. 552. 553. 554. 555. 556. 557. 558. 559. 560. 561. 562. 563. 564. 565. 566. 567. 568. 569. 570. 571. 572. 573. 574. 575. 576. 577. 578. 579. 580. 581. 582. 583. 584. 585. 586. 587. 588. 589. 590. 591. 592. 593. 594. 595. 596. 597. 598. 599. 600. 601. 602. 603. 604. 605. 606. 607. 608. 609. 610. 611. 612. 613. 614. 615. 616. 617. 618. 619. 620. 621. 622. 623. 624. 625. 626. 627. 628. 629. 630. 631. 632. 633. 634. 635. 636. 637. 638. 639. 640. 641. 642. 643. 644. 645. 646. 647. 648. 649. 650. 651. 652. 653. 654. 655. 656. 657. 658. 659. 660. 661. 662. 663. 664. 665. 666. 667. 668. 669. 670. 671. 672. 673. 674. 675. 676. 677. 678. 679. 680. 681. 682. 683. 684. 685. 686. 687. 688. 689. 690. 691. 692. 693. 694. 695. 696. 697. 698. 699. 700. 701. 702. 703. 704. 705. 706. 707. 708. 709. 710. 711. 712. 713. 714. 715. 716. 717. 718. 719. 720. 721. 722. 723. 724. 725. 726. 727. 728. 729. 730. 731. 732. 733. 734. 735. 736. 737. 738. 739. 740. 741. 742. 743. 744. 745. 746. 747. 748. 749. 750. 751. 752. 753. 754. 755. 756. 757. 758. 759. 760. 761. 762. 763. 764. 765. 766. 767. 768. 769. 770. 771. 772. 773. 774. 775. 776. 777. 778. 779. 780. 781. 782. 783. 784. 785. 786. 787. 788. 789. 790. 791. 792. 793. 794. 795. 796. 797. 798. 799. 800. 801. 802. 803. 804. 805. 806. 807. 808. 809. 810. 811. 812. 813. 814. 815. 816. 817. 818. 819. 820. 821. 822. 823. 824. 825. 826. 827. 828. 829. 830. 831. 832. 833. 834. 835. 836. 837. 838. 839. 840. 841. 842. 843. 844. 845. 846. 847. 848. 849. 850. 851. 852. 853. 854. 855. 856. 857. 858. 859. 860. 861. 862. 863. 864. 865. 866. 867. 868. 869. 870. 871. 872. 873. 874. 875. 876. 877. 878. 879. 880. 881. 882. 883. 884. 885. 886. 887. 888. 889. 890. 891. 892. 893. 894. 895. 896. 897. 898. 899. 900. 901. 902. 903. 904. 905. 906. 907. 908. 909. 910. 911. 912. 913. 914. 915. 916. 917. 918. 919. 920. 921. 922. 923. 924. 925. 926. 927. 928. 929. 930. 931. 932. 933. 934. 935. 936. 937. 938. 939. 940. 941. 942. 943. 944. 945. 946. 947. 948. 949. 950. 951. 952. 953. 954. 955. 956. 957. 958. 959. 960. 961. 962. 963. 964. 965. 966. 967. 968. 969. 970. 971. 972. 973. 974. 975. 976. 977. 978. 979. 980. 981. 982. 983. 984. 985. 986. 987. 988. 989. 990. 991. 992. 993. 994. 995. 996. 997. 998. 999. 1000.

TYNDALE—1534.

⁊ their eyes haue they closid, lest they shulde se with their eyes/ and heare with their eares/ and shuld vnderstonde with their herts/ ⁊ shuld tourne/ that I myght heale them.

<sup>16</sup> But blessed are youre eyes/ for they se : ⁊ youre eares/ for they heare. <sup>17</sup> Ve-rely I say vnto you/ that many Prophets ⁊ perfaitte men haue desired to se the thingis which ye se/ ⁊ haue not scen them :
 ⁊ to heare tho thingis which ye heare/ ⁊ haue not herde them. <sup>18</sup> Heare ye therefore the similitude of the sower. <sup>19</sup> Whosoeuer heareth the worde of the kingdome/⁊ vnderstondeth it not/ ther cometh the euyl man and catcheth awaye that which was sowne in his hert. And this is he which was sowne by the waye syde.
<sup>20</sup> But he that was sowne in the stony grounde/ is he which heareth the worde of God/ ⁊ anonne with ioie receaueth it,<sup>21</sup> yet hath he no root in him selfe/ ⁊ therefore dureth but a season : for asonne as tribulation or persecucion aryseth because of the worde/ by ⁊ by he falleth. <sup>22</sup> He that was sowne amonge thornes/ is he that heareth the worde of God : but the care of this worlde/ ⁊ the dissaytfulnes of ryches choke the worde/ ⁊ so is he made vnfrutfull. <sup>23</sup> He which is sowne in the good grounde/ is he that heareth the worde ⁊
 vnderstondeth it/ which also bereth frute ⁊ bringeth forth/ some an .C. folde/ some sixtie folde/ and some .xxx. folde.

<sup>24</sup> Another similitude put he forth vnto them sayinge : The kyngdome of heuen is lyke vnto a man which sowed good seed in his felde. <sup>25</sup> But whyll men slep-teth/ ther came his foo ⁊ sowd tares amonge the wheate/ ⁊ went his waye. <sup>26</sup> When the blade was spronge vp ⁊ had brought forth frute/ then appered the tares also.
<sup>27</sup> The seruaunts came to the housholder/⁊ sayde vnto him : Syr sowdest not thou good seed in thy close/ from whence

CRANMER—1539.

hearyng, and their eyes haue they closed, lest at any tyme they shuld se with their eyes, and heare with their eares, ⁊ shuld vnderstand with their herte, ⁊ be con-uerted, that I also myght heale them.

<sup>16</sup> But blessed are youre eyes, for they se : ⁊ youre eares, for they heare. <sup>17</sup> Ve-rely I saye vnto you, that many prophetes ⁊ righteous men haue desired to se those thynges which ye se, ⁊ haue noth sene them : ⁊ to heare those thynges which ye heare, and haue not heard them.
<sup>18</sup> Heare ye therefore the synilitude of the sower. <sup>19</sup> When one heareth the word of the kyngdom, ⁊ vnderstandeth it not, then cometh the euyl man, ⁊ taketh a waye that which was sowne in his hert : this is he, which was sowne by the waye syde.
<sup>20</sup> But he that receaued the seide which was cast into stony places, the same is he that heareth the worde, ⁊ anone with ioie receaueth it, <sup>21</sup> yet hath he no rote in him selfe, but dureth for a season :
 for whan tribulacyon or persecuteyon happeneth because of the worde, by and by he falleth. <sup>22</sup> He also that receyued seide into the thornes, is he that heareth the worde : and the care of this worlde, and the dissaytfulnes of riches, choke vp the worde, and so is he made vnfrutfull.
<sup>23</sup> But he that receaued seide in to the good grounde, is he that heareth the worde,
 and vnderstandeth it : which also bereth frute, ⁊ bryngeth forth, some an hundred folde, some sixtye folde, some thyrty
 folde.

<sup>24</sup> Another synilitude put he forth vnto them, sayinge : The kyngdome of heauen is lykened vnto a man, which sowed good seed in his feld. <sup>25</sup> But whyll men slept, his enemye came, ⁊ sowd tares amonge the wheate, ⁊ went hys waye. <sup>26</sup> But when the blade was spronge vp, ⁊ had brought forth frute, then appeared the tares also. <sup>27</sup> So the seruauntes of the housholder came, and sayde vnto him Syr, dydest not thou sow good seed in thy felde? from whence then hath it

εὐθὺς σκανδαλίζεται. <sup>22</sup> Ὁ δὲ εἰς τὰς ἀκάνθας σπαρείς, οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ τὸν λόγον ἀκούων, καὶ ἡ μέριμνα τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου καὶ ἡ ἀπάτη τοῦ πλούτου συμπνίγει τὸν λόγον, καὶ ἄκαρπος γίνεται. <sup>23</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν τὴν καλὴν σπαρείς, οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ τὸν λόγον ἀκούων καὶ συνιών ὃς δὴ καρποφορεῖ, καὶ ποιεῖ ὁ μὲν ἑκατὸν, ὁ δὲ ἐξήκοντα, ὁ δὲ τριάκοντα.

<sup>24</sup> Ἄλλην παραβολὴν παρέθηκεν αὐτοῖς, λέγων, Ὁμοιωθῆ ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν ἀνθρώπῳ ὁ σπείροντι καλὸν σπέρμα ἐν τῷ ἀγρῷ αὐτοῦ ἔν δὲ τῷ καθεύδειν τοὺς ἀνθρώπους, ἤλθεν αὐτοῦ ὁ ἐχθρὸς καὶ ἔσπειρε ζιζάνια ἀνὰ μέσον τοῦ σίτου, καὶ ἀπήλθεν. <sup>26</sup> ὅτε δὲ ἐβλάστησεν ὁ χόρτος, καὶ καρπὸν ἐποίησε, τότε ἐφάνη καὶ τὰ ζιζάνια. <sup>27</sup> προσελθόντες δὲ οἱ δούλοι τοῦ οἰκοδεσπότου εἶπον αὐτῷ, Κύριε, οὐχὶ καλὸν σπέρμα ἔσπειρας ἐν τῷ σῷ ἀγρῷ; πόθεν οὖν ἔχει

<sup>o</sup> Alex. σπείραντι.

GENEVA — 1557.

ears are dul of hearing, and with their eyes they haue wyndked, lest they shuld see, with their eyes, and heare with their eares, and shuld vnderstand with their hartes, & shulde returne, that I myght heale them.

<sup>16</sup> But blessed are your eyes, for they see: and your eares, for they heare.

<sup>17</sup> Verely I say vnto you, that many Prophets, and perfect men haue desired to see those thyngs which ye see & haue not seene them: and to heare those thyngs which ye heare, & haue not heard them.

<sup>18</sup> Heare ye therefore the similitude of the sower.

<sup>19</sup> When soeuer a man heareth the worde of the kyngdome, and vnderstandeth it not, there cometh that euyl one, and catcheth away that which was sown in his hart. And this is the corne which was sown by the way syde. <sup>20</sup> But he that was sown in the stony grounde, is he which heareth the worde, and anone with ioye receaueth it. <sup>21</sup> Yet hath he no rootes in hym selfe, and therefore dureth but a season: for as some as tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the worde, by & by he is offended.

<sup>22</sup> And the corne that was sown among thornes, is he that heareth the worde: but the care of thys world, and the deceitfulness of riches choke the worde, and so he is made vnfirtefull.

<sup>23</sup> But he which is sown in the good grounde, is he that heareth the worde, & vnderstandeth it: which also beareth frute, & bringeth forth, some an hundred folde, some sixty folde, and some thyrtye fold.

<sup>24</sup> Another similitude put he forth vnto them, saying, The kyngdome of heauen is like vnto a man which sowed good seed in his field. <sup>25</sup> But while men slept, there came his fo, & sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way.

<sup>26</sup> And when the blade was sprong vp, & brought forth frute, then appeared the tares also.

<sup>27</sup> Then came the seruantes of the householder, & sayd vnto him, Syr sowdest thou not good seed in thy close, from their eares they haue heauily heard, and their eyes they haue shut: lest at any time they may see with their eyes, and heare with their eares, and vnderstand with their hart and be conuerted, and I may heale them. <sup>16</sup> But blessed are your eyes because they doe see, and your eares because they doe heare. <sup>17</sup> For amen I say to you, that many Prophets and iust men haue desired to see the things that you see, and haue not seen them: and to heare the things that you heare, and haue not heard them. <sup>18</sup> Heare you therefore the parable of the soverer.

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>19</sup> Euery one that heareth the vvord of the kingdom and vnderstandeth not, there cometh the vvicked one, and catcheth away that vvich vvvas soveren in his hart: this is he that vvvas soveren by the vvay syde. <sup>20</sup> And he that vvvas soveren vpon rockye places: this is he that heareth the vvord, and incontinent receiueti it vvith ioy, <sup>21</sup> yet hath he not roote in hym self, but is for a time: and vvhen there falleth tribulation and persecution for the vvord, he is by and by scandalized. <sup>22</sup> And he that vvvas soveren among thornes, this is he that heareth the vvord, and the carefulnes of this vvorld and the deceitfulness of riches choketh vp the vvord, and he becometh fruitles.

<sup>23</sup> But he that vvvas soveren vpon good ground: this is he that heareth the vvord, and vnderstandeth, and bringeth fruite, and yeldeth some an hundred-fold, and other threescore, and an other thirtie.

<sup>24</sup> Another parable he proposed to them, saying, The kingdom of heauen is resembled to a man that sowed good seede in his field. <sup>25</sup> But vvhen men vvvere a sleepe, his enemy came and ouersowed cockle among the vvheate, and vvvent his vvay.

<sup>26</sup> And vvhen the blade vvvas shot vp, and had brought forth fruite, then appeared also the cockle. <sup>27</sup> And the seruants of the goodman of the house comming said to him, Sir, distst thou not sovy good seede in thy field? Whence then hath it hearing, and their eyes they haue closed, lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and heare with their eares, and should vnderstand with their heart, and should be conuerted, and I should heale them. <sup>16</sup> But blessed are your eyes, for they see: and your eares, for they heare. <sup>17</sup> For verily I say vnto you, that many Prophets, and righteous men haue desired to see those things which yee see, and haue not seene them: and to heare those things which ye heare, and haue not heard them.

AUTHORISED — 1611.

<sup>18</sup> Heare ye therefore the parable of the sower.

<sup>19</sup> When any one heareth the word of the kingdom, and vnderstandeth it not, then cometh the wicked one, and catcheth away that which was sown in his heart: this is hee which receiued seede by the way side. <sup>20</sup> But he that receiued the seed into stony places, the same is he that heareth the word, & anon with ioy receiueti it: <sup>21</sup> Yet hath hee not root in himselfe, but dureth for a while: for when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he is offended. <sup>22</sup> He also that receiued seed among the thornes, is he that heareth the word, and the care of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches choke the word, and he becometh vnfirtefull. <sup>23</sup> But he that receiued seed into the good ground, is hee that heareth the word, and vnderstandeth it, which also beareth fruite, and bringeth fourth, some an hundred fold, some sixty, some thirty.

<sup>24</sup> Another parable put he forth vnto them, saying: The kingdom of heauen is likened vnto a man which sowed good seed in his field: <sup>25</sup> But while men slept, his enemy came & sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way. <sup>26</sup> But when the blade was sprung vp, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the tares also. <sup>27</sup> So the seruants of the householder came, and said vnto him, Sir, didst not thou sow good seede in thy field? from whence

<sup>27</sup> ζιζάνια; <sup>28</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἔφη αὐτοῖς, Ἐχθρὸς ἄνθρωπος τοῦτο ἐποίησεν. οἱ δὲ δούλοι
<sup>29</sup> εἶπον αὐτῷ, Θέλεις οὖν ἀπελθόντες συλλέξωμεν αὐτά; <sup>29</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἔφη, Οὐ· μήποτε
<sup>30</sup> συλλέγοντες τὰ ζιζάνια, ἐκριζώσητε ἅμα αὐτοῖς τὸν σῖτον. <sup>30</sup> ἄφετε συναυξά-
<sup>31</sup> νεσθαι ἀμφοτέρα μέχρι τοῦ θερισμοῦ· καὶ ἐν <sup>31</sup> καιρῷ τοῦ θερισμοῦ ἐρῶ τοῖς
<sup>32</sup> θερισταῖς, Συλλέξατε πρῶτον τὰ ζιζάνια, καὶ δῆσατε αὐτὰ εἰς δέσμας πρὸς τὸ
<sup>33</sup> κατακαῦσαι αὐτά· τὸν δὲ σῖτον συναγάγετε εἰς τὴν ἀποθήκην μου.' <sup>31</sup> Ἄλλην
<sup>32</sup> παραβολὴν παρέθηκεν αὐτοῖς, λέγων, Ὅμοία ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν
<sup>33</sup> ὡς κῶκκῳ σινάπεως, ὃν λαβὼν ἄνθρωπος ἔσπειρεν ἐν τῷ ἀγρῷ αὐτοῦ· <sup>32</sup> ὁ μικρό-
<sup>34</sup> τερου μὲν ἐστὶ πάντων τῶν σπερμάτων· ὅταν δὲ αὐξηθῇ, μείζον τῶν λαχάνων
<sup>35</sup> ἐστὶ, καὶ γίνεται δένδρον, ὥστε ἐλθεῖν τὰ πετεινὰ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ, καὶ κατασκη-
<sup>36</sup> νοῦν ἐν τοῖς κλάδοις αὐτοῦ.' <sup>33</sup> Ἄλλην παραβολὴν ἐλάλησεν αὐτοῖς· Ὅμοία

<sup>27</sup> Rec. + τὰ. <sup>29</sup> Rec. + τῷ. <sup>31</sup> Alex. + λίγων.

WICLIF—1380.

wherof thanne hath it taris? <sup>28</sup> he seide to hem, an enemy hath don this thing; & the seruauntis seiden to him; wolt thou we gon & gadre hem? <sup>29</sup> he seide, nay, lest perauenture ze in gaderinge taris: drawn vp with hem the whete bi the root, <sup>30</sup> suffre ze hem bothe wexe in to repynge tyme: & in the tyme of ripe come, I schal seie to the repers, first; gadere ze to gidre the taaris, & bynde hem togidre in knyechis to be brente: but gadre ze the whete in to my berne,

<sup>31</sup> Another parable ihesus putte forth to hem and seide, the kyngdom of heuenes is like to a corne of syneuer: which a man took & sewe in his feld; <sup>32</sup> which is the leest of alle sedis; but whanne it hath woxen: it is the mooste of alle wortis: & is made a tree, so that briddis of the air, comen & dwellen in the bowis therof.

<sup>33</sup> Another parable ihesus spak to hem; the kyngdom of heuene is like to sourdow; which a woman took & hid in thre mesuris of mele: til it were al sourid.

<sup>34</sup> ihesus spak alle these thingis in parabis to the puple: & he spak not to hem without parabis; <sup>35</sup> that it schuld be fulfilid that is seid bi the profete seiynge; I schal opene my mouth in parabis: & I schal tel out hidde thingis fro the makinge of the world.

<sup>36</sup> thanne he left the puple & came in to an hous; & hise discipulis comen to hym: & seiden; Expowne to vs the parable of taris of the felde, <sup>37</sup> which answerid & seide; he that soweth good seed: is mannes sone; <sup>38</sup> the felde is the world; but the good seed, these ben sones of the kyngdom; but taris these ben yuel children; <sup>39</sup> the enemy that soweth hem, is the fend; and the ripe corn: is the endynge of the world; the ripers ben

TYNDALE—1534.

then hath it tares? <sup>28</sup> He sayde to them; the envious man hath done this. Then the seruaunts sayde vnto him: wilt thou then that we go and gader them? <sup>29</sup> But he sayde; nay, lest whill ye go aboute to weede out the tares, ye plucke vpp also with them the wheate by the rotts: <sup>30</sup> let bothe growe to gether tyll harvest come; and in tyme of harvest; I wyll saye to the repers; gather ye fyrst the tares; & bind them in sheues to be brent: but gather the wheete into my barn.

<sup>31</sup> Another parable he putte forth vnto them sayinge. The kyngdome of heven is lyke vnto a grayne of mustard seed; which a man taketh & soweth in his felde; <sup>32</sup> which is the leest of all seedes. But when it is growne, it is the greatest amonge yerbes; & it is a tree: so that the brydde of the ayer come & bylde in the braunches of it.

<sup>33</sup> Another similitude sayde he to them. The kyngdome of heven is lyke vnto leuen which a woman taketh and hydeth in .iiij. peckes of meele; tyll all be leuened.

<sup>34</sup> All these thyngs spake Iesus vnto the puple by similitudes; and with oute similitudes spake he nothyng to them; <sup>35</sup> to fulfill that which was spoken by the Prophet sayinge; I wyll open my mouth in similituds; and wyll speake forth thinges which haue bene kepte secreete from the begynninge of the worlde.

<sup>36</sup> Then sent Iesus the people awaye; and came to housse. And his discipules came vnto him; sayinge; declare vnto vs the similitude of the tares of the felde. <sup>37</sup> Then answered he and sayde to them. He that soweth the good seed; is the sonne of man. <sup>38</sup> And the felde is the worlde. And the chyldren of the kyngdome; they are the good seed. And the tares are the chyldren of the wicked.

<sup>39</sup> And the enemy that soweth them; is the deuell. The harvest is the end of the worlde. And the repers be the

CRANMER—1539.

tares? <sup>28</sup> He sayde vnto them: the envious man hath done this. The seruauntes sayde vnto him: wylt thou then that we go, and weede them vp? <sup>29</sup> But he sayd, nay, lest whill ye gather vp the tares, ye plucke vp also the wheate with them: <sup>30</sup> let bothe growe together vntyll the haruest; & in tyme of haruest, I wyll saye to the repers: gather ye fyrst the tares, and bynde them together in sheues to be brent: but gather the wheete into my barn.

<sup>31</sup> Another parable put he forth vnto them, sayinge: The kyngdome of heauen is lyke vnto a grayne of mustard seed, which a man toke and sowed in his felde, <sup>32</sup> which is the leest of all seedes. But when it is growne, it is the greatest amonge herbes, and is a tree: so that the birles of the ayer come, and make their nestes in the braunches therof.

<sup>33</sup> Another synylitude spake he vnto them: The kyngdom of heauen is lyke vnto leuen, which a woman taketh and hydeth in .iiij. peckes of meele, tyll all be leuened.

<sup>34</sup> All these thinges spake Iesus vnto the puple by symilitudes, & with out a parable spake he nothyng vnto them: <sup>35</sup> that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken by the prophet, that saith; I wyll open my mouth in parables: I wyll speke forth thynges which haue bene kepte secreete from the begynninge of the worlde.

<sup>36</sup> When the people were sent awaye, then came Iesus into the housse. And his discyples came vnto hym, sayinge; declare vnto vs the parable of the tares of the felde. <sup>37</sup> He answered and sayd vnto them: He that soweth the good seed, is the sonne of man. <sup>38</sup> The felde is the worlde. And the chyldren of the kyngdome, they are the good seed: the tares are the children of the wicked: <sup>39</sup> the enemy that soweth them, is the deuyll: The haruest is the ende of the worlde: the reapers be the

<sup>34</sup> this, bundles. <sup>35</sup> synneue, sinapis, mustard seed. <sup>36</sup> vnto, herbe. <sup>37</sup> sourdow, leauen. <sup>38</sup> yuel, eel.

‘ ἔστιν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν ζύμη, ἣν λαβούσα γυνὴ ἐνέκρυψεν εἰς ἀλεύρου ‘ σάτα τρία, ἕως οὗ ἐξυμώθη ὅλου.’ <sup>34</sup> Ταῦτα πάντα ἐλάλησεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐν παραβολαῖς τοῖς ὄχλοις, καὶ χωρὶς παραβολῆς οὐκ ἐλάλει αὐτοῖς. <sup>35</sup> ὅπως πληρωθῆ τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ τοῦ προφήτου, λέγοντος, “ Ἀνοῖξομαι ἐν παραβολαῖς τὸ “ σόμα μου· ἐρεῖξομαι κεκρυμμένα ἀπὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου.”

<sup>36</sup> Τότε ἀφῆκε τοὺς ὄχλους, ἦλθεν εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν ὁ Ἰησοῦς· καὶ προσῆλθον
 αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, λέγοντες, ‘ Φράσον ἡμῖν τὴν παραβολὴν τῶν ζιζανίων ‘ τοῦ ἀγροῦ.’ <sup>37</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ‘ Ὁ σπείρων τὸ καλὸν σπέρμα ‘ ἔστιν ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου· <sup>38</sup> ὁ δὲ ἀγρός ἐστιν ὁ κόσμος· τὸ δὲ καλὸν σπέρμα, ‘ οὗτοί εἰσιν οἱ υἱοὶ τῆς βασιλείας· τὰ δὲ ζιζανία εἰσιν οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ πονηροῦ· <sup>39</sup> ὁ
 ‘ δὲ ἐχθρὸς ὁ σπείρας αὐτὰ ἐστὶν ὁ διάβολος· ὁ δὲ θερισμὸς συντέλεια τοῦ αἰῶνος

GENEVA—1557.

whence then hath it tares? <sup>28</sup> And he said to them, the envious man hath done this. Then the seruautes sayd vnto hym, Wylt thou then that we go and wede them out? <sup>29</sup> But he said, Nay, lest while ye go about to wede out the tares, ye plucke vp also with them the wheat. <sup>30</sup> Let both growe together tyl harvest come, and in tyme of haruest, I wyl say to the repers, gather ye fyrst the tares, & bynd them in sheues to be burned: but gather the wheat into my barn. <sup>31</sup> Another parable he put forth vnto them, saying, The kyngdome of heauen is lyke vnto a grayne of mustard seed, which a man taketh and soweth in his field: <sup>32</sup> Which in deed is the least of al seedes. But when it is growen, it is the greatest amonge herbes, and it is a tree, so that the byrdes of the ayre come & buylde in the branches of it.

<sup>33</sup> Another similitude sayd he to them, The kyngdome of heauen is lyke vnto leuen which a woman taketh and hydeth in three peckes of meale, til all be leuened. <sup>34</sup> All these thynges spake Iesus vnto the people by similitudes, & without similitudes spake he nothyng to them. <sup>35</sup> That it might be fulfilled, which was spoken by the Prophet, saying, I will open my mouth in similitudes, and wil speake of the thynges which haue ben kept secreete from the begynning of the world. <sup>36</sup> Then sent Iesus the people away, and came home: And his disciples came vnto him saying, Declare vnto vs the similitude of the tares of the feilde. <sup>37</sup> Then answered he, and sayd to them, He that soweth the good seed, is the sonne of man. <sup>38</sup> And the feilde is the world. And the chyldren of the kyngdome, they are the good seed.

<sup>39</sup> And the tares are the chyldren of the wycked. And the enemie that soweth them, is the deuill. The haruest is the ende of the world. And the repers be cockle? <sup>28</sup> And he said to them, The enemy man hath done this. And the seruants said to him, Wilt thou we goe and gather it vp?

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>29</sup> And he said, No: lest perhaps gathering vp the cockle, you may roote vp the vvhete also together vwith it. <sup>30</sup> Suffer both to grow vntil the haruest, and in the time of haruest I vvil say to the reapers, Gather vp first the cockle, and binde it into bundels to burne, and the vvhete gather ye into my barn.

<sup>31</sup> Another parable he proposed vnto them, saying, The kingdom of heauen is like to a mustard-seede, vvhich a man tooke and sowed in his field. <sup>32</sup> Which is the least surely of al seedes: but vwhen it is growen, it is greater then al herbes, and is made a tree, so that the foules of the aire come, and dvel in the branches thereof.

<sup>33</sup> Another parable he spake to them, The kingdom of heauen is like to leauen, vvhich a vwoman tooke and hid in three measures of meale, vntil the vvhole vvas leuened.

<sup>34</sup> All these things Iesus spake in parables to the multitudes, and vwithout parables he did not speake to them: <sup>35</sup> that it might be fulfilled vvhich vvas spoken by the Prophet, saying, I will open my mouth in parables, I will utter thyngs hidden from the foundation of the vworld.

<sup>36</sup> Then hauing dismissed the multitudes, he came into the house, and his Disciples came vnto him, saying, Expound vs the parable of the cockle of the feild. <sup>37</sup> Who made ansver and said to them, He that soweth the good seede, is the Sonne of man. <sup>38</sup> And the feild, is the vworld. And the good seede: these are the children of the kingdom. And the cockle: are the children of the vwicked one. <sup>39</sup> And the enemie that sowed them, is the deuill. But the haruest, is the ende of the vworld.

AUTHORISED—1611.

then hath it tares? <sup>28</sup> He said vnto them, An enemy hath done this. The seruants said vnto him, Wilt thou then that we goe and gather them vp? <sup>29</sup> But he said, Nay: lest while yee gather vp the tares, ye root vp also the wheat with them. <sup>30</sup> Let both grow together vntil the haruest: and in the time of haruest, I will say to the reapers, Gather ye together first the tares, and binde them in bundels to burne them: but gather the wheat into my barn.

<sup>31</sup> Another parable put he fourth vnto them, saying, The kingdom of heauen is like vnto a graine of mustard seed, which a man tooke, and sowed in his field. <sup>32</sup> Which indeed is the least of al seeds: but when it is growen, it is the greatest among herbes, and becommeth a tree: so that the birds of the aire come and lodge in the branches thereof.

<sup>33</sup> Another parable spake he vnto them, The kingdom of heauen is like vnto leauen, which a woman tooke, and hid in three measures of meale, till the whole was leuened. <sup>34</sup> All these things spake Iesus vnto the multitude in parables, and without a parable spake he not vnto them: <sup>35</sup> That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Prophet, saying, I will open my mouth in parables, I will utter things which haue bin kept secret from the foundation of the world. <sup>36</sup> Then Iesus sent the multitude away, and went into the house: and his disciples came vnto him, saying, Declare vnto vs the parable of the tares of the feild. <sup>37</sup> He answered, and said vnto them, Hee that soweth the good seede, is the sonne of man.

<sup>38</sup> The feild is the world. The good seed, are the children of the kingdom: but the tares are the children of the wicked one. <sup>39</sup> The enemie that sowed them, is the deuill. The haruest, is the ende of the world. And the reapers are

‘ ἔστιν· οἱ δὲ θεριστὰὶ ἀγγελοὶ εἰσιν. <sup>40</sup> ὡς περ οὖν συλλέγεται τὰ ζιζάνια, καὶ
 ‘ πυρὶ <sup>8</sup> καίεται, | οὕτως ἔσται ἐν τῇ συντελείᾳ τοῦ αἰῶνος <sup>1</sup> τούτου. | <sup>41</sup> ἀποστελεῖ
 ‘ ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου τοὺς ἀγγέλους αὐτοῦ, καὶ συλλέξουσιν ἐκ τῆς βασιλείας ‘ αὐτοῦ πάντα τὰ σκάνδαλα καὶ τοὺς ποιούντας τὴν ἀνομίαν, <sup>42</sup> καὶ βαλοῦσιν ‘ αὐτοὺς εἰς τὴν κάμνον τοῦ πυρός· ἐκεῖ ἔσται ὁ κλαυθμὸς καὶ ὁ βρυγμὸς τῶν ‘ ὀδόντων. <sup>43</sup> τότε οἱ δίκαιοι ἐκλάμψουσιν ὡς ὁ ἥλιος ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ πατρὸς
 ‘ αὐτῶν. Ὁ ἔχων ὄτα ἀκούειν ἀκούετω. <sup>44</sup> Πάλιν, ὁμοία ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν ‘ οὐρανῶν θησαυρῶν κεκρυμμένῳ ἐν τῷ ἀγρῶ, ὃν εὐρὸν ἄνθρωπος ἐκρυψε· καὶ ἀπὸ ‘ τῆς χαρᾶς αὐτοῦ ὑπάγει, καὶ πάντα ὅσα ἔχει πωλεῖ, καὶ ἀγοράζει τὸν ἀγρὸν
 ‘ ἐκεῖνον. <sup>45</sup> Πάλιν, ὁμοία ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν ἀνθρώπῳ ἐμπόρῳ,
 ‘ ζητοῦντι καλοὺς μαργαρίτας· <sup>46</sup> εὐρὸν δὲ | ἓνα πολῦτιμον μαργαρίτην, ἀπελθὼν

<sup>1</sup> Rec. κατακαίεται.<sup>1</sup> Alex. = τούτων.<sup>8</sup> Rec. & Alex. ἔρ ἄγρον.

WICLIF—1380.

angelis. <sup>40</sup> therefore as taris ben gadderide togidre & bent bren in fier: so it schal be in the endyngde of the world. <sup>41</sup> manes sone schal sende hise angelis, & thei schulen gadere for his rewme alle sclaudris & hem that doon wickidnesse, <sup>42</sup> & thei schulen sende hem, in to the chemenei of fier, there schal be wepyng & betyngde to gidre of teth, <sup>43</sup> thanne just men schulen schyne as the sunne: in the rewme of her fadir, he that hath eris of herynge here he.

<sup>44</sup> the kyngdom of heuenes is lyk to tresour hid in a felde, whiche a man that fyndith: hidith, and for ioie of it: he goith and sillith alle thingis that he hath:
 & bieth thilke feld.

<sup>45</sup> eftsones the kyngdom of heuenes is like to a marchaunte: that sekith gode margeritis, <sup>46</sup> but whanne he hath founden, o, precious margarite: he wente & selde alle thingis that he hadde: & boujte it.

<sup>47</sup> ofte the kyngdom of heuenes is like to a nette cast in to the see: & that ga-derith togidre of alle kinde of fischis, <sup>48</sup> whiche whanne it was ful, thei drowen vp: & saten bi the brynke, & chosen the good in to her vessels: but the yuel thei casten out, <sup>49</sup> so it schal be in the endyngde of the world, angelis schulen goen out, & schulen departen yuel men, fro the myddil of just men, <sup>50</sup> and thei schulen scide hem in to the chymney of fier: there schal be wepyng & grynyng of teth.

<sup>51</sup> han ze vnderstonde alle these thingis? thei seyn to hym, <sup>52</sup> he seith to hem, therefore curesy wise man of lawe in the kyngdom of heuenes is like to a housbonde man that bryngeth forth of his tresour, newe thingis and oolde, <sup>53</sup> & it was doon whanne ihesu hadde endid these parabis: he passid fro thennes.

<sup>40</sup> vnto kyngdom, thilke, that, margeritis, pearls, ofr and eftsones, again. o, one jhe, yee.

TYNDALE—1534.

angels. <sup>40</sup> For enen as the tares are gaddred and bren in the fyre: so shall it be in the ende of this worlde. <sup>41</sup> The sonne of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kyngdome all thingis that offende, and them which do inquite, <sup>42</sup> and shall cast them into a furnes of fyre. There shalbe waylunge and gnassing of teth. <sup>43</sup> Then shall the iuste men shyne as bryght as the sunne in the kyngdome of their father.
 Whosoever hath eares to heare, let him
 heare.

<sup>44</sup> Agayne the kyngdome of heven is lyke vnto treasure hidde in the felde, the which a man fyndeth and hideth: and for ioy therof goeth & selleth all that he hath, and byeth that felde.

<sup>45</sup> Agayne the kyngdome of heven is lyke vnto a marchaunt that seketh good pearles, <sup>46</sup> which when he had founde one precious pearle, went and solde all that he had, and bought it.

<sup>47</sup> Agayne the kyngdome of heven is lyke vnto a net cast into the see, that gadereth of all kynds of fysshes: <sup>48</sup> which when it is full, men drawe to londe, & sitte & gadre the good in to vessels, & cast the bad awaye. <sup>49</sup> So shall it be at the ende of the worlde. The angels shall come oute, & sever the bad from the good, <sup>50</sup> & shall cast them in to a furnes of fyre:
 there shalbe waylinge and gnasshyng of teth.

<sup>51</sup> Iesus sayde vnto them: vnderstode ye all these thyngs? They sayde, ye Lorde. <sup>52</sup> Then sayde he vnto them:
 Therefore every scribe which is taught vnto the kyngdome of heven, is lyke an housholder, which bryngeth forth out of hys treasure, thyngs bothe new and olde.

<sup>53</sup> And it came to passe when Iesus had fynnished these similitudes, that he departed thence.

CRANMER—1539.

Angels. <sup>40</sup> Euen as the tares therfore, are gathered & bren in the fyre: so shall it be in the ende of thys worlde.
<sup>41</sup> The sonne of man shall sende forth his Angels, & they shall gather out of his kyngdome all thynges that offende, & them which do inquite: <sup>42</sup> and shall cast them into a furnes of fyre.
 There shalbe waylinge & gnasshyng of teth. <sup>43</sup> Then shall the righteous shine as the Sonne in the kyngdom of their father.
 Whosoever hath eares to heare, let him
 heare.

<sup>44</sup> Againe, the kyngdom of heauen is lyke vnto treasure hyd in the felde, the which a man hath found and hyd: and for ioye therof goeth & selleth all that he hath, & byeth the felde.

<sup>45</sup> Agayne, the kyngdome of heauen is lyke vnto a marchaunt man, sekynge goodly pearles, <sup>46</sup> which (when he founde one precious pearle) went & solde all that he had, & bought it.

<sup>47</sup> Agayne, the kyngdom of heauen is lyke vnto a net, that was cast into the see & feathered of all kynde (of fyshes) <sup>48</sup> which when it was full men drew to lande, & sat downe & feathered the good into vessels, but cast the bad awaye.
<sup>49</sup> So shall it be at the ende of the worlde.
 The angelles shall come & seuer the bad from among the good, <sup>50</sup> & shall cast them into a furnace of fyre: there shalbe waylinge and gnasshyng of teth.

<sup>51</sup> Iesus sayeth vnto them: haue ye vnderstande alle these thynges? They saye vnto him: ye Lorde. <sup>52</sup> Then sayde he vnto them: Therefore euery Scribe which is taught vnto the kyngdome of heauen, is lyke vnto a man that is an housholder, which bryngeth forth out of his treasure,
 thinges newe and olde.

<sup>53</sup> And it came to passe that when Iesus had fynnished these similitudes, he departed thence.

‘πέπρακε πάντα ὅσα εἶχε, καὶ ἠγόρασεν αὐτόν. <sup>47</sup> Πάλιν, ὁμοία ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν σαγήνη βληθεῖσα εἰς τὴν θάλασσαν, καὶ ἐκ παντὸς γένους συναγαγούσῃ. <sup>48</sup> ἦν, ὅτε ἐπληρώθη, ἀναβιβάσαντες ἐπὶ τὸν αἰγιαλόν, καὶ καθίσαντες, συνέλεξαν τὰ καλὰ εἰς ἀγγεῖα, τὰ δὲ σαπρὰ ἔξω ἔβαλον. <sup>49</sup> οὕτως ἔσται ἐν τῇ συντελείᾳ τοῦ αἰῶνος. <sup>50</sup> ἐξελεύσονται οἱ ἄγγελοι, καὶ ἀφοριούσι τοὺς πονηροὺς ἐκ μέσου τῶν δικαίων. <sup>51</sup> καὶ βαλοῦσιν αὐτοὺς εἰς τὴν κάμινον τοῦ πυρός· ἐκεῖ ἔσται ὁ κλαυθμὸς καὶ ὁ βρυγμὸς τῶν ὀδόντων.’ <sup>52</sup> Λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ‘Συνῆκατε ταῦτα πάντα;’ Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, ‘Ναὶ, ὦ κύριε.’ | <sup>53</sup> Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ‘Διὰ τοῦτο πᾶς γραμματεὺς μαθητευθεὶς εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν | τῶν οὐρανῶν ὁμοίός ἐστιν ἀνθρώπῳ ὀικοδεσπότη, ὅστις ἐκβάλλει ἐκ τοῦ θησαυροῦ αὐτοῦ καινὰ καὶ παλαιά.’ <sup>53</sup> Καὶ ἐγένετο ὅτε ἐτέλεσεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὰς παραβολὰς ταύτας, μετήρην ἐκείθεν.

<sup>v</sup> Alex. = κόρυς.

<sup>w</sup> Alex. ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ.

GENEVA—1557.

the Angels. <sup>40</sup> For euen as the tares are gathered & burned in the fyre, so shal it be in the ende of this world.

<sup>41</sup> The sonne of man shal send forth his Angels, and they shal gather out of his kyngdome all thynges that offend, and them which do iniquitie. <sup>42</sup> And shal cast them into a furnesse of fyre. There shalbe waylyng & gnasshyng of teeth. <sup>43</sup> Then shal the iust men shyne as the sunne in the kyngdome of their father. Whosoever hath eares to heare, let hym heare.

<sup>44</sup> Agayne, the kyngdome of heauen is lyke vnto a treasure hyd in the fielde, the which a man fyndeth and hideth and for ioye therof, departeth and selleth al that he hath, and byeth that fielde. <sup>45</sup> Agayn, the kyngdome of heauen is like to a marchant that seeketh good pearles. <sup>46</sup> Which when he had found one of great price, went and solde all that he had, and bought it.

<sup>47</sup> Agayn, the kyngdome of heauen is lyke vnto a drawe nette cast into the sea, that gathereth of all kindes of thynges.

<sup>48</sup> Which when it is ful, men drawe to land, and syt & gather the good into vessels, and cast the bad awaye. <sup>49</sup> So shal it be at the ende of the world. The Angels shal goe forth, & seuer the bad from the good. <sup>50</sup> And shal cast them into a furnes of fyre, there shal be waylyng, and gnasshyng of teeth:

<sup>51</sup> Iesus sayd vnto them, Vnderstand ye all these thynges? They sayd vnto him, yea Lord. Then sayd he vnto them, <sup>52</sup> Therefore euery Scribe which is taught vnto the kyngdome of heauen, is lyke vnto an housholder, which bringeth forth out of his treasure, thynges both newe and olde. <sup>53</sup> And it came to passe, when Iesus had ended these similitudes, that he departed thence.

RHEIMS—1582.

And the reapers, are the Angels. <sup>40</sup> Euen as cockle therefore is gathered vp, and burnt vwith fire: so shal it be in the ende of the vworld.

<sup>41</sup> The Sonne of man shal send his Angels, and they shal gather out of his kyngdom all scandals, and them that vvorke iniquitie: <sup>42</sup> and shal cast them into the furnace of fire, There shal be vweeping and gnashing of teeth. <sup>43</sup> Then shal the iust shine as the sunne, in the kyngdom of their father. He that hath eares to heare, let him heare.

<sup>44</sup> The kyngdom of heauen is like a treasure hidden in a field. vvhich a man hauing found, did hide it, and for ioy thereof goeth, and selleth al that he hath, and buyeth that field.

<sup>45</sup> Agayne the kyngdom of heauen is lyke to a marchant man, seeking good pearles. <sup>46</sup> And hauing found one precious pearle, he vvent his vway, and sold al that he had, and bought it.

<sup>47</sup> Agayne the kyngdom of heauen is lyke to a nette cast into the sea, and gathering together of al kind of fishes. <sup>48</sup> Which, vvhich it vvas filled, drawing it forth, and sitting by the shore, they chose out the good into vessels, but the bad they did cast out. <sup>49</sup> So shal it be in the consummation of the vworld. The Angels shal goe forth, and shal separate the euil from among the iust, <sup>50</sup> and shal cast them into the furnace of fire. there shal be vweeping and gnashing of teeth.

<sup>51</sup> Haue ye vnderstoode all these thynges? They say to him, Yea. <sup>52</sup> He said vnto them, Therefore euery Scribe instructed in the kyngdom of heauen, is lyke to a man that is an housholder, vvhich bringeth forth out of his treasure new things and old.

<sup>53</sup> And it came to passe: vvhich Iesus had ended these parables, he passed from thence.

AUTHORISED—1611.

the Angels. <sup>40</sup> As therefore the tares are gathered and burnt in the fire: so shal it be in the ende of this world. <sup>41</sup> The Sonne of man shal send forth his Angels, and they shal gather out of his kyngdome all things that offend, and them which doe iniquitie: <sup>42</sup> And shal cast them into a furnace of fire: there shal be wailing and gnashing of teeth. <sup>43</sup> Then shal the righteous shine forth as the Sunne, in the kyngdome of their father. Who hath eares to heare, let him heare.

<sup>44</sup> Agayne, the kyngdome of heauen is lyke vnto treasure hid in a field: the which when a man hath found, hee hideth, and for ioy thereof goeth and selleth all that hee hath, and buyeth that field.

<sup>45</sup> Agayne, the kyngdome of heauen is lyke vnto a marchant man, seeking good pearles: <sup>46</sup> Who when he had found one pearle of great price, he went and solde all that he had, and bought it.

<sup>47</sup> Agayne, the kyngdome of heauen is lyke vnto a net that was cast into the sea, and gathered of euery kind, <sup>48</sup> Which, when it was full, they drew to shore, and sate downe, and gathered the good into vessels, but cast the bad away. <sup>49</sup> So shal it be at the ende of the world: the Angels shal come forth, and sener the wicked from among the iust, <sup>50</sup> And shal cast them into the furnace of fire: there shal be wailing, and gnashing of teeth.

<sup>51</sup> Iesus saith vnto them, Haue ye vnderstood all these thynges? They say vnto him, Yea, Lord. <sup>52</sup> Then said he vnto them, Therefore euery Scribe which is instructed vnto the kyngdome of heauen, is lyke vnto a man that is an housholder, which bringeth forth out of his treasure things new and old.

<sup>53</sup> And it came to passe, that when Iesus had finished these parables, hee departed thence.

<sup>54</sup> Καὶ ἔλθὼν εἰς τὴν πατρίδα αὐτοῦ, ἐδίδασκεν αὐτοὺς ἐν τῇ συναγωγῇ αὐτῶν, ὥστε ἐκπλήττεσθαι αὐτοὺς καὶ λέγειν, 'Πόθεν τούτῳ ἡ σοφία αὕτη καὶ αἱ δυνάμεις; <sup>55</sup> οὐχ οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ τοῦ τέκτονος υἱός; οὐχὶ ἡ μήτηρ αὐτοῦ λέγεται 'Μαριὰμ, καὶ οἱ ἀδελφοὶ αὐτοῦ Ἰάκωβος καὶ Ἰωσῆς καὶ Σίμων καὶ Ἰούδας; <sup>56</sup> καὶ αἱ ἀδελφαὶ αὐτοῦ οὐχὶ πᾶσαι πρὸς ἡμᾶς εἰσι; πόθεν οὖν τούτῳ ταῦτα πάντα; <sup>57</sup> Καὶ ἐσκανδαλίζοντο ἐν αὐτῷ. Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, 'Οὐκ ἔστι προφήτης ἄτιμος, εἰ μὴ ἐν τῇ πατρίδι αὐτοῦ καὶ ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ αὐτοῦ.' <sup>58</sup> Καὶ οὐκ ἐποίησεν ἐκεῖ δυνάμεις πολλὰς, διὰ τὴν ἀπιστίαν αὐτῶν.

XIV. Ἐν ἐκείνῳ τῷ καιρῷ ἤκουσεν Ἡρώδης ὁ τετράρχης τὴν ἀκοὴν Ἰησοῦ, καὶ εἶπε τοῖς παισὶν αὐτοῦ, 'Οὗτός ἐστιν Ἰωάννης ὁ Βαπτιστής· αὐτὸς ἠγέρθη ἀπὸ τῶν νεκρῶν, καὶ διὰ τοῦτο αἱ δυνάμεις ἐνεργοῦσιν ἐν αὐτῷ.' <sup>3</sup> Ὁ γὰρ Ἡρώδης

WICLIFF—1380.

<sup>54</sup> And he came in to his cuntrey, & tauȝte hem in her synagogis, so that thei wonderiden & seiden/ For wennes this wisdom & vertues comen to this? <sup>55</sup> whether is not this the sone of a carpenter? wher his modir be not seide marie & hise bretheren Iames & Ioseph? and symound & Iudas? <sup>56</sup> & hise sustris, where thei alle be not among vs? for wennes thanne alle these thingis comen to this? <sup>57</sup> & so thei weren slaundrid in him; but ihesus seide to hem a profete is not with oute worship; but in his owne cuntre, & in his owne hous, <sup>58</sup> and he dide not there many vertues: for the vnbeleue of hem.

14. IN that tyme eroudis titrake, pryuce of the fourth parte, herde the fame of ihesus; <sup>2</sup> & seide to hise children; this is Ioon Baptist; he is risen for deeth; and therfor vertues worchyn in hym.

<sup>3</sup> for eroudie hadde holden Ioon: & bounden hym, & puttid hym in to prisoun, for erodias the wif of his brother, <sup>4</sup> for Ioon seide to hym; it is not leueful to thee: to haue hir; <sup>5</sup> & he willynge to sle hym: dredde the people: for thei hadden hym as a profete;

<sup>6</sup> but in the day of eroudis birthe, the douȝtr of erodias danneide in the myddil: & plesid eroudie, <sup>7</sup> wherfor with an oth he biligte to geue to hir: What euer thing sche askid of hym; <sup>8</sup> & sche bihore warned of her modir: seide, geue thou to me here the heed of Ioon Baptist in a disch; <sup>9</sup> and the kynge was sorwful; but for the oth, & for hem that saten to gidre at the mete: he commaundid to be souun; <sup>10</sup> and he sente: & bihedid Ioon in the prisoun; <sup>11</sup> and his heed was brouȝte in a disch; & it was souun to the damesel; & sche bare it to hir modir.

<sup>12</sup> and hise discipulis camen & token his

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>54</sup> and came in to his awne cuntre; and taught them in their synagogis; so moche that they were astonyed and sayde: whence cometh all this wysdome and power vnto him? <sup>55</sup> Is not this the carpenters sonne? Is not his mother called Mary? and his bretheren be called Iames and Ioses and Simon and Iudas? <sup>56</sup> And are not his susters all here with vs? Whence hath he all these thyngs. <sup>57</sup> And they were offended by him. Then Iesus sayd to them a Prophet is not with out honoure; save in his awne cuntre; and amonge his awne kynne. <sup>58</sup> And he dyd not many miracles there; for there vnbelifes sake.

14. AT that tyme Herod the tetracha hearde of the fame of Iesu, <sup>2</sup> and sayde vnto his seruautes: This is Iohn the baptist. He is risen agayne from deeth; and therefore are soche myracles wrought by him. <sup>3</sup> For Herod had taken Iohn and bounde him and put him in prison for Herodias sake; his brother Philips wyfe. <sup>4</sup> For Iohn sayde vnto him: Yt is not lawfull for the to haue her. <sup>5</sup> And when he wold haue put him to deeth; he feared the people; because they counted him as a prophet.

<sup>6</sup> But when Herods birth daye was come; the daughter of Herodias dancid before them; and pleased Herod. <sup>7</sup> Wherefore he promysed with an oth; that he wolde geue hir what soeuer she wolde aske. <sup>8</sup> And she beyng informed of her mother before; sayde: geue me here Iohn Baptistes heed in a platter. <sup>9</sup> And the kynge sorowed. Nevertheless for his othes sake; and for their sakis which sate also at the table; he commaunded yt to be geuen hir: <sup>10</sup> and sent and beheded Iohn in the prisoun; <sup>11</sup> and his heed was brouȝt in a platter and geuen to the damesel; and she brouȝt it to her mother. <sup>12</sup> And his disciples

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>54</sup> And whan he came into his awne cuntre, he taught them in their synagoges, in so moche, that they were astonysed and sayde: whence cometh this wysdome and powers vnto him? <sup>55</sup> Is not this the carpenters sonne? Is not his mother called Mary? and hys bretheren, Iames and Ioses and Simon and Iudas? <sup>56</sup> And are not all his systers with vs? Whence hath he then all these thynges? <sup>57</sup> And they were offended at hym. Iesus sayde vnto them: A prophete is not without honoure, saue in hys awne cuntre, and in hys awne house. <sup>58</sup> And he did not many myracles there, because of their vnbelefe.

14. AT that tyme Herode the Tetracha heard of the fame of Iesu, <sup>2</sup> and sayde vnto his seruautes: this is Iohn the Baptist. He is rysen from the deed, and therefore are myracles wrought by him. <sup>3</sup> For Herode had taken Iohn, and bound him, and put him in prison because of Herodias, hys brother Philips wyfe. <sup>4</sup> For Iohn sayd vnto him: it is not lawfull for the to haue her. <sup>5</sup> And when he wold haue put hym to deeth, he feared the people, because they counted him as a prophet.

<sup>6</sup> But when Herodes byrthdaye was kepte, the daughter of Herodias dancid before them, and pleased Herode: <sup>7</sup> Wherefore he promysed with an othe, that he wolde geue her whatsoever she wolde aske: <sup>8</sup> And she beyng instructe of her mother before, saide: geue me here Iohn Baptistes heed in a platter: <sup>9</sup> And the Kynge was sory. Neurtherlesse, for the othes sake, and them which sate also at the table, he commaunded it to be geuen her: <sup>10</sup> and sent tourmentours, and beheded Iohn in the prison, <sup>11</sup> and his heed was brouȝt in a platter, and geuen to the damesel, and she brouȝt it to her mother. <sup>12</sup> And his discipules came and toke vp his

seide called Iohannis, promissid. geue, gitec. souun, gitec.

κρατήσας τὸν Ἰωάννην ἔδησεν αὐτὸν καὶ ἔθετο <sup>x</sup> ἐν φυλακῇ, | διὰ Ἡρωδιάδα τὴν γυναῖκα Φιλίππου τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ αὐτοῦ. <sup>4</sup> ἔλεγε γὰρ αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰωάννης, ‘ Οὐκ ἔξεστι ‘ σοι ἔχειν αὐτήν.’ <sup>5</sup> Καὶ θέλων αὐτὸν ἀποκτεῖναι, ἐφοβήθη τὸν ὄχλον, ὅτι ὡς προφήτην αὐτὸν εἶχον. <sup>6</sup> γενεσίων δὲ ἀγομένων τοῦ Ἡρώδου, ὠρχήσατο ἡ θυγάτηρ τῆς Ἡρωδιάδος ἐν τῷ μέσῳ, καὶ ἤρρεσε τῷ Ἡρώδῃ· <sup>7</sup> ὅθεν μετ’ ὄρκου ὠμολόγησεν αὐτῇ δοῦναι ὃ ἐὰν αἰτήσῃται. <sup>8</sup> Ἡ δὲ προβιβασθεῖσα ὑπὸ τῆς μητρὸς αὐτῆς, ‘ Δός μοι,’ φησὶν, ‘ ὧδε ἐπὶ πίνακι τὴν κεφαλὴν Ἰωάννου τοῦ Βαπτιστοῦ.’ <sup>9</sup> Καὶ ἐλυπήθη ὁ βασιλεὺς· διὰ δὲ τοὺς ὄρκους καὶ τοὺς συνακακίμενους ἐκέλευσε δοθῆναι· <sup>10</sup> καὶ πέμψας ἀπεκεφάλισε τὸν Ἰωάννην ἐν τῇ φυλακῇ. <sup>11</sup> καὶ ἠνέχθη ἡ κεφαλὴ αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ πίνακι, καὶ ἐδόθη τῷ κορασίῳ· καὶ ἤνεγκε τῇ μητρὶ αὐτῆς.
<sup>12</sup> καὶ προσελθόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ἦραν τὸ <sup>y</sup> σῶμα, | καὶ ἔθαψαν αὐτό· καὶ

<sup>x</sup> Alex. ἐν τῇ φυλακῇ.

<sup>y</sup> Alex. πῶμα.

GENEVA—1557.

<sup>54</sup> And came into his own country, and taught them in their Synagoge, in so muche that they were astonied, and sayd, whence commeth this wisedome and power vnto this man? <sup>55</sup> Is not this the Carpenters soone? Is not his mother called Marie? and his brethren be called James and Ioses, and Simon and Iudas? <sup>56</sup> And are not his systers al here with vs? Whence then hath he al these thynges? <sup>57</sup> And they were offended by hym. Then Iesus sayd to them, a Prophet is not without honour, saue in his own country, and in his own house. <sup>58</sup> And he did not many miracles there, for they vnbeleifs sake.

14. AT that tyme Herode the Tetrache heard of the fame of Jesu, <sup>2</sup> And sayed vnto his seruantes, this is Iohn the Baptist. He is rysen agayne from death, & therefore are miracles wrought by hym.

<sup>3</sup> For Herode had taken Iohn, and bonde him, and put hym in pryson for Herodias sake, his brother Philips wyfe. <sup>4</sup> For Iohn sayd vnto hym, it is not lawfull for thee to haue her. <sup>5</sup> And when he wolde haue put hym to death, he feared the people, because they counted hym a Prophet.

<sup>6</sup> But when Herodes byrth day was kept, the daughter of Herodias danced before them, and pleased Herode. <sup>7</sup> Wherefore he promised with an othe, that he wolde geue her what soeuer she would aske. <sup>8</sup> And she beyng before instructed of her mother, sayed, geue me here Iohn Baptist head in a platter.

<sup>9</sup> And the kyng sorowed: neuertheless for his othes sake, and for theyr sakes which sate also at the table, he commanded it to be geuen her. <sup>10</sup> And sent, and beheaded Iohn in the prison.

<sup>11</sup> And his head was brought in a platter and geuen to the mayde, & she brought it vnto her mother.

<sup>12</sup> And his disciples came, and toke

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>54</sup> And coming into his ovvne countrie, he taught them in their synagogues, so that they marueled, and said, How came this fellow by this wisedom and vertues? <sup>55</sup> Is not this the carpenters sonne? Is not his mother called MARIE, and his brethren, James and Ioseph, and Simon and Iude: <sup>56</sup> and his sisters, are they not al with vs? Whence therefore hath he al these thynges? <sup>57</sup> And they vvere scandalized in him. But Iesus sayd to them, There is not a Prophet vvithout honour but in his ovvne countrie, and in his ovvne house. <sup>58</sup> And he vvrought not many miracles there because of their incredulity.

14. AT that time Herod the Tetrach heard the fame of IESVS: <sup>2</sup> and said to his seruants, This is Iohn the Baptist: he is risen from the dead, and therefore vertues vvorkte in him. <sup>3</sup> For Herod apprehended Iohn and bound him, and put him into prison because of Herodias, his brothers' vvife. <sup>4</sup> For Iohn said vnto him, It is not lawfull for thee to haue her. <sup>5</sup> And vvilling to put him to death, he feared the people: because they esteemed him as a Prophet.

<sup>6</sup> But on Herods birth-day, the daughter of Herodias danced before them: and pleased Herod. <sup>7</sup> Wherevpon he promised with an othe, to giue her vvhatsoeuer she vvould aske of him. <sup>8</sup> But she being instructed before of her mother said, Giue me here in a dish the head of Iohn the Baptist.

<sup>9</sup> And the kyng vvvas stroken sad: yett because of his othe and for them that sate vvith him at table, he commanded it to be giuen. <sup>10</sup> And he sent, and beheaded Iohn in the prison.

<sup>11</sup> And his head vvvas brought in a dish: and it vvvas giuen to the damsel, and she brought it to her mother.

<sup>12</sup> And his Disciples came and tooke the

AUTHORISED—1611.

<sup>54</sup> And when he was come into his owne countrey, he taught them in their Synagogue, insomuch that they were astonished, and said, Whence hath this man this wisedome, and these mighty workes? <sup>55</sup> Is not this the Carpenters sonne? Is not his mother called Marie? and his brethren, James, and Ioses, and Simon, and Iudas? <sup>56</sup> And his sisters are they not all with vs? whence then hath this man all these thynges? <sup>57</sup> And they were offended in him. But Iesus said vnto them, A Prophet is not without honour, saue in his owne countrey, and in his owne house. <sup>58</sup> And hee did not many mighty workes there, because of their vnbeliefe.

14. AT that time Herod the Tetrach heard of the fame of Iesus, <sup>2</sup> And said vnto his seruants, This is Iohn the Baptist, hee is risen from the dead, and therefore mighty workes do shew forth themselves in him.

<sup>3</sup> For Herode had layd hold on Iohn, and bound him, and put him in prison for Herodias sake, his brother Philips wife. <sup>4</sup> For Iohn said vnto him, It is not lawfull for thee to haue her. <sup>5</sup> And when he would haue put him to death, hee feared the multitude, because they counted him as a Prophet. <sup>6</sup> But when Herods birth day was kept, the daughter of Herodias danced before them, and pleased Herod. <sup>7</sup> Whereupon he promised with an oath, to giue her vvhatsoeuer she would aske.

<sup>8</sup> And she, being before instructed of her mother, said, Giue me heere Iohn Baptists head in a charger. <sup>9</sup> And the kyng was sorie: neuertheless for the othes sake, and them which sate vvith him at meate, he commanded it to be giuen her. <sup>10</sup> And he sent, and beheaded Iohn in the prison. <sup>11</sup> And his head was brought in a charger, and giuen to the Damsell: and shee brought it to her mother.

<sup>12</sup> And his Disciples came, and took vp

* Or, are wrought by him.

ἀναβλέψας εἰς τὸν οὐρανὸν, εὐλόγησε· καὶ κλάσας, ἔδωκε τοῖς μαθηταῖς τοὺς ἄρτους, οἱ δὲ μαθηταὶ τοῖς ὄχλοις. <sup>20</sup> καὶ ἔφαγον πάντες, καὶ ἐχορτάσθησαν· καὶ ἦσαν τὸ περισσεῖον τῶν κλασμάτων, δώδεκα κοφίνους πλήρεις. <sup>21</sup> οἱ δὲ ἐσθίοντες ἦσαν ἀνδρες ὡσεὶ πεντακισχίλιοι, χωρὶς γυναικῶν καὶ παιδίων.

<sup>22</sup> Καὶ εὐθέως ἠνάγκασεν <sup>ε</sup> τοὺς μαθητὰς <sup>ε</sup> ἐμβῆναι εἰς τὸ πλοῖον, καὶ προῦγειν αὐτὸν εἰς τὸ πέραν, ἕως οὗ ἀπολύσῃ τοὺς ὄχλους. <sup>23</sup> καὶ ἀπολύσας τοὺς ὄχλους, ἀνέβη εἰς τὸ ὄρος κατ' ἰδίαν προσεύξασθαι. Ὁψίας δὲ γενομένης, μόνος ἦν ἐκεῖ. <sup>24</sup> τὸ δὲ πλοῖον ἦδον μέσον τῆς θαλάσσης ἦν, βασιανζόμενον ὑπὸ τῶν κμάτων· ἦν γὰρ ἐναντίος ὁ ἄνεμος. <sup>25</sup> Τετάρτῃ δὲ φυλακῇ τῆς νυκτὸς ἀπῆλθε πρὸς αὐτοὺς <sup>9</sup> περιπατῶν ἐπὶ <sup>h</sup> τῆς θαλάσσης. | <sup>26</sup> καὶ ἰδόντες αὐτὸν οἱ μαθηταὶ <sup>i</sup> ἐπὶ τῇν θάλασσαν περιπατοῦντα | ἐταράχθησαν, λέγοντες, «Ὅτι φάντασμα ἔστι.»

* Rec. et Const. + ὁ Ἰησοῦς. † Rec. et Const. + αὐτοῦ. ‡ Rec. + ὁ Ἰησοῦς. § Alex. τὴν θάλασσαν. ¶ Alex. ἐπὶ τῆς θαλάσσης περιπατοῦντα.

GENEVA—1557.

vp his body, and buried it: and went & tolde Iesus. <sup>13</sup> And when Iesus heard that, he departed thence by ship into a desert place out of the way. And when the people had heard thereof, they followed him a fote out of the cities.

<sup>14</sup> And Iesus went forth and saw much people, and was moued wth compassion vpon them, and he healed their sycke.

<sup>15</sup> When euen was come, his Disciples came to him, saying, This is a deserte place, and the houre is already paste: let the people departe, that they may go into the townes, and bye them vityales. <sup>16</sup> But Iesus sayed to them, They haue no neede to go away: Geue ye them to eate. <sup>17</sup> Then sayed they vnto him: we haue here but fwe loaves, and two fshes. <sup>18</sup> And he sayed, bring them hyther to me. <sup>19</sup> And he commanded the people to syt downe on the grasse, & toke the fwe loaves and the two fshes, and loked vp to heauen and blessed, and brake, and gaue the loaves to his disciples, and the disciples gaue them to the people. <sup>20</sup> And they did all eat, and were suffised. And they gathered vp of the fragments that remained twelue baskets full. <sup>21</sup> And they that did eate, were in number about, fwe thousand men, beside women and yong children. <sup>22</sup> And strayght way Iesus compelled his disciples to enter into ashy, and to go ouer before him, while he sent the people away. <sup>23</sup> And as sone as he had sent the people away, he went vp into a mountayne alone to pray. And when the euening was come, he was there alone. <sup>24</sup> And the ship was now in the middes of the sea, and was tossed with waues: for it was a contrary wynde.

<sup>25</sup> And in the fourth watche of the night, Iesus came vnto them walkyng on the sea. <sup>26</sup> And when his disciples sawe him walkyng on the sea, they were troubled, saying, It is some spirite, and cryed out body, and buried it: and came and told Iesus.

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>13</sup> Which vwhen Iesus had heard, he retired from thence by boate, into a desert place apart, and the multitudes hauing heard of it, folowed him on foote out of the cities. <sup>14</sup> And he coming forth savv a great multitude, and pitied them, and cured their diseased. <sup>15</sup> And vwhen it vvas euening, his Disciples came vnto him, saying, It is a desert place, and the houre is now past: dismisse the multitudes that going into the townes, they may bye them selues vityals. <sup>16</sup> But Iesus said to them, They haue no neede to goe: giue ye them to eate. <sup>17</sup> They answered him. We haue not here, but fwe loaves, and two fishes. <sup>18</sup> Who said to them, Bring them hither to me. <sup>19</sup> And vwhen he had commaunded the multitude to sitte downe vpon the grasse, he tooke the fwe loaves and the tvo fishes, and looking vp vnto heauen he blessed and brake, and gaue the loaves to his Disciples, and the Disciples to the multitudes.

<sup>20</sup> And they did al eate, and had their fl. And they tooke the leavings, twelue full baskettes of the fragments. <sup>21</sup> And the number of them that did eate vvas, fwe thousand men, beside vwomen and children.

<sup>22</sup> And forth vwith Iesus commaunded his Disciples to goe vp into the boate, and to goe before him ouer the vwater, til he dismissed the multitudes. <sup>23</sup> And hauing dismissed the multitude, he ascended into a mountaine alone to praye. And vwhen it vvas euening, he vvas there alone. <sup>24</sup> But the boate in the middes of the sea vvas tossed vwith vvaues, for the vvinde vvas contrarie. <sup>25</sup> And in the fourth vwatch of the night, he came vnto them vwalkyng vpon the sea. <sup>26</sup> And seeing him vpon the sea vwalkyng, they vvere troubled saying, That it is a ghost. and

AUTHORISED—1611.

the body, and buried it, and went and told Iesus.

<sup>13</sup> When Iesus heard of it, he departed thence by ship, into a desert place apart: and when the people had heard thereof, they followed him on foote, out of the cities. <sup>14</sup> And Iesus went forth, and saw a great multitude, and was moued with compassion toward them, and hee healed their sicke.

<sup>15</sup> And when it was euening, his Disciples came to him, saying, This is a desert place, and the time is now past: send the multitude away, that they may goe into the villages, and buy themselves victuals. <sup>16</sup> But Iesus said vnto them, They neede not depart; giue yee them to eate. <sup>17</sup> And they say vnto him, We haue here but fwe loaves, and two fishes. <sup>18</sup> He said, Bring them hither to me. <sup>19</sup> And hee commaunded the multitude to sit downe on the grasse, & tooke the fwe loaves, and the two fishes, and looking vp to heauen, hee blessed, and brake, and gaue the loaves to his Disciples, and the Disciples to the multitude. <sup>20</sup> And they did all eat, & were filled: and they tooke vp of the fragments that remained twelue baskets full. <sup>21</sup> And they that had eaten, were about fwe thousand men, beside women and children.

<sup>22</sup> And straightway Iesus constrained his Disciples to get into a ship, and to goe before him vnto the other side, while he sent the multitudes away. <sup>23</sup> And when he had sent the multitudes away, hee went vp into a mountaine apart to pray: and when the euening was come, he was there alone: <sup>24</sup> But the ship was now in the midst of the Sea, tossed with waues: for the wind was contrary. <sup>25</sup> And in the fourth watch of the night, Iesus went vnto them, walking on the Sea. <sup>26</sup> And when the Disciples saw him walking on the Sea, they were troubled, saying, It is

καὶ ἀπὸ τοῦ φόβου ἔκραξαν. <sup>27</sup> εὐθὺς δὲ ἐλάλησεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, λέγων, 'Θαρσεῖτε· ἐγὼ εἰμι, μὴ φοβεῖσθε.' <sup>28</sup> Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ αὐτῷ ὁ Πέτρος εἶπε, 'Κύριε, εἰ σὺ εἶ, κέλευσόν με ἰκτὸς πρὸς σε ἐλθεῖν ἐπὶ τὰ ὕδατα.' <sup>29</sup> Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν, 'Ἐλθέ.' καὶ καταβάς ἀπὸ τοῦ πλοίου ὁ Πέτρος περιεπάτησεν ἐπὶ τὰ ὕδατα, ἐλθεῖν πρὸς τὸν Ἰησοῦν. <sup>30</sup> βλέπων δὲ τὸν ἄνεμον ἰσχυρῶν ἐφοβήθη· καὶ ἀρξάμενος καταποντίζεσθαι ἔκραξε, λέγων, 'Κύριε, σώσόν με.' <sup>31</sup> Εὐθὺς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐκτείνας τὴν χεῖρα ἐπελάβετο αὐτοῦ, καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, 'Ὀλιγόπιστε, εἰς τί ἐδίστασας;' <sup>32</sup> Καὶ ἔμβάντων αὐτὸν εἰς τὸ πλοῖον, ἐκόπασεν ὁ ἄνεμος· <sup>33</sup> οἱ δὲ ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ ἔλθόντες | προσκύνησαν αὐτῷ, λέγοντες, 'Ἀληθῶς Θεοῦ υἱὸς εἶ.'

<sup>34</sup> Καὶ διαπεράσαντες ἦλθον εἰς τὴν γῆν Γεννησαρέτ. <sup>35</sup> καὶ ἐπιγινόντες αὐτὸν οἱ ἄνδρες τοῦ τόπου ἐκείνου ἀπέστειλαν εἰς ὅλην τὴν περίχωρον ἐκείνην,

<sup>4</sup> Alex. ἰλθὲν πρὸς σε.

<sup>1</sup> Alex. ἀναβάντων.

<sup>m</sup> Alex. = ἰλθόντες.

WICLIFF—1380.

funtum, τ for drede thei crieden; <sup>27</sup> τ anon ihesus spak to hem; and seide, haue ze trust I am: nyle ze drede.

<sup>28</sup> and petir answerid τ seide, lord if thou art: comaunde me to come to thee on the watris.

<sup>29</sup> and he seide, come thou, τ petir gede down fro the boot and walkid on the watris to come to ihesus, <sup>30</sup> but he sige the wynde strong, τ was aferd, τ whanne he bigan to dreuche: he cried τ seide, lord make me saaf; <sup>31</sup> τ anon ihesus held forth his hond: τ toke petir τ seide to hym, thou of litil feith: whi hast thou doutid; <sup>32</sup> and whanne he hadde stied in to the boot: the wynde ceside, <sup>33</sup> and thei that weren in the boot: camen and worshipped hym τ seiden, verril thou art goddis sone.

<sup>34</sup> And whanne thei hadden passid ouer the see: thei camen in to the lond of genesar, <sup>35</sup> τ whanne men of that place hadden knownen hym: thei senten in to alle the cuntre, τ thei brougten to hym alle that hadden sikenessis, <sup>36</sup> τ thei preiden hym that thei schulden touche the hemme of his clothing, τ who euer touchiden: weren made saaf.

15. THANE the scribis and the phariseis camen to hym fro ierusalem: τ seiden: <sup>2</sup> whi breken thi discipulis the tradicions of eldre men? for thei waischen not there hondis: whanne thei eten brede.

he answerid τ seide to hem, whi breken ze the comaundement of god for youre tradicions? <sup>4</sup> for god seide, honoure thi fadir τ thi modir, and he that forsith fadir or modir: die bi deeth; <sup>5</sup> but ze seien, who euer seith to fadir or modir, whi euer gifte is of me, it schal profite to thee; <sup>6</sup> τ he hath not worshipped his

TYNDALE—1534.

and cryed out for feare. <sup>27</sup> And streyght waye Iesus spake vnto them sayinge: be of god cheare, it is I, be not a frayed.

<sup>28</sup> Peter answered him, and sayde: master, if thou be he, bid me come vnto thee on the water. <sup>29</sup> And he sayde, come. And when Peter was come doune out of the shippe, he walked on the water; to go to Iesus. <sup>30</sup> But when he sawe a myghty wynde, he was afrayed. And as he beganne to synke, he cryed sayinge: master save me. <sup>31</sup> And immediatly Iesus stretched forth his honde, and caught him, and sayde to him: O thou of lytell faith, wherfore diddest thou dout? <sup>32</sup> And assone as they were come in to the shippe, the wynde ceased. <sup>33</sup> Then they that were in the shippe, came and worshipped him, sayinge: of a truth thou arte the sonne of God. <sup>34</sup> And when they were come over, they went in to the londe of Genazareth. <sup>35</sup> And when the men of that place had knowledge of him, they sent out in to all that countre rounde about, and brought vnto him all that were sicke; <sup>36</sup> and besought him, that they myght touche the hemme of his vesture only. And as many as touched it were made safe.

CRANMER—1539.

out for feare. <sup>27</sup> But streyght waye, Iesus spake vnto them, sayinge: be of good cheare, it is I, be not a frayed.

<sup>28</sup> Peter answered him, and sayde: lorde, yf it be thou, byd me come vnto thee on the water. <sup>29</sup> And he sayd, come. And when Peter was come doune out of the shippe, he walked on the water, to go to Iesus. <sup>30</sup> But when he sawe a myghty wynde, he was a frayed. And when he beganne to syncke, he cryed sayinge: lorde saue me. <sup>31</sup> And immediatly Iesus stretched forth his hand, τ caught him, τ sayd vnto him: O thou of lytell fayth, wherfore diddest thou dout? <sup>32</sup> And when they were come into the shippe, the wynde ceased. <sup>33</sup> Then they that were in the shyppe, came and worshipped hym, saying: of a truthe thou art the sonne of God. <sup>34</sup> And when they were gone ouer, they came into the lande of Genesareth. <sup>35</sup> And when the men of the place had knowledge of him, they sent out messangers into all that countre rounde about the coast τ brought vnto him all that were sycke, <sup>36</sup> τ besought him, that they myght touche the hemme of his vesture only. And as many as touched it, were made safe.

15. THEN came to Iesus scribes and pharises from Ierusalem, sayinge: <sup>2</sup> why do thy discipulis transgresse the tradicions of the elders? for they wesseh not their hondis, when they eate bread. <sup>3</sup> He answered, and sayde vnto them: why do ye also transgresse the comaundement of God, thorowe youre tradicions? <sup>4</sup> For God commaunded, sayinge: honoure thy father τ mother, τ he that cursseth father or mother, shall suffer deeth. <sup>5</sup> But ye saye, every man shall saye to his father or mother: That which thou desyrest of me to helpe the with: is geuen God: <sup>6</sup> and so shall he not honoure his father or his

15. THEN came to Iesus Scribes and Pharises (which were come from Ierusalem) saying: <sup>2</sup> Why do thy discipulis transgresse the tradicion of the elders? for they washe not their handes when they eate bread. <sup>3</sup> But he answered τ saide vnto them: why do ye also transgresse the comaundement of God, because of your awne tradition: <sup>4</sup> For God commaundeth saying, honoure father and mother and he that cursseth father or mother: let him dye the deeth. <sup>5</sup> But ye saye: eueri one shall saye to his father and mother what gift so euer shulde haue come of me, the same is turned vnto thy profit: <sup>6</sup> and so shall he not honoure his

1. Alex. dread not. 2. ye went. 3. he, boat
4. he. stud. ascended. 5. seven say

καὶ προσήνεγκαν αὐτῷ πάντας τοὺς κακῶς ἔχοντας· <sup>36</sup> καὶ παρεκάλουν αὐτὸν, ἵνα μόνον ἀψῶνται τοῦ κρασπέδου τοῦ ἱματίου αὐτοῦ· καὶ ὅσοι ἤψαντο, διεσώθησαν.

XV. Τότε προσέρχονται τῷ Ἰησοῦ οἱ ἀπὸ Ἱεροσολύμων ὁ γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, λέγοντες, <sup>1</sup> Διὰ τί οἱ μαθηταί σου παραβαίνουσι τὴν παράδοσιν τῶν πρεσβυτέρων; οὐ γὰρ νίπνουνται τὰς χεῖρας αὐτῶν, ὅταν ἄρτον ἐσθίωσιν. <sup>2</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Διὰ τί καὶ ὑμεῖς παραβαίνετε τὴν ἐντολὴν τοῦ Θεοῦ διὰ τὴν παράδοσιν ὑμῶν; <sup>3</sup> Ὁ γὰρ Θεὸς ἐνετείλατο, λέγων, « Τίμα τὸν πατέρα καὶ τὴν μητέρα » καί, « Ὁ κακολογῶν πατέρα ἢ μητέρα θανάτῳ τελευτάτω » <sup>4</sup> Ὅς ἂν εἴπῃ τῷ πατρὶ ἢ τῇ μητρὶ, Δῶρον, ὃ ἐάν ἐξέμοῦ ἀφελήθῃς, καὶ οὐ μὴ τὸν πατέρα αὐτοῦ ἢ τὴν μητέρα αὐτοῦ. <sup>5</sup> καὶ

<sup>1</sup> Alex. = οἱ.

<sup>2</sup> Alex. Φαρισ. καὶ γραμμ.

<sup>3</sup> Alex. εἶπει.

<sup>4</sup> Rec. + σου.

<sup>5</sup> Alex. = καί.

<sup>6</sup> Alex. τιμίσει.

GENEVA — 1557.

for feare. <sup>27</sup> And streight way Iesus spake vnto them, saying, Be of good chere: It is I, be not afrayed. <sup>28</sup> Peter answered hym, and sayd, Master, yf thou be he, byd me come vnto thee on the water. <sup>29</sup> And he said, comme. And when Peter was come downe out of the shype, he walked on the water, to go to Iesus.

<sup>30</sup> But when he saw a myghty wynde, he was afrayde. And as he begane to syncke, he cryed, saying, Master saue me. <sup>31</sup> And immediatly Iesus stretched forth his hand, & caught hym, and sayd to him, O thou of litle fayth, wherfore dydest thou dout? <sup>32</sup> And assone as they were come into the shyppe, the wynde ceased. <sup>33</sup> Then they that were in the shyp, came and worshypped him, saying, Of a truth thou art the Sonne of God.

<sup>34</sup> And when they were come ouer, they went into the land of Genezareth. <sup>35</sup> And when the men of that place had knowledge of him, they sent out into al that country rounde about, and brought vnto hym all that were sycke. <sup>36</sup> And besoght hym, that they myght touche the hemme of his vesture only: and as many as touched it, were made whole.

15. THEN come to Iesus certeyn Scribes & Phariseis of Ierusalem, saying, <sup>2</sup> Why do thy Disciples transgresse the tradition of the Elders? for they washe not their handes when they eat bread.

<sup>3</sup> But he answered, and sayd vnto them, Why do ye also transgresse the commandement of God, through your traditions? <sup>4</sup> For God hath commaunded, saying, Honour thy father and mother, And he that curseth father or mother, let him die the death. <sup>5</sup> But ye say whosoever shall say to his father or mother: by euery gyft that procedeth from me, thou shalt be holpen: <sup>6</sup> Though he honour not for feare they cried out. <sup>27</sup> And immediatly Iesus spake vnto them, saying, Haue confidence: it is I, feare ye not.

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>28</sup> And Peter making ansuver said, Lord if it be thou, bid me come to thee vpon the vwaters. <sup>29</sup> And he said, Come. And Peter descending out of the boate, vwalked vpon the vwater to come to Iesus. <sup>30</sup> But seeing the vvinde rough, he vvas afraid: and vvhhen he began to be drownded, he cried out saying, Lord, saue me. <sup>31</sup> And incontinent Iesus stretching forth his hand tooke hold of him, and said vnto him, O thou of litle faith, vwhy didst thou doubt? <sup>32</sup> And vvhhen they were gone vp into the boate, the vvinde ceased. <sup>33</sup> And they that vvere in the boate, came and adored him, saying, In dedde thou art the sonne of God.

<sup>34</sup> And hauing passed the vwater, they came into the countrie of Genesar. <sup>35</sup> And vvhhen the men of that place vnderstoode of him, they sent into al that countrie, and brought vnto him al that vvere ill at ease: <sup>36</sup> and they besought him that they might touche but the hemme of his garment, and vvhosoever did touche, vvere made hiole.

15. THEN came to him from Hierusalem Scribes and Pharisees, saying, <sup>2</sup> Why do thy Disciples transgresse the tradition of the Auncientes? For they wash not their hands When they este bread.

<sup>3</sup> But he ansvering said to them: Why do ye also transgresse the commandement of God for your tradition? For God said, <sup>4</sup> Honour father and mother, and, He that shal curse father or mother, dying let him dye. <sup>5</sup> But you say, Whosoever shal say to father or mother, The gift whatsouer procedeth from me, shal profite the: <sup>6</sup> and shal not a spirit: and they cried out for feare. <sup>27</sup> But straightway Iesus spake vnto them, saying, Be of good chere: it is I, be not afraid. <sup>28</sup> And Peter answered him, and said, Lord, if it be thou, bid me come vnto thee on the water. <sup>29</sup> And he said, Come. And when Peter was come downe out of the ship, he walked on the water, to go to Iesus. <sup>30</sup> But when he saw the wind <sup>31</sup> boysterous, he was afraid: and beginning to sinke, he cried, saying, Lord saue me. <sup>31</sup> And immediatly Iesus stretched fourth his hand, and caught him, and said vnto him, O thou of little faith, wherfore didst thou doubt? <sup>32</sup> And when they were come into the ship, the wind ceased. <sup>33</sup> Then they that were in the ship, came and worshipped him, saying, Of a truth thou art the Sonne of God.

AUTHORISED — 1611.

<sup>34</sup> And when they were gone ouer, they came into the land of Genesaret. <sup>35</sup> And when the men of that place had knowledge of him, they sent out into all that country round about, and brought vnto him all that were diseased, <sup>36</sup> And besought him, that they might only touch the hemme of his garment; and as many as touched, were made perfectly whole.

15. THEN came to Iesus Scribes and Pharisees, which were of Hierusalem, saying, <sup>2</sup> Why do thy disciples transgresse the tradition of the Elders? for they wash not their handes when they eat bread. <sup>3</sup> But he answered, and said vnto them, Why doe you also transgresse the Commandement of God by your tradition?

<sup>4</sup> For God commaunded, saying, Honour thy father and mother: And he that curseth father or mother, let him die the death. <sup>5</sup> But ye say, Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother. It is a gift by whatsouer thou mightest be profited by me, <sup>6</sup> And honour not his

‘ ἠκυρώσατε τὴν ἐπιτολὴν | τοῦ Θεοῦ διὰ τὴν παράδοσιν ὑμῶν. <sup>7</sup> Ὑποκριταὶ, καλῶς
 ‘ προσφίτηυσε περὶ ὑμῶν Ἡσαΐας, λέγων, “ Ἐγγίξει μοι ὁ λαὸς οὗτος τῷ στόματι ‘ αὐτῶν, καὶ | τοῖς χεῖλεσί με τιμᾷ. <sup>8</sup> ἢ δὲ καρδία αὐτῶν πόρρω ἀπέχει ἀπ’ ἐμοῦ.
 ‘ <sup>9</sup> μάτην δὲ σέβονταί με, διδάσκοντες διδασκαλίας, ἐντάλματα ἀνθρώπων.” <sup>10</sup> Καὶ ‘ προσκαλεσάμενος τὸν ὄχλον, εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, “ Ἀκούετε καὶ συνίετε. <sup>11</sup> οὐ τὸ εἰσερ-‘ χόμενον εἰς τὸ στόμα κοινοῖ τὸν ἄνθρωπον· ἀλλὰ τὸ ἐκπορευόμενον ἐκ τοῦ στό-
 ‘ ματος, τοῦτο κοινοῖ τὸν ἄνθρωπον.” <sup>12</sup> Τότε προσελθόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ <sup>13</sup> αὐτοῦ |
 ‘ εἶπον | αὐτῷ, “ Οἶδας ὅτι οἱ Φαρισαῖοι ἀκούσαντες τὸν λόγον ἐσκανδαλίσθησαν;”
 ‘ <sup>14</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπε, “ Πᾶσα φυτεία, ἣν οὐκ ἐφύτευσεν ὁ πατήρ μου ὁ οὐράνιος, ‘ ἐκρίνωθήσεται. <sup>15</sup> ἄφετε αὐτούς· ὁδηγοὶ εἰσι τυφλοὶ τυφλῶν· τυφλὸς δὲ τυφλὸν εἶς
 ‘ ὁδηγῶ, ἀμφότεροι εἰς βόθυνον πεσοῦνται.” <sup>16</sup> Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Πέτρος εἶπεν αὐτῷ, ‘ <sup>17</sup> Alex. τὸν ὄχλον. s. τὸν λόγον. <sup>18</sup> Alex. = Ἐγγίξει μοι ὁ λαὸς οὗτος τῷ στόματι αὐτῶν καὶ. <sup>19</sup> Alex. = αὐτοῦ. <sup>20</sup> Alex. λέγουσιν.

WICLIF—1380.

fadir or his modir, & ze han made the maundement of god voide: for zoure tradicioun? <sup>7</sup> Ipoeritis I save the profete profeciede weel of zou & seide, <sup>8</sup> this peple onourith me with lippis: but her herte is fer from me; <sup>9</sup> & thei worschipen me with out cause: techynge the doctrynes and maundementis of men.

<sup>10</sup> & whanne the peple were elepid to-gidre to him: he seide to hem here se & z vnderstonde se, <sup>11</sup> that thing that entriþ in to the mouth: defouliþ not a man; but that thing that cometh out of the mouth:
 defouliþ a man.

<sup>12</sup> Thanne hise discipulis camen & seiden to hym, thou knowist that if this word be herde the pharisees ben schundrid!
<sup>13</sup> & he answered & seide, euery plauntynge that my fadir of heuene hath not plantid; schal be drawn vp bi the rotes, <sup>14</sup> suffre ze hem: thei ben blynde & ledris of blynde men: & if a blynde man lede a blynde man: bothe fallen down in to the dyche.

<sup>15</sup> Petir answered: & seide to hym, ex-poume to us this parable, <sup>16</sup> & the thing is ze ben also with oute vnderstondynge?
<sup>17</sup> vnderstonde ze not that alle thing that goith in to the mouth: goith in to the stomch, & is sente out in to the goynge away; <sup>18</sup> but tho thingis that comen forth fro the mouth: goyn out of the herte to the thingis defoulen a man, <sup>19</sup> for of the herte goyn out vnel thoughtis, mans-leyngis, anoutries, fornyceuous, theftis, fals witnessynge, blasfemyes, <sup>20</sup> these thingis it lede: that defoulen a man; but to ete with outhis: not waischen: defouliþ not a man.

<sup>21</sup> And ihesus seide out fro themes: &
 wente in to the coostis of tyre & of sidon; <sup>22</sup> and lo a woman of euange gede out of the coostis: and criid & seide to hym, lord the sonne of dauid: haue merci on hir, my daugtir is vnel travelid of a fend, <sup>23</sup> and he answered not to hir a word; and Iesus discipulis camen: & prouiden hym &

TYNDALE—1534.

mother. And thus haue ye made, that the commaundment of God is with out effecte; through youre tradicions. <sup>7</sup> Ypo-critis well prophesied of you Esay sayinge: <sup>8</sup> This people draweth nye vnto me with their mouthes; and honoureth me with their lippes; howbe it their hertes are farre from me: <sup>9</sup> but in vayne they worshippe me teachinge doctrynes, which are nothing but mens precepts.

<sup>10</sup> And he called the people vnto him; and sayde to them: heare and vnderstande.
<sup>11</sup> That which goeth in to the mouth; defy-letheth not the man: but that which com-
 eth out of the mouth; defyleth the man.

<sup>12</sup> Then came his disciples; and sayde vnto him. Perceauet thou not how that the pharises are offended in hearinge this sayinge? <sup>13</sup> He answered; and sayde: all plantes which my heuently father hath not plantid; shalbe plucked vp by the rotes.
<sup>14</sup> Let them alone; they be the blynde leaders of the blynde. If the blynde lede the blynde; booth shall fall in to the dyche.

<sup>15</sup> Then answered Peter and sayd to him:
 declare vnto vs this parable. <sup>16</sup> Then sayde Iesus: are ye yett with oute vnder-stondinge? <sup>17</sup> perceaue ye not that what soeuer goeth in at the mouth; descendeth doune in to the bely; and is cast out in to the draught? <sup>18</sup> But those thingis which procede out of the mouth; come from the herte; and they defyle the man.

<sup>19</sup> For out of the herte come euyl thoughtis; murder; breakynge of wedlocke; whordom;
 theft; fals witnes; brynge; blasphemye.
<sup>20</sup> These are the thingis which defyle a man. But to ete with vnwashed handes;
 defyleth not a man.

<sup>21</sup> And Iesus went thence; & departed in to the coostis of Tyre and Sidon. <sup>22</sup> And beholde a woman which was a Canaanite came out of the same coostis; & cryed vnto him; sayinge: haue mercy on me, Lorde the sonne of Dauid; my daughter is piteously vexed with a deuyll. <sup>23</sup> And he gaue her never a worde to answer. Then came to

CRANMER—1539.

father or his mother. And thus haue ye made the commaundment of God of none effecte, because of youre awne tra-dicioun. <sup>7</sup> Ypoerites, full well dyd Esaye prophesye of you, sayinge: <sup>8</sup> This peple draweth nye vnto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their mouth,
 and honoureth me with lyppes, howbeit, their hertes are farre from me: <sup>9</sup> but in vayne do they serue me, teachinge the doctrynes and precepts of men.

<sup>10</sup> And he called the people to him, and sayd vnto them: heare and vnderstande.
<sup>11</sup> That which goeth into the mouth, defy-letheth not the man: but that which com-
 eth out of the mouth, defyleth the man.

<sup>12</sup> Then came his disciples, and sayde vnto him: knowest thou not, that the Pharisees were offended at this sayinge?
<sup>13</sup> But he answered and sayd. Euery plante which my heauenly father hath not plantid, shalbe plucked vp by the rotes. <sup>14</sup> Let them alone, they be the blynde leaders of the blynde. If the blynde leade the blynde, both shall fall into the dyche.

<sup>15</sup> Then answered Peter & sayd vnto him: declare vnto vs this parable. <sup>16</sup> Iesus sayde: are ye also yett without vnderstandinge? <sup>17</sup> do not ye yett vnderstande, that whatsoeuer entreth in at the mouth, goeth into the bely, & is cast out into the draught? <sup>18</sup> But those thynges which procede out of the mouth, come forth from the hert, & they defyle the man.

<sup>19</sup> For out of the herte procede euill thoughtes, murders, breakynge of wed-lockes, whordomes, theftes, false witness, blasphemies. <sup>20</sup> These are the thinges, which defyle a man. But to take meate with vnwashed handes, defileth not a man.

<sup>21</sup> And Iesus went thence, & departed into the coastes of Tyre and Sydon, <sup>22</sup> & beholde, a woman of Canaan (which cam out of the same coastes) cryed vnto him, sayinge: haue mercy on me, O Lorde, thou sonne of Dauid: My daughter is piteously vexed with a deuyll. <sup>23</sup> But he answered her nothing at all, & his disciples

‘Φράσον ἡμῶν τὴν παραβολὴν ταύτην.’ <sup>16</sup> ‘Ὁ δὲ <sup>2</sup> Ἰησοῦς | εἶπεν, ‘Ακμὴν καὶ ἑμεῖς
 ‘ἀσύνητοί ἐστε; <sup>17</sup> οὐπω | νοεῖτε, ὅτι πᾶν τὸ εἰσπορευόμενον εἰς τὸ στόμα εἰς τὴν
 ‘κοιλίαν χωρεῖ, καὶ εἰς ἀφεδρῶνα ἐκβάλλεται; <sup>18</sup> τὰ δὲ ἐκπορευόμενα ἐκ τοῦ στό‘ματος ἐκ τῆς καρδίας ἐξέρχεται, κακῆα κοινῶ τὸν ἄνθρωπον. <sup>19</sup> ἐκ γὰρ τῆς ‘καρδίας ἐξέρχονται διαλογισμοὶ πονηρῶ, φόνοι, μοιχεῖαι, πορνείαι, κλοπαί, ψευδο‘μαρτυρίαι, βλασφημίαι. <sup>20</sup> ταῦτά ἐστι τὰ κοινούντα τὸν ἄνθρωπον· τὸ δὲ ἀνίπτοις ‘χερσὶ φαγεῖν οὐ κοινῶ τὸν ἄνθρωπον.’

<sup>21</sup> Καὶ ἐξελθὼν ἐκεῖθεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀνεχώρησεν εἰς τὰ μέρη Τύρου καὶ Σιδῶνος.
<sup>22</sup> καὶ ἰδὼν, γυνὴ Χαναanaία ἀπὸ τῶν ὀρίων ἐκείνων ἐξελθούσα ἐκραύγασεν αὐτῷ, |
 λέγουσα, ‘Ἐλέησόν με, κύριε, υἱὲ Δαυὶδ· ἡ θυγάτηρ μου κακῶς δαμονίζεται.’

<sup>23</sup> Ὁ δὲ οὐκ ἀπεκρίθη αὐτῇ λόγον. καὶ προσελθόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ἠρώτων

* Alex. = Ἰησοῦς.

† Alex. οὐ.

‡ Alex. = αὐτῶ.

GENEVA — 1557.

his father, or his mother: and thus haue ye made, that the commendement of God is without effect, through your traditions. <sup>7</sup> Hypocrites, vvel prophced of yee Esai, saying, <sup>8</sup> This people draweth nye vnto me with their mouthes, and honoureth me with theyr lypes, how be it, their hartes are farrre from me: <sup>9</sup> But in vayne they worship me, teaching for doctrines, which are but mens precepts

<sup>10</sup> And he called the people vnto him, and sayd to them, Heare and vnderstand. <sup>11</sup> That which goeth into the mouth, defileth not the man: but that which cometh out of the mouth, defileth the man. <sup>12</sup> Then came his disciples, and sayd vnto him, Perceiuest thou not, that the Pharises are offended in hearing this saying? <sup>13</sup> But he answered and sayd, Al plantes which my heauenly, father hath not planted, shalbe plucked vp by the rootes. <sup>14</sup> Let them alone, they be the blynde leaders of the blynde. If the blynde lead the blynde, both shal fall into the ditche. <sup>15</sup> Then answered Peter, and sayd to hym, Declare vnto vs this parable. <sup>16</sup> Then sayd Iesus, Are ye yet without vnderstanding?

<sup>17</sup> Perceiue ye not, that what soeuer goeth in at the mouth, descendeth downe into the belly, and is cast out into the draught? <sup>18</sup> But those thynges which procede out of the mouth, come from the hart, & they defile the man. <sup>19</sup> For out of the hart come euyl thoghtes, murder, breakyng of wedlocke whoredome, theftes, false wytnes bearing, slanders. These are the thynges which defyle a man. <sup>20</sup> But to eat with vnwashen handes, defyleth not a man. <sup>21</sup> And Iesus went thence, and departed into the coastes of Tyre and Sidon. <sup>22</sup> And beholde a woman which was a Cananite came out of the same coastes, & cryed, saying vnto him, Haue mercie on me Lord, thou sonne of Dauid, my daughter is piteously vexed with a deuil. <sup>23</sup> And he answered her neuer a worde. Then came to him his honour his father or his mother: and you haue made frustrate the commande- ment of God for your ovnr tradition. <sup>7</sup> Hypocrites, vvel hath Esay Prophced of you, saying, <sup>8</sup> This people honoureth me vwith their lippes: but their hart is farrre fram me. <sup>9</sup> And in vaine do they vvorshippe me, teaching doctrines and commendements of men.

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>10</sup> And hauing called together the mul- titudes vnto him, he said to them, Heare ye and vnderstand. <sup>11</sup> Not that vvhich entreth into the mouth, defileth a man: but that vvhich procedeth out of the mouth, that defileth a man. <sup>12</sup> Then came his Disciples, and said to him, Doest thou knowv that the Pharisees, vvhether they heard his vvord, vvere scandalized? <sup>13</sup> But he answering sayd: All planting vvhich my heauenly father hath not planted, shal be rooted vp. <sup>14</sup> Let them alone: blinde they are, guides of the blinde. And if the blinde be guide to the blinde, both fall into the ditch. <sup>15</sup> And Peter answering sayd to him, Expound vs this parable.

<sup>16</sup> But he sayd, Are you also as yet vvith- out vnderstanding? <sup>17</sup> Do you not vnder- stand, that al that entreth into the mouth, goeth into the belly, and is cast forth into the priuy? <sup>18</sup> But the things that pro- ceede out of the mouth, come forth from the hart, and those things defile a man. <sup>19</sup> For from the hart come forth euil cogita- tions, murders, adoutries, fornications, thefts, false testimonies, blasphemies. <sup>20</sup> These are the things that defile a man. But to eate vvith vvnwashed hands, doeth not defile a man.

<sup>21</sup> And Iesus vvvent forth from thence and retired into the quarters of Tyre and Sidon. <sup>22</sup> And behold a vvoman of Chanaan came forth out of those coastes, and crying out, sayd to him, Haue mercie vpon me, O lord the Sonne of Dauid: my daughter is sore vexed of a Deuil. <sup>23</sup> Who answered her not a vvord. And his Disciples came and besought him

AUTHORISED — 1611.

father or his mother, hee shall bee free. Thus haue ye made the Commandment of God of none effect by your tradition. <sup>7</sup> Ye hypocrites, well did Esaias prophesie of you, saying, <sup>8</sup> This people draweth nigh vnto me with their mouth, and honour- eth me with their lips: but their heart is farrre from me. <sup>9</sup> But in vaine they do worship me, teaching for doctrines, the commandments of men.

<sup>10</sup> And he called the multitude, and said vnto them, Heare and vnderstand. <sup>11</sup> Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man: but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man. <sup>12</sup> Then came his disciples, and said vnto him, Knowest thou that the Pharisees were offended after they heard this saying? <sup>13</sup> But he answered, and said, Euery plant which my heauenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted vp. <sup>14</sup> Let them alone: if they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blinde, both shall fall into the ditch. <sup>15</sup> Then answered Peter, and said vnto him, Declare vnto vs this parable. <sup>16</sup> And Iesus said, Are ye also yet without understanding? <sup>17</sup> Doe not ye yet vnderstand, that whatsoever ent- reth in at the mouth, goeth into the belly, and is cast out into the draught? <sup>18</sup> But those things which proceed out of the mouth, come forth from the heart, and they defile the man. <sup>19</sup> For out of the heart proceed euill thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false wit- nes, blasphemies. <sup>20</sup> These are the things which defile a man: But to eate with vnwashed hands, defileth not a man.

<sup>21</sup> Then Iesus went thence, and departed into the coastes of Tyre and Sidon. <sup>22</sup> And behold, a woman of Canaan came out of the same coastes, & cryed vnto him, saying, Haue mercie on me, O Lord, thou Son of Dauid, my daughter is grievously vexed with a deuil. <sup>23</sup> But he answered her not a word. And his disciples came, and

αὐτὸν, λέγοντες, ‘ Ἀπόλυσον αὐτήν, ὅτι κράζει ὅπισθεν ἡμῶν. ’ <sup>24</sup> ‘ Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν, ‘ Οὐκ ἀπεστάλην εἰ μὴ εἰς τὰ πρόβατα τὰ ἀπολωλότα οἴκου Ἰσραὴλ. ’ <sup>25</sup> ‘ Ἡ δὲ ἐλθοῦσα προσεκύνη αὐτῷ λέγουσα, ‘ Κύριε, βοήθει μοι. ’ <sup>26</sup> ‘ Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν, ‘ Οὐκ ἔστι καλὸν λαβεῖν τὸν ἄρτον τῶν τέκνων, καὶ βαλεῖν τοῖς ‘ κυναρίοις. ’ <sup>27</sup> ‘ Ἡ δὲ εἶπε, ‘ Ναὶ, κύριε· καὶ γὰρ τὰ κυνάρια ἐσθίει ἀπὸ τῶν ψιχίων ‘ τῶν πιπτόντων ἀπὸ τῆς τραπέζης τῶν κυρίων αὐτῶν. ’ <sup>28</sup> Τότε ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτῇ, ‘ Ὡ γύναι, μεγάλη σου ἡ πίστις· γενηθήτω σοι ὡς θέλεις. ’ Καὶ ἰάθη ἡ θυγάτηρ αὐτῆς ἀπὸ τῆς ὥρας ἐκείνης.

<sup>29</sup> Καὶ μεταβάς ἐκέλευεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἦλθε παρὰ τὴν θάλασσαν τῆς Γαλιλαίας· καὶ ἀναβάς εἰς τὸ ὄρος, ἐκάθητο ἐκεῖ. <sup>30</sup> καὶ προσῆλθον αὐτῷ ὄχλοι πολλοὶ, ἔρχοιτες μεθ’ ἑαυτῶν χωλοὺς, τυφλοὺς, κωφοὺς, κυλλοὺς, καὶ ἐτέρους πολλοὺς, καὶ ἔρριψαν

<sup>a</sup> Alex. αἰτοῦ.

<sup>b</sup> Alex. κυλλοῦς ὑγιεῖς καὶ.

<sup>c</sup> Rec. ἡμίρας.

WICLIF—1380.

seiden/ leue thou hir: for sche crieth aftir vs; <sup>24</sup> he answerid ⁊ seide, I am not sente but to the scheep of the hous of Israel that persichiden; <sup>25</sup> ⁊ sche came and worschidp hym ⁊ seide, lorde helpe me; <sup>26</sup> whiche answerde ⁊ seide/ it is not good to take the breed of children: and caste to houndis?

<sup>27</sup> and sche seide, this lord/ for whelcis eten of the crommys, that fallen down fro the bord of her lordis, <sup>28</sup> thame ihesus answerde: ⁊ seide to hir, a woman, thi feith is greet, be it doon to thee: as thou wilt, ⁊ hir dougter was hildid fro that our.

<sup>29</sup> And whanne ihesus hadde passid fro themes: he came bisidis the see of galalee/ and he zede vp in to a hil: ⁊ sat there; <sup>30</sup> and myche peple came to hym: and hadden with hem doumbe men, ⁊ crokid, ⁊ feble and blynde ⁊ many other: and castiden down hem at his feet; ⁊ he helide hem; <sup>31</sup> so that the puple wondride: seynge doumbe men spekyng: ⁊ crokide men goynge blynde men seynge: ⁊ thei magnifyeden god of israel;

<sup>32</sup> and ihesus whanne hise disciplis weren clepid to gidre, seide to hem/ I haue reuitle of the puple, for thei han abiden now three dayes with me ⁊ han no thing to ete; and I wole not leue hem fastynge: lest thei fallen in the wyce; <sup>33</sup> and the disciplis seiden to hym/ wher of thanne so many loouys among vs in desert: to fulfille so greet a peple? <sup>34</sup> and ihesus seide to hem/ hou many loouys han ye? ⁊ thei seiden/ seuen; ⁊ a fewe smale fischis; <sup>35</sup> ⁊ he comaunded to the puple to sitte to mete on the erthe; <sup>36</sup> and he took seuen looues ⁊ fyue fischis ⁊ dide thankynis ⁊ brak ⁊ zaf to hise disciplis; and the disciplis zauen to the puple; <sup>37</sup> ⁊ alle eten

TYNDALE—1534.

him his disciples, and besought him saying: sende her away; for she foloweth vs crying. <sup>24</sup> He answered, and sayde: I am not sent; but vnto the lost shepe of the house of Israel. <sup>25</sup> Then she came and worshipped him; saying: master helpe me. <sup>26</sup> He answered and sayde: it is not good, to take the chyldrens breed; and to cast it to whelpes. <sup>27</sup> She answered and sayde: trithe Lorde: nevertheless the whelpes cate of the crommes, which fall from their masters table. <sup>28</sup> Then Iesus answered and sayde vnto her. O woman greate is thy faith; be it to thee; even as thou desyrest. And her daughter was made whole even at that same houre.

<sup>29</sup> Then Iesus went away from thence and came nye vnto the see of Galilee, and went vp in to a mountayne and sat doune there. <sup>30</sup> And moche peple came vnto him; havinge with them, halt, blynde, domme, maymed; and other many: and cast them doune at Iesus fete. And he healed them; <sup>31</sup> in so moche that the people wondred to se the domme speake; the maymed whole; the halt to go; and the blynde to se. And they glorified the God of Israel.

<sup>32</sup> Then Iesus called his disciples to him; and sayde: I haue compassion on the people; because they haue continued with me now .iii. dayes; and haue nought to cate; and I will not let them departe fastynge; lest they perishe in the waye. <sup>33</sup> And his disciples sayd vnto him: whence shuld we gett someche breed in the wyldernes; as shuld suffise so greate a multitude? <sup>34</sup> And Iesus sayde vnto them: how many loves haue ye? And they sayde: seuen; and a fewe litle fysshes. <sup>35</sup> And he comaunded the people to syt doune on the grounde; <sup>36</sup> and toke the seuen loves; and the fysshes; and gave thankes; and brake them; and gaue to his disciples; and the disciples gaue them to the people. <sup>37</sup> And came, and besought him, sayinge: sende her away, for she crieth after vs: <sup>24</sup> But he answered, ⁊ sayde: I am not sent but vnto the lost shepe of the house of Israel. <sup>25</sup> Then cam she, and worshipped him, sayinge: lorde, helpe me. <sup>26</sup> He answered and said: it is not mete, to take the chyldrens bread, and to cast it to dogges.

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>27</sup> She answered and sayde: trithe Lorde, for the dogges cate of the crommes, which fall from their masters table. <sup>28</sup> Then Iesus answered and sayde vnto her. O woman, greate is thy faith, be it vnto thee, euen as thou wilt. And her daughter was made whole euen at that same tyme.

<sup>29</sup> And Iesus went away from thence, and cam nye vnto the see of Galile, and went vp into a mountayne, and sat doune there. <sup>30</sup> And moche peple came vnto him, bringing with them those that were lame, blind, deafe, maymed, and other many: ⁊ cast them doune at Iesus fete. And he healed them: <sup>31</sup> in so much, that the people wondered, when they sawe the domme speake, the maymed to be whole, the lame to walke, and the blynde to se. And they glorified the God of Israel.

<sup>32</sup> Then Iesus called his disciples vnto him, ⁊ sayde: I haue compassion on the people, because they continue with me now .iiij. dayes, and haue nothing to cate: and I will not let them departe fastynge, lest they mysare by the waye. <sup>33</sup> And his disciples saye vnto him: whence shulde we gett so moche bread in the wyldernes, as to suffise so greate a multitude? <sup>34</sup> And Iesus sayeth vnto them: how many loaves haue ye? And they saye seuen, ⁊ a fewe litle fysshes. <sup>35</sup> And he comaunded the people to syt doune on the grounde: <sup>36</sup> and toke the seuen loaves, and the fysshes: ⁊ after that he had geuen thankes, he brake them, ⁊ gaue to his disciples, ⁊ the disciplis gaue them to the people. <sup>37</sup> And

αὐτοὺς παρὰ τοὺς πόδας <sup>a</sup> τοῦ Ἰησοῦ· καὶ ἑθεράπευσεν αὐτούς· <sup>31</sup> ὥστε τοὺς ὄχλους θαυμάσαι, βλέποντας κωφοὺς λαλοῦντας, <sup>b</sup> κυλλοὺς ὑγιεῖς, χλωλοὺς περιπατοῦντας, καὶ τυφλοὺς βλέποντας· καὶ ἐδόξασαν τὸν Θεὸν Ἰσραὴλ. <sup>32</sup> Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς προσκαλεσάμενος τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ εἶπε, ‘Σπλαγχνίζομαι ἐπὶ τὸν ὄχλον, ὅτι ἤδη ἡμέραι| τρεῖς προσμένουσί μοι, καὶ οὐκ ἔχουσι τί φάγωσι. καὶ ἀπολῦσαι αὐτοὺς νήστευς οὐ θέλω, μήποτε ἐκλυθῶσιν ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ.’ <sup>33</sup> Καὶ λέγουσιν αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, ‘Πόθεν ἡμῖν ἐν ἐρημίᾳ ἄρτοι τοσοῦτοι, ὥστε χορτάσαι ὄχλον τοσοῦτον;’ <sup>34</sup> Καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ‘Πόσους ἄρτους ἔχετε;’ Οἱ δὲ εἶπον, ‘Ἐπτὰ, καὶ ὀλίγα ἰχθύδια.’ <sup>35</sup> Καὶ <sup>d</sup> ἐκέλευσε τοῖς ὄχλοις ἀναπεσεῖν ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν· <sup>36</sup> καὶ λαβὼν| τοὺς ἑπτὰ ἄρτους καὶ τοὺς ἰχθύδας, εὐχαριστήσας ἔκλασε, καὶ ἔδωκε| τοῖς μαθηταῖς <sup>f</sup> αὐτοῦ,| οἱ δὲ μαθηταὶ τῷ ὄχλῳ. <sup>37</sup> Καὶ ἔφαγον

<sup>d</sup> Alex. παραγγίλλας τῷ ὄχλῳ ἀναπεσεῖν ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν, διαβι. <sup>e</sup> Alex. ἰεῖδον.

<sup>f</sup> Alex. = αὐτοῦ.

GENEVA — 1557.

disciples, & besought him, saying, Send her away, for she crieth after vs. <sup>24</sup> But he answered, and sayed, I am not sent but vnto the lost shepe of the house of Israel. <sup>25</sup> Then she came and worshipped him, saying, Lord helpe me. <sup>26</sup> But he answered, and sayed, It is not good to take the childrens bread, and to cast it to whelpes. <sup>27</sup> And she said, Truth Lord, for in deed the whelpes eat of the crummes, which fall from their masters table.

<sup>28</sup> Then Iesus answered, and sayed vnto her, O woman great is thy faith, be it to thee, euen as thou desirest. And her daughter was made whole euen at that same houre.

<sup>29</sup> Then Iesus went away from thence, & came nye vnto the sea of Galilee, & went vp into a mountayne & sate downe there. <sup>30</sup> And muche people came vnto him, hauyng brought with them, halt, blynde, domme, maymed, and many other, and east them downe at Iesus fete, and he healed them. <sup>31</sup> In so muche that the people wondred, to see the domme speake, the maymed whole, the halt to go, & the blynde to see: And they glorified the God of Israel. <sup>32</sup> Then Iesus called his disciples, and sayd, I haue compassion on the people, because they haue continued with me already three dayes, and haue noight to eat: and I wil not let them depart fastyng, lest they faynt in the way.

<sup>33</sup> And his disciples sayed vnto him, whence should we get somuche bread in the wilderness, as should suffice so great a multitude? <sup>34</sup> And Iesus sayd vnto them, how many loaves haue ye? And they sayd, Seuen, and a fewe lytel fishes. <sup>35</sup> And he commanded the people to sit downe on the ground. <sup>36</sup> And toke the seuen loaves, and the fishes, and gaue thanks, brake them, and gaue to his disciples, and the disciples gaue them to the people. <sup>37</sup> And saying, Dimisse her: because she crieth out after vs: <sup>24</sup> And he answering said: I vvas not sent but to the sheepe that are lost of the house of Israel.

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>25</sup> But she came and adored him, saying, Lord, help me. <sup>26</sup> Who answering, said: It is not good to take the bread of the Children, and to cast it to the dogges.

<sup>27</sup> But she said, Yea lord: for the vvhelpes also eate of the crummes that fall from the table of their maisters. <sup>28</sup> Then Iesus answering said to her, O woman, great is thy faith: be it done to thee as thou wilt: and her daughter vvas made hole from that houre.

<sup>29</sup> And vvhē Iesus vvas passed from thence, he came beside the sea of Galilee: and ascending into the mountaine, sate there. <sup>30</sup> And there came to him great multitudes, hauing vwith them durme persons, blinde, lame, feeble, and many others: and they east them downe at his fete, and he cured them: <sup>31</sup> so that the multitudes marueled seeing the dumme speake, the lame vvalke, the blinde see: and they magnified the God of Israel.

<sup>32</sup> And Iesus called together his Disciples, and said: I pitie the multitude: because three dayes novy they continue vwith me, and haue not vvhath to eate: and dimisse them fasting I vvil not, lest they faimte in the vvay. <sup>33</sup> And the disciples say vnto him: vvhenche then may vve gette so many loaves in the desert as to fill so great a multitude? <sup>34</sup> And Iesus sayd to them, Hovv many loaves haue you? but they sayd, Seuen, & a fevv litle fishes.

<sup>35</sup> And he commaunded the multitude to sit downe vpon the ground. <sup>36</sup> And taking the seuen loaves & the fishes, and geuyng thanks, he brake, & gaue to his disciples, and the disciples gaue to the people. <sup>37</sup> And besought him, saying, Send her away, for she crieth after vs. <sup>24</sup> But he answered, and said, I am not sent, but vnto the lost sheepe of the house of Israel. <sup>25</sup> Then came she, and worshipped him, saying, Lord, helpe me. <sup>26</sup> But he answered, and said, It is not meete to take the childrens bread, and to cast it to dogs. <sup>27</sup> And she said, Truth Lord: yet the dogs eat of the crumbes which fall from their masters table. <sup>28</sup> Then Iesus answered, and said vnto her, O woman, great is thy faith: bee it vnto thee euen as thou wilt. And her daughter was made whole from that very houre.

AUTHORISED — 1611.

<sup>29</sup> And Iesus departed from thence, and came nigh vnto the sea of Galilee, and went vp into a mountaine, and sate downe there. <sup>30</sup> And great multitudes came vnto him, hauing with them those that were lame, blinde, dumbe, maimed, and many others, and cast them downe at Iesus feet, and he healed them: <sup>31</sup> Insomuch that the multitude wondred, when they saw the dumbe to speake, the maimed to be whole, the lame to walke, and the blind to see: and they glorified the God of Israel.

<sup>32</sup> Then Iesus called his disciples vnto him, and sayd, I haue compassion on the multitude, because they continue with me now three dayes, and haue nothing to eate: and I will not send them away fasting, lest they faint in the way.

<sup>33</sup> And his disciples say vnto him, Whence should we haue so much bread in the wilderness, as to fill so great a multitude?

<sup>34</sup> And Iesus saith vnto them, how many loaves haue yee? And they sayd, Seuen, and a fewe litle fishes. <sup>35</sup> And hee commaunded the multitude to sit downe on the ground. <sup>36</sup> And he tooke the seuen loaves and the fishes, and gaue thanks, and brake them, and gaue to his disciples and the disciples to the multitude. <sup>37</sup> And

πάντες, καὶ ἐχορτάσθησαν· καὶ ἦσαν τὸ περισσεῦον τῶν κλασμάτων, ἐπὶ τὴν σπυρίδα πλήρεις. <sup>38</sup> οἱ δὲ ἐσθίοντες ἦσαν τετρακισχίλιοι ἄνδρες, χωρὶς γυναικῶν καὶ παιδίων. <sup>39</sup> Καὶ ἀπολύσας τοὺς ὄχλους ἐνέβη εἰς τὸ πλοῖον, καὶ ἦλθεν εἰς τὰ ὄρια Μαγδαλά.

XVI. Καὶ προσελθόντες οἱ Φαρισαῖοι καὶ Σαδδουκαῖοι πειράζοντες ἐπηρώτησαν αὐτὸν σημεῖον ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ἐπιδειξάμενος αὐτοῖς. <sup>2</sup> ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, 'Ὀφίας γενομένης λέγετε, Εὐδία· πυρρᾶζει γὰρ ὁ οὐρανός. <sup>3</sup> καὶ πρῶτ', 'Σήμερον χειμῶν πυρρᾶζει γὰρ στρυγνάζων ὁ οὐρανός. <sup>9</sup> ὑποκριταί, τὸ μὲν πρόσωπον τοῦ οὐρανοῦ γινώσχετε διακρίνειν, τὰ δὲ σημεῖα τῶν καιρῶν οὐ δύνασθε; <sup>4</sup> γενεὰ πονηρὰ καὶ μοιχαλὶς σημεῖον ἐπιζητεῖ· καὶ σημεῖον οὐ δοθήσεται αὐτῇ, εἰ μὴ τὸ σημεῖον Ἰωάνᾳ τοῦ προφήτου.' Καὶ καταλιπὼν αὐτοὺς, ἀπῆλθε.

f Alex. = ὑποκριταί.

WICLIF—1380.

τ weren fulfilled, and thei token that that was lefte of relefis! seuen lepus full, <sup>38</sup> and thei that eten, weren foure thousand of men: withouten hitil children τ wyymen, <sup>39</sup> τ whanne he hadde lefte the puple: he wente vp in to a boot: τ cam in to the costis of magidan.

16. AND the pharisees and the saduceis camen to hym temptynge, τ preiden him to schewe hem a tokene for heuene; <sup>2</sup> τ he answerd τ seide to hem, whanne the euentide is come, ze seien: it schal be cleer for heuene is rody, <sup>3</sup> and the morwilde: to day tempest for heuene schyneth heuylly, thanne ze cummen demen the face of heuene: but ze moun not wite the tokenes of tymes, <sup>4</sup> an yuel generacioun τ avoutrese sekith a token, and a tokene schal not be souun to it, but the tokene of Ionas the profete, τ whanne he hadde lefte hem: he wente forth, they dyd all eate and were suffised. And they toke vp of the broken meate that was lefte .xvii. baskets full. <sup>38</sup> And yet they that ate were .iiii.M. men besyde wemen and chylidren. <sup>39</sup> And he sent away the people, and toke shippe and came into the parties of Magdala.

<sup>5</sup> and whanne hise discipils camen ouer the see: thei forȝeten to take looues, <sup>6</sup> τ he seide to hem, bihold ze τ be ware of sourdou; of Pharisees τ saduceis, <sup>7</sup> τ thei thouȝten among hem: τ seiden, for we han not take looues, <sup>8</sup> but thes is wityng seide to hem, what theuke ze among sou of litil feith: for ze han not looues? <sup>9</sup> zit vnderstonden not ze nether han mynde of fyue lous in to fyue thousand of men? τ hou many cofyns ze token? <sup>10</sup> nether of seuen lous in foure thousand of men: and hou many lepus ze token? <sup>11</sup> Whi vnderstonde ze not for I seide not to you of breed: he ze ware of the sourdou; of Pharisees τ saduceis? <sup>12</sup> thanne thei vnderstoden: that he seide not be ware of sourdou; of looues: but of the teclynge of farisees τ saduceis.

<sup>14</sup> And ihesus cam in to the portis of

TYNDALE—1534.

16. THEN came the pharises and saducees, and did tempte him, desyringe him to shewe them some signe from heven. <sup>2</sup> He answered and sayde vnto them. At even ye saye, we shall have fayre wedder, and that because the skye is reed: <sup>3</sup> and in the mornynge ye saye, to daye shalbe foule wedder, and that because the skye is cloudy and reed. O ye ypocrites, ye can discerne the fassion of the skye: and can ye not discerne the signes of the tymes? <sup>4</sup> The frowarde nacion and aduoutros seketh a signe, and there shall nonother signe be geuen vnto them, but the signe of the prophet Ionas. So lefte he them and departed.

<sup>5</sup> And when his disciples were come to the other side of the water, they had forgotten to take breed with them. <sup>6</sup> Then Iesus sayd vnto them: Take hede and beware of the leuen of the Pharisees and of the Saducees. <sup>7</sup> And they thought in them selues sayynge: because we have brought no breed with vs. <sup>8</sup> When Iesus vnderstode that he sayd vnto them. O ye of lytell feith, why are youre myndes cumbred because ye have brought no breed? <sup>9</sup> Do ye not yet perceave, nether remember those .x. loaves when there were .v.M. men, and how many baskettes toke ye vp? <sup>10</sup> Nether the .vii. loaves, when there were .iiiiii.M. and how many baskettes toke ye vp? <sup>11</sup> Why perceave ye not then, that I spake not vnto you of breed, when I sayde, beware of the leuen of the Pharisees and of the Saducees? <sup>12</sup> Then vnderstode they, how that he had not them beware of the leuen of breed: but of the doctrine of the Pharisees, and of the Saducees.

<sup>14</sup> When Iesus cam in to the costis of the

CRANMER—1539.

they dyd all eate, and were suffised. <sup>38</sup> And they toke vp (of the broken meate that was lefte) seuen baskettes full. And yet, they that dyd eate were .iiij. M. men, besyde wemen τ chylidren. <sup>39</sup> And he sent away the people, and toke shyppe, τ came into the parties of Magdala.

16. THE Pharisees also with the Saducees, came and tempted him τ desyred him that he wolde shewe them a sygne from heuen. <sup>2</sup> He answered and sayde vnto them: when it begynneth to draw toward euen, ye saye, it wyll be fayre wether, for the skye is reed? <sup>3</sup> And in the mornynge: It wilbe foule wether to daye, for the skye is glowmyng reed. O ye ypocrites, ye can discerne the outward appearance of the skye: but can ye not discerne the signes of the tymes? <sup>4</sup> The frowarde τ aduoutros nacyon requyreh τ a sygne, and there shall no sygne be geuen vnto it, but the sygne of the Prophet Ionas. And he lefte them, and departed.

<sup>5</sup> And when his disciples were come to the other syde of the water, they had forgotten to take breed with them. <sup>6</sup> Then Iesus sayde vnto them. Take hede and beware of the leuen of the Pharisees and of the Saducees. <sup>7</sup> And they thought in them selues sayynge: we haue taken no breed with vs. <sup>8</sup> Which when Iesus vnderstode, he sayd vnto them: O ye of lytell feith, why take ye thought within your selues, because ye haue brought no breed? <sup>9</sup> Do ye not yet perceave, nether remember those .v. loaves, when there were .v. M. men, τ how many baskettes toke ye vp? <sup>10</sup> Nether the .vij. lous, when there were .iiij. M. men: and how many baskettes toke ye vp? <sup>11</sup> how happeneth it that ye do not vnderstande, that I spake it not vnto you concernynge breed, that ye shulde beware of the leuen of the Pharisees τ of the Saducees? <sup>12</sup> Then vnderstode they, how that he had not them beware of the leuen of breed: but of the doctrine of the Pharisees, and of the Saducees.

<sup>14</sup> When Iesus cam into the coastes of

οὐκίαι, relicta. lepus, baskets. seuen, say.
<sup>38</sup> τυδὶς ἄνδρες, ἰννεν δεινῶν, καιν ἡμερῶν
<sup>39</sup> τ. ἄνδρες, ἰννεν, εὐδ. ἀνοῦτες, ἀδελφῶν
<sup>12</sup> τ. ἰσὴν, sourdou; leaven. wityng, knowynge.
<sup>14</sup> τ. ἄνδρες, ἰννεν, εὐδ. ἀνοῦτες, ἀδελφῶν

<sup>5</sup> Καὶ ἐλθόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ εἰς τὸ πέραν ἐπελάβοντο ἄρτους λαβεῖν. <sup>6</sup> ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ‘Ὁράτε καὶ προσέχετε ἀπὸ τῆς ζύμης τῶν Φαρισαίων καὶ Σαδδουκαίων.’ <sup>7</sup> Οἱ δὲ διελογίζοντο ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, λέγοντες, ‘Ὅτι ἄρτους οὐκ ἐλάβομεν.’ <sup>8</sup> Γνοὺς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, ‘Τί διαλογίζεσθε ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, ὀλιγόπιστοι, ὅτι ἄρτους οὐκ ἐλάβετε;| <sup>9</sup> οὐπω νοεῖτε, οὐδὲ μνημονεύετε τοὺς πέντε ἄρτους τῶν πεντακισχιλίων, καὶ πόσους κοφίους ἐλάβετε; <sup>10</sup> οὐδὲ τοὺς ἑπτὰ ἄρτους τῶν τετρακισχιλίων, καὶ πόσας σπυρίδας ἐλάβετε; <sup>11</sup> πῶς οὐ νοεῖτε, ὅτι οὐ περὶ <sup>12</sup> ἄρτων| εἶπον ὑμῖν προσέχειν ἀπὸ τῆς ζύμης τῶν Φαρισαίων καὶ Σαδδουκαίων; <sup>13</sup> Τότε συνῆκαν, ὅτι οὐκ εἶπε προσέχειν ἀπὸ τῆς ζύμης τοῦ ἄρτου, ἀλλ’ ἀπὸ τῆς διδαχῆς τῶν Φαρισαίων καὶ Σαδδουκαίων.

<sup>13</sup> Ἐλθὼν δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς τὰ μέρη Καισαρείας τῆς Φιλίππου ἤρῳτα τοὺς

<sup>a</sup> Rec. + αὐτοῖς.

<sup>b</sup> Alex. ἔχει.

<sup>c</sup> Rec. ἄρτων.

GENEVA — 1557.

they dyd all eat, and were suffised: and they toke vp the broken meat that was left seuen baskets ful. <sup>38</sup> And yet they that dyd eat, were foure thousand men, beside women, and children. <sup>39</sup> And Iesus sent away the people, and toke shy, and came into the partes of Magdala.

16. THEN came the Pharises and Sadduces, and dyd tempt hym, desiring him to shewe them some signe from heauen. <sup>2</sup> But he answered and sayd vnto them, At euen ye say, Fayre wether: for the skye is red. <sup>3</sup> And in the morning ye say, To day shal be a tempeste, because the skye is red and cloudy. O ye hypocrites, ye can discern the fashion of the skye, and can ye not discern the signes of the tymes? <sup>4</sup> The frowarde nation, and aduouterous seketh a signe, and ther shal no signe be geuen vnto them, but that signe of the Prophet Ionas. And he leuyng them, departed.

<sup>5</sup> And when his disciples were come to the other syde of the water, they had forgotten to take bread with them. <sup>6</sup> Then Iesus sayd vnto them, Take heed and beware of the leuen of the Pharises and Sadduces. <sup>7</sup> And they reasoned with them selues, saying, It is because we haue brought no breade with vs. <sup>8</sup> When Iesus vnderstode that, he sayd vnto them, O ye of litle fayth, why are your myndes cumbered because ye haue brought no bread? <sup>9</sup> Do ye not yet perceau, neither remember fye loaves, when there were fye thousand men, and how many baskettes toke ye vp? <sup>10</sup> Nether the seuen loaves when there were fye thousand men, and how many baskettes toke ye vp? <sup>11</sup> Why perceau ye not then that I spake not vnto you of bread, when I sayd, be ware of the leuen of the Pharises, and Sadduces? <sup>12</sup> Then vnderstode they, how that he had not them beware of the leuen of bread: but of the doctrine of the Pharises, and Sadduces.

<sup>13</sup> When Iesus came into the coastes of

RHEIMS—1582.

they did all eat, and had their fill. And that which vvvas left of the fragments they tooke vp, seuen baskets ful. <sup>38</sup> And there vvvere that did eat, foure thousand men, beside children & vvomen. <sup>39</sup> And hauing dismissed the multitude, he vvvent vp into a boate, and came into the coastes of Magedan.

16. AND there came to him the Pharises and Sadduces tempting: and they demaunded him to shew them a signe from heauen. <sup>2</sup> But he answered & said to them, When it is euening, ye say, It vvill be faire vvether, for the element is redde. <sup>3</sup> And in the morning, This day there vvill be a tempest, for the element doth glovve and lovvre. The face therfore of the element ye haue skil to discern: and the signes of times can ye not? <sup>4</sup> The nauigtie and aduouterous generation seeketh for a signe: and there shal not a signe be giuen it, but the signe of Ionas the Prophet. And he left them and vvvent avvay.

<sup>5</sup> And vvhen his disciples vvvere come over the vvwater, they forgot to take bread. <sup>6</sup> Who said to them, Looke vvvel and bevvvare of the leauen of the Pharisees & Sadducees. <sup>7</sup> But they thought vvwithin them selues saying, Because vvve tooke not bread. <sup>8</sup> And Iesus knowing it, said, Why do ye thinke vvwithin your selues O ye of litle faith, for that you haue not bread? <sup>9</sup> Do you not yet vvunderstand, neither do you remember the fye loaves among fye thousand men, and how many baskets you took vp? <sup>10</sup> neither the seuen loaves, among foure thousand men, and how many maundes you took vp? <sup>11</sup> Why do you not vvunderstand that I said not of bread to you, Bevvvare of the leauen of the Pharisees & Sadduces? <sup>12</sup> Then they vvunderstode that he said not they should bevvvare of the leauen of bread, but of the doctrine of the Pharisees and Sadduces.

<sup>13</sup> And Iesus came into the quarters of

AUTHORISED—1611.

they did all eat, and were filled: and they tooke vp of the broken meat that was left, seuen baskets full. <sup>38</sup> And they that did eat, were foure thousand men, beside women and children. <sup>39</sup> And he sent away the multitude, and tooke ship, and came into the coasts of Magdala.

16. THE Pharisees also, with the Sadduces, came, and tempting, desired him that he would shew them a signe from heauen. <sup>2</sup> He answered, and said vnto them When it is euening, ye say, it will be faire weather: for the skie is red. <sup>3</sup> And in the morning, it will be foule weather to day: for the skie is red and lowring. O ye hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the skie, but can ye not discern the signes of the times? <sup>4</sup> A wicked and adulterous generation seeketh after a signe, and there shall no signe be giuen vnto it, but the signe of the Prophet Ionas. And hee left them, and departed. <sup>5</sup> And when his disciples were come to the other side, they had forgotten to take bread.

<sup>6</sup> Then Iesus said vnto them, Take heed and beware of the leauen of the Pharisees, and of the Sadduces. <sup>7</sup> And they reasoned among themselves, saying, It is because wee haue taken no bread. <sup>8</sup> Which when Iesus perceiued, he said vnto them, O ye of litle faith, why reason ye among your selues, because ye haue brought no bread?

<sup>9</sup> Doe ye not yet vvunderstand, neither remember the fye loaves of the fye thousand, and how many baskets ye took vp? <sup>10</sup> Neither the seuen loaves of the foure thousand, and how many baskets ye took vp? <sup>11</sup> How is it that ye doe not vvunderstand, that I spake it not to you concerning bread, that ye should beware of the leauen of the Pharisees, and of the Sadduces? <sup>12</sup> Then vvunderstood they how that he had them not beware of the leauen of bread: but of the doctrine of the Pharisees, and of the Sadduces.

<sup>13</sup> When Iesus came into the coastes of

μαθητὰς αὐτοῦ, λέγων, Ἐτίνα με λέγουσιν οἱ ἄνθρωποι εἶναι, τὸν υἱὸν τοῦ ἄνθρώπου; <sup>14</sup> Οἱ δὲ εἶπον, Οἱ μὲν Ἰωάννην τὸν Βαπτιστὴν· ἄλλοι δὲ Ἡλίαν· ἕτεροι δὲ Ἰερεμίαν, ἢ ἓνα τῶν προφητῶν. <sup>15</sup> Λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ὑμεῖς δὲ τίνα με λέγετε εἶναι; <sup>16</sup> Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ Σίμων Πέτρος εἶπε, Σὺ εἶ ὁ Χριστὸς, ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ τοῦ ζῶντος. <sup>17</sup> Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Μακάριος εἶ, Σίμων βῆρ Ἰωνᾶ, ὅτι σὰρξ καὶ αἷμα οὐκ ἀπεκάλυψέ σοι, ἀλλ' ὁ πατήρ μου ὁ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς. <sup>18</sup> Καγὼ δὲ σοὶ λέγω, ὅτι σὺ εἶ Πέτρος, καὶ ἐπὶ ταύτῃ τῇ πέτρᾳ οἰκοδομήσω μου τὴν ἐκκλησίαν, καὶ πύλαι ἄδου οὐ κατισχύσουσιν αὐτῆς. <sup>19</sup> καὶ δώσω σοὶ τὰς κλείς τῆς βασιλείας τῶν οὐρανῶν· καὶ ὃ ἐὰν δήσης ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, ἔσται δεδεμένον ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς· καὶ ὃ ἐὰν λύσης ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, ἔσται λελυμένον ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς. <sup>20</sup> Τότε διεστείλατο τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, ἵνα μηδεὶ εἴπωσιν,

<sup>14</sup> Alex. Ἀποκριθεὶς.

WICLIF — 1380.

cesarie of philip: ⁊ axed hise discipulis and seide; whom seien me to be mannes some? <sup>14</sup> and thei seiden; summe ion Baptist, other elie: ⁊ other jeremy, or oon of the profetis; <sup>15</sup> ihesus seide to hem; but whom seien ⁊e me to be? <sup>16</sup> Symount Petir answerde ⁊ seide; thou art crist the sone of god Iyunge; <sup>17</sup> ihesus answerde ⁊ seide to hym; blessid art thou Symount bariona: that is sone of culuer: for fleisch ⁊ blode schewid not to thee; but my fadir that is in heuene; <sup>18</sup> ⁊ I seye to thee that thou art petir; ⁊ on this ston I schal bilde my chirche; and the gatis of helle schulen not haue myght agens it; <sup>19</sup> ⁊ to the I schal geue the keies of the kyngdom of heuene; ⁊ what euer thou schalt bynde on erthe: schal be bounden also in heuene; ⁊ what euer thou schalt vnbynde on erthe: schal be vnbounden also in heuene.

<sup>20</sup> thanne he comanndid to hise discipulis; that thei schulde sey to no man; that he was crist; <sup>21</sup> fro that tyme ihesus bigan to schewe hise discipulis: that it bihoued him to go to Ierusalem; ⁊ suffre many thingis: of the elder men; ⁊ of scribis ⁊ pryncis of preests; and be slayn; ⁊ the thirde day to rise agen. <sup>22</sup> ⁊ petir took him: and bigan to blame hym and seide; fer be it fro thee lord this thing schal not be to thee; <sup>23</sup> ⁊ he turned ⁊ seide to Petir; sathanas go aftir me; thou art a schandre to me; for thou sauerist not tho thingis that ben of god: but tho thingis that ben of men;

<sup>24</sup> thanne ihesus seide to hise discipulis; if ony o man wole come aftir me: denye he hym self: and take he his cros ⁊ sue me;

<sup>25</sup> for he that wole make his liif saaf: schal lese it; ⁊ he that schal lese his liif: for me: schal fynde it; <sup>26</sup> for what profetith it to a man; if he wyne alle the world: ⁊ suffre peiringe of his soule? or scien, say, culuer, doer, sue, follow peirne, impaire, or damage.

TYNDALE — 1534.

cite which is called Cesarea Philippi; he axed his discipulis sayinge: whom do men saye that I the sonne of man am? <sup>14</sup> They saide; some saye that thou arte Ihon Baptist; some Helias; some Ieremias; or one of the prophets. <sup>15</sup> He sayde vnto them: but whom saye ye that I am? <sup>16</sup> Simon Peter answered and sayde: Thou arte Christ the sonne of the Iyvinge God. <sup>17</sup> And Iesus answered and sayde to him: happy arte thou Simon the sone of Ionas; for fleshe and bloud hath not opened vnto the; that; but my father which is in heuen. <sup>18</sup> And I saye also vnto the; that thou arte Peter: and vpon this rocke I will bylde my congregacion. And the gates of hell shall not preuaile agaynst it. <sup>19</sup> And I will geve vnto the; the keyes of the kyngdom of heuen: and what soeuer thou byndest vpon erth; shall be bounde in heuen: and what soeuer thou lowest on erthe; shalbe lowsed in heuen.

<sup>20</sup> Then he charged his disciples; that they shulde tell no man; that he was Iesus Christ. <sup>21</sup> From that tyme forth; Iesus began to shewe vnto his disciples; how that he must go vnto Ierusalem; and suffer many thinges of the Elders; and of the hye prestes; and of the scribes; and must be killed; and ryse agayne the thirde day. <sup>22</sup> But Peter toke him a syde; and began to rebuke him sayinge: master fauer thy selfe this shall not come vnto the. <sup>23</sup> Then turned he aboute; and sayde vnto Peter; come after me Satan; thou offendest me; because thou sauourest not godly thinges; but worldly thinges.

<sup>24</sup> Iesus then sayde to his disciples. If eny man wyll folowe me; let him forsake him sylfe; and take vp his crosse and folowe me. <sup>25</sup> For who soeuer wyll save his lyfe; shall lose it. And whoseuer shall lose his lyfe for my sake; shall fynde it. <sup>26</sup> What shall it profite a man; though he shulde wyne alle the whole worlde: yf he lose his owne soule? Or els what

CRANMER — 1539.

the cite which is called Cesarea Philippi; he asked his discipulis sayinge whom do men saye that I the sone of man am? <sup>14</sup> They sayde: some saye that thou art Iohn Baptist; some Helyas; some Ieremias; or one of the nombre of the prophetes. <sup>15</sup> He sayeth vnto them: but whom saye ye that I am? <sup>16</sup> Simon Peter answered and sayde: Thou art Christ the sone of the Iyuinge God. <sup>17</sup> And Iesus answered; ⁊ sayde vnto hym: happy art thou Simon the sonne of Ionas; for fleshe and bloud hath not opened that vnto the but my father which is in heuen. <sup>18</sup> And I saye also vnto the; that thou art Peter; and vpon this rocke I wil bylde my congregacion. And the gates of hell shal not preuaile agaynst it. <sup>19</sup> And I wil geue vnto the; the keyes of the kyngdom of heuen: And whatsoever thou byndest in erth; shall be bounde in heuen: ⁊ whatsoever thou locest in erth; shalbe lowsed in heuen.

<sup>20</sup> Then charged he hys discipules; that they shulde tell no man; that he was Iesus Christ. <sup>21</sup> From that tyme forth begaune Iesus to shewe vnto his disciples; how that he must go vnto Ierusalem; and suffer many thinges of the elders; ⁊ hye Prestes; and Scribes; and must be killed; and be rased agayne the thyrde daye. <sup>22</sup> And when Peter had taken him asyde; he began to rebuke him; saying: master; fauer thy selfe; this shal not happen vnto the: <sup>23</sup> but he turned him aboute; and sayde vnto Peter; go after me Satan; thou hyndrest me: for thou sauourest not the thinges that be of God; but those that be of men.

<sup>24</sup> Then sayde Iesus vnto his disciples: If eny man wil folowe me; let him forsake him selfe and take vp his crosse; ⁊ folowe me. For who so wil saue hys lyfe; shall lose it. <sup>25</sup> Agayne; whose doth lose his life for my sake; shall fynde it. For what doth it profite a man; yf he wyne alle the whole worlde: and lose his awne soule? <sup>26</sup> Or what

ὅτι αὐτός ἐστιν ὁ Χριστός. <sup>21</sup> Ἀπὸ τότε ἤρξατο ὁ Ἰησοῦς δεικνύειν τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, ὅτι δεῖ αὐτὸν ἀπελθεῖν εἰς Ἱερουσόλυμα, καὶ πολλὰ παθεῖν ἀπὸ τῶν πρεσβυτέρων καὶ ἀρχιερέων καὶ γραμματέων, καὶ ἀποκτανθῆναι, καὶ τῇ τρίτῃ ἡμέρᾳ ἐγερθῆναι. <sup>22</sup> καὶ προσλαβόμενος αὐτὸν ὁ Πέτρος ἤρξατο ἐπιτιμᾶν αὐτῷ, λέγων, Ἐλεός σοι, κύριε· οὐ μὴ ἔσται σοι τοῦτο. <sup>23</sup> Ὁ δὲ στραφεὶς εἶπε τῷ Πέτρῳ, Ὑπαγε ὀπίσω μου, Σατανᾶ, σκάνδαλόν μου εἶ· ὅτι οὐ φρονεῖς τὰ τοῦ Θεοῦ, ἀλλὰ τὰ τῶν ἀνθρώπων. <sup>24</sup> Τότε ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, Εἴ τις θέλει ὀπίσω μου ἐλθεῖν, ἀπαρνησάσθω ἑαυτὸν, καὶ ἀράτω τὸν σταυρὸν αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἀκολουθήτω μοι. <sup>25</sup> ὃς γὰρ ἂν θέλῃ τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ σῶσαι, ἀπολέσει αὐτήν· ὃς δ' ἂν ἀπολέσῃ τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ ἕνεκεν ἐμοῦ, εὐρήσει αὐτήν. <sup>26</sup> τί γὰρ ὠφελεῖται ἄνθρωπος, εἰὰν τὸν κόσμον ὅλον κερδήσῃ, τὴν δὲ ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ ζημιωθῇ; ἢ τί

<sup>21</sup> Rec. + Ἰησοῦς.

<sup>22</sup> Rec. & Alex. εἰς Ἱερουσόλυμα ἀπελθεῖν.

<sup>23</sup> Alex. ὠφελῆθησεται.

GENEVA — 1557.

Cæsarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, Whome do men say that I am the Some of man? <sup>14</sup> And they said, Some say that thou art Iohn Baptist: and some Elias: and some Ieremias, or one of the Prophets. <sup>15</sup> He said vnto them, But whome say ye that I am? <sup>16</sup> Simon Peter answered, and said, Thou art Christe the Sonne of the liuyng God. <sup>17</sup> And Iesus answered, and said to him, happy art thou Simon the some of Ionas, for flesh & bloud hath not opened vnto thee that, but my father which is in heauen.

<sup>18</sup> And I say also vnto thee, that thou art Peter, and vpon this rocke I will build my congregation. And the gates of hel shal not ouercome it. <sup>19</sup> And I will gene vnto thee, the keyes of the kyngdome of heauen: & what soeuer thou shalt bynde vpon earth, shalbe bound in heauen: and what soeuer thou shalt loose on earth, shalbe lowsed in heauen. <sup>20</sup> Then he sharpey charged his disciples, that they should tel no man that was Iesus the Christ. <sup>21</sup> From that tyme forth Iesus began to shew vnto his disciples, how that he must go vnto Ierusalem, and suffer many thynges of the Elders, and of the hie Priestes, and Scribes, and must be killed, and rise agayn the thyrd day. <sup>22</sup> But Peter toke hym asyde, and began to rebuke him, saying, Master looke to thy self, this shal not be vnto thee. <sup>23</sup> Then turned he about, and said vnto Peter, Away from me Satan: thou offendest me: because thou sauourest not the thynges that are of God, but the thynges that are of men.

<sup>24</sup> Iesus then said to his disciples, If any man wyl folow me, let him forsake hym self, and take vp his crosse, and folowe me. <sup>25</sup> For whoeuer wyl saue his life, shal lose it. And whoeuer shal lose his life for my sake, shal fynde it. <sup>26</sup> For what is a man the better, though he should wyne all the whole worlde, if he be condemned to paye his soule? Or els what

RHEIMS—1582.

Cæsarea Philippi: and he asked his disciples, saying, Whom say men that the Some of man is? <sup>14</sup> But they said, Some Iohn the Baptist, & othersome Elias, and others Hieremic, or one of the Prophets.

<sup>15</sup> Iesus saith to them, But vvhom do you say that I am? <sup>16</sup> Simon Peter answered & said, Thou art Christ the sonne of the liuyng God. <sup>17</sup> And Iesus answering, said to him, Blessed art thou Simon bar-Iona: because flesh & bloud hath not revealed it to thee, but my father vvwhich is in heauen. <sup>18</sup> And I say to thee, That thou art Peter: and vpon this Rocke evil I build my Church, and the gates of hel shal not preuaile against it. <sup>19</sup> And I evil giue to thee the keyes of the kingdom of heauen. And vvhatsoever thou shalt binde vpon earth, it shal be bound also in the heauens: and vvhatsoever thou shalt loose in earth, it shal be loosed also in the heauens.

<sup>20</sup> Then he commaunded his disciples that they should tel no body that he vvvas Iesus Christ.

<sup>21</sup> From that time Iesus began to shew his disciples, that he must goe to Hierusalem, & suffer many things of the Ancients & Scribes & cheefe-Priestes, and be killed, and the third day rise againe. <sup>22</sup> And Peter taking him vnto him, began to rebuke him, saying, Lord, be it farre from thee, this shal not be vnto thee.

<sup>23</sup> Who turning said to Peter, Goe after me Satan, thou art a scandal vnto me: because thou sauourest not the things that are of God, but the things that are of men. <sup>24</sup> Then Iesus said to his disciples, If any man wil come after me, let him denie him self, and take vp his crosse, and follow me. <sup>25</sup> For he that wil saue his life, shal lose it. and he that shal lose his life for my sake, shal finde it. <sup>26</sup> For what doth it profite a man, if he gaine the vvhole worlde, and sustaine the damage of his soule? Or vvhat permutation shal a man

AUTHORISED—1611.

Cæsarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, Whom doe men say, that I the some of man, am? <sup>14</sup> And they said, Some say that thou art Iohn the Baptist, some Elias, and others Ieremias, or one of the Prophets. <sup>15</sup> He saith vnto them, But whom say ye that I am? <sup>16</sup> And Simon Peter answered, and said, Thou art Christ the sonne of the liuyng God. <sup>17</sup> And Iesus answered, and said vnto him, Blessed art thou Simon Bar Iona: for flesh and blood hath not reueiled it vnto thee, but my Father which is in heauen. <sup>18</sup> And I say also vnto thee, that thou art Peter, and vpon this rocke I will build my Church: and the gates of hell shall not preuaile against it. <sup>19</sup> And I will giue vnto thee the keyes of the kingdom of heauen: and whatsoeuer thou shalt binde on earth, shall be bound in heauen: whatsoeuer thou shalt loose on earth, shall be loosed in heauen. <sup>20</sup> Then charged hee his disciples that they should tell no man that hee was Iesus the Christ.

<sup>21</sup> From that time fourth began Iesus to shew vnto his disciples, how that he must goe vnto Hierusalem, and suffer many things of the Elders and chiefe Priests & Scribes, and bee killed, and be raised againe the third day. <sup>22</sup> Then Peter tooke him, and began to rebuke him, saying, Be it farre from thee Lord: This shal not be vnto thee. <sup>23</sup> But he turned, and said vnto Peter, Get thee behinde me, Satan, thou art an offence vnto me: for thou sauourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men.

<sup>24</sup> Then saide Iesus vnto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him denie himselfe, and take vp his crosse, and follow me. <sup>25</sup> For whoeuer will saue his life, shall lose it: and whoeuer will lose his life for my sake, shall finde it. <sup>26</sup> For what is a man profited, if he shall gaine the whole worlde, and lose his owne soule? Or what shall a man giue

‘ δώσει ἄνθρωπος ἀντάλλαγμα τῆς ψυχῆς αὐτοῦ; <sup>27</sup> μέλλει γὰρ ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἔρχεσθαι ἐν τῇ δόξῃ τοῦ πατρὸς αὐτοῦ μετὰ τῶν ἀγγέλων αὐτοῦ· καὶ τότε ἀποδοῦσι ἐκάστῳ κατὰ τὴν πράξιν αὐτοῦ. <sup>28</sup> Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, εἰσὶ τινες <sup>ρ</sup> ὧδε ἑστῶτες, οἵτινες οὐ μὴ γεύσονται θανάτου, ἕως ἂν ἴδωσι τὸν υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἔρχόμενον ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ αὐτοῦ.’

XVII. Καὶ μεθ’ ἡμέρας ἕξ παραλαμβάνει ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὸν Πέτρον καὶ Ἰάκωβον καὶ Ἰωάννην τὸν ἀδελφὸν αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἀναφέρει αὐτοὺς εἰς ὄρος ὑψηλὸν κατ’ ἰδίαν. <sup>2</sup> καὶ μετεμορφώθη ἔμπροσθεν αὐτῶν, καὶ ἔλαμψε τὸ πρόσωπον αὐτοῦ ὡς ὁ ἥλιος, τὰ δὲ ἰμάτια αὐτοῦ ἐγένετο λευκὰ ὡς τὸ φῶς. <sup>3</sup> καὶ ἰδὼν, ὄφθησαν αὐτοῖς Μωσῆς καὶ Ἡλίας, μετ’ αὐτοῦ συλλαλοῦντες. <sup>4</sup> ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Πέτρος εἶπε τῷ Ἰησοῦ, ‘Κύριε, καλὸν ἐστὶν ἡμᾶς ὧδε εἶναι· εἰ θέλεις, ποιήσωμεν ὧδε τρεῖς σκηνάς, σὺ

<sup>ρ</sup> Alex. τῶν ὡδε ἰσθῶτων. Const. ὡδε ἰσθῶτες. Rec. τῶν ὡδε ἰσθῶτων.

WICLIFF—1380.

what channynge schal a man zeue for his soule?

<sup>27</sup> For mannes sone schal come in glorie of his fadir, with hise angels: ⁊ thanne he schal zeude to euery man aftir his werkis; <sup>28</sup> treuli I seye to you there ben summe of hem that stonden here: whiche schulen not taste death: til thei se mannes sone comynge in his kyngdom.

17. AND aftir sixe dayes Ihesus took petir James ⁊ Ioon his brother: ⁊ ledde hem asidis in to an hie hil; <sup>2</sup> ⁊ was turned in to an other likenes bifrom hem; ⁊ his face schon as the sunne: ⁊ hise clothes weren made whijt as snowe; <sup>3</sup> ⁊ lo moises ⁊ helie aperid to hem: ⁊ spaken with hym

<sup>4</sup> ⁊ petir answeride ⁊ seide to ihesus; lord it is goodde! vs to be here; if thou wilt: make we here thre tabernacles: to thre oon, to moises oon, ⁊ to clie oon; <sup>5</sup> ⁊ hit the while he spake: lo a brijt cloude ouer schadewid hem; and lo a vois came out of the cloude that seide; this is my derworthe sone in whom I haue wecl plesid to me; here ze hym; <sup>6</sup> ⁊ the discipils herden ⁊ feldeu doum on her faces; ⁊ dreden greethy

<sup>7</sup> ⁊ ihesus cam ⁊ touchid hem: ⁊ seide to hem; rise ze up ⁊ nyle ze drede; <sup>8</sup> and thei lefiden vp her ijen ⁊ saien no man: but ihesus alone; <sup>9</sup> ⁊ as thei camen doum of the hil: ihesus comaundide to hem; ⁊ seide; seye ze to no man the visoun; til mannes sone ryse agen fro death. <sup>10</sup> And hise discipils axeden hym: ⁊ seiden; what thanne seien the scribis; that it bihoueth that clie come first; <sup>11</sup> he answeride ⁊ seide to hem; clie schal come: ⁊ he schal restore alle thinges; <sup>12</sup> and I seye to you, that clie is now comen ⁊ thei knownen hym

hipe, high. 3hit, get. dereworthi, belecet. 0310 ze drede, dreed not. 13jen, eyes. 3seue, give. 3felde, yeld.

TYNDALE—1534.

shall a man geve to redeme his soule agayne with all? <sup>27</sup> For the sone of man shall come in the glory of his father, with his angels: and then shall he rewarde every man accordinge to his dedes. <sup>28</sup> Verely I saye vnto you, some ther be amonge them that here stonde, which shall not taste of death; tyll they shall have sene the sone of man come in his kyngdomen.

17. AND after .vi. dayes Ihesus toke Peter and James and Ihon his brother, and brought them vp into an hie mountayne out of the waye; <sup>2</sup> and was transfyured before them: and his face did shyne as the sunne; and his clothes were as whyte as the light. <sup>3</sup> And beholde ther appered vnto them; Moses and Helyas; talking with him. <sup>4</sup> Then answered Peter, and sayde to Iesus; master here is good beynge for vs. If thou wilt; leet vs make here .iii. tabernacles; one for the; and one for Moses; and one for Helyas.

<sup>5</sup> Whyll he yet spake; beholde a bright cloude shadowed them. And beholde there came a voyce out of the cloude sayinge; this is my deare sone; in whom I delite; hear him. <sup>6</sup> And when the disciples hearde that they fell on their faces; and were sore afrayed. <sup>7</sup> And Iesus came and touched them; and sayde; aryse and be not afrayed. <sup>8</sup> And when they looked vp; they saw no man; saue Iesus only.

<sup>9</sup> And as they came doune from the mountayne; Iesus charged them sayinge; se that ye shewe the vision to no man; vntyll the sone of man be rysen agayne fro death. <sup>10</sup> And his disciples axed of him; sayinge; Why then saye the scribes; that Helyas muste fyrst come? <sup>11</sup> Iesus answerde; and sayd vnto them; Helyas shall fyrst come; and restore all thinges. <sup>12</sup> And I saye vnto you that Helyas is come already; and they knewe him

CRANMER—1539.

shal a man geue to redeme his soule agayne with all? <sup>27</sup> For the sone of man shall come in the glory of his father, with hys angels: ⁊ then shall he rewarde euery man accordinge to his dedes. <sup>28</sup> Uerely I saye vnto you, ther be stondeynge here, which shall not tast of death, tyll they see the sone of man come in hys kyngdome.

17. AND after .vi. dayes, Iesus taketh Peter, James and John his brother, and bringeth them vp into an hie mountayne out of the waye, <sup>2</sup> and was transfygured before them and his face dyd shyne as the sonne, and hys clothes were as whyte as the lyght. <sup>3</sup> And beholde, there apered vnto them Moses and Elias talking with him. <sup>4</sup> Then answered Peter, and sayd vnto Iesus, Lorde, here is good beynge for vs. If thou wilt, let vs make here .iii. tabernacles: one for the, and one for Moses, and one for Helyas. <sup>5</sup> Whyhe he yet spake, beholde, a bright cloude shadowed them.

And beholde, there came a voyce out of the cloude which sayde this is my beloued sone in whom I deleyte heare him. <sup>6</sup> And when the disciples hearde these thinges, they fell on their faces and were sore afrayed. <sup>7</sup> And Iesus came and touched them, and sayde; aryse, ⁊ be not afrayed. <sup>8</sup> And when they had lift vp their eyes they sawe no man saue Iesus only.

<sup>9</sup> And when they came doune from the mountayne, Iesus charged them saying; shew the vision to no man, vntyll the sone of man be rysen agayne fro the deed. <sup>10</sup> And his disciples asked him, saying, Whi then saye the Scribes, that Helyas muste fyrst come? <sup>11</sup> Iesus answerd, and sayde vnto them; Helyas trulye shall fyrst come, and restore all thinges. <sup>12</sup> But I saye vnto you, that Helyas is come already, and they knewe him not: but haue done vnto him what-

‘μίαν, καὶ Μωσῆ μίαν, καὶ ὁ μίαν Ἠλία.’ <sup>5</sup> Ἐτι αὐτοῦ λαλοῦντος, ἰδοὺ, νεφέλη φωτεινὴ ἐπεσκίασεν αὐτούς· καὶ ἰδοὺ, φωνὴ ἐκ τῆς νεφέλης, λέγουσα, ‘Οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ υἱὸς μου ὁ ἀγαπητός, ἐν ᾧ εὐδόκησα· αὐτοῦ ἀκούετε.’ <sup>6</sup> Καὶ ἀκούσαντες οἱ μαθηταὶ ἔπεσον ἐπὶ πρόσωπον αὐτῶν, καὶ ἐφοβήθησαν σφόδρα. <sup>7</sup> καὶ προσελθὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἤψατο αὐτῶν, καὶ εἶπεν, ‘Εγέρθητε καὶ μὴ φοβείσθε.’ <sup>8</sup> Ἐπάραντες δὲ τοὺς ὀφθαλμοὺς αὐτῶν, οὐδένα εἶδον, εἰ μὴ τὸν Ἰησοῦν μόνον. <sup>9</sup> Καὶ καταβαινόντων αὐτῶν ἔκ| τοῦ ὄρους, ἐνετείλατο αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, λέγων, ‘Μηδεὺς εἶπητε τὸ ὄραμα, ἕως οὗ ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐκ νεκρῶν ἀναστῆ.’ <sup>10</sup> Καὶ ἐπρώτησαν αὐτὸν οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, λέγοντες, ‘Τί οὖν οἱ γραμματεῖς λέγουσιν, ὅτι Ἠλίαν δεῖ ἐλθεῖν πρῶτον;’ <sup>11</sup> Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς| ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ‘Ἠλίας μὲν ἔρχεται πρῶτον,| καὶ ἀποκαταστήσει πάντα.’ <sup>12</sup> λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, ὅτι Ἠλίας ἤδη ἦλθε, καὶ οὐκ

<sup>5</sup> Alex. Ἠλίμ μίαν.

<sup>7</sup> Rec. ἀπό.

<sup>8</sup> Alex. = Ἰησοῦς.

<sup>9</sup> Alex. = πρῶτον.

GENEVA — 1557.

shal a man geue to redeme his soule agayn with all? <sup>27</sup> For the Sonne of man shal come in the glorie of his father, with his Angels: and then shal he reward every man accordyng to his deedes. <sup>28</sup> Verely I say vnto you some there be standing here, which shal not tast of death, tyl they shal see the Sonne of man come in his kyngdome.

17. AND after six dayes, Iesus toke Peter, & Iames, and Iohn his brother, & broght them vp into an hie mountayne out of the way. <sup>2</sup> And was transfigured before them: and his face dyd shyne as the sunne, and his clothes were as whyte as the light. <sup>3</sup> And behold they saw Moses, and Elias, talking with hym. <sup>4</sup> Then answered Peter, and sayd to Iesus, Master, here is good beyng for vs: If thou wilt, let vs make here three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias.

<sup>5</sup> Whye he yet spake, behold a bright cloude shadowed them: And beholde, there came a voyce out of that cloude, saying, This is my deare sonne, in whome I dechye, Hearre him. <sup>6</sup> And when the disciples heard that, they fel on their faces and were afrayed. <sup>7</sup> But Iesus came and touched them, and sayd, Arise and be not afrayed. <sup>8</sup> And when they looked vp, they saw no man, saue Iesus onely.

<sup>9</sup> And as they came downe from the mountayne, Iesus charged them, saying, See that ye shewe the vision to no man, vntill the Sonne of man be rysen agayne from death.

<sup>10</sup> And his disciples asked hym, saying, Why then say the Scribes, that Elias must fyrst come? <sup>11</sup> Iesus answered, and sayd vnto them, Certenly Elias must fyrst come, and restore all thynges. <sup>12</sup> But I say vnto you, that Elias is come already, and they knewe him not, but haue done

RHEIMS—1582.

gine for his soule? <sup>27</sup> For the Sonne of man shal come in the glorie of his father vwith his Angels: and then wil he render to euery man according to his vvorkes.

<sup>28</sup> Amen I say to you, there be some of them that stand here, that shal not taste death, til they see the Sonne of man coming in his kingdom.

17. AND after six dayes IESVS taketh vnto him Peter and Iames and Iohn his brother, and bringeth them into a high mountaine apart: <sup>2</sup> And he vvas transfigured before them. And his face did shine as the sunne: & his garments became vwhite as snovv. <sup>3</sup> And behold there appeared to them Moyes and Elias talking vwith him. <sup>4</sup> And Peter ansvering, said to IESVS, Lord, it is good for vs to be here: if thou vvilt, let vs make here three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moyes, and one for Elias.

<sup>5</sup> And as he vvas yet speaking, behold a bright cloude ouershadovved them. And loe a voice out of the cloude, saying, This is my vvbeloued sonne, in whom I am vvell pleased: heare ye him. <sup>6</sup> And the disciples hearing it, fel vpon their face, and vvere sore afraid. <sup>7</sup> And IESVS came and touched them: and he said to them, Arise, and feare not. <sup>8</sup> And they lifting vp their eyes, savv no body, but onely IESVS.

<sup>9</sup> And as they descended from the mount, IESVS commaunded them, saying, Tel the vision to no body, til the Sonne of man be risen from the dead.

<sup>10</sup> And his Disciples asked him, saying, What say the Scribes then, that Elias must come first? <sup>11</sup> But he answering, said to them, Elias in dedde shal come, and restore all thynges. <sup>12</sup> And I say to you, that Elias is already come, and they did not knovv him, but vvrought on him

AUTHORISED — 1611.

in exchange for his soule? <sup>27</sup> For the Sonne of man shall come in the glory of his Father, with his Angels: and then he shall reward every man according to his workes.

<sup>28</sup> Verely I say vnto you, There be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they see the Sonne of man coming in his Kingdome.

17. AND after sixe dayes, Iesus taketh Peter, Iames, and Iohn his brother, and bringeth them vp into a high mountaine apart. <sup>2</sup> And was transfigured before them, and his face did shine as the Sunne, and his raiment was white as the light.

<sup>3</sup> And behold, there appeared vnto them Moses, and Elias, talking with him. <sup>4</sup> Then answered Peter, and said vnto Iesus, Lord, it is good for vs to be here: If thou wilt, let vs make here three Tabernacles: one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias. <sup>5</sup> While he yet spake, behold, a bright cloud ouershadovved them: and behold a voyce out of the cloude, which said, This is my beloued Sonne, in whom I am well pleased: heare ye him.

<sup>6</sup> And when the disciples heard it, they fell on their face, and were sore afraid. <sup>7</sup> And Iesus came and touched them, and said, Arise, and be not afraid. <sup>8</sup> And when they had lift vp their cies, they saw no man, saue Iesus onely. <sup>9</sup> And as they came downe from the mountaine, Iesus charged them, saying, Tell the vision to no man, vntill the Sonne of man be risen againe from the dead. <sup>10</sup> And his disciples asked him, saying, Why then say the Scribes that Elias must first come? <sup>11</sup> And Iesus answered, and saide vnto them, Elias truly shall first come, and restore all thynges:

<sup>12</sup> But I say vnto you, that Elias is come already, and they knew him not, but haue

‘ ἐπέγνωσαν αὐτὸν, ἀλλ’ ἐποίησαν ἐν αὐτῷ ὅσα ἠθέλησαν· οὕτω καὶ ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου μέλλει πάσχειν ὑπ’ αὐτῶν.’<sup>13</sup> Τότε συνῆκαν οἱ μαθηταί, ὅτι περὶ Ἰωάννου τοῦ Βαπτιστοῦ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς.

<sup>14</sup> Καὶ ἐλθόντων αὐτῶν πρὸς τὸν ὄχλον, προσῆλθεν αὐτῷ ἄνθρωπος γονυπετῶν αὐτὸν, | <sup>15</sup> καὶ λέγων, ‘ Κύριε, ἐλέησόν μου τὸν υἱόν, ὅτι σεληνιαῖζεται καὶ κακῶς πάσχει· πολλάκις γὰρ πίπτει εἰς τὸ πῦρ, καὶ πολλάκις εἰς τὸ ὕδωρ.’<sup>16</sup> καὶ προσῆνεγκα αὐτὸν τοῖς μαθηταῖς σου, καὶ οὐκ ἠδυνήθησαν αὐτὸν θεραπεύσαι.
<sup>17</sup> Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, ‘ Ὡ γενεὰ ἄπιστος καὶ διεστραμμένη, ἕως πότε
ἔσομαι μεθ’ ὑμῶν; | ἕως πότε ἀνέξομαι ὑμῶν; φέρετέ μοι αὐτὸν ὧδε.’<sup>18</sup> Καὶ ἐπετίμησεν αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, καὶ ἐξῆλθεν ἀπ’ αὐτοῦ τὸ δαιμόνιον, καὶ ἔθεραπεύθη ὁ παῖς ἀπὸ τῆς ὥρας ἐκείνης.<sup>19</sup> Τότε προσελθόντες οἱ μαθηταί τῷ Ἰησοῦ κατ’
ἰδίαν εἶπον, ‘ Διὰ τί ἡμεῖς οὐκ ἠδυνήθημεν ἐκβαλεῖν αὐτό;’<sup>20</sup> Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς | εἶπεν

* Rec. αὐτῷ.

* Alex. μεθ’ ὑμῶν ἔσομαι.

* Alex. = Ἰησοῦς.

WICLIF—1380.

not: but thei didnen in hym what euer thingis thei wolden, ⁊ so mannes sone schal suffre of hem,<sup>13</sup> Thanne the discipulis vnderstonden that he seide to hem of Iohn the baptist.

<sup>14</sup> ⁊ whanne he came to the puple: a man came to hym ⁊ fil doun on knees biforn hym ⁊ seide,<sup>15</sup> lord haue thou merci on my sone, for he is lunatik and suffreth yuel for ofte tymes he fallith in to the fyre ⁊ ofte times in to the water,<sup>16</sup> and I brougte hym to thin discipulis: and thei myght not hele hym,<sup>17</sup> ihesus answered ⁊ seide, a thou generacioun vn-bileueful ⁊ weyward: hou longe schal I be with you, hou longe schal I suffre you, brynge se hym hidir to me,<sup>18</sup> ⁊ ihesus blameid hym: ⁊ the deuel wente out fro hym, ⁊ the child was held fro that our.

<sup>19</sup> Thanne the discipulis camen to ihesus pryueli: ⁊ seiden to hym whi myghte not we casten hym out? <sup>20</sup> ihesus seith to hem, for youre vnbeleue, treuli I sey to you, if se han feith as a corn of seneyc, se schulen sey to this hil, passe thou hences, and it schal passe, and no thing schal be impossible to you,<sup>21</sup> but this kynde is not cast out: but bi preynge ⁊ fastynge.

<sup>22</sup> and whilis thei weren abidyng to gidre in galile: ihesus seide to hem, mannes sone schal be bitraide in to the hondis of men,<sup>23</sup> ⁊ thei schulen see hym: ⁊ the thridde day he schal risen aȝen to liif, and thei weren ful sori.

<sup>24</sup> And whanne thei camen to cafarnaum: thei that token tribut camen to petir ⁊ seiden to him, youre mistir pieth not tribute? <sup>25</sup> ⁊ he seide, this ⁊ whanne he was comen in to the hous: ihesus came bifore him and seileȝ synounit: what semeth to thee? kyngis of erthe of whom taken thei tribute? of her sones ether of aliens? <sup>26</sup> ⁊ he seide, of aliens; ihesus

TYNDALE—1534.

not: but haue donne vnto him what so euer they lusted. In lyke wyse shall also the sonne of man suffre of them.<sup>13</sup> Then the disciples perceaved that he spake vnto them of Iohn baptist.

<sup>14</sup> And when they were come to the people, thei cam to him a certayne man and kneled doune to him, and sayde: <sup>15</sup> Master haue mercy on my sonne for he is frantike: and is sore vexed. And oft tymes he falleth into the fyre, and oft into the water. <sup>16</sup> And I brought him to thy disciples, and they coude not heale him. <sup>17</sup> Iesus answered and sayde: O generacion faythles and croked: how longe shall I be with you? how longe shall I suffre you? bring him hidder to me. <sup>18</sup> And Iesus rebuked the deuyll, and he cam out of him. And the child was healed euen that same houre. <sup>19</sup> Then came the disciples to Iesus secretly and sayde: Why coude not we cast him out? <sup>20</sup> Iesus sayd vnto them: Because of youre vnbelefe. For I saye verily vnto you: yf ye had faythe as a grayne of musterd seed, ye shuld saye vnto this mountayne, remove hence to yonder place; and he shuld remove: nether shuld eny thinge be vnposible for you to do. <sup>21</sup> How be it this kynde goeth not oute, but by prayer and fastinge.

<sup>22</sup> As they passed the tyme in Galilee, Iesus sayd vnto them: the sonne of man shalbe betrayed into the hondes of men,<sup>23</sup> and they shall kill him; and the thyrd daye he shall ryse agayne. And they sorowed greatly.

<sup>24</sup> And when they were come to Capernaum, they that were wont to gadre poll money, came to Peter and sayde: Doth youre master paye tribute? <sup>25</sup> He sayd: ye. And when he was come into the hous, Iesus spake fyrst to him, saying, What thinkest thou Simon? of whom do the kyngis of the erth take tribute or poll money? of their chyldren, or of straungers? <sup>26</sup> Peter sayde vnto him: of soeuer they lusted. In lykewyse shall also the sonne of man suffre of them.<sup>13</sup> Then the disciples vnderstode, that he spake vnto them of Iohn Baptist.

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>14</sup> And when they were come to the people, ther came to him a certayne man kneeling doune to him, and sayng: <sup>15</sup> Master, haue mercy on my sonne, for he is lunatik and sore vexed, for oft tymes he falleth into the fyre, and oft into the water. <sup>16</sup> And I brought him to thy disciples, ⁊ they coude not heale him. <sup>17</sup> Iesus answered and sayd: O faythles and croked nacion: how longe shall I be with you? how longe shall I suffre you? bring him hyther. <sup>18</sup> And Iesus rebuked the deuyll, and he departed out of him. And the childe was healed euen that same tyme.

<sup>19</sup> Then came the disciples to Iesus secretly and sayde: why coude not we cast him out? <sup>20</sup> Iesus sayd vnto them: Because of your vnbelefe. For verely I saye vnto you: yf ye haue fayth as a grayne of musterd seed, ye shall saye vnto this mountayne: remoue hence to yonder place, and it shal remoue: nether shal eny thinge be vnpossible vnto you. <sup>21</sup> Howbeit this kynde goeth not out, but by prayer and fastinge. <sup>22</sup> While they were occupied in Galilee Iesus sayd vnto them: it will come to passe that the sonne of man shalbe betrayed into the handes of men, <sup>23</sup> and they shall kyl him and the thyrd daye shall he ryse agayne. And they were exceedyng sorye.

<sup>24</sup> And when they were come to the cite of Capernaum, they that vse to receaue tribute money, cam to Peter, and sayd: Doth your master paye tribute? <sup>25</sup> He sayeth: yee. And when he was come into the house, Iesus presented him sayng: What thinkest thou Simon? of whom do the kynges of the erth take trybute or toll, of their chyldren, or of straungers? <sup>26</sup> Peter sayeth vnto him: of

αὐτοῖς, 'Διὰ τὴν ἄπιστίαν ὑμῶν. ἀμὴν γὰρ λέγω ὑμῖν, ἐὰν ἔχητε πίστιν ὡς κόκκον σινάπεως, ἐρεῖτε τῷ ὄρει τούτῳ, Μετάβηθι ἐντεῦθεν ἐκεῖ, καὶ μεταβήσεται· καὶ οὐδὲν ἀδυνατήσῃ ὑμῖν. <sup>21</sup> τούτο δὲ τὸ γένος οὐκ ἐκπορεύεται, εἰ μὴ ἐν προσευχῇ καὶ νηστεία.'

<sup>22</sup> Ἀναστρεφομένων δὲ αὐτῶν ἐν τῇ Γαλιλαίᾳ, εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, 'Μέλλει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδίδοσθαι εἰς χεῖρας ἀνθρώπων, <sup>23</sup> καὶ ἀποκτενοῦσιν αὐτὸν, καὶ τῇ τρίτῃ ἡμέρᾳ ἐγερθήσεται.' Καὶ ἐλυπήθησαν σφόδρα.

<sup>24</sup> Ἐλθόντων δὲ αὐτῶν εἰς Καπερναοῦμ, προσῆλθον οἱ τὰ δίδραχμα λαμβάνοντες τῷ Πέτρῳ, καὶ εἶπον, 'Ὁ διδάσκαλος ὑμῶν οὐ τελεῖ τὰ δίδραχμα;' <sup>25</sup> Λέγει, 'Ναί.' Καὶ ὅτε εἰσῆλθεν εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν, πρόεφθασεν αὐτὸν ὁ Ἰησοῦς, λέγων, 'Τί σοὶ δοκεῖ, Σίμων; οἱ βασιλεῖς τῆς γῆς ἀπὸ τίνων λαμβάνουσι τέλη ἢ κῆνσον; ἀπὸ τῶν υἱῶν αὐτῶν, ἢ ἀπὸ τῶν ἀλλοτρίων;' <sup>26</sup> Λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Πέτρος, 'Ἀπὸ τῶν

• Alex. ἀλαγοστίαν.

GENEVA—1557.

vnto hym what soeuer they lusted: In like wyse shal also the Sonne of man souffer of them.

<sup>13</sup> Then the disciples perceaued that he spake vnto them of Iohn Baptist. <sup>14</sup> And when they were come to the people, there came to him a certayne man, & kneled downe to him, <sup>15</sup> And sayd, Master haue mercie on my sonne, for he is lunatike, and is sore vexed: For oft tymes he falleth into the fyre, and oft into the water. <sup>16</sup> And I brought him to thy disciples, and they could not heale hym.

<sup>17</sup> Iesus answered and sayd O generation faithles & croked: How longe shal I be with you, how longe shal I suffre you? Bring hym hyther to me. <sup>18</sup> And Iesus rebuked the deuyll, and he came out of hym. And the childe was healed euen that same houre. <sup>19</sup> Then came the disciples to Iesus secretly, and sayd, Why could not we cast him out?

<sup>20</sup> Iesus sayd vnto them, Because of your vnbeleife. For verely I say vnto you, if ye had fayth as muche as is a grayne of mustard seed, ye should say vnto this mountayne, Remoue hence to yonder place, and it should remoue: neither should any thyng be vmpossible for you to do. <sup>21</sup> How be it this kynde goeth not out, but by prayer and fasting.

<sup>22</sup> As they passed the tyme in Galile, Iesus sayd vnto them, The sonne of man shal be betrayed into the handes of men. <sup>23</sup> And they shal kyl hym, and the thyrd day shal he ryse agayne. And they sorowed greatly.

<sup>24</sup> And when they were come to Capernaum, they that were wont to gather polle money, came to Peter, and sayd, Doth not your master pay tribute? <sup>25</sup> He sayd, yea. And when he was come into y<sup>e</sup> house, Iesus spake fyrst to hym, saying, What thinkest thou Simon? Of what do the kynges of the earth take tribute, or polle mony? of their chyldren, or of strangers? <sup>26</sup> Peter sayd vnto hym, vnto whatsoeuer they wvould. So also the Sonne of man shal suffer of them.

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>13</sup> Then the Disciples vnderstoode, that of Iohn the Baptist he had spoken to them.

<sup>14</sup> And vhen he vvas come vnto the multitude, there came to him a man falling downe vpon his knees before him, <sup>15</sup> saying, Lord haue mercie vpon my sonne, for he is lunatike, and sore vexed: for he falleth often into the fire, and often into the vvater. <sup>16</sup> and I offered him to thy Disciples: and they could not cure him. <sup>17</sup> Iesus answered and said, O faithles and peruerse generation, howv long shal I be vvith you? Howv long shal I suffer you? bring him hither to me.

<sup>18</sup> And Iesus rebuked him, and the deuil vvent out of him, and the ladde vvas cured from that houre. <sup>19</sup> Then came the Disciples to Iesus secretly, and said, Why could not vve cast him out? <sup>20</sup> Iesus said to them, because of your incredulity. for, amen I say to you, if you haue faith as a mustard seede, you shal say to this mountaine, Remoue from hence thither: and it shal remoue, and nothing shal be impossible to you. <sup>21</sup> But this kinde is not cast out but by prayer and fasting.

<sup>22</sup> And vhen they conuersed in Galilee, Iesus said to them, The Sonne of man is to be betrayed into the handes of men: <sup>23</sup> and they shal kil him, and the third day he shal rise againe. And they vvere stroken sadde exceedingly.

<sup>24</sup> And vhen they vvere come to Capernaum, there came they that receiued the didrachmes, vnto Peter, and said to him, Your maister doth he not pay the didrachmes? <sup>25</sup> He saith, Yes. And vhen he vvas entred into the house, Iesus prevented him, saying, What is thy opinion Simon? The kynges of the earth of vvhom receiue they tribute or cense? of their children, or of strangers? <sup>26</sup> And done vnto him whatsoeuer they listed: Likewise shall also the Son of man suffer of them. <sup>13</sup> Then the disciples vnderstood that he spake vnto them of Iohn the Baptist.

AUTHORISED—1611.

<sup>14</sup> And when they were come to the multitude, there came to him a certaine man, kneeling downe to him, and saying, <sup>15</sup> Lord, haue mercie on my sonne, for he is lunatike, and sore vexed: for oft tymes he falleth into the fire, and oft into the water.

<sup>16</sup> And I brought him to thy disciples. and they could not cure him. <sup>17</sup> Then Iesus answered, and said, O faithlesse and peruerse generation, how long shal I be with you? howe long shal I suffer you? bring him hither to me. <sup>18</sup> And Iesus rebuked the deuyll, and hee departed out of him: and the childe was cured from that very houre.

<sup>19</sup> Then came the Disciples to Iesus apart, and said, Why could not we cast him out? <sup>20</sup> And Iesus said vnto them, Because of your vnbeleife: for verely I say vnto you, If ye haue faith as a graine of mustard seed, yee shall say vnto this mountaine; Remoue hence to yonder place: and it shall remoue, and nothing shal be vmpossible vnto you. <sup>21</sup> Howbeit, this kind goeth not out, but by prayer and fasting.

<sup>22</sup> And while they abode in Galilee Iesus said vnto them, The sonne of man shall be betrayed into the hands of men: <sup>23</sup> And they shall kill him, and the third day he shall be raised againe: And they were exceeding sory.

<sup>24</sup> And when they were come to Capernaum, they that receiued tribute money, came to Peter, and said, Doest not your master pay tribute? <sup>25</sup> Hee saith, Yes. And when hee was come into the house, Iesus prevented him, saying, What thinkest thou, Simon? of whom doe the kynges of the earth take custome or tribute? of their owne children, or of strangers? <sup>26</sup> Peter saith vnto him, Of strangers.

‘ἀλλοτρίων.’ Ἐφη αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ‘Ἄραγε ἐλεύθεροί εἰσιν οἱ υἱοί. 27 ἵνα δὲ μὴ
 ‘σκανδαλίσωμεν αὐτούς, πορευθεὶς εἰς 28 τὴν θάλασσαν, βάλε ἄγκιστρον, καὶ τὸν ‘ἀναβάνα πρῶτον ἰχθὺν ἄρον καὶ ἀνοίξας τὸ στόμα αὐτοῦ, εὐρήσεις στατήρα ‘ἐκείων λαβῶν δὸς αὐτοῖς ἀντὶ ἐμοῦ καὶ σοῦ.’

XVIII. Ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ὥρᾳ προσῆλθον οἱ μαθηταὶ τῷ Ἰησοῦ, λέγοντες, ‘Τίς ‘ἄρα μείζων ἐστὶν ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τῶν οὐρανῶν; 2 Καὶ προσκαλεσάμενος ὁ Ἰησοῦς παιδίον ἔστησεν αὐτὸ ἐν μέσῳ αὐτῶν, 3 καὶ εἶπεν, ‘Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ἐὰν μὴ ‘στραφήτε καὶ γένησθε ὡς τὰ παιδιά, οὐ μὴ εἰσέλθητε εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τῶν ‘οὐρανῶν. 4 ὅστις οὖν 5 ταπεινώσει ἑαυτὸν ὡς τὸ παιδίον τούτο, οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ ‘μείζων ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τῶν οὐρανῶν. 5 καὶ ὃς ἐὰν δέξεται παιδίον τοιοῦτον ἐν ἐπὶ ‘τῷ ὀνόματί μου, ἐμὲ δέχεται. 6 ὃς δ’ ἂν σκανδαλίση ἓνα τῶν μικρῶν τούτων τῶν ἢ Alex. = τὴν.

2 Rec. ταπεινώσῃ.

WICLIF—1380.

seide to hym, thanne sones ben fre; 27 but that we sclaudren hem not : go thou to the see, & cast an hook, & take thilke fische that first cometh vp; & whanne his mouth is opened thou schal fynde a statir & zeue for thee & for me.

18. IN that oure the discipulis camen to ihesus & seiden, who gossset thou is gretter in the kyngdom of heuenes? 2 & ihesus clepid a litil child; & put hem in the myddil of hem, 3 and seide, I seye treuthe to you, but ze be turned & made as litil children; ze schulen not entre in to the kyndom of heuenes; 4 therfor who euer mekith him as this litil child; he is gretter in the kyngdom of heuenes; 5 & he that resceyueth oon suche litil child in my name; resceyueth me; 6 but who so sclaudreth oon of these smale that bileuen in me it spedith to hym, that a mylle stoon of assis be hangid in his necke; & he be drenchid in the depense of the see; 7 wo to the world for sclaudris; For it is nedde; that sclaudris come; netheles wo to thilke man; bi whom a sclaudre cometh;

2 & if thiū hond or thi foot sclaudreth thee: kit it of & cast away for thee; it is bettir to thee to entre to lif, feble ether crokid; than hauynge two handis, or tweyne feet to be sente in to euerlasting fier;

3 & if thiū ise sclaudre thee: pulle it out & caste awaye for thee; it is bettir to thee with oon ise to entre in to lif, thanne hauynge tweye isen to be sente in to the fier of helle;

10 se ze that ze dispise not oon of these of litil for I sey to you, that the angelis of hem in heuenes: seen euermore the face of my fadir that is in heuenes; 11 for whannes some cam to saue that thing that shalle, that. zeue, gier, clepid, called. ether, or.

 10, eye.

TYNDALE—1534.

straungers. Then sayd Iesus vnto him agayne: There are the chyl dren fre.
 27 Nevertheless, lest we shuld offende them: goo to the see and cast in thynge angle; and take the fysshe that fyrst cometh vp; and when thou hast opened his mouth; thou shalt fynde a peece of twentie pence: that take and paye for me and the.

18. THE same tyme the disciples came vnto Iesus saying: who is the greatest in the kyngdome of heven? 2 Iesus called a chylde vnto him; and set him in the middes of them; 3 and sayd. Verely I say vnto you: except ye tourne; and become as chyl dren; ye cannot enter into the kyngdom of heven. 4 Whosoever therefore humble him sylfe as this chylde;
 the same is the greatest in the kyngdome of heven. 5 And whosoever receaueth suche a chylde in my name; receaueth me. 6 But whosoever offende one of these lytelons; which beleve in me: it were better for him; that a midstone were hanged aboute his necke; and that he were drowned in the depth of the see. 7 Wo be vnto the world because of offences. How be it; it cannot be avoided but that offences shulde geuen. Neverthelesse woo be to the man; by whom the offence commeth.

8 Wherefor yf thy honde or thy fote offende the; cut him of and cast him from the. It ys better for the to enter into lyfe halt or maymed; rather then thou shuldest haue two hondes or two fete; be cast into everlasting fyre. 9 And yf also thine eye offende the; plucke him oute and easte him from the. It is better for the to enter into lyfe with one eye;
 then hauyng two eyes to be cast into hell
 fyre.

10 Se that ye despise not one of these litlons. For I saye vnto you; that in heuen their angels alwayes behold the face of my fathyr; which is in heuen.
 11 Ye and the sonne of man is come to

CRANMER—1539.

straungers. Iesus sayeth vnto him: Then are the children fre: 27 Notwithstanding, lest we shuld offende them, go thou to the see, and cast an angle, and take the fish that fyrst cometh vp; and when thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt fynde a peece of twentie pence; that take, and geue it vnto them for me and the.

18. AT the same tyme came the disciples vnto Iesus, sayinge: who is the greatest in the kyngdom of heauen? 2 Iesus called a chylde vnto him, and set him in the myddes of them, 3 and sayde: Uerely I saye vnto you except ye turne, & become as chyl dren, ye shall not enter in to the kyngdom of heauen.
 4 Whosoever therfore humbleth him selve, as this childe, the same is the greatest in the kyngdom of heauen. 5 And whoso receaueth such a chylde in my name, receaueth me 6 But whoso doth offende one of these lytelons which beleue in me: it were better for him, that a mylstone were hanged aboute his necke, and that he were drowned in the depth of the see. 7 Wo vnto the worlde because of offences. Necessary it is that offences come: But wo vnto the man, by whom the offence commeth.

8 Wherefor yf thy hande or thy fote hinder the, cut him of and cast it from the. It is better for the to enter into lyfe halt or maymed, rather then thou shuldest (hauyng two handes or two fete) be cast into euerlasting fyre. 9 And yf thine eye offende the, plucke it oute, and caste it from the. It is better for the to enter into lyfe with one eye, rather then (hauyng two eyes) to be cast into hell fyre. 10 Take hede: that ye despise not one of these lytelons. For I saye vnto you, that in heauen their angels do alwayes behold the face of my fathyr, which is in heauen.
 11 For the sonne of man is come to saue

‘πιστευόντων εἰς ἐμὲ, συμφέρει αὐτῷ, ἵνα κρεμασθῇ μύλος ὀνίκος <sup>a</sup> εἰς| τὸν τρά-
 ‘χηλον αὐτοῦ, καὶ καταποντισθῇ ἐν τῷ πελάγει τῆς θαλάσσης. <sup>7</sup> Οὐαὶ τῷ κόσμῳ
 ‘ἀπὸ τῶν σκανδάλων· ἀνάγκη γάρ <sup>b</sup> ἔστιν| ἐλθεῖν τὰ σκάνδαλα· πλὴν οὐαὶ τῷ
 ‘ἀνθρώπῳ <sup>c</sup> ἐκείνῳ,| δι’ οὗ τὸ σκάνδαλον ἔρχεται. <sup>8</sup> Εἰ δὲ ἡ χεὶρ σου ἢ ὁ πούς σου
 ‘σκανδαλίζει σε, ἔκκοψον <sup>d</sup> αὐτὰ| καὶ βάλε ἀπὸ σου· καλόν σοι ἐστὶν εἰσελθεῖν εἰς
 ‘τὴν ζωὴν χωλὸν ἢ κυλλόν, ἢ δύο χεῖρας ἢ δύο πόδας ἔχοντα βληθῆναι εἰς τὸ πῦρ ‘τὸ αἰώνιον. <sup>9</sup> καὶ εἰ ὁ ὀφθαλμός σου σκανδαλίζει σε, ἔξελε αὐτὸν καὶ βάλε ἀπὸ
 ‘σου· καλόν σοι ἐστὶ μονόφθαλμον εἰς τὴν ζωὴν εἰσελθεῖν, ἢ δύο ὀφθαλμούς ‘ἔχοντα βληθῆναι εἰς τὴν γέενναν τοῦ πυρός. <sup>10</sup> Ὁρατε μὴ καταφρονήσητε ἐνὸς
 ‘τῶν μικρῶν τούτων· λέγω γὰρ ὑμῖν, ὅτι οἱ ἄγγελοι αὐτῶν ἐν οὐρανοῖς διὰ παντός
 ‘βλέπουσιν τὸ πρόσωπον τοῦ πατρὸς μου τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς. <sup>11</sup> Ἐῴθε γὰρ ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ

<sup>a</sup> Const. εἰς. Rec. ἰπι. Alex. πρι.<sup>b</sup> Alex. = ἰστιν.<sup>c</sup> Alex. = ἐκείνῳ.<sup>d</sup> Alex. αὐτὸν.<sup>e</sup> Alex. = vs. 11.

GENEVA—1557.

of strangers. Then said Iesus vnto hym: Then are the children free. <sup>27</sup> Neuerthelesse, lest we should offend them: go to the sea, and cast in thyne angle, and take the fysh that fyrst commeth vp, and when thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt fynd a peece of twenty pence, that take, and pay for me and thee.

18. The same tyme the disciples came vnto Iesus saing, Who is the greatest in the kyngdome of heauen? <sup>2</sup> Iesus called a younge childe vnto hym, and set him in the middes of them. <sup>3</sup> And said, Verely I say vnto you, except ye turne, and become as litle children, ye shal not enter into the kyngdome of heauen. <sup>4</sup> Whosoever therefore shal humble him selfe as this litle childe, the same is the greatest in the kyngdome of heauen. <sup>5</sup> And whosoever shal receaue such a litle child in my name, receaue me. <sup>6</sup> But whosoever shal offende one of these litle ones which beleue in me: it were better for hym, that a mylstone were hanged about his necke, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea. <sup>7</sup> Wo be vnto the woorld because of offences. For it can not be auoyded but that offences shalbe geuen, Neuerthelesse wo be to that man, by whom the offence cometh.

<sup>8</sup> Wherefore, if thy hand or thy fote cause thee to offende, cut them off, and cast them from thee. It is better for thee to enter into lyfe, halt, or maymed, rather then thou shouldest, hauing two handes or two fete, be cast into euerlasting fyre.

<sup>9</sup> And if thine eye cause thee to offende plucke it out, and cast it from thee. It is better for thee to enter into lyfe with one eye, then hauing two eyes, to be cast into hel fyre. <sup>10</sup> See that ye despise not one of these litle ones, for I say vnto you, That in heauen their Angels alwayes beholde the face of my father which is in heauen. <sup>11</sup> For the sonne of man is come to saue

RHEIMS—1582.

he said, Of strangers. Iesus said to him, Then the children are free. <sup>27</sup> But that vve may not scandalize them, goe thou to the sea, and cast a hooke: and that fish vvhich shal first come vp, take: and vvhhen thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt fynd a stater: take that, and giue it to them for me and thee.

18. AT that houre the Disciples came to Iesus, saying, Who, thinkest thou, is the greater in the kingdom of heauen? <sup>2</sup> And Iesus calling vnto him a litle childe, set him in the middes of them. <sup>3</sup> And said, Amen I say to you, vnles you be conuerted, and become as litle children, you shal not enter into the kingdom of heauen.

<sup>4</sup> Whosoever therefore shal humble him self as this litle childe, he is the greater in the kingdom of heauen. <sup>5</sup> And he that shal receiue one such litle childe in my name, receiue me. <sup>6</sup> And he that shal scandalize one of these litle ones that beleue in me, it is expedient for him that a milstone be hanged about his necke, and that he be drovned in the depth of the sea.

<sup>7</sup> Wo be to the vvorlde for scandalls. for it is necessary that scandalls do come: but neuerthelesse vvo to that man by vvhom the scandall commeth. <sup>8</sup> And if thy hand, or thy fote scandalize thee: cut it of, and cast it from thee. It is good for thee to goe in to life maymed or lame, rather then hauing two handes or two fete to be cast into euerlasting fyre. <sup>9</sup> And if thine eye scandalize thee, plucke him out, and cast him from thee: It is good for thee hauing one eye to enter into life, rather then hauing tvvo eyes to be cast into the hel of fyre.

<sup>10</sup> See that you despise not one of these litle ones: for I say to you that their Angels, in heauen alwayes do see the face of my father vvhich is in heauen. <sup>11</sup> For the Sonne of man is come to saue that vvhich

AUTHORISED—1611.

Iesus saith vnto him, Then are the children free. <sup>27</sup> Notwithstanding, least wee should offend them, goe thou to the Sea, and cast an hooke, and take vp the fish that first commeth vp: and when thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt fynde a peece of money: that take, and giue vnto them for me, and thee.

18. AT the same time came the Disciples vnto Iesus, saying, Who is the greatest in the Kingdome of heauen? <sup>2</sup> And Iesus called a litle child vnto him, and set him in the midst of them. <sup>3</sup> And said, Verely I say vnto you, Except yee be conuerted, and become as litle children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heauen. <sup>4</sup> Whosoever therefore shall humble himselfe as this litle childe, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heauen. <sup>5</sup> And who so shall receiue one such litle child in my name, receiue me. <sup>6</sup> But who so shall offend one of these litle ones which beleue in me, it were better for him that a milstone were hanged about his necke, and that hee were drowned in the depth of the Sea.

<sup>7</sup> Woe vnto the worlde because of offences: for it must needs be that offences come: but wo to that man by whom the offence cometh. <sup>8</sup> Wherefore if thy hand or thy fote offend thee, cut them off, and cast them from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life halt or maymed, rather then hauing two handes or two fete, to be cast into euerlasting fire. <sup>9</sup> And if thine eye offend thee, plucke it out, and cast it from thee: it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather then hauing two eyes, to be cast into hell fire.

<sup>10</sup> Take heed that ye despise not one of these litle ones: for I say vnto you, that in heauen their Angels do alwayes beholde the face of my father which is in heauen. <sup>11</sup> For the sonne of man is come to saue that which was lost.

<sup>a</sup> Or, a stater.

ἀνθρώπου σώσαι τὸ ἀπολωλός. | <sup>12</sup> Τί ὑμῖν δοκεῖ; ἐὰν γένηται τιμὴ ἀνθρώπου ἑκατὸν πρόβατα, καὶ πλανηθῇ ἐν ἑξ αὐτῶν οὐχὶ ἀφείς τὰ ἐννενηκονταεννέα, ἐπὶ τὰ ὄρη πορευθεὶς ζητεῖ τὸ πλανώμενον; <sup>13</sup> καὶ ἐὰν γένηται εὐρεῖν αὐτὸ, ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι χαίρει ἐπ' αὐτῷ μᾶλλον, ἢ ἐπὶ τοῖς ἐννενηκονταεννέα τοῖς μὴ πεπλανημένοις. <sup>14</sup> οὕτως οὐκ ἔστι θέλημα ἔμπροσθεν τοῦ πατρὸς ὑμῶν τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς, ἵνα ἀπολήται εἰς τῶν μικρῶν τούτων. <sup>15</sup> Ἐὰν δὲ ἀμαρτήσῃ εἰς σέ ὁ ἀδελφός σου, ἔπαγε καὶ ἔλεγξον αὐτὸν μετὰ σου καὶ αὐτοῦ μόνου. ἐὰν σου ἀκούσῃ, ἐκέρδησας τὸν ἀδελφόν σου. <sup>16</sup> ἐὰν δὲ μὴ ἀκούσῃ, παράλαβε μετὰ σου ἑτὶ ἓνα ἢ δύο, ἵνα ἐπὶ στόματος δύο μαρτύρων ἢ τριῶν σταθῇ πᾶν ῥήμα. <sup>17</sup> ἐὰν δὲ παρακούσῃ αὐτῶν, εἰπέ τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ· ἐὰν δὲ καὶ τῆς ἐκκλησίας παρακούσῃ, ἔστω σοι ὡσπερ ὁ ἐθνικός καὶ ὁ τελώνης. <sup>18</sup> Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅσα ἐὰν δήσητε f Alex. ὡν.

g Alex. = καὶ.

WICLIȚ—1380.

perischid, <sup>12</sup> what semeth to you, if there woren to sum man an hundrid sheep & one of hem hath errid: where he schal not leue nynti & nyne in desert, and schal go to seche that, that errid? <sup>13</sup> & if it falle that he fynde it: truli I sey to you that he schal haue ioie theron more thanne on nynti & nyne that erriden not. <sup>14</sup> so it is not the wille bifore youre fadir that is in heuene, that oon of these litil perische.

<sup>15</sup> But if thy brother synneth agens thee go thou & repreue hym, bitwixe thee & hym alone; if he herith thee thou hast wonne thi brother; <sup>16</sup> & if he herith not thee, take with the oon or twayne; that euery word stonde in the mouth of twayne or thre witnessis; <sup>17</sup> & if he herith not hem:
 sey thou to the chirche, but if he here not the chirche: be he as an hethen man & a puppican to thee. <sup>18</sup> I seye to you truli what euer thing ye bynden on erthe: tho schulen ben bounde also in heuene; & what euer thing ye vnbynden on erthe:
 tho schulen ben vnbounden also in heuene;

<sup>19</sup> eftsonne I seye to you: that if twayne of you consenter on the erthe; of euery thing what euer they axen it schal be doon to hem of my fadir that is in heuene; <sup>20</sup> for wher twayne or iiii. ben gaderid in my name: there I am in the myddil of hem.

<sup>21</sup> thanne petir cam to hym & seide, lord how ofte schal my brother synne agens me: & I seye forȝeue hym? whether til seuen tymes? & ihesus seith to hym, I seye not to thee til seuen sithis: but til how oft sithis seuen sithis: <sup>22</sup> therefore the kyngdom of heuene is likenede to a kyng; that wolde rikene with hise seruauntis; <sup>23</sup> & whanne he bigan to rikene:
 oon that ougt ten thousand talentis: was broughte to hym; <sup>24</sup> & whan he hadde not

TYNDALE—1534.

sauē that which is lost. <sup>12</sup> How thinke ye? Yf a man haue an hondred shepe; and one of them be gone astray, dothe he not leue nynty and nyne in the mountains; and go and seke that one which is gone astray? <sup>13</sup> If it happen that he fynd him;
 verely I say vnto you: he reioyseth more of that shepe; then of the nynty and nyne which went not astray. <sup>14</sup> Even so it is not the wyll of youre father in heuen;
 that one of these lytelons shulde perische.

<sup>15</sup> Moreover yf thy brother trespase agens the. Go and tell him his faute betwene him and the alone. Yf he heare the, thou hast wonne thy brother: <sup>16</sup> But yf he heare the not, then take yet with the one or two; that in the mouth of two or thre witnessis; all thinges maye be established. <sup>17</sup> If he heare not them; tell it vnto the congregacion. If he heare not the congregacion; take him as an hethen man; and as a publican. <sup>18</sup> Verely I say vnto you; what soeuer ye bynde on erth; shalbe bounde in heuen. And what soeuer ye lowse on erth; shalbe lowsed in heuen.

<sup>19</sup> Agayn I say vnto you; that yf two of you shall agree in erth apou any maner thyng; what soeuer they shall desyre: it shall be geuen them of my father which is in heuen. <sup>20</sup> For wher two or thre are gathered togedder in my name; there am I in the myddes of them.

<sup>21</sup> Then came Peter to him; and sayde:
 master howe ofte shall I forgeue my brother; yf he synne agens me; seven tymes? <sup>22</sup> Iesus sayd vnto him: I saye not vnto the seven tymes; but seventy tymes seuentymes. <sup>23</sup> Therefore is the kyngdome of heuen lykened vnto a cer-tayne kyng; which wolde take a countis of hys seruauntis. <sup>24</sup> And when he had begone to reken; one was broughte vnto him; whiche ought him ten thousande talentis: <sup>25</sup> whome because he had nought

CRANMER—1539.

that which was lost. <sup>12</sup> How thinke ye if a man haue an hundred shepe, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leaue nynty and nyne in the mountains, and goeth and seeketh that was gone astray? <sup>13</sup>
 And if it happen that he fynd it, verely
 I saye vnto you: he reioyseth more of that shepe then of the nynty and nyne which went not astray. <sup>14</sup> Euen so it is not the wyll of youre father in heauen, that one of these lytel ons shulde perysshe.

<sup>15</sup> Moreouer if thy brother trespase agaynst the, go and tell him his faute be-twene him & the alone. If he heare the, thou hast wonne thy brother: <sup>16</sup> But yf he heare the not, then take yet with the one or two, that in the mouth of two or iiii. witnesses, euery mater maye be sta-byllysshed. <sup>17</sup> If he heare not them, tell it vnto the congregacion. If he heare not the congregacion let him be vnto the as an hethen man and as a publican. <sup>18</sup> Verely
 I saye vnto you: whatsoever ye bynde on erth, shalbe bounde in heauen. And whatsoever ye lose on erth, shalbe lowsed in heauen. <sup>19</sup> Againe I saye vnto you that yf two of you agree in crthe vpon any maner of thinge, whatsoever they desyre:
 they shal haue it of my father which is in heauen. <sup>20</sup> For wher two or thre are gathered togedder in my name, there am I in the myddes of them.

<sup>21</sup> Then came Peter to him, and sayde:
 Lorde howe oft shall I forgeue my brother, yf he synne agens me: Tyll seuen tymes? <sup>22</sup> Iesus sayeth vnto him: I saye not vnto the vntill seuen tymes: but seuenty tymes seuentymes.

<sup>23</sup> Therefore is the kyngdom of heauen lykened vnto a certayne man that was a kyng, which wolde take accountes of hys seruauntis. <sup>24</sup> And when he had begone to reken, one was brought vnto him, which ought him ten thousand talentes, <sup>25</sup> but forasmoch as he was not able to

‘ ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, ἔσται δεδεμένα ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ· καὶ ὅσα ἐὰν λύσητε ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, ἔσται λελυμένα ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ. <sup>19</sup> πάλιν ἠ λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἐὰν δύο ὑμῶν συμφω-
 νήσωσιν ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς περὶ παντὸς πράγματος οὗ ἐὰν αἰτήσωνται, γενήσεται αὐτοῖς παρὰ τοῦ πατρὸς μου τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς. <sup>20</sup> οὐ γὰρ εἰσι δύο ἢ τρεῖς συνηγμένοι εἰς τὸ ἐμὸν ὄνομα, ἐκεῖ εἰμὶ ἐν μέσῳ αὐτῶν.’

<sup>21</sup> Τότε προσελθὼν αὐτῷ ὁ Πέτρος εἶπε, ‘ Κύριε, ποσάκις ἀμαρτήσῃ εἰς ἐμὲ ὁ ἀδελφός μου, καὶ ἀφήσω αὐτῷ; ἕως ἑπτάκις;’ <sup>22</sup> Λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ‘ Οὐ, λέγω σοι, ἕως ἑπτάκις, ἀλλ’ ἕως ἑβδομηκοντάκις ἑπτὰ. <sup>23</sup> Διὰ τοῦτο ὁμοιώθη ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν ἀνθρώπῳ βασιλεῖ, ὃς ἠθέλησε συναῖρα λόγον μετὰ τῶν δούλων αὐτοῦ. <sup>24</sup> ἀρξάμενου δὲ αὐτοῦ συναῖρειν, προσηνέχθη αὐτῷ εἰς ὀφειλέτης μυρίων ταλάντων. <sup>25</sup> μὴ ἔχοντος δὲ αὐτοῦ ἀποδοῦναι, ἐκέλευσεν αὐτὸν ὁ κύριος

<sup>4</sup> Alex. et Const. + ἀμην.

GENEVA—1557.

that which was lost. <sup>12</sup> How thinke ye? If a man haue an hundred shepe, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leue nynty and nyne in the mountaynes, and go and seke that one which is gone astray? <sup>13</sup> If it happen that he finde it, verely I say vnto you: he reioyceeth more of that shepe, then of the nynty and nyne which went not astray. <sup>14</sup> Euen so it is not the wil of your father in heauen, that one of these lytle ones should perishe.

<sup>15</sup> Moreouer, if thy brother trespacc agaynst thee. Go and tel him his fault betwene him & thee alone. If he heare thee, thou hast wonne thy brother. <sup>16</sup> But if he heare thee not, then take yett with thee one or two: That by the mouth of two or three witnesses, all the matter may be confirmed. <sup>17</sup> And if he wil not vouchesau to heare them, tel it vnto the congregation. And if he refuse to heare the congregation, let him be vnto thee as an heathen man, and as a Publican. <sup>18</sup> Verely I say vnto you, whatsoever ye bynde on earth, shalbe bound in heauen. And whatsoever ye loose on earth, shalbe loused in heauen. <sup>19</sup> Agayne, verely I say vnto you, that if two of you shal agree in earth vpon any maner thing, whatsoever they shal desire, it shal be geuen them of my father which is in heauen. <sup>20</sup> For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the myddes of them.

<sup>21</sup> Then came Peter to hym, and sayed, Master how oft shal I forgeue my brother if he sinne against me? shal I cuen seuen times? <sup>22</sup> Iesus sayd vnto him: I say not vnto thee seuen tymes, but seuentye tymes seuen tymes. <sup>23</sup> Therefore is the kyngdome of heauen lykened vnto a certayne kyng, which would take accounts of his seruantes. <sup>24</sup> And when he had begun to reckon, one was broght vnto him, which oght hym ten thousand talentes. <sup>25</sup> Whom because he

RHEIMS — 1582.

vvas perished. <sup>12</sup> Hovv thinke you? If a man haue an hundred sheepe, and one of them shal goe astray: doth he not leaue the nynty and nyne, and goeth to seecke that which is straid?

<sup>13</sup> And if it chauce that he finde it: amen I say to you, that he reioyceeth more fore that, then for the nyntie nine that vvent not astray. <sup>14</sup> Euen so it is not the vil of your father, vvhich is in heauen, that one perish of these litle ones.

<sup>15</sup> But if thy brother shal offend against thee, goe, and rebuke him betwene thee and him alone. If he shal heare thee, thou shalt gaine thy brother. <sup>16</sup> And if he vil not heare thee, ioyne vvith thee besides, one or tvo: that in the mouth of tvo or three vvitnesses euery vvord may stand. <sup>17</sup> And if he vil not heare them, tel the Church. And if he vil not heare the Church, let him be to thee as the heathen and the Publican. <sup>18</sup> Amen I say to you, whatsoever you shal binde vpon earth, shal be bound also in heauen: and vvhatsoever you shal loose vpon earth, shal be loused also in heauen. <sup>19</sup> Againe I say to you, that if tvo of you shal consent vpon earth, concerning euery thing vvhatsoever they shal aske, it shal be done to them of my father vvhich is in heauen. <sup>20</sup> For vvhere there be tvo or three gathered in my name, there am I in the middes of them.

<sup>21</sup> Then came Peter vnto him and said, Lord, how often shal my brother offend against me, and I forgiue him? vntill seuen times? <sup>22</sup> Iesus said to him, I say not to thee vntill seuen times: but vntill seuentie times seuen times: <sup>23</sup> Therefore is the kyngdom of heauen likened to a man being a king, that vvould make an account vvith his seruants. <sup>24</sup> And vvhen he began to make the account, there vvvas one presented vnto him that ovved him ten thousand talentes. <sup>25</sup> And hauing not

AUTHORISED—1611.

<sup>12</sup> How thinke ye? if a man haue an hundred sheepe, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leaue the nyntie and nine, and goeth into the mountaines, and seeketh that which is gone astray? <sup>13</sup> And if so be that he finde it, Uerely I say vnto you, he reioyceeth more of that sheepe, then of the nyntie and nine which went not astray. <sup>14</sup> Euen so, it is not the will of your father which is in heauen, that one of these little ones should perish.

<sup>15</sup> Moreouer, if thy brother shall trespass against thee, goe and tell him his fault betwene thee and him alone: if he shall heare thee, thou hast gained thy brother. <sup>16</sup> But if he wil not heare thee, then take with thee one or two more, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses, euery word may be established. <sup>17</sup> And if hee shall neglect to heare them, tell it vnto the Church: But if he neglect to heare the Church, let him be vnto thee as an heathen man, and a Publicane. <sup>18</sup> Uerely I say vnto you, Whatsoever ye shall binde on earth, shall be bound in heauen: and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth, shall be loosed in heauen. <sup>19</sup> Againe I say vnto you, that if two of you shall agree on earth as touching any thing that they shall aske, it shall be done for them of my Father which is in heauen. <sup>20</sup> For where two or three are gathered together in my Name, there am I in the midst of them.

<sup>21</sup> Then came Peter to him, and said, Lord, how oft shall my brother sinne against mee, and I forgiue him? till seuen times? <sup>22</sup> Iesus said vnto him, I say not vnto thee, Untill seuen times: but, Untill seuentye times seuen.

<sup>23</sup> Therefore is the kyngdome of heauen likened vnto a certayne king, which would take account of his seruants. <sup>24</sup> And when he had begun to reckon, one was broght vnto him which ought him ten thousand talentes. <sup>25</sup> But forasmuch as

αὐτοῦ πρᾶθῆναι, καὶ τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ καὶ τὰ τέκνα, καὶ πάντα ὅσα εἶχε, καὶ ἀποδοθῆναι. <sup>26</sup> πεσὼν οὖν ὁ δούλος προσκύνει αὐτῷ, λέγων, Κύριε, μακροθύμησον ἐπ' ἐμοί, καὶ πάντα ἵ σοι ἀποδώσω. | <sup>27</sup> σπλαγχιμισθεὶς δὲ ὁ κύριος τοῦ δούλου ἐκείνου ἀπέλυσεν αὐτὸν, καὶ τὸ δάνειον ἀφῆκεν αὐτῷ. <sup>28</sup> Ἐξελθὼν δὲ ὁ δούλος ἐκείνος εὔρεν ἕνα τῶν συνδούλων αὐτοῦ, ὃς ὄφειλεν αὐτῷ ἑκατὸν δηνάρια, καὶ κρατήσας αὐτὸν ἔπιγε, λέγων, Ἀπόδος <sup>k</sup> μοι | <sup>l</sup> εἴ τι ὄφείλεις. <sup>29</sup> πεσὼν οὖν ὁ σύνδουλος αὐτοῦ <sup>m</sup> εἰς τοὺς πόδας αὐτοῦ | παρεκάλει αὐτὸν, λέγων, Μακροθύμησον ἐπ' ἐμοί, καὶ <sup>n</sup> ἀποδώσω σοι. <sup>30</sup> ὁ δὲ οὐκ ἤθελεν, ἀλλὰ ἀπελθὼν ἔβαλεν αὐτὸν εἰς φυλακὴν, ἕως οὗ ἀποδοῖ τὸ ὄφειλόμενον. <sup>31</sup> ἰδόντες δὲ οἱ σύνδουλοι αὐτοῦ τὰ γενόμενα ἐλπηθήσαν σφόδρα· καὶ ἐλθόντες διεσάφησαν τῷ κυρίῳ αὐτῶν πάντα τὰ γενόμενα. <sup>32</sup> Τότε προσκαλεσάμενος αὐτὸν ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ

<sup>l</sup> Alex. ἀποδώσω σοι.<sup>k</sup> Alex. = μοι.<sup>l</sup> Rec. ὁ τι.<sup>m</sup> Alex. = εἰς τοῖς πόδας αὐτοῦ.<sup>n</sup> Rec. + πάντα.

WICLIFF—1380.

wherof to gylde : his lord comaundid hym to be sold, & his wiif, & children, and alle thingis that he hadde, & to be paid;

<sup>26</sup>but thilk seruaunt fil donn : & preid hym & seide, haue pacience in me : & I schal zelde to thee alle thingis; <sup>27</sup>and the lord hadde merci on that seruaunt; and suffrid hym go & forzaf to hym the dette;

<sup>28</sup>but thilke seruaunt zede out : & fond oon of his euene seruauntis, that ougte hym an hundrid pens, and he held hym, and strangelid hym & seide, zelde that that thou owist; <sup>29</sup>and his euen seruaunte fil donn : & preid hym seide, haue pacience in me; and I schal quite alle thingis to thee; <sup>30</sup>but he wolde not: but wente out and putte hym in to prisoun til he paid al the dette; <sup>31</sup>& his euen seruauntis seynge the thingis : that weren don, sorweden greeth; and thei camen & telden to her lord : alle the thingis that weren don; <sup>32</sup>thanne his lord clepid hym, and seide to hym, wickid seruaunt I forzaf to thee al the dette : for thou preidist me;

<sup>33</sup>therefore wher it bihoveth not also thee, to haue merci on thin euen seruaunt as I haude merci on thee? <sup>34</sup>& his lord was wroth & took hym to turmentouris til he paid al the dette; <sup>35</sup>so my fadir of heuene schal do to you, if ye forzeue not euery man to his brother of zoure hertis.

19. AND it was doen whanne ihesus hadde endid these wordis : he passid fro galilee & cam in to the castis of iude ouer iordan; <sup>2</sup>& myche puple sued hym : & he helde hem there.

<sup>3</sup>And Pharisees camen to hym : temptynge hym & seiden : wher it he leful to a man to leue his wiif for any cause? <sup>4</sup>whiche answerid & seide to hem, haue to paye his master commaunded him to be solde, and his wyfe, and his chyldren; and all that he had, and payment to be made. <sup>26</sup>The seruaunt fell doune and besought him sayinge : Sir, geve me respyte; and I wyll paye it every whit. <sup>27</sup>Then had the Lorde pytie on that seruaunt, and lowsed him, and forgave him the det.

<sup>3</sup>yield. <sup>4</sup>ye, went. <sup>3</sup>thike, that. <sup>4</sup>clepid, called. <sup>3</sup>sued, followed.

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>28</sup>And the sayde seruaunt went oute and founde one of his felowes, which ought him an hundred pence, and leyed hondes on him, and toke him by the throote, sayinge : paye me that thou owest. <sup>29</sup>And his felowe fell doune and besought him sayinge : haue pacience with me, and I wyll paye the all. <sup>30</sup>And he wolde not, but went and east him into prisoun, tyll he shulde paye the det. <sup>31</sup>When his other felowes sawe what was done, they were very sory, and came and tolde vnto their lorde all that had happened. <sup>32</sup>Then his lorde called him, and sayde vnto him. O cyll seruaunt I forgave the all that det, because thou praydest me: <sup>33</sup>was it not mete also that thou shuldest haue had compassion on thy felow, even as I had pitie on the?

<sup>34</sup>And his lorde was wrooth, and deluyered him to the iaylers, tyll he shuld paye all that was due to him. <sup>35</sup>So lyke wyse shall my heuently fadir do vnto you, except ye forgeue with youre herts, cache one to his brother their trespasses.

19. AND it came to passe, when Iesus had fynished these sayinges, he gat him from Galile, and came into the coostes of Iewry beyonde Iordan; <sup>2</sup>and moche people folowed him, and he healed them there.

<sup>3</sup>Then came vnto him the pharises tentinge him, and sayinge to him : Ys it lawfull for a man to put a waye his wyfe for all maner of causes? <sup>4</sup>He answered

CRANMER—1539.

paye, his lorde commaunded him to be solde, and his wyfe and chyldren, and all that he had, and payment to be made. <sup>26</sup>The seruaunt fell doune, and besought him, saying : Sir, haue pacience with me, and I will paye the all. <sup>27</sup>Then had the Lorde pytie on that seruaunt, and lowsed him and forgaued him the det.

<sup>28</sup>So the same seruaunt, went out, and founde one of his felowes which ought him an hundred pence : and he layed handes on him, and toke him by the throote, saying : paye that thou owest.

<sup>29</sup>And his felowe fell doune, and besought him saying : haue pacience wyth me, and I will paye the all. <sup>30</sup>And he wolde not, but went, and cast him into prisoun, tyll he shulde paye the det. <sup>31</sup>So, when his felowes sawe what was done, they were very sory, and came, and tolde vnto their Lorde all that had happened. <sup>32</sup>Then his Lord called him and sayd vnto him : O thou vngracious seruaunt, I forgaued the all that det, when thou desyrested me: <sup>33</sup>shuldest not thou also haue had compassion on thy felow, euen as I had pytie on the? <sup>34</sup>And his lorde was wrooth, and deluyered him to the iaylers, tyll he shuld paye all that was due vnto him. <sup>35</sup>So lyke wyse shall my heuently fadir do also vnto you yf ye from youre hertes, forgeue not (euery one his brother) their trespasses.

19. AND it came to passe that when Iesus had fynished these sayinges, he gat him from Galile, and came into the coostes of Iewry beyonde Iordan; <sup>2</sup>and moche people folowed him, and he healed them there.

<sup>3</sup>The Pharises also came vnto him temptinge him, and saying vnto him : Is it lawfull for a man to make a deuorcement wyth his wyfe for any maner of cause? <sup>4</sup>He answered and sayd vnto

λέγει αὐτῷ, Δούλε πονηρὲς, πᾶσαν τὴν ὀφειλὴν ἐκείνην ἀφήκα σοι, ἐπεὶ παρεκάλεσάς με· <sup>33</sup> οὐκ ἔδει καὶ σὲ ἐλεῆσαι τὸν σύνδουλόν σου, ὡς καὶ ἐγὼ σε ἠλέησα; <sup>34</sup> καὶ ὀργισθεὶς ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ παρέδωκεν αὐτὸν τοῖς βασανισταῖς, ἕως οὗ ἀποδῶ πᾶν τὸ ὀφειλόμενον αὐτῷ. <sup>35</sup> Οὕτω καὶ ὁ πατήρ μου ὁ ἔπουράνιος | ποιήσει ὑμῖν, ἐὰν μὴ ἀφήτε ἕκαστος τῷ ἀδελφῷ αὐτοῦ ἀπὸ τῶν καρδιῶν ὑμῶν | <sup>ρ</sup> τὰ παραπτώματα αὐτῶν.]

XIX. Καὶ ἐγένετο ὅτε ἐτέλεσεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τοὺς λόγους τούτους, μετήρην ἀπὸ τῆς Γαλιλαίας, καὶ ἦλθεν εἰς τὰ ὄρια τῆς Ἰουδαίας πέραν τοῦ Ἰορδάνου. <sup>2</sup> καὶ ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ ὄχλοι πολλοὶ, καὶ ἐβεράπευσεν αὐτοὺς ἐκεῖ. <sup>3</sup> Καὶ προσῆλθον αὐτῷ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι γενεράζοντες αὐτὸν, καὶ λέγοντες <sup>4</sup> αὐτῷ, | Ἐὶ ἕξεισιν ἀνθρώπων <sup>α</sup> ἀπολῦσαι τὴν γυναικα αὐτοῦ κατὰ πᾶσαν αἰτίαν; <sup>4</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν

<sup>α</sup> Alex. οὐράνιος.

<sup>ρ</sup> Alex. = τὰ παραπτώματα αὐτῶν.

<sup>9</sup> Alex. = αὐτῷ.

GENEVA—1557.

had nōight to paye, his maister commanded to be solde, & his wyfe, and his children, and all that he had and payement to be made. <sup>26</sup> The seruant, therefore fel downe and besoght hym, saying, Syr appease thine anger towards me and I wyl pay it every whyt, <sup>27</sup> Then had the Lord pitie on that seruant, and lōsed him, and forgaue hym the dette. <sup>28</sup> And the sayd seruant went out, and founde one of his felowes which oght him an hundred pence, and layed handes on hym, and toke hym by the throte, saying, Pay me that thou owest. <sup>29</sup> And his felow therefore fel downe at his fete, and besoght hym, saying, Appease thyn anger towards me, and I wyl pay thee all thinges. <sup>30</sup> And he would not, but went and cast hym into prison, tyl he should pay the dette.

<sup>31</sup> And when his other felowes saw what was done, they were very sory, and came & tolde plainly vnto theyr Lord that had hapened. <sup>32</sup> Then his Lord called him, and sayd to hym, O euil seruant, I forgaue thee all that dette, because thou prayedst me. <sup>33</sup> Was it not mete also that thou shouldest haue had compassion on thy felow, euen as I had pitie on thee?

<sup>34</sup> And his Lord was wroth, and deliuered hym to the iaylers, til he should pay all that was due to hym. <sup>35</sup> So lykewyse shall my heauenly father do vnto you, except ye forgaue with your hartes, eche one to his brother their trespasses.

19. AND it came to passe, when Iesus had finished those sayings, he gate him from Galilee, and came into the coastes of Iewrie beyond Iordan. <sup>2</sup> And much people folowed hym, and he healed them there.

<sup>3</sup> Then came vnto him the Pharisees tempting him, and saying to hym, Is it lawfull for a man to put away his wife for euerie faute? <sup>4</sup> And he answered and vengeance to repay it, his lord commanded that he should be sold, and his Wife and children, and all that he had, and it to be repayed. <sup>26</sup> But that seruant falling downne, besoght him, saying, Haue patience toward me, and I wvill repay thee all.

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>27</sup> And the lord of that seruant moued vvith pitie, dismissed him, and the dette he forgaue him. <sup>28</sup> And vvhen that seruant vvvas gone forth, he founde one of his felovv seruants that did ovve him an hundred pence: and laying handes vpon him threated him, saying, Repay that thou ovrvest. <sup>29</sup> And his felovv seruant falling downne, besoght him, saying, Haue patience toward me, and I wvill repay thee all. <sup>30</sup> And he wvould not: but vvnt his vvay, and cast him into prison, til he repayed the dette.

<sup>31</sup> And his felovv-seruants seeing vvhat vvvas done, vvvere very sorie, and they came, and told their lord all that vvvas done. <sup>32</sup> Then his lord called him: and he said vvnto him, Thou vngratious seruant, I forgaue thee all the dette because thou besoghtest me: oughtest not thou therefore also to haue mercie vpon thy felovv-seruant, euen as I had mercie vpon thee?

<sup>33</sup> And his lord beinge angry deliuered him to the tormentors, vntil he repayed al the dette. <sup>34</sup> So also shal my heauenly father doe to you, if you forgiue not euery one his brother from your hartes.

19. AND it came to passe, vvhen Iesus had ended these vvordes, he departed from Galilee, & came into the coastes of Ievvrie beyond Iordan, <sup>2</sup> and great multitudes folowed him: and he cured them there.

<sup>3</sup> And there came to him the Pharisees tempting him, and saying, Is it lawfull for a man to dismisse his vvife, for euery cause? <sup>4</sup> Who ansvvering, said to them,

AUTHORISED—1611.

he had not to pay, his lord commanded him to be sold, and his wife, and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made. <sup>26</sup> The seruant therefore fel downe, and <sup>α</sup> worshipped him, saying, Lord, haue patience with me, and I will pay thee all. <sup>27</sup> Then the Lord of that seruant was moued with compassion, and loosed him, and forgaue him the debt. <sup>28</sup> But the same seruant went out, and found one of his fellow-seruants, which ought him an hundred pence: and he layd handes on him, and tooke him by the throte, saying, Pay me that thou owest. <sup>29</sup> And his fellow seruant fell downe at his feet, and besoght him, saying, Haue patience with me, and I will pay thee all. <sup>30</sup> And he would not: but went out and cast him into prison, till he should pay the debt.

<sup>31</sup> So when his fellow-seruants saw what was done, they were very sorie, and came, and told vnto their lord all that was done. <sup>32</sup> Then his lord, after that he had called him, said vnto him, O thou wicked seruant, I forgaue thee all that debt because thou desiredst me: <sup>33</sup> Shouldest not thou also haue had compassion on thy fellow-seruant, euen as I had pitie on thee? <sup>34</sup> And his lord was wroth, and deliuered him to the tormentors, till he should pay all that was due vnto him. <sup>35</sup> So likewise shall my heauenly Father doe also vnto you, if ye from your hearts forgiue not euery one his brother their trespasses.

19. AND it came to passe, that when Iesus had finished these sayings, he departed from Galilee, and came into the coastes of Iudea, beyond Iordane. <sup>2</sup> And great multitudes folowed him, and he healed them there.

<sup>3</sup> The Pharisees also came vnto him, tempting him, and saying vnto him, Is it lawfull for a man to put away his wife for euery cause? <sup>4</sup> And he answered, and

<sup>α</sup> Or, besoght him.

ἑαυτοῖς, | Ὅκ ἀνέγνωτε ὅτι ὁ ποιήσας ἀπ' ἀρχῆς ἄρσεν καὶ θήλυ ἐποίησεν αὐτούς,
 5 καὶ εἶπεν, “Ἐνεκεν τούτου καταλείψει ἄνθρωπος τὸν πατέρα καὶ τὴν μητέρα
 “ καὶ 5 κολληθήσεται | τῇ γυναίκί αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἔσονται οἱ δύο εἰς σάρκα μίαν;”
 6 ὥστε οὐκέτι εἰσὶ δύο, ἀλλὰ σὰρξ μία· ὁ οὖν ὁ Θεὸς συνέξευξεν, ἄνθρωπος μὴ
 7 χωριζέτω. 7 Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Ἐτί οὖν Μωσῆς ἐνετείλατο δοῦναι βιβλίον ἀποσ-
 8 τασίου, καὶ ἀπολύσαι αὐτήν; | Λέγει αὐτοῖς, 8 Ὅτι Μωσῆς πρὸς τὴν σκληρο-
 9 καρδίαν ὑμῶν ἐπέτρεψεν ὑμῖν ἀπολύσαι τὰς γυναῖκας ὑμῶν ἀπ' ἀρχῆς δὲ οὐ
 9 γέγονεν οὕτω. 9 λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, ὅτι ὁς ἂν ἀπολύσῃ τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ, “εἰ μὴ ἐπὶ
 10 πορνείᾳ, | καὶ γαμήσῃ ἄλλην, μοιχᾶται· καὶ ὁ ἀπολελυμένην γαμήσας μοιχᾶται.”
 10 Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ, Ἐἰ οὕτως ἐστὶν ἡ αἰτία τοῦ ἀνθρώπου μετὰ
 11 τῆς γυναίκος, οὐ συμφέρει γαμῆσαι. 11 Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, Ὅυ πάντες χωροῦσι

† Alex. = αὐτοῖς.

‡ Rec. προσκολληθήσεται.

§ Alex. = αὐτήν.

|| Const. μη εἰς πορνείᾳ. Alex. παρεκτός λόγου πορνείας.

WICLIFF—1380.

not 5e red for he that made men at the begynnyng made hem male & female?
 5 and he seide, for this thing a man schal leue fadir & modir, & he schal drawe to his wif: & thei schulen be tweyne in o fleisch, 6 & so thei hen not now tweyne but o fleische, therefore a man departe not that thing that god hath ioyned,

7 thei seien to him, what thanne communded moises to zeue a libel of forsakyng:
 and to leue of? 8 & he seide to hem, for moises, for the hardenesse of zoure herte suffrid zou to leue zoure wyues, but fro the begynnyng it was not so: 9 I sey to zou that who euer leue his wif but for fornyacioun, & weddith another: doith lecherie, & he that weddith the forsaken wif doith lecherie,

10 hise disciplis seiden to hym, if the cause of a man with a wif is so: it spedith not to be weddid, 11 and he seide to hem, not alle men taken this word, but to whiche it is zounn, 12 for there ben gildyngis: whiche hen thus born of the modris wombe: & there ben gildyngis:
 that hen mad of men, & ther ben gildyngis:
 that hen gildid hemself for the rewme of heuencs, he that may take: take he,

13 thanne litil children weren brougte to hym: that he schulde putte hondis to hem: & praye, & the disciplis blameden hem, 14 but ihesus seide to hem, suffre 5e litil children come to me: & nyle 5e for-bede hem, for of suche is the kyngdom of heuencs, 15 & whanne he hadde putte to hem hondis: he wente for thence,

16 & lo on cam & seyde to hym, good maistr, what good schal I do: that I haue euerlastinge liif? 17 whiche seith to hym, what axest thou me of good thinge?
 there is on good god, but if thou wilt

TYNDALE—1534.

and said vnto them: Have ye not redde/how that he which made man at the beginninge, made them man and woman 5 and sayde: for this thinge, shall a man leue father and mother and cleve vnto his wyfe, and they twayne shalbe one flesshe.
 6 Wherefore now are they not twayne, but one flesshe. Let not man therefore put a sunder, that which God hath cuppled together.

7 Then sayde they to him: why did Moses commaunde to geue a testimoniall of diuorcement and to put hyr awaye?
 8 He sayde vnto them: Moses because of the hardnes of youre hertes suffred you to put awaye youre wyfes: But from the beginninge it was not so. 9 I saye therefore vnto you, whosoever putteth awaye his wyfe (except it be for fornicacion) and maryeth another, breaketh wedlocke. And whosoever maryeth her which is diuorced/doeth comyt aduouty.

10 Then sayde his disciples to him: yf the mater be so betwene man and wyfe, then is it not good to mary? 11 He sayde vnto them: all men can not awaye with that sayenge save they to whom it is geuen. 12 Ther are chaste, which were so borne out of their mothers belly. And ther are chaste, which he made of men.
 And ther be chaste, which haue made them selues chaste for the kyngdome of heuens sake. He that can take it, let him take it.

13 Then were brought to him yonge chyldren, that he shuld put his hondes on them and praye. And the disciplis rebuked them. 14 But Iesus sayde: suffre the chyldren and forbid them not to come to me: for of suche is the kyngdome of heuen. 15 And when he had put his hondes on them he departed thence.

16 And beholde one came and sayde vnto him: good master, what good thinge shall I do, that I maye haue eternall lyfe?
 17 He sayde vnto him: why callest thou me good? there is none good but one,

CRANMER—1539.

them: Haue ye not red, how that he which made man at the begynnyng made them man and woman: 5 and sayd for this, cause shall a man leaue father and mother, and shall cleue vnto hys wyfe, & they twayne shalbe one flesshe. 6 Wherefore now, they are not twayne, but one flesshe.
 Let not man therefore put a sunder, that which God hath compled together. 7 They saye vnto him: why dyd Moses then commaunde to geue a testimoniall of dyuor-cement, and to put her awaye? 8 He sayde vnto them: Moses (because of the hardnes of youre hertes suffered you to put awaye youre wyfes: But from the beginninge it was not so. 9 I saye vnto you: whosoever putteth awaye his wyfe (except it be for fornicacion) and marieth another, breaketh wedlocke. And whoso marieth her which is deuorced, doeth com-myt aduouty.

10 His disciples saye vnto him: yf the mater be so betwene man and wyfe, then is it not good to mary. 11 He sayde vnto them: all men cannot comprehend this sayinge: sau they to whom it is geuen: for ther are some chaste which are so borne out of their mothers wombe. 12 And ther are some chaste, which he made chaste of men. And ther be chaste, which haue made themselues chaste for the kyngdome of heuens sake. He that can comprehend it, let him comprehend it. 13 Then were there brought vnto him yonge children, that he shuld put hys handes on them, &
 praye. And the disciplis rebuked them.
 14 But Iesus sayde vnto them: suffre the children and forbid them not to come vnto me: for of such is the kyngdom of heauen. 15 And when he had put hys handes on them, he departed thence.

16 And beholde, one came, and sayde vnto him: good master, what good thinge
 shall I do that I maye haue eternall lyfe?
 17 He sayd vnto him: why callest thou me good, there is none good but one, and that is God. But yf thou wilt entre into o, one. 5pou. gire. leue of, leaue off. 5ounn. giuen.

 c. ldyngis. camcha. rewme, realm of kingdom. nyle. not.

‘ τὸν λόγον τούτου, ἀλλ’ οἷς δέδοται. <sup>12</sup> εἰς γὰρ εὐνοῦχοι, οἵτινες ἐκ κοιλίας
 ‘ μητρὸς ἐγεννήθησαν οὕτω καὶ εἰσω εὐνοῦχοι, οἵτινες εὐνουχίσθησαν ὑπὸ τῶν ‘ ἀνθρώπων· καὶ εἰσιν εὐνοῦχοι, οἵτινες εὐνούχισαν ἑαυτοὺς, διὰ τὴν βασιλείαν ‘ τῶν οὐρανῶν. ὁ δυνάμενος χωρεῖν χωρεῖτω.’

<sup>13</sup> Τότε ἡ προσηνέχθη | αὐτῷ παιδία, ἵνα τὰς χεῖρας ἐπιθῆ αὐτοῖς, καὶ προσεύξηται·
 οἱ δὲ μαθηταὶ ἐπέτιμησαν αὐτοῖς· <sup>14</sup> ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν <sup>15</sup>, ‘ Ἄφετε τὰ παιδία, καὶ ‘ μὴ κωλύετε αὐτὰ ἔλθειν πρὸς με· τῶν γὰρ τοιούτων ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν ‘ οὐρανῶν.’ <sup>15</sup> Καὶ ἐπιθεὶς αὐτοῖς τὰς χεῖρας, ἔπορεύθη ἐκεῖθεν.

<sup>16</sup> Καὶ ἰδοὺ, εἰς προσελθὼν εἶπεν αὐτῷ, ‘ Διδάσκαλε ἄγαθε, | τί ἀγαθὸν ποιήσω,
 ‘ ἵνα ἔχω ζωὴν αἰώνιον;’ Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, <sup>17</sup> ‘ Τί με λέγεις ἀγαθόν; | οὐδεὶς
 ‘ ἀγαθός, εἰ μὴ εἷς, ὁ Θεός. | εἰ δὲ θέλεις εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τὴν ζωὴν, τήρησον τὰς

⁠ Alex. προσηνήθησαν. ⁠ Alex. + αὐτοῖς. ⁠ Alex. = ἀγαθὸν. ⁠ Alex. τί με ἐρωτᾷς περὶ τοῦ ἀγαθοῦ. ⁠ Alex. εἰς ἔστιν ὁ ἀγαθός.

GENEVA—1557.

sayed vnto them Haue ye not read, how that he which made man at the beginning, made them man and woman? <sup>5</sup> And said, for this thing, shal a man leaue father and mother, and cleue vnto his wyfe, and they twayne shalbe made one flesshe. <sup>6</sup> Wherefore they are no more twayn, but one flesshe. Let not man therefore put a sundre, that which God hath coupled together. <sup>7</sup> Then sayd they to hym, Why did then Moses command to geue a testimonial of diuorcement, and to put her away? <sup>8</sup> He sayd vnto them, Moyses because of the hardnes of your hartes, suffered you to put away your wyues: But from the beginning it was not so. <sup>9</sup> I say therefore vnto you, that whosoer shal put away his wyfe (except it be for whoredome) and marye another, committeth adoutrie. And whosoer marieth her which is diuorced, doth commit aduetry.

<sup>10</sup> Then sayd his disciples to him, If the matter be so betwene man & wyfe, then is it not good to marry. <sup>11</sup> And he sayd vnto them, All men receyue not this speeche, saue they to whom it is geuen. <sup>12</sup> For there are some chaste, which were so borne of their mothers belly. And there be some chaste, which be made of men. And there be some chaste, which haue made them selues chaste, for the kingdome of heauens sake. He that can take this, let hym take it. <sup>13</sup> Then were brought to hym yonge chyldren, that he shoulde put his handes on them, and pray: And the disciples rebuked them. <sup>14</sup> But Iesus sayd, Suffre the litle chyldren, and forbyd them not to come to me: for of suche is the kingdome of heauen. <sup>15</sup> And when he had put his handes on them, he departed thence.

<sup>16</sup> And beholde one came, and sayd vnto hym, Good Master what good thing shal I do, that I may haue eternal life? <sup>17</sup> He sayd vnto him, Whyallest thou me good? there is none good but one, and that is

RHEIMS—1582.

Haue ye not read, that he which did make from the beginning, made them male and female? And he said. <sup>5</sup> For this cause, man shal leaue father and mother, and shal cleaue to his wyfe: and they two shal be in one flesh. <sup>6</sup> Therefore now they are not twvo, but one flesh. That therefore vvhich God hath ioyned together, let not man separate. <sup>7</sup> They say to him, Why then did Moyses command to giue a bil of diuorce, and to dimisse her? <sup>8</sup> He saith to them, Because Moyses for the hardnes of your hart permitted you to dimisse your vviues: but from the beginning it vvas not so.

<sup>9</sup> And I say to you, that whosoer shal dimisse his vwife, but for fornication, and shal mary an other, doth committe aduotrie: and he that shal mary her that is dimissed, committeth aduotrie. <sup>10</sup> His disciples say vnto him, If the case of a man vwith his vwife be so, it is not expedient to marry. <sup>11</sup> Who said to them, Not al take this vword, but they to vvhom it is giuen. <sup>12</sup> For there are eunuches which vvere borne sofrom their mothers vvombe: and there are eunuches vvhich were made by men: and there are eunuches, vvhich haue gelded them selues for the kingdome of heauen. He that can take, let him take.

<sup>13</sup> Then were litle children presented to him, that he should impose handes vpon them & pray. And the disciples rebuked them. <sup>14</sup> But Iesus said to them, Suffer the litle children, and stay them not from coming vnto me: for the kingdome of heauen is for such. <sup>15</sup> And when he had imposed handes vpon them, he departed from thence.

<sup>16</sup> And behold one came and said to him, Good Maister, vvhath good shal I doe that I may haue life cuerlasting? <sup>17</sup> Who said to him, What askest thou me of good? One is good, God. But if thou vvit said vnto them, Haue ye not read, that he which made them at the beginning, made them male and female? <sup>5</sup> And said, For this cause shall a man leaue father and mother, and shall cleaue to his wife: and they twaine shalbe one flesh. <sup>6</sup> Wherefore, they are no more twaine, but one flesh. What therefore God hath ioyned together, let not man put asunder. <sup>7</sup> They say vnto him, Why did Moses then command to giue a writing of diuorcement, and to put her away? <sup>8</sup> He saith vnto them, Moses, because of the hardness of your hearts, suffered you to put away your vviues: but from the beginning it was not so. <sup>9</sup> And I say vnto you, Whosoer shall put away his wife, except it be for fornication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery: and whoso marieth her which is put away, doth commit adultery.

AUTHORISED—1611.

<sup>10</sup> His disciples say vnto him, If the case of the man be so with his wife, it is not good to marry. <sup>11</sup> But hee said vnto them, All men cannot receiue this saying, saue they to whom it is giuen. <sup>12</sup> For there are some Eunuches, which were so borne from their mothers wombe: and there are some Eunuches, which were made Eunuches of men: and there be Eunuches, which haue made themselues Eunuches for the kingdome of heauens sake. He that is able to receiue it, let him receiue it.

<sup>13</sup> Then were there brought vnto him litle children, that he should put his hands on them, and pray: and the disciples rebuked them. <sup>14</sup> But Iesus said, Suffer litle children, and forbid them not to come vnto me: for of such is the kingdome of heauen. <sup>15</sup> And he layd his hands on them, and departed thence.

<sup>16</sup> And behold, one came and said vnto him, Good master, what good thing shall I do, that I may haue eternal life? <sup>17</sup> And he said vnto him, Whyallest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is

‘ ἐντολάς.’<sup>18</sup> Λέγει αὐτῷ, ‘ Ποίας; ’ Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε, ‘ Τό, “Οὐ φονεύσεις· Οὐ μοιχεύσεις· Οὐ κλέψεις· Οὐ ψευδομαρτυρήσεις.”<sup>19</sup> Τίμα τὸν πατέρα<sup>a</sup> καὶ τὴν μητέρα” καὶ, “Αγαπήσεις τὸν πλησίον σου ὡς σεαυτὸν.”<sup>20</sup> Λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ νεανίσκος, ‘<sup>b</sup> Πάντα ταῦτα | ἐφύλαξά μιν | ἐκ νεότητός μου· τί ἔτι ὑστερῶ;’<sup>21</sup> Ἐφη αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ‘ Εἰ θέλεις τέλειος εἶναι, ὑπάγε, πώλησόν σου τὰ ὑπάρχοντα, καὶ δὸς πτωχοῖς καὶ ἕξεις θησαυρὸν ἐν οὐρανῷ· καὶ δεῦρο, ἀκολούθει μοι.’<sup>22</sup> Ἀκούσας δὲ ὁ νεανίσκος τὸν λόγον ἀπῆλθε λυπούμενος· ἦν γὰρ ἔχων κτήματα πολλὰ.<sup>23</sup> Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, ‘ Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι<sup>d</sup> δυσκόλως πλούσιος, | εἰσελεύσεται εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τῶν οὐρανῶν.<sup>24</sup> πάλιν δὲ λέγω ὑμῖν, εὐκοπώτερόν ἐστι κάμηλον διὰ τρυπήματος | ραφίδος<sup>e</sup> εἰσελθεῖν, | ἢ πλούσιον εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ Θεοῦ<sup>g</sup> εἰσελθεῖν.’<sup>25</sup> Ἀκούσαντες δὲ οἱ μαθηταὶ<sup>h</sup> ἐξεπλήρσοντο

<sup>a</sup> Rec. + σου.<sup>b</sup> Alex. ταῦτα πάντα.<sup>c</sup> Alex. ἐφύλαξα.<sup>d</sup> Alex. πλούσιος δυσκόλος.<sup>e</sup> Alex. τρυπαλῆς.<sup>f</sup> Rec. ἐιελθῆν.

WICLIFF—1380.

entre in to liif: kepe the comaundementis/<sup>18</sup> he seith to hym/ whiche/ t ihesus seide/ thou schalt not do manslyngc: thou schalt not do aoutrie, thou schalt not do thefte/ thou schalt not seve fals witnessynge,<sup>19</sup> worship thi fadir t thi modir: t thou schalt loue thi neybore as thi silf/<sup>20</sup> the yonge man seith to hym/ I haue kept alle these thingis fro my mouth/ what zit failith to me/<sup>21</sup> ihesus seide to hym/ if thou wilt be parfyt: go t sille alle thingis that thou hast, t zeue to pore men, and thou schalt haue tresore in heuene, t come t sue me/<sup>22</sup> t whanne the yong man hadde herde these wordis: he wente awey sorwful, for he hadde many possessions/

<sup>23</sup> t ihesus seide to hise discipulis/ I seye to zou true, for a riche man of hard schal entre in to the kyngdom of heuenes/<sup>24</sup> t eft some I seye to zou/ it is lyster a camele to passe thorow an nedlis ise: thanne a riche man to entre in to the kyngdom of heuenes/<sup>25</sup> whanne these thingis weren herd: the disciple wondrid greetli t seiden/ who thanne may be saaf?<sup>26</sup> ihesus biheld t seide to hem/ anentis men this thing is in possible: but anentis god alle thingis ben possible:

<sup>27</sup> thanne Petir answerid t seide to hym/ lo we han forsaken alle thingis: t we han sued thee/ what thanne schal be to us?<sup>28</sup> ihesus seide to hem/ truli I seye to zou, that ze that han forsaken alle thingis/ t han sued me: in regeneracioun/ whanne mannes some schal sitte in the sete of his maieste: ze schulen sitte on twelue seetis, demyng the twelue kynnedis of Israel/<sup>29</sup> and euery man that forsakith hous brithren or sustren, fadir or modir, wiif ether children or feldis for my name: be sehal take an hundred fold, and sehal weide euerlasting liif/<sup>30</sup> but many schulen be the first: the last/ t the laste: the firste.

20. THE kyngdom of heuenes is lic

<sup>18</sup> pet. you, gfre. eft some, again. lyster, raiseir.
<sup>19</sup> etc. as above, with or according to. suif, followed.
comynge, udging, feldis, fields, weide, possess. lic, like

TYNDALE—1534.

and that is God. But yf thou wylt entre in to lyfe, kepe the comaundementes.

<sup>18</sup> Theother sayde to him/ Which? And Iesus sayde: breake no wedlocke/ kill not, steale not: beare not false witness: <sup>19</sup> honour father and mother: and love thyne neighbour as thy sylf. <sup>20</sup> And the yonge man sayde vnto him: I haue observed all these thingis from my youth/ what lacke I yet? <sup>21</sup> And Iesus sayde vnto him yf thou wylt be perfecte/ goo and sell that thou hast, and geve it to the pore, and thou shalt haue treasure in heven/ and come and folowe me. <sup>22</sup> When the yonge man hearde that sayinge/ he went away mourning. For he had grete possessions.

<sup>23</sup> Then Iesus sayde vnto his disciples: Verely I saye vnto you: yt is harde for a ryche man to enter into the kyngdome of heauen. <sup>24</sup> And moreover I saye vnto you: it is easer for a camell to go through the eyer of a nedle/ then for a ryche man to enter into the kyngdome of God. <sup>25</sup> When his disciples hearde that they were exceedingly amased, sayinge: who then can besaved? <sup>26</sup> Iesus behelde them/ and sayde vnto them: with men this is vnpossible/ hut with God all thinges are possible.

<sup>27</sup> Then answered Peter/ and sayde to him: Beholde, we haue forsaken all and followed thee/ what shall we haue? <sup>28</sup> Iesus sayde vnto them: verely I saye to you: when the sonne of man shall syt in the seate of his maieste/ ye which folowe me in the seconde generacion shall syt also vpon .xii. seats/ and iudge the .xii. tribes of Israel. <sup>29</sup> And whosoever forsakith houses/ or brethren/ or systers/ other father/ or mother/ or wyfe/ or chyldren/ or landes/ for my names sake/ the same shall receave an hundred folde/ and shall inheret euerlastynge lyfe. <sup>30</sup> Many that are fyrste shalbe laste/ and the laste shalbe fyrste.

20. FOR the kyngdome of heven ys

CRANMER—1539.

lyfe kepe the commaundementes. <sup>18</sup> He sayeth vnto him. Which? Iesus sayd Thou shalt not commit manslaughter. Thou shalt not comyt adoutrye: Thou shalt not steal: Thou shalt not beare false witness: <sup>19</sup> honour father and mother: and thou shalt loue thyne neybour as thy selfe. <sup>20</sup> The yonge man sayeth vnto him: All these thinges haue I kepte from my youth vp: what lacke I yet? <sup>21</sup> Iesus sayde vnto him, yf thou wylt be perfecte go and sell (all) that thou hast, and geue to the pore, and thou shall haue treasure in heauen, and come and folowe me. <sup>22</sup> But when the yonge man herde that saying, he went awaye sorye. For he had greute possessions.

<sup>23</sup> Then Iesus sayd vnto his disciples: Uerely I say vnto you: it shalbe harde for the ryche to enter into the kyngdom of heauen. <sup>24</sup> And agayne I saye vnto you: it is easer for a camell to go through the eyer of a nedle, then for the ryche to enter into the kyngdom of God. <sup>25</sup> When the disciples hearde this, they were exceedingly amased, saying: who than can be saued? <sup>26</sup> But Iesus behelde them, t sayd vnto them: with men this is vnpossible but with God all thynges are possible.

<sup>27</sup> Then answered Peter, and sayd vnto him: Beholde we haue forsaken all, and followed thee, what shall we haue therefore? <sup>28</sup> Iesus sayde vnto them: verely I saye vnto you: that when the sonne of man shall syt in the seate of his maieste, ye that haue followed me in the regeneration shall syt also vpon .xii. seates, and iudge the .xii. trybes of Israel. <sup>29</sup> And cueri one that forsaketh house, or brethren, or systers, or father, or mother, or wyfe, or chyldren, or landes for my names sake, shal receaue an hundred folde, and shall inheret euerlastynge lyfe. <sup>30</sup> But many that are fyrst, shalbe last and the last shalbe fyrst.

20. FOR the kyngdom of heauen is σφόδρα, λέγοντες, 'Τίς ἄρα δύναται σωθῆναι;' <sup>26</sup> Ἐμβλέψας δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, 'Παρὰ ἀνθρώποις τοῦτο ἀδύνατόν ἐστι, παρὰ δὲ Θεῷ πάντα δυνατά.' <sup>27</sup> Τότε ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Πέτρος εἶπεν αὐτῷ, 'Ἰδοὺ, ἡμεῖς ἀφήκαμεν πάντα, καὶ ἠκολουθήσαμέν σοι τί ἄρα ἔσται ἡμῖν;' <sup>28</sup> Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, 'Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ὑμεῖς οἱ ἀκολουθήσαίτε μοι, ἐν τῇ παλιγγενεσίᾳ, ὅταν καθίσῃ ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐπὶ θρόνου δόξης αὐτοῦ, καθίσεσθε καὶ ὑμεῖς ἐπὶ δώδεκα θρόνους, κρίνοιντες τὰς δώδεκα φυλὰς τοῦ Ἰσραὴλ. <sup>29</sup> καὶ πᾶς ὃς ἀφήκεν οἰκίαν, ἢ ἀδελφούς, ἢ ἀδελφάς, ἢ πατέρα, ἢ μητέρα, ἢ γυναῖκα, ἢ τέκνα, ἢ ἀγροὺς, ἔνεκεν τοῦ ὀνόματός μου, ἑκατονταπλασίονα λήψεται, καὶ ζῶν αἰώνιον κληρονομήσει. <sup>30</sup> πολλοὶ δὲ ἔσονται πρῶτοι ἔσχατοι, καὶ ἔσχατοι πρῶτοι. XX. Ὁμοία γὰρ ἐστὶν ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν ἀνθρώπῳ οἰκοδεσπότην, ε Alex. = εἰσθηθῆναι.

h Rec. + ἀποῦ.

i Rec. + ἰσθι.

k Alex. + τας.

GENEVA—1557.

God. But if thou wilt enter into life, kepe the commandements. <sup>18</sup> He sayd to hym, Which? And Iesus sayd, Kil not: Breake not wedlocke: Steale not: Beare not false wytnes: <sup>19</sup> Honour father and mother, and loue thy neyghbour as thy selfe.

<sup>20</sup> The yonge man sayd vnto him, I haue obserued all these thynges from my youth: what lacke I yet? <sup>21</sup> And Iesus sayd vnto him, yf thou wilt be perfecte, go, sel that thou hast, and gyue it to the poore, and thou shalt haue treasure in heauen, and come and folowe me. <sup>22</sup> And when the yonge man heard that saying, he went away mourning: For he had great possessions. <sup>23</sup> Then Iesus sayd vnto his disciples, Verely I say vnto you, that it shalbe hard for a ryche man, to enter into the kyngdome of heauen. <sup>24</sup> And moreouer I say vnto you, It is easer for a camell to go throug the eye of a nedle, then for a riche man to enter into the kyngdome of God. <sup>25</sup> And when his disciples heard that, they were exceedingly amased, saying, Who then can be saued? <sup>26</sup> Iesus behelde them, and sayd vnto them, With men this is vnposible, but with God al thynges are possible.

<sup>27</sup> Then answered Peter, & sayd to hym, Beholde, we haue forsaken al, and folowed thee, what shal we haue?

<sup>28</sup> Iesus sayd vnto them, Verely I say to you, when the sonne of man shal syt in the throne of his maiestie, ye which folowed me, in the regeneration, shal syt also vpon twelue seates, and iudge the twelue tribes of Israel. <sup>29</sup> And whosoer shal forsake houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wyfe, or children, or landes, for my names sake, the same shal recoue an hundreth folde, and shal inherite euerlasting life. <sup>30</sup> And many that are fyrst, shalbe last, and the last shalbe fyrst.

RHEIMS—1582.

enter into life, keepe the commande-ments. <sup>18</sup> He saith to him, Which? And Iesus said, Thou shalt not murder, Thou shalt not committe aduoutrie, Thou shalt not steale, Thou shalt not beare false evytnes, <sup>19</sup> Honour thy father and thy mother, Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thyself. <sup>20</sup> The yong man saith to him, Al these haue I kept from my youth: vwhat is yet vwanting vnto me? <sup>21</sup> Iesus said to him, If thou wilt be perfect, goe, sel the thyngs that thou hast, & giue to the poore, and thou shalt haue treasure in heauen: and come, folovv me. <sup>22</sup> And vwhen the yong man had heard this vvord, he went away sad: for he had many possessions. <sup>23</sup> And Iesus said to his disciples, Amen I say to you, that a rich man shal hardly enter into the kyngdom of heauen. <sup>24</sup> And againe I say to you, it is easier for a camell to passe through the eye of a nedle, then for a rich man to enter into the kyngdom of heauen. <sup>25</sup> And vwhen they had heard this, the disciples marueled very much, saying, Who then can be saued? <sup>26</sup> And Iesus beholding, said to them, With men this is impossible: but vvith God al thyngs are possible.

<sup>27</sup> Then Peter answering, said to him, Behold vve haue left al thyngs, and haue folowed thee: vwhat therefore shal vve haue?

<sup>28</sup> And Iesus said to them, Amen I say to you, that you which haue folloved me, in the regeneration, when the Sonne of man shal sitte in the seate of his maiestie, you also shal sitte vpon twelue seates, iudging the twelue tribes of Israel. <sup>29</sup> And euery one that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or vvife, or children, or landes for my names sake: shal recieve an hundred fold, and shal possesse life euerlasting. <sup>30</sup> And many shal be first, that are last: and last, that are first.

AUTHORISED—1611.

God: but if thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandements. <sup>18</sup> He saith vnto him, Which? Iesus said, Thou shalt do no murder, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not steale, Thou shalt not beare false witness, <sup>19</sup> Honour thy father and thy mother: and, Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy selfe. <sup>20</sup> The young man saith vnto him, All these thyngs haue I kept from my youth vp: what lacke I yet? <sup>21</sup> Iesus said vnto him, If thou wilt be perfect, goe and sell that thou hast, and giue to the poore, and thou shalt haue treasure in heauen: and come and follow me. <sup>22</sup> But when the yong man heard that saying, he went away sorrowfull: for he had great possessions.

<sup>23</sup> Then said Iesus vnto his disciples, Verily I say vnto you, that a rich man shall hardly enter into the kyngdome of heauen. <sup>24</sup> And againe I say vnto you, It is esnier for a camell to goe thow the eye of a nedle, than for a rich man to enter into the kyngdome of God. <sup>25</sup> When his disciples heard it, they were exceedingly amazed, saying, Who then can be saued? <sup>26</sup> But Iesus beheld them, and said vnto them, With men this is vnposible, but with God al thyngs are possible.

<sup>27</sup> Then answered Peter, and said vnto him, Behold, we haue forsaken al, and folowed thee, what shall we haue therefore?

<sup>28</sup> And Iesus sayd vnto them, Verily I say vnto you, that ye which haue folloved me, in the regeneration when the Sonne of man shal sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shal sit vpon twelue thrones, iudging the twelue tribes of Israel. <sup>29</sup> And euery one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or vvife, or children, or lands, for my Names sake, shall recieve an hundred fold, and shall inherite euerlasting life. <sup>30</sup> But many that are first, shall be last, and the last shall be first.

ὅστις ἐξῆλθεν ἄμα πρῶτ' μισθώσασθαι ἐργάτας εἰς τὸν ἀμπελῶνα αὐτοῦ. <sup>2</sup> ἠσυν-φωνήσας δὲ μετὰ τῶν ἐργατῶν ἐκ δηναρίου τὴν ἡμέραν, ἀπέστειλεν αὐτοὺς εἰς τὸν ἀμπελῶνα αὐτοῦ. <sup>3</sup> Καὶ ἐξελθὼν περὶ <sup>m</sup> τρίτην ὥραν, εἶδεν ἄλλους ἐστῶτας
 ἐν τῇ ἀγορᾷ ἄργους. <sup>4</sup> <sup>n</sup> καὶ κείνοις| εἶπεν, Ὑπάγετε καὶ ὑμεῖς εἰς τὸν ἀμπελῶνα, καὶ ὁ ἕαν ἡ δίκαιον δώσω ὑμῖν. <sup>5</sup> οἱ δὲ ἀπῆλθον. Πάλιν <sup>o</sup> ἐξελθὼν περὶ ἕκτην καὶ
<sup>p</sup> ἐνάτην| ὥραν, ἐποίησεν ὡσαύτως. <sup>6</sup> Περὶ δὲ τὴν ἑνδεκάτην <sup>q</sup> ὥραν| ἐξελθὼν,
 εὔρεν ἄλλους ἐστῶτας <sup>r</sup> ἄργους,| καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Τί ὧδε ἐστήκατε ὅλην τὴν ἡμέραν ἄργοι; <sup>7</sup> λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Ὅτι οὐδεὶς ἡμᾶς ἐμισθώσατο. λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ὑπάγετε καὶ ὑμεῖς εἰς τὸν ἀμπελῶνα, <sup>s</sup> καὶ ὁ ἕαν ἡ δίκαιον λήψεσθε. <sup>5</sup> Ὁψίας
 δὲ γενομένης λέγει ὁ κύριος τοῦ ἀμπελῶνος τῷ ἐπιτρόπῳ αὐτοῦ, Κάλεισον τοὺς ἐργάτας, καὶ ἀπόδος αὐτοῖς τὸν μισθόν, ἀρξάμενος ἀπὸ τῶν ἐσχάτων ἕως τῶν <sup>1</sup> Const. καὶ συμφωνήσας. <sup>m</sup> Rec. + τὴν. <sup>n</sup> Const. καὶ κείνους. <sup>o</sup> Alex. + ἔτι. <sup>p</sup> Alex. ἰσάτην. <sup>q</sup> Alex. = ὥραν. <sup>r</sup> Alex. = ἄργους.

WICLIF—1380.

to an housbonde man: that wente out first bi the morwen to hire werkmen to his vneyerd; <sup>2</sup> ⁊ whanne couenaunt was made with werkmen of a peny for the day: <sup>3</sup> he sente hem in to his vneyerd; <sup>4</sup> ⁊ he zede out aboute the thridde oure: ⁊ siȝe othere stondynge idil in the cheping, <sup>4</sup> and he seide to hem; go ye also in to my vneyerd: ⁊ that, that schal be riȝtful.
 I schal geue to you; ⁊ thi wenten forȝt;
<sup>5</sup> eftsones he wente out aboute the sixe
 our, ⁊ the nynthe: ⁊ dide on licke maner;
<sup>6</sup> but aboute the .xj. our he wente out, ⁊ fonde othere stondynge ⁊ he seide to hem; what stonden ye idil here all day?
<sup>7</sup> thei seiden to hym; for no man hath hirid us; he seide to hem; go ye also in to my vneyerd;

<sup>8</sup> ⁊ whanne euenyng was comen: the lord of the vneyerd seide to his procurator, clepe the werkmen; and zelde to hem her hire, and bigynne thou at the laste til to the first; <sup>9</sup> ⁊ so whanne thei weren comen that camen aboute the .xi.
 our: also thei tooken eueryche of hem a peny, <sup>10</sup> but the first camen ⁊ demeden that thei schulden take more; but thei token eche on bi hym self a peny; <sup>11</sup> ⁊ in the takynge grynchiden agens the housbonde man: <sup>12</sup> and seiden these laste wrouȝten oon our: ⁊ thou hast made hem euene to us, that han born the charge of the day ⁊ the hete?

<sup>13</sup> ⁊ he answered to oon of hem: ⁊ seide;
 frend I do thee no wronge where thou hast not acordid with me for a peny; <sup>14</sup> take thou that that is thin ⁊ go; for I wole zete to this laste man as to thee;
<sup>15</sup> wher it is not leful to me, to do that I wole? where thin iȝe is wickid; for I am good? <sup>16</sup> so the laste schulen be the friste; ⁊ the first the laste; for many ben clepid: but fewe ben chosen.

<sup>17</sup> And ihesu seide vp to iherusalem:
 ⁊ toke hises .xij. disciples in pryuate, ⁊

⁊ seide, went. siȝe. oure. cheping. market. you. give. eftsones. again. procurator. toward. clepe. call. ⁊ dide. dide. eueryche. every one. grynchiden. grynched. agens. against. leful. lawful. iȝe. eye. clepid. called.

TYNDALE—1534.

lyke vnto an housholder, which went out early in the morninge to hyre labourers into his vneyarde. <sup>2</sup> And he agreed with the labourers for a peny a daye, and sent them into his vneyarde. <sup>3</sup> And he went out about the thyrde houre, and sawe other standing ydell in the market place; <sup>4</sup> and sayd vnto them; go ye also into my vneyarde: and whatsoever is right, I will geue you. And they went there waye. <sup>5</sup> Agayne he went out about the sixte and nynthe houre; and dyd lyke wyse. <sup>6</sup> And he went out about the eleventh houre and founde other stondyng ydell; and sayde vnto them: Why stonde ye here all the daye ydell? <sup>7</sup> They sayde vnto hym: because noman hath hyred vs. He sayde to them: goo ye also into my vneyarde; and what so ever is right; that shall ye receave.

<sup>8</sup> When even was come; the lord of the vneyarde sayde vnto his steward: call the labourers; and geve them their hyre; beginning at the laste; tyll thou come to the fyrste. <sup>9</sup> And they whiche were hyred about the eleventh houre, came and receaved every man a peny. <sup>10</sup> Then came the fyrst; supposyng that they shuld receave moare: and they like wyse receaved every man a peny. <sup>11</sup> And when they had receaved it; they murmured agaynst the good man of the housse <sup>12</sup> saying: These laste have wrought but one houre; and thou hast made them equall vnto vs which have borne the burthen and het of the daye.

<sup>13</sup> He answered to one of them sayinge:
 frende I do the no wronge: dydest thou not agre with me for a penny? <sup>14</sup> Take that which is thy duty; and go thy waye. I will geve vnto this laste; as moche as to the. <sup>15</sup> Ys it not lawfull for me to do as me listeth with myne awne?
 Ys thynne eye euyll because I am good?
<sup>16</sup> Soe the laste shalbe fyrste; and the fyrste shalbe laste. For many are called and fewe be chosen.

<sup>17</sup> And Iesus ascended to Iherusalem; and toke the .xij. disciples a parte in the

CRANMER—1539.

lyke vnto a man that is an housholder, which went out early in the morning to hyer labourers in to his vneyard. <sup>2</sup> And when the agreement was made with the labourers for a peny a daye, he sent them into his vneyard. <sup>3</sup> And he went out about the thirde houre and sawe other standing ydell in the market place; <sup>4</sup> and sayd vnto them: go ye also into the vneyarde: and whatsoever is ryght, I will geue you. And they went their waye, <sup>5</sup> Agayne, he went out about the sixte and nynthe houre, and dyd lykewyse.
<sup>6</sup> And aboute the eleuth houre he went out, and founde other standynge ydell, and sayde vnto them: why stand ye here all the daye ydell? <sup>7</sup> They saye vnto him:
 because no man hath hyred vs. He sayde vnto them: go ye also into the vneyarde; and whatsoever is ryght, that shall ye receave. <sup>8</sup> So, when euene was come, the Lord of the vneyarde sayeth vnto his steward:
 call the labourers, and geue them their hyre, beginning at the laste vntill the fyrst. <sup>9</sup> And when they did come, that came about the eleuth houre, they re-ceaved euery man a peny. <sup>10</sup> But when the fyrst came also, they supposid that they shuld have receaved moare, and they lykewyse receaved euery man a peny.
<sup>11</sup> And when they had receaved it, they murmured agaynst the good man of the housse, <sup>12</sup> sayinge: These laste have wrought but one houre, and thou hast made them equall vnto vs, which have borne the burthen and heat of the daye.

<sup>13</sup> But he answered vnto one of them and sayde: frende, I do the no wronge:
 dydest thou not agre with me fore a penny?
<sup>14</sup> Take that thin is, and go thy waye: I will geue vnto this laste, euen as vnto the:
<sup>15</sup> Is it not lawfull for me to do as me lysteth with myne awne goodes? Is thynne eye euyll, because I am good? <sup>16</sup> So the last shalbe fyrst, and the fyrste shalbe last. For many be called, but fewe be chosen.
<sup>17</sup> And Iesus going vp to Iherusalem, toke the .xij. disciples asyde in the waye, and

ἑκ πρώτων. <sup>9</sup> καὶ ἔλθόντες οἱ περὶ τὴν ἑνδεκάτην ὥραν ἔλαβον ἀνὰ δηνάριον. <sup>10</sup> ἔλθόντες δὲ οἱ πρώτοι ἐνόμισαν ὅτι πλείονα λήψονται καὶ ἔλαβον καὶ αὐτοὶ ἀνὰ δηνάριον. <sup>11</sup> λαβόντες δὲ ἐγόγγυζον κατὰ τοῦ οἰκοδεσπότου, <sup>12</sup> λέγοντες, "Ὅτι οὗτοι οἱ ἔσχατοι μίαν ὥραν ἐποίησαν, καὶ ἴσους ἡμῖν αὐτοὺς ἐποίησας, τοῖς βασιτάσασι τὸ βάρος τῆς ἡμέρας καὶ τὸν καύσωνα. <sup>13</sup> ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν εἰς αὐτῶν, Ἐταῖρε, οὐκ ἀδικῶ σε· οὐχὶ δηναρίου συνεφώνησάς μοι; <sup>14</sup> ἄρον τὸ σὸν καὶ ὕπαγε· θέλω δὲ τοῦτω τῷ ἔσχατῳ δοῦναι ὡς καὶ σοί· <sup>15</sup> ἢ οὐκ ἔξεστί μοι ποιεῖσαι ὃ θέλω ἐν τοῖς ἐμοῖς; ἢ ὁ ὀφθαλμός σου πονηρός ἐστίν, ὅτι ἐγὼ ἀγαθός εἰμι; <sup>16</sup> οὕτως ἔσονται οἱ ἔσχατοι πρώτοι, καὶ οἱ πρώτοι ἔσχατοι· πολλοὶ γάρ εἰσι κλητοὶ, ὀλίγοι δὲ ἐκλεκτοί."

<sup>17</sup> Καὶ ἀναβαίνων ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς Ἱερουσόλυμα παρέλαβε τοὺς δώδεκα μαθητὰς

<sup>1</sup> Alex. + μον. <sup>2</sup> Alex. = καὶ ἰδὼν ᾗ ζῆκαιον, λήψασθε. <sup>3</sup> Alex. Καὶ ἔλθόντες. <sup>4</sup> Alex. πλείον. <sup>5</sup> Alex. ὁ ἴδιω ποιῆσαι.

GENEVA—1557.

like vnto an house holder, which went out at the dawning of the day to hyer labourers into his vineyard. <sup>2</sup> And he agreed with the labourers for a peny a day, and sent them into his vineyard. <sup>3</sup> And he went out about the third houre, & sawe other standing ydle in the market place. <sup>4</sup> And sayd vnto them, Go ye also into my vineyard, and whatsoever is ryght, I wyl geue you: And they went their way. <sup>5</sup> Agayne he went out about the syxt, and nyynth houre, and dyd likewise. <sup>6</sup> And he went out about the eleuenth houre, and found other standyng ydle, & sayd vnto them, Why stand ye here all the day ydel? They sayd vnto hym, because no man hath hyred vs. <sup>7</sup> He sayd to them, go ye also into my vineyard, and whatsoever is ryght, that shal ye receaue. <sup>8</sup> And when cuen was come, the Lord of the vineyard sayd vnto his steward, Call the labourers, and geue them theyr hyer, begynnyng at the last, tyl thou come to the fyrst.

<sup>9</sup> And they which were hyred about the eleuenth houre, came and receaued euery man a peny. <sup>10</sup> Then came the fyrst, supposyng that they should receaue more, and they lykewyse receaued euery man a peny. <sup>11</sup> And when they hadd receaued it, they murmured agaynst the good man of the house. <sup>12</sup> Saying, These last haue wrought but one houre, and thou hast made them equal vnto vs, which haue borne the burthen, & heate of the day.

<sup>13</sup> And he answered to one of them, saying, Friend I do thee no wrong: Dyddest thou not agree with me for a peny? <sup>14</sup> Take that which is thy ducty, and go thy way, I will geue vnto this last, as much as to thee.

<sup>15</sup> Is it not lawfull for me to do as me lysteth with mine owne goods? Is thine eye euyl because I am good? <sup>16</sup> So the last shalbe fyrst, and the fyrst shalbe last. For many are called, and fewe be chosen.

<sup>17</sup> And Iesus ascended to Ierusalem, & toke the twelue disciples aparte in

RHEIMS—1582.

a man that is an housholder which wentt forth early in the morning to hire vvorckemen into his vineyard. <sup>2</sup> And hauing made couenant witht the workemen for a peny a day, he sent them into his vineyard.

<sup>3</sup> And going forth about the third houre, he sawt other standingt in the markett place idle, <sup>4</sup> and he said to them, Goe you also into the vineyard: and thatt vvhich shal be iust, I vvill giue you. <sup>5</sup> And they wentt theyr vvay. And agayne he wentt forth about the sixt and the ninth houre: and didd likewise. <sup>6</sup> But aboutt the eleuenth houre he wentt forth and foundt other standyng, and he saith to them, Whatt standt you here all the day idel? <sup>7</sup> They sayt to him, Because no man hath hired vs. He saith to them, Goe you also into the vineyard.

<sup>8</sup> And vvhen euening vvvas come, the lord of the vineyard saith to his baillife, Call the vvorckemen, and payt them their hire, beginning from the lastt cuen to the first. <sup>9</sup> Therefore vvhen they vvere come thatt came aboutt the eleuenth houre, they receiued euery one a peny. <sup>10</sup> But vvhen the first also came, they thoughtt that they should receiue more: and they also receiued euery one a peny. <sup>11</sup> And receiuing it they murmured agaynstt the good man of the house, <sup>12</sup> saying, These last haue continuedt one houre: and thou hastt made them equal to vs thatt haue borne the burden of the day and the heates.

<sup>13</sup> But he ansvvering said to one of them, Frende, I doe the no vvrong: didst thou not couenant vvitht me for a peny? <sup>14</sup> Take thatt is thine, and goe: I vvill also giue to this lastt euens as to thee also. <sup>15</sup> Or, is it not lawfull for me to do thatt I vvill? is thine eye naught, because I am good? <sup>16</sup> So shal the lastt, be first: and the first, lastt. For many be called, butt fev elect.

<sup>17</sup> And Iesvs going vp to Hierusalem, tooke the tvvelue disciples secretly, and

AUTHORISED—1611.

like vnto a man that is an housholder, which went out early in the morning to hire labourers into his vineyard. <sup>2</sup> And when hee had agreed with the labourers for a peny a day, he sent them into his vineyard. <sup>3</sup> And hee went out about the third houre, and saw others standing idle in the market place, <sup>4</sup> And said vnto them, Go ye also into the vineyard, & whatsoever is right, I will giue you. And they went their way. <sup>5</sup> Againe he went out about the sixth and ninth houre, and did likewise. <sup>6</sup> And about the eleuenth houre, he went out, and found others standing idle, and saith vnto them, Why stand ye here all the day idle? <sup>7</sup> They say vnto him, Because no man hath hired vs. He saith vnto them, Go ye also into the vineyard: and whatsoever is right, that shall ye receiue. <sup>8</sup> So when euens was come, the lord of the Vineyard saith vnto his Steward, Call the labourers, and giue them their hire, beginning from the last, vnto the first. <sup>9</sup> And when they came thatt were hired about the eleuenth houre, they receiued euery man a peny. <sup>10</sup> But when the first came, they supposed that they should haue receiued more, and they likewise receiued euery man a peny. <sup>11</sup> And when they had receiued it, they murmured against the good man of the house, <sup>12</sup> Saying, These last haue wrought but one houre, and thou hast made them equall vnto vs, which haue borne the burden, and heat of the day. <sup>13</sup> But he answered one of them and said, Friend, I do thee no wrong: didst not thou agree with me for a peny? <sup>14</sup> Take thatt thine is, and goe thy way, I will giue vnto this lastt, euens as vnto thee. <sup>15</sup> Is it not lawfull for mee to doe whatt I vvill witht mine owne? Is thine eye euill, because I am good? <sup>16</sup> So the lastt shall be first, and the first lastt: for many bee called, butt few chosen.

<sup>17</sup> And Iesus going vp to Hierusalem, tooke the twelue disciples apart in the

* Or, haue continuedt one houre onely.

κατ' ἰδίαν <sup>18</sup> ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ, καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, <sup>18</sup> Ἴδου, ἀναβαίνομεν εἰς Ἱερουσόλυμα, καὶ ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδοθήσεται τοῖς ἀρχιερεῦσι καὶ γραμματέεσι καὶ κατακρινοῦσιν αὐτὸν θανάτῳ, <sup>19</sup> καὶ παραδώσουσιν αὐτὸν τοῖς ἔθνεσιν εἰς τὸ ἐμπαῖξαι καὶ μαστιγῶσαι καὶ σταυρῶσαι καὶ τῇ τρίτῃ ἡμέρᾳ ἀναστήσεται.<sup>20</sup> Τότε προσῆλθεν αὐτῷ ἡ μήτηρ τῶν υἱῶν Ζεβεδαίου μετὰ τῶν υἱῶν αὐτῆς, προσκυνούσα καὶ αἰτοῦσά τι παρ' αὐτοῦ. <sup>21</sup> ὁ δὲ εἶπεν αὐτῇ, Ἔτι θέλεις; Λέγει αὐτῷ, Εἰπέ ἵνα καθίσωσιν οὗτοι οἱ δύο υἱοί μου, εἰς ἐκ δεξιῶν σου, καὶ εἰς ἐξ ἐναντίων σου ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ σου.<sup>22</sup> Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν, Οὐκ οἴδατε τί αἰτεῖσθε. δύνασθε πιεῖν τὸ ποτήριον, ὃ ἐγὼ μέλλω πίνειν, ἢ τὸ βάπτισμα, ὃ ἐγὼ βαπτίζομαι, βαπτισθῆναι; Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Δυνάμεθα.<sup>23</sup> Καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Τὸ μὲν ποτήριόν μου πίστεθε, ἢ τὸ βάπτισμα, ὃ ἐγὼ βαπτίζομαι, βαπ-

<sup>2</sup> Alex. καὶ ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ.

<sup>3</sup> Rec. = σου.

<sup>2</sup> Rec. καὶ. Alex. = ἢ τὸ βάπτισμα, ὃ ἐγὼ βαπτίζομαι, βαπτισθῆναι.

WICLIFF—1380.

seide to hem; <sup>18</sup> lo we goen vp to ierusalem: ȝ mannes some schal be bitaken to the prynces of preestis ȝ scribis ȝ thei schulen condempne hym to deeth, <sup>19</sup> ȝ thei schulen bitake hym to hetthen men: for to be scorned, and scorgid, and crucifiede; ȝ the thridde day he schal rise agen to liif.

<sup>20</sup> thanne the modir of the sones of Zebede: came to hym with her sones: onouryng ȝ axunge sum thing of hym; <sup>21</sup> ȝ he seide to hir what wilt thou? seche seide to hym; seye that these twey myn sones sitte: oon at thi riȝthalf, ȝ oon at thi lefthalf in thi kyngdom.

<sup>22</sup> theus answerid ȝ seide, ȝe witen not what ȝe axen moun ȝe drinke the cuppe: whiche I schal drynke; thei seiden to hym we moun; <sup>23</sup> he seith to hem; ȝe schulen drynke my cuppe: but to sitte at my riȝthalf or lefthalf, it is not myn to ȝeue to ȝou but to whiche it is made redi of my fadir.

<sup>24</sup> And the ten herynges hadden indignacion of the twey brethren; <sup>25</sup> but ihesus clepid hem to him and seide; ȝe witen that prynces of hetthen men: ben lordis of hem; ȝ thei that ben grecttre: vsen power on hem;

<sup>26</sup> it schal not be so among ȝou; but who euer wole be made grectter among ȝou: he be ȝoure mynister; <sup>27</sup> ȝ who euer among ȝou wole be the first: he schal be ȝoure seruaunt; <sup>28</sup> as mannes some can not to be scruyd: but to serue; and to ȝeue his liif redempcion for many;

<sup>29</sup> ȝ whanne thei ȝeden out of iericho: and myche puple sued him; <sup>30</sup> and lo .ij. blynde men saten bisidis the weye, ȝ herden that ihesus passide, ȝ thei criiden ȝ seiden; lord the sone of daviht: haue merci on us; <sup>31</sup> ȝ the puple blamed hem:

TYNDALE—1534.

waye, and sayde to them, <sup>18</sup> Beholde we goo vp to ierusalem, and the sonne of man shalbe betrayed vnto the chefe prestes, and vnto the scribes, and they shall condemme him to deeth; <sup>19</sup> and shall deluyre him to the gentils to be mockyd; to be scourged; and to be crucified; and the thyrd daye he shall ryse agayne.

<sup>20</sup> Then came to hym the mother of zebedes chyldren with her sonnes, worshypinge him, and desyryng a certayne thyng of him. <sup>21</sup> And he sayd vnto her: what wilt thou haue? She sayde vnto him: Graunte that these my two sonnes may sit: the one on thy right hand, and the other on the left hand in thy kyngdome.

<sup>22</sup> Iesus answered and sayde: Ye wot not what ye axe. Are ye able to drynke of the cuppe that I shall drynke of; and to be baptised with the baptyme that I shalbe baptised with? They answered to him; that we are. <sup>23</sup> And he sayd vnto them: Ye shall drinke of my cup; and shalbe baptised with the baptyme that I shalbe baptised with. But to syt on my ryght hand and on my lyft hand, is not myne to geue: but to them for whom it is prepared of my fater.

<sup>24</sup> And when the ten hearde this; they disdayned at the two brethren: <sup>25</sup> But Iesus called them vnto him, and sayde: Ye knowe that the lordes of the gentyls haue doumainacion over them. And they that are great, exercise power over them. <sup>26</sup> It shall not be so amonge you. But whosoever wyll be greater amonge you; let him be youre minister: <sup>27</sup> and whosoever wyll be chefe; let him be youre seruaunt; <sup>28</sup> euen as the sonne of man came, not to be ministred vnto; but to minister, and to geue his lyfe for the redemption of many.

<sup>29</sup> And as they departed from Hierico, moche people folowed him. <sup>30</sup> And beholde, two blynde men sitting by the way syde; when they hearde Iesus passe by, cryed sayyng: Thou Lorde the sone of David haue mercy on vs. <sup>31</sup> And the

CRANMER—1539.

sayde vnto them: <sup>18</sup> Beholde, we go vp to Ierusalem, and the sonne of man shalbe betrayed vnto the chefe Prestes, and vnto the Scribes, and they shall condemme him to deeth, <sup>19</sup> and shall deluyre him to the gentyls, to be mocked and to be scourged, and to be crucified; and the thirde daye he shall ryse agayne.

<sup>20</sup> Then came to him the mother of zebedes chyldren, with her sonnes, worshyping him and desyring a certayne thyng of him. <sup>21</sup> And he sayeth vnto her, what wilt thou? She sayde vnto him: Graunte, that these my two sonnes may sit, the one on thy ryght hand and the other on the left, in thy kyngdome.

<sup>22</sup> But Iesus answered and sayde: Ye wot not what ye aske. Are ye able to drinke of the cuppe that I shall drinke of: and to be baptised with the baptyme, that I am baptised with? They saye vnto him: we are. <sup>23</sup> He sayde vnto them; ye shall drinke in dede of my cup: and be baptised with the baptyme that I am baptised with. But to syt on my right hand and on my left, is not myne to geue: but it shall chaunce vnto them, that it is prepared for of my fater.

<sup>24</sup> And when the ten heard this, they disdayned at the two brethren: <sup>25</sup> But Iesus called them vnto him, and sayde: ye knowe that the prynces of the nacions haue dominion ouer them. And they that are great men, exerceye auctorite vpon them. <sup>26</sup> It shall not be so amonge you. <sup>27</sup> But whosoever wyll be greater amonge you, let him be your mynister: and who so will be chefe a monye you, let him be your seruaunt: <sup>28</sup> euen as the sonne of man came, not to be ministred vnto, but to minister, and to geue his life a redemption for many.

<sup>29</sup> And as they departed from Hiericho, moche people folowed him. <sup>30</sup> And beholde, two blynd men syttyng by the way syde, when they hearde that Iesus passed by, they cryed sayyng: O lorde thou sone of Daud, haue mercy on vs. <sup>31</sup> And the

‘ τισθήσεσθε· τὸ δὲ καθίσαι ἐκ δεξιῶν μου καὶ ἐξ ἐωνύμων <sup>b</sup> μου, οὐκ ἔστιν ἐμὸν δοῦναι, ἀλλ’ οἷς ἡτοίμασται ὑπὸ τοῦ πατρὸς μου.’ <sup>24</sup> Καὶ ἀκούσατες | οἱ δέκα ἠγανάκτησαν περὶ τῶν δύο ἀδελφῶν. <sup>25</sup> ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς προσκαλεσάμενος αὐτοὺς εἶπεν, ‘ Οἴδατε ὅτι οἱ ἄρχοντες τῶν ἐθνῶν κατακυριεύουσιν αὐτῶν, καὶ οἱ μεγάλοι κατεξουσιάζουσιν αὐτῶν. <sup>26</sup> οὐχ οὕτως <sup>d</sup> ἔσται ἐν ὑμῖν· ἀλλ’ ὃς ἐὰν θέλῃ ἐν ὑμῖν μέγας γενέσθαι, <sup>e</sup> ἔστω | ὑμῶν διάκονος· <sup>27</sup> καὶ ὃς ἐὰν θέλῃ ἐν ὑμῖν εἶναι πρῶτος, <sup>e</sup> ἔστω | ὑμῶν δούλος· <sup>28</sup> ὥσπερ ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου οὐκ ἦλθε <sup>f</sup> διακονηθῆναι, ἀλλὰ διακονῆσαι καὶ δοῦναι τὴν ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ λύτρον ἀντὶ πολλῶν.’ <sup>29</sup> Καὶ ἐκπορευομένων αὐτῶν ἀπὸ Ἰεριχῶ, ἠκολούθησεν αὐτῶ ὄχλος πολύς. <sup>30</sup> καὶ ἰδοὺ, δύο τυφλοὶ καθήμενοι παρὰ τὴν ὁδὸν, ἀκούσαντες ὅτι Ἰησοῦς παράγει, ἔκραζαν, λέγοντες, <sup>31</sup> ‘ Ἐλέησον ἡμᾶς, κύριε, υἱὸς Δαυίδ.’ Ὁ δὲ ὄχλος ἐπετίμησεν

<sup>a</sup> Rec. kai. Alex. = ἡ τὸ βάπτισμα, ὃ ἐγὼ βαπτίζομαι, βαπτισθήσισθε. <sup>b</sup> Alex. = μου. <sup>c</sup> Alex. Ἀκούσ. δι. <sup>d</sup> Rec. + δι. <sup>e</sup> Alex. ἔσται. <sup>f</sup> Alex. ἦν.

GENEVA — 1557.

the way, and said to them. <sup>18</sup> Behold we go vp to Ierusalem, and the Sonne of man shalbe betrayed vnto the chief Priestes, and vnto the Scribes, and they shal condemne him to death. <sup>19</sup> And shal deliuer hym to the Gentiles, to be mocked, to be scourged, and to be crucified: and the thyrd day he shal ryse agayne. <sup>20</sup> Then came to hym the mother of Zebedes chyl dren with her sonnes, worshyping hym, and desyring a certayne thing of him. <sup>21</sup> And he sayd vnto her, what wilt thou haue? She sayd to him, Grant that these my two sonnes may syt, the one at thy ryght hand, & the other at thy lyft hand in thy kyngdome. <sup>22</sup> And Iesus answered and sayd, Ye wot not what ye aske. Are ye able to drincke of the cup that I shal drincke of: & to be baptized with the baptisme that I shalbe batized with? They sayd to hym, we are able. <sup>23</sup> And he sayd vnto them, Ye shal drynke in deed of my cup, and shalbe baptized with the baptisme, that I am baptized with. But to syt at my ryght hand, and at my lyft hand, is not myne to geue: but it shall be geuen to them for whome it is prepared of my father. <sup>24</sup> And when the other ten heard this, they disdayned at the two brethren. <sup>25</sup> But Iesus called them vnto him, and sayd, Ye know that the lordes of the Gentiles haue domination ouer them. <sup>26</sup> And they that are great, exercise power ouer them. It shal not be so among you. But whosoever wyl be great among you, let him be your minister. <sup>27</sup> And whosoever wyl be chief among you, let him be your seruant. <sup>28</sup> Euen as the Sonne of man came, not to be ministered vnto, but to minister, and to geue his life for the redemption of many. <sup>29</sup> And as they departed from Iericho, muche people folowed him. <sup>30</sup> And behold two blynde men sytting by the way syde: When they heard Iesus passe by, cryed saying, Thou Lord the sonne of Dauid, haue mercie on vs. <sup>31</sup> And the

RHEIMS — 1582.

said to them, <sup>18</sup> Behold we goe vp to Hierusalem, and the Sonne of man shal be deliuered to the cheefe priestes and to the Scribes, and they shal condemne him to death, <sup>19</sup> and shal deliuer him to the Gentiles to be mocked, and scourged, and crucified, and the third day he shal rise againe. <sup>20</sup> Then came to him the mother of the sonnes of Zebedei with her sonnes, adoring and desiring some thing of him. <sup>21</sup> Who said to her, What wilt thou? She saith to him, Say that these my two sonnes may sitte, one at thy ryght hand, and one at thy left hand in thy kingdom. <sup>22</sup> And Iesus answering, said, You know not what you desire. Can you drinke of the cuppe that I shal drinke of? They say to him, We can. <sup>23</sup> He saith to them, My cuppe in deede you shal drinke of: but to sitte at my right hand and left, is not mine to giue to you: but to whom it is prepared of my father. <sup>24</sup> And the ten hearing it, were displeasid at the two brethren. <sup>25</sup> And Iesus called them vnto him, and said, You know that the princes of the gentiles ouerrule them: and they that are the greater, exercise pover against them. <sup>26</sup> It shal not be so among you. but whosoever wyl be the greater among you, let him be your minister: <sup>27</sup> and he that wyl be first among you, shal be your seruant. <sup>28</sup> Euen as the Sonne of man is not come to be ministered vnto, but to minister, and to giue his life a redemption for many. <sup>29</sup> And when they went out from Iericho, a great multitude folowed him. <sup>30</sup> And beholde two blinde men sitting by the vway side, heard that Iesus passed by, and they cried out saying, Lord, haue mercie vpon vs, sonne of Dauid. <sup>31</sup> And

AUTHORISED — 1611.

way, and said vnto them, <sup>18</sup> Behold, we goe vp to Hierusalem, and the Sonne of man shal be betraied vnto the chiefe Priests, and vnto the Scribes, and they shal condemne him to death, <sup>19</sup> And shal deliuer him to the Gentiles to mocke, and to scourge, and to crucifie him: and the third day he shall rise againe. <sup>20</sup> Then came to him the mother of Zebedes children, with her sonnes, worshipping him, and desiring a certainething of him. <sup>21</sup> And he said vnto her, What wilt thou? She saith vnto him, Grant, that these my two sonnes may sit, the one on thy right hand, and the other on the left in thy kingdom. <sup>22</sup> But Iesus answered, and said, Ye know not what ye aske. Are ye able to drinke of the cup that I shal drinke of, and to be baptized with the baptisme that I am baptized with? They say vnto him, We are able. <sup>23</sup> And he saith vnto them, Ye shall drinke indeed of my cup, and be baptized with the baptisme that I am baptized with: but to sit on my right hand, and on my left, is not mine to giue, but it shalbe giuen to them for whom it is prepared of my Father. <sup>24</sup> And when the ten heard it, they were moued with indignation against the two brethren. <sup>25</sup> But Iesus called them vnto him, and said, Ye know that the Princes of the Gentiles exercise dominion ouer them, and they that are great, exercise authoritie vpon them. <sup>26</sup> But it shall not be so among you: But whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister. <sup>27</sup> And whosoever will be chiefe among you, let him be your seruant. <sup>28</sup> Euen as the Sonne of man came not to be ministred vnto, but to minister, and to giue his life a ransom for many. <sup>29</sup> And as they departed from Hiericho, a great multitude folowed him. <sup>30</sup> And behold, two blind men sitting by the way side, when they heard that Iesus passed by, cried out, saying, Haue mercie on vs, O Lord, thou sonne of Dauid. <sup>31</sup> And

αὐτοῖς ἵνα σιωπήσωσιν. οἱ δὲ μείζων ἔκραζον, λέγοντες, Ἐλέησον ἡμᾶς, κύριε, υἱὸς Δαυὶδ.<sup>32</sup> Καὶ στὰς ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐφώνησεν αὐτοὺς, καὶ εἶπε, Τί θέλετε ποιήσω ὑμῖν; Ἄγουσιν αὐτῷ, Κύριε, ἵνα ἀνοιχθῶσιν ἡμῶν οἱ ὀφθαλμοί.<sup>34</sup> Σπλαγχνισθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἤψατο τῶν ὀφθαλμῶν αὐτῶν καὶ εὐθέως ἀνεβλεψαν αὐτῶν οἱ ὀφθαλμοί, καὶ ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ.

XXI. Καὶ ὅτε ἤγγισαν εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα, καὶ ἦλθον εἰς Βηθφαγή πρὸς τὸ ὄρος τῶν ἐλαιῶν, τότε ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀπέστειλε δύο μαθητὰς, λέγων αὐτοῖς, Πορεύθητε εἰς τὴν κόμην τὴν ὑπέναντι ὑμῶν καὶ εὐθέως εὑρήσετε ὄνου δεδεμένην, καὶ πῶλον μετ' αὐτῆς· λύσαντες ἀγάγετέ μοι. καὶ εἶαν τις ὑμῖν εἶπη τί, ἐρεῖτε, Ὅτι ὁ Κύριος αὐτῶν χρεῖαν ἔχει· εὐθέως δὲ ἀποστέλλει αὐτούς. Τοῦτο δὲ ὄλον γέγονεν, ἵνα πληρωθῇ τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ τοῦ προφήτου, λέγοντος, Εἶπατε τῷ that thei schuden he stille, ⁊ thei crieden more ⁊ seiden, lord the some of dauith haue merci on vs; ⁊ ihesus stode ⁊ clepid hem ⁊ seide, what wolen ze that I do to you? ⁊ thei seiden to hym, lord that our ȝen hen opened; ⁊ ihesus hadde merci on hem and touchid her ȝen, and anon thei saien: ⁊ sueden him.

<sup>c</sup> Alex. ἱκραζαν. <sup>d</sup> Alex. κύριε, ἰλέησον ἡμᾶς. <sup>e</sup> Alex. ἀνοίχθωσιν. <sup>f</sup> Alex. οἱ ὀφθ. ἡμῶν. <sup>g</sup> Alex. ὀμμάτων. <sup>h</sup> Alex. = αὐτῶν οἱ ὀφθαλμοί.

WICLIF — 1380.

21. AND whanne ihesus cam nyȝe to ierusalem, ⁊ came to bethpage at the mounthe of oliuete, thanne sente he hise .ij. discipulis, ⁊ seide to hem, go ze in to the castil that is azens you: ⁊, anon ze schulen fynde an asse tied, ⁊ a colt with hir vntie ze, ⁊ brynghit to me; ⁊ if ony man seve to you any thing: seve ze that the lord hath nedē to hem, and anon he shal leue hem; ⁊ al this was doen, that that thing schulde be fulfilled that was seide hi the profete scyngne; ⁊ seve ze to the douȝtir of sion, lo thi kyng cometh to thee meke sittynge on an asse ⁊ a fole of an asse vndir zok; ⁊ and the discipulis zeden ⁊ didden as ihesus comaundid hem,

⁊ thei brouȝten an asse ⁊ the fole, ⁊ leiden her clothis on hem: ⁊ maden hym sitte abouȝ; ⁊ ful myche puple streden ber clothis in the wey, other kittiden branchis of trees, ⁊ strewen in the wey; ⁊ the puple that wente bifore ⁊ that sueden: crieden and seiden, osanna to the some of dauith; blessid is he that cometh in name of the lord: osanna in hise thingis.

<sup>10</sup> And whanne he was entrid in to ierusalem: al the citee was stird ⁊ seide, who is this? <sup>11</sup> but the puple seide, this is ihesus the profete of nazareth of galilee, ⁊ ihesus entride in to the temple of god: ⁊ castid out of the temple alle that discipulis called ȝen, egre saien, saie. sueden, followed by ze, nigh. castil, town. asens, agayn as before. zeden, seent. kittiden, cut. hise, high.

TYNDALE — 1534.

people rebuked them, because they shuld holde their peace. But they cryed the moare sayinge: haue mercy on vs thou Lorde which arte the some of David. <sup>32</sup> Then Iesus stode still, and called them, and sayde: what will ye that I shal do to you? <sup>33</sup> They sayd to him: Lorde that our eyes maye be opened. <sup>34</sup> Iesus had compassion on them, and touched their eyes. And immediatly their eyes receaved syght. And they folowed him.

21. WHEN they drewe nye vnto Ierusalem, and were come to Betpage vnto mounthe oliuete: then sent Iesus two of his disciples, sayinge to them: Go in to the towne that lyeth ouer agaynste you, and anon ye shall fynde an asse bounde, and her colte with her: lose them and bringe them vnto me. <sup>3</sup> And if eny man saye ought vnto you, saye ye y<sup>e</sup> the Lorde hath nedede of them; and streyght waye he will let them go. <sup>4</sup> All this was done, to fulfill that which was spoken by the Prophet, sayinge: <sup>5</sup> Tell ye the daughter of Sion: beholde thy kyng cometh vnto the meke, and sittinge vpon an asse and a colte, the fole of an asse vied to the yooke. <sup>6</sup> The disciples went and dyd as Iesus comaunded them; <sup>7</sup> and brought the asse and the colte, and put on them their clothes, and set him thereon. <sup>8</sup> And many of the people spred their garments in the waye. Other cut doune branches from the trees, and strawed them in the waye. <sup>9</sup> Moreover the people that went before, and they also that came after, cryed sayinge: Hosanna to the sonne of David. Blessed he he that cometh in the name of the Lorde, Hosanna in the hiest.

<sup>10</sup> And when he was come in to Ierusalem, all the cite was moved sayinge: who is this? <sup>11</sup> And the people sayde: this is Iesus the Prophet of Nazareth a cite of Galilee. <sup>12</sup> And Iesus went in to the temple of God, and cast out all them that people rebuked them, because they shuld holde their peace. But they cryed the more sayinge: haue mercy on vs O Lord thou sonne of David. <sup>32</sup> And Iesus stode still, and called them, and sayde: what wyll ye that I shall do vnto you? <sup>33</sup> They saye vnto him: Lorde, that oure eyes maye be opened; <sup>34</sup> So Iesus had compassion on them, and touched their eyes, and immediatly their eyes receaved syght. And they folowed him.

CRANMER — 1539.

21. AND when they drew nye vnto Ierusalem, and were come to Bethpage, vnto mounthe Olyuete: then sent Iesus two disciples, saying vnto them: Go into the towne that lyeth ouer agaynst you, and anone ye shall fynde an asse bound, and a colte with her: lose them, and bringe them vnto me. <sup>3</sup> And yf eny man say ought vnto you, say ye: the Lorde hath nedede of them: and straight waye he will let them go. <sup>4</sup> All this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophete, saying: <sup>5</sup> Tell ye the daughter of Sion: beholde, thy kyng cometh vnto the meke, sittinge vpon an asse and a colte, the fole of the asse vied to the yooke. <sup>6</sup> The disciples went and dyd as Iesus comaunded them, <sup>7</sup> and brought the asse, and the colte, and put on them their clothes, and sett him thereon. <sup>8</sup> And many of the people spred their garments in the waye. Other cut doune branches from the trees, and strawed them in the waye. <sup>9</sup> Moreover, the people that went before, and they that came after, cryed saying: Hosanna to the sonne of David. Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lorde Hosanna in the hiest.

<sup>10</sup> And when he was come to Ierusalem, all the cite was moued, saying: who is this? <sup>11</sup> And the people sayde: this is Iesus the Prophet of Nazareth (a cite) of Galilee. <sup>12</sup> And Iesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that people rebuked them, because they should holde their peace. But they cried the more saying, Haue mercie on vs thou Lord, which art the sonne of Dauid. <sup>32</sup> Then Iesus stode styl, and called them, and said, What wyl ye that I should do to you? <sup>33</sup> They sayd to hym, Lord that our eyes may be opened. <sup>34</sup> And Iesus had compassion on them, and touched their eyes, and immediatly their eyes receaed syght, and they folowed hym.

“ὄνγατρί Σιών, Ἰδὸν, ὁ βασιλεύς σου ἔρχεται σοι, πρῶς καὶ ἐπιβεβηκῶς ἐπὶ ὄνον καὶ πῶλον υἱὸν ὑπόζυγιου.” <sup>6</sup> Πορευθέντες δὲ οἱ μαθηταί, καὶ ποιήσαντες καθὼς προσέταξεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, <sup>7</sup> ἤγαγον τὴν ὄνου καὶ τὸν πῶλον, καὶ ἐπέθηκαν ἐπάνω αὐτῶν τὰ ἱμάτια αὐτῶν, καὶ <sup>8</sup> ἐπεκάθισεν ἐπάνω αὐτῶν. <sup>9</sup> ὁ δὲ πλείστος ὄχλος ἔστρωσαν ἑαυτῶν τὰ ἱμάτια ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ· ἄλλοι δὲ ἔκοπτον κλάδους ἀπὸ τῶν δένδρων, καὶ ἔστρώννουν ἐν τῇ ὁδῷ. <sup>10</sup> οἱ δὲ ὄχλοι οἱ προάγοντες καὶ οἱ ἀκολουθοῦντες ἔκραζον, λέγοντες, ‘Ὡσαννὰ τῷ υἱῷ Δαυὶδ· εὐλογημένος ὁ ἐρχόμενος ἐν ὀνόματι Κυρίου· Ὡσαννὰ ἐν τοῖς ὑψίστοις.’ <sup>11</sup> Καὶ εἰσελθόντος αὐτοῦ εἰς Ἱερουσόλυμα, ἐσείσθη πᾶσα ἡ πόλις, λέγουσα, ‘Τίς ἐστὶν οὗτος;’ <sup>12</sup> οἱ δὲ ὄχλοι ἔλεγον, ‘Οὗτός ἐστιν Ἰησοῦς ὁ προφήτης, ὁ ἀπὸ Ναζαρεθ τῆς Γαλιλαίας.’ <sup>12</sup> Καὶ εἰσηλθὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς τὸ ἱερὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ ἐξεύβαλε πάντα τοὺς

“ Alex. Βηθσαφαγῆ. ὁ Alex. πορεύσθε. ὁ Alex. κατῆναντι. ὁ Rec. ἀποστῆλθι. ὁ Alex = ὄνον. ὁ Rec. ἐπικάθισαν. ὁ Alex. + αὐτῶν. ὁ Alex. = τοῦ Θεοῦ.

GENEVA — 1557.

21. AND when they drew nye to Ierusalem, & were come to Bethphage, vnto the mount of the Oliues, then sent Iesus two of his disciples. <sup>2</sup> Saying to them, Go into the towne that lyeth ouer agaynst you, and anone ye shal fynde an asse bound, and her colt with her: lose them, and bryng them vnto me. <sup>3</sup> And if any man say ought vnto you, say ye, that the Lord hath nedde of them: and straight way he wyl let them go. <sup>4</sup> All this was done to fulfil that which was spoken by the Prophet, saying, <sup>5</sup> Tel ye the daughter of Sion, Behold thy kyng cometh vnto thee, meke and sytting vpon an asse, and a colte, the fole of an asse vved to the yocke. <sup>6</sup> The disciples went and dyd as Iesus commanded them. <sup>7</sup> And broght the asse and the colte, and put on them theyr clothes, and set him thereon. <sup>8</sup> And many of the people spread theyr garments in the way: and other cutte doune branches from the trees, and strawed them in the way. <sup>9</sup> Moreouer, the people that went before, and they also that came after cryed, saying, Hosanna the sonne of Dauid. Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord, Hosanna thou which art in the hiest heauens. <sup>10</sup> And when he was come into Ierusalem, all the cite was moued, saying, Who is this? <sup>11</sup> And the people sayd, this is Iesus the Prophet of Nazaret a cite of Galile.

<sup>12</sup> And Iesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that soulede

RHEIMS — 1582.

the multitude rebuked them that they should holde their peace. But they cried out the more, saying, Lord, haue mercie vpon vs, sonne of Dauid. <sup>32</sup> And Iesus stode, and called them, and said, Vwhat wyl ye that I doe to you? <sup>33</sup> They say to him, Lord, that our eyes may be opened. <sup>34</sup> And Iesus hauing compassion on them, touched their eyes. And immediatly they sawv, and folowed him.

21. AND vwhen they drew nigh to Hierusalem, and vvere come to Bethphage vnto Mount-oliuet, then Iesus sent tvvo disciples, <sup>2</sup> saying to them, Goe ye into the towne that is agaynst you, and immediatly you shal finde an asse tied, and a colt vvith her: loose them & bring them to me: <sup>3</sup> and if any man shal say ought vnto you, say ye, that our Lord hath nedde of them: and forthvvith he vvil let them goe. <sup>4</sup> And this vvas done that it might be fulfilled vvich vvas spoken by the Prophet, saying, <sup>5</sup> Say ye to the daughter of Sion, Behold thy King cometh to thee, meeke, & sitting vpon an asse and a colt the fole of her that is used to the yoke. <sup>6</sup> And the disciples going, did as Iesus commanded them. <sup>7</sup> And they broght the asse and the colt: and laide their garments vpon them, and made him to sit thereon. <sup>8</sup> And a very great multitude spread their garments in the vvay: and others did cut boughes from the trees, and strawed them in the vvay: <sup>9</sup> and the multitudes that vvnt before and that folowed, cried, saying, Hosanna to the sonne of Dauid: blessed is he that cometh in the name of our Lord. Hosanna in the highest. <sup>10</sup> And vwhen he vvas entred Hierusalem, the vvhole cite vvas moued, saying, Who is this? <sup>11</sup> And the people said, This is Iesus the Prophet, of Nazareth in Galilee.

<sup>12</sup> And Iesus entred into the temple of God, and cast out al that sold and bought

AUTHORISED — 1611.

the multitude rebuked them, because they should holde their peace: but they cried the more, saying, Haue mercy on vs, O Lord, thou Sonne of Dauid.

<sup>32</sup> And Iesus stood still, and called them, and said, What will ye that I shall doe vnto you? <sup>33</sup> They say vnto him, Lord, that our eyes may be opened. <sup>34</sup> So Iesus had compassion on them, and touched their eyes: and immediatly their eyes receiued sight, and they followed him.

21. AND when they drew nigh vnto Hierusalem, and were come to Bethphage, vnto the mount of Oliues, then sent Iesus two Disciples, <sup>2</sup> Saying vnto them, Goe into the village ouer agaynst you, and straightway yee shall finde an Asse tied, and a colt with her: loose them, and bring them vnto me. <sup>3</sup> And if any man say ought vnto you, ye shall say, The Lord hath need of them, and straightway hee will send them. <sup>4</sup> All this was done, that it might be fulfilled vvich was spoken by the Prophet, saying, <sup>5</sup> Tell ye the daughter of Sion, Behold, thy King cometh vnto thee, meeke, and sitting vpon an Asse, and a colt, the foale of an Asse. <sup>6</sup> And the Disciples went, and did as Iesus commanded them, <sup>7</sup> And broght the Asse, and the colt, and put on them their clothes, and they set him thereon. <sup>8</sup> And a very great multitude spread their garments in the way, others cut doune branches from the trees, and strawed them in the way. <sup>9</sup> And the multitudes that went before, and that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna to the Sonne of Dauid: Blessed is he that cometh in the Name of the Lord, Hosanna in the highest. <sup>10</sup> And when hee was come into Hierusalem, all the Cite was moued, saying, Who is this? <sup>11</sup> And the multitude said, This is Iesus the Prophet of Nazareth of Galilee.

<sup>12</sup> And Iesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that sold and

ἐν αὐτῇ εἰ μὴ φύλλα μόνον· καὶ λέγει αὐτῇ, ‘Μηκέτι ἐκ σοῦ καρπὸς γένηται εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα.’ Καὶ ἐξηράνθη παραχρῆμα ἡ συκῆ. <sup>20</sup> Καὶ ἰδόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ ἐθαύμασαν, λέγοντες, ‘Πῶς παραχρῆμα ἐξηράνθη ἡ συκῆ;’ <sup>21</sup> Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ‘Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ἐὰν ἔχητε πίστιν, καὶ μὴ διακριθῆτε, οὐ μόνον τὸ τῆς συκῆς ποιήσετε, ἀλλὰ καὶ τῷ ὄρει τούτῳ εἶπητε, Ἄρθητι καὶ βλήθητι εἰς τὴν θάλασσαν, γενήσεται. <sup>22</sup> καὶ πάντα ὅσα ἂν αἰτήσητε ἐν τῇ προσευχῇ, πιστεύοντες, λήψετε.’ <sup>23</sup> Καὶ ἔλθοντι αὐτῷ εἰς τὸ ἱερόν, προσῆλθον αὐτῷ διδάσκοντι οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι τοῦ λαοῦ, λέγοντες, ‘Ἐν ποίᾳ ἐξουσία ταῦτα ποιεῖς; καὶ τίς σοι ἔδωκε τὴν ἐξουσίαν ταύτην;’ Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ‘Ἐρωτήσω ὑμᾶς κατὰ λόγον ἓνα, ὃν ἐὰν εἶπητέ μοι, κατὰ ὑμῖν ἐρῶ ἐν ποίᾳ ἐξουσίᾳ ταῦτα ποιῶ. <sup>25</sup> τὸ βάπτισμα Ἰωάννου πόθεν ἦν; ἐξ οὐρανοῦ, ἢ ἐξ

* Alex. ἰθύντος αὐτοῦ.

GENEVA—1557.

& hought in the temple, and ouerthrew the tables of the mony changers, and the seates of them that solde doves. <sup>13</sup> And said to them, It is written, My house shalbe called the house of prayer. But ye haue made it a denne of theues. <sup>14</sup> And the blind and the lame came to him in the temple, and he healed them. <sup>15</sup> And when the chiefe Priestes & Scribes saw the maruelles that he dyd, and the children crying in the temple, and saying, Hosanna the sonne of Dauid, they disdained. <sup>16</sup> And said vnto him, Hearst thou what these say? Iesus sayd vnto them, yea, read ye neuer, By the mouth of babes and sucklings, thou hast made perfitt the praise? <sup>17</sup> And he left them, and went out of the cite vnto Bethanica, and had his abiding there. <sup>18</sup> And in the morning as he returned into the cite agayne, he hungred. <sup>19</sup> And spyed a fygge tree in the way, and came to it, and founde nothing thereon, but leaues only, & sayd to it, Neuer frute grow on thee henceforwards. And anone the fygge tree wythered away. <sup>20</sup> And when his disciples sawe that, they marueiled, saying, How soone is the fygge tree wythered away?

<sup>21</sup> Iesus answered and sayd vnto them, Verely I say vnto you, if ye shal haue fayth, and shal not doubt, ye shal not onely do that which I haue done to the fygge tree: but also if ye shal say vnto this mountaine, Take thy selfe away, and cast thy selfe into the sea, it shalbe done. <sup>22</sup> And what soeuer ye shal aske in prayer, if ye beleue, ye shal receaue it. <sup>23</sup> And when he was come into the temple, the chiefe Priestes and the Elders of the people, came vnto him as he was teaching, and sayd, By what auctoritie doest thou these thynges? and who gaue thee this power? <sup>24</sup> Iesus answered and sayd vnto them, I also wyl aske of you a certayne question, which if ye assolve me, I in lyk wyse wyl tel you by what auctoritie I do these thynges. <sup>25</sup> The baptisme of Iohn whence was it, from heauen, or of men?

RHEIMS—1582.

in the temple, and the tables of the bankers and the chaires of them that sold pigeons he ouerthrewe: <sup>13</sup> and he saith to them, It is vvritten, My house shal be called the house of prayer: but you haue made it a denne of theeues. <sup>14</sup> And there came to him the blinde, and the lame in the temple: and he healed them. <sup>15</sup> And the cheefe priestes & Scribes seeing the the maruelous things that he did, and the children crying in the temple, & saying, Hosanna to the sonne of Dauid: they had indignation, <sup>16</sup> and said to him, Hearst thou vwhat these say? And Iesus said to them, Very vvell. haue ye neuer read, That out of the mouth of infants and sucklings thou hast perfited praise? <sup>17</sup> And leauing them, he vvent forth out of the cite into Bethania, and remained there.

<sup>18</sup> And in the morning returning into the cite, he vvas an hungred. <sup>19</sup> And seeing a certaine figtree by the vvay side, he came to it: and found nothing on it but leaues only, and he saith to it, Neuer grovv there fruite of thee for euer. And incontinent the figtree vvas vvithered. <sup>20</sup> And the disciples seeing it, marueiled saying, Hovv is it vvithered incontinent? <sup>21</sup> And Iesus answering said to them, Amen I say to you, if you shal haue faith, and stagger not, not onely that of the figtree shal you doe, but and if you shal say to this mountaine, Take vp and throwe thy selfe into the sea, it shal be done. <sup>22</sup> And all things vvhatsoever you shal aske in prayer beleeuing, you shal receiue. <sup>23</sup> And vvhen he vvas come into the temple, there came to him as he vvas teaching, the cheefe Priestes and ancients of the people, saying, In vvhat vvhay doest thou these things? and vvho hath giuen thee this povver? <sup>24</sup> Iesus answering said to them, I also vvyl aske you one vvord: vvchich if you shal tell me, I also vvyl tel you in vvhat povver I doe these things. <sup>25</sup> The Baptisme of Iohn vvhen vvas it? from heauen, or from men?

AUTHORISED—1611.

bought in the Temple, and ouerthrew the tables of the money changers, and the seats of them that solde doves, <sup>13</sup> And said vnto them, It is written, My house shall bee called the house of prayer, but ye haue made it a denne of theeues. <sup>14</sup> And the blind and the lame came to him in the temple, and he healed them. <sup>15</sup> And when the chiefe Priests and Scribes saw the wonderful things that hee did, & the children crying in the temple, & saying, Hosanna to the Son of Dauid, they were sore displeased, <sup>16</sup> And said vnto him, Hearst thou what these say? And Iesus saith vnto them, Yea, haue ye neuer read, Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise?

<sup>17</sup> And he left them, and went out of the cite into Bethany, and he lodged there. <sup>18</sup> Now in the morning, as hee returned into the cite, hee hungred. <sup>19</sup> And when he saw a figge tree in the way, hee came to it, and found nothing thereon but leaues only, and said vnto it, Let no fruit growe on thee henceforward for euer. And presently the figge tree withered away. <sup>20</sup> And when the Disciples saw it, they marueiled, saying, How soone is the figge tree withered away? <sup>21</sup> Iesus answered, and said vnto them, Verely I say vnto you, if ye haue faith, and doubt not, ye shall not onely doe this which is done to the figge tree, but also, if ye shall say vnto this mountaine, Be thou remoued, and be thou cast into the Sea, it shall be done. <sup>22</sup> And all things vvhatsoever ye shall aske in prayer, beleeuing, ye shall receiue.

<sup>23</sup> And when he was come into the temple, the chiefe Priests and the Elders of the people came vnto him as he was teaching, and said, By what authoritie doest thou these things? and who gaue thee this authoritie? <sup>24</sup> And Iesus answered, and said vnto them, I also will aske you one thing, which if ye tell me, I in like wise will tell you by what authoritie I doe these things. <sup>25</sup> The baptisme of Iohn, whence was it? from heauen, or of ἀνθρώπων; Οἱ δὲ διελογίζοντο παρ' ἑαυτοῖς, λέγοντες, <sup>26</sup> 'Ἐὰν εἴπωμεν, ἐξ οὐ-

 'ρανοῦ, ἐρεῖ ἡμῖν, Διὰ τί οὖν οὐκ ἐπιστεύσατε αὐτῷ; ἐὰν δὲ εἴπωμεν, ἐξ ἀνθρώπων,
 'φοβούμεθα τὸν ὄχλον· πάντες γὰρ ἔχουσι τὸν Ἰωάννην ὡς προφήτην.' <sup>27</sup> Καὶ ἀποκριθέντες τῷ Ἰησοῦ εἶπον, 'Οὐκ οἶδαμεν.' Ἐφη αὐτοῖς καὶ αὐτὸς, 'Οὐδὲ ἐγὼ
 'λέγω ὑμῖν ἐν ποίᾳ ἐξουσίᾳ ταῦτα ποιῶ. <sup>28</sup> Τί δὲ ὑμῖν δοκεῖ; ἄνθρωπος εἶχε
 'τέκνα δύο, καὶ προσελθὼν τῷ πρώτῳ εἶπε, Τέκνον, ὕπαγε, σήμερον ἐργάζου ἐν
 'τῷ ἀμπελωτί μου. | <sup>29</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν, Ὁὐ θέλω· ὕστερον δὲ μεταμελη-
 'θεὶς, ἀπήλλθε. | <sup>30</sup> Καὶ προσελθὼν | τῷ ἑτέρῳ | εἶπεν ὡσαύτως. ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς
 'εἶπεν, Ἐγὼ, κύριε· καὶ οὐκ ἀπήλλθε. <sup>31</sup> Τίς ἐκ τῶν δύο ἐποίησε τὸ θέλημα τοῦ
 'πατρὸς; Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, | 'Ὁ πρῶτος.' Λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἄμην λέγω
 'ὑμῖν, ὅτι οἱ τελῶναι καὶ αἱ πόρνοι προάγουσιν ὑμᾶς ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ Θεοῦ.

<sup>26</sup> Alex. = μὲν.

<sup>27</sup> Alex. ἰγὼ κέραι, καὶ οἱκ ἀπῆλθεν.

<sup>28</sup> Alex. Προσθλῶν δὲ.

<sup>29</sup> Rec. ἑστέρῳ.

<sup>30</sup> Alex. = αὐτῷ.

WICLIFF—1380.

men? and thi thoughten withynne hem silf seiynge, if we seien of heuene: he schal seye to vs, whi thanne bileuen 3e not to hym, <sup>26</sup> if we seien of men: we dreden the puple, for alle halden ioon as a profete, <sup>27</sup> ⁊ thei answereden to ihesus ⁊ seide, we witen not, ⁊ he seide to hem, nether I seye to 3ou: in what power I do thes thingis?

<sup>28</sup> But what semeth to 3ou? A man hadde .ij. sones and he came to the first ⁊ seide, sone go worche to day in my vyneyard, <sup>29</sup> ⁊ he answered and seide
 I nyle, but afterwarde he for thougt ⁊ wente forth, <sup>30</sup> but he came to the tother: and seide on like maner, ⁊ he answered ⁊ seide, lord I go, ⁊ he wente not, <sup>31</sup> who of the tweyne didde the fadir wille? thei seyn to hym, the first, ihesus seide to hem, truli I sey to 3ou, for pupplicans ⁊ hooris, schulen go biforn 3ou in the kyngdom of god, <sup>32</sup> for ioon came to 3ou in the wey of rightwinesse: ⁊ 3e
 bileueden not to hym, but pupplicans hooris: bileueden to hym, but 3e sien ⁊ hadden noo forthenkyng affir that 3e bileueden to hym.

<sup>33</sup> Here 3e another parable, there was an housbondeman that plauntid a vynesyerd, ⁊ heggid it aboute, ⁊ dalf a pres-our theyrne, ⁊ bildide a toure, ⁊ hired it to erthtiliers: and wente fer in pil-grymage, <sup>34</sup> but whanne the tyme of fruytis nygde: he sente hise seruauntis to the erthtiliers to take fruytis of it, <sup>35</sup> ⁊ the erthtiliers token hise seruauntis ⁊ betyn the oon, thei slouen another ⁊ stoneden another, <sup>36</sup> eftsones he sente there seruauntis, mo thanne the first, ⁊ on lik maner thei diden to hem, <sup>37</sup> ⁊ at the last he sente hise sone to hem ⁊ seide, thei schilren drede my sone, <sup>38</sup> but the erthe tilers seyngde the sone, seiden with-

TYNDALE—1534.

heven or of men? Then they reasoned amonge them selves sayinge: yf we shall saye from heven, he will saye vnto vs:
 why dyd ye not then beleve hym? <sup>26</sup> But and if we shall saye of men, then feare we the people. For all men helde Iohn as a Prophet. <sup>27</sup> And they answered Iesus and sayde: we cannot tell. And he lyke wysc sayd vnto them: nether tell I you by what auctorite I do thes thinges.

<sup>28</sup> What saye ye to this? A certayne man had two sones, and came to the elder and sayde: sonne go and worke to daye in my vineyarde. <sup>29</sup> He answered and sayde, I will not: but afterwarde repented and went. <sup>30</sup> Then came he to the seconde, and sayde lyke wyse. And he answered and sayde: I will syr: yet went not. <sup>31</sup> Whether of them twayne dyd the will of the fater? And they sayde vnto hym: the fyrst. Iesus sayde vnto them: verely I saye vnto you, that the publicans and the harlotes shall come into the kyngdome of God before you. <sup>32</sup> For Iohn came vnto you in the weye of righte-wenes, and ye beleved hym not. But the publicans and the harlotes beleved him. And yet ye (though ye save it) were not yet moved with repentaunce, that ye myght afterwarde have beleved hym.

<sup>33</sup> Herken another similitude. There was a certayne housholder, which planted a vineyarde, and hedged it rounde about, and made a wynepresse in it, and bilt a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went in to a straunge countrie. <sup>34</sup> And when the tyme of the frute drewe nere, he sent his seruaunts to the husbandmen, to receave the frutes of it. <sup>35</sup> And the husbandmen caught his seruaunts and bet one, kyled another, and stoned another.
<sup>36</sup> Agayne, he sent other servants, moo then the fyrst: and they serued them lyke wyse. <sup>37</sup> But last of all, he sent vnto them his awne sone sayinge: they will feare my sone. <sup>38</sup> But when the husband-men sawe the sone, they sayde amonge

CRANMER—1539.

Iohn: was he it? from heauen or of men? And they thought amonge them selues sayinge: yf we saye from heauen, he will saye vnto vs: why dyd ye not then beleue him? <sup>26</sup> But yf we shall saye of men, then feare we the people. For all men holde Iohn as a prophet. <sup>27</sup> And they answered vnto Iesus and sayd: we cannot tell. And he sayd vnto them: nether tell I you, by what auctorite I do thes thinges. <sup>28</sup> What saye ye to this? A man had two sones, and cam to the fyrst, and sayde: sonne, go and worke to daye in my vyneyarde. <sup>29</sup> He answered and sayd, I will not but afterward, he repented, and went. <sup>30</sup> Then cam he to the seconde, and sayd likewise. And he answered, and sayde: I will syr, and went not. <sup>31</sup> Whether of them twayne dyd the will of the fater? And they sayde vnto him: the fyrst. Iesus sayeth vnto them; verely I saye vnto you, the publicans and harlotes go into the kyngdom of God before you.
<sup>32</sup> For Iohn cam vnto you by the waye of rightewesnes, and ye beleued him not:
 but publicans and harlottes beleued him.
 And ye (whan ye had sent it) were not moued afterwarde with repentaunce, that ye might have beleued him.

<sup>33</sup> Herken another similitude. There was a certayne man an housholder, which planted a vineyarde, and hedged it rounde about, and made a wynepresse in it, and bilt a tower, and let it out to husband-men, and went into a straunge countrie.
<sup>34</sup> And when the tyme of the frute drewe nere, he sent his seruautes to the hus-bandmen that they might receave the frutes of it. <sup>35</sup> And the husbandmen caught his seruautes, and bet one, killed another, and stoned another. <sup>36</sup> Againe, he set other seruautes, moo then the fyrst:
 and they dyd vnto them lykewyse. <sup>37</sup> But last of all, he sent vnto them his awne sone, sayinge: they will stande in awe of my sone. <sup>38</sup> But when the husband-men sawe the sone, they sayd amonge

⁊ know, nyle, not, dalf, foddit, dny or deder.
 ⁊ the maxe, peregre, abroad, travelling in a foreign countrey, not limited as it now is to a religious journey.
 ⁊ thei that does not use this word to support the popular sense of pilgrimages, nygde, drewe nygh, eft⁊ often.

<sup>32</sup> ἦλθε γὰρ πρὸς ὑμᾶς Ἰωάννης ἐν ὀδῷ δικαιοσύνης, καὶ οὐκ ἐπιστεύσατε αὐτῷ, οἱ δὲ τελῶναι καὶ αἱ πόρνοι ἐπίστευσαν αὐτῷ· ὑμεῖς δὲ ἰδόντες <sup>b</sup> οὐ μετεμελήθητε ὕστερον τοῦ πιστεῦσαι αὐτῷ· <sup>33</sup> Ἄλλην παραβολὴν ἀκούσατε. ἄνθρωπος ἦν οἰκοδεσπότης, ὅστις ἐφύτευσεν ἀμπελῶνα, καὶ φραγμὸν αὐτῷ περιέθηκε, καὶ ἄρξεν ἐν αὐτῷ ληνόν, καὶ ὠκοδόμησε πύργον, καὶ ἐξέδοτο αὐτὸν γεωργοῖς, καὶ ἀπεδήμησεν. <sup>34</sup> ὅτε δὲ ἤγγισεν ὁ καιρὸς τῶν καρπῶν, ἀπέστειλε τοὺς δούλους αὐτοῦ πρὸς τοὺς γεωργοὺς, λαβεῖν τοὺς καρποὺς αὐτοῦ· <sup>35</sup> καὶ λαβόντες οἱ γεωργοὶ τοὺς δούλους αὐτοῦ, ὃν μὲν ἔδειραν, ὃν δὲ ἀπέκτειναν, ὃν δὲ ἐλιθοβόλησαν. <sup>36</sup> πάλιν ἀπέστειλεν ἄλλους δούλους πλείονας τῶν πρώτων· καὶ ἐποίησαν αὐτοῖς ὡσαύτως. <sup>37</sup> ὕστερον δὲ ἀπέστειλε πρὸς αὐτοὺς τὸν υἱὸν αὐτοῦ, λέγων, Ἐντραπήσονται τὸν υἱόν μου. <sup>38</sup> Οἱ δὲ γεωργοὶ ἰδόντες τὸν υἱὸν εἶπον ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, οὗτός

<sup>b</sup> Alex. οὐδέ.<sup>c</sup> Rec. + τις.

GENEVA — 1557.

Then they reasoned among them selves, saying, If we shal say from heauen, he wil say vnto vs: why did ye not then beleue him? <sup>26</sup> But & yf we shal say of men, then feare we the people. For all men held Iohn as a Prophet. <sup>27</sup> And they answered Iesus, and said, We can not tel. And he sayd vnto them, Nether tel I you, by what auctoritie I do these thynges.

<sup>28</sup> But what thinke ye? A certayne man had two sonnes, and came to the elder, & sayd, Sonne, go and worke to day in my vineyard. <sup>29</sup> He answered and sayd, I wil not: but afterward aduised him selfe, and went. <sup>30</sup> Then came he to the seconde, and sayd lykewise. And he answered, and sayd, I wyl syr, yet went not. <sup>31</sup> Whether of them twayne dyd the wyl of the father? They sayd vnto him, The fyrst. Iesus sayd vnto them, Verely I say vnto you, that the publicans and the harlots shal come into the kynngdome of God before you. <sup>32</sup> For Iohn came vnto you in the way of righteousnes, & ye beleued him not. But the publicans, and the harlots beleued him. And yet ye, thogh ye sawe it, were not moued with repentance, that ye myght afterward haue beleued him.

<sup>33</sup> Herken another similitude. There was a certayne housholder, which planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and made a wynepresse in it, and buylt a tower, and let it out to housband men, and went into a strange country. <sup>34</sup> And when the tyme of the fruit drew nere, he sent his seruantes to the housbandmen to receaue the fruites of it. <sup>35</sup> And the housbandmen caught his seruantes, and beat one, killed another, and stoned another. <sup>36</sup> Againe he sent other seruantes, mo then the first, and they serued them likewise. <sup>37</sup> But last of all, he sent vnto them his owne sonne, saying, They wyl feare my sonne. <sup>38</sup> But when the housbandmen saw the sonne, they sayd among them

RHEIMS—1582.

But they thought vwithin them selves, saying, If vve shal say from heauen, he wyl say to vs, vwhy then did you not beleuee him? But if vve shal say from men: vve feare the multitude, for al hold Iohn as a Prophet. <sup>27</sup> And ansvering to Iesvs they said, We knowv not. He also said to them, Neither do I tel you in vwhat povver I doe these thyngs.

<sup>28</sup> But vwhat is your opinion? A certayne man had tvvo sonnes: and coming to the first, he said, Sonne, goe vvorke to day in my vineyard. <sup>29</sup> And he ansvering, said, I wvill not. But afterward moued vwith repentance he vvent. <sup>30</sup> And coming to the other, he said Ekevvise. And he ansvering, said, I goe Lord, and he vvent not. <sup>31</sup> Which of the tvvo did the fathers vvil? They say to him, The first. Iesvs saith to them, Amen I say to you, that the Publicans and vvhoores goe before you into the kingdome of God. <sup>32</sup> For Iohn came to you in the vvay of iustice: and you did not beleuee him. but the publicans and vvhoores did beleuee him: but you seeing it, neither haue ye had repentance afterward, to beleuee him.

<sup>33</sup> An other parable heare ye: A man there vvvas an housholder vvho planted a vineyard, and made a hedge round about it, and digged in it a presse, and builded a tovvre, and let it out to housbandmen: and vvent forth into a strange country. <sup>34</sup> And vvhen the time of fruites drevev nigh, he sent his seruantes to the housbandmen, to receiue the fruites thereof. <sup>35</sup> And the housbandmen apprehending his seruantes, one they beat, an other they killed, and an other they stoned. <sup>36</sup> Againe he sent other servautes moe then the former: and they did to them likewise. <sup>37</sup> And last of al he sent to them his sonne, saying, They vvil reuerence my sonne. <sup>38</sup> But the housbandmen seeing the sonne, said vwithin them

AUTHORISED—1611.

men? and they reasoned with themselves saying, If we shall say, From heauen, hee will say vnto vs, Why did yee not then beleuee him? <sup>26</sup> But if we shall say, Of men, we feare the people, for all hold Iohn as a Prophet. <sup>27</sup> And they answered Iesus, and said, We cannot tell. And he said vnto them, Neither tell I you by what authoritie I doe these thyngs.

<sup>28</sup> But what thinke ye? A certayne man had two sonnes, and he came to the first, and said, Sonne, goe worke to day in my vineyard. <sup>29</sup> He answered, and said, I will not: but afterward he repented, and went.

<sup>30</sup> And hee came to the second, and said likewise: and hee answered, and said, I goe sir, and went not. <sup>31</sup> Whether of them twaine did the will of his father? They say vnto him, The first. Iesus saith vnto them, Verely I say vnto you, that the Publicanes and the harlots go into the kingdome of God before you. <sup>32</sup> For Iohn came vnto you in the way of righteousness, and ye beleueed him not: but the Publicanes and the harlots beleueed him. And ye when ye had seene it, repented not afterward, that ye might beleuee him.

<sup>33</sup> Heare another parable. There was a certayne house-holder, which planted a Vineyard, and hedged it round about, and digged a wine-press in it, and builded a tower, and let it out to housbandmen, and went into a farre country. <sup>34</sup> And when the time of the fruit drew neere, he sent his seruants to the housbandmen, that they might receiue the fruits of it. <sup>35</sup> And the housbandmen tooke his seruants, and beat one, and killed another, and stoned another. <sup>36</sup> Againe hee sent other seruants, moe then the first, and they did vnto them likewise. <sup>37</sup> But last of all, he sent vnto them his sonne, saying, They will reuerence my sonne. <sup>38</sup> But when the housbandmen saw the sonne,

ἔστιν ὁ κληρονόμος· δεῦτε, ἀποκτείνωμεν αὐτὸν, καὶ <sup>d</sup> κατὰσχωμεν| τὴν κληρονομίαν αὐτοῦ. <sup>39</sup> καὶ λαβόντες αὐτὸν ἐξέβαλον ἔξω τοῦ ἀμπελώνου καὶ ἀπέκτειναν. <sup>40</sup> ὅταν οὖν ἔλθῃ ὁ κύριος τοῦ ἀμπελώνου, τί ποιήσει τοῖς γεωργοῖς ἐκείνοις; <sup>41</sup> Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Ἐκακοὺς κακῶς ἀπολέσει αὐτούς· καὶ τὸν ἀμπελῶνα ἐκδόσεται ἄλλοις γεωργοῖς, οἵτινες ἀποδώσουσιν αὐτῷ τοὺς καρποὺς ἐν τοῖς καιροῖς αὐτῶν. <sup>42</sup> Λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Οὐδέποτε ἀνεγνώτε ἐν ταῖς γραφαῖς, Ἐλίθον ὃν ἀπέδοκίμασαν οἱ οἰκοδομοῦντες, οὗτος ἐγενήθη εἰς κεφαλὴν γωνίας. παρὰ Κυρίου ἐγένετο αὕτη, καὶ ἔστι θαυμαστὴ ἐν ὀφθαλμοῖς ἡμῶν; <sup>43</sup> Διὰ τοῦτο λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἀρθήσεται ἀφ' ὑμῶν ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ δοθήσεται ἔθνει ποιοῦντι τοὺς καρποὺς αὐτῆς. <sup>44</sup> καὶ ὁ πεσὼν ἐπὶ τὸν λίθον τοῦτον συνθλασθήσεται· ἐφ' ὃν δ' ἂν πέσῃ, λικμήσει αὐτόν. <sup>45</sup> Καὶ ἀκούσαντες οἱ ἄρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι τὰς

<sup>d</sup> Alex. σῳῶμεν.<sup>e</sup> Alex. ἰπέι.<sup>f</sup> Alex. εἶς.<sup>g</sup> Alex. ἡτοίμακα.

WICLIF—1380.

ynne hem self, this is the hir come 3e, sle we hym, & we schulen have his eritage,<sup>39</sup> and they tooken ʒ castiden hym out of the vnyceyrd, & slowen him,<sup>40</sup> therefore whanne the lord of the vnyceyrd sehal come: what schal he do to the ertheheldis? <sup>41</sup> and they seyn to hym; he schal lese yuel the yuele men; & he schal sette to hire his vnyceyrd to other ertheheldis: whiche schulen zelde fruytis to him in here tymes;

<sup>42</sup> ihesus seith to hem; reddn 3e neder in scripturis, the stoon whiche the bilders repreuden: this is made in to the heed of the corner, of the lord this thing is doen: & it is meruelous biforn oure eyes,<sup>43</sup> therefore I seye to 3ou that the kyngdom of god schal be taken fro 3ou & schal be 3ouan to a folk doyng fruytis of it,<sup>44</sup> and he that schal falle on this stoon schal be brokun, but on whom it schal falle it schal al to brise him, and whann the pryncis of prestis & pharises hadden herd hise parabis, they knewen that he seide of hem,<sup>45</sup> & they sougten to holde him, but they dreden the peple, for they hadden him as a profete;

22. AND ihesus answerde ʒ spak oftnones in parabis to hem & seide, <sup>2</sup> The kyngdom of heuenes is made like to a kyng that made weddingis to his son; and he sente hise seruauntis for to clepe men that weren beden to the weddyngis: & they wolden not come, <sup>3</sup> oftnones he sente other seruauntis: ʒ seide; seye 3e to the men that ben beden to the feest; lo I haue made redi my mete my beist & my volatilis ben slayn, & alle thingis ben redi: come 3e to the weddyngis; <sup>5</sup> but they dispiscden; & wenten forth, on in to his toum; another to his marchaundise; <sup>6</sup> but other helden hise seruauntis, & turntenden hem & slowen; <sup>7</sup> but the kyng whanne he hadde herd; was wroth; and he sente hise oostis ʒ he them selves: This is the heyre: come; let vs kyll him; and let vs take his inheritance to oure selves. <sup>39</sup> And they caught him and thrust him out of the vineyard; and slew him. <sup>40</sup> When the lord of the vineyard cometh; what will he do with those husbandmen? <sup>41</sup> They sayde vnto him: he will cruelly destroye those evyll persons; and will let out his vineyard vnto other husbandmen which shall delvery him the frute at tymes comen.

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>42</sup> Iesus sayde vnto them: dyd ye never reede in the scriptures? The stone which the bylders refused; the same is set in the principall parte of the corner: this was the lordes doynge; and yt is meruelous in oure eyes. <sup>43</sup> Therefore saye I vnto you; the kyngdome of God shalbe taken from you; and shalbe geven to the gentyls; which shall bryngre forth the frutes of it. <sup>44</sup> And whosoever shall fall on this stone; he shalbe broken; but on whosoever it shall fall vpon; it will grynde him to powder. <sup>45</sup> And when the chefe prests and Pharises heard these similitudes; they perceaved that he spake of them. <sup>46</sup> And they went about to laye handis on him; but they feared the peple; because they tooke him as a Prophet.

22. AND Iesus answered and spake vnto them agayne; in similitudes sayynge.

<sup>2</sup> The kyngdome of heven is lyke vnto a certayne kynge; which maryed his sonne; <sup>3</sup> and sent forth his servants; to call them that were byd to the weddinge; and they wolde not come. <sup>4</sup> Agayne he sent forth other servants; sayynge: Tell them which are bydden: beholde I have prepared my dynner; myne oxen and my fatlynge are kyled; and all thinges are redy; come vnto the mariage. <sup>5</sup> But they made light of it; and went their wayes: one to his ferme place; a nother about his marchaundise; <sup>6</sup> the remaunt toke his seruautes and intreated them vngodly and slew them. <sup>7</sup> When the kyng hearde that he was wroth; and sent forth his warryers and

CRANMER—1539.

them selues: This is the heyre: come, let vs kyll him, and let vs enioye his inheritance. <sup>39</sup> And they caught him, and thrust him out of the vineyard, and slew him. <sup>40</sup> When the Lord thereof of the vineyard cometh, what will he do vnto those husbandmen? <sup>41</sup> They sayd vnto him: For asmooch as they be cuell, he will cruellye destroye them, and will let out his vineyard vnto other husbandmen, which shall delvery him the frute in due seasons. <sup>42</sup> Iesus sayeth vnto them: did ye neuer reade in the scriptures The stone which the bylders refused, the same is become the heade of the corner: this is the Lordes doynge, and it is meruelous in youre eyes. <sup>43</sup> Therefore saye I vnto you, the kyngdom of God shalbe taken from you, and geuen to a nacion, which shall bringe forth the frutes therof. <sup>44</sup> And whosoever falleth on this stone, shalbe broken in peeces: but on whosoever it falleth it shal all to grynd him. <sup>45</sup> And when the chefe Prestes and Pharises had heard his parables, they perceaued, that he spake of them. <sup>46</sup> And they went about to laye handes on him; but they feared the peple, because they tooke him as a Prophet. And Iesus answered, and spake vnto them agayne by parables and saide.

22. THE kyngdome of heauen is lyke vnto a man that was a Kyng, which made a mariage for his sonne <sup>3</sup> and sent forth his seruautes, to call them that were byd to the weddinge, and they wolde not come. <sup>4</sup> Agayne, he sent forth other seruautes sayynge: Tell them which are bydden: beholde, I haue prepared my dynner: myne oxen and my fatlynge are kyled, and all thinges are ready, come vnto the mariage. <sup>5</sup> But they made lyght of it, and went their wayes: one to his ferme place, another to his marchaundise, <sup>6</sup> and the remaunt toke his seruautes, and intreated them shamefully and slew them. <sup>7</sup> But when the kyng hearde therof, he was wroth, and sent forth his men of lese yuel, destroy miserably. yuele, evil.

 ʒ the, yiel. ʒ ppeueles, rejected. ʒ son, son.
 ʒ in, gynn. ʒ flowers, again. ʒ crye, call. ʒ iole, hale.
 ʒ not beate. ʒ kat(is), fatted foote(s). ʒ slown, slow.

παραβολὰς αὐτοῦ ἔγνωσαν ὅτι περὶ αὐτῶν λέγει· <sup>46</sup> καὶ ζητούντες αὐτὸν κρατῆσαι, ἐφοβήθησαν τοὺς ὄχλους, ἔπειδ' ὡς | προφήτην αὐτὸν εἶχον.

XXII. Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς πάλιν εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ἐν παραβολαῖς, λέγων, <sup>1</sup> Ὡμοιώθη ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν ἀνθρώπῳ βασιλεῖ, ὅστις ἐποίησε γάμους τῷ <sup>2</sup> υἱῷ αὐτοῦ· καὶ ἀπέστειλε τοὺς δούλους αὐτοῦ καλέσαι τοὺς κεκλημένους εἰς <sup>3</sup> τοὺς γάμους, καὶ οὐκ ἤβηλον ἔλθειν. <sup>4</sup> Πάλιν ἀπέστειλεν ἄλλους δούλους, λέγων, <sup>5</sup> Εἴπατε τοῖς κεκλημένοις, Ἴδόν, τὸ ἀριστόν μου ἡτοίμασα, οἱ ταῦροί μου καὶ τὰ <sup>6</sup> σιτιστὰ τεθυμένα, καὶ πάντα ἔτοιμα· δεῦτε εἰς τοὺς γάμους. <sup>7</sup> Οἱ δὲ ἀμελή- <sup>8</sup> σαυτες ἀπήλθον, ὁ | μὲν εἰς τὸν ἴδιον ἀγρὸν, ὁ | δὲ εἰς | τὴν ἐμπορίαν αὐτοῦ· <sup>9</sup> οἱ δὲ λοιποὶ κρατήσαντες τοὺς δούλους αὐτοῦ ὕβρισαν καὶ ἀπέκτειναν. <sup>10</sup> Καὶ <sup>11</sup> ἀκούσας ὁ βασιλεὺς | ἐκέλευσεν, καὶ πέμψας τὰ στρατεύματα αὐτοῦ

<sup>1</sup> Alex. ἔρ.

<sup>2</sup> Alex. ἐπί.

<sup>3</sup> Const. Καὶ ἀκούσας ὁ βασιλεὺς.

Rec. Ἀκούσας ἔτι ὁ β.

Alex. ὁ δὲ βασιλεὺς

alii + ἀκούσας.

<sup>10</sup> Rec. = αἰεῖον.

GENEVA—1557.

selues, This is the heire, come, let vs kyl hym, and let vs take his inheritance.

<sup>39</sup> And they caught him, and thrust him out of the vineyard, and slew him. <sup>40</sup> When therefore the Lord of the vineyard shall come, what wil he do with those husbandmen? <sup>41</sup> They say vnto him, He wil cruely destroy those euil persons, and wyl let out his vineyard vnto other husbandmen, which shall deliuer him the fruit at tymes conuenient. <sup>42</sup> Iesus sayd vnto them, Red ye neuer in the Scriptures, The stone which the builders refused, the same, is made the head stone of the corner? <sup>43</sup> This was the Lordes doing, and it is merueylous in our eyes. <sup>44</sup> Therefore say I vnto you, the kyngdome of God shalbe taken from you, & shalbe geuen to a people, which shal bryng forth the frutes of it. <sup>45</sup> And whosoer shall fall on this stone he shalbe broken: but on whom soeuer it shal fall vpon, it wyl grynde him to powder. <sup>46</sup> And when the chiefe Priests and Pharises heard these similitudes, they perceaued that he spake of them. <sup>47</sup> And they seekyng to lay handes on him, feared the people, because they toke him as a Prophet.

22. AND Iesus answered, and spake vnto them agayne in similitudes, saying, <sup>1</sup> The kyngdome of heauen is like vnto a certayne kyng which maried his sonne. <sup>2</sup> And sent forth his seruantes, to call them that were byd to the wedding, and they would not come. <sup>3</sup> Agayne he sent forth other seruantes, saying, Tell them which are bydden, Beholde I haue prepared my dinner, mine oxen and my fatlinges are killed, and all thinges are ready, come vnto the mariage. <sup>4</sup> But they made light of it, and went their wayes, one to his ferme place, another about his marchandise. <sup>5</sup> And the remnant toke his seruantes, and intreated them sharpely, and slew them. <sup>6</sup> But when the king heard that, he was wroth: and sent forth selues, This is the heire, come, let vs kill him, and vve shal haue his inheritance. <sup>39</sup> And apprehending him they cast him forth out of the vineyard, and killed him. <sup>40</sup> When therefore the lord of the vineyard shal come, vvhath vil he doe to those husbandmen? <sup>41</sup> They say to him, The naughtie men he vvil bring to naught: and his vineyard he vvil let out to other husbandmen, that shal render him the fruite in their seasons.

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>42</sup> Iesus saith to them, Haue you neuer read in the Scriptures, The stone which the builders refused, the same is made into the head of the corner? By our lord was this done, and it is maruelous in our eyes. <sup>43</sup> Therefore I say to you, the kyngdom of God shal be taken avway from you, and shal be giuen to a nation yelding the frutes thereof. <sup>44</sup> And he that shalbe vpon this stone, shal be broken: and on vvhom it falleth, it shal al to bruisse him. <sup>45</sup> And vhen the chiefe Priests and Pharises had heard his parables, they kneeve that he spake of them. <sup>46</sup> And seeking to lay hands vpon him, they feared the multitudes: because they held him as a Prophet.

22. AND Iesus ansvering, spake againe in parables to them, saying: <sup>1</sup> The kyngdom of heauen is likened to a man being a king, vvhich made a mariage to his sonne. <sup>2</sup> And he sent his seruants to call them that vvere inuited to the mariage: and they vwould not come. <sup>3</sup> Againe he sent other seruants, saying, Tell them that vvere inuited, Behold I haue prepared my dinner: my beeuces and fatlings are killed, and al thinges are ready: come ye to the mariage. <sup>4</sup> But they neglected: and vvent their vvaies, one to his ferme, and another to his merchandise: <sup>5</sup> and the rest laid hands vpon his seruants, and spitefully intreating them, murdered them. <sup>6</sup> But vwhen the king had heard of it, he vvas vvroth,

AUTHORISED—1611.

they said among themselves, This is the heire, come, let vs kill him, and let vs sease on his inheritance. <sup>39</sup> And they caught him, and cast him out of the Vineyard, and slew him. <sup>40</sup> When the Lord therefore of the Vineyard cometh, what wil he doe vnto those husbandmen? <sup>41</sup> They say vnto him, He will miserably destroy those wicked men, and will let out his Vineyard vnto other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their seasons. <sup>42</sup> Iesus saith vnto them, Did ye neuer read in the Scriptures, The stone which the builders reiected, the same is become the head of the corner? This is the Lords doing, and it is maruelous in our eyes. <sup>43</sup> Therefore say I vnto you, the kyngdome of God shall be taken from you, and giuen to a nation bringing forth the frutes thereof. <sup>44</sup> And whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken: but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grinde him to powder. <sup>45</sup> And when the chiefe Priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they perceived that he spake of them. <sup>46</sup> But when they sought to lay hands on him, they feared the multitude, because they tooke him for a Prophet.

22. AND Iesus answered, and spake vnto them agayne by parables, and said, <sup>1</sup> The kyngdome of heauen is like vnto a certayne King, which made a mariage for his sonne. <sup>2</sup> And sent forth his seruants to call them that were bidden to the wedding, and they would not come. <sup>3</sup> Againe, he sent fourth other seruants, saying, Tell them which are hidden, Behold, I haue prepared my dinner; my oxen, and my fatlings are killed, and all things are ready: come vnto the marriage. <sup>4</sup> But they made light of it, and went their wayes, one to his ferme, another to his merchandize: <sup>5</sup> and the remnant tooke his seruants, and intreated them spitefully, and slew them. <sup>6</sup> But when the king heard thereof, he was ἠλώεσε τοὺς φονεῖς ἐκείνους, καὶ τὴν πόλιν αὐτῶν ἐπέρησε. <sup>8</sup> Τότε λέγει τοῖς δούλοις αὐτοῦ, Ὁ μὲν γάμος ἑτοιμός ἐστιν, οἱ δὲ κεκλημένοι οὐκ ἦσαν ἄξιοι. <sup>9</sup> πορεύεσθε οὖν ἐπὶ τὰς διεξόδους τῶν ὁδῶν, καὶ ὅσους ἂν εὔρητε, καλέσατε εἰς τοὺς γάμους. <sup>10</sup> Καὶ ἐξελθόντες οἱ δούλοι ἐκείνοι εἰς τὰς ὁδοὺς συνήγαγον πάντας ὅσους εὔρου, πονηροὺς τε καὶ ἀγαθοὺς· καὶ ἐπλήσθη ὁ γάμος ἀνακειμένων. <sup>11</sup> εἰσελθὼν δὲ ὁ βασιλεὺς θεάσασθαι τοὺς ἀνακειμένους εἶδεν ἐκεῖ ἄνθρωπον οὐκ ἐνδεδυμένον ἔνδυμα γάμου· <sup>12</sup> καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Ἐταῖρε, πῶς εἰσῆλθες ὧδε μὴ ἔχων ἔνδυμα γάμου; Ὁ δὲ ἐφίμωθη. <sup>13</sup> τότε εἶπεν ὁ βασιλεὺς τοῖς διακόνοις, Δῆσαντες αὐτοῦ πόδας καὶ χεῖρας, ἄρατε αὐτὸν καὶ ἐκβάλετε εἰς τὸ σκότος τὸ ἐξώτερον· ἐκεῖ ἔσται ὁ κλαυθμὸς καὶ ὁ βρυγμὸς τῶν ὀδόντων. <sup>14</sup> πολλοὶ γάρ εἰσι κλητοὶ, ὀλίγοι δὲ ἐκλεκτοί. <sup>15</sup> Τότε παρευθέντες οἱ Φαρισαῖοι συμβούλιον distroide the manuellers ⁊ brente her citees; <sup>8</sup> thanne he seide to his seruauntis the weddyngis ben redi; but thei that were clepid to the fest wer not worthi, <sup>9</sup> therefore go ze in to the endis of weies; ⁊ whom euer ze fynden, clepe ze to the weddyngis, <sup>10</sup> ⁊ hise seruauntis zeden out in to weies; ⁊ gaderiden to gidre alle that thei founden good ⁊ yuel; and the bridale was fulfillid with men sitting at the mete, <sup>11</sup> and the kyng entrid to se men sittinge at the mete; and he sipe there a man not clothid with bride clooth; <sup>12</sup> ⁊ he seide to hym, Frend how entridist thou hidr, with out bride clothis; and he was doumbe, <sup>13</sup> thanne the kyng bade hise mynstris bynde hym bothe handis ⁊ feet; ⁊ sende ze him in to vittimore darknes, there schal be wepyng ⁊ grentyng of teeth; <sup>14</sup> for many ben clepid but few ben chosen.

<sup>10</sup> Alex. idv.<sup>11</sup> Alex. = ἀρατε αὐτὸν, kai.

WICLIF—1380.

<sup>15</sup> Thanne pharisees zeden away ⁊ tooken a counceile; to take ihesus in word, <sup>16</sup> and thei senden to hym her discipulis with erodianes, ⁊ seiden, maistr we witen that thou art sothefast; ⁊ thou techist in trethe the way of god; ⁊ thou chargist not of any man; for thou biholdist not the persone of men; <sup>17</sup> therfor se to us; what it semith to thee, is it lewful that tribute be zoun to the emperour ether nay? <sup>18</sup> ⁊ whanne ihesus hadde knowen the wickednesse of hem; he seide ipocritis what tempten ze me? <sup>19</sup> schewe ze to me the prynte of the monci, and thei brougten to hym a peny, <sup>20</sup> ⁊ ihesus seide to hem, whose is this ymage, ⁊ the writyng aboue? <sup>21</sup> thei seien to hym, the emperour; thanne he seith to hem, therefore zelde ze to the emperour; tho thingis that ben the emperouris; ⁊ to god; tho thingis that ben of god; <sup>22</sup> and thei herden ⁊ wondriden; and thei leften hym; ⁊ wenten awaye

<sup>22</sup> In that day saduceis that seien there

manuellers, murderers, clepid, called, zeden, went, yuel, evil, witen, know, sothefast, true, chargist, respicis, regardet, beneful, lawful, zoun, given, ayen, again.

TYNDALE—1534.

destroyed those murderers, and Brent vp their cite.

<sup>8</sup> Then sayde he to his seruautes: the weddinge was prepared. But they which were bydden, were not worthy. <sup>9</sup> Go ye therfore out into the hie wayes, and as many as ye finde, hyd them to the mariage. <sup>10</sup> The seruautes went out in to the hie wayes, and gaddered to gedder as many as they coule fynde; both good and bad; and the weddinge was furnysshed with gastes. <sup>11</sup> Then the kyng came in, to viset the gastes; and spyed there a man which had not on a weddinge garment; <sup>12</sup> and sayde vnto him: frende, how fortunet it that thou earnest in hither and hast not on a weddyng garment? And he was even spechlesse. <sup>13</sup> Then sayde the kyng to his ministers: take and bynde hym hand and fote; and caste hym into vtter darknes; there shalbe wepyng and gnasshyng of teth. <sup>14</sup> For many are called and fewe be chosen.

<sup>15</sup> Then went the Pharises and toke counsell how they myght tangle him in his wordes. <sup>16</sup> And they sent vnto him their disciples with Herodes seruautes sayinge: Master, we knowe that thou are true, and teachest the waye of god truly; nether carest for any man; for thou consydst not mennes estate. <sup>17</sup> Tell vs therefore: how thinkest thou? Is it lawfull to geve tribute vnto Cesar or not? <sup>18</sup> Jesus perceaued their wickednes, and sayde: Why tempte ye me ye ypocrites? <sup>19</sup> Let me se the tribute money. And they toke hym a peny. <sup>20</sup> And he sayde vnto them: whose is this ymage and superscripion? <sup>21</sup> They sayde vnto him: Cesars. Then sayde he vnto them. Geve therfore to Cesar, that which is Cesars; and geve vnto god, that which is goddes. <sup>22</sup> When they herde that they marueled, and kette hym and went there waye.

<sup>23</sup> The same daye the Saducees came to him (which saye that there is no resurrec-

CRANMER—1539.

warre and destroyed those murthers, and Brent vp their cite.

<sup>8</sup> Then sayde he to his seruautes: the mariage in dede is prepared. But they which were bydden, were not worthy. <sup>9</sup> Goo ye therfore out into the hie wayes; and as many as ye finde byd them to the mariage. <sup>10</sup> And the seruautes went out into the hie wayes, and gathered together all, as many as they coule finde, both good and bad, and the weddinge was furnisshed with gastes. <sup>11</sup> Then the kyng came in, to se the gastes, and when he spyed there a man, which had not on a weddinge garment, <sup>12</sup> he saide vnto him: frende, how earnest thou in hyther not hauyng a weddyng garment? And he was euen spechlesse. <sup>13</sup> Then saide the kyng to the ministers: take and binde him hand and fote, and cast him into vtter darknes there shal be wepyng and gnasshyng of teth. <sup>14</sup> For many be called but fewe are chosen:

<sup>15</sup> Then went the pharises, and toke counsell how they myght tangle him in his wordes. <sup>16</sup> And they sent out vnto him their disciples wyth Herodes seruautes, sayinge: Master, we knowe that thou art true, and teachest the waye of God truly, nether carest thou for any man, for thou regardest not the outward appearance of men. <sup>17</sup> Tell vs therefore: how thinkest thou? Is it lawfull that tribute be geuen vnto Cesar or not? <sup>18</sup> But Iesus perceauing their wyckednes, sayde: Why tempte ye me ye ypocrites? <sup>19</sup> Shewe me the tribute money. And they toke him a peny. <sup>20</sup> And he saide vnto them: whose is this ymage and superscripion? <sup>21</sup> They saue vnto him, Cesars. Then sayde he vnto them. Geue therfore vnto Cesar, the thinges which are Cesars; and vnto God, those thinges that are Gods. <sup>22</sup> When they had hearde these wordes, they marueled, and left him, and went their waye.

<sup>23</sup> The same daye came to him the Saducees (which saye that there is no resurrec-

ἐλάβον ὅπως αὐτὸν παγιδεύσωσιν ἐν λόγῳ. <sup>16</sup> καὶ ἀποστέλλουσιν αὐτῷ τοὺς μαθητὰς αὐτῶν μετὰ τῶν Ἑρωδιανῶν, λέγοντες, Ἐπίδοσκαλε, οἶδαμεν ὅτι ἀληθῆς εἶ, καὶ τὴν ὁδὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐν ἀληθείᾳ διδάσκεις, καὶ οὐ μέλει σοι περὶ οὐδενός, οὐ γὰρ βλέπεις εἰς πρόσωπον ἀνθρώπων. <sup>17</sup> εἶπε δὲ οὖν ἡμῖν, τί σοι δοκεῖ; ἔξιστι δοῦναι κῆνσον Καίσαρι, ἢ οὐ; <sup>18</sup> Γνοὺς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὴν πονηρίαν αὐτῶν εἶπε, Τί με πειράζετε, ὑποκριταί; <sup>19</sup> ἐπίδειξατέ μοι τὸ νόμισμα τοῦ κῆνσου. Οἱ δὲ προσήνεγκαν αὐτῷ δηάριον. <sup>20</sup> καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Τίνος ἢ εἰκὼν αὕτη καὶ ἢ ἐπιγραφή; <sup>21</sup> λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Καίσαρος. τότε λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ἀπόδοτε οὖν τὰ Καίσαρος, Καίσαρι· καὶ τὰ τοῦ Θεοῦ, τῷ Θεῷ. <sup>22</sup> Καὶ ἀκούσαντες ἐθαύμασαν καὶ ἀφέντες αὐτὸν ἀπῆλθον.

<sup>23</sup> Ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ προσῆλθον αὐτῷ Σαδδουκαῖοι, <sup>2</sup> οἱ λέγοντες μὴ εἶναι

<sup>o</sup> Alex. + κατὰ τοῦ Ἰησοῦ s. κατ' αὐτοῦ.

<sup>p</sup> Alex. + ὁ Ἰησοῦς.

<sup>q</sup> Alex. = οἱ.

GENEVA — 1557.

his warriors, and destroyed, those murderers, and burnt yr their citie. <sup>8</sup> Then sayd he to his seruants, Truly the weddinge is prepared: But they which were bidden, were not worthy. <sup>9</sup> Go ye therefore out into the hie wayes, and as many as ye fynde, byd them to the mariage.

<sup>10</sup> And the seruantes went out into the hie wayes and gathered to gether as many as they coulde fynd, both good and had: and the weddinge was furnished with geastes.

<sup>11</sup> Then the king came in, to see the geastes, and spyed there a man which had not on a weddinge garment. <sup>12</sup> And sayd vnto hym, friend, how camest thou in hyther, and hast not on a weddinge garment? And he was euen speechlesse. <sup>13</sup> Then sayd the king to the ministres, Take and bynde hym hand and fote, and cast hym into vtter darkenes, there shalbe wepyng and gnassyng of teeth. <sup>14</sup> For many are called, & fewe be chosen.

<sup>15</sup> Then went the Pharises and toke counsel how they myght tangle him in hys wordes. <sup>16</sup> And they sent vnto hym their disciples with Herodes seruantes, saying, Master we knowe that thou art true, and teachest the way of God truly, nether carest for any man, for thou considerest not mennes estat. <sup>17</sup> Tel vs therefore, how thinkest thou? Is it lawfull to geue tribute vnto Cesar or not? <sup>18</sup> Iesus perceaued they wickednes, and said, Why tempte ye me ye hypocrites? <sup>19</sup> Let me see the tribute money. And they broght him a peny. <sup>20</sup> And he sayd vnto them, whose is this Image and superscription? They sayd vnto him, Cesars. <sup>21</sup> Then sayd he vnto them, Geue therefore to Cesar, that which is Cesars, and geue vnto God, that which is Goddes. <sup>22</sup> When they heard that, they merueyled, and left him, and went theyr way.

<sup>23</sup> The same day the Sadduces came to him (which say that there is no resur-

RHEIMS — 1582.

and sending his hostes, destroyed those murderers, and burnt their citie. <sup>8</sup> Then he saith to his seruants, The mariage in deede is ready: but they that were inuited, were not vvorthis. <sup>9</sup> Goe ye therefore into the high wayes: and vvhosoeuer you shal fynde, call to the mariage. <sup>10</sup> And his seruants going forth into the wayes, gathered together al that they found, bad and good: and the mariage was filled vwith ghestes.

<sup>11</sup> And the king vvent in to see the ghestes: and he saw there a man not attired in a vvedding garment. <sup>12</sup> And he saith to him, Frende, hovv camest thou in hither not hauing a vvedding garment? But he was dumme. <sup>13</sup> Then the king said to the vwaiters, Binde his hands and feete, and cast him into the vtter darkenes: there shal be vweeping and gnashing of teeth. <sup>14</sup> For many be called, but fewe elect.

<sup>15</sup> Then the Pharisees departing, consulted among them selues for to entrappe him in his talke. <sup>16</sup> And they send to him their disciples vwith the Herodians, saying, Maister, vve knowv that thou art a true speaker, and teachest the vway of God in truth, neither carest thou for any man, for thou doest not respect the person of men: <sup>17</sup> tel vs therefore vvhath is thy opinion, is it lawfull to giue tribute to Cesar, or not? <sup>18</sup> But Iesus knowing their naughtines, said, What do you tempt me Hypocrites? <sup>19</sup> Shewv me the tribute coine. And they offred him a peny. <sup>20</sup> And Iesus saith to them, Whose is this image and superscription? <sup>21</sup> They say to him, Cesars. Then he saith to them, Render therefore the things that are Cesars, to Cesar: and the things that are Gods, to God. <sup>22</sup> And hearing it they marueled, and leaving him vvent their vwayes.

<sup>23</sup> That day there came to him the Sadduces, that say there is no resurrection:

AUTHORISED — 1611.

wroth, and hee sent fourth his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and burnt yr their citie. <sup>8</sup> Then saith hee to his seruants, The wedding is ready, but they which were bidden, were not worthy. <sup>9</sup> Goe ye therefore into the high wayes, and as many as yee shall fynde, bid to the mariage. <sup>10</sup> So those seruants went out into the high wayes, and gathered together all as many as they found, both had and good, and the wedding was furnished with ghests.

<sup>11</sup> And when the king came in to see the guests, hee sawe there a man, which had not on a wedding garment. <sup>12</sup> And hee saith vnto him, Friend, how camest thou in hither, not hauing a wedding garment? And hee was speechlesse. <sup>13</sup> Then said the king to the seruants, Binde him hand and foote, and take him away, and cast him into outer darknesse, there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. <sup>14</sup> For many are called, but few are chosen.

<sup>15</sup> Then went the Pharises, and tooke counsell, how they might tangle him in his talke. <sup>16</sup> And they sent out vnto him their disciples, with the Herodians, saying, Master, we know that thou art true, and teachest the way of God in truth, neither carest thou for any man; for thou regardest not the person of men. <sup>17</sup> Tell vs therefore, what thinkest thou? Is it lawfull to giue tribute vnto Cesar, or not? <sup>18</sup> But Iesus perceiued their wickednesse, and said, Why tempt ye me, ye hypocrites? <sup>19</sup> Shew me the tribute money. And they brought vnto him a peny. <sup>20</sup> And he saith vnto them, Whose is this image and superscription? <sup>21</sup> They say vnto him, Cesars. Then saith he vnto them, Render therefore vnto Cesar, the things which are Cesars: and vnto God, the things that are Gods. <sup>22</sup> When they had heard these words, they marueiled, and left him, and went theyr way.

<sup>23</sup> The same day came to him the Sadduces, which say that there is no resur-

ἀνάστασιν, καὶ ἐπηρώτησαν αὐτὸν, <sup>24</sup> λέγοντες, ‘ Διδάσκαλε, Μωσῆς εἶπεν, “ Ἐάν τις ἀποθάνῃ μὴ ἔχων τέκνα, ἐπιγαμβρεύσει ὁ ἀδελφὸς αὐτοῦ τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἀναστήσει σπέρμα τῷ ἀδελφῷ αὐτοῦ.” <sup>25</sup> Ἦσαν δὲ παρ’ ἡμῶν ἑπτὰ ἀδελφοί· καὶ ὁ πρῶτος γαμήσας ἐτελεύτησε· καὶ μὴ ἔχων σπέρμα, ἀφῆκε τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ τῷ ἀδελφῷ αὐτοῦ. <sup>26</sup> Ὁμοίως καὶ ὁ δεύτερος, καὶ ὁ τρίτος, ἕως τῶν ἑπτὰ. <sup>27</sup> Ὑστερον δὲ πάντων ἀπέθανε καὶ ἡ γυνή. <sup>28</sup> ἐν τῇ οὖν ἀναστάσει, τίνας τῶν ἑπτὰ ἔσται γυνή; πάντες γὰρ ἔσχον αὐτήν. <sup>29</sup> Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ‘ Πλανᾶσθε, μὴ εἰδότες τὰς γραφὰς, μηδὲ τὴν δύναμιν τοῦ Θεοῦ. <sup>30</sup> ἐν γὰρ τῇ ἀναστάσει οὔτε γαμοῦσιν, οὔτε ἔγκαμίζονται, ἀλλ’ ὡς ἄγγελοι τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐν οὐρανῷ εἰσι. <sup>31</sup> περὶ δὲ τῆς ἀναστάσεως τῶν νεκρῶν, οὐκ ἀνεγίνωτε τὸ ῥῆθὲν ὑμῶν ὑπὸ τοῦ Θεοῦ, λέγοντος, <sup>32</sup> “ Ἐγὼ εἰμι ὁ Θεὸς Ἀβραὰμ, καὶ ὁ Θεὸς Ἰσαὰκ, καὶ

<sup>1</sup> Alex. γαμιζονται s. γαμισκονται.

<sup>1</sup> Alex. = Θεός.

WICLIF—1380.

is no risynge aȝen to liif, camen to him; and axiden hym <sup>24</sup> & seiden/ maistir, moises seide/ if ony man is deed, not hauynge a sone: that his brother wedde his wiif & rise seid to his brother, <sup>25</sup> and seuen brithren weren at us/ and the first wedde a wiif & is deed & he hadde no seed, & lefte his wiif to his brother, <sup>26</sup> also the secunde & the thirde til to the seuenh; <sup>27</sup> but the laste of alle: the woman is deed also/

<sup>28</sup> in the risynge aȝen to liif, whos wiif of the seuen schal sche be? for al hadden hir, <sup>29</sup> ihesus answerid & seide to hem; ȝe erren & ȝe knowen not scripturis ne the vertues of god, <sup>30</sup> for in the risynge aȝen to liif, nether thei schulen wedde nether schulen be weddid; but thei ben as the aungehis of god in heuene/

<sup>31</sup> & of the risynge aȝen of deed men ȝe han not redde, that is seide of the lord, that seith to ȝou, <sup>32</sup> I am god of Abraham, & god of Isaac & god of iacob; he is not god of deed men: but of luyngre men, <sup>33</sup> and the puple heringe: wondriden in his techynge/

<sup>34</sup> And pharises herde that he hadde putte seiilence to saducis camen to gidre/ <sup>35</sup> & oon of hem a techere of the lawe axed ihesus & temptid hym, <sup>36</sup> maistir which is a greete maundement in the lawe?

<sup>37</sup> ihesus seide to hym, thou schalt loue thi lord god of al thin herte, & in al thin soule & in al thin mynde: <sup>38</sup> this is the first & the mooste maundement, <sup>39</sup> & the secunde is like to this; thou schalt loue thi neibore as thi selfe/ <sup>40</sup> in these ij. maundementis: hangith al the lawe & the profetis/

<sup>41</sup> & whanne the pharises weren gaderid to gidre, ihesus axed to hem, <sup>42</sup> and seide/ what semeth to ȝou of crist: whos sone

TYNDALE—1534.

cion) and axed him <sup>24</sup> sayynge: Master, Moses bade, yf a man dye hauynge no chylde, that the brother mary his wyfe, and reyse vp seed vnto his brother. <sup>25</sup> Ther were with vs seven brethren and the fyrste married and deceased with oute yssue, and lefte his wyfe vnto his brother. <sup>26</sup> Lyke wise the seconde and the thyrd, vnto the seuenthe. <sup>27</sup> Laste of all the woman dyed also. <sup>28</sup> Now in the resurreccion, whose wyfe shall she be of the seven? For all had her. <sup>29</sup> Jesus answered and sayde vnto them: ye are deceaved, and vnderstonde not the scriptures, nor yet the power of God. <sup>30</sup> For in the resurreccion they nether mary nor are married: but are as the angels of God in heuē.

<sup>31</sup> As touchynge the resurreccion of the deed: haue ye not redde what is sayde vnto you of God, which sayeth: <sup>32</sup> I am Abrahams God, and Ysaacks God, and the God of Jacob? God is not the God of the deed: but of the luyngre. <sup>33</sup> And when the people herde that, they were astonyed at his doctrine.

<sup>34</sup> When the Pharises had hearde, how that he had put the Saduces to silence, they drewe to gedder, <sup>35</sup> and one of them which was a doctoure of lawe, axed a question temptynge him and sayynge: <sup>36</sup> Master which is the chefe commaundment in the lawe? <sup>37</sup> Iesus sayde vnto him: loue the Lorde thy God with all thin herte, with all thy soule, and with all thy mynde. <sup>38</sup> This is the fyrst and the chefe commaundment. <sup>39</sup> And ther is another lyke vnto this. Loue thynne neighbour as thy selfe. <sup>40</sup> In these two commaundmentes hangē all the lawe and the Prophetes.

<sup>41</sup> Whyll the Pharises were gaddered togeder, Iesus axed them <sup>42</sup> sayynge: what thinke ye of Christ? Whose sone is he? They sayde vnto him: the sone reccion) and asked him <sup>24</sup> sayynge: Master, Moses sayde: that yf a man dye hauynge no chylde, his brother shulde mary his wyfe, and reyse vp seed vnto his brother.

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>25</sup> Ther were with vs seuen brethren: and the fyrste married a wyfe, and deceased without yssue and lefte his wyfe vnto his brother. <sup>26</sup> Lykewyse, the seconde and the thyrd, vnto the seuenh. <sup>27</sup> Laste of all the woman dyed also. <sup>28</sup> Therfore in the resurreccion, whose wyfe shall she be of the seuen? For they all had her. <sup>29</sup> Iesus answered and sayde vnto them: ye do erre, not knowynge the scriptures, nor the power of God. <sup>30</sup> For in the resurreccion, they nether mary, nor are married but are as the Angels in heaen.

<sup>31</sup> But as touchynge the resurreccion of the deed: haue ye not red that which is spoken vnto you of God, which sayth: <sup>32</sup> I am the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac, and the God of Iacob? God is not a God of deed, but of luyngre. <sup>33</sup> And when the people herde this, they were astonyed at his doctrine.

<sup>34</sup> But when the pharises had heard, that he had put the Saduces to sylence, they came togeder, <sup>35</sup> and one of them which was (a doctour of lawe) asked him a question, temptynge him, and sayynge: <sup>36</sup> Master, which is the greete commaundment in the lawe? <sup>37</sup> Iesus saide vnto him: Thou shalt loue the Lord thy God with all thy herte, and wyth all thy soule, and wyth all thy mynde. <sup>38</sup> This is the fyrst and greete commaundment. <sup>39</sup> And the secunde is lyke vnto it: Thou shalt loue thynne neybour as thy selfe. <sup>40</sup> In these two commaundmentes hangē all the lawe and the Prophetes.

<sup>41</sup> Whyle the Pharises were gathered together, Iesus asked them, <sup>42</sup> sayynge: what thinke ye of Christ? Whose sone is he? They saye vnto him: the sone of

“ὁ Θεὸς Ἰακώβ;” Οὐκ ἔστιν ὁ Θεὸς ὁ Θεὸς | νεκρῶν, ἀλλὰ ζώντων.’ <sup>33</sup> Καὶ ἀκούσαντες οἱ ὄχλοι ἐξεπλήσσοντο ἐπὶ τῇ διδαχῇ αὐτοῦ.

<sup>34</sup> Οἱ δὲ Φαρισαῖοι, ἀκούσαντες ὅτι ἐφίμωσε τοὺς Σαδδουκαίους, συνήχθησαν ἐπὶ τὸ αὐτό. <sup>35</sup> καὶ ἐπρώτησεν εἰς ἐξ αὐτῶν νομικὸς, πειράζων αὐτὸν ‘καὶ λέγων, | <sup>36</sup> Διδάσκαλε, ποία ἐντολὴ μεγάλη ἐν τῷ νόμῳ;’ <sup>37</sup> Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς | ἔφη | αὐτῷ, <sup>38</sup> Ἀγαπήσεις Κύριον τὸν Θεόν σου, <sup>39</sup> ἐν ὅλῃ τῇ καρδίᾳ σου, καὶ | ἐν ὅλῃ τῇ ψυχῇ σου, καὶ ἐν ὅλῃ τῇ διανοίᾳ σου.’ <sup>38</sup> αὕτη ἐστὶ ἡ πρώτη καὶ μεγάλη | ἐντολή. <sup>39</sup> δευτέρα δὲ ὁμοία αὐτῇ, Ἀγαπήσεις τὸν πλησίον σου ὡς σεαυτόν.’ <sup>40</sup> ἐν ταύταις ταῖς δυσὶν ἐντολαῖς ὅλος ὁ νόμος ἢ καὶ οἱ προφῆται. |

<sup>41</sup> Συναγγόμενον δὲ τῶν Φαρισαίων, ἐπρώτησεν αὐτοὺς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, <sup>42</sup> λέγων, ‘Τί ὑμῖν δοκεῖ περὶ τοῦ Χριστοῦ; τίνας υἱὸς ἐστι; Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, ‘Τοῦ Δαυὶδ.’

† Alex. = καὶ λέγ. * Alex. = Ἰησοῦς. * Rec. ἰπιν. * Const. ἐν ὅλῃ καρδίᾳ σου καὶ. * Alex. ἡ μεγάλη καὶ πρώτη. * Alex. κρίματα καὶ οἱ προφῆται.

GENEVA — 1557.

rection) and asked hym. <sup>24</sup> Saying, Master, Moses bad, if a man dye, hauyngc no chyldren, that his brother mary his wyfe, & raise vp seede vnto his brother.

<sup>25</sup> There were with vs seuen brethren, & the fyrst maryed a wyfe, and deceased without yssue, and left his wyfe vnto his brother. <sup>26</sup> Likewise also the second, and the thyrd, vnto the seuenth. <sup>27</sup> Last of all the woman dyed also. <sup>28</sup> Now in the resurrection, whose wyfe shal she be of the seuen? For all had her.

<sup>29</sup> Iesus answered and sayd vnto them, Ye are deceaued, not vnderstanding the Scriptures, nor the power of God. <sup>30</sup> For in the resurrection, men neither mary wyues, nor wyues are bestowed in marriage: but are as the Angels of God in heauen. <sup>31</sup> As touchyng the resurrection of the dead, haue ye not read what is sayd vnto you of God, which sayth, <sup>32</sup> I am Abrahams God, and Isaacs God, and the God of Iacob? God is not the God of the dead, but of the lyuing. <sup>33</sup> And when the people hearde that, they were astonied at his doctrine.

<sup>34</sup> When the Pharises had heard, how that he had put the Sadduces to silence, vpon that they drewe together, <sup>35</sup> And one of them which was an expounder of the lawe, asked him a question, temtyng him, and saying, <sup>36</sup> Master, which is the chiefe commandement in the law? <sup>37</sup> Iesus sayd to him, Loue the Lord thy God, with all thy hart, with all thy soule, and with all thy mynde. <sup>38</sup> This is the fyrst and the chiefe commandement. <sup>39</sup> And the second is like vnto this. Loue thine neyghbour as thy selfe. <sup>40</sup> In these two commandementes, hangeth all the Lawe and the Prophetes.

<sup>41</sup> While the Pharises were gathered together, Iesus asked them, <sup>42</sup> Saying, What thynke ye of Christ? Whose sonne is he? They sayd vnto him, the sonne of and asked him, <sup>24</sup> saying, Maister, Moyses said, If a man die not having a childe, that his brother marie his wyfe, and raise vp seede to his brother.

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>25</sup> And there vvere vnyth vs seuen brethren: and the first hauing maried a wyfe, died: and not hauing issue, left his wyfe to his brother. <sup>26</sup> In like maner the second and the third euen to the seuenth. <sup>27</sup> And last of all the vwoman died also. <sup>28</sup> In the resurrection therfore vvhose wyfe of the seuen shal she be? for they al had her.

<sup>29</sup> And Iesus answering, said to them, You do erre, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the povver of God. <sup>30</sup> For in the resurrection neither shal they marie nor be maried: but are as the Angels of God in heauen. <sup>31</sup> And concerning the resurrection of the dead, haue you not read that vvhich vvas spoken of God sayyng to you, <sup>32</sup> I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Iacob? He is not God of the dead, but of the lyuing. <sup>33</sup> And the multitudes hearing it, marueled at his doctrine.

<sup>34</sup> But the Pharisees hearing that he had put the Sadduces to silence, came together: <sup>35</sup> and one of them a doctor of lawe asked of him, temptyng him, <sup>36</sup> Maister, vvhich is the great commandement in the law? <sup>37</sup> Iesus said to him, Thou shalt loue the lord thy God from thy whole hart, and with thy whole soul, and with thy whole minde. <sup>38</sup> This is the greatest and the first commandement. <sup>39</sup> And the second is like to this, Thou shalt loue thy neyghbour as thyself. <sup>40</sup> On these two commandementes dependeth the vvhole Lawe and the Prophets.

<sup>41</sup> And the Pharisees being assembled, Iesus asked them <sup>42</sup> saying, What is your opinion of Christ? Whose sonne is

AUTHORISED — 1611.

rection, and asked him, <sup>24</sup> Saying, Master, Moses said, If any man die, hauing no children, his brother shall marrie his wyfe, and raise vp seed vnto his brother.

<sup>25</sup> Now there were with vs seuen brethren, and the first when he had maried a wyfe, deceased, and hauing no issue, left his wyfe vnto his brother. <sup>26</sup> Likewise the second also, and the third, vnto the seuenth. <sup>27</sup> And last of all the woman died also. <sup>28</sup> Therefore, in the resurrection, whose wyfe shall she be of the seuen? for they all had her.

<sup>29</sup> Iesus answered, and said vnto them, Ye do erre; not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God. <sup>30</sup> For in the resurrection they neither marry, nor are giuen in marriage, but are as the Angels of God in heauen. <sup>31</sup> But as touching the resurrection of the dead, haue ye not read that which was spoken vnto you by God, saying, <sup>32</sup> I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Iacob? God is not the God of the dead, but of the lyuing. <sup>33</sup> And when the multitude heard this, they were astonied at his doctrine.

<sup>34</sup> But when the Pharises had heard that he had put the Sadduces to silence, they were gathered together. <sup>35</sup> Then one of them, which was a Lawyer, asked him a question, temptyng him, and saying, <sup>36</sup> Master, which is the great Commandement in the Law? <sup>37</sup> Iesus said vnto him, Thou shalt loue the Lord thy God with all thy hart, and with all thy soule, and with all thy minde. <sup>38</sup> This is the first and great Commandement. <sup>39</sup> And the second is like vnto it, Thou shalt loue thy neighbour as thy selfe. <sup>40</sup> On these two Commandementes hang all the Law and the Prophets.

<sup>41</sup> While the Pharises were gathered together, Iesus asked them, <sup>42</sup> saying, What thinke yee of Christ? whose sonne is hee? They say vnto him, The sonne

<sup>43</sup> Λέγει αὐτοῖς, <sup>44</sup> Πῶς οὖν Δαυὶδ ἐν πνεύματι κύριον αὐτὸν καλεῖ; λέγων, <sup>45</sup> "Εἶπεν ὁ κύριος τῷ κυρίῳ μου, Κάθου ἐκ δεξιῶν μου, ἕως ἂν θῶ τοὺς ἐχθρούς σου ὑποπόδιον τῶν ποδῶν σου." <sup>46</sup> Εἰ οὖν Δαυὶδ καλεῖ αὐτὸν κύριον, πῶς υἱὸς αὐτοῦ ἔστι; <sup>46</sup> Καὶ οὐδεὶς ἐδύνατο αὐτῷ ἀποκριθῆναι λόγον· οὐδὲ ἐτόλμησέ τις ἀπ' ἐκείνης τῆς ἡμέρας ἐπερωτῆσαι αὐτὸν οὐκέτι.

XXIII. Τότε ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐλάλησε τοῖς ὄχλοις καὶ τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, λέγων, <sup>1</sup> Ἐπὶ τῆς Μωσείως καθέδρας ἐκάθισαν οἱ γραμματεῖς καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι· <sup>2</sup> πάντα οὖν ὅσα ἂν εἴπωσιν ὑμῖν τηρεῖν, <sup>3</sup> τηρεῖτε καὶ ποιεῖτε· κατὰ δὲ τὰ ἔργα αὐτῶν μὴ ποιεῖτε· λέγουσι γὰρ καὶ οὐ ποιοῦσι. <sup>4</sup> δεσμεύουσι γὰρ φορτία βαρέα καὶ δυσβάστακτα, καὶ ἐπιτιθέασιν ἐπὶ τοὺς ὤμους τῶν ἀνθρώπων· τῷ δὲ δακτύλῳ αὐτῶν οὐ θέλουσι κινήσαι αὐτά. <sup>5</sup> πάντα δὲ τὰ ἔργα αὐτῶν ποιοῦσι πρὸς τὸ

<sup>2</sup> Alex. + ὁ Ἰησοῦς.

<sup>3</sup> Alex. ὑποκόσῳ.

<sup>4</sup> Alex. ἀποκριθῆναι αὐτῷ.

<sup>5</sup> Alex. = τηρεῖν.

<sup>6</sup> Alex. ποιεῖς σ. ποιῶσαι καὶ τηρεῖτε.

<sup>7</sup> Alex. εἰ.

<sup>8</sup> Alex. αὐτοὶ εἰ τῷ δακτύλῳ αὐτῶν.

WICLIFF—1380.

is he? thei seiden to hym of danith, <sup>43</sup> he seith to hem/ hou thanne dauith in spirit clepith hym lord, & seith? <sup>44</sup> the lord seide to my lorde: sitte on my riȝthalf, til I putte thin enemies a stool of this feet.

<sup>45</sup> thanne if dauith clepith hym lord: hou is he his sone? <sup>46</sup> ⁊ no man myȝte answer a word to hym! nether ony man was hardie fro that day, to axe hym more.

23. THANNE ihesus spak to the people: ⁊ to hise discipils <sup>2</sup> ⁊ seide, on the chaire of moises: scribis ⁊ phariseis han sette, <sup>3</sup> therfor kepe ⁊c do ⁊c alle thingis what euer thingis thei seien to you, but nyle ⁊c do aftir her werkis/ for thei seien ⁊c doen not, <sup>4</sup> ⁊ thei bynden greuous chargis ⁊ that moun not be born, ⁊ putten on schuldris of men: but with her fynger thei wole not moue hem.

<sup>5</sup> therfore thei doen alle her werkis, that thei be sciен of men, for thiȝ drawn abroad her filateries, ⁊c magnifyen hemmes, <sup>6</sup> and thei louen the first sittinge placis in sopers, ⁊c the first chaires in synagogis: <sup>7</sup> ⁊ salutiuous in chepyng, ⁊ to be clepid of men maistir.

<sup>8</sup> but nyle ⁊c be clepid maistir for oon is zoure maistir, ⁊c alle ⁊c ben bretheren, <sup>9</sup> ⁊ nyle ⁊c clepe to you a fadir on erthe, for oon is zoure fadir that is in heuens.

<sup>10</sup> nether be ⁊c clepid maistris for oon is zoure maistir crist, <sup>11</sup> he that is grettest among you: schal be zoure minystrer, <sup>12</sup> for he that hijeth hym silf: schal be mekid, and he that mekith hym silf: schal be enhaused.

<sup>13</sup> But wo to you scribis ⁊ phariseis ipocritis, that closen the kyngdom of heuencis bifore men, ⁊c entre not: neither suffren

TYNDALE—1534.

of David. <sup>43</sup> He sayde vnto them: how then doeth David in spirite, call him Lorde sayinge? <sup>44</sup> The Lorde sayde to my Lorde, syt on my riȝht honde: tyll I make thyne enemyes thy fote stole. <sup>45</sup> Yf David call him Lorde: how is he then his sonne? <sup>46</sup> And none coude answer him ageyne one worde: nether durste eny from that daye forth, axe him eny moo questions.

23. THEN spake Iesus to the people, and to his disciples <sup>2</sup> sayinge. The Scribes and the Phariseis sit in Moses seate. <sup>3</sup> All therfore what soever they byd you observe, that observe and do: but after their workes do not: For they saye, and do not. <sup>4</sup> Ye and they bynde hevy burthens and grevous to be borne, and ley them on mennes shuldres: but they them selues will not heave at them with one of their fyngers. <sup>5</sup> All their workes they do, for to be seene of men. They set abroad their philateries, and make large borders on their garments, <sup>6</sup> and love to sit vppermooste at feastes, and to have the chefe seates in the synagoges, <sup>7</sup> and greetings in the marketes, and to be called of men Rabbi.

<sup>8</sup> But ye shall not suffre youre selves to be called Rabi. For one is youre mastery, that is to wyt Christ, and all ye are bretheren. <sup>9</sup> And call no man your father vpon the erth, for there is but one youre father, and he is in heuen. <sup>10</sup> Be not called masters, for there is but one youre master, and he is Christ. <sup>11</sup> He that is greatest amonge you, shalbe youre seruaunte. <sup>12</sup> But whosoever exaltech him silfe, shalbe brought lowe. And he that humbleth him silfe, shalbe exalted.

<sup>13</sup> Wo be vnto you Scribes and Pharises/ ypocritis, for ye shutte vp the kyngdome of heven before men: ye youre selves goo not in, nether suffre ye them that

CRANMER—1539.

Dauid. <sup>43</sup> He sayde vnto them how then doeth Dauid in sprete, call him Lorde sayinge: <sup>44</sup> The Lorde sayde vnto my Lorde syt thou on my ryȝht hande tyll I make thyne enemyes thy fote stoole. <sup>45</sup> If Dauid then, call him Lorde, how is he then his sonne? <sup>46</sup> And no man was able to answer him anye thing: nether durste eny man (from that daye forth) aske him any moo questions.

23. THEN spake Iesus to the people, and to his disciples, <sup>2</sup> saying: The Scribes and the Phariseis syt in Moses seate. <sup>3</sup> All therfore whatsoeuer they bid you observe, that observe and do: but do not ye after their workes: for they saye, and do not. <sup>4</sup> Ye thei bynde together hevy burthens and grevous to be borne, and laye them on mennes shoulers: but they them selues will not heave at them with one of their fyngers. <sup>5</sup> All their workes do they for the intent, that they maie be seene of men. They set abroad their philateries, and make large the borders of their garments, <sup>6</sup> and loue the vppermoste seates at feastes, and to sytt in the chefe place in counceles, <sup>7</sup> and grettynges in the markett, and to be called of men, Rabbi.

<sup>8</sup> But be not ye called Rabbi. For one is youre master, euen Christ, and all ye are bretheren. <sup>9</sup> And call no man your father vpon the crth, for one is your father which is in heauen. <sup>10</sup> Nether be ye called masters, for one is youre master, euen Christ. <sup>11</sup> He that is greatest amonge you, shalbe youre seruaunt. <sup>12</sup> But whosoever exaltech him selfe shalbe brought lowe. And he that humbleth him selfe, shalbe exalted.

<sup>13</sup> Wo vnto you Scribes and Pharises, ye ypocrites, for ye shutte vp the kyngdome of heauen before men ye nether go in your selues, nether suffre ye them that come, to enter in.

clepith, calleth, nyle, not. moun, may or con. hemmes, borders, fringes or flources. chepyng, market. hijeth, exaltech, mekid, humbled.

θεαθῆναι τοῖς ἀνθρώποις. πλατύνουσι <sup>9</sup> δὲ | τὰ φυλακτῆρια αὐτῶν, καὶ μεγαλύνουσι
 τὰ κράσπεδα τῶν ἱματίων αὐτῶν <sup>6</sup> φιλοῦσι <sup>h</sup> τε | τὴν πρωτοκλισίαν ἐν τοῖς
 δείπνοις, καὶ τὰς πρωτοκαθεδρίας ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς, <sup>7</sup> καὶ τοὺς ἀσπασμοὺς ἐν
 ταῖς ἀγοραῖς, καὶ καλεῖσθαι ὑπὸ τῶν ἀνθρώπων, ῥαββί, <sup>i</sup> ῥαββί. | <sup>8</sup> ἡμεῖς δὲ μὴ
 κληθῆτε, ῥαββί· εἰς γὰρ ἐστὶν ἡμῶν ὁ καθηγητῆς, <sup>k</sup> ὁ Χριστός· | πάντες δὲ ἡμεῖς ἀδελφοί ἐστε. <sup>9</sup> καὶ πατέρα μὴ καλέσητε ἡμῶν ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς· εἰς γὰρ ἐστὶν ὁ πατὴρ ἡμῶν, ὁ ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς. <sup>10</sup> μηδὲ κληθῆτε καθηγηταί· <sup>l</sup> εἰς γὰρ ἡμῶν
 ἐστὶν ὁ καθηγητῆς, | ὁ Χριστός. <sup>11</sup> ὁ δὲ μείζων ἡμῶν ἐστὶν ἡμῶν διάκονος.
<sup>12</sup> ὅστις δὲ ὑψώσει ἑαυτὸν, ταπεινωθήσεται· καὶ ὅστις ταπεινώσει ἑαυτὸν, ὑψω-
 θήσεται. <sup>13</sup> <sup>m</sup> Οὐαὶ δὲ ὑμῖν, καὶ γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταί, <sup>n</sup> ὅτι κατεσθίετε
 τὰς οἰκίας τῶν ἡρώων, καὶ προβάσεις μακρὰ προσερχόμενοι διὰ τοῦτο λήψεσθε

† Alex. γάρ. <sup>h</sup> Alex. εἰ. <sup>i</sup> Alex. = ῥαββί. <sup>k</sup> Alex. = ὁ Χριστός. <sup>l</sup> Alex. ὅτι καθηγητῆς ἡμῶν ἴστων εἰς. <sup>m</sup> Const. Οὐαὶ . . . ὅτι κατεσθίετε . . .
 κριμα pon. ante oīai . . . ὅτι κλείετε . . . εἰσελθεῖν. sed rec. pon. post. <sup>n</sup> Alex. = ὅτι κατεσθίετε usque ad ὑποκριταί.

GENEVA — 1557.

David. <sup>43</sup> He said vnto them, How then doth David in spirit cal him Lord, saying, <sup>44</sup> The Lord said to my Lord, syt on my right hand tyl, I make thyne enemies thy fote stole? <sup>45</sup> If Dauid call hym Lord, how is he then his sonne? <sup>46</sup> And none could answere him agayne one worde, nether durst any from that day forth, aske him any mo questions.

23. THEN spake Iesus to the people, and to his disciples, <sup>2</sup> Saying, The Scribes and the Pharises syt in Moses seat. <sup>3</sup> All therfore what soeuer they byd you obserue, that obserue and do: but after their workes do not: For they say, and do not. <sup>4</sup> For they bynde heauy burthens, and greuous to be borne, and lay them on mens shoulders, but they them selues wyl not heaue at them with one of theyr fingers. <sup>5</sup> Al theyr workes they do for to be seene of men. For they make theyr Phylacteries broad, and make longe the skirtes of theyr garmentes. <sup>6</sup> And loue to syt in the worthiest place at feastes, and to haue the chiefe seates in the assembles. <sup>7</sup> And gretynge in the markettes, and to be called of men Rabbi, Rabbi. <sup>8</sup> But be not ye called Rabbi: For one is your master, that is to wyt, Christe, and all ye are brethren. <sup>9</sup> And call noman your father, vpon the earth, for ther is but one your Father, and he is in heauen. <sup>10</sup> Be not called Doctors, for ther is but one your Doctor, and he is Christe. <sup>11</sup> But he that is greatest among you, let him be your seruant. <sup>12</sup> For whosoever wyl exalte hym self, shalbe brought low. And he that wil humble hym self, shalbe exalted.

<sup>13</sup> Wo therfore be vnto you Scribes and Pharises, hypocrites, because ye shut vp the kyngdome of heauen before men: for ye yoursclues go not in, nether suffre ye them that enter in.

RHEIMS — 1582.

he? They say to him, Dauids. <sup>43</sup> He saith to them, Howv then doth Dauid in spirit cal him Lord, saying, <sup>44</sup> The Lord said to my Lord, sitte on my right hand, until I put thine enemies the fote stole of thy feece? <sup>45</sup> If Dauid therfore call him Lord, howv is he his sonne? <sup>46</sup> And no man could ansvver him a vvord: neither durst any man from that day aske him any more.

23. THEN Iesus spake to the multitude and to his disciples, <sup>2</sup> saying, Vpon the chaire of Moyses haue sitten the Scribes and the Pharisees. <sup>3</sup> All things therfore vvhatsoever they shal say to you, obserue ye and doe ye: but according to theyr vvorkes doe ye not, for they say and doe not. <sup>4</sup> For they binde heauy burdens & importable: and put them vpon mens shoulders: but vvith a finger of their ovvne they vvil not moue them.

<sup>5</sup> But they doe al theyr vvorkes, for to be seene of men. for they make brode theyr phylacteries, and enlarge theyr fringes. <sup>6</sup> And they loue the first places at suppers, and the first chaires in the Synagogs, <sup>7</sup> and salutations in the market-place, and to be called of men, Rabbi. <sup>8</sup> But be not ye called Rabbi, for one is your maister, and al you are brethren. <sup>9</sup> And call none father to your self vpon earth: for one is your father, he that is in heauen. <sup>10</sup> Neither be ye called maisters: for one is your maister, Christ. <sup>11</sup> He that is the greater of you, shal be your seruiter. <sup>12</sup> And he that exalteth him self, shal be humbled: and he that humbleth him self, shal be exalted.

<sup>13</sup> But vvto to you Scribes & Pharisees, hypocrites: because you shut the kyngdome of heauen before men. For your selues do not enter in: and those that are going in, you suffer not to enter.

AUTHORISED — 1611.

of David. <sup>43</sup> He saith vnto them, How then doth Dauid in spirit cal him Lord, saying, <sup>44</sup> The Lord said vnto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool? <sup>45</sup> If Dauid then call him Lord, how is he his sonne? <sup>46</sup> And no man was able to answer him a word, neither durst any man (from that day forth) aske him any mo questions.

23. THEN spake Iesus to the multitude, and to his disciples. <sup>2</sup> Saying, The Scribes and the Pharisees sit in Moses seat: <sup>3</sup> All therfore vvhatsoever they bid you obserue, that obserue and doe, but doe not ye after their workes: for they say, and doe not. <sup>4</sup> For they binde heauy burdens, and grieuous to be borne, and lay them on mens shoulders, but they themselues will not moue them with one of their fingers. <sup>5</sup> But all their workes they doe, for to be seene of men: they make broad their phylacteries, and enlarge the borders of their garmentes, <sup>6</sup> and loue the vppermost roumes at feastes, and the chiefe seats in the Synagogs, <sup>7</sup> And greetings in the markets, and to be called of men, Rabbi, Rabbi. <sup>8</sup> But be not ye called Rabbi: for one is your Master, euen Christ: and all ye are brethren. <sup>9</sup> And call no man your father vpon the earth: for one is your father which is in heauen. <sup>10</sup> Neither be ye called masters: for one is your Master, euen Christ. <sup>11</sup> But hee that is greatest among you, shall be your seruant. <sup>12</sup> And whosoever shall exalt himselfe, shall be abased: and he that shall humble himselfe, shall be exalted.

<sup>13</sup> But woe vnto you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites: for yee shut vp the kyngdome of heauen against men: For yee neither goe in your selues, neither suffer ye them that are entring, to goe

περισσότερον κρίμα. <sup>14</sup> Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταὶ, ὅτι κλείετε τὴν βασιλείαν τῶν οὐρανῶν ἔμπροσθεν τῶν ἀνθρώπων· ὑμεῖς γὰρ οὐκ εἰσέρχεσθε, οὐδὲ τοὺς εἰσερχομένους ἀφίετε εἰσελθεῖν. <sup>15</sup> Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταὶ, ὅτι περιάγετε τὴν θάλασσαν καὶ τὴν ξηρὰν, ποιῆσαι ἕνα προσήλυτον, καὶ ὅταν γένηται, ποιεῖτε αὐτὸν υἱὸν γεέννης διπλότερον ὑμῶν. <sup>16</sup> Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, ὀδηγοὶ τυφλοῖ, οἱ λέγοντες, Ὅς ἂν ὁμῶσῃ ἐν τῷ ναῷ, οὐδὲν ἔστιν ὅς δ' ἂν ὁμῶσῃ ἐν τῷ χρυσῷ τοῦ ναοῦ, ὀφείλει. <sup>17</sup> Μωροὶ καὶ τυφλοί· τίς γὰρ μείζων ἔστιν, ὁ χρυσός, ἢ ὁ ναὸς ὁ ἀγιάζων τὸν χρυσόν; <sup>18</sup> καί, Ὅς ἔαν ὁμῶσῃ ἐν τῷ θυσιαστηρίῳ, οὐδὲν ἔστιν ὅς δ' ἂν ὁμῶσῃ ἐν τῷ δώρῳ τῷ ἐπάνω αὐτοῦ, ὀφείλει. <sup>19</sup> Μωροὶ καὶ τυφλοί· τί γὰρ μείζων, τὸ δῶρον, ἢ τὸ θυσιαστήριον τὸ ἀγιάζον τὸ δῶρον; <sup>20</sup> ὁ οὖν ὁμῶσας ἐν τῷ θυσιαστηρίῳ ὀμνύει ἐν αὐτῷ καὶ ἐν πᾶσι τοῖς ° Alex. ἀν.

WICLIȚ—1380.

men entryng for to entre, <sup>14</sup> wo to you scribis & phariseis ipocritis: that eten the housis of widewis & preien bi long preier for this thing ȝe schulen take more doom.

<sup>15</sup> Wo to you scribis & phariseis ipocritis that goen aboute the see & the lond: to make a proselite, that is conuertid to youre ordre, and whanne he is made: ȝe maken hym a sone of helle double more thanne ȝe ben.

<sup>16</sup> Wo to you blynde leders that seyn, whoeuer swerith bi the temple of god: it is no thing; but he that swerith in the gold of the temple is detour, <sup>17</sup> ȝe folis & blynde for what is gretter: the gold or the temple that halowith the gold? <sup>18</sup> & who euer swerith in the autir, it is no thing; but he that swerith in the gifte, that is on the autir: owith, <sup>19</sup> blynde men, for what is more: the gifte or the autir that halowith the gifte? <sup>20</sup> therefore he that swerith in the autir: swerith in it, & in alle thingis that ben thereon, <sup>21</sup> and he that swerith in the temple: swerith in it & in hym that dwelith in the temple, <sup>22</sup> and he that swerith in heuene: swerith in the trone of god, & in hym that sittith thereon.

<sup>23</sup> wo to you scribis and phariseis ipocritis: that tithen mynte anes & comyne & han lefte tho thingis that ben of more charge of the lawe, doom & merci & feith; and it bihold to do these thingis & not to leue tho <sup>24</sup> blynde leders clenescne a gnat, & swolowynge a camel.

<sup>25</sup> wo to you scribis & phariseis ipocritis that clenese the cuppe & plater with oute forth; but withynne ȝe ben ful of rauene & vnclennesse; <sup>26</sup> thou blynde pharisee clenese thou the cuppe & the plater with oute forth, that that is with oute forth, be made clene.

<sup>27</sup> wo to you scribis and phariseis ipocritis: that ben like to sepulchris whitid,

TYNDALE — 1534.

come, to enter in. <sup>14</sup> Wo be vnto you Scribes and Pharises ypocrites: ye deuoure widows houses, and that vnder a pretence of loure of praying longe prayers: wherefore ye shall receave greater damnacion.

<sup>15</sup> Wo be vnto you Scribes and Pharises ypocrites, which compasse see and londe, to bringe one in to youre belefe: and when he ys brought, ye make him two folde more the chyld of hell, then ye youre selues are.

<sup>16</sup> Wo be vnto you blynd guides, which saye whoesoever swere by the temple; it is no thing: but whoesoever swere by the golde of the temple, he offendeth. <sup>17</sup> Ye folcs and blinde? whether is greater, the golde, or the temple that sanctifieth the golde. <sup>18</sup> And whoesoever sweareth by the altire, it is no thinge: but whoesoever sweareth by the offeringe that lyeth on the altire, offendeth. <sup>19</sup> Ye folcs and blinde: whether is greater the offeringe, or the altire which sanctifieth the offeringe? <sup>20</sup> Whoesoever therfore sweareth by the altire, sweareth by it, and by all that there on is. <sup>21</sup> And whoesoever sweareth by the temple, sweareth by it, and by hym that dwelleth therein. <sup>22</sup> And he that sweareth, by heuen, swereth by the seate of God and by hym that syteth ther on.

<sup>23</sup> Wo be to you Scribes and Pharises ypocrites, which tythe mynt, anynse and comen, and leaue the waygethyer matres of the lawe vndone: iudgement, mercy, and fayth. These ought ye to haue done, and not to haue lefte the othre vndone. <sup>24</sup> Ye blinde gydes which strayne out a gnat, and swalowe a cannyll.

<sup>25</sup> Wo be to you scribes and pharisees ypocrites, which make clene the vtter syde of the cuppe, and of the platter: but within they are full of brybery and excess. <sup>26</sup> Thou blinde pharisee, clenese fyrst, the ymne syde of the cup and platter, that the out syde of them maye be clene also.

<sup>27</sup> Wo be to you Scribes and Pharises ypocrites, for ye are lyke vnto paynted

CRANMER — 1539.

<sup>14</sup> Wo vnto you Scribes and pharises, ye ypocrites: for ye deuoure widows houses: and that vnder a pretence of longe prayer: therfore shall ye be the sorer punished.

<sup>15</sup> Wo be vnto you Scribes and Pharises, ye ypocrites: for ye compasse see and lande, to make one proselyte: and when he is become one, ye make him two folde more the chyld of hell, then ye youre selues are.

<sup>16</sup> Wo be vnto you ye blynde gydes, for ye saye: whoesoever doth swere by the temple: it is nothyng; but whoesoever sweareth by the golde of the temple, he is giltye. <sup>17</sup> Ye foolcs and blinde: For whether is greater: the gold, or the temple that sanctifieth the gold? <sup>18</sup> And whoesoever sweareth by the altire, it is nothyng, but whoesoever sweareth by the gift that is vpon it, he is giltye. <sup>19</sup> Ye folcs and blind, for whether is greater? the gift: or the altare that sanctifieth the gift? <sup>20</sup> Whoso therfore sweareth by the altire, sweareth by it, and by all thinges that are there on. <sup>21</sup> And whoso sweareth by the temple, sweareth by it, and by hym that dwelleth therein. <sup>22</sup> And he that sweareth by heauen, sweareth by the seate of God, and by hym that syteth thereon. <sup>23</sup> Wo vnto you Scribes and Pharises, ye ypocrites: For ye tyth mynt, and anyse, and comyn, and haue leaft the waightier matters of the lawe: iudgement, mercy, and fayth. These ought ye to laue done, and not to leaue the othre vndone. <sup>24</sup> Ye blynde gydes, which strayne out a gnat, and swalowe a Camell.

<sup>25</sup> Wo vnto you Scribes and pharisees, ye ypocrites: for ye make clene the vtter syde of the cuppe, and of the platter: but within they are full of brybery and excess. <sup>26</sup> Thou blynde pharisee, clenese fyrst that which is within the cup and platter, that the outeside of them maye be clene also.

<sup>27</sup> Wo vnto you Scribes and Pharises, ye ypocrites: for ye are lyke vnto painted

‘ἐπάνω αὐτοῦ·<sup>21</sup> καὶ ὁ ὁμόσας ἐν τῷ ναῷ ὀμνύει ἐν αὐτῷ καὶ ἐν τῷ<sup>p</sup> κατοικήσαντι |
 ‘αὐτόν·<sup>22</sup> καὶ ὁ ὁμόσας ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ ὀμνύει ἐν τῷ θρόνῳ τοῦ Θεοῦ καὶ ἐν τῷ
 ‘καθημένῳ ἐπάνω αὐτοῦ.<sup>23</sup> Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταί, ὅτι ‘ἀποδεκατοῦτε τὸ ἡδύσμον καὶ τὸ ἄνηθον καὶ τὸ κύμινον, καὶ ἀφήκατε τὰ
 ‘βαρύτερα τοῦ νόμου, τὴν κρίσιν καὶ<sup>q</sup> τὸν ἔλεον | καὶ τὴν πίστιν ταῦτα<sup>r</sup> ἔδει
 ‘ποιῆσαι, κἀκεῖνα μὴ ἀφιέναι.<sup>24</sup> ὀδηγοὶ τυφλοὶ, οἱ διυλίζοντες τὸν κόνωπα, τὴν
 ‘δὲ κἀμήλον καταπίνοντες.<sup>25</sup> Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταί, ‘ὅτι καθαρίζετε τὸ ἔξωθεν τοῦ ποτηρίου καὶ τῆς παροψίδος, ἔσωθεν δὲ γέμουσιν
 ‘ἐξ ἀρπαγῆς καὶ<sup>s</sup> ἀδικίας. |<sup>26</sup> Φαρισαῖε τυφλε, καθάρισον πρῶτον τὸ ἐντὸς τοῦ
 ‘ποτηρίου καὶ τῆς παροψίδος, ἵνα γένηται καὶ τὸ ἐκτὸς<sup>t</sup> αὐτῶν | καθαρόν.<sup>27</sup> Οὐαὶ
 ‘ὑμῖν, γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταί, ὅτι παρομοιάζετε τάφοις κεκοινα-

<sup>p</sup> Rec. κατοικούντι.

<sup>q</sup> Alex. τὸ ἔλεος.

<sup>r</sup> Alex. + ἐί.

<sup>s</sup> Const. ἀδικίας. Alex. & Rec. ἀρπαγίας.

<sup>t</sup> Alex. αὐτοῦ.

GENEVA — 1557.

<sup>14</sup> Wo be vnto you Scribes and Pharises, hypocrites: For ye deuoure widowes houses, and that vnder a colour of longe prayers. Wherefore ye shal receaue the greater damnation. <sup>15</sup> Wo be vnto you Scribes and Pharises, hypocrites, for ye compasse sea and land to bring one into your beliefe: and when he is brought, ye make him two folde more the childe of hell, then ye your selues are.

<sup>16</sup> Wo be vnto you blynde guydes, which say, Whosoever sweareth by the temple, it is nothing: but whosoever sweareth by the golde of the temple, he offendeth.

<sup>17</sup> Ye fooles and blynde, whether is greater, the gold, or the temple that sanctifieth the golde? <sup>18</sup> And whosoever sweareth by the altur, it is nothing: but whosoever sweareth by the offering that lyeth on the altur, offendeth. <sup>19</sup> Ye fooles and blynde: whether is greater, the offering, or the altur which sanctifieth the offering? <sup>20</sup> Whosoever therfore sweareth by the altur, sweareth by it, and by all that theron is. <sup>21</sup> And whosoever sweareth by the temple, sweareth by it, and by hym that dwelleth therein. <sup>22</sup> And he that sweareth by heauen, sweareth by the seate of God, and by hym that sytteth thereon.

<sup>23</sup> Wo be to you Scribes, and Pharises, Hypocrites, which tyeth mynt, annyse, and comyn, and leaue the wayghtyer matters of the lawe vndone: iudgement, mercie, and faith. These ought ye to haue done, and not to haue left the other vndone. <sup>24</sup> Ye blynde guydes, which strayne out a gnate, and swalow a cammel. <sup>25</sup> Wo be to you Scribes and Pharises, hypocrites, for ye make cleane the vtter side of the cup, & of the platter: but within they are ful of brybery and excesse. <sup>26</sup> Thou blynde Pharise, clesse fyrst the insyde of the cup & platter, that the out syde of them may be cleane also. <sup>27</sup> Wo be to you Scribes, and Pharises, hypocrites, for ye are lyke vnto paynted tombes,

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>14</sup> Wo to you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites: because you deuoure vni-dwidowes houses, praying long prayers, for this you shal receiue the greater iudgement.

<sup>15</sup> Wo to you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites: because you goe round about the sea and the land, to make one proselyte: and vwhen he is made, you make him the childe of hel double more then your selues.

<sup>16</sup> Wo to you blinde guides, that say, Whosoever shal svweare by the temple, it is nothing: but he that shal svweare by the gold of the temple, is bound. <sup>17</sup> Ye foolish and blinde, for vwhether is greater, the gold, or the temple that sanctifieth the gold? <sup>18</sup> And vwhosoever shal svweare by the altur, it is nothing: but vwhosoever shal svweare by the gift that is vpon it, is bound. <sup>19</sup> Ye blinde, for vwhether is greater, the gift, or the altur that sanctifieth the gift? <sup>20</sup> He therfore that svweareth by the altur, svweareth by it and by al things that are vpon it: <sup>21</sup> and vwhosoever shal svweare by the temple, svweareth by it and by him that dvwelleth in it: <sup>22</sup> and he that svweareth by heauen, svweareth by the throne of God and by him that sitteth thereon.

<sup>23</sup> Wo to you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites: because you tithe mint, and anise, and cummin, and haue left the vveightier things of the lavv, iudgement, and mercie, and faith. these things you ought to haue done, & not to haue omitted those. <sup>24</sup> Blinde guides, that straine a gnate, and vswallow a camell.

<sup>25</sup> Wo to you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites: because you make cleane that on the outside of the cuppe and dish: but vwithin you are ful<sup>r</sup> of rapine and vnclannes. <sup>26</sup> Thou blinde Pharisee, first make cleane the inside of the cuppe and the dish, that the outside may become cleane.

<sup>27</sup> Wo to you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites: because you are like to vvhitened

AUTHORISED — 1611.

in. <sup>14</sup> Woe vnto you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites: for ye deuoure widowes houses, and for a pretence make long prayer; therefore ye shall receive the greater damnation. <sup>15</sup> Woe vnto you Scribes and Pharises, hypocrites; for ye compasse Sea and land to make one Proselyte, and when hee is made, ye make him two fold more the childe of hell then your selues. <sup>16</sup> Woe vnto you, ye blind guides, which say, Whosoever shall sweare by the Temple, it is nothing: but whosoever shall sweare by the gold of the Temple, he is a debter. <sup>17</sup> Ye fooles and blind: for whether is greater, the gold or the Temple that sanctifieth the gold? <sup>18</sup> And whosoever shall sweare by the Altar, it is nothing: but whosoever sweareth by the gift that is vpon it, he is<sup>s</sup> guilty. <sup>19</sup> Ye fooles and blind: for whether is greater, the gift, or the Altar that sanctifieth the gift? <sup>20</sup> Who so therefore shall sweare by the Altar, sweareth by it, and by all things thereon. <sup>21</sup> And who so shall sweare by the Temple, sweareth by it, and by him that dwelleth therein. <sup>22</sup> And hee that shall sweare by heauen, sweareth by the throne of God, and by him that sitteth thereon.

<sup>23</sup> Woe vnto you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; for yee pay tithe of mint, and annise, and cummine, and haue omitted the weightier matters of the Law, iudgement, mercie and faith: these ought ye to haue done, and not to leaue the other vndone. <sup>24</sup> Ye blind guides, which straine at a gnate, and swallow a camel. <sup>25</sup> Woe vnto you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; for ye make cleane the outside of the cup, and of the platter, but within they are full of extortion and excesse. <sup>26</sup> Thou blind Pharisee, cleanse first that which is within the cup and platter, that the outside of them may be cleane also. <sup>27</sup> Woe vnto you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for yee are

<sup>r</sup> Or, a debter, or bound.

μένοις, οἵτινες ἔξωθεν μὲν φαίνονται ὠραίοι, ἔσωθεν δὲ γέμουσιν ὀστέων νεκρῶν καὶ πάσης ἀκαθαρσίας. <sup>28</sup> οὕτω καὶ ὑμεῖς ἔξωθεν μὲν φαίνεσθε τοῖς ἀνθρώποις δίκαιοι, ἔσωθεν δὲ ἡμεστοὶ ἐστε ἰποκρίσεως καὶ ἀνομίας. <sup>29</sup> Οὐαὶ ὑμῖν, γραμματεῖς καὶ Φαρισαῖοι, ὑποκριταί, ὅτι οἰκοδομεῖτε τοὺς τάφους τῶν προφητῶν, καὶ κοσμεῖτε τὰ μνημεῖα τῶν δικαίων, <sup>30</sup> καὶ λέγετε, Ἐὶ ἡμεθα ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις τῶν πατέρων ἡμῶν, οὐκ ἂν ἡμεθα κοινωνοὶ αὐτῶν ἐν τῷ αἵματι τῶν προφητῶν.
<sup>31</sup> ὥστε μαρτυρεῖτε ἑαυτοῖς, ὅτι υἱοὶ ἐστε τῶν φουνεσάντων τοὺς προφήτας. <sup>32</sup> καὶ ὑμεῖς πληρῶσατε τὸ μέτρον τῶν πατέρων ἡμῶν. <sup>33</sup> ὄφεις, γεννήματα ἐχιδνῶν, πῶς φύγητε ἀπὸ τῆς κρίσεως τῆς γεέννης; <sup>34</sup> Διὰ τοῦτο, ἰδοὺ, ἐγὼ ἀποστέλλω πρὸς ὑμᾶς προφήτας καὶ σοφοὺς καὶ γραμματεῖς· καὶ ἐξ αὐτῶν ἀποκτενεῖτε καὶ σταυρώσετε, καὶ ἐξ αὐτῶν μαστιγώσετε ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς ὑμῶν, καὶ διώξετε

* Alex. ἰστέ μίστα.

* Rec. ἡμιν.

WICLIF—1380.

whiche with oute forth, semen faire to men; but withinne thei ben full of bonis of deed men; & of al filthe. <sup>28</sup> so 3e with out forth, semen iust to men; but with ynne 3e ben ful of ipocrisie & wickidnesse.

<sup>29</sup> wo to 3ou scribis & phariseis ipocrites:
 that bidden sepulchris of profetis; & maken feire the birichis, of iust men <sup>30</sup> & seien, if we hadden ben in the dayes of oure fadiris:
 we schulden not haue be her felowis in the blood of profetis; <sup>31</sup> & so 3e ben in witnessinge to 3ou silf; that 3e ben the sones of hem that slouen the profetis;
<sup>32</sup> & fulfill 3e the mesure of 3oure fadiris;
<sup>33</sup> 3e culdris and eddris briddis; hou schulen 3e fle fro the doom of helle?

<sup>34</sup> therefore lo I sende to 3ou profetis & wise men & scribis, & of hem 3e schulen sle & crucifie & of hem 3e schulen scorge in 3oure synagogis, & schulen pursue fro cite in to cite; <sup>35</sup> that al the iust blood come on 3ou; that was sched on the erthe, fro the blood of iust abel, to the blood of zacharie the sone of barachie:
 whom 3e slouen bitwixe the temple and the altre; <sup>36</sup> trali I seye to 3ou, alle these thingis schulen come on this generacoun; <sup>37</sup> ierusalem ierusalem that sleest profetis & stonest hem that ben sent to thee; hou ofte wolde I gadir togidre thi children as an henne gadrih to gidre hir chickens vnder hir wengis, & thou woldest not; <sup>38</sup> in 3oure hous schal be left to 3ou deserte; and I seye to 3ou; 3e
 schulen not se me fro hennes forthe til 3e seien blessid is he that cometh in the name of the lord.

24. AND ihesus wente out of the temple; and hisse discipulis camen to hym; to schewe hym the bildyngis of the temple; & he answered & seide to hem;

TYNDALE—1534.

tombes which appere beautifull outwarde;
 but are within in full of deed bones and of al fylthynges. <sup>28</sup> So are ye, for outwarde ye appere righteous vnto men; when within, ye are full of ypocrisie and iniquite.

<sup>29</sup> Wo be vnto you Scribes and Pharises ypocrites; ye bylde the tombes of the Prophetes; and garnishe the sepulchres of the righteous, <sup>30</sup> and saye: Yf we had bene in the dayes of oure fathers; we wolde not have bene partners with them in the blood of the Prophetes. <sup>31</sup> So then ye be witnesses vnto youre selues; that ye are the chyldren of them which killed the prophetes. <sup>32</sup> Fulfill ye lyke wyse the measure of youre fathers. <sup>33</sup> Yee serperntes and generacion of vipers; how shuld ye scape the dampnacion of hell?

<sup>34</sup> Wherefore, beholde I sende vnto you, prophetes, wyse men and scribes, and of them ye shall kyl and crucifie; and of them ye shall scourge in youre synagoges; and persecute from cyte to cyte; <sup>35</sup> that vpon you maye come all the righteous bloude that was shedd vpon the erth;
 from the blood of righteous Abel; vnto
 the blood of zacharias the sone of Barachias; whom ye slewe betwene the temple and the altre. <sup>36</sup> Verely I say vnto you; all these thinges shall light vpon this generacion. <sup>37</sup> Hierusalem; Hierusalem which kyllest prophetes; and stonest them which are sent to the; how often wolde I have gadered thy chyldren to gether; as the henne gadreth her chickens vnder her wengis; but ye wolde not; <sup>38</sup> Beholde youre habitacion shalbe lefte vnto you desolate. <sup>39</sup> For I saye to you; ye shall not se me hence forthe; tyll that ye saye:
 blessed is he that commeth in the name of the Lorde.

24. AND Iesus went out and departed from the temple; and his disciples came to hym; for to shewe him the byldinge of the temple. <sup>2</sup> Iesus sayde vnto them;

CRANMER—1539.

sepulchres which in dede appere beautifull outwarde; but are within full of deed mens bones and of all fylthynges. <sup>28</sup> Euen so ye also; outwarde ye appere righteous vnto men; But within, ye are full of fayned-nesse and iniquyte.

<sup>29</sup> wo vnto you Scribes and Pharises, ye ypocrites; ye buylde the tombes of the Prophetes, and garnishe the sepulchres of the ryghteous, <sup>30</sup> and saye: yf we had bene in the dayes of oure fathers, we wolde not have bene partners wyth them in the bloude of the prophetes. <sup>31</sup> And so ye be wytnesses vnto youre selues, that ye are the chyldren of them which kylled the prophetes. <sup>32</sup> Fulfill ye like-wyse the mesure of youre fathers. <sup>33</sup> ye serperntes, ye generacion of vipers, how will ye scape the dammacion of hell?

<sup>34</sup> Wherefore beholde I sende vnto you prophetes and wyse men, and scribes, and some of them ye shall kyl and crucifye;
 and some of them shal ye scourge in youre synagoges, and persecute them from cyte to cyte; <sup>35</sup> that vpon you maye come all the ryghteous bloude which hath bene shedd vpon the erthe, from the bloude of ryghteous Abel, vnto the bloude of zacharie sone of Barachias, whom ye slewe betwene the temple and the altare. <sup>36</sup> Uerely
 I saye vnto you; all these thynges shall come vpon this generacion. <sup>37</sup> O ierusalem, ierusalem, thou that kyllest the prophetes, and stonest them which are sent vnto the; how often wolde I haue gathered thy chyldren together, euen as the henne gathereth hir chickens vnder her wynges, and ye wolde not? <sup>38</sup> Beholde youre house is lefte vnto you desolate. <sup>39</sup> For I saye vnto you; ye shall not se me hence forth, tyll that ye saye blessed is he, that cometh in the name of the lorde.

24. AND Iesus went out, and departed from the temple; and his disciples came to him, for to shewe him the byldynges of the temple. <sup>2</sup> Iesus sayde vnto them; Se bitulis, burial place. edris bimilis, addes s' broods, or offspring. seies, say.

‘ ἀπὸ πόλεως εἰς πόλιν <sup>35</sup> ὅπως ἔλθῃ ἐφ’ ὑμᾶς πᾶν αἷμα δίκαιον ἐκχυνόμενον ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, ἀπὸ τοῦ αἵματος Ἀβελ τοῦ δικαίου, ἕως τοῦ αἵματος Ζαχαρίου υἱοῦ Βαραχίου, ὃν ἐφονεύσατε μεταξύ τοῦ ναοῦ καὶ τοῦ θυσιαστηρίου. <sup>36</sup> ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἤξει ταῦτα πάντα ἐπὶ τὴν γενεὰν ταύτην. <sup>37</sup> Ἰερουσαλὴμ, Ἰερουσαλὴμ, ἡ ἀποκτείνουσα τοὺς προφήτας καὶ λιθοβολοῦσα τοὺς ἀπεσταλμένους πρὸς αὐτὴν, ποσάκις ἠθέλησα ἐπισυναγαγεῖν τὰ τέκνα σου, ὃν τρόπον <sup>2</sup> ἐπισυνάγει ὄρνις | τὰ νοσσία ἑαυτῆς ὑπὸ τὰς πτέρυγας, καὶ οὐκ ἠθελήσατε; <sup>38</sup> ἰδοὺ, ἀφίεται ὑμῖν ὁ οἶκος ὑμῶν ἔρημος. <sup>39</sup> λέγω γὰρ ὑμῖν, Οὐ μὴ με ἴδητε ἀπ’ ἄρτι, ἕως ἂν εἴπητε, εὐλογημένος ὁ ἐρχόμενος ἐν ὀνόματι Κυρίου.’

XXIV. Καὶ ἐξελθὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς <sup>1</sup> ἐπορεύετο ἀπὸ τοῦ ἱεροῦ· καὶ προσῆλθον οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ἐπιδείξαι αὐτῷ τὰς οἰκοδομὰς τοῦ ἱεροῦ. <sup>2</sup> ὁ δὲ <sup>3</sup> Ἰησοῦς | εἶπεν

<sup>1</sup> Rec. = ἴτι.

<sup>2</sup> Alex. ὄρνις ἐπισυνάγει.

<sup>3</sup> Alex. ἀπὸ τοῦ ἱεροῦ, ἱερούετο.

<sup>4</sup> Alex. ἀποραθίς.

GENEVA — 1557.

which appear beautiful outward : but are with in ful of dead mens bones, and of al fylthines. <sup>28</sup> So are ye, for outward ye appere ryghteous vnto men, when with in, ye are ful of hypocrisie and iniquitie.

<sup>29</sup> Wo be vnto you Scribes, and Pharises, hypocrites, For ye buyld the tombes of the Prophetes, & garnish the sepulchres of the righteous, <sup>30</sup> And sayd, If we had bene in the dayes of our fathers, we would not haue bene partners with them, in the blood of the Prophetes. <sup>31</sup> So then ye be wytnesses vnto your selues, that ye are the children of them which kylled the Propñetes. <sup>32</sup> Fulfil ye Ikywyse the measure of your fathers. <sup>33</sup> Ye serperntes, ye generations of vipers, how should ye escape the damnation of hel ?

<sup>34</sup> Wherefore, behold I send vnto you Prophets, & Wyse men, and Scribes, & of them ye shal kyl and crucifie : and of them shal ye scourge in your Synagoges, & persecute from citie to citie : <sup>35</sup> That vpon you may come all the righteous blood that was shed vpon the earth, from the blood of ryghteous Abel, vnto the blood of Zacharias the sonne of Barachias, whome ye slew betwene the temple and the altar. <sup>36</sup> Verely I say vnto you, all these thynges shal lyght vpon this generation. <sup>37</sup> Ierusalem, Ierusalem which kyllest the Prophetes, and stonest them which are sent to thee : How often would I haue gathered thy chyldren together, as the henne gathereth her chyckens vnder her wynges, and ye woulde not. <sup>38</sup> Beholde your habitation shalbe left vnto you desolate. <sup>39</sup> For I say vnto you, ye shal not see me henceforth til that ye say, Blessed is he that commeth in the name of the Lord.

24. AND Iesus went out and departed from the temple, & his disciples came to him, for to shewe him the buyldyng of the temple <sup>2</sup> And Iesus sayd vnto them,

RHEIMS — 1582.

sepulchres, which outwardly appere vnto men beautiful, but wvithin are ful of dead mens bones, and al filthines. <sup>28</sup> So you also outwardly in deede appere to men iust : but inwardly you are ful of hypocrisie and iniquitie.

<sup>29</sup> Wo to you Scribes and Pharisees, ye hypocrites : because you build the Prophets sepulchres, and garnish the monuments of iust men, <sup>30</sup> and say : If we had been in our fathers dayes, we had not been their felovnes in the blood of the Prophets. <sup>31</sup> Therefore you are a testimonie to your ovne selues, that you are the somnes of them that killed the Prophets. <sup>32</sup> And fil ye vp the measure of your fathers. <sup>33</sup> You serpents, vipers broodes, hovv vvil you flee from the iudgement of hel ? <sup>34</sup> Therefore behold I send vnto you Prophets and wise men and scribes, and of them you shal kil & crucifie, and of them you shal scourge in your Synagoges, and persecute from citie into citie : <sup>35</sup> that vpon you may come all the iust blood that vvas shed vpon the earth, from the blood of Abel the iust euen vnto the blood of Zacharias the sonne of Barachias, vvhom you murdered betwene the temple and the altar. <sup>36</sup> Amen I say to you, al these things shal come vpon this generation. <sup>37</sup> Ierusalem, Hierusalem, vvhich killest the Prophets, and stonest them that vvere sent to thee, hovv often vould I gather together thy children as the henne doth gather together her chickens vnder her vviings, and thou vvouldst not ? <sup>38</sup> Behold, your house shal be left desert to you. <sup>39</sup> For I say to you, you shal not see me from hence forth til you say, Blessed is he that commeth in the name of our Lord.

24. AND IESVS being gone out of the temple, vvent. And his disciples came to shew him the buildyngs of the temple. <sup>2</sup> And he ansvering said to them, Do you like vnto whitied sepulchres, which indeed appere beautiful outward, but are within full of dead mens bones, and of all vncleannesse. <sup>28</sup> Euen so, ye also outwardly appere righteous vnto men, but wvithin ye are full of hypocrisie and iniquitie. <sup>29</sup> Woe vnto you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, because ye build the tombes of the Prophets, and garnish the sepulchres of the righteous, <sup>30</sup> And say, If we had been in the dayes of our fathers, we would not haue been partakers with them in the blood of the Prophets. <sup>31</sup> Wherefore ye be witnesses vnto your selues, that ye are the children of them which killed the Prophets. <sup>32</sup> Fill ye vp then the measure of your fathers. <sup>33</sup> Yce serpernts, yee generation of vipers, How can ye escape the damnation of hell ?

AUTHORISED — 1611.

<sup>34</sup> Wherefore behold, I send vnto you Prophets, and wisemen, and Scribes, and some of them yee shall kill and crucifie, and some of them shall yee scourge in your synagogues, and persecute them from citie to citie : <sup>35</sup> That vpon you may come all the righteous blood shed vpon the earth, from the blood of righteous Abel, vnto the blood of Zacharias, sonne of Barachias, whom ye slew betwene the temple and the altar. <sup>36</sup> Verily I say vnto you, All these thynges shal come vpon this generation. <sup>37</sup> O Hierusalem, Hierusalem, thou that killest the Prophets, and stonest them which are sent vnto thee, how often would I haue gathered thy children together, euen as a hen gathereth her chickens vnder her wynges, and yee would not ? <sup>38</sup> Behold, your house is left vnto you desolate. <sup>39</sup> For I say vnto you, yee shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that commeth in the Name of the Lord.

24. AND Iesus went out, and departed from the temple, and his Disciples came to him, for to shew him the buildyngs of the temple. <sup>2</sup> And Iesus said vnto them, αὐτοῖς, <sup>α</sup> 'Οὐ| βλέπετε πάντα ταῦτα; ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, οὐ μὴ ἀφεθῆ| ὧδε λίθος

' ἐπὶ λίθον, ὃς οὐ <sup>β</sup> καταλυθήσεται.' <sup>3</sup> Καθημένου δὲ αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ τοῦ ὄρους τῶν
ἐλαιῶν, προσήλθον αὐτῷ οἱ μαθηταὶ κατ' ἰδίαν, λέγοντες, ' Εἰπέ ἡμῖν, πότε ταῦτα
' ἔσται; καὶ τί τὸ σημεῖον τῆς σῆς παρουσίας, καὶ <sup>γ</sup> τῆς| συντελείας τοῦ αἰῶνος;'
<sup>4</sup> Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ' Βλέπετε, μὴ τις ὑμᾶς πλανήσῃ. <sup>5</sup> πολλοὶ
' γὰρ ἐλεύσονται ἐπὶ τῷ ὀνόματί μου, λέγοντες, Ἐγὼ εἰμι ὁ Χριστός· καὶ πολλοὺς
' πλανήσουσι. <sup>6</sup> Μελλήσετε δὲ ἀκούειν πολέμους καὶ ἀκοὰς πολέμων ὁράτε, μὴ
' θρῆϊσθε· δεῖ γὰρ <sup>δ</sup> πάντα| γεγεῖσθαι. ἀλλ' οὐπῶ ἐστὶ τὸ τέλος. <sup>7</sup> Ἐγερθήσεται
' γὰρ ἔθνος ἐπὶ ἔθνος, καὶ βασιλεία ἐπὶ βασιλείαν· καὶ ἔσονται λιμοὶ <sup>ε</sup> καὶ λοιμοὶ|
' καὶ σεισμοὶ κατὰ τόπους. <sup>8</sup> πάντα δὲ ταῦτα ἀρχῆ| ὠδίνων. <sup>9</sup> Τότε παραδώσουσιν
' ὑμᾶς εἰς θλίψιν, καὶ ἀποκτενοῦσιν ὑμᾶς· καὶ ἔσεσθε μισούμενοι ὑπὸ πάντων

<sup>α</sup> Alex. = οὐ.<sup>β</sup> Rec. + μὴ.<sup>γ</sup> Alex. = τῆς.<sup>δ</sup> Alex. = πάντα.<sup>ε</sup> Alex. = καὶ λοιμοί.

WICLIIF—1380.

seen 3e alle these things? truli I seye to you, a stoon schal not be left here on a stoon, that ne it schal be distroied;

<sup>3</sup> And whanne he sate on the hil of olluete; hise discipulis camen to hym pnyuyl; & seiden seie to us whanne these things schulen be: & what tokene of thi comynge, & of the engynde of the world;
<sup>4</sup> and ihesus answered and seide to hem, loke 3e that no man disseye you; <sup>5</sup> for many schulen comen in my name; & schulen seie, I am crist; and thei schulen disseye many;

<sup>6</sup> for 3e schulen here bataillis; & openyouns of bataillis; se 3e that 3e be not disturbid; for it bihouith these things to be doen but not it is the ende; <sup>7</sup> folk schulen rise togidre agens folk & revme agens revme; & pestilencis & hungrys; and the erthe mouynge schulen be bi placis;
<sup>8</sup> and alle these ben bigynnyngis of sorwis;

<sup>9</sup> Thanne men schulen bitake 3ou in to tribulacion & schulen sle 3ou, & 3e schulen ben in hate to alle folk for my name; <sup>10</sup> & thanne many schulen ben schauldrin, and bitraie ech other; and thei schulen hate ech other; <sup>11</sup> & many false profetis schulen rise; & disseye many;
<sup>12</sup> & for wickidnesse schal be plenteuous;
the charite of many schal waxe cold; <sup>13</sup> but he that schal dwelle stable in to the outen ende schal be saaf. <sup>14</sup> And this gospel of the kyngdom schal be prechid in al the world; in witnessynge to alle folkis; & thanne the ende schal come;

<sup>15</sup> therefore whanne 3e seien the abhomynacion of discumfort, that is seide of danyel the profete, stondynge in the holy place; he that redith vnderstonde he; <sup>16</sup> thanne thei that ben in iulce; fle to the mountaynes; <sup>17</sup> & he that is in the hous roof; come not down, to take any thing of his hous; <sup>18</sup> and he that is in the feld; turne not agen to take his cote;
<sup>19</sup> but wo to hem that ben with childre, & uor-chien in the dayes; <sup>20</sup> prae 3e that agens, againt revme, realm. erthe mouynge, earth quakes. outen ende, uttermost. agen, again.

TYNDALE—1534.

se ye not all these things? Verely I saye vnto you: ther shall not be here lefte one stone vpon another, that shall not be east doun. <sup>3</sup> And as he sat vpon the mount Oliuete, his disciples came vnto hym secretly sayinge. Tell vs when these things shalbe? and what signe shalbe of thy comynge, and of the ende of the worlde?
<sup>4</sup> And Iesus answered, and sayde vnto them: take hede that no man deceaue
you. <sup>5</sup> For many shall come in my name
sayinge: I am Christ, and shall deceaue many. <sup>6</sup> Ye shall heare of warres, and of the fame of warres: but se that ye be not troubled. For all these things must come to passe, but the ende is not yet.
<sup>7</sup> For nacion shall ryse agaynste nacion, and realme agaynste realme: and ther shalbe pestilence, hunger and erth quakes in all quarters. <sup>8</sup> All these are the beginninges of sorowes.

<sup>9</sup> Then shall they put you to trouble, and shall kyl you: and ye shalbe hated of all nacions for my names sake. <sup>10</sup> And then shall many be offended, and shall betraye one another, and shall hate one the other. <sup>11</sup> And many false Prophetes shall aryse, and shall deceaue many.
<sup>12</sup> And because iniquite shall haue the vpper hande, the love of many shall abate. <sup>13</sup> But he that endureth to the ende, the same shalbe safe. <sup>14</sup> And this gladtynges of the kyngdome shalbe preched in all the worlde, for a witness vnto all nacions: and then shall the ende come. <sup>15</sup> When ye therfore shall se the abhominacion that betokeneth desolacion, spoken of by Daniell the Prophet, stonde in the holy place; let him that redeth it, vnderstonde it. <sup>16</sup> Then let them which be in lury, flye into the moun-taynes. <sup>17</sup> And let him which is on the house toppes, not come downe to fet any thinge out of his house. <sup>18</sup> Nether let him which is in the felde, retorne backe to feteche his clothes. <sup>19</sup> Wo be in those dayes to them that are with childre, and to them that reuee sucke. <sup>20</sup> But praye that

CRANMER—1539.

ye not all these things? Verely I saye vnto you, ther shall not be here lefte one stone vpon another, that shall not be destroyed And as he sat vpon mount Oliuete, his disciples came vnto him secretly, saying:
Tell vs: when shall these things be:
and what shalbe the token of thy comyn-ge, and of the ende of the world?
<sup>4</sup> And Iesus answered, and sayd vnto them: take hede, that no man deceaue
you. <sup>5</sup> For many shall come in my name,
sayinge: I am christ: and shall deceaue many. <sup>6</sup> Ye shall heare of warres, and tidynge of warres: be not troubled.
<sup>7</sup> For all (these thynges) must come to passe, but the ende is not yet. Nation shall ryse agaynst nacion, and realme agaynst realme: and ther shalbe pestilence, and hunger, and erthquakes in all places. <sup>8</sup> All these are the begynnynge of sorowes.

<sup>9</sup> Then shall they put you to trouble, and shall kyl you: and ye shalbe hated of all nacions for my names sake. <sup>10</sup> And then shall many be offended, and shall betraye one another, and shall hate one another. <sup>11</sup> And many false prophetes shall aryse, and shall deceaue many. <sup>12</sup> And because iniquite shall haue the vpper hand, the loue of many shall abate. <sup>13</sup> But he that endureth to the ende, the same shalbe safe. <sup>14</sup> And this gospel of the kyngdome shalbe preched in all the world, for a wytnes vnto all nacyns, and then shall the ende come.

<sup>15</sup> When ye therfore shall se the abhominacion of desolacion (that was, spoken of by Daniel the prophet) stande in the holy place; who so readeith it let him vnderstande. <sup>16</sup> Then lett them which be in lewry, flye into the mountaynes. <sup>17</sup> And let him which is on the house toppes, not come downe to fet any thinge out of his house. <sup>18</sup> Nether let him which is in the felde, retorne backe to feteche his clothes.
<sup>19</sup> Wo shalbe in those dayes to them that are with childre, and to them that geue sucke. <sup>20</sup> But praye ye that youre flight

<sup>8</sup> τῶν | ἐθνῶν διὰ τὸ ὄνομά μου. <sup>10</sup> καὶ τότε σκανδαλισθήσονται πολλοί, καὶ
<sup>9</sup> ἀλλήλους παραδόσουσι, καὶ μισήσουσιν ἀλλήλους· <sup>11</sup> καὶ πολλοὶ ψευδοπροφήται
<sup>10</sup> ἐγερθήσονται, καὶ πλανήσουσι πολλούς· <sup>12</sup> καὶ διὰ τὸ πληθυνθῆναι τὴν ἀνομίαν, <sup>11</sup> ψυγήσεται ἡ ἀγάπη τῶν πολλῶν· <sup>13</sup> ὁ δὲ ὑπομείνας εἰς τέλος, οὗτος σωθήσεται.
<sup>12</sup> <sup>14</sup> καὶ κηρυχθήσεται τοῦτο τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τῆς βασιλείας ἐν ὅλῃ τῇ οἰκουμένῃ, εἰς
<sup>13</sup> μαρτύριον πᾶσι τοῖς ἔθνεσι· καὶ τότε ἕξει τὸ τέλος. <sup>15</sup> Ὅταν οὖν ἴδητε τὸ
<sup>14</sup> βδέλυγμα τῆς ἐρημώσεως, τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ Δανιὴλ τοῦ προφήτου, ἐστὼς ἐν τόπῳ
<sup>15</sup> ἀγίῳ· (ὁ ἀναγινώσκων νοεῖτω) <sup>16</sup> τότε οἱ ἐν τῇ Ἰουδαίᾳ φευγέτωσαν ἐπὶ τὰ ὄρη·
<sup>16</sup> <sup>17</sup> ὁ ἐπὶ τοῦ δώματος μὴ <sup>9</sup> καταβαινέτω | ἄραι ἡ τὰ | ἐκ τῆς οἰκίας αὐτοῦ· <sup>15</sup> καὶ ὁ
<sup>17</sup> ἐν τῷ ἀγρῷ μὴ ἐπιστρεψάτω ὀπίσω ἄραι ἡ τὰ ἱμάτια | αὐτοῦ. <sup>19</sup> οὐαὶ δὲ ταῖς ἐν
<sup>18</sup> γαστρὶ ἐχούσαις καὶ ταῖς θηλαζούσαις ἐν ἐκείναις ταῖς ἡμέραις. <sup>20</sup> προσέχεσθε f Rec. = τῶν.

f Alex. καταβίτω.

a Rec. τ.

d Alex. τὸ ἱμάτιον.

GENEVA—1557.

See ye not all these thynges? Verely I say vnto you, there shal not be here left one stone vpon another, that shal not be cast downe. <sup>8</sup> And as he sate vpon the mount of Oliues, his disciples came vnto him them selues alone, saying, Telvs when these thynges shalbe, & what signe shalbe of thy coming, and of the ende of the worlde? <sup>4</sup> And Iesus answered, and sayd vnto them, Take hede that no man deceaue you, <sup>5</sup> For many shal come in my name, saying, I am Christe, and shal deceaue many. <sup>6</sup> And ye shal heare of warres, & of the rumors of warres: but see that ye be not troubled: For all these thynges must come to passe, but the ende is not yet.

<sup>7</sup> For nation shal ryse against nation, and realme against realme: & there shalbe pestilence, honger, and earthquakes, in certayne quarters. <sup>8</sup> All these are the begynnyng of sorowes. <sup>9</sup> Then shal they put you to trouble, & shal kyl you, and ye shalbe hated of all nations for my names sake. <sup>10</sup> And then shal many be offended, and shal betray one another, and shal hate one another. <sup>11</sup> And many false prophetes shal aryse, and shal deceaue many. <sup>12</sup> And because iniquitie shal haue the vpper hand, the loue of many shal abate. <sup>13</sup> But he that endureth to the ende, the same shalbe safe.

<sup>14</sup> And this glad tidinges of the kyngdome, shalbe preached through the whole world, for a witness vnto all nations: & then shal the ende come. <sup>15</sup> When ye therefore shal see the abomination of desolation spoken of by Daniel the Prophet, standyng in the holy place: let him that readeth it, take hede. <sup>16</sup> Then let them which be in Iurie, flye into the mountaynes. <sup>17</sup> And let hym which is on the house top, not come downe to fet any thing out of his house. <sup>18</sup> Nether let him which is in the ficke, returne backe to fetch his clothes. <sup>19</sup> Wo shalbe in those dayes to them that are with chylde, and to them that geue sucke. <sup>20</sup> But pray that

RHEIMS—1582.

see all these things? Amen I say to you, there shal not be left here a stone vpon a stone that shal not be destroyed.

<sup>2</sup> And vhen he vvas sitting vpon Mount-oliuet, the disciples came to him secretly, saying: Tel vs, vven shal these things be? and vwhat shal be the signe of thy coming, and of the consummation of the vvorlde? <sup>4</sup> And Iesus vsvering, said to them, Bevvare that no man seduce you: <sup>5</sup> for many shal come in my name saying, I am Christ: and they shal seduce many. <sup>6</sup> For you shal heare of vvarres, & brutes of vvarres. Se that ye be not troubled. For these things must be done: but the end is not yet. <sup>7</sup> for nation shal rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shal be pestilences, and famines, and earth-quaikes in places, <sup>8</sup> and al these things are the beginnings of sorowes. <sup>9</sup> Then shal they deliuer you into tribulation, and shal kil you: and you shal be odious to al nations for my names sake. <sup>10</sup> And then many shal be scandalized: and they shal deliuer vp one another: and they shal hate one another. <sup>11</sup> And many falseprophets shal rise: and shal seduce many. <sup>12</sup> And because iniquitie shal abound: the charitie of many shal vvaxe cold. <sup>13</sup> But he that shal persevere to the end, he shal be sauced. <sup>14</sup> And this Gospel of the kyngdom shal be preached in the vvhole vvorlde, for a testimonie to al nations, and then shal come the consummation.

<sup>15</sup> Therefore vven you shal see the abomination of desolation, vvchich vvas spoken of by Daniel the Prophet, standyng in the holy place (he that readeth, let him vnderstand) <sup>16</sup> then they that are in Jevvrie, let them flee to the mountaynes: <sup>17</sup> and he that is on the house-toppe, let him not come dovvn to take any thing out of his house: <sup>18</sup> and he that is in the ficke, let him not goe backe to take his coate. <sup>19</sup> And vvo to them that are vvith childe, and that giue sucke in those dayes. <sup>20</sup> But

AUTHORISED—1611.

See ye not all these things? Verily I say vnto you, there shall not be left here one stone vpon another, that shall not be thrown downe.

<sup>3</sup> And as he sate vpon the mount of Oliues, the Disciples came vnto him privately, saying, Tell vs, when shall these things be? and what shall be the signe of thy coming, and of the end of the world? <sup>4</sup> And Iesus answered, and said vnto them, Take heed that no man deceiue you, <sup>5</sup> For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ: and shall deceiue many, <sup>6</sup> And ye shall heare of warres, and rumors of warres: See that ye bee not troubled: for all these things must come to passe, but the end is not yet. <sup>7</sup> For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes in diuers places. <sup>8</sup> All these are the beginning of sorowes. <sup>9</sup> Then shall they deliuer you vp to be afflicted, and shall kill you: and yee shall be hated of all nations for my names sake. <sup>10</sup> And then shall many be offended, and shall betray one another, and shall hate one another. <sup>11</sup> And many false Prophets shall rise, and shall deceiue many. <sup>12</sup> And because iniquitie shall abound, the loue of many shall waxe cold. <sup>13</sup> But he that shall endure vnto the end, the same shall be sauced. <sup>14</sup> And this Gospell of the kyngdome shall be preached in all the world, for a witness vnto all nations, and then shall the end come. <sup>15</sup> When yee therefore shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the Prophet, stand in the holy place, (who so readeth, let him vnderstand.) <sup>16</sup> Then let them which be in Iudea flee into the mountaynes. <sup>17</sup> Let him which is on the house top, not come downe, to take any thing out of his house: <sup>18</sup> Neither let him which is in the ficke, returne backe to take his clothes. <sup>19</sup> And wo vnto them that are with child, and to them that giue sucke in those dayes. <sup>20</sup> But pray yee that your flight bee not

δὲ ἵνα μὴ γένηται ἡ φυγὴ ὑμῶν χειμῶνος, μηδὲ ἰσαββάτω. | <sup>21</sup> Ἔσται γὰρ τότε θλίψις μεγάλη, οἷα οὐ γέγονεν ἀπ' ἀρχῆς κόσμου ἕως τοῦ νῦν, οὐδ' οὐ μὴ γένηται. <sup>22</sup> καὶ εἰ μὴ ἐκολοβώθησαν αἱ ἡμέραι ἐκείναι, οὐκ ἂν ἐσώθη πᾶσα σὰρξ· διὰ δὲ τοὺς ἐκλεκτοὺς κολοβώθησονται αἱ ἡμέραι ἐκείναι. <sup>23</sup> Τότε εἰάν τις ὑμῖν εἴπῃ, Ἰδοὺ, ὧδε ὁ Χριστὸς, ἢ ὧδε, μὴ πιστεύσητε. <sup>24</sup> Ἐγερθήσονται γὰρ ψευδοχριστοὶ καὶ ψευδοπροφήται, καὶ δώσουσι σημεῖα μεγάλα καὶ τέρατα, ὥστε πλανῆσαι, εἰ δυνατόν, καὶ τοὺς ἐκλεκτοὺς. <sup>25</sup> Ἰδοὺ, προεῖρηκα ὑμῖν. <sup>26</sup> εἰάν οὖν εἴπωσιν ὑμῖν, Ἰδοὺ, ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ ἐστὶ, μὴ ἐξέλθητε. Ἰδοὺ, ἐν τοῖς ταμείοις, μὴ πιστεύσητε. <sup>27</sup> ὡςπερ γὰρ ἡ ἀστραπὴ ἐξέρχεται ἀπὸ ἀνατολῶν καὶ φαίνεται ἕως δυσμῶν, οὕτως ἐστὶ ἡ παρουσία τοῦ υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου. <sup>28</sup> ὅπου γὰρ εἰάν ᾗ τὸ πτόμα, ἐκεῖ συναχθήσονται οἱ ἄετοί. <sup>29</sup> Εὐθέως δὲ μετὰ τὴν θλίψιν τῶν ἡμερῶν ἐκείνων, ὁ ἥλιος σκο-

<sup>A</sup> Rec. ἰσαββάτω.

<sup>I</sup> Rec. + καί.

<sup>m</sup> Alex. = γὰρ.

WICLIF—1380.

zoure fleynge he not made in winter, or in the sabot, <sup>21</sup> For thanne schal be greet tribulacion: what maner hath not be from the bigynnyng of the world til now; neither schal be made, <sup>22</sup> and but the daies hadden be abriggid eche fleish schulden not be mad saaf, but tho daies schulen be made schort for the chosen men. <sup>23</sup> thanne if ony man seye to you, lo here is crist or there: nyle ze bilene. <sup>24</sup> For fals cristis & fals profetis, schulen rise and thei schulen zeue greet tokennes & wondris, so that also the chosen be led in to error: if it may be doon, <sup>25</sup> lo I haue bifore seide to you, <sup>26</sup> therfore if thei seie to you: lo he is in desert: nyle ze go out: lo in preuye places: nyle ze trowe. <sup>27</sup> For as leyt goith out fro the est, & aperith in to the west: so schal be also the comynge of mannes some; <sup>28</sup> where euere the bodi schal be: also the eglis schulen ben gaderid thidir.

<sup>29</sup> And anon afir the tribulacion of the dayes: the sunne schal be made derk: & the mone schal not zeue her list, & the steris schulen falle fro heuene, and the vertes of heuenes schulen be noeced; <sup>30</sup> & thanne the tokene of mannes some schal apere in heuene: & thanne alle kynredis of the erthe schulen weile; & thei schulen se mannes some comynge in the cloudis of heuene: with myche vertu & maiste; <sup>31</sup> & he schal sende hise angelis with a trompe & a greet voice: & thei schulen gader hise chosen, fro foure wyndis; fro the hijest thingis of heuene to the endis of hem.

<sup>32</sup> and lerne ze the parable of a fige tre; whanne hise braunche is now tender, & the leues ben sprongen: ze witen that somer is ny; <sup>33</sup> so & ze whanne ze seen alle these thingis: wite ze that it is ny in the zatis. <sup>34</sup> truli I sey to you, for this generacion schal not passe: til alle thingis ben doon; <sup>35</sup> heuene & the erthe schule passe: but myn wordis schulen not passe;

note not. zeue, gies, trowe, trul, vertu, power, witen, knowe.

TYNDALE—1534.

your flight be not in the winter, nether on the saboth daye. <sup>21</sup> For then shalbe great tribulacion, suche as was not from the beginninge of the worlde to this tyme; ner shalbe. <sup>22</sup> Ye and except those dayes shuld be shortened; there shuld no fleshe be saved: but for the chosens sake; those dayes shalbe shortened. <sup>23</sup> Then yf eny man shall saye vnto you: lo here is Christ; or there is Christ: beleue it not. <sup>24</sup> For there shall arise false christes; and false prophetes; and shall do great myracles and wondres. In so moche that if it were possible; the verie eletec shuld be deceaved. <sup>25</sup> Take heed; I haue tolde you before. <sup>26</sup> Wherefore if they shall saye vnto you: beholde he is in the desert; go not forth: beholde he is in the secret places; beleue not. <sup>27</sup> For as the lightninge cometh out of the east and shyneth vnto the west: so shall the comynge of the sonne of man be. <sup>28</sup> For wheresoever a deed karkas is; euen thither will the egles resorte.

<sup>29</sup> Immediately after the tribulacions of those dayes; shall the sunne be darkened; and the mone shall not geue hir light; and the starres shall fall from heuyn; and the powers of heven shall moue. <sup>30</sup> And then shall appere the sygne of the sonne of man in heven. And then shall all the kynredes of the erth mourne; and they shall se the sonne of man come in the cloudes of heven with power and greate glorie. <sup>31</sup> And he shall sende hise angles with the greate voyce of a trompe; and they shall gader to gather his chosen; from the fouer wyndes; and from the one ende of the worlde to the other.

<sup>32</sup> Learne a similitude of the fygge tree: when hise braunches are yet tender & his leues spronge; ye knowe that sommer is nye. <sup>33</sup> So lyke wyse ye; when ye see all these thynges; be ye sure that it is neare; euen at the dores. <sup>34</sup> Verely I saye vnto you; that this generacion shall not passe; tyll all these be fulfilled. <sup>35</sup> Heven & erth shall perishe; but my wordes shall abyde.

CRANMER—1539.

be not in the winter, nether on the Saboth daye. <sup>21</sup> For then shalbe great tribulacions suche as was not sens the beginninge of the worlde to this tyme, nor shalbe. <sup>22</sup> Ye and except those dayes shuld be shortened, there shulde no fleshe be saned; but for the chosens sake, those daies shalbe shortened. <sup>23</sup> Then yf eny man saye vnto you: lo here is Christ, or there: beleue it not. <sup>24</sup> For there shall arysse false Christes, and false prophetes and shall shew great myracles, and wondres. In so moch that yf it were possible) the verie eletec shuld be deceaued: <sup>25</sup> beholde, I haue tolde you before. <sup>26</sup> Wherefore, yf they saye vnto you: beholde, he is in the desert, go not ye forth: behold, he is in the secret places, beleue it not. <sup>27</sup> For as the lightninge cometh out of the East, and appareth into the west: so shall the comynge of the sonne of man be

<sup>28</sup> For wheresoever a deed karkas is, euen thither will the Egles also be gathered together. <sup>29</sup> Immediately after the tribulacions of those dayes, shall the sonne be darkened: and the mone shal not geue her light, and the starres shall fall from heauen, and the powers of heauen shall be moued. <sup>30</sup> And then shall appere the token of the sonne of man in heauen. And then shall all the kynredes of the earth mourne, and they shall se the sonne of man comynge in the cloudes of heauen, with power and greate glorie. <sup>31</sup> And he shall sende his Angels with the greate voyce of a trompet, and they shall gather together his chosen, from the foure wyndes: euen from the highest partes of heauen, vntill the endes ther of.

<sup>32</sup> Learne a similitude of the fygge tree: when his braunche is yet tender, and the leues sprong, ye knowe that somer is nye. <sup>33</sup> So likewise ye, when ye se all these thynges, be ye sure that it is neare, euen at the dores. <sup>34</sup> Verely I saye vnto you: this generacion shall not passe, tyll all these thinges ben fulfilled. <sup>35</sup> Heauen

‘ τισθῆσεται, καὶ ἡ σελήμη οὐ δώσει τὸ φέγγος αὐτῆς, καὶ οἱ ἀστέρες πεσοῦνται ἀπὸ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ, καὶ αἱ δυνάμεις τῶν οὐρανῶν σαλευθήσονται. <sup>30</sup> καὶ τότε φανήσεται τὸ σημεῖον τοῦ υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ· καὶ τότε κόψονται πᾶσαι αἱ φυλαὶ τῆς γῆς, καὶ ὄψονται τὸν υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου, ἐρχόμενον ἐπὶ τῶν νεφελῶν τοῦ οὐρανοῦ μετὰ δυνάμεως καὶ δόξης πολλῆς. <sup>31</sup> καὶ ἀποστελεῖ τοὺς ἀγγέλους αὐτοῦ μετὰ σάλπιγγος φωνῆς μεγάλης, καὶ ἐπισυναΐξουσι τοὺς ἐκλεκτοὺς αὐτοῦ ἐκ τῶν τεσσάρων ἀνέμων, ἀπ’ ἄκρων οὐρανῶν ἕως ἄκρων αὐτῶν. <sup>32</sup> Ἀπὸ δὲ τῆς σκῆης μάθετε τὴν παραβολὴν· ὅταν ἦδη ὁ κλάδος αὐτῆς γένηται ἀπαλός, καὶ τὰ φύλλα ἐκφύη, γινώσκετε ὅτι ἐγγὺς τὸ θέρος· <sup>33</sup> οὕτω καὶ ὑμεῖς, ὅταν ἴδητε πάντα ταῦτα, γινώσκετε ὅτι ἐγγὺς ἐστὶν ἐπὶ θύραις. <sup>34</sup> ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, οὐ μὴ παρέλθῃ ἡ γενεὰ αὕτη, ἕως ἂν ᾖ πάντα ταῦτα | γένηται. <sup>35</sup> Ὁ οὐρανὸς καὶ ἡ γῆ ἄν παρελεύσονται, | οἱ δὲ λόγοι μου οὐ μὴ παρέλθωσι.

<sup>a</sup> Alex. + ὑπὲρ.

<sup>b</sup> Alex. ταῦτα πάντα.

<sup>c</sup> Alex. παρελίστα.

GENEVA — 1557.

your flight be not in the winter, nether on the Sabbath day. <sup>21</sup> For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not from the beginning of the worlde to this tyme, nor shalbe. <sup>22</sup> Yea, and except those dayes should be shortened, there should no fleshe be saued, but for the chosens sake those dayes shalbe shortened. <sup>23</sup> Then if any man shal saye vnto you : Lo, here is Christe, or there is Christe : beleue it not. <sup>24</sup> For there shal aryse false Christes, & false prophetes, and shal do great miracles, and wonders : In so muche, that yf it were possible, the very electe should be deceaued. <sup>25</sup> Behold, I haue tolde you before. <sup>26</sup> Wherefore if they shal saye vnto you : Beholde he is in the desert, go not forth : Beholde he is in the secrete places, beleue not.

<sup>27</sup> For as the lyghtning cometh out of the East, and shyneth in to the West : so shal the comyng of the Sonne of man be. <sup>28</sup> For where soeuer a dead carkas is, euen thither wyl the Eagles resort. <sup>29</sup> Immediatly after the tribulations of those dayes, shal the sunne be darkened : and the mone shal not geue her light, and the starres shal fal from heauen, and the powers of heauen shal be tossed. <sup>30</sup> And then shal appeare the signe of the Sonne of man in heauen. And then shal all the kynreds of the earth mourne, and they shal see the Sonne of man come in the cloudes of heauen with power and great glorie. <sup>31</sup> And he shal send his Angels with the great voyce of a trompet, & they shal gather together his chosen, from the four windes, and from the one ende of the world to the other. <sup>32</sup> Learne a similitude of the fygge tree, when her branches are yet tender, and her leaues sprong, ye knowe that sommer is nye. <sup>33</sup> So like wyse ye, when ye see all these things, be ye sure that the kyngdome of God is nye, euen at the doores. <sup>34</sup> Verely I saye vnto you, that this generation shal not passe, tyll all these be fulfilled. <sup>35</sup> Heauen and earth shal passe awaye : but my wordes shal not passe awaye.

RHEIMS — 1582.

pray that your flight be not in the winter or on the Sabbath. <sup>21</sup> For there shall be then great tribulation, such as hath not been from the beginning of the world vntil now, neither shall be. <sup>22</sup> And vnles those daies had been shortened, no flesh should be saued : but for the electe the daies shall be shortened. <sup>23</sup> Then if any man shall say vnto you, Loe here is Christ, or there : do not beleue him. <sup>24</sup> For there shall rise false-Christes and false-Prophets, and shall shev great signes and vonders, so that the elect also (if it be possible) may be indued into error. <sup>25</sup> Loe I haue foretold you. <sup>26</sup> If therefore they shall say vnto you, Behold he is in the desert : go ye not out : behold in the closets, beleuee it not. <sup>27</sup> For as lightening cometh out of the east, and appeareth euen into the vvest, so shall also the aduent of the sonne of man be. <sup>28</sup> Wheresoever the body is, thither shall the eagles also be gathered together.

<sup>29</sup> And immediatly after the tribulation of those dayes the sonne shall be darkened, and the moone shall not giue her light, and the starres shall fal from heauen, and the powers of heauen shall be moued : <sup>30</sup> and then shall appeare the signe of the Sonne of man in heauen : and then shall all tribes of the earth bevaile : and they shall see the Sonne of man coming in the cloudes of heauen vwith much povver and maiestic. <sup>31</sup> And he shall send his Angels vwith a trumpet, and a great voyce : and they shall gather together his elect from the four vwindes, from the furthest partes of heauen euen to the endes thereof. <sup>32</sup> And of the figtree learne a parable : When novy the bough thereof is tender, and the leaues come forth, you knowv that sommer is nigh. <sup>33</sup> So you also, vwhen you shall see these things, knowv ye that it is nigh euen at the doores. <sup>34</sup> Amen I saye to you, that this generation shal not passe, til all these things be done. <sup>35</sup> Heauen and earth shal passe, but my vwordes shal not passe.

AUTHORISED — 1611.

in the winter, neither on the Sabbath day : <sup>21</sup> For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor euer shall be. <sup>22</sup> And except those dayes should be shortned, there should no flesh be saued : but for the elects sake, those dayes shall be shortned. <sup>23</sup> Then if any man shall say vnto you, Loe, here is Christ, or there : beleuee it not. <sup>24</sup> For there shall arise false Christs, and false prophetes, and shal shew great signes and wonders : insomuch that (if it were possible,) they shall deceiue the very elect. <sup>25</sup> Behold, I haue told you before. <sup>26</sup> Wherefore, if they shall say vnto you, Behold, he is in the desert, goe not fourth : Behold, he is in the secret chambers, beleuee it not. <sup>27</sup> For as the lightning cometh out of the East, and shineth euen vnto the West : so shall also the coming of the Sonne of man be. <sup>28</sup> For wheresoeuer the carkeise is there will the Eagles bee gathered together. <sup>29</sup> Immediatly after the tribulation of those dayes, shall the Sunne be darkned, and the Moone shall not giue her light, and the starres shall fall from heauen, and the powers of the heuens shall be shaken. <sup>30</sup> And then shall appeare the signe of the Sonne of man in heauen : and then shall all the Tribes of the earth mourne, and they shall see the Sonne of man coming in the clouds of heauen, with power and great glory. <sup>31</sup> And hee shall send his Angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his Elect from the four winds, from one end of heauen to the other. <sup>32</sup> Now learne a parable of the figtree : when his branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaues, yee know that Summer is nigh : <sup>33</sup> So likewise yee when ye shall see all these things, know that it is neere, euen at the doores. <sup>34</sup> Verely I saye vnto you, this generation shall not passe, till all these things be fulfilled. <sup>35</sup> Heauen and earth shall passe awaye, but my wordes shall not passe awaye.

<sup>a</sup> Or, with a Trumpet and a great voice.

<sup>36</sup> Περὶ δὲ τῆς ἡμέρας ἐκείνης καὶ ὥρας οὐδεὶς οἶδεν, οὐδὲ οἱ ἄγγελοι τῶν οὐρανῶν, εἰ μὴ ὁ πατήρ μου ἰσχύει. <sup>37</sup> Ὡς περὶ δὲ αἱ ἡμέραι τοῦ Νῶε, οὕτως ἔσται καὶ ἡ παρουσία τοῦ υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου. <sup>38</sup> Ὡς περὶ γὰρ ἦσαν ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις ταῖς πρὸ τοῦ κατακλυσμοῦ, τρώγοντες καὶ πίνοντες, γαμῶντες καὶ ἐγκαμίζοντες, ἄχρι ἧς ἡμέρας εἰσηλθε Νῶε εἰς τὴν κιβωτὸν, <sup>39</sup> καὶ οὐκ ἔγνωσαν, ἕως ἦλθεν ὁ κατακλυσμὸς καὶ ἤρην ἅπαντας, οὕτως ἔσται καὶ ἡ παρουσία τοῦ υἱοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου. <sup>40</sup> Τότε δύο ἔσονται ἐν τῷ ἀγρῷ ὁ εἷς παραλαμβάνεται, καὶ ὁ εἷς ἀφίεται. <sup>41</sup> Δύο ἀλήθουσαι ἐν τῷ μύλωνι μία παραλαμβάνεται, καὶ μία ἀφίεται. <sup>42</sup> Γρηγορεῖτε οὖν, ὅτι οὐκ οἴδατε ποία ὥρα ὁ κύριος ἑμῶν ἔρχεται. <sup>43</sup> ἐκεῖνο δὲ γινώσκετε, ὅτι εἰ ἦδει ὁ οἰκοδεσπότης ποία φυλακῆ ὁ κλέπτης ἔρχεται, ἐγγρηγόρησεν ἂν, καὶ οὐκ ἂν εἶασε διοργανῆσαι τὴν οἰκίαν αὐτοῦ. <sup>44</sup> διὰ τοῦτο καὶ ὑμεῖς ῥ Rec. + τῆς.

ῥ Alex. = οὐδὲ ὁ υἱός.

ῥ Alex. = μου.

ῥ Alex. = ὁ.

ῥ Alex. ἡμέρα.

WICLIFF—1380.

<sup>36</sup> but of thilke day & our no man woot, nether angelis of heuene: but the fadir aloue

<sup>37</sup> but as it was in the dayes of noe, so schal be the comynge of mannes sone, <sup>38</sup> for as in the dayes before the grete flood thei weren etynge and drynkynge, weddyng & takynge to weddyng til that day that noe entrid in to the schip, <sup>39</sup> and thei knewen not til the greet flood cam and toke alle men: so schal be the comynge of mannes sone, <sup>40</sup> thanne twey schulen ben in a felde, oon schal be taken another lefte, <sup>41</sup> tweine wymmen schulen ben gryndynge in o querne oon schal be taken & the other lefte twey in a bed the oon schal be taken & the other lefte

<sup>42</sup> therefore wake ye, for ye witen not in what our the lord schal come, <sup>43</sup> but wite ye this, that if the housbonde man wiste in what our the theef were to come: certis he wolde wake and suffre not his hous to be vndirmynde, <sup>44</sup> & therefore be ye redy, for in what our ye gescece not, mannes sone schal come. <sup>45</sup> Who gessist thou is a trewe seruaunt & a prudent: whom his lord ordeyned on his meyne to geue hem mete in tyme? <sup>46</sup> blessed is that seruaunt: whom his lord whanne he schal come, schal fynde so doynge, <sup>47</sup> truli I seye to you, for on alle hise goodis, he schal ordeyne hym, <sup>48</sup> but if thilke yuel seruaunt seie in his herte: my lord tarieth to come, <sup>49</sup> & bigynneth to smyte hise euene seruauntis, & ete & drynke with drunken men: <sup>50</sup> the lord of that seruaunt, schal come in the day whiche he hopith not, and in the our that he knowith not: <sup>51</sup> & schal departe him: and putte his part with ypocritis: there schal be wepyng & grentynge of teth.

25. THIENNE the kyngdom of heuene schal be like to ten virgyns whiche token

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>36</sup> But of that daye and houre knowith no man, no not the angels of heuen, but my father only.

<sup>37</sup> As the tyme of Noe was, so lyke wyse shall the comynge of the sonne of man be. <sup>38</sup> For as in the dayes before the flood: they dyd eate and drynke, mary and were married, even vnto the daye that Noe entred in to the shyppe, <sup>39</sup> and knewe of nothyng, tyll the floude came and toke them all awaye. So shall also the comynge of the sonne of man be. <sup>40</sup> Then two shalbe in the felde, the one shalbe receaved, and the other shalbe refused, <sup>41</sup> two shalbe gryndyng at the myll the one shalbe receaved, and the other shalbe refused.

<sup>42</sup> Wake therefore, because ye knowe not what houre youre master wyll come.

<sup>43</sup> Of this be sure, that yf the good man of the housse knewe what houre the thefe wolde come: he wolde suerly watche, and not suffre his housse to be broken vpp. <sup>44</sup> Therefore be ye also redy, for in the houre ye thinke he wolde not: wyll the sone of man come. <sup>45</sup> If there be any faithfull seruaunt and wyse, whom his master hath made ruler over his housholde to geve them meate in season convenient: <sup>46</sup> happy is that seruaunt whom his master (when he cometh) shall fynde so doynge. <sup>47</sup> Uerly I seye vnto you, he shall make him ruler over all his goodes. <sup>48</sup> But yf that euill seruaunt shall seye in his herte, my master wyll defer his comynge, <sup>49</sup> and begynne to smyte his felowes, yee and to eate and to drynke with the dronken: <sup>50</sup> the seruantes master wyll come in an daye when he loketh not for him, and in an houre that he is not ware of, <sup>51</sup> and wyll deuyde him, and geve him his rewarde with ypocrites. There shalbe wepyng and a mashingge of tethe.

25. THEN the kyngdome of heven schalbe lykened vnto .x. virgyns which

CRANMER—1539.

and earth shall passe, but my wordes shall not passe. <sup>36</sup> But of that daye and houre knoweth no man, no not the angels of heauen, but my father only.

<sup>37</sup> But as the dayes of Noe were, so shall also the comynge of the sone of man be. <sup>38</sup> For as in the dayes (that went before the flood) they dyd eate and drynke, mary, and were married, euen vntill the daye that Noe entred into the shippe, <sup>39</sup> and knewe not, tyll the flood came and toke them all awaye: So shall also the comynge of the sone of man be. <sup>40</sup> Then shall two be in the felde, the one receaved, and the other refused, <sup>41</sup> two women shalbe gryndyng at the myll, the one receaved and the other refused (Two in a bed; the one shalbe receaved, and the other refused) <sup>42</sup> Watch therefore, for ye knowe not what houre youre lord wyll come.

<sup>43</sup> Of this yet be sure, that yf the good man of the house knew what houre the thefe wolde come: he wolde surely watche, and not suffre his house to be broken vp. <sup>44</sup> Therefore, be ye also ready, for in such an houre as ye thinke not: wyll the sone of man come. <sup>45</sup> Who is a faithfull and wyse seruaunt, whom his lord hath made ruler over his honsholde, to geue them meate in season. <sup>46</sup> Blessed is that seruaunt whom his lord (when he cometh) shall fynde so doynge. <sup>47</sup> Uerly I seye vnto you, that he shall make him ruler ouer all hys goodes. <sup>48</sup> But yf that euill seruaunt seye in his herte, my lord wyll be long a comynge <sup>49</sup> (and so begynne to smyte his felowes, yee and to eate and drynke with the droncken) <sup>50</sup> the same seruauntis lord shall come in a daye when he loketh not for him, and in an houre that he is not ware of, <sup>51</sup> and shall hew him in peeces, and geue him his porcion wyth ypocrites: there shalbe wepyng and gnashynge of teth.

25. THEN shall the kyngdom of heauen be like vnto ten virgyns, which toke their thilke, that. woot, knowest. o, one. querne, mill. wite, knowe. wite, knewe. schal, surely. meyne, meyn. seruaunt, a family. geue, glee. yuel, evil. euene, felle. depart, separate.

γίνεσθε ἔτοιμοι· ὅτι ἡ ὥρα οὐ δοκεῖτε, ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἔρχεται. <sup>45</sup> Τίς ἄρα ἔστιν ὁ πιστὸς δούλος καὶ φρόνιμος, ὃν κατέστησεν ὁ κύριος ὡς αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ τῆς θεραπείας αὐτοῦ, τοῦ <sup>46</sup> διδόναι| αὐτοῖς τὴν τροφήν ἐν καιρῷ; <sup>46</sup> μακάριος ὁ δούλος ἐκεῖνος, ὃν ἔλθων ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ εὐρήσει <sup>47</sup> ποιοῦντα οὕτως. | <sup>47</sup> Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι ἐπὶ πᾶσι τοῖς ὑπάρχουσιν αὐτοῦ καταστήσει αὐτόν. <sup>48</sup> Ἐὰν δὲ εἶπῃ ὁ κακὸς δούλος ἐκεῖνος ἐν τῇ καρδίᾳ αὐτοῦ, Χρονίζει <sup>49</sup> ὁ κύριός μου| ἐλθεῖν, <sup>49</sup> καὶ ἄρξῃται τύπτειν τοὺς συνδούλους <sup>50</sup> αὐτοῦ, | <sup>50</sup> ἔσθῃ δὲ καὶ πίνῃ| μετὰ τῶν μεθύοντων, <sup>50</sup> ἥξει ὁ κύριος τοῦ δούλου ἐκεῖνου ἐν ἡμέρᾳ ἣ οὐ προσδοκᾷ, καὶ ἐν ὥρᾳ ἣ οὐ γινώσκει, <sup>51</sup> καὶ διχοτομήσει αὐτόν, καὶ τὸ μέρος αὐτοῦ μετὰ τῶν ὑποκριτῶν θήσει· ἐκεῖ ἔσται ὁ κλαυθμὸς καὶ ὁ βρυγμὸς τῶν ὀδόντων. <sup>51</sup> XXV. Τότε ὁμοιωθήσεται ἡ βασιλεία τῶν οὐρανῶν δέκα παρθένοις, αἵτινες

<sup>v</sup> Alex. = αὐτοῦ. <sup>w</sup> Alex. ζούναι. <sup>x</sup> Alex. οὕτως ποιοῦντα. <sup>y</sup> Alex. μου ὁ κύριος. <sup>z</sup> Rec. = αὐτοῦ. <sup>a</sup> Rec. ἰσθίον ἐπὶ καὶ πίνων.

GENEVA—1557.

<sup>36</sup> But of that day and houre knoweth no man, no not the Angels of heauen, but my Father only. <sup>37</sup> But as the tyme of Noe was, so like wyse shal the coming of the Sonne of man be. <sup>38</sup> For as in the dayes before the flood, they dyd eat and drinke, mary, and gyue in marriage, euen vnto that day that Noe entred into the Arke: <sup>39</sup> And knewe of nothing, tyl the flood came and toke them all away: So shal also the coming of the Sonne of man be. <sup>40</sup> Then two men shalbe in the fieldes, the one shalbe receaued, and the other shalbe refused.

<sup>41</sup> Two women shalbe gryndyng at the myl, the one shalbe receaued, and the other shalbe refused. <sup>42</sup> Wake therefore, because ye know not what houre your master wil come. <sup>43</sup> Of this be sure, that if the good man of the house knewe at what watche the thefe woulde come, he woulde surely watch, and not suffre his house to be broken vp. <sup>44</sup> Therefore be ye also ready, for in the houre that ye thinke not, wyl the Sonne of man come. <sup>45</sup> Who is a faithfull seruant and wyse, whome his master hath made ruler ouer his household, to geue them meat in season conuenient? <sup>46</sup> Happy is that seruant whome his master (when he cometh) shal fynde so doying. <sup>47</sup> Verely I say vnto you, he shal make him ruler ouer all his goodes.

<sup>48</sup> But and if that euyl seruant shal say in his hart, My master doth deferre his coming, <sup>49</sup> And begyn to smyte his folowes, yea, and to eat and to drinke with the drunken, <sup>50</sup> That seruantes master wyl come in a day, when he loketh not for him, and in an houre that he is not ware of: <sup>51</sup> And wyl cut hym of, and geue hym his portion with hypocrites. there shalbe wepyng, and gnasshyng of teeth.

25. THEN the kingdome of heauen shalbe likened vnto ten virgins: which

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>36</sup> But of that day and houre no body knoweth, neither the Angels of heauen, but the Father alone. <sup>37</sup> And as in the dayes of Noe, so shal also the coming of the Sonne of man be. <sup>38</sup> For as they were in the dayes before the flood, eating and drinking, marrying and giuing to marriage, euen vnto that day in vvhich Noe entred into the arke, <sup>39</sup> and knewe not til the flood came, and tooke them all: so also shal the coming of the Sonne of man be. <sup>40</sup> Then two shal be in the field: one shal be taken, and one shal be left. <sup>41</sup> Two women grinding in the mill: one shal be taken, and one shal be left. <sup>42</sup> Watch therefore because you know not vvhath houre your Lord vvil come. <sup>43</sup> But this know ye, that if the good man of the house did know vvhath houre the theefe wvould come, he wvould surely vwatch, and wvould not suffer his house to be broken vp. <sup>44</sup> Therefore be you also ready, because at vvhath houre you know not, the Sonne of man vvil come.

<sup>45</sup> Who, thinkest thou, is a faithfull and vwise seruant, vvhom his lord hath appointed ouer his familie, to giue them meate in season? <sup>46</sup> Blessed is that seruant, vvhom vvhem his lord cometh, he shal finde so doing. <sup>47</sup> Amen I say to you, that ouer all his goods shal he appoint him.

<sup>48</sup> But if that naughtie seruant shal say in his hart, My lord is long a coming: <sup>49</sup> and shal beginne to strike his fellow-servants, and eateth, and drinketh vwith drunkards: <sup>50</sup> the lord of that seruant shal come in a day that he hopeth not, and an houre that he knoweth not, <sup>51</sup> and shal deuide him, and appoint his portion vwith the hypocrites: there shal be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

25. THEN shal the kingdom of heauen be like to ten virgins: vvhich taking their

AUTHORISED—1611.

<sup>36</sup> But of that day and houre knoweth no man, no, not the Angels of heauen, but my Father onely. <sup>37</sup> But as the dayes of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Sonne of man be. <sup>38</sup> For as in the dayes that were before the Flood, they were eating, and drinking, marrying and giuing in marriage, vntill the day that Noe entred into the Arke, <sup>39</sup> And knew not vntill the Flood came, and tooke them all away: so shall also the coming of the Sonne of man be. <sup>40</sup> Then shall two be in the field, the one shalbe taken, and the other left. <sup>41</sup> Two women shall be grinding at the mill: the one shall be taken, and the other left.

<sup>42</sup> Watch therefore, for ye know not what houre your Lord doth come. <sup>43</sup> But know this, that if the good man of the house had known in what watch the thiefe woulde come, he woulde haue watched, and would not haue suffered his house to be broken vp. <sup>44</sup> Therefore be ye also ready: for in such an houre as you thinke not, the Sonne of man cometh. <sup>45</sup> Who then is a faithfull and wise seruant, whom his Lord hath made ruler ouer his household, to giue them meate in due season? <sup>46</sup> Blessed is that seruant, whome his Lord when he cometh shall finde so doing. <sup>47</sup> Verely I say vnto you, that hee shal make him ruler ouer all his goods. <sup>48</sup> But and if that euil seruant shal say in his heart, My Lord delayeth his coming. <sup>49</sup> And shall begin to smite his fellow seruant, and to cate and drinke with the drunken: <sup>50</sup> The Lord of that seruant shal come in a day when hee looketh not for him, and in an houre that hee is not ware of: <sup>51</sup> And shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

25. THEN shall the kingdome of heauen be likened vnto ten virgins, which

* Or, cut him off.

λαβοῦσαι τὰς λαμπάδας αὐτῶν ἐξῆλθον εἰς ἀπάντησιν τοῦ νυμφίου. <sup>2</sup> πέντε δὲ ἦσαν ἐξ αὐτῶν | φρόνιμοι, καὶ αἱ πέντε μωραὶ. | <sup>3</sup> αἴτινες | μωραὶ, λαβοῦσαι τὰς λαμπάδας αὐτῶν, | οὐκ ἔλαβον μεθ' ἑαυτῶν ἔλαιον. <sup>4</sup> αἱ δὲ φρόνιμοι ἔλαβον ἔλαιον ἐν τοῖς ἀγγείοις αὐτῶν μετὰ τῶν λαμπάδων αὐτῶν. <sup>5</sup> χρονίζοντος δὲ τοῦ νυμφίου, ἐνύσταξαν πᾶσαι καὶ ἐκάθευδον. <sup>6</sup> μέσης δὲ νυκτὸς κραυγὴ γέγονεν, Ἰδοὺ, ὁ νυμφίος ἔρχεται, | ἐξέρχεσθε εἰς ἀπάντησιν αὐτοῦ. <sup>7</sup> τότε ἠγέρθησαν πᾶσαι αἱ παρθένοι ἐκεῖναι, καὶ ἐκόσμησαν τὰς λαμπάδας αὐτῶν. <sup>8</sup> αἱ δὲ μωραὶ ταῖς φρονιμίμοις εἶπον, Δότε ἡμῖν ἐκ τοῦ ἐλαίου ὑμῶν, ὅτι αἱ λαμπάδες ἡμῶν σβέννυται. <sup>9</sup> Ἀπεκρίθησαν δὲ αἱ φρόνιμοι, λέγουσαι, Μήποτε <sup>9</sup> οὐ μὴ | ἀρκέσῃ ἡμῖν καὶ ὑμῶν πορεύεσθε ἄλλοι πρὸς τοὺς πωλοῦντας, καὶ ἀγοράσατε ἑαυταῖς. <sup>10</sup> ἀπερχομένου δὲ αὐτῶν ἀγοράσαι, ἦλθεν ὁ νυμφίος· καὶ αἱ ἑτοιμοὶ εἰσῆλθον

<sup>1</sup> Alex. εἰ αὐτῶν ἦσαν. <sup>2</sup> Alex. μωραὶ καὶ πέντε φρόνιμοι. Rec.=ai. <sup>3</sup> Alex. at γάρ. <sup>4</sup> Rec. εἰαυτῶν. <sup>5</sup> Alex. =ἔρχεται. <sup>6</sup> Rec. οὐκ. <sup>7</sup> Rec. = εἰ

WICLIFF—1380.

her lampis τ wiclen on aȝen the housbonde τ the wiif: <sup>2</sup> τ fyue of hem weren folis, τ fyue prudent; <sup>3</sup> but the fyue folis token her lampis: τ token not oyle with hem; <sup>4</sup> but the prudent token oyle in her vessels with her lampis: <sup>5</sup> τ while the housbonde tariede, alle nappiden τ slepten; <sup>6</sup> but at myd nyȝt a crye was made, lo the spouse cometh; go ȝe out to mete with hym; <sup>7</sup> thanne alle the virgynes risen vp: τ araieden her lampis; <sup>8</sup> and the folis seiden to the wise ȝe to us of ȝoure oile? for oure lampis hem quenched; <sup>9</sup> the prudent answeriden τ seiden, leest perauenture it suffice not to us: τ to ȝou; go ȝe rather to men that sellen, τ bien to ȝou.

<sup>10</sup> τ while they wenten for to hic: the spouse came, and tho that weren redi: entriden with hym to the weddingis; τ the ȝate was schit; <sup>11</sup> τ at the last the other virgynes camen τ seiden, lord lord: opene to us; <sup>12</sup> τ he answeride τ seide; truli I seye to ȝou: I knowe not ȝou; <sup>13</sup> therefore wake ȝe, for ȝe witen not the day, ne the our.

<sup>14</sup> For as a man that goith in pilgrymage: clepid his seruauntis τ bitook to hem hise godis; <sup>15</sup> to oon he ȝaf .v. talentis, to another tweyne; τ to another oon; to eche affir his owne vertu: τ wente forth anon; <sup>16</sup> τ he that hadde fyue besauntis wente forth and rouȝte in hem: τ wane othere fyue; <sup>17</sup> also τ he that hadde taken tweyne: wan other tweyne; <sup>18</sup> but he that hadde taken oon, ȝede forth τ dalf in to the erthe; τ hidde the money of his lord.

<sup>19</sup> but aftir long tyme the lord of tho seruauntis came: τ rikenede with hem; <sup>20</sup> τ he that hadde take fyue besauntis came τ brouȝt: othere fyue, τ seide;

ȝeue, against. ȝeue, gree. witen, know. in pilgrymage, abroad. clepid, called. vertu, caruety. besauntis, talentis. rouȝte, serought. ȝede, went. dalf, delted or dug.

TYNDALE—1534.

toke their lampis and went to mete the brydgrome: <sup>2</sup> fyve of them were folysse; and fyve were wyse. <sup>3</sup> The folysse toke their lampes; but toke none oyle with them. <sup>4</sup> But the wyse tooke oyle with them in their vessels with their lampes also. <sup>5</sup> Whill the brydgrome taryed, all slombred and slepte. <sup>6</sup> And even at mydnyght there was a crye made: beholde; the brydgrome cometh; goo out against him. <sup>7</sup> Then all those virgins arose; and prepared their lampes. <sup>8</sup> And the folysse sayde to the wyse: geve vs of youre oyle; for our lampes goo out? <sup>9</sup> but the wyse answered sayinge. Not so; lest ther he not ynough for vs and you: but goo rather to them that sell; and by forre selves.

<sup>10</sup> And whill they went to bye, the brydgrome came: and they that were redy; went in with him to the weddinge; and the gate was shett vp; <sup>11</sup> After wardes came also the other virgins sayinge: master master, open to vs. <sup>12</sup> But he answered and sayde: verely I saye vnto you: I knowe not you. <sup>13</sup> Wathe there fore: for ye knowe nether the daye nor yet the houre; when the sonne of man shall come.

<sup>14</sup> Lykwyse as a certeyne man redy to take his iorney to a strange countre; called his seruautes and delivered to them his gooddes. <sup>15</sup> And vnto one he gave .v. talentes; to another .ii. and to another one: to every man after his abilitie; and streight waye departed. <sup>16</sup> Then he that had receaved the fyve talentes; went and bestowd them; and wanne other fyve talentes. <sup>17</sup> Lykwyse he that receaved .ii. gayned other .ii. <sup>18</sup> But he that receaved the one; went and digged a pit in the erth and hidd his masters money. <sup>19</sup> After a long season the lord of those seruautes came and rekened with them. <sup>20</sup> Then came he that had receaved fyve talentes;

CRANMER—1539.

lamps, and went to mete the brydgrome (and the bride) <sup>2</sup> But fyve of them were foolysse, and fyve were wyse. <sup>3</sup> They that were folysse, toke their lampes, but toke none oyle with them. <sup>4</sup> But the wyse toke oyle with them in their vessels with the lampes also. <sup>5</sup> While the brydgrome taryed, they all slombred and slept. <sup>6</sup> And euen at mydnyght, there was a crye made: behold, the brydgrome cometh, go out to mete him. <sup>7</sup> Then all those virgins arose, and prepared their lampes. <sup>8</sup> So the folysse sayde vnto the wyse: geve vs of youre oyle: for our lampes are gone out. <sup>9</sup> But the wyse answered, sayinge: not so, lest ther be not ynough for vs and you: but go ye rather to them that sell, and by for your selues. <sup>10</sup> And whyll they went to bye, the brydgrome came: and they that were redy, went in with him to the mariage, and the gate was shnt vp. <sup>11</sup> Afterward came also the other virgins, sayinge: lord, lord, open to vs. <sup>12</sup> But he answered and sayde: verely I saye vnto you: I knowe you not. <sup>13</sup> Wathe therefore: for ye knowe nether the daye nor yet the houre wher in the sonne of man shall come.

<sup>14</sup> Lykewise as a certeyne man redy to take his iorney to a strange countre, called his seruautes, and delyvered vnto him his gooddes. <sup>15</sup> And vnto one he gaue .v. talentes, to another .ii. and to another one: to every man after his habilitie, and streight waye departed.

<sup>16</sup> Then he that had receaved the fyve talentes, went, and occupied with the same, and wanne other fyve talentes. <sup>17</sup> Lykewise also, he that receaved two, gayned other two. <sup>18</sup> But he that receaved that one, went and dygged in the erth, and hid his lordes money. <sup>19</sup> After a long season, the Lord of those seruautes came, and rekened with them. <sup>20</sup> And so he that had receaved fyve talentes came, and brought other fyve talentes, sayinge: Sir,

' μετ' αὐτοῦ εἰς τοὺς γάμους, καὶ ἐκλείσθη ἡ θύρα. <sup>11</sup> ὕστερον δὲ ἔρχονται καὶ αἱ
 ' λοιπαὶ παρθένοι, λέγουσαι, Κύριε, κύριε, ἀνοίξον ἡμῖν. <sup>12</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν,
 ' Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, οὐκ οἶδα ὑμᾶς. <sup>13</sup> Γρηγορεῖτε οὖν, ὅτι οὐκ οἴδατε τὴν ἡμέραν
 ' οὐδὲ τὴν ὥραν. <sup>14</sup> Ὡσπερ γὰρ ἄνθρωπος ἀποδημῶν ἐκάλεσε τοὺς ἰδίους δούλους,
 ' καὶ παρέδωκεν αὐτοῖς τὰ ὑπάρχοντα αὐτοῦ. <sup>15</sup> καὶ ᾧ μὲν ἔδωκε πέντε τάλαντα,
 ' ᾧ δὲ δύο, ᾧ δὲ ἓν, ἐκάστῳ κατὰ τὴν ἰδίαν δύναμιν καὶ ἀπεδήμησεν εὐθέως.
 ' <sup>16</sup> πορευθεὶς δὲ ὁ τὰ πέντε τάλαντα λαβὼν εἰργάσατο ἐν αὐτοῖς, καὶ <sup>k</sup> ἐποίησεν|
 ' ἄλλα πέντε <sup>1</sup> τάλαντα. | <sup>17</sup> ὡσαύτως καὶ ὁ τὰ δύο ἐκέρδησε <sup>m</sup> καὶ αὐτοῖς | ἄλλα δύο.
 ' <sup>18</sup> ὁ δὲ τὸ ἐν λαβὼν ἀπελθὼν ὠρυξεν ἐν τῇ γῇ, καὶ <sup>n</sup> ἀπέκρυψε | τὸ ἀργύριον τοῦ
 ' κυρίου αὐτοῦ. <sup>19</sup> Μετὰ δὲ ὁ χρόνιος πολὺν | ἔρχεται ὁ κύριος τῶν δούλων ἐκείνων,
 ' καὶ συναίρει <sup>p</sup> μετ' αὐτῶν λόγον. | <sup>20</sup> καὶ προσελθὼν ὁ τὰ πέντε τάλαντα λαβὼν

<sup>1</sup> Rec. + ἐν ᾧ ὁ τὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἔρχεται. <sup>2</sup> Alex. ἐκέρδησεν. <sup>3</sup> Alex. = τάλαντα. <sup>4</sup> Alex. = καὶ αὐτοῖς. <sup>5</sup> Alex. ἐκρύψε. <sup>6</sup> Alex. πολὺν χρόνον.
<sup>7</sup> Alex. λόγον μετ' αὐτῶν.

GENEVA — 1557.

toke their lampes & went to mete the brydegrome. <sup>2</sup> And five of them were folysh, and five were wysc. <sup>3</sup> The folysh toke theyr lampes, but toke none oyle with them. <sup>4</sup> But the wise toke oyle in their vessels with their lampes. <sup>5</sup> Whyle the brydegrome taryed, all slombred and slepte. <sup>6</sup> And euen at mydnyght, there was a crye made: Beholde the brydegrome cometh, Go out against him.
<sup>7</sup> Then all those virgins arose, & trimmed their lampes. <sup>8</sup> And the folysh sayd to the wise, Geue vs of your oyle, for our lampes go out. <sup>9</sup> But the wise answered, saying, We feare lest there wil not be ynough for vs and you: but go ye rather to them that sel, and bye for your selues.

<sup>10</sup> And whyle they went to bye, the brydegrome came: and they that were redie went in with him to the wedding, and the gate was shut vp. <sup>11</sup> Afterwardes came also the other virgins, saying, Master, Master, open to vs. <sup>12</sup> But he answered, and sayd, Verely I say vnto you, I know you not.

<sup>13</sup> Watche therefore: for ye knowe nether the day, nor yet the houre, when the Sonne of man wil come. <sup>14</sup> For certeynly the kyngdome of heauen is like as when a man takinge his iorney to a strange countrey, called his seruautes, & deliuered to them his goodes. <sup>15</sup> And vnto one he gaue five talentes, to another two, & to another one, to every man after his ha-bilitie: & straight way departed. <sup>16</sup> Then he that had receaued the five talentes, went and bestowed them, and gayned other fyue talentes, <sup>17</sup> Like wyse, he that receaued two, gayned other two. <sup>18</sup> But he that receaued that one, went & dygged in the earth, & hyd his masters monye.

<sup>19</sup> But after a longe season, the Lord of those seruantes came, and rekened with them. <sup>20</sup> Then came he that had receaued five talentes, and brought other five talentes

RHEIMS — 1582.

lampes vvent forth to meete the brydegrome and the bride. <sup>2</sup> And five of them vvere folysh, and five vvise. <sup>3</sup> But the five folysh, hauing taken their lampes, did not take oyle vvith them: <sup>4</sup> but the vvise did take oyle in their vessels vvith the lampes. <sup>5</sup> And the brydegrome tarying long, they slumbered all and slepte. <sup>6</sup> And at mydnight there vvas a clamour made, Behold the brydegrome cometh, go ye forth to meete him. <sup>7</sup> Then arose all those virgins: and they trimmed their lampes.

<sup>8</sup> And the folysh said to the vvise, Giue vs of your oyle: because our lampes are going out. <sup>9</sup> The vvise answered, saying, Lest peradventure there suffise not for vs and you, goe rather to them that sel: and bie for your selues. <sup>10</sup> And vvhyles they vvent to hie, the brydegrome vvas come:
 and they that vvere ready, entred vvith him to the mariage, and the gate vvas shut. <sup>11</sup> But last of al come also the other virgins, saying: Lord, Lord, open to vs.
<sup>12</sup> But he answering said, Amen I say to you, I knovv you not. <sup>13</sup> Watch ye therfore, because you knovv not the day nor the houre.

<sup>14</sup> For euen as a man going into a strange countrie, called his seruautes, and deliuered them his goodes. <sup>15</sup> And to one he gaue five talents, and to another two, and to another one, to every one according to his propre facultie: and immediatly he tooke his iourney. <sup>16</sup> And he that had receiued the five talentes, vvent his vvay, and occupied vvith the same, and gained other five. <sup>17</sup> Likevvise also he that had receiued the two, gained other two. <sup>18</sup> <sup>18</sup> But he that had receiued the one, going his vvay digged into the earth, and hid his lords monye. <sup>19</sup> But after much time the lord of those seruautes cometh, and made a count vvith them. <sup>20</sup> And there came he that had receiued the five talentes,

AUTHORISED — 1611.

tooke their lampes, and went forth to meet the brydegrome. <sup>2</sup> And five of them were wise, and five were folysh. <sup>3</sup> They that were wise tooke their lampes, and tooke no oyle vvith them: <sup>4</sup> But the wise tooke oyle in their vessels vvith their lampes.
<sup>5</sup> While the brydegrome taryed, they all slumbered and slepte. <sup>6</sup> And at mydnight there was a cry made, Beholde, the brydegrome cometh, go ye out to meet him.
<sup>7</sup> Then all those virgins arose, and trimmed their lampes. <sup>8</sup> And the folysh said vvnto the wise, Giue vs of your oyle, for our lampes are gone out. <sup>9</sup> But the wise answered, saying, Not so, lest there be not enough for vs and you, but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for your selues. <sup>10</sup> And while they went to buy, the brydegrome came, and they that were ready, went in vvith him to the marriage, and the doore was shut. <sup>11</sup> Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open to vs. <sup>12</sup> But he answered, and said, Verely I say vvnto you, I know you not. <sup>13</sup> Watche therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the houre, wherein the Sonne of man cometh.

<sup>14</sup> For the kingdome of heauen is as a man traauelling into a farre country, who called his owne seruautes, and deliuered vvnto them his goods: <sup>15</sup> And vvnto one he gaue five talentes, to another two, and to another one, to every man according to his severall abilitie, & straightvvay tooke his iourney. <sup>16</sup> Then he that had receiued the five talentes, went & traded vvith
 the same, and made them other five talentes.
<sup>17</sup> And likewise he that had receiued two, he also gained other two. <sup>18</sup> But hee that had receiued one, went and digged in the earth, and hid his lords monye. <sup>19</sup> After a long time the lord of those seruautes cometh, and reckoneth vvith them. <sup>20</sup> And so he that had receiued five talentes, came

ἡ προσήνεγκεν ἄλλα πέντε τάλαντα, λέγων, Κύριε, πέντε τάλαντά μοι παρέδωκας· ἴδε, ἄλλα πέντε τάλαντα ἐκέρδησα ἐπ' αὐτοῖς. | <sup>21</sup> Ἐφη ἂν αὐτῷ ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ, Ἐὺ, δούλε ἀγαθὲ καὶ πιστὲ, ἐπὶ ὀλίγα ἢς πιστὸς, ἐπὶ πολλῶν σε καταστήσω· εἰσελθε εἰς τὴν χαρὰν τοῦ κυρίου σου. <sup>22</sup> Προσελθὼν δὲ καὶ ὁ τὰ δύο τάλαντα λαβὼν | εἶπε, Κύριε, δύο τάλαντά μοι παρέδωκας· ἴδε, ἄλλα δύο τάλαντα ἐκέρδησα ἐπ' αὐτοῖς. <sup>23</sup> Ἐφη αὐτῷ ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ, Ἐὺ, δούλε ἀγαθὲ καὶ πιστὲ, ἐπὶ ὀλίγα ἢς πιστὸς, ἐπὶ πολλῶν σε καταστήσω· εἰσελθε εἰς τὴν χαρὰν τοῦ κυρίου σου. <sup>24</sup> Προσελθὼν δὲ καὶ ὁ τὸ ἐν τάλαντον εἰληφὼς εἶπε, Κύριε, ἔργων σε ὅτι σκληρὸς εἶ ἄνθρωπος, θερίζων ὅπου οὐκ ἔσπειρας, καὶ συνάγων ὅθεν οὐ διεσκόρπισας· <sup>25</sup> καὶ φοβηθεῖς, ἀπελθὼν ἔκρυψα τὸ τάλαντόν σου ἐν τῇ γῆ· ἴδε, ἔχεις τὸ σόν. <sup>26</sup> Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ κύριος αὐτοῦ εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Πονηρὲ δούλε καὶ ὀκνηρὲ, ἡ Alex. = ἐπ' αὐτοῖς. ἡ Rec. + εἶ. ἡ Alex. = λαβὼν.

WICLIF—1380.

lord thou bitokiste to me fyve besauntis : lo I have eten aboute othir fyve, <sup>21</sup> his lord seide to hym/ weel be thou good seruaunte & feithful/ for on fewe thingis thou hast hen trewe : I schal ordyne thee on many thingis/ entre thou in to [the] ioie of thi lord/ <sup>22</sup> & he that hadde taken tweyne talentis, cam and seide/ lord thou bitokiste to me tweyne besauntis : & lo I haue wommen ouer other tweyne/ <sup>23</sup> his lord seide to hym/ weel be thou gode seruaunt & trewe/ for on fewe thingis thou hast hen trewe I schal ordayne thee on many thingis/ entre thou in to the ioie of thi lord. <sup>24</sup> But he that hadde take o besaunt, cam : & seide/ lord I woot that thou art an hard man/ thou repist where thou hast not sowen/ and thou gaderist togidre, where thou hast not sprad abroad, <sup>25</sup> and I dredynge wente & hidde thi besaunt in the erthe : lo thou hast that that is thin/ <sup>26</sup> his lord answerde & seide, to hym/ yuel seruaunt and slous : wistist thou that I repe where I saw not : and gaderde to gidre where I spradde not abroad, <sup>27</sup> therefore it bihoued thee to bitake my monei to chaungers that whanne I cam I schulde rescyue that that is myn with vsuris/ <sup>28</sup> therefore take away fro hym the besaunt : & geue to hym that hath ten besauntis/ <sup>29</sup> for to every man that hath me schal geue : & he schal encrese/ but fro hym that hath not, also that that he smeth to hawe/ schal be takun away fro hym/ <sup>30</sup> & caste ge out the vnprofitable seruaunt in to vttimeore derknessis/ there schal be wepyng & gryntynge of teeth.

<sup>31</sup> Whanne mannes sone schal come in his maieste, & alle his aungebis with hym : thanne he schal sitte on the sege of his maieste/ <sup>32</sup> & alle folkis schal be gaderide bifore hym : & he schal departe hem atwynne as a shepherde departith sheep fro kidus/ <sup>33</sup> & he schal sette the sheep on his ryghthalf : and the kidis on his liffthalf. <sup>34</sup> thanne the kyng schal seye to

besauntis, talentis. o, one. woot, knowe. yuel, evil. mistist, knewist. vsuris, usury. sege, seat. atwynne, to face

TYNDALE—1534.

and brought other fyve talentes sayinge : master, thou deliverest vnto me fyve talentes : beholde I have gayedn with them fyve talentes moo. <sup>21</sup> Then his master sayde vnto him : well good seruaunt and feithfull. Thou hast bene feithfull in lytell/ I will make the ruler over moche : entre in into thy masters ioie. <sup>22</sup> Also he that receaved .ii. talentes, came and sayde : master, thou deliverest vnto me .ii. talentes : beholde, I have wone .ii. other talentes with them. <sup>23</sup> And his master sayde vnto him, well good seruaunt and feithfull. Thou hast bene feithfull in lytell/ I will make the ruler over moche : go in into thy masters ioie.

<sup>24</sup> Then he which had receaved the one talent, came, and sayd : master, I considered that thou wast an harde man, which repest where thou sowest not, and gadderest where thou strawdest not, <sup>25</sup> and was therefore afrayde, and went and hid thy talent in the erth : Beholde, thou hast thyn awne. <sup>26</sup> His master answered and sayde vnto him : thou evyll seruaunt and slewthfull, thou knewest that I repe where I sowed not, and gadderde where I strawed not : <sup>27</sup> thou oughtest therfore to have had my money to the chaungers/ and then at my comynge shulde I have receaved myne awne with vauntage. <sup>28</sup> Take therfore the talent from him, and geve it vnto him which hath .v. talentes. <sup>29</sup> For vnto every man that hath shalbe geven, and he shall have abundance : and from him that hath not, shalbe taken awaye/ even that he hath. <sup>30</sup> And cast that vnprofitable seruaunt into vtter dercknes : there shalbe wepyng and gnashinge of teeth.

<sup>31</sup> When the sonne of man cometh in his glorie, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he syt vpon the seate of his glorie, <sup>32</sup> and before him shalbe Gaddered all nacions. And he shall separate them one from a nother, as a shepherde deuideth the shepe from the gootes. <sup>33</sup> And he shall set the shepe on his right honde, and the gootes on the lyfte. <sup>34</sup> Then shall

CRANMER—1539.

thou delyueredst vnto me fyve talentes : beholde, I haue gayedn with them fyve talentes moo. <sup>21</sup> His lord seide vnto him : well thou good and feithfull seruaunt. Thou hast bene feithfull ouer fewe thinges, I will make the ruler ouer many thinges : entre thou in to the ioie of thy lorde. <sup>22</sup> He also that had receaved two talentes, came and saide : Sir, thou delyueredst vnto me two talentes : beholde, I haue wone two other talentes with them : <sup>23</sup> his lord seide vnto him : well good and feithfull seruaunt. Thou hast bene feithfull ouer fewe thinges. I wyll make the ruler ouer many thinges. Entre thou into the ioie of thy lorde.

<sup>24</sup> Then he which had receaved the one talent, came, and saide : Sir I knewe the that thou art an harde man : reaping where thou hast not sowed, and gathering where thou hast not strawed, <sup>25</sup> and therefore was I afraide, and went, and hid thy talent in the erth : lo, there thou hast that thine is. <sup>26</sup> His lord answered and saide vnto him thou euyl and slouthfull seruaunt, thou knewest, that I reape where I sowed not, and gather, where I haue not strawed : <sup>27</sup> thou oughtest therfore to haue delyuered my money to the exchaungers, and then at my comynge shulde I haue receaved myne awne wyth vauntage. <sup>28</sup> Take therfore the talent from him, and geue it vnto him which hath ten talentes. <sup>29</sup> For vnto euery one that hath shalbe geuen, and he shall haue abundance : But he that hath not, from him shalbe taken awaye, euen that which he hath. <sup>30</sup> And cast the vnprofitable seruaunt into vtter dercknes there shalbe wepyng and gnashinge of teeth.

<sup>31</sup> When the sonne of man cometh in his glorie, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he syt vpon the seate of his glorie. <sup>32</sup> and before him shalbe gathered all nacions. And he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherde deuydeth the shepe from the goates : <sup>33</sup> and he shall set the shepe on his ryght hande, but the goates on the lyfte. <sup>34</sup> Then shall

ἦρδεις ὅτι θερίζω ὅπου οὐκ ἔσπειρα, καὶ συναγωγή ὅθεν οὐ διεσκορπίσται; <sup>27</sup> ἔδει οὖν σε βαλεῖν τὸ ἀργύριόν μου τοῖς τραπεζίταις· καὶ ἔλθων ἐγὼ ἐκομισάμην ἅν τὸ ἐμὸν σὺν τόκῳ. <sup>28</sup> ἄρατε οὖν ἀπ' αὐτοῦ τὸ τάλαντον, καὶ δότε τῷ ἔχοντι τὰ δέκα τάλαντα. <sup>29</sup> Τῷ γὰρ ἔχοντι παντὶ δοθήσεται, καὶ περισσευθήσεται ἀπὸ δὲ τοῦ μὴ ἔχοντος, καὶ ὃ ἔχει, ἀρθήσεται ἀπ' αὐτοῦ. <sup>30</sup> Καὶ τὸν ἀχρεῖον δούλου ἐκβάλετε| εἰς τὸ σκότος τὸ ἐξώτερον· ἐκεῖ ἔσται ὁ κλαυθμὸς καὶ ὁ βρυγμὸς τῶν ὀδόντων. <sup>31</sup> Ὄταν δὲ ἔλθῃ ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐν τῇ δόξῃ αὐτοῦ, καὶ πάντες οἱ ἄγιοι| ἄγγελοι μετ' αὐτοῦ, τότε καθίσει ἐπὶ θρόνου δόξης αὐτοῦ, <sup>32</sup> καὶ συναχθήσεται| ἔμπροσθεν αὐτοῦ πάντα τὰ ἔθνη, καὶ ἀφοριεῖ αὐτοὺς ἀπ' ἀλλήλων, ὡς περ ὁ ποιμὴν ἀφοριεῖ τὰ πρόβατα ἀπὸ τῶν ἐρίφων, <sup>33</sup> καὶ στήσει τὰ μὲν πρόβατα ἐκ δεξιῶν αὐτοῦ, τὰ δὲ ἐρίφια ἐξ εὐωνύμων. <sup>34</sup> Τότε ἐρεῖ ὁ βασιλεὺς

<sup>1</sup> Rec. ἐκβάλλει.

<sup>2</sup> Alex. = ἄγιοι.

<sup>3</sup> Alex. συναχθήσονται.

GENEVA — 1557.

saying, Master, thou delucredst vnto me fyue talentes : beholde I haue gayed with them fyue talentes mo. <sup>21</sup> Then his master sayd vnto hym, It is wel done good seruant and faithful : Thou hast bene faithful in lytle, I wil make thee ruler ouer muche : Entre in, into thy masters ioye. <sup>22</sup> Also he that receaued two talentes, came & sayd, Master thou delucredst vnto me two talentes ; beholde, I haue wonne two other talentes with them. <sup>23</sup> And his master sayd vnto him, Wel good seruant, and faithful. Thou hast ben faithful in lytle, I wyl make thee ruler ouer muche, Go in, into thy masters ioye.

<sup>24</sup> Then he which had receaued the one talent, came and sayd, Master, I considered that thou wast an hard man, which reapest where thou sowdest not, and gatherest where thou strawdest not : <sup>25</sup> I was therfore afrayd, and went and hyd thy talent in the earth : beholde thou hast thyne owne. <sup>26</sup> And his master answered, & sayd vnto him, Thou euil seruant, and slothfull, Thou knewest that I reape where I sowed not, and gather where I strawed not : <sup>27</sup> Thou oghtest therfore to haue put my monye to the exchangers, and then at my comynge, should I haue receaued myne owne with vantage. <sup>28</sup> Take therfore the talent from him, & geue it vnto him which hath ten talentes. <sup>29</sup> For vnto euery man that hath shalbe geuen, and he shal haue abundance : and from him that hath not, shalbe taken away, euen that he hath. <sup>30</sup> And cast that vnprofitable seruant into vtter darknesse, there shalbe wepyng, and gnashing of teeth.

<sup>31</sup> When the Sonne of man cometh in his glorie, and all the holy Angels with him, then shal he syt vpon the throne of his glorie. <sup>32</sup> And before hym shalbe gathered all nations, and he shal separate them one from another, as a shepherde deuidth the shepe from the goates. <sup>33</sup> And he shal set the shepe on his ryght hande, and the goates on the lift. <sup>34</sup> Then and offred other fyue talentis, saying, Lord fyue talentis thou didst deliuer me, behold I haue gained other fyue besides. <sup>21</sup> His lord said vnto him : Wel fare thee good and faithful seruant, because thou hast been faithful ouer a fev things, I vvill place thee ouer many things : enter into the ioy of thy lord. <sup>22</sup> And there came also he that had receiued the tvvo talentis, and said, Lord tvvo talentis thou didst deliuer me : behold I haue gained other tvvo. <sup>23</sup> His lord said to him, Wel fare thee good and faithful seruant : because thou hast been faithful ouer a fev things, I vvill place thee ouer many things, enter into the ioy of thy lord. <sup>24</sup> And he also that had receiued the one talent, came forth, and said, Lord, I knovv that thou art a hard man, thou reapest vvhere thou didst not sovv : and gatherest vvhere thou stravdest not : <sup>25</sup> and being afraid I vvent, and hid thy talent in the earth : beholde loe here thou hast that vvich thine is. <sup>26</sup> And his lord ansvering, said to him : Naughtie and sloughfull seruant, thou didst knovv that I reape vvhere I sovv not, & gather vvhere I stravd not : <sup>27</sup> thou oghtest therfore to haue committed my money to the bankers, and comming I might haue receiued mine ovvne vvith vsurie. <sup>28</sup> Take ye avvay therfore the talent from him, and giue it him that hath ten talentis. <sup>29</sup> For to euery one that hath shal be giuen, and he shal abound : but from him that hath not, that also vvich he seemeth to haue, shal be taken avvay from him. <sup>30</sup> And the vnprofitable seruant cast ye out into the vtter darknesse. There shal be vweeping and gnashing of teeth.

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>31</sup> And vvhen the soone of man shal come in his maieestic, and al the Angels vvith him, then shal he sitte vpon the seate of his maieestic : <sup>32</sup> and al nations shal be gathered together before him, and he shal separate them one from another, as the pastor separateth the sheepe from the goates : <sup>33</sup> & shal set the sheepe at his ryght hand, and the goates at his left. <sup>34</sup> Then

AUTHORISED — 1611.

and brought other fyue talentis, saying, Lord, thou deliuerdest vnto mee fyue talentis, behold, I haue gained besides them, fyue talentis moe. <sup>21</sup> His lord said vnto him, Well done, thou good and faithful seruant, thou hast bene faithful ouer a few things, I will make thee ruler ouer many things : enter thou into the ioy of thy lord. <sup>22</sup> He also that had receiued two talentis, came and said, Lord, thou deliuerdest vnto me two talentis : behold, I haue gained two other talentis besides them. <sup>23</sup> His lord said vnto him, Well done, good and faithful seruant, thou hast bene faithful ouer a few things, I will make thee ruler ouer many things : enter thou into the ioy of thy lord. <sup>24</sup> Then he which had receiued the one talent, came & said, Lord, I knewe thee that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou hast not sowed, & gathering where thou hast not strawed : <sup>25</sup> And I was afraid, and went and hidde thy talent in the earth : loe, there thou hast that is thine. <sup>26</sup> His lord answered, and said vnto him, Thou wicked and slothfull seruant, thou knewest that I reape where I sowed not, and gather where I haue not strawed : <sup>27</sup> Thou oghtest therfore to haue put my money to the exchangers, and then at my comynge I should haue receiued mine owne with vsury. <sup>28</sup> Take therfore the talent from him, and giue it vnto him which hath ten talentis. <sup>29</sup> For vnto euery one that hath shal be giuen, and he shall haue abundance : but from him that hath not, shal be taken away, euen that which he hath. <sup>30</sup> And cast yee the vnprofitable seruant into outer darknes, there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

<sup>31</sup> When the Sonne of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy Angels with him, then shall he sit vpon the throne of his glory : <sup>32</sup> And before him shall be gathered all nations, and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd diuideth his sheepe from the goats. <sup>33</sup> And he shall set the sheepe on his right hand, but the goats on the left.

τῶς ἐκ δεξιῶν αὐτοῦ, Δεῦτε, οἱ εὐλογημένοι τοῦ πατρὸς μου, κληρονομήσατε τὴν ἡτοιμασμένην ὑμῖν βασιλείαν ἀπὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου. <sup>35</sup> Ἐπέειπασα γὰρ, καὶ ἔδωκατέ μοι φαγεῖν ἑδίψησα, καὶ ἔποτίσατέ με· ξένος ἤμην, καὶ συνηγάγετέ με· <sup>36</sup> γυμνός, καὶ περιεβάλετέ με ἡσθένησα, καὶ ἐπεσκεψάσθῃ με ἐν φυλακῇ
 ἤμην, καὶ <sup>37</sup> ἤλθετε | πρὸς με. <sup>37</sup> Τότε ἀποκριθήσονται αὐτῷ οἱ δίκαιοι, λέγοντες, Κύριε, πότε σὲ εἶδομεν πεινῶντα, καὶ ἐθρέψαμεν; ἢ διψῶντα, καὶ ἐπότισαμεν;
<sup>38</sup> πότε δέ σε εἶδομεν ξένου, καὶ συνηγάγομεν; ἢ γυμνόν, καὶ περιεβάλομεν;
<sup>39</sup> πότε δέ σε εἶδομεν ἀσθενῆ, ἢ ἐν φυλακῇ, καὶ ἤλθομεν πρὸς σε; <sup>40</sup> Καὶ ἀποκ-ριθεὶς ὁ βασιλεὺς ἐρεῖ αὐτοῖς, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ἐφ' ὅσον ἐποιήσατε ἐνὶ τούτων τῶν ἀδελφῶν μου τῶν ἐλαχίστων, ἐμοὶ ἐποιήσατε. <sup>41</sup> Τότε ἐρεῖ καὶ τοῖς ἐξ ἐνωύμων, Πορεύεσθε ἀπ' ἐμοῦ, οἱ καταρῆνοι, εἰς τὸ πῦρ τὸ αἰώνιον, τὸ ἴτοι-

<sup>w</sup> Alex. ἡλθαρτ.

WICLIF—1380.

hem, that schulen be on his riȝthalf, come ȝe the blesid of my fadir: take ȝe in possessionn the kyngdom: made redi to ȝou fro the makyng of the world, <sup>35</sup> for I hungride ȝe ȝauen me to eten: I thristid ȝe ȝauen me to drynke, I was herborwe lees: ȝe ȝe herborweden me: <sup>36</sup> nakid / and ȝe helide me / seik ȝe ȝe visitid me /
 I was in prison: ȝe ȝe camen to me, <sup>37</sup> thanne iust men schulen answe to hym: and seie, lord whanne siȝen we thee hungride:
 and we fedden thee? thursti: and we ȝauen to thee drynke? <sup>38</sup> ȝe whanne saien we thee herborwes: ȝe ȝe herborweden thee? or nakid: ȝe we heliden thee? <sup>39</sup> or whanne seien we the sike or in prison:
 ȝe we camen to thee? <sup>40</sup> ȝe the kyng answeryng sehal seye to hem / truli I seye to ȝou, as long as ȝe didnen to oon of these my leest brithren: ȝe didnen to me,

<sup>41</sup> thanne the kyng sehal seye also to hem:
 that schulen be in his lefthond, departith fro me ȝe cursid in to euclastyng fier:
 that is made redi to the deul ȝe hise aungelis, <sup>42</sup> for I hungride: ȝe ȝe ȝauen not me to ete / I thristid ȝe ȝe ȝauen not to drynke: <sup>43</sup> ȝe I was herborwes: ȝe ȝe herborweden not me / nakid ȝe ȝe keueriden not me / sike ȝe in prison: ȝe ȝe visitid not me,

<sup>44</sup> thanne ȝe thei schulen answe to hym: ȝe schulen seye, lord whanne seien we thee hungriȝ or thristyȝe or her-borwes, or nakid or sike or in prison:
 ȝe we serueden not to thee, <sup>45</sup> thanne he sehal answe to hem: ȝe seye, truli I seye to ȝou: hou long ȝe didnen not to oon of these leest: nether ȝe didnen to me, <sup>46</sup> and these schulen go in to euclastyng turnmente / but the iust men schulen go in to euclastyng liif.

26. AND it was doon whanne ihesus hadde endid alle thes wordis: he seide to thes discipulis, ȝe witen that aftir .ij. dayes, ȝe seke sehal be made ȝe mannes soon sehal bitaken to be crucifide, <sup>2</sup> thanne

<sup>1</sup> gure. herborwe lees, hama/les. helide, covered <sup>2</sup> hysc haw. witen, know

TYNDALE—1534.

the kyngg seye to them on his riȝht honde: Come ye blessed chyldren of my fater, inheret ye the kyngdom prepared for you from the beginnyng of the worlde.
<sup>35</sup> For I was anhongred, and ye gaue me
 meate. I thurstid, and ye gaue me drinke.
<sup>36</sup> I was herbourlesse, and ye lodged me.
<sup>37</sup> I was naked and ye clothed me. I was sick and ye visited me. I was in preson and ye came vnto me. <sup>37</sup> Then shall the righteous answer him sayyng master, when sawe we the anhongred, and feed the? or a thurst, and gaue the drinke? <sup>38</sup> when sawe we the herbourlesse, and lodged the? or naked and clothed the? <sup>39</sup> or when sawe we the sick or in preson, and came vnto the? <sup>40</sup> And the kyngg shall answer and seye vnto them: verely I seye vnto you: in as moche as ye haue done it vnto one of the leest of these my brethren, ye haue done it to me.

<sup>41</sup> Then shall the kyngg seye vnto them that shalbe on the lyfte hande: departe from me ye cursid, into everlastyng fyre, which is prepared for the devyll and his angels. <sup>42</sup> For I was an hungred, and ye gaue me no meate. I thurstid, and ye gaue me no drinke. <sup>43</sup> I was herbourlesse, and ye lodged me not. I was naked, and ye clothed me not. I was sick and in preson, and ye visited me not.

<sup>44</sup> Then shall they also answer him say-yng: master when sawe we the an hungred, or a thurst, or herbourlesse, or naked, or sicke, or in preson, and did not ministrer vnto the? <sup>45</sup> Then shall he answer them and saye: Verely I seye vnto you, in as moche as ye did it not to one of the leest of these, ye did it not to me. <sup>46</sup> And these shall go into ever-lastyng payne: And the righteous into lyfe eternal.

26. AND it came to passe, when Iesus had fynished all these sayynges, he sayd vnto his disciples: 2 Ye knowe that aftir
 .ij. dayes shalbe e-ter, and the sonne of man shalbe delyvered to be crucifid. 3 Then

CRANMER—1539.

shall the Kyngg seye to them that shalbe on his riȝhte hande: Come ye blessed of my fater, inheret the kyngdome prepared for you from the beginnyng of the worlde.
<sup>35</sup> For I was an hongred, and ye gaue me meate. I was thirsty, and ye gaue me drinke. I was herbourlesse, and ye toke me in: <sup>36</sup> Naked, and ye clothed me:
 Sicke and ye visited me. I was in preson,
 and ye came vnto me. <sup>37</sup> Then shall
 the ryghteous answer him sayyng: lorde, when sawe we the an hongred, and fedd
 the? or thirsty, and gaue the drinke?
<sup>38</sup> when sawe we the herbarlesse, and tooke the in? or naked, and clothed the?
<sup>39</sup> or when sawe we the sycke, or in preson, and came vnto the? <sup>40</sup> And the kyng shall answer, and seye vnto them: verely
 I seye vnto you: in as moche as ye haue done it vnto one of the leest of these my brethren, ye haue done it to me.

<sup>41</sup> Then shall he saye also vnto them, that shalbe on the lyfte hand: departe from me ye cursid into euclastyng fyre:
 which is prepared for the deuyll and his angels. <sup>42</sup> For I was an hungred, and ye gaue me no meate. I was thirsty, and ye gaue me no drinke. <sup>43</sup> I was harborlesse, and ye toke me not. I was naked, and ye clothed me not. I was sycke and in preson, and ye visyted me not.

<sup>44</sup> Then shall they also answer him, saying, lorde, when sawe we the an hungred, or a thyrst, or herbourlesse, or naked, or sycke, or in preson, and dyd not ministrer vnto the? <sup>45</sup> Then shall he answer them sayyng: Uerely I seye vnto you, in as moche as ye dyd it not to one of the leest of these, ye dyd it not to me.
<sup>46</sup> And these shall go into euclastyng payne: the ryghteous into lyfe eternal.

26 AND it came to passe, when Iesus
 had fynished all these sayynges he sayd vnto his disciples: ye knowe that aftir
 two dayes shalbe Easter, and the sonne of man shalbe deliuered ouer, to be crucified. 3 Then assembled together the μασμένον τῷ διαβόλῳ καὶ τοῖς ἀγγέλοις αὐτοῦ. <sup>42</sup> ἐπέινασα γὰρ, καὶ οὐκ ἐδώκατέ μοι φαγεῖν· ἐδίψησα, καὶ οὐκ ἐποτίσατέ με· <sup>43</sup> ξένος ἤμην, καὶ οὐ συνηγάγετέ με· γυμνός, καὶ οὐ περιεβάλετέ με· ἀσθενής, καὶ ἐν φυλακῇ, καὶ οὐκ ἐπισκέψασθέ με. <sup>44</sup> Τότε ἀποκριθήσονται * καὶ αὐτοὶ, λέγοντες, Κύριε, πότε σὲ εἶδομεν πεινῶντα, ἢ διψῶντα, ἢ ξένον, ἢ γυμνόν, ἢ ἀσθενῆ, ἢ ἐν φυλακῇ, καὶ οὐ δικηκοήσαμέν σοι; <sup>45</sup> Τότε ἀποκριθήσεται αὐτοῖς, λέγων, Ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ἐφ' ὅσον οὐκ ἐποιήσατε ἐνὶ τούτων τῶν ἐλαχίστων, οὐδὲ ἐμοὶ ἐποιήσατε. <sup>46</sup> Καὶ ἀπελεύσονται οὗτοι εἰς κόλασιν αἰώνιον· οἱ δὲ δίκαιοι εἰς ζωὴν αἰώνιον.

XXVI. Καὶ ἐγένετο ὅτε ἐτέλεσεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς πάντας τοὺς λόγους τούτους, εἶπε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, <sup>2</sup> Οἴδατε ὅτι μετὰ δύο ἡμέρας τὸ πάσχα γίνεται, καὶ ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδίδοται εἰς τὸ σταυρωθῆναι. <sup>3</sup> Τότε συνήχθησαν οἱ * Rec. + αὐτῶ.

GENEVA—1557.

shal the kyng say to them on his ryght hand, Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit ye the kingdome prepared for you from before the foundations of the world wer layed. <sup>35</sup> For I was an hungred, and ye gaue me meat. I thirsted, and ye gaue me drinke. I was herbourlesse, and ye lodged me. <sup>36</sup> I was naked, and ye clothed me. I was sicke, and ye visited me. I was in prison, and ye came vnto me.

<sup>37</sup> Then shal the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when sawe we thee an hungred, and nourished thee? or a thirst, and gaue thee drinke? <sup>38</sup> And when sawe we thee herbourlesse, and lodged thee? or naked, and clothed thee? <sup>39</sup> Or when sawe we thee sycke, or in pryson, and came vnto thee? <sup>40</sup> And the king shal answer and say vnto them, Verely I say vnto you, In as muche, as ye haue done it vnto one of the least of these my brethren, ye haue done it to me. <sup>41</sup> Then shal the king say vnto them that shalbe on the lyfte hand, Departe from me ye cursed, into euerlasting fyre which is prepared for the deuyll and his Angels. <sup>42</sup> For I was an hungred, and ye gaue me no meat. I thirsted, and ye gaue me no drinke. <sup>43</sup> I was herbourlesse, and ye lodged me not. I was naked, and ye clothed me not. I was sicke & in prison, and ye visited me not. <sup>44</sup> Then shal they also answer hym saying, Sir, when sawe we thee an hungred, or a thirst, or herbourlesse, or naked, or syck, or in pryson, and dyd not minister vnto thee? <sup>45</sup> Then shal he answer them, and say, Verely I say vnto you, in as much as ye dyd it not to one of the least of these, ye dyd it not to me. <sup>46</sup> And these shal go into euerlasting payne, & the ryghteous into life eternal.

26. AND it came to passe, when Iesus had finished all these sayings, he sayd vnto his disciples, <sup>2</sup> Ye know that within two dayes is Easter, and the Sonne of man shalbe deliuered to be crucified. <sup>3</sup> Then assembled together the chief

RHEIMS—1582.

shal the king say to them that shal be at his right hand, Come ye blessed of my father, possess ye the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the vvorld. <sup>35</sup> for I vvas an hungred, and you gaue me to eate: I vvas a thirst, and you gaue me to drinke. <sup>36</sup> I vvas a stranger, and you tooke me in: naked, and you couered me: sicke, and you visited me. I vvas in prison, and you came to me. <sup>37</sup> Then shal the iust ansver him, saying: Lord, vvhē did vve see thee an hungred, and fed thee: a thirst, and gaue thee drinke? <sup>38</sup> and vvhē did vve see thee a stranger, and tooke thee in? or naked, and couered thee? <sup>39</sup> or vvhē did vve see thee sicke or in prison: and came to thee? <sup>40</sup> And the king ansvering, shal say to them, Amen I say to you, as long as you did it to one of these my least brethren, you did it to me. <sup>41</sup> Then he shal say to them also that shal be at his left hand, Get ye avay from me you cursed into fire euerlasting, vvhich vvas prepared for the Deuil and his angels. <sup>42</sup> for I vvas an hungred, and you gaue me not to eate: I vvas a thirst, and you gaue me not to drinke. <sup>43</sup> I was a stranger, and you tooke me not in: naked, and you couered me not: sicke, and in prison, and you did not vjste me. <sup>44</sup> Then they also shall ansver him, saying, Lord, vvhē did vve see thee an hungred, or a thirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sicke, or in prison: and did not minister to thee? <sup>45</sup> Then he shal ansver them, saying, Amen I say to you, as long as you did it not to one of these lesser, neither did you it to me. <sup>46</sup> And these shal goe into punishment euerlasting: but the iust, into life euerlasting.

26. AND it came to passe, when Iesus had finished all these sayings, he said to his Disciples, <sup>2</sup> You know that after two dayes shal be Pasche, and the Sonne of man shal be deliuered to be crucified. <sup>3</sup> Then vvere gathered together the chiefe

AUTHORISED—1611.

<sup>34</sup> Then shall the King say vnto them on his right hand, Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdome prepared for you from the foundation of the world. <sup>35</sup> For I was an hungred, and ye gaue me meat: I was thirstie, and ye gaue me drinke: I was a stranger, and ye tooke me in: <sup>36</sup> Naked, and ye clothed me: I was sicke, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came vnto me. <sup>37</sup> Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, and fed thee? or thirsty, and gaue thee drinke? <sup>38</sup> When saw we thee a stranger, and tooke thee in? or naked, and clothed thee? <sup>39</sup> Or when saw we thee sicke, or in prison, and came vnto thee? <sup>40</sup> And the king shall answer, and say vnto them, Verely I say vnto you, in as much as yee haue done it vnto one of the least of these my brethren, ye haue done it vnto me. <sup>41</sup> Then shall he say also vnto them on the left hand, Depart from mee, ye cursed into euerlasting fire, prepared for the deuill and his angels. <sup>42</sup> For I was an hungred, and ye gaue me no meat: I was thirstie, and ye gaue me no drinke: <sup>43</sup> I was a stranger, and ye tooke me not in: naked, and yee clothed mee not: sicke, and in prison, and yee visited me not. <sup>44</sup> Then shall they also answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sicke, or in prison, and did not minister vnto thee?

<sup>45</sup> Then shall he answer them, saying, Verely, I say vnto you, in as much as yee did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me. <sup>46</sup> And these shall go away into euerlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal.

26. AND it came to passe, when Iesus had finished all these sayings, he said vnto his disciples, <sup>2</sup> Ye know that after two dayes is the feast of the Passouer, and the Sonne of man is betraied to be crucified. <sup>3</sup> Then assembled together the chiefe

ἀρχιερεῖς<sup>9</sup> καὶ οἱ γραμματεῖς| καὶ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι τοῦ λαοῦ εἰς τὴν αὐλὴν τοῦ ἀρχιερέως τοῦ λεγομένου Καϊάφα,<sup>4</sup> καὶ συνεβουλεύσαντο ἵνα τὸν Ἰησοῦν<sup>2</sup> δόλω κρατήσωσι,| καὶ ἀποκτείνωσιν.<sup>5</sup> ἔλεγον δὲ, ‘Μὴ ἐν τῇ ἑορτῇ, ἵνα μὴ θόρυβος γένηται ἐν τῷ λαῷ.’

<sup>6</sup> Τοῦ δὲ Ἰησοῦ γενομένου ἐν Βηθανίᾳ ἐν οἰκίᾳ Σίμωνος τοῦ λεπροῦ,<sup>7</sup> προσῆλθεν αὐτῷ γυνὴ<sup>8</sup> ἀλάβαστρον μύρου ἔχουσα|<sup>b</sup> βαρυτίμου,| καὶ κατέχεεν ἐπὶ τὴν κεφαλὴν| αὐτοῦ ἀνακειμένου.<sup>8</sup> ἰδόντες δὲ οἱ μαθηταὶ<sup>d</sup> αὐτοῦ ἠγανάκτησαν, λέγοντες, ‘Εἰς τί ἡ ἀπόλεια αὕτη;<sup>9</sup> ἠδύνατο γὰρ τοῦτο<sup>c</sup> πραθῆναι πολλοῦ, καὶ δοθῆναι<sup>f</sup> τοῖς| πτωχοῖς.’<sup>10</sup> Γνοὺς δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, ‘Τί κόπους παρέχετε τῇ γυναικί; ἔργον γὰρ καλὸν εἰργάσατο εἰς ἐμέ.<sup>11</sup> πάντοτε γὰρ τοὺς πτωχοὺς<sup>e</sup> ἔχετε μεθ’ ἑαυτῶν ἐμὲ δὲ οὐ πάντοτε ἔχετε.<sup>12</sup> βαλοῦσα γὰρ αὕτη τὸ μύρον

<sup>a</sup> Alex. = καὶ οἱ γραμματεῖς. <sup>b</sup> Rec. κρατήσωσι ἰδὼψ. <sup>c</sup> Alex. ἔχουσα ἀλάβαστρον μύρον. <sup>d</sup> Alex. πολυτίμου. <sup>e</sup> Alex. τῆς κεφαλῆς.

WICLIF—1380.

the pryncis of preestis, & the elders men of the puple weren gaderide in to the halle of the prynce of preestis, that was seide cayphas: <sup>4</sup> & maden a counceil to holde ihesus with gile and sle him; <sup>5</sup> but thei seiden, not in the holi daye: lest peraventure noise were made in the puple.

<sup>6</sup> & whanne ihesus was in bethanye in the hous of Symon the leperous: <sup>7</sup> A woman that hadde a boxe of alabastrer of precious oymenent cam to hym and schede out on the heed of hym restyngre, <sup>8</sup> & discipulis seynghe hadden dedeyn, and seiden, wherto this los: <sup>9</sup> for it myste be sold, for myche, & be souen to pore men; <sup>10</sup> but ihesus knewe and seide to hem, what ben ye heuy to this woman, for she hath wrougte in me a good werk; <sup>11</sup> for ye schulen euer haue pore men with you; but ye schulen not algatis haue me; <sup>12</sup> this woman sendynghe this oymenent in to my body: dide to bierie me; <sup>13</sup> truil I seye to you, where euer this gospel schal be prechid in al the world, it schal be seide that she dide this in mynde of hym.

<sup>14</sup> Thanne oon of the .xij. that was clepid iudas scarioth: wente forth to the pryncis of prees-tis; <sup>15</sup> & seide to hem, what wolen ye zeue to me, & I schal bitake hym to you? & thei ordeyneden to hym .xxx. pens of siluer; <sup>16</sup> & fro that tyme he sougt oportunyte to bitray hym.

<sup>17</sup> In the first dayes of therf looues the discipulis camen to ihesus & seiden, where wilt thou we make redy to thee: to ete pasker; <sup>18</sup> ihesus seide, go ye in to the cite to sum man: and seie to hym, the maister seith, my tyme is nyg: atte thee I make pasker with my discipulis; <sup>19</sup> & the discipulis diden as ihesus comaundid to hem: & thei maden the pasker redy; <sup>20</sup> and whanne euentide was comen: he seid, named or called, doctayn, didain. souen, givens. alvris, alvays. clepid, called. therf looues, unlovened bread.

TYNDALE—1534.

assembled togedder the chefe prestes and the scribes and the elders of the people to the palice of the hie preste, called Cayphas; <sup>4</sup> and heelde a counsell, how they myght take Iesus by suttelte and kyll him. <sup>5</sup> But they sayd, not on the holy daye; lest eny vproure aryse amonge the people.

<sup>6</sup> When Iesus was in Bethany, in the house of Symon the leper, <sup>7</sup> ther cam vnto him a woman, which had an alabastrer boxe of precious oymnt, and powred it on his heed, as he sat at the bourde. <sup>8</sup> When his discipules sawe that, they had indignacyon sayinge: what neded this wast? <sup>9</sup> This oymnt myght have bene well solde, & geven to the povre. When Iesus vnderstod that, he sayde vnto them: <sup>10</sup> why trouble ye the woman? She hath wrought a good worke upon me. <sup>11</sup> For ye shall have povre folcke alwayes with you: but me shall ye not have all wayes. <sup>12</sup> And in that she casted this oymnt on my bodye, she dyd it to burye me with all. <sup>13</sup> Verely I saye vnto you, wheresoever this gospel shalbe preached throughout all the worlde, there shall also this that she hath done, be tolde for a memoriall of her.

<sup>14</sup> Then one of the twelue called Iudas Iscarioth went vnto the chefe prestes; <sup>15</sup> and sayd: what will ye geve me, and I will deliver him vnto you? And they apoynted vnto him thirty peces of sylver. <sup>16</sup> And from that tyme he sought oportunitie to betraye him.

<sup>17</sup> The fyrst daye of swete breed the disciples cam to Iesus sayinge vnto him: where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to cate the paschall lambe? <sup>18</sup> And he sayd: Go into the cite, vnto soche a man, and saye to him: the master sayeth, my tyme is at hande; I will kepe myne ester at thy house with my disciples. <sup>19</sup> And the disciples did as Iesus had apoynted them, and made redy the esterlambe.

<sup>20</sup> When the even was come, he sat

CRANMER—1539.

chefe prestes and the scribes and the elders of the people vnto the palace of the hie preste, (which was called Cayphas) <sup>4</sup> and helde a counsell, that they myght take Iesus by suttelte, and kyll him. <sup>5</sup> But they sayd: not on the holy daye, lest there be an vproure amonge the people.

<sup>6</sup> When Iesus was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, <sup>7</sup> ther came vnto him a woman haung an alabastrer boxe of precious oymnt, and powred it on his heed, as he sat at the bourde. <sup>8</sup> But when his discipules sawe it, they had indignacyon, sayinge. Wherto serueth this wast? <sup>9</sup> Thys oymnt myght have bene well solde, and geuen to the poore. <sup>10</sup> When Iesus vnderstode that, he sayde vnto them: why trouble ye the woman? For she hath wrought a good worcke vpon me. <sup>11</sup> For ye haue the poore alwayes with you; But me shall ye not haue alwayes. <sup>12</sup> And in that she hath cast this oymnt on my bodye, she did it to burye me. <sup>13</sup> Uerely I saye vnto you: wheresoever this gospel shalbe preached in all the world, there shall also thys that she hath done, be tolde for a memoriall of her.

<sup>14</sup> Then one of the twelue (which was called Iudas Iscarioth) went vnto the chefe prestes, <sup>15</sup> and sayd vnto them: what will ye geue me, and I will deluyer him vnto you? And they apoynted vnto him thyrty peces of syluer. <sup>16</sup> And from that tyme forth, he sought oportunitie to betraye hym.

<sup>17</sup> The fyrst daye of swete breed, the discipules came to Iesus, sayinge vnto him: where wilt thou that we prepare for thee, to eate the passouer? <sup>18</sup> And he sayd: go into the cite, to soche a man, and saye vnto him, the master sayeth: my tyme is at hand, I will kepe myne Easter by the, with my disciples. <sup>19</sup> And the discipules dyd as Iesus had apoynted them, and they made redy the passouer.

<sup>20</sup> When the euen was come, he sat

‘ τούτο ἐπὶ τοῦ σώματός μου πρὸς τὸ ἐνταφιάσαι με ἐποίησεν. <sup>13</sup> ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅπου ἐὰν κηρυχθῆ τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τούτο ἐν ὅλῳ τῷ κόσμῳ, λαληθήσεται καὶ ὁ ἐποίησεν αὐτή, εἰς μνημόσυνον αὐτῆς. <sup>14</sup> Τότε πορευθεὶς εἰς τῶν δώδεκα, ὁ λεγόμενος Ἰούδας Ἰσκαριώτης, πρὸς τοὺς ἀρχιερεῖς, <sup>15</sup> εἶπε, ‘ Τί θέλετέ μοι δοῦναι, καὶ γὰρ ὑμῖν παραδώσω αὐτόν; ’ Οἱ δὲ ἔστησαν αὐτῷ τριάκοντα ἀργύρια. <sup>16</sup> καὶ ἀπὸ τότε ἐξήτει εὐκαιρίαν ἵνα αὐτὸν παραδῶ.

<sup>17</sup> Τῇ δὲ πρώτῃ τῶν ἁζύμων προσῆλθον οἱ μαθηταὶ τῷ Ἰησοῦ, λέγοντες <sup>9</sup> αὐτῷ, | ‘ Ποῦ θέλεις ἐτοιμάσωμέν σοι φαγεῖν τὸ πάσχα; ’ <sup>18</sup> Ὁ δὲ εἶπεν, ‘ Ὑπάγετε εἰς τὴν πόλιν πρὸς τὸν δέινα, καὶ εἶπατε αὐτῷ, Ὁ διδάσκαλος λέγει, Ὁ καιρὸς μου ἐγγύς ἐστὶ πρὸς σὲ ποιῶ τὸ πάσχα μετὰ τῶν μαθητῶν μου. ’ <sup>19</sup> Καὶ ἐποίησαν οἱ μαθηταὶ ὡς συνέταξεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, καὶ ἠτοίμασαν τὸ πάσχα. <sup>20</sup> Ὀψίας δὲ

<sup>a</sup> Alex. = αὐτοῦ.

<sup>c</sup> Rec. + τὸ μύρον.

<sup>f</sup> Rec. = τοῖς.

<sup>g</sup> Alex. = αὐτῷ.

GENEVA—1557.

Priests, and the Scribes, and the Elders of the people in to the hall of the hie Priest, called Caiaphas. <sup>4</sup> And consulted how they might take Iesus by subteltie, and kyl hym. <sup>5</sup> But they sayd, Not on the feast day, lest any vprare aryse among the people. <sup>6</sup> And when Iesus was in Bethanie, in the house of Simon the leper, <sup>7</sup> There came vnto him a woman, which had an alabaster boxe of verie costely oymnt, and powred it on his head, as he sat at the board. <sup>8</sup> And when his disciples saw that, they had indignation, saying, What neded this waste? <sup>9</sup> For this oymnt might haue bene wel solde, and guen to the poore. <sup>10</sup> And Iesus knowinge that, sayd vnto them, Why trouble ye the woman? She hath wrought a good worke vpon me. <sup>11</sup> For ye shal haue the poore alwayes with you; but me shal ye not haue alwayes. <sup>12</sup> For in that she powred this oymnt on my body, she dyd it to bury me.

<sup>13</sup> Verely I say vnto you, Wheresoeuer this Gospel shalbe preached throughout al the world, there shal also this that she hath done, be spoken of for a memorial of her.

<sup>14</sup> Then one of the twelue called Iudas Iscariot, went vnto the chiefe priestes, <sup>15</sup> And sayd, What wil ye geue me and I wyl deliuer him vnto you? And they appointed vnto him thyrty peeces of syluer. <sup>16</sup> And from that tyme, he sought opportunitie to betraye hym.

<sup>17</sup> Now on the fyrst day of the feast of vnleuened bread, the disciples came to Iesus, saying vnto him, Where wylt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the passeouer? <sup>18</sup> And he sayd, Go into the citie, to a certayne man, and say to hym, The Master sayeth, my time is at hand. I wyl kepe myne Easter at thy house with my disciples.

<sup>19</sup> And the disciples dyd as Iesus had gyuen them charge, and made ready the passeouer. <sup>20</sup> When the euen was come,

RHEIMS—1582.

Priests and auncients of the people into the court of the high priest, vnto vvas called Caiphas: <sup>4</sup> and they consulted how they might by some vile apprehend Iesus, and kil him. <sup>5</sup> But they said, Not on the festiual day, lest perhaps there might be a tumult among the people.

<sup>6</sup> And vwhen Iesus vvas in Bethania in the house of Simon the Leper, <sup>7</sup> there came to him a vwoman hauing an alabaster-boxe of pretious ointment, and povvred it out vpon his head as he sate at the table. <sup>8</sup> And the Disciples seeing it, had indignation saying, Wherto is this vvas? <sup>9</sup> For this might haue been sold for much, and giuen to the poore. <sup>10</sup> And Iesus knowing it, said to them: Why do you molest this vwoman? for she hath vvrought a good vvorke vpon me. <sup>11</sup> For the poore you haue alvayes vvith you; but me you haue not alvayes. <sup>12</sup> For she in povvring this ointment vpon my body: hath done it to burie me. <sup>13</sup> Amen I say to you, vvheresoeuer this Gospel shal be preached in the vvhole vvorld, that also vvich she hath done, shal be reported for a memorie of her.

<sup>14</sup> Then vvent one of the Twelue, vvchich vvas called Iudas Iscariot, to the chiefe Priestes, <sup>15</sup> and said to them, What vvil you giue me, and I vvil deliuer him vnto you? But they appointed vnto him thirtie peeces of siluer. <sup>16</sup> And from thenceforth he sought oportunitie to betray him.

<sup>17</sup> And the first day of the Azymes the Disciples came to Iesus, saying, Where vvilt thou that vve prepare for thee to eat the Pasche? <sup>18</sup> But Iesus said, Goe ye into the citie to a certayne man; and say to him, The Maister saith, My time is at hand, vvith thee do I make the Pasche vvith my Disciples. <sup>19</sup> And the Disciples dyd as Iesus appointed them, and they prepared the Pasche. <sup>20</sup> But vvhen it vvas

AUTHORISED—1611.

Priests, and the Scribes, and the Elders of the people, vnto the palace of the high Priest, who was called Caiaphas, <sup>4</sup> And consulted that they might take Iesus by subtiltie, and kill him. <sup>5</sup> But they said, Not on the feast day, lest there be an vproare among the people.

<sup>6</sup> Now when Iesus was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, <sup>7</sup> There came vnto him a woman, hauing an alabaster boxe of very precious oymnt, and powred it on his head, as he sate at meat. <sup>8</sup> But when his disciples saw it, they had indignation, saying, To what purpose is this waste? <sup>9</sup> For this ointment might haue bin sold for much, and giuen to the poore. <sup>10</sup> When Iesus vnderstood it, he said vnto them, Why trouble ye the woman? For she hath wrought a good work vpon me. <sup>11</sup> For yee haue the poore alwayes with you, but me ye haue not alwayes. <sup>12</sup> For in that she hath powred this oymnt on my body, she did it for my buriall. <sup>13</sup> Verely I say vnto you, Wheresoeuer this Gospel shal be preached in the whole world, there shall also this, that this woman hath done, be told for a memoriall of her.

<sup>14</sup> Then one of the twelue, called Iudas Iscariot, went vnto the chiefe Priests, <sup>15</sup> And said vnto them, What will ye giue me, and I will deliuer him vnto you? and they couenaunted with him for thirtie peeces of siluer. <sup>16</sup> And from that time he sought opportunitie to betray him.

<sup>17</sup> Now the first day of the feast of vnleuened bread, the disciples came to Iesus, saying vnto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the Passeouer? <sup>18</sup> And he said, Goe into the citie to such a man, and say vnto him, The Master saith, My time is at hand, I will keepe the Passeouer at thy house with my disciples. <sup>19</sup> And the Disciples did as Iesus had appointed them, and they made ready the Passeouer. <sup>20</sup> Now when the euen was

γενομένης ἀνέκειτο μετὰ τῶν δώδεκα.<sup>21</sup> καὶ ἐσθίοντων αὐτῶν εἶπεν, Ἄμην λέγω ὑμῖν, ὅτι εἰς ἐξ ὑμῶν παραδώσει με.<sup>22</sup> Καὶ λυπούμενοι σφόδρα ἤρξαντο λέγειν αὐτῷ, Ἐκαστος αὐτῶν, | Μῆτι ἐγὼ εἰμι, κύριε; <sup>23</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἀποκριθεὶς εἶπεν, Ὁ ἐμβάψας μετ' ἐμοῦ ἔν τῷ τριβλίῳ τὴν χεῖρα, | οὗτός με παραδώσει. <sup>24</sup> ὁ μὲν υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ὑπάγει, καθὼς γέγραπται περὶ αὐτοῦ· οὐαὶ δὲ τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ ἑκείνῳ, δι' οὗ ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδίδεται· καλὸν ἦν αὐτῷ, εἰ οὐκ ἐγεννήθη ὁ ἄνθρωπος ἐκείνος. <sup>25</sup> Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ Ἰούδας ὁ παραδιδούς αὐτὸν εἶπε, Μῆτι ἐγὼ εἰμι, ῥαββί; Λέγει αὐτῷ, Σὺ εἶπας. <sup>26</sup> Ἐσθίοντων δὲ αὐτῶν, λαβὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὸν ἄρτον, καὶ εὐχαριστήσας, ἔκλασε καὶ ἔδιδον τοῖς μαθηταῖς, καὶ εἶπε, Λάβετε, φάγετε· τοῦτό ἐστι τὸ σῶμά μου. <sup>27</sup> Καὶ λαβὼν τὸ ποτήριον, καὶ εὐχαριστήσας, ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς, λέγων, Πίετε ἐξ αὐτοῦ πάντες. <sup>28</sup> τοῦτο γάρ ἐστι

<sup>21</sup> Alex. + μαθητῶν. <sup>22</sup> Alex. εἰς ἕκαστος. <sup>23</sup> Alex. τὴν χεῖρα ἐν τῷ τριβλίῳ. <sup>24</sup> Alex. = τόν. <sup>25</sup> Rec. et Alex. εὐλογήσας. Const. εὐχαριστήσας. <sup>26</sup> Alex. εὐὶς τοῖς μαθηταῖς.

WICLIF—1380.

sate to mete with his .xij. discipils; <sup>21</sup> ⁊ he seide to hem as thei eten; truli I seye to you that on of you; schal bitraye me; <sup>22</sup> and thei ful sor bigonnen ech bi hym silf to seye; lord whether I am? <sup>23</sup> ⁊ he answeride and seide; he that puttith with me his hond in the plater; schal bitraye me; <sup>24</sup> Forsothe mannes sone goith; as it is writun of hym; but wo to that man, bi whom mannes sone schal be bitraied; it were good to hym; if that man hadde not be born;

<sup>21</sup> but iudas that bitraied hym : answerynge seynge, maistr where I am? ihesus seide to hym; thou hast seide. <sup>22</sup> And while thei sopeden; ihesus toke breed and blesid ⁊ brak ⁊ gaf to hisse discipils ⁊ seide; take ⁊ ete : this is my bodi; <sup>27</sup> ⁊ he toke the cuppe ⁊ dide thankyngeis ⁊ gaf to hem and seide; drinke ⁊ alle here of. <sup>26</sup> this is my blood of the newe testamente : whiche schal be schedde for many in to remission of synnes; <sup>29</sup> ⁊ I seye to you; I schal not drynke of this tyme, of this fruyt of the vyne in to that day, whanne I schal drynke it newe with you in the kyngdom of my fadir;

<sup>23</sup> ⁊ whanne the ympne was seide thei wenten out in to the mount of olyvete; <sup>31</sup> thanne ihesus seide to hem; alle ⁊ schulen suffer sclandre in me in this nyȝt; for it is writen; I schal smyte the shep-herde : ⁊ the shepe of the flok schulen be scaderid; <sup>32</sup> but afir that I schal rise agen : I schal go before you in to galile; <sup>33</sup> petir answeride ⁊ seide to hym; thouȝ alle schulen be sclandrid in thee : I schal neuer be sclandrid; <sup>34</sup> ihesus seide to hym; truli I seie to thee, for in this nyȝt; bifore the kocke crowe thries thou schal denye me; <sup>35</sup> petir seide to hym; jhe apostol. suprad. ⁊af. nave. ympne. hymn. agen. again. jhe. yes.

TYNDALE—1514.

doome with the .xii. <sup>21</sup> And as they dyd eate; he sayde : Verely I saye vnto you; that one of you shall betraye me. <sup>22</sup> And they were exceedinge sorowfull; and beganne every one of them to saye vnto him : is it I master? <sup>23</sup> He answered and sayde : he that deppeeth his honde with me in the disse; the same shall betraye me. <sup>24</sup> The sonne of man goeth as it is written of him : but wo be to that man; by whom the sonne of man shalbe betrayed. It had bene good for that man; yf he had never bene borne.

<sup>21</sup> Then Iudas which betrayed him, answered and sayde : is it I master? He sayde vnto him : thou hast sayde. <sup>26</sup> As they dyd eate; Iesus toke breed and gave thanks; brake it; and gave it to the disciples; and sayde : Take; eate; this is my body. <sup>27</sup> And he toke the cup; and thanked; and gave it them; sayinge : drinke of it every one. <sup>28</sup> For this is my bloude of the new testament; that shalbe shedde for many; for the remission of synnes. <sup>29</sup> I saye vnto you : I will not drinke hence forth of this frute of the vyne tree; vntyll that daye; when I shall drinke it new with you in my fathers kyngdome.

<sup>30</sup> And when they had sayde grace; they went out into mounte olyvete. <sup>31</sup> Then sayd Iesus vnto them : all ye shall be offended by me this nyght. For it is written. I will smyte the shep-herde; and the shepe of the flocke shalbe scattered abroad. <sup>32</sup> But after I am rysen ageyne; I will goo before you into Galile. <sup>33</sup> Peter answered; and sayde vnto him : though all men shulde be offended by the; yet wolde I never be offended. <sup>34</sup> Iesus sayde vnto him : Verely I saye vnto the; that this same nyght before the cokke crowe thou shalt denye me thrise. <sup>35</sup> Peter sayde vnto him : Yf I shulde dye with the; yet

CRANMER—1539.

doome with the twelue. <sup>21</sup> And as they dyd eate; he said : Uerely I saye vnto you; that one of you shall betraye me. <sup>22</sup> And they were exceedyng sorowfull; and beganne euery one of them to saye vnto him : Lord; is it I? <sup>23</sup> He answered and sayde : he that dyppeth hys hande with me in the disse; the same shall betraye me. <sup>24</sup> The sonne of man truly goeth; as it is wrysten of him : but wo vnto that man; by whom the sonne of man is betrayed. It had bene good for that man; if he had not bene borne.

<sup>21</sup> Then Iudas which betrayed him, answered; and said : master; is it I? He sayde vnto him : thou hast sayd. <sup>26</sup> When they were eatynge; Iesus toke bread; and when he had geuen thanks; he brake it; and gaue it to the disciples; and said : Take; eate; this is my body. <sup>27</sup> And he toke the cup; and thanked; and gaue it them; sayinge : drincke ye all of this. <sup>28</sup> For this is my bloud (which is of the new testament) that is shed for many; for the remyssion of synnes. <sup>29</sup> But I saye vnto you : I wyll not dryncke hence forth of this frute of the vyne tree; vntyll that daye; when I shall dryncke it new wyth you in my fathers kyngdome.

<sup>30</sup> And when they had sayde grace; they went out vnto mount Oliuete. <sup>31</sup> Then sayeth Iesus vnto them : all ye shalbe offended because of me this nyght. For it is wrysten : I will smyte the shep-herde; and the shepe of the flocke shalbe scattered abroad. <sup>32</sup> But after I am rysen agayne; I wil go before you into Galile.

<sup>33</sup> Peter answered; and sayde vnto hym : though all men be offended because of the; yet will not I be offended. <sup>34</sup> Iesus sayd vnto him : Uerely I saye vnto the; that in this same nyght; before the cokke crowe; thou shalt denye me thrise. <sup>35</sup> Peter sayde vnto him : Yee though I

‘ τὸ αἷμά μου, ὁ πὸς τῆς <sup>ρ</sup> καινῆς | διαθήκης, τὸ περὶ πολλῶν <sup>ρ</sup> ἐκχυνόμενον | εἰς
 ‘ ἄφεισιν ἁμαρτιῶν. <sup>29</sup> λέγω δὲ ὑμῖν, ὅτι | οὐ μὴ πῖω ἀπ’ ἄρτι ἐκ τούτου τοῦ <sup>ρ</sup> γεν-
 ‘ νήματος | τῆς ἀμπέλου, ἕως τῆς ἡμέρας ἐκείνης, ὅταν αὐτὸ πίνω <sup>ρ</sup> μεθ’ ὑμῶν καινὸν |
 ‘ ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ τοῦ πατρὸς μου.’

<sup>30</sup> Καὶ ὑμνήσαντες ἐξῆλθον εἰς τὸ ὄρος τῶν ἐλαιῶν. <sup>31</sup> τότε λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ‘ Πάντες ὑμεῖς σκανδαλισθήσεσθε ἐν ἐμοὶ ἐν τῇ νυκτὶ ταύτῃ· γέγραπται γάρ,
 ‘ “ Πατάξω τὸν ποιμένα, καὶ <sup>ρ</sup> διασκορπισθήσεται | τὰ πρόβατα τῆς ποιμνῆς.”
 ‘ <sup>32</sup> μετὰ δὲ τὸ ἐγερθῆναί με, προάξω ὑμᾶς εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν.’ <sup>33</sup> Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ
 Πέτρος εἶπεν αὐτῷ, ‘ Εἰ <sup>ρ</sup> πάντες σκανδαλισθήσονται ἐν σοὶ, ἐγὼ οὐδέποτε σκανδα-‘ λισθήσομαι.’ <sup>34</sup> Ἐφη αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ‘ Ἀμὴν λέγω σοι, ὅτι ἐν ταύτῃ τῇ νυκτὶ, ‘ πρὶν ἀλέκτορα φωνῆσαι, τρίς ἀπαρνήσῃ με.’ <sup>35</sup> Λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Πέτρος, ‘ Κὰν δέη * Alex. = τὸ.

* Alex. = καινῆς.

* Alex. ἐκχυνόμενον.

* Alex. = ὅτι.

* Alex. γενήματος.

* Alex. καινὸν μεθ’ ὑμῶν.

* Alex. διασκορπισθήσονται. * Rec. + καί.

GENEVA—1557.

he sate downe with the twelue. <sup>21</sup> And as they did eat, he sayd, Verely I say vnto you, that one of you shal betraye me. <sup>22</sup> And they were exceeding sorrowful, & began euery one of them to say vnto him, Is it I Master? <sup>23</sup> He answered and sayd, He that dippeth his hand with me in the dysse, the same shal betraye me. <sup>24</sup> The Sonne of man goeth as it is written of him: But wo be to that man, by whom the Sonne of man is betrayed. It had bene good for that man, yf he had neuer bene borne. <sup>25</sup> Then Iudas which betrayed hym, answered, and sayd, Is it I Master? He sayd vnto hym, thou hast sayd.

<sup>26</sup> And as they dyd eat, Iesus toke bred and gaue thankes, brake it, and gaue it to the disciples, and sayd, Take, eat, this is my body. <sup>27</sup> And he toke the cup, gaue thankes, and gaue it them, saying, Drinkce ye eueryone of it. <sup>28</sup> For this is my bloude of the newe Testament, that is shed for many, for the remission of synnes.

<sup>29</sup> I say vnto you, I wyl not drynce henceforth of this frute of the vine, vntyl that day, when I shal drynce it newe with you in my Fathers kyngdome. <sup>30</sup> And when they had soonge a songe of thankes geuing, they went out into the hill of Oliues. <sup>31</sup> Then sayd Iesus vnto them, Al ye shalbe offended by me this nyght. For it is written: I wyl smyte the shepherd, and the shepe of the flocke shalbe scattered abroad. <sup>32</sup> But after I am rysen agayne, I wyl go before you into Galile.

<sup>33</sup> But Peter answered and sayd vnto hym, Though all men should be offended by thee, yet would I neuer be offended. <sup>34</sup> Iesus sayd vnto him, Verely I say vnto thee, that this same nyght, before the cocke crowe, thou shalt deny me thrise. <sup>35</sup> Peter sayd vnto him, Though I should

RHEIMS—1582.

he sate downe vvith his tvelve Disciples. <sup>21</sup> And vvhile they vvere eating, he said: Amen I say to you, that one of you shal betray me. <sup>22</sup> And they being very sad, began euery one to say, Is it I Lord? <sup>23</sup> But he answering said, He that dippeth his hand vvith me in the dish, he shal betray me. <sup>24</sup> The Sonne of man in deede goeth as it is vvritten of him: but vvo be to that man, by vvhom the Sonne of man shal be betrayed. It vvere good for him, if that man had not been borne. <sup>25</sup> And Iudas that betrayed him, answering said, Is it I Rabbi? He saith to him, Thou hast said.

<sup>26</sup> And vvhile they vvere at supper, IESVS tooke bread, and blessed, and brake: and he gaue to his Disciples, and said, Take ye, and eate: This is my body. <sup>27</sup> And taking the chalice, he gaue thankes: and gaue to them, saying: Drinkce ye al of this. <sup>28</sup> For this is my blood of the new Testament, vvith shal be shed for many vnto remission of sinnes. <sup>29</sup> And I say to you, I vvill not drinke from henceforth of this fruite of the vine, vntil that day vvhen I shal drinke it vvith you newv in the kingdom of my father. <sup>30</sup> And an hymne being said, they vvent forth vnto Mount-olivet.

<sup>31</sup> Then IESVS saith to them, Al you shal be scandalized in me, in this nyght. For it is vvritten, I vvill strike the Pastor, and the sheepe of the flocke shal be dispersed.

<sup>32</sup> But after I shal be risen agayne, I vvill go before you into Galilee. <sup>33</sup> And Peter answering, said to him, Although al shal be scandalized in thee, I vvill neuer be scandalized. <sup>34</sup> IESVS said to him, Amen I say to thee, that in this nyght before the cocke crowe, thou shalt denie me thrise. <sup>35</sup> Peter saith to him, Yea though I should come, he sate downe with the twelue. <sup>21</sup> And as they did eate, he said, Verily I say vnto you, that one of you shall betray me. <sup>22</sup> And they were exceeding sorrowfull, and began euery one of them to say vnto him, Lord, Is it I? <sup>23</sup> And hee answered and said, Hee that dippeth his hand with mee in the dish, the same shall betray me. <sup>24</sup> The Son of man goeth as it is written of him: but woe vnto that man by whom the Son of man is betrayed: It had bene good for that man, if hee had not bene borne. <sup>25</sup> Then Iudas, which betrayed him, answered, and said, Master, Is it I? He said vnto him, Thou hast said.

AUTHORISED—1611.

<sup>26</sup> And as they were eating, Iesus tooke bread, and <sup>ρ</sup> blessed it, and brake it, and gaue it to the disciples, and said, Take, eate, this is my body. <sup>27</sup> And he tooke the cup, and gaue thankes, and gaue it to them, saying, Drinkce ye all of it: <sup>28</sup> For this is my blood of the new Testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sinnes. <sup>29</sup> But I say vnto you, I will not drinke henceforth of this fruite of the vine, vntill that day when I drinke it new with you in my fathers kingdom. <sup>30</sup> And when they had sung an <sup>ρ</sup> hymne, they went out into the mount of Oliues. <sup>31</sup> Then saith Iesus vnto them, All ye shall be offended because of mee this night, For it is written, I will smite the Shepheard, and the sheepe of the flocke shall be scattered abroad. <sup>32</sup> But after I am risen agayne, I will goe before you into Galilee.

<sup>33</sup> Peter answered, and said vnto him, Though all men shall be offended because of thee, yet will I neuer be offended. <sup>34</sup> Iesus said vnto him, Verily I say vnto thee, that this night before the cocke crow, thou shalt deny me thrise. <sup>35</sup> Peter said vnto him, Though I should die with * Many Greeke copies haue, gaue thankes.

* Or, psalme.

‘ με σὺν σοὶ ἀποθανεῖν, οὐ μὴ σε ἄπαρνησομαι. ’ Ὁμοίως ἔδὲ | καὶ πάντες οἱ μαθηταὶ εἶπον. <sup>36</sup> Τότε ἔρχεται μετ’ αὐτῶν ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς χωρίον λεγόμενον Ἰερουσαλὴμ, | καὶ λέγει τοῖς μαθηταῖς, | ‘ Καθίσατε αὐτοῦ, ἕως ὅτ’ ἀπελθῶν ἂ προσεύξωμαι ἐκεῖ. ’ <sup>37</sup> Καὶ παραλαβὼν τὸν Πέτρον καὶ τοὺς δύο υἱοὺς Ζεβεδαίου, ἤρξατο λυπεῖσθαι καὶ ἀδημονεῖν. <sup>38</sup> τότε λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, | ‘ Περίλυτος ἔστιν ἡ ψυχὴ μου ἕως θανάτου· μείνατε ὧδε καὶ γρηγορεῖτε μετ’ ἐμοῦ. ’ <sup>39</sup> Καὶ προσελθὼν μικρὸν, ἔπεσεν ἐπὶ πρόσωπον αὐτοῦ προσευχόμενος, καὶ λέγων, ‘ Πάτερ μου, ‘ εἰ δυνατὸν ἔστι, ‘ παρελθέτω ἀπ’ ἐμοῦ τὸ ποτήριον τοῦτο· πλὴν οὐχ ὡς ἐγὼ θέλω, ἀλλ’ ὡς σύ. ’ <sup>40</sup> Καὶ ἔρχεται πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς, καὶ εὕρισκε αὐτοὺς καθεύδοντας, καὶ λέγει τῷ Πέτρῳ, ‘ Οὕτως οὐκ ἵσχύσατε μίαν ὥραν γρηγορῆσαι μετ’ ἐμοῦ; <sup>41</sup> γρηγορεῖτε καὶ προσέχεσθε, ἵνα μὴ εἰσέλθῃτε εἰς πειρασμόν. τὸ μὲν πνεῦμα πρόθυμον, ἡ δὲ σὰρξ ἀσθενής. ’ <sup>42</sup> Πάλιν ἐκ δευτέρου ἀπελθὼν προσ-

<sup>36</sup> Const. ἀπαρνησομαι.

<sup>37</sup> Rec. = ζι.

<sup>38</sup> Rec. Γερουσαλήμ.

<sup>39</sup> Alex. τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ.

<sup>40</sup> Alex. = οὐ.

<sup>41</sup> Alex. ἐκὶ προσεύξομαι.

<sup>42</sup> Rec. = ὁ Ἰησοῦς.

<sup>43</sup> Rec. προελθὼν.

<sup>44</sup> Alex. παρελθῶν.

WICLIFF—1380.

thous; it bihoue that I die with thee: I schal not denie thee; Also alle the disciplis seiden.

<sup>36</sup> Thanne ihesu came with hem in to a toun: that is seide Iesemany, and he seide to hise disciplis sitte ȝe here: the while I go thadir I praye, <sup>37</sup> I whanne he hadde take petir, and .ij. sones of Zebide: he bigan to be heuye ȝ sori, <sup>38</sup> thanne he seide to hem, my soule is sorfeful: to the deeth, abide ȝe here: ȝ wake ȝe with me, <sup>39</sup> ȝe ȝede forth a litil ȝ fil down on his face, preinyng ȝ seinyng, my fadir if it is possible, passe this cuppe for me; netheles not as I wole: but as thou wolte, <sup>40</sup> ȝ he came to hise disciplis: and fond hem slepyng, and he seide to petir, so wher ȝe myȝt not oon our wake with me? <sup>41</sup> wake ȝe ȝe preie ȝe that ȝe entre not in to temptacioun, for the spirit is redi: but the fleische is sike, wolde I not denye the. Lyke wyse also sayde all the disciples.

<sup>42</sup> efte the secunde tyme he wente ȝe preiede seinyng, my fadir if this cuppe may not passe but if I drynke hym: thi wile be doon, <sup>43</sup> ȝ eftsonne he came: ȝ fond hem slepyng, for her ȝen wenten heuyede, <sup>44</sup> ȝ he lefte hem ȝe wente oftsone ȝe preiede the thirde tyme ȝe seide the same word, <sup>45</sup> thanne he came to hise disciplis: ȝ seide to hem, slepe ȝe now and reste ȝe, lo the our hath wyȝede ȝe mannis sone schal be bitaken, in to the hondis of synners, <sup>46</sup> rise ȝe go we, lo he that schal take me: is ryȝe, <sup>47</sup> ȝit the while he spake: lo Iudas oon of the twelue cam, ȝ with him a gret company with swerdis and battis sente fro the pryncis of preccitis: ȝ fro the elder men of the puple, <sup>48</sup> ȝ he that bitraid hym: ȝaf to hem a tokene ȝ seide, whom euer I kisse: he it is holde ȝe him, <sup>49</sup> ȝ anon he came to ihesus and seide, heil maistir, and he kissid hym, <sup>50</sup> ȝ ihesus seide to

<sup>36</sup> seide, went. efte or oftsone, again. ȝron, ryȝe, wyȝede, drawen near. ȝit, yet. battis, clove. ȝaf, gave.

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>36</sup> Then went Iesus with them into a place which is called Gethsemane, and sayde vnto the disciples, syt ye here, whyll I go and praye yonder. <sup>37</sup> And he toke with him Peter and the two sonnes of zebede, and began to waxe sorrowful and to be in an agonye, <sup>38</sup> Then sayd Iesus vnto them: my soule is heuy even vnto the deeth. Tary ye here and watche with me. <sup>39</sup> And he went a lytell aparte, and fell flat on his face, and prayed sayinge: O my father, yf it be possible, let this cuppe passe from me: nerthelesse, not as I wyll, but as thou wyll. <sup>40</sup> And he came vnto the disciples, and founde them a slepe, and sayde to Peter: what, coulde ye not watche with me one houre: <sup>41</sup> watche and praye, that ye fall not into temptacion. The spryte is willyng, but the fleshe is weake. <sup>42</sup> He went away once moare, and prayed, sayinge: O my father, yf this cuppe can not passe away from me, but that I drinke of it, thy wyl be fulfilled. <sup>43</sup> And he came, and founde them a slepe agayne. For their eyes were heuy. <sup>44</sup> And he lefte them and went agayne and prayed the thyrde tyme sayinge the same wordes. <sup>45</sup> Then came he to his disciples and sayd vnto them: Slepe hence forth and take your rest. Take hede the houre is at honde, and the sonne of man shalbe betrayed into the hondes of synners. <sup>46</sup> Ryse, let vs be goinge: beholde, he is at honde that shal betraye me. <sup>47</sup> Whyll he yet spake: lo Iudas oon of the xii. came and with him a greute multitude with swerdes and staves, sent from the chefe prestes and elders of the people. <sup>48</sup> And he that betrayed him, had geuen them a token, sayinge: whosoever I kysse, that same is he, lo, Iudas hondes on him. <sup>49</sup> And forth with all he came to Iesus, and sayde: hayle master, and kyssed him. <sup>50</sup> And Iesus

CRANMER—1539.

shuld dye with the, yet wyl I not denye the: Like wyse also sayde all the disciples.

<sup>36</sup> Then came Iesus with them vnto a farme place (which is called Gethsemane) and sayde vnto the disciples: syt ye here whyll I go and praye yonder. <sup>37</sup> And he toke with hym Peter and the two sonnes of zebede, and began to waxe sorrowful and heuye. <sup>38</sup> Then sayde Iesus vnto them: my soule his heuy, euen vnto the deeth. Tary ye here: and watche with me. <sup>39</sup> And he went a lytell farther, and fell flat on hys face, and prayed, sayinge: O my father, yf it be possyble, let this cuppe passe from me: neuerthelesse, not as I wyl, but as thou wylt. <sup>40</sup> And he came vnto the discyples, ȝ founde them aslepe, ȝ sayeth vnto Peter: what, coulde ye not watch wyth me one houre: <sup>41</sup> watche, and praye, that ye entre not into temptacyon. The spryte is willinge, but the fleshe is weake. <sup>42</sup> He went away once agayne and prayed, sayinge: O my father, yf this cuppe maye not passe away from me, excepte I drynke of it, thy wyl be fulfilled. <sup>43</sup> And he came, and founde them aslepe agayne. For their eyes were heuy. <sup>44</sup> And he lefte them and went agayne, and prayed the thyrde tyme, sayinge the same wordes. <sup>45</sup> Then cometh he to hys discyples, and sayeth vnto them: Slepe on now, and take your rest. Beholde, the houre is at hande, and the sonne of man is betrayed into the handes of synners. <sup>46</sup> Ryse, let vs be goinge: beholde, he is at hande, that doth betraye me. <sup>47</sup> Whil he yet spake: lo: Iudas oon of the nombre of the twelue, came, and with him a greute multitude, with swerdes and staves, sent from the chefe prestes and elders of the people. <sup>48</sup> But he that betrayed him gaue them a token, sayinge: whosoever I kysse, that same is he, hold him fast. <sup>49</sup> And forthwith he came to Iesus, ȝ sayde, hayle Master, and kyssed him. <sup>50</sup> And ἤξαστο, λέγων, ' Πάτερ μου, εἰ οὐ δύναται τούτο ἰ τὸ ποτήριον | παρελθεῖν ὅ ἀπ' ἐμοῦ, | εἰν μὴ αὐτὸ πῖω, γενηθήτω τὸ θέλημά σου.' <sup>43</sup> Καὶ ἔλθὼν ἠ εὐρίσκει αὐτοὺς πάλιν | καθεύδοντας· ἦσαν γὰρ αὐτῶν οἱ ὀφθαλμοὶ βεβαρημένοι. <sup>44</sup> Καὶ ἀφείς αὐτούς, ἀπελθὼν πάλιν, | προσῆξαστο ἐκ τρίτου, τὸν αὐτὸν λόγον εἰπών. <sup>45</sup> τότε ἔρχεται πρὸς τοὺς μαθητὰς ἠ αὐτοῦ, | καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, ' Καθεύδετε ἰ τὸ | λοιπὸν καὶ ἀναπαύσθε· ἰδοὺ, ἤγγικεν ἠ ὥρα, καὶ ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου παραδί- | δοται εἰς χεῖρας ἠμαρτωλῶν. <sup>46</sup> ἐγείρεσθε, ἀγῶμεν· ἰδοὺ, ἤγγικεν ὁ παραδιδούς | με.' <sup>47</sup> Καὶ ἔτι αὐτοῦ λαλοῦντος, ἰδοὺ, Ἰούδας εἰς τῶν δώδεκα ἦλθε, καὶ μετ' αὐτοῦ ὄχλος πολὺς μετὰ μαχαίρων καὶ ξύλων, ἀπὸ τῶν ἀρχιερέων καὶ πρεσβυτέρων τοῦ λαοῦ. <sup>48</sup> ὁ δὲ παραδιδούς αὐτὸν ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς σημεῖον, λέγων, ' Ὁν ἂν φιλήσω, | αὐτός ἐστι κρατήσατε αὐτόν.' <sup>49</sup> Καὶ εὐθέως προσελθὼν τῷ Ἰησοῦ εἶπε, ' Χαίρε, ἠ ῥαββὶ, | καὶ κατεφίλησεν αὐτόν. <sup>50</sup> ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, ' Ἐταίρε, ἠ ἐφ' ὃ | dye with thee, yet would I not deny thee. Likewise also, said all the disciples.

<sup>f</sup> Alex. = τὸ ποτήριον.<sup>g</sup> Alex. = ἀπ' ἐμοῦ.<sup>h</sup> Alex. πάλιν εὐρεν αὐτούς.<sup>i</sup> Alex. πάλιν ἀπελθὼν.<sup>k</sup> Alex. = αὐτοῦ.<sup>l</sup> Alex. = τὸ.<sup>m</sup> Rec. εἰσ' ἡ.

GENEVA — 1557.

<sup>36</sup> Then went Iesus with them into a place which is called Gethsemane, and sayeth vnto his disciples, Sit ye here, whyle I go and pray yonder. <sup>37</sup> And he toke with hym Peter, and the two sonnes of Zebedee, and began to waxe sorrowful, and greuously troubled. <sup>38</sup> Then sayd Iesus vnto them, My soule is verie heauy vnto the death: Tary ye here, and watche with me. <sup>39</sup> And he went a litle aparte, and fel flat on his face, and prayed, saying, O my father, yf it be possible, let this cup passe from me, neuertheless, not as I wyl, but as thou wilt. <sup>40</sup> And he came vnto the disciples, and found them a slepe, and sayd to Peter, What, could ye not watch with me one houre? <sup>41</sup> Watch, and pray, that ye fall not into tentation. For the spirit is wyllyng, but the fleshe is weake. <sup>42</sup> He went awaye once agayne and prayed, saying, O my father, yf this cup can not passe away from me, but that I drinke it, thy wyl be fulfilled. <sup>43</sup> And he came, and found them a slepe agayne. For their eyes were heauy. <sup>44</sup> And he left them and went agayne, and prayed the thyrd tyne, saying the same wordes. <sup>45</sup> Then came he to his disciples and sayd vnto them, Sleepe henceforth, and take your rest. Beholde the houre is at hand, and the Sonne of man is betrayed into the handes of synners. <sup>46</sup> Ryse, let vs be goyng: beholde, he is at hand that betrayeth me. <sup>47</sup> Whye he yet spake, Iudas one of the twelue came, and with hym a great multitude with swordes and staves, sent from the chiefe Priestes and Elders of the people. <sup>48</sup> And he that betrayed hym, had gauen a token, saying, Whomsoeuer I shal kisse, that same is he, lay handes on him. <sup>49</sup> And forthwith he came to Iesus, and sayd, God saue thee Maister: and kyssed hym. <sup>50</sup> And Iesus sayd vnto hym, Friend, die vwith thee, I vvil not denie thee. Likewise also said all the Disciples.

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>36</sup> Then Iesus cometh vwith them into a village called Gethsemani: and he said to his Disciples, Sitte you here til I goe vnder, and pray. <sup>37</sup> And taking to him Peter and the two sonnes of Zebedee, he began to vxaxe sorrowful and to be sad. <sup>38</sup> Then he saith to them: My soul is sorrowful euen vnto death: stay here, and vwatch vwith me. <sup>39</sup> And being gone forward a litle, he fel vpon his face, praying, and saying, My Father, if it be possible, let this chalice passe from me, neuertheless not as I vwill, but as thou. <sup>40</sup> And he cometh to his Disciples, and findeth them sleeping, and he saith to Peter, Euen so? Could you not vwatch one houre vwith me? <sup>41</sup> Watch ye, and pray that ye enter not into tentation. The spirit in dedde is prompt, but the flesh vweake. <sup>42</sup> Again the second time he vvent, and prayed, saying, My Father, if this chalice may not passe, but I must drinke it, thy vwill be done. <sup>43</sup> And he cometh againe, and findeth them sleeping: for their eyes vwere become heauy. <sup>44</sup> And leauing them, he vvent againe: and he prayed the third time, saying the self same vvord. <sup>45</sup> Then he cometh to his Disciples, and saith to them, Sleepe ye novv and take rest: beholde the houre approacheth, and the Sonne of man shal be betrayed into the handes of sinners. <sup>46</sup> Rise, let vs goe: behold he approacheth that shal betray me.

<sup>47</sup> As he yet spake, behold Iudas one of the Twelue came, and vwith him a great multitude vwith svwordes and clubbes, sent from the chiefe Priestes and the auncients of the people. <sup>48</sup> And he that betrayed him, gaue them a signe, saying, Whomsoeuer I shal kisse, that is he, hold him. <sup>49</sup> And forthvwith comming to Iesus, he said, Haile Rabbi. And he kyssed him. <sup>50</sup> And Iesus said to him, Friend, vvhereto thee, yet will I not deny thee. Likewise also said all the disciples.

AUTHORISED — 1611.

<sup>36</sup> Then cometh Iesus with them vnto a place called Gethsemane, and saith vnto the disciples, Sit ye here, while I goe and pray yonder. <sup>37</sup> And hee tooke with him Peter, and the two Sonnes of Zebedee, and began to be sorrowfull, and very heauie. <sup>38</sup> Then saith hee vnto them, My soule is exceeding sorrowfull, euen vnto death: tary ye here, and watch with me. <sup>39</sup> And he went a litle further, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup passe from me: neuertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt. <sup>40</sup> And he cometh vnto the disciples, and findeth them asleepe, and saith vnto Peter, What, could yee not watch with me one houre? <sup>41</sup> Watch and pray, that yee enter not into temptation: The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weake. <sup>42</sup> He went away againe the second time, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if this cup may not passe away from me, except I drinke it, thy wyl be done. <sup>43</sup> And hee came and found them asleepe againe: for their eyes were heauie. <sup>44</sup> And hee left them, and went away againe, and prayed the third time, saying the same wordes. <sup>45</sup> Then cometh hee to his disciples, and saith vnto them, Sleepe on now, and take your rest, beholde, the houre is at hand, & the Sonne of man is betrayed into the handes of sinners. <sup>46</sup> Rise, let vs be going: behold, he is at hand that doeth betray me.

<sup>47</sup> And while he yet spake, Iudas one of the twelue came, and with him a great multitude with swordes and staves from the chiefe Priestes and Elders of the people. <sup>48</sup> Now he that betrayed him gaue them a signe, saying, Whomsoeuer I shall kisse, that same is he, hold him fast. <sup>49</sup> And forthwith he came to Iesus, and saide, Haile master, and kyssed him. <sup>50</sup> And Iesus said vnto him, Friend,

‘πάρει;’ Τότε προσελθόντες ἐπέβαλον τὰς χεῖρας ἐπὶ τὸν Ἰησοῦν, καὶ ἐκράτησαν αὐτόν. <sup>51</sup> Καὶ ἰδοὺ, εἰς τὸν μετὰ Ἰησοῦ, ἐκτείνας τὴν χεῖρα, ἀπέσπασε τὴν μάχαιραν αὐτοῦ, καὶ πατάξας τὸν δοῦλον τοῦ ἀρχιερέως ἀφείλεν αὐτοῦ τὸ ὄτιον. <sup>52</sup> τότε λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ‘Ἀπόστρεψόν σου τὴν μάχαιραν | εἰς τὸν τόπον αὐτῆς· ‘ πάντες γὰρ οἱ λαβόντες μάχαιραν ἐν ὁμαχαίρα | ἀπολοῦνται. | <sup>53</sup> ἢ δοκεῖς ὅτι οὐ δύναμαι ἄρτι παρακαλέσαι τὸν πατέρα μου, καὶ παραστήσει μοι πλείους ἢ δώδεκα λεγεῶνας ἀγγέλων; <sup>54</sup> πῶς οὖν πληρωθῶσιν αἱ γραφαὶ, ὅτι οὕτω δεῖ γενέσθαι;’ <sup>55</sup> Ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ὥρᾳ εἶπεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς τοῖς ὄχλοις, ‘Ὡς ἐπὶ ληστήν <sup>56</sup> ἐξήλθετε | μετὰ μαχαίρων καὶ ξύλων συλλαβεῖν με; καθ’ ἡμέραν ῥπρὸς ὑμᾶς | ἐκαθεζόμεν διδάσκων ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, καὶ οὐκ ἐκρατήσατέ με. <sup>56</sup> τοῦτο δὲ ὅλον γέγονεν, <sup>57</sup> ἵνα πληρωθῶσιν αἱ γραφαὶ τῶν προφητῶν.’ Τότε οἱ μαθηταὶ πάντες ἀφέετες

<sup>51</sup> Alex. τὴν μάχαιραν σου. <sup>52</sup> Alex. μαχαίρα. <sup>53</sup> Const. ἀποθανοῦνται. <sup>54</sup> Alex. ἐξήλλατε. <sup>55</sup> Alex. = πρὸς ὑμᾶς. <sup>56</sup> Alex. = καὶ αἱ προσδύτροι.

WICLIFF—1380.

hym, frende wher to art thou Icome, thanne thi camen nys & leiden hondis on ihesus: & helden him,

<sup>51</sup> & lo oon of hem that weren with ihesus: streihte out his hond & drowe out with his swerd & he smote the seruaunt of the pryncis of preestis & kytte of his ere; <sup>52</sup> thanne ihesus seide to hym, turn thi swerd in to his place, For alle that taken swerde: schulen perseihe bi swerd, <sup>53</sup> wher gessist not thou that I may preie my fadir: and he schal zeue to me now, mo thanne .xij. legiouns of angelis? <sup>54</sup> hou thanne schulde the scripturis be fulfilled? for so it bihoueth to be doon,

<sup>55</sup> In that our ihesu seide to the puple, as to a theef ze han goon out: with swerdis & battis to take me, day bi day I sattu among zou & taunte in the temple; and ze helden me not; <sup>56</sup> but alle this thing was doen: that the scripturis of profetis schulden ben fulfillde; thanne alle the discipulis fledden: & leften hym; <sup>57</sup> & thei helden ihesus & ledden hym to caiface the prync of preestis, where the scribis & the phariseis & the elder men of the puple weren come to gidre, <sup>58</sup> but petir suede hym afer, in to the halle of the prync of preestis & he wente in & sat with the seruaunts to se the ende, sayde vnto him: frende, wherefore arte thou come? Then came they and layed hondes on Iesus and toke him.

<sup>59</sup> & the prync of preestis & al the counceil sougten fals witnessynge agens ihesus that thei schulden taken him to deeth; <sup>60</sup> & thei founden not: whanne many false witnessen weren comen, but at the last: .ij. fals witnessen: camen <sup>61</sup> & seiden, this seide, I may destric the temple of god: & afir the thiridde day bilde it agen, <sup>62</sup> & the prync of preestis roos and seide to hym, answeriste thou no thing to tho thingis that these witnessen agens thee? <sup>63</sup> But ihesus was stille: & the prync of preestis seide to hym, I cououre the bi [the] luyvinge god, that thou scie to us if thou art crist the sone of god,

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>51</sup> And beholde, one of them which were with Iesus, stretched oute his honde and drue his swerde, and stroke a seruaunt of the hye preste; and smote of his ere. <sup>52</sup> Then sayde Iesus vnto him: put vp thy swerde into his sheathe. For all that ley hond on the swerde, shall perishe with the swerde. <sup>53</sup> Ether thinkest thou that I cannot now praye to my fader, and he shall geue me moo then .xii. legions of angelles? <sup>54</sup> But how then shuld the scriptures be fulfilled: for so must it be.

<sup>55</sup> The same tyme sayd Iesus to the multitude: ye be come out as it were vnto a thefe, with swerdes and staves for to take me. I sate daylie teachinge in the temple amonge you and ye toke me not. <sup>56</sup> All this was done that the scriptures of the Prophetes myght be fulfilled. Then all the discipules forsoke him and fled. <sup>57</sup> And they toke Iesus and leed him to Cayphas the hye preeste, where the Scribes and the Elders where assembled. <sup>58</sup> And Peter folowed him a farre of, vnto the hye prestes place: and went in, and sate with the seruauntes, to se the ende.

<sup>59</sup> The chefe prestes and the elders, and all the counsell, sought false witness agens Iesus, for to put him to deeth; <sup>60</sup> but founde none: in somoche that when many false witnessen cam, yet founde they none. At the last came two false witnessen and sayd: <sup>61</sup> This felowe sayde: I can destroye the temple of God, and hyld it agayne in .iii. dayes.

<sup>62</sup> And the chefe preste arose, and sayde to him: answerest thou nothing? How is it that these beare witness agens thee? <sup>63</sup> But Iesus helde his peace: And the chefe Preeste answered, and sayd to him: I charge the in the name of the luyvinge God, that thou tell vs, whether thou be Christ the sonne of God.

CRANMER—1539.

Iesus sayde vnto hym: frende, wherefore art thou come? Then came they, and layed handes on Iesus and toke him.

<sup>51</sup> And beholde, one of them which were wyth Iesus, stretched out his hande, and drue his swerde, and stroke a seruaunt of the hye preste, and smote of hys ere. <sup>52</sup> Then sayd Iesus vnto hym: put vp thy swerde into hys sheath.

For All they that take the swerde, shall perishe with the swerde. <sup>53</sup> Thinkest thou that I cannot now praye to my father, and he shall geue me (even now) more then twelue Legions of angels? <sup>54</sup> But how then shall the scriptures be fulfilled? for this must it be. <sup>55</sup> In that same houre sayde Iesus to the multitude: ye be come out as it were vnto a thefe, with swerdes and staves, for to take me. I sat daylie with you, teachinge in the temple, and ye toke me not. <sup>56</sup> But all this is done, that the scriptures of the prophetes myght be fulfilled. Then all the discipules forsoke him, and fled. <sup>57</sup> And they toke Iesus, and led him to Cayphas the hye Preste, where the Scribes and the elders were assembled. <sup>58</sup> But Peter folowed hym a furre of, vnto the hye prestes palace: and went in, and sate with the seruauntes, to se the ende.

<sup>59</sup> The chefe Prestes and the elders, and all the counceill, sought false witness agens Iesus (for to put him to deeth) <sup>60</sup> but founde none: yee, when mani false witnessen came, yet founde they none. At the last came two false witnessen, <sup>61</sup> and sayde: This felowe sayde. I am able to destroye the temple of God, and to byulde it agayne in three dayes. <sup>62</sup> And the chefe preste arose, and sayd vnto him: answerest thou nothing? Why do these beare witness agens thee? <sup>63</sup> But Iesus helde hys peace. And the chefe preste answered and sayde vnto hym: I charge the by the luyvinge God, that thou tell vs, whether thou be Christ the sonne of God.

αὐτὸν ἔφηνον. <sup>57</sup> Οἱ δὲ κρατήσαντες τὸν Ἰησοῦν ἀπήγαγον πρὸς Καϊάφαν τὸν ἀρχιερέα, ὅπου οἱ γραμματεῖς καὶ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι συνήχθησαν. <sup>58</sup> Ὁ δὲ Πέτρος ἠκολούθει αὐτῷ ἀπὸ μακρόθεν, ἕως τῆς αὐλῆς τοῦ ἀρχιερέως· καὶ εἰσελθὼν ἔσω ἐκάθητο μετὰ τῶν ὑπηρετῶν, ἰδεῖν τὸ τέλος. <sup>59</sup> Οἱ δὲ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι καὶ τὸ συνέδριον ὅλον ἐξήτουν ψευδομαρτυρίαν κατὰ τοῦ Ἰησοῦ, ὅπως ἴθνατώσωσιν αὐτὸν, <sup>60</sup> καὶ οὐχ εὔρον· καὶ πολλῶν ψευδομαρτύρων προσελθόντων, οὐχ εὔρον. ὕστερον δὲ προσελθόντες δύο ψευδομάρτυρες <sup>61</sup> εἶπον, Ὁὗτος ἔφη, Δύναμι κα-
ταλύσαι τὸν ναὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ, καὶ διὰ τριῶν ἡμερῶν οἰκοδομήσαι αὐτόν. <sup>62</sup> Καὶ ἀναστὰς ὁ ἀρχιερεὺς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Οὐδὲν ἀποκρίνῃ; τί οὗτοί σου καταμαρτυροῦσιν; <sup>63</sup> Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἐσίωπα. καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς ὁ ἀρχιερεὺς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, Ἐξορκίζω σε
κατὰ τὸν Θεοῦ τοῦ ζώντος, ἵνα ἡμῖν εἴπῃς, εἰ σὺ εἶ ὁ Χριστὸς, ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ.

<sup>1</sup> Rec. αὐτὸν θανατώσει.

<sup>2</sup> Alex. πολλῶν ψευδομαρτύρων προσελθόντων.

<sup>3</sup> Alex. = ψευδομάρτυρες.

<sup>4</sup> Alex. = ἀποκριθεὶς.

GENEVA—1557.

RHEIMS—1582.

AUTHORISED—1611.

whereof art thou come? Then came they, and layd handes on Iesus and toke hym. <sup>51</sup> And beholde, one of them which were with Iesus, stretched out hys hande and drue hys sworde, and stroke a seruante of the hye Prieste, and smote of hys eare. <sup>52</sup> Then sayd Iesus vnto hym: Put vp thy sworde into his sheathe. For all that laye hand on the sworde, shal perishe with the sworde. <sup>53</sup> Eytner thinkest thou, that I can not now pray to my father, and he shal geue me mo then twelue Legions of Angels? <sup>54</sup> But how then should the Scriptures be fulfilled which say, that it must be so?

<sup>55</sup> The same tyme sayd Iesus to the multitude, Ye he come out as it were against a thefe, with swordes, and staues, for to take me. I sate dayly teaching in the temple among you, and ye toke me not. <sup>56</sup> But all this was done, that the Scriptures of the Prophets might be fulfilled. Then all the disciples forsoke hym, and fled. <sup>57</sup> And they toke Iesus, and led him to Caiáphas the hye Priest, where the Scribes and the Elders were assembled.

<sup>58</sup> And Peter folowed hym a farre of, vnto the hye Priestes place, and went in, and sate with the seruantes to see the end. <sup>59</sup> Now the chiefe Priestes and the Elders, and all the whole Counsel, sought false wittnes against Iesus, for to put him to death. <sup>60</sup> And they founde none: In-somuche, that when many false witnessnes came, yet found they none. At the last, came two false witnessnes, <sup>61</sup> And said, This fellow sayd, I can destroy the temple of God, and buyde it in three dayes. <sup>62</sup> And the chiefe Priest arose, and sayd to him, Answerest thou nothing? What is the matter that these men wittnes against thee? <sup>63</sup> But Iesus helde his peace. And the chiefe Priest answered, and sayd to him, I charge thee in the name of the liuyng God, that thou tel vs, whyther thou be Christe the Sonne of God.

art thou come? Then they dreve neere, and laid handes on Iesus, and held him. <sup>51</sup> And behold one of them that were vwith Iesus, stretching forth his hand, dreve out his sword: and striking the seruante of the high Priest, cut of his eare, <sup>52</sup> Then Iesus saith to him, Returne thy sword into his place: for al that take the sword, shal perish vwith the sword. <sup>53</sup> Thinkest thou that I cannot aske my Father: and he wvll giue me presently more then twelue legions of Angels? <sup>54</sup> Howv then shal the scriptures be fulfilled, that so it must be done?

<sup>55</sup> In that houre Iesus said to the multitudes: You are come out as it were to a theefe vwith swordes and clubbes to apprehend me: I sate daily vwith you teaching in the temple: and you laid no hands on me. <sup>56</sup> And al this vvas done, that the scriptures of the Prophets might be fulfilled. Then the disciples al leauing him, fled.

<sup>57</sup> But they taking hold of Iesus, led him to Caiphas the high Priest, vwhere the Scribes and auncients were assembled. <sup>58</sup> And Peter folowed him a farre, of, euen to the court of the high Priest. And going in he sate vwith the seruants, that he might see the end. <sup>59</sup> And the chiefe Priestes and the vvhole Council sought false wvttines against Iesus, that they might put him to death: <sup>60</sup> and they found not, vvhereas many false witnessnes had come in. And last of al there came two false witnessnes: <sup>61</sup> and they said, This man said, I am able to destroy the temple of God, and after three dayes to rectifie it. <sup>62</sup> And the high Priest rising vp, said to him: Answerest thou nothing to the things vvhich these do testifie against thee? <sup>63</sup> But Iesus held his peace. And the high Priest said to him: I adure thee by the liuyng God, that thou tel vs if thou be Christ the sonne of God.

Whereof art thou come? Then came they, and layde handes on Iesus, and tooke him. <sup>51</sup> And beholde, one of them which were with Iesus, stretched out his hand, and drew his sword, and stroke a seruante of the high Priest, and smote off his eare. <sup>52</sup> Then said Iesus vnto him, Put vp againe thy sword into his place: for all they that take the sword, shal perish with the sword. <sup>53</sup> Thinkest thou that I cannot now pray to my Father, and he shall presently giue mee more then twelue Legions of Angels? <sup>54</sup> But how then shall the Scriptures be fulfilled, that thus it must be?

<sup>55</sup> In that same houre said Iesus to the multitudes, Are ye come out as against a thiefe with swordes and staues for to take mee? I sate dayly with you teaching in the Temple, and ye layd no hold on me. <sup>56</sup> But all this was done, that the Scriptures of the Prophets might be fulfilled. Then all the disciples forsooke him and fled:

<sup>57</sup> And they that had layd hold on Iesus, led him away to Caiaphas the high Priest, where the Scribes and the Elders were assembled. <sup>58</sup> But Peter followed him afarre off, vnto the high Priestes palace, and went in, and sate with the seruants to see the end. <sup>59</sup> Now the chiefe Priestes and Elders, and all the Counsell, sought false witness against Iesus to put him to death, <sup>60</sup> But found none: yea, though many false witnessnes came, yet found they none. At the last came two false witnessnes. <sup>61</sup> And said, This fellow said, I am able to destroy the Temple of God, and to build it in three dayes. <sup>62</sup> And the high Priest arose, and said vnto him, Answerest thou nothing? what is it, which these witnessnes against thee? <sup>63</sup> But Iesus held his peace. And the high Priest answered, and said vnto him, I adure thee by the liuyng God, that thou tel vs, whether thou be the Christ the Sonne of God.

<sup>64</sup> Λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Ἐὶ εἶπας. πλὴν λέγω ὑμῖν, ἀπ' ἄρτι ὄψεσθε τὸν υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου καθήμενον ἐκ δεξιῶν τῆς δυνάμεως καὶ ἐρχόμενον ἐπὶ τῶν νεφελῶν τοῦ οὐρανοῦ. <sup>65</sup> Τότε ὁ ἀρχιερεὺς διέῤῥηξε τὰ ἱμάτια αὐτοῦ, λέγων, Ἐὶ ὅτι ἐβλασφήμησε· τί ἐτι χρεῖαν ἔχομεν μαρτύρων; ἴδε, νῦν ἠκούσατε τὴν βλασφημίαν αὐτοῦ. <sup>66</sup> Τί ὑμῖν δοκεῖ; Οἱ δὲ ἀποκριθέντες εἶπον, Ἐνοχος θανάτου ἐστὶ. <sup>67</sup> Τότε ἐπέπτυσαν εἰς τὸ πρόσωπον αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐκολάφισαν αὐτόν· οἱ δὲ ἐῤῥάπισαν, <sup>68</sup> λέγοντες, Προφήτευσον ἡμῖν, Χριστὲ, τίς ἐστὶν ὁ παῖσας σε; <sup>69</sup> Ὁ δὲ Πέτρος ἔξω ἐκάθητο ἐν τῇ αὐλῇ, καὶ προσῆλθεν αὐτῷ μία παιδίσκη, λέγουσα, Καὶ σὺ ἦσθα μετὰ Ἰησοῦ τοῦ Γαλιλαίου. <sup>70</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἠρνήσατο ἐμπροσθεν αὐτῶν πάντων, λέγων, Οὐκ οἶδα τί λέγεις. <sup>71</sup> Ἐξελθόντα δὲ αὐτὸν εἰς τὸν πυλῶνα, εἶδεν αὐτὸν ἄλλη καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, Ἐκεῖ καὶ οὗτος ἦν μετὰ Ἰησοῦ

<sup>64</sup> Alex. = ὄρι. <sup>65</sup> Alex. = αὐτῷ. <sup>66</sup> Alex. ἰράπισαν. <sup>67</sup> Rec. = αὐτῶν. <sup>68</sup> Alex. Ἐξελθόντα εἰς τὸν πυλῶνα. <sup>69</sup> Rec. τοῖς ἐκτὸς καὶ, καὶ.

WICLIFF—1380.

<sup>64</sup> ihesus seide to hym; thou hast seide; nethelcs I seye to zou fro hennes forth ze schulen se mannes sonne sittinge at the riȝthalf of the vertu of god: ⁊ comynge in the cloudis of heuenes.

<sup>65</sup> thanne the prynee of preccis to rente hise clothis; and seide, he hath blasfemed, what ȝif han we neede to witness? lo now ze han herd blasfemy, <sup>66</sup> what semeth to zou? ⁊ thei answereden ⁊ seiden, he is gilti of deeth; <sup>67</sup> thanne thei spetten in to his face, and smote hym with buffetis; other ȝauen strokis with the pawme of her hondis in his face, <sup>68</sup> ⁊ seiden thou crist arede to us, who is he that smote thee?

<sup>69</sup> and petir sate with outen in the halle; ⁊ a damysel cam to hym ⁊ seide; thou were with ihesus of galile, <sup>70</sup> ⁊ he denyed before alle men ⁊ seide, I woot not what thou sest, <sup>71</sup> and whanne he zede out at the gate; another damysel saȝ hym; and seide to hem that were there; ⁊ this was with ihesus of nazareth, <sup>72</sup> ⁊ etfson he denyede with oon ooth for I knewe not the man; <sup>73</sup> ⁊ a litil aftir, thei that stoden camen; and seiden to petir truli thou art of hem; for thi speche makith thee known; <sup>74</sup> thanne he bigan to warie and to swere that he knewe not the man; ⁊ anon the cok crewe, <sup>75</sup> ⁊ petir bihouȝt on the word of ihesus that he hadde seide; bifor the cok croue; thries thou schalt denye me; ⁊ he zede out ⁊ wepte bittirli.

27. BUT whanne the morwete was come: alle the princesse of preccis ⁊ the eldere men of the puple token a conceil agens ihesus; that thei schulden taken hym to the deeth; <sup>2</sup> ⁊ thei ledde hym bounden; ⁊ bitook to pilat of pounce iustice;

<sup>3</sup> thanne iudas that bitraied hym, saȝ that he was dampned; he repented ⁊ hrouȝte agen the thirti pene to the princis of preccis ⁊ to the eldere men of the puple; <sup>4</sup> ⁊ seide, I haue synned bitraynynge

<sup>1</sup> = iuris, power. = rode declare. woot, know. = gen, against.

<sup>2</sup> = sent. = thone, again. = warie, curse. = gen, against.

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>64</sup> Iesus sayd to him: thou haste sayd. Neverthelesse I saye vnto you: hereafter shall ye se the sonne of man syttinge on the riȝht honde of power, and come in the cloudwes of the skye.

<sup>65</sup> Then the hye preste rent his clothes sayinge: He hath blasphemed; what neede we of eny moo witnesses? Behold now ye have hearde his blasphemy: <sup>66</sup> what thinke ye? They answered and sayd: he his worthy to dye. <sup>67</sup> Then spat they in his face, and buffeted him with fistes. And other smote him with the palme of their hondes on the face, <sup>68</sup> sayinge: tell vs thou Christ, who is he that smote thee? <sup>69</sup> Peter sate with out in the palce.

And a damsell came to him sayinge: Thou also wast with Iesus of Galilee: <sup>70</sup> but he denyed before them all sayinge: I woot not what thou sayst. <sup>71</sup> When he was gone out into the porche; a nother wenche sawe him; and sayde vnto them that were there: This felowe was also with Iesus of Nazareth. <sup>72</sup> And agayne he denyed with an oothe that he knewe the man. <sup>73</sup> And after a whyle came vnto him they that stode bye; and sayde vnto Peter: surely thou arte euen one of them; for thy speache bewrayeth the. <sup>74</sup> Then beganne he to course and to sweare; that he knewe not the man. And immediatly the cocke krew. <sup>75</sup> And Peter remembered the wordes of Iesu which sayde vnto him: before the cocke crowe; thou shalt deny me thryse: and went out at the dores and wepte bitterly.

27. WHEN the mornynge was come; all the chefe prestes and the elders of the people helde a counsaile agens Iesu to put him to deeth, <sup>2</sup> and brought him bounde and delivered him vnto Poncius Pilate the debite.

<sup>3</sup> Then when Iudas which betrayed him; sawe that he was condempned; he repented him sylfe; and brought ageyne the .xxx. plattes of sylver to the chefe prestes and elders; <sup>4</sup> sayinge: I haue synned be-

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>64</sup> Iesus sayth vnto him, thou hast sayd. Neuerthelesse I saye vnto you here after shall ye se the sonne of man syttinge on the riȝht hande of power, and comynge in the cloudes of the skye.

<sup>65</sup> Then [the] hye preste rent his clothes, sayinge: he hath spoken blasphemye; what neede we of eny moo witnesses? Beholde, now ye haue hearde his blasphemy; <sup>66</sup> what thinke ye? They answered, and sayde: he is worthy to dye: <sup>67</sup> Then dyd they spytt in hys face, and buffeted hym wyth fistes. And other smote him on hys face wyth the palme of their handes, <sup>68</sup> sayinge: tell vs thou Christ, who is he that smote thee?

<sup>69</sup> Peter sat with out in the palce. And a damsell came to him, sayinge: Thou also wast with Iesus of Galile: <sup>70</sup> but he denyed before them all, sayinge, I woot not what thou sayst. <sup>71</sup> When he was gone out into the porche, a nother wenche sawe hym, and sayde vnto them that were there: Thys felowe was also wyth Iesus of Nazareth. <sup>72</sup> And agayne he denyed wyth an othe: (sayeng). I do not know the man. <sup>73</sup> And after a whyle, came vnto hym they (that stode by) and sayde vnto Peter, surely thou art euen one of them, for thy speach bewrayeth the. <sup>74</sup> Then beganne he to course and to sweare, that he knewe not the man. And immediatly the cocke krew. <sup>75</sup> And Peter remembered the worde of Iesu, which sayde vnto him: before the cocke crow, thou shalt denye me thryse: and he went out, and wepte bitterly.

27. WHEN the mornynge was come, all the chefe prestes and the elders of the people helde a counsaile agaynst Iesu, to put hym to deeth, <sup>2</sup> and brought hym bounde and deliuered hym vnto Poncius Pylate the debite.

<sup>3</sup> Then Iudas (whych had betrayed hym) seyng that he was condempned, repented hym sylfe, and brought agayne the thirtye plates of syluer, to the chefe Prestes and elders, <sup>4</sup> sayinge: I haue synned, betraynynge

‘ τοῦ Ναζωραίου.’ <sup>72</sup> Καὶ πάλιν ἠρνήσατο μεθ’ ὄρκου, ‘ Ὅτι οὐκ οἶδα τὸν ἄνθρωπον.’
<sup>73</sup> Μετὰ μικρὸν δὲ προσελθόντες οἱ ἐστώτες εἶπον τῷ Πέτρῳ, ‘ Ἀληθῶς καὶ σὺ ‘ ἐξ αὐτῶν εἶ· καὶ γὰρ ἡ λαλιά σου δῆλόν σε ποιεῖ.’ <sup>74</sup> Τότε ἤρξατο <sup>a</sup> καταθεματίζειν| καὶ ὀμνύειν, ‘ Ὅτι οὐκ οἶδα τὸν ἄνθρωπον.’ Καὶ εὐθέως ἀλέκτωρ ἐφώνησε.
<sup>75</sup> καὶ ἐμήθησθ ὁ Πέτρος τοῦ ῥήματος ‘ τοῦ| Ἰησοῦ εἰρηκότος <sup>f</sup> αὐτῶ|, ‘ Ὅτι πρὶν
 ‘ ἀλέκτορα φωνῆσαι, τρίς ἀπαρνήθη με’ Καὶ ἐξελθὼν ἐξω ἔκλαυσε πικρῶς.

XXVII. Πρωτίας δὲ γενομένης, συμβούλιον ἔλαβον πάντες οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι τοῦ λαοῦ κατὰ τοῦ Ἰησοῦ, ὥστε θανατώσαι αὐτόν. <sup>2</sup> καὶ δήσαντες
 αὐτὸν ἀπήγαγον, καὶ παρέδωκαν <sup>9</sup> αὐτὸν| <sup>h</sup> Ποντίῳ| Πιλάτῳ τῷ ἡγεμόνι. <sup>3</sup> Τότε
 ἰδὼν Ἰούδας ὁ παραδιδούς αὐτὸν, ὅτι κατεκρίθη, μεταμεληθεὶς ἀπέστρεψε τὰ τριά-κοντα ἀργύρια τοῖς ἀρχιερεῦσι καὶ ‘ τοῖς| πρεσβυτέροις, <sup>4</sup> λέγων ‘ Ἡμαρτον

<sup>a</sup> Rec. καταθεματίζεν.

<sup>c</sup> Alex. = τοῦ.

<sup>f</sup> Alex. = αὐτῶ.

<sup>g</sup> Alex. = αὐτὸν.

<sup>h</sup> Alex. = Ποντίῳ.

<sup>i</sup> Alex. = τοῖς.

GENEVA—1557.

RHEIMS—1582.

AUTHORISED—1611.

<sup>64</sup> Iesus saith to him, thou hast said it. Neuertheless, I say vnto you, hereafter shal ye see the Sonne of man, sitting at the right hand of the myghtie God and come in the cloudes of the skye.

<sup>65</sup> Then the hye Priest rent his clothes, saying, He hath blasphemed: What neede we of any mo wytnesses? Beholde, now ye haue heard his blasphemie, <sup>66</sup> Now he saith ye? They answered, and said, He is worthy to dye, <sup>67</sup> Then spat they in his face, and buffeted hym. And other smote hym with their rodde, <sup>68</sup> Saying, Prophecie to vs Christ, Who is he that smote thee? <sup>69</sup> Peter sate without in the hall. And a mayde came to hym saying, Thou also wast with Iesus of Galilee. <sup>70</sup> But he denied before them all, saying, I wot not what thou sayst. <sup>71</sup> And when he went out into the porche, another mayde sawe him, and sayd vnto them that were there, This fellow was also with Iesus of Nazareth. <sup>72</sup> And agayne he denied wth an othe, saying, I knowe not the man. <sup>73</sup> And after a while, came vnto him they that stode by, and sayd vnto Peter, Surely thou art euen one of them, for thy speache bewrayeth thee. <sup>74</sup> Then began he to curse him selfe and to sweare, saying, I know not the man. And immediately the cocke crewe. <sup>75</sup> And Peter remembered the wordes of Iesu, which sayd vnto him, Before the cocke crewe, thou shalt deny me thrise, and went out, and wept bitterly.

27. VVHEN the mornynge was come, all the chief Priestes, and the Elders of the people tooke counsell agaynst Iesus, to put hym to death. <sup>2</sup> And brought him bound, and deliuered him vnto Pontius Pilate the Deputie. <sup>3</sup> Then when Iudas which betrayed hym, sawe that he was condemned, he repented hym self, and brought agayne the thirty peeces of syluer to the chief Priestes and Elders, <sup>4</sup> Saying,

<sup>64</sup> Iesus saith vnto him, Thou hast said, neuertheless I say to you, hereafter you shall see the Sonne of man sitting on the right hand of the pover of God, and coming in the cloudes of heauen. <sup>65</sup> Then the high Priest rent his garments, saying, He hath blasphemed, vvhath neede vve wytnesses any further? behold, now you haue heard the blasphemie, <sup>66</sup> howv thinke you? But they answering said, He is guilty of death. <sup>67</sup> Then did they spit on his face, and buffeted him, and other smote his face vwith the palmes of their hands, <sup>68</sup> saying, Prophecie vnto vs O Christ: vvhv is he that strooke thee?

<sup>69</sup> But Peter sate vwithout in the court: and there came to him one vvenche, saying: Thou also vvasst vwith Iesus the Galilean. <sup>70</sup> But he denied before them all, saying, I vivot not vvhvth thou sayest. <sup>71</sup> And as he vvent out of the gate, an other vvenche savv him, and she saith to them that vvere there, And this felovv also vvas vwith Iesus the Nazarite. <sup>72</sup> And againe he denied vwith an othe, That I knowv not the man. <sup>73</sup> And after a litle they came that stode by, and said to Peter, Surely thou also art of them: for euen thy speache doth bevray thee. <sup>74</sup> Then he began to curse and to svveare that he knevve not the man. And inconten- tiant the cocke crewe. <sup>75</sup> And Peter remembred the vvord of Iesus vvhich he had said, Before the cocke crovv, thou shalt deny me thrise. And going forth, he vvvept bitterly.

27. AND vvhvhen morning vvas come, all the cheefe Priestes and aunicients of the people consulted together agaynst Iesus, that they might put him to death. <sup>2</sup> And they brought him bound and deliuered him to Ponce Pilate the President.

<sup>3</sup> Then Iudas that betrayed him, seeing that he vvas condemned, repenting him, returned the thirtie silver peeces to the cheefe Priestes and aunicients, <sup>4</sup> saying, I

<sup>64</sup> Iesus saith vnto him, Thou hast said: Neuertheless I say vnto you, Hereafter shall ye see the Sonne of man sitting on the Right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heauen. <sup>65</sup> Then the high Priest rent his clothes, saying, He hath spoken blasphemie: what further neede haue we of wytnesses? Behold, now ye haue heard his blasphemie. <sup>66</sup> What thinke ye? They answered and said, He is guilty of death. <sup>67</sup> Then did they spit in his face, and buffeted him, and others smote him wth the palmes of their hands, <sup>68</sup> saying, Prophecie vnto vs, thou Christ, who is he that smote thee?

<sup>69</sup> Now Peter sate without in the palace: and a damosell came vnto him, saying, Thou also wast with Iesus of Galilee. <sup>70</sup> But hee denied before them all, saying, I know not what thou sayest. <sup>71</sup> And when he was gone out into the porch, another maid saw him, and said vnto them that were there, This fellow was also with Iesus of Nazareth. <sup>72</sup> And againe hee denied with an oath, I doe not know the man. <sup>73</sup> And after a while came vnto him they that stood by, and said to Peter, Surely thou also art one of them, for thy speache bewrayeth thee. <sup>74</sup> Then began hee to curse and to sweare, saying, I know not the man. And immediately the cocke crewe. <sup>75</sup> And Peter remembered the words of Iesus, which said vnto him, Before the cocke crow, thou shalt denie me thrice. And he went out, and wept bitterly.

27. WHEN the morning was come, all the chief Priests and Elders of the people, tooke counsell against Iesus to put him to death. <sup>2</sup> And when they had bound him, they led him away, and deliuered him to Pontius Pilate the gouernour. <sup>3</sup> Then Iudas, which had betrayed him, when he saw that he was condemned, repented himselfe, and brought agayne the thirtie peeces of siluer to the chief Priests and Elders, <sup>4</sup> saying, I haue sinned, in rijful blood; τ the seiden; what to us; hi se thee; <sup>5</sup> and whanne he hadde caste forth the siluer in the temple; he passid forth τ jede τ hangide hym silf with a snare;

‘ παραδούς αἷμα ἀθῶν.’ Οἱ δὲ εἶπον, ‘ Τί πρὸς ἡμᾶς ; σὺ ὄψῃ.’<sup>5</sup> Καὶ ῥίψας τὰ ἀργύρια ἐν τῷ ναῷ, ἀνεχώρησε· καὶ ἀπελθὼν ἀπήγγεστο. <sup>6</sup> Οἱ δὲ ἀρχιερεῖς λαβόντες τὰ ἀργύρια εἶπον, ‘ Οὐκ ἔξοστι βαλεῖν αὐτὰ εἰς τὸν κορβανᾶν, ἐπεὶ τιμὴ αἱματός ἐστι.’ <sup>7</sup> Συμβούλιον δὲ λαβόντες, ἠγόρασαν ἐξ αὐτῶν τὸν ἀγρὸν τοῦ κεραμέως, εἰς ταφὴν τοῖς ξένοις. <sup>8</sup> διὸ ἐκλήθη ὁ ἀγρὸς ἐκεῖνος ἀγρὸς αἱματος, ἕως τῆς σήμερον. <sup>9</sup> τότε ἐπληρώθη τὸ ρηθὲν διὰ Ἰερεμίου τοῦ προφήτου, λέγοντος, ‘ Καὶ ἔλαβον τὰ τριάκοντα ἀργύρια, τὴν τιμὴν τοῦ τετιμημένου, ὃν ἐτιμῆσατο, ἀπὸ υἱῶν Ἰσραὴλ.’ <sup>10</sup> καὶ ἔδωκαν αὐτὰ εἰς τὸν ἀγρὸν τοῦ κεραμέως, καθὰ συνέταξέ μοι Κύριος.’ <sup>11</sup> Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἔστη ἔμπροσθεν τοῦ ἡγεμόνος· καὶ ἐπρώτησεν αὐτὸν ὁ ἡγεμὼν, λέγων, ‘ Σὺ εἶ ὁ βασιλεὺς τῶν Ἰουδαίων ;’ Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς ἔφη αὐτῷ, ‘ Σὺ

<sup>4</sup> Rec. εὐσε.<sup>4</sup> Alex. εἰς τὸν ναόν.

WICLIFF—1380.

<sup>6</sup> τ the pryncis of prestis token the siluer ξ seiden; it is not leful to putte it in to the tresorie; for it is the prys of blood; <sup>7</sup> τ whanne thei hadden taken counceil thei bougten with it a felde of a potter, in to biringyn of pilgremes; <sup>8</sup> herfore thilke felde is clepid a child mak, that is a feld of blood in to this day; <sup>9</sup> thanne that was fulfillid, that was seide bi the profete Ieremye seynge; and thei han taken .xxx. pens the prise of a man preisid whom thei presiden of the children of Israel; <sup>10</sup> τ thei zauen hem to a felde of a pottere, as the lord hath ordeinede to me; <sup>11</sup> τ ihesus stode before the domesman, τ the iustice axede hym τ seide; art thou king of iewis? ihesus seith to hym; thou seist; <sup>12</sup> τ whanne he was acused of the pryncis of prestis τ of the eldere men of the puple; he answerid nothing; <sup>13</sup> thanne pilate seith to hym; herist thou not hou many witnessyngeis thei seien agens thee? <sup>14</sup> τ he answeride not to him a word, so that the iustise wondrid greeth;

<sup>15</sup> but for a solempe day the iustise was wonte, to deluyere to the puple oon bounden, whom thei wolden; <sup>16</sup> τ he hadde tho a famous man bounden that was seide barrabas; <sup>17</sup> therefore pilat seide to hem whanne thei weren to gidre; whom wolen ze that I deluyere to zou, wher barrabas; or ihesus that is seide erist? <sup>18</sup> for he wiste; that bi enyie thei biraideyn hym;

<sup>19</sup> and while he sat for domesman, his wiif sente to him τ seide; no thing to thee; τ to that iust man; for I haue suffride this day many thingis for hym bi a visoun;

<sup>20</sup> forsothe the pryncis of prestis and the eldren men counceileden the puple that thei schulden axe barrabas; but thei schuld-

hi se, see or look, jede, went. thilke, that, clepid, called, zauen, gave. domesman, judge. seyns, against. wiste, knewe.

TYNDALE—1534.

trayinge the innocent bloud. And they sayde; what is that to vs? Se thou to that. <sup>5</sup> And he cast doune the sylver plattes in the temple and departed; and went and hounge him sylfe.

<sup>6</sup> And the chefe prestes toke the sylver plattes and sayd; it is not lawfull for to put them in to the tresury, because it is the pryce of bloud. <sup>7</sup> And they toke counsell; and bought with them a potters felde to bury strangers in. <sup>8</sup> Wherefore that felde is called the felde of bloud; vntyll this daye. <sup>9</sup> Then was fulfilled; that which was spoken by Ieremy the Prophet sayinge; and they toke .xxx. sylver plattes, the prise of him that was valued; whom they bought of the chyldren of Israel; <sup>10</sup> and they gave them for the potters felde; as the Lorde appointed me.

<sup>11</sup> Iesus stode before the debite; and the debite axed him sayinge; Arte thou the kynge of the Iues? Iesus sayd vnto him; Thou sayest; <sup>12</sup> and when he was accused of the chefe prestes and elders; he answered nothinge. <sup>13</sup> Then sayd Pilate vnto him; hearest thou not how many thinges they laye ageynste the? <sup>14</sup> And he answered him to never a worde; in somoche that the debite marveyllid greatlye.

<sup>15</sup> At that feest; the debite was wonte to deliver vnto the people a presoner; whom they wolde desyer. <sup>16</sup> He had then a notable presoner; called Barrabas. <sup>17</sup> And when they were gadered together; Pilate sayde vnto them; whether wyll ye that I geue losse vnto you Barrabas or Iesus which is called Christ? <sup>18</sup> For he knewe well; that for envie they had delivred him.

<sup>19</sup> When he was set doune to geve iudgement; his wyfe sent to him sayinge; have thou nothinge to do with that iust man. For I have suffered many thinges this daye in adream about him.

<sup>20</sup> But the chefe preestes and the elders had perswaded the people; that they shulde axe Barrabas; and shulde destroye

CRANMER—1539.

the innocent bloud. And they sayd; what is that to vs? Se thou to that. <sup>5</sup> And he cast doune the syluer plates in the temple, and departed and went and hanged hym selfe.

<sup>6</sup> And the chefe prestes toke the syluer plates and sayd; it is not lawfull for to put them into the treasure, because it is the pryce of bloud. <sup>7</sup> And they toke counsell; and bought with them a potters felde to bury straungers in. <sup>8</sup> Wherefore the felde is called (Haceldema, that is,) the felde of bloud, vntyll this daye. <sup>9</sup> Then was fulfilled, that which was spoken by Ieremy the Prophet, sayinge; and they toke thirty syluer plates, the prise of hym that was valued, whom they bought of the chyldren of Israel; <sup>10</sup> and gave them for the potters felde, as the Lorde appointed me. <sup>11</sup> Iesus stode before the debite; and the debite asked him, sayinge; art thou the kyng of the Iewes? Iesus sayeth vnto hym; Thou sayest. <sup>12</sup> And when he was accused of the chefe prestes and elders, he answered nothynge. <sup>13</sup> Then sayeth Pilate vnto hym; hearest thou not, how many witnesses they laye agaynst the? <sup>14</sup> And he answered hym to neuer a worde; in so moche that the debite marveyllid greatlye.

<sup>15</sup> At that feest, the debite was wonte to deluyere vnto the people a presoner, whom they wold desier. <sup>16</sup> He had then a notable presoner, called Barrabas. <sup>17</sup> Therefore, when they were gathered together, Pilate sayd; whether wil ye that I geue loosse vnto you? Barrabas, or Iesus, which is called Christ? <sup>18</sup> For he knewe, that for enyie they had deluyered hym.

<sup>19</sup> When he was set doune to geue iudgement, his wyfe sent vnto hym sayinge; haue thou nothinge to do with that iust man. For I haue suffered many thinges this daye in slepe because of hym. <sup>20</sup> But the chefe prestes and the elders perswaded the people, that they shulde aske Barra-

‘λέγεις.’<sup>12</sup> Καὶ ἐν τῷ κατηγορεῖσθαι αὐτὸν ὑπὸ τῶν ἀρχιερέων καὶ τῶν πρεσβυτέρων, οὐδὲν ἀπεκρίνατο.<sup>13</sup> τότε λέγει αὐτῷ ὁ Πιλάτος, ‘Οὐκ ἀκούεις πόσα σοῦ καταμαρτυροῦσι;’<sup>14</sup> Καὶ οὐκ ἀπεκρίθη αὐτῷ πρὸς οὐδὲν ἐν ῥῆμα, ὥστε θαυμάζειν τὸν ἡγεμόνα λίαν.<sup>15</sup> Κατὰ δὲ ἐορτὴν εἰώθει ὁ ἡγεμὸν ἀπολύειν ἓνα τῶ ὄχλου δέσμιον, ὃν ἤθελον.<sup>16</sup> εἶχον δὲ τότε δέσμιον ἐπίσημον, λεγόμενον Βαραββᾶν.<sup>17</sup> συνηγμένων οὖν αὐτῶν, εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Πιλάτος, ‘Τίνα θέλετε ἀπολύσω ὑμῖν; Βαραββᾶν, ἢ Ἰησοῦν τὸν λεγόμενον Χριστόν;’<sup>18</sup> Ἡδὲ γὰρ ὅτι διὰ φθόνου παρέδωκαν αὐτόν.<sup>19</sup> Καθημένον δὲ αὐτοῦ ἐπὶ τοῦ βήματος, ἀπέστειλε πρὸς αὐτὸν ἡ γυνὴ αὐτοῦ, λέγουσα, ‘Μηδὲν σοὶ καὶ τῷ δικαίῳ ἐκείνῳ· πολλὰ γὰρ ἔπαθον σήμερον κατ’ ὄναρ δι’ αὐτόν.’<sup>20</sup> Οἱ δὲ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι ἔπεισαν τοὺς ὄχλους, ἵνα αἰτή-

GENEVA — 1557.

I have sinned betraying the innocent blood. And they said, What is that to vs? See thou to that. <sup>5</sup> And he cast downe the syluer peeces in the temple, and departed, and went and hanged him self.

<sup>6</sup> The chiefe Priestes toke the syluer peeces, and said, It is not lawfull for vs to put them into the treasure, because it is the price of bloude. <sup>7</sup> And they toke counsel, and bought with them a potters fiede, to bury strangers in. <sup>8</sup> Wherefore, that fiede is called the fiede of bloude, vntyl this day. <sup>9</sup> (Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Ieremie the Prophet, saying, And they toke thirty syluer peeces, the price of him that was valued, whome they bought of the chyldren of Israel. <sup>10</sup> And they gaue them for the potters fiede, as the Lord appointed me.)

<sup>11</sup> And Iesus stode before the Deputie, and the Deputie asked him, saying, Art thou the kyng of the Iewes? Iesus sayd vnto hym, Thou sayest so. <sup>12</sup> And when he was accused of the chief Priestes, and Elders, he answered nothing. <sup>13</sup> Then sayd Pilate vnto him, Hearst thou not how many things they laye against thee? <sup>14</sup> And he answered him to neuer a worde in so much, that the Deputie merueyled greatly. <sup>15</sup> And at that feast, the Deputie was wont to deliuer vnto the people a prysoner, whom they would desire. <sup>16</sup> They had then a notable prisoner, called Barabbas.

<sup>17</sup> When they were then gathered together, Pilate sayd vnto them, Whether wyl ye that I geue loose vnto you, Barabbas, or Iesus which is called Christe? <sup>18</sup> For he knewe wel, that for eniue they had deliuered him. <sup>19</sup> When he was set downe to geue iudgement, his wyfe sent to hym, saying, Haue thou nothing to do with that iuste man. For I haue suffered many thynges thys day in my dreame by reason of him. <sup>20</sup> But the chiefe Priestes and the Elders, had perswaded the people, that they shulde aske Barabbas, and shulde destroy Iesus.

RHEIMS—1582.

they sinned, betraying iust blood. But they said, What is that to vs? looke thou to it. <sup>5</sup> And casting downe the siluer peeces in the temple, he departed: and vvent and hanged him self vwith an halter. <sup>6</sup> And the cheefe Priestes hauing taken the siluer peeces, said, It is not lawfull to cast them into the Córbaná: because it is the price of blood. <sup>7</sup> And after they had consulted together, they bought vwith them the potters field, to be a burying place for strangers. <sup>8</sup> For this cause that field vvas called Haceldama, that is, the field of blood, euen to this present day. <sup>9</sup> Then vvas fulfilled that vvhich vvas spoken by Ieremie the Prophet, saying, And they tooke the thirtie peeces of siluer, the price of the priced, vvhom they did price of the children of Israel: 10 and they gaue them into the potters field, as our Lord did appoint to me.

<sup>11</sup> And Iesvs stode before the President, and the President asked him, saying, Art thou the King of the Iewes? Iesvs saith to him, Thou sayest. <sup>12</sup> And vwhen he vvas accused of the cheefe Priestes and auncients, he answered nothing. <sup>13</sup> Then Pilate saith to him, Doest thou not heare hovv many testimonies they alleage against thee? <sup>14</sup> And he answered him not a ny vword: so that the President did maruel exceedingly.

<sup>15</sup> And vpon the solemne day the President had accustomed to release vnto the people one prisoner vvhom they vwould. <sup>16</sup> And he had then a notorious prisoner, that vvas called Barabbas. <sup>17</sup> They therefore being gathered together, Pilate said: Whom vvil you that I release to you, Barabbas, or Iesvs that is called Christ? <sup>18</sup> For he knewe that for eniue they had deliuered him. <sup>19</sup> And as he vvas sitting in place of iudgment, his vvife sent vnto him, saying: Haue thou nothing to doe vwith that iust man. For I haue suffred many things this day in my sleepe for him. <sup>20</sup> But the cheefe Priestes and auncients perswaded the people, that they should aske Barabbas, and make Iesvs that I haue betrayed the innocent blood. And they said, What is that to vs? see thou to that. <sup>5</sup> And he cast downe the peeces of siluer in the Temple, and departed, and went and hanged himselfe.

AUTHORISED—1611.

<sup>6</sup> And the chiefe Priestes tooke the siluer peeces, and said, It is not lawfull for to put them into the Treasure, because it is the price of blood. <sup>7</sup> And they tooke counsell, and bought with them the potters field, to burie strangers in. <sup>8</sup> Wherefore that field was called, The field of blood vnto this day. <sup>9</sup> (Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Ieremie the Prophet, saying, And they tooke the thirtie peeces of siluer, the price of him that was valued, <sup>10</sup> whom they of the children of Israel did value: <sup>10</sup> And gaue them for the potters field, as the Lord appointed me.) <sup>11</sup> And Iesus stood before the gouernour, and the gouernour asked him, saying: Art thou the King of the Iewes? And Iesus said vnto him, Thou sayest. <sup>12</sup> And when he was accused of the chiefe Priests and Elders, he answered nothing. <sup>13</sup> Then saith Pilate vnto him, Hearst thou not how many things they witness against thee? <sup>14</sup> And he answered him to neuer a word: insomuch that the Gouernour marueled greatly. <sup>15</sup> Now at that Feast the Gouernour was wont to release vnto the people a prisoner, whom they would. <sup>16</sup> And they had then a notable prisoner, called Barabbas. <sup>17</sup> Therefore when they were gathered together, Pilate said vnto them, Whom wil ye that I release vnto you? Barabbas, or Iesus, which is called Christ? <sup>18</sup> For hee knew that for eniue they had deliuered him.

<sup>19</sup> When he was set downe on the Iudgement seate, his wife sent vnto him, saying, Haue thou nothing to doe with that iust man: for I haue suffered many things this day in a dreame, because of him. <sup>20</sup> But the chiefe Priests and Elders perswaded the multitude that they should aske Barabbas, and destroy Iesus.

* Or, whom they bought of the children of Israel.

σονται τὸν Βαραββάν, τὸν δὲ Ἰησοῦν ἀπολέσωσιν. <sup>21</sup> ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ ἡγεμὼν εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, 'Τίνα θέλετε ἀπὸ τῶν δύο ἀπολύσω ὑμῖν;' Οἱ δὲ εἶπον, 'Βαραββάν.' <sup>22</sup> Λέγει αὐτοῖς ὁ Πιλάτος, 'Τί οὖν ποιήσω Ἰησοῦν τὸν λεγόμενον Χριστόν;' Λέγουσιν αὐτῷ πάντες, 'Σταυρωθήτω.' <sup>23</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἡγεμὼν ἔφη, 'Τί γὰρ κακὸν ἐποίησεν;' Οἱ δὲ περισσῶς ἔκραζον, λέγοντες, 'Σταυρωθήτω.' <sup>24</sup> Ἰδὼν δὲ ὁ Πιλάτος, ὅτι οὐδὲν ὠφελεῖ, ἀλλὰ μᾶλλον θόρυβος γίνεται, λαβὼν ὕδωρ, ἀπενύψατο τὰς χεῖρας ἀπέναντι τοῦ ὄχλου, λέγων, 'Ἀθῶός εἰμι ἀπὸ τοῦ αἵματος τοῦ δικαίου τοῦτου· ὑμεῖς ὄψεσθε.' <sup>25</sup> Καὶ ἀποκριθεὶς πᾶς ὁ λαὸς εἶπε, 'Τὸ αἷμα αὐτοῦ ἐφ' ἡμᾶς καὶ ἐπὶ τὰ τέκνα ἡμῶν.' <sup>26</sup> Τότε ἀπέλυσεν αὐτοῖς τὸν Βαραββάν· τὸν δὲ Ἰησοῦν φραγελλώσας παρέδωκεν ἵνα σταυρωθῇ. <sup>27</sup> Τότε οἱ στρατιῶται τοῦ ἡγεμόνος, παραλαβόντες τὸν Ἰησοῦν εἰς τὸ πραιτώριον, συνήγαγον ἐπ' αὐτὸν ὄλην

<sup>21</sup> Alex. = ἀπέψ.<sup>22</sup> Alex. χαλιμάκια κοσμίην περιθῆκαν αὐτῷ.<sup>23</sup> Alex. ἐν τῇ ἑξῆϊ.<sup>24</sup> Alex. ἐπιπέσαν.<sup>25</sup> Rec. ὄς.

WICLIFF—1380.

en distrie ihesus; <sup>21</sup> but the iustice answerid & seide; whom of the twyne wolen ze that be deluyered to you? & thei seiden; barabas; <sup>22</sup> pilat seith to hem; what thanne sebal I do of ihesus that is seid crist; alle seiden he he crucified; <sup>23</sup> the iustise seith to hem; what yuel hath he don? & thei crieden more and seiden; be he crucified.

<sup>24</sup> And pilat seyng that he profitid nothing; but that the more noise was made; toke watir and waschid hise hondis bifor the puple and seide; I am giltye of the blood of this riȝtful man; bi se you. <sup>25</sup> And alle the puple answeriden and seiden; hise bloode be on us and on our children; <sup>26</sup> Thanne he deluyered to hem barabas; but he toke to hem ihesus scourgid to be crucifiede;

<sup>27</sup> thanne knyghtis of the iustise token ihesus in the moote halle, and gaderiden to him alle the company of knyghtis; <sup>28</sup> and thei vncloutheden hym and diden aboute hym a reede mantil; <sup>29</sup> and thei foldyng a crowne of thornes putten on hise heede, and a reed in hise riȝthonde; and thei kneleden bifor hym and scorneden hym and seiden; hail kyng of iewis; <sup>30</sup> and thei spetten on hym; and token a reed and smoot hise heed;

<sup>31</sup> and aftir that the hadden scorneden hym; thei vnclouthiden hym of the mantil, and thei clotheden hym with hise clothis and ledden hym to crucifie; <sup>32</sup> and as thei seden out; thei founden a man of syrenen comyng from the towne; Symound bi name; thei constrayneden hym to take hise crosse; <sup>33</sup> and thei camen in to a place; that is cleped golgatha, that is the place of caluari; <sup>34</sup> and thei ȝaue hym to drynke wyne meynede with galle, and whanne he hadde tastid; he wolde not drynke; <sup>35</sup> and aftir that thei hadden crucified hym, thei departiden hise clothis and Kesten lo to fulfillle that is seid bi the profete seyng; thei partiden to hem my clothis; and on my clothe; thei Kesten

wolen, said, yuel, evil bi se, see or look, knyghtis, wolders in ste halle, court hall, syren, went, ȝaue, galle, meynede, ounged, cleped, called.

TYNDALE—1534.

Jesus. <sup>21</sup> Then the debite answered and sayde vnto them: whether of the twayne wyll ye that I let loose vnto you? And they sayde; Barrabas. <sup>22</sup> Pilate sayde vnto them: what shall I do then with Iesus which is called Christ? They all sayde to him: let him be crucified. <sup>23</sup> Then sayde the debite: what evyll hath he done? And they cryed the more sayinge: let him be crucified. <sup>24</sup> When Pilate sawe that he preyvald nothinge; but that moare busines was made; he toke water and washed hise hondes before the people sayinge: I am innocent of the blood of this iuste person; and that ye shall se. <sup>25</sup> Then answered all the people and sayde: his blood be on vs; and on our chylren. <sup>26</sup> Then let he Barrabas loose vnto them; and scourged Iesus and deliuered him to be crucified.

<sup>27</sup> Then the soudeours of the debite toke Iesus vnto the comen hall; and gaddered vnto him all the company. <sup>28</sup> And they stripped him and put on him a purpyll roobe; <sup>29</sup> and platted a crowne of thornes and put vpon his heed; and a rede in hise ryght honde; and bowed their knees before him; and mocked him; sayinge: hayle kyng of the Iewes; <sup>30</sup> and spitted vpon him; and toke the reede and smootte him on the heed.

<sup>31</sup> And when they had mocked him; they toke the robe of him agayne; and put his awne reyment on him; and leded him awaye to crucifye him. <sup>32</sup> And as they came out; they founde a man of Cyren; named Simon: him they compelled to beare his crosse. <sup>33</sup> And when they cam vnto the place, called Golgotha (that is to saye; a place of deed mens sculles) <sup>34</sup> they gave him vengere to drinke mengled with gall. And when he had tasted therof; he wolde not drinke. <sup>35</sup> When they had crucified him; they parted his garmentes; and did cast lottes: to fulfill that was spoken by the prophet. They deuyded my garmentes amonge them: and upon my vesture did cast lottes. <sup>36</sup> And they sate and bas, and destroye Iesus. <sup>21</sup> The debite answered, and sayde vnto them: whether of the twayne, will ye, that I let loose vnto you? They sayd: Barrabas. <sup>22</sup> Pilate sayde vnto them: what shall I do then with Iesus which is called Christ? They all sayd vnto him: let hym be crucified. <sup>23</sup> The debite sayde: What evyll hath he done? But they cryed the more, sayinge: let hym be crucified. <sup>24</sup> When Pilate sawe that he coulde preuayle nothinge, but that more busines was made, he toke water, and washed hys handes before the people, sayinge: I am innocent of the blood of this iust person, ye shall se. <sup>25</sup> Then answered all the people, and sayd his bloud be on vs, and on our chylren. <sup>26</sup> Then let he Barrabas loose vnto them, and scourged Iesus, and deluyered hym to be crucified.

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>27</sup> Then the soudeours of the debite toke Iesus in the comen hall, and gathered vnto him all the company. <sup>28</sup> And they stripped him, and put on him a purpill robe, and platted a crowne of thornes and put vpon his heed, and a rede in hys ryght hande: and bowed the knee before hym; and mocked hym, sayinge: haille, kyng of the Iewes; <sup>30</sup> and when they had spytte vpon him, they toke the reede, & smote hym on the heed.

<sup>31</sup> And after that they had mocked him, they toke the roabe of hym agayne, and put hys awne rayment on hym, and led hym awaye to crucifye him. <sup>32</sup> And as they came out, they founde a man of Cyren (named Simon) him they compelled to beare his crosse. <sup>33</sup> And they came vnto the place which is called Golgotha (that is to saye, a place of deed mens sculles) <sup>34</sup> and gaue him vengere to drinke mengled with gall. And when he had tasted therof, he wolde not dryncke.

<sup>35</sup> When they had crucified him, they parted his garmentes, and dyd cast lottes; that it myght be fulfilled which was spoken by the Prophet. They parted my garmentes amonge them; and vpon my

τὴν σπέῖραν<sup>28</sup> καὶ ἐκδύσαντες αὐτὸν, ἠπερίεθησαν αὐτῷ χλαμύδα κοκκίνην |<sup>29</sup> καὶ πλέξαντες στέφανον ἐξ ἀκαθῶν, ἐπέθηκαν ἐπὶ τὴν κεφαλὴν αὐτοῦ, καὶ κάλαμον ὁ ἐπὶ τὴν δεξιάν | αὐτοῦ· καὶ γονυπετήσαντες ἔμπροσθεν αὐτοῦ, ἠένειπαιζον | αὐτῷ, λέγοντες, Ἐχαῖρε, ὁ βασιλεὺς τῶν Ἰουδαίων·<sup>30</sup> καὶ ἔμπτύσαντες εἰς αὐτὸν, ἔλαβον τὸν κάλαμον, καὶ ἔτυπτον εἰς τὴν κεφαλὴν αὐτοῦ.<sup>31</sup> Καὶ ὅτε ἐνείπαιζαν αὐτῷ, ἔξεδυσαν αὐτὸν τὴν χλαμύδα, καὶ ἐνέδυσαν αὐτὸν τὰ ἱμάτια αὐτοῦ· καὶ ἀπήγαγον αὐτὸν εἰς τὸ σταυρώσαι.<sup>32</sup> Ἐξερχόμενοι δὲ εὗρον ἄνθρωπον Κυρηναῖον, ὀνόματι Σίμωνα· τοῦτον ἠγγάρευσαν ἵνα ἄρῃ τὸν σταυρὸν αὐτοῦ.<sup>33</sup> Καὶ ἐλθόντες εἰς τόπον λεγόμενον Γολγοθὰ ὅ | ἔστι ῥ λεγόμενος Κρανίου τόπος, |<sup>34</sup> ἔδωκαν αὐτῷ πιεῖν ὄξος | μετὰ χολῆς μεμιγμένον· καὶ γευσάμενος οὐκ ἤθελε | πιεῖν.<sup>35</sup> Σταυρώσαντες δὲ αὐτὸν, διμερίσαντο τὰ ἱμάτια αὐτοῦ, βάλλοντες κλήρον·<sup>36</sup> Καὶ καθήμενοι

* Alex. οἶνον.

† Alex. ἰβήλιπτι.

* Rec. + ἵνα πληρωθῆ τὸ ῥηθὲν ὑπὸ τοῦ προφήτου, ἡ Διμερίσαντο τὰ ἱμάτια μου ἵνατοῖς, καὶ ἐπι τὸν ἰσχυρῶν μου ἵβζαλον κλήρον.*

GENEVA — 1557.

<sup>21</sup> Then the Deputie answered, and sayd vnto them, Whether of the twayne will ye that I let loose vnto you? And they said, Barabbas. <sup>22</sup> Pilate sayd vnto them, What shal I do then with Iesus which is called Christe? They all sayd to him, Let him be crucified. <sup>23</sup> Then sayd the Deputie, What euyl hath he done? And they cried the more, saying, Let him be crucified. <sup>24</sup> When Pilate sawe that he preynded nothing, but that more busines was made, he toke water and washsed hys handes before the people, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this iuste person, take heed what ye do. <sup>25</sup> Then answered all the people, and sayd, His blood be on vs, and on our chyldren. <sup>26</sup> Then let he Barabbas loose vnto them and scourged Iesus, and deliuered hym to be crucified. <sup>27</sup> Then the souleours of the Deputie, toke Iesus into the common hall, and gathered about him all the bande of their companie. <sup>28</sup> And they stripped him, and put about him a purple robe. <sup>29</sup> And platted a crowne of thornes, and put vpon his head, and a rede in his ryght hande: and bowed their knees before hym, and mocked hym, saying, God saue thee kyng of the Iewes. <sup>30</sup> And spitte vpon hym, and toke a rede, and smote hym on the head.

<sup>31</sup> And when they had mocked him, they toke the robe from hym, and put his owne rayment on hym, and led hym away to crucifie hym. <sup>32</sup> And as they came out, they founde a man of Cyrene, named Simon: him they compelled to beare Iesus crosse. <sup>33</sup> And when they came vnto the place called Golgotha (that is to say, The place of dead mens Sculles;) <sup>34</sup> They gaue him vineger to drinke, mingled with gall, and when he had tasted thereof, he would not dryncke. <sup>35</sup> When they had crucified him, they parted his garmentes and did cast lottes: to fulfill that which was spoken by the Prophet. They decided my garmentes among them, and vpon my vesture dyd cast lottes. <sup>36</sup> And they saye away. <sup>21</sup> And the President ansvnering, said to them: Whether vvil you of the two to be released vnto you? But they said, Barabbas. <sup>22</sup> Pilate saith to them, What shal I doe then vvith Iesus that is called Christ? They say al, Let him be crucified. <sup>23</sup> The President said to them, Why vvhat euil hath he done? But they cried the more, saying, Let him be crucified. <sup>24</sup> And Pilate seeing that he nothing preuailed, but rather tumult vvast toward: taking vvater he vvashed his handes before the people, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this iust man: looke you to it. <sup>25</sup> And the vvhole people ansvnering, said, His blood be vpon vs, and vpon our children. <sup>26</sup> Then he released to them Barabbas, and hauing scourged Iesus, deliuered him vnto them for to be crucified.

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>27</sup> Then the Presidents soldiars taking Iesus into the Palace, gathered together vnto him the vvhole band: <sup>28</sup> and stripping him, put a scarlet cloke about him, <sup>29</sup> and plattig a crowne of thornes, put it vpon his head, and a reede in his right hand. And hovving the knee before him, they mocked him, saying, Haile King of the Iewes. <sup>30</sup> And spitting vpon him, they tooke the reede, and smote his head. <sup>31</sup> And after they had mocked him, they tooke of the cloke from him, and put on him his owne garmentes, and led him avway to crucifie him. <sup>32</sup> And in going they found a man of Cyrène, named Simon: him they forced to take vp his crosse. <sup>33</sup> And they came into the place that is called Golgotha, vvchich is, the place of Caluarie. <sup>34</sup> And they gaue him vvine to drinke mingled vvith gall. And vvhen he had tasted, he vvould not drinke.

<sup>35</sup> And after they had crucified him, they decided his garmentes, casting lottes: that it might be fulfilled vvchich vvast spoken by the Prophet, saying: They decided my garmentes among them: and vpon my vesture they did cast lottes. <sup>36</sup> And they

AUTHORISED — 1611.

<sup>21</sup> The Governour answered, and said vnto them, Whether of the twaine will ye that I release vnto you? They said, Barabbas. <sup>22</sup> Pilate said vnto them, What shall I doe then with Iesus, which is called Christ? They all said vnto him, Let him be crucified. <sup>23</sup> And the Governour said, Why, what euil hath he done? But they cried out the more, saying, Let him be crucied out.

<sup>24</sup> When Pilate saw that he could preuaile nothing, but that rather a tumult was made, hee tooke water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this iust person: see ye to it. <sup>25</sup> Then answered all the people, and said, His blood be on vs, and on our children. <sup>26</sup> Then released hee Barabbas vnto them, and when hee had scourged Iesus, he deliuered him to be crucified. <sup>27</sup> Then the soldiours of the Governour tooke Iesus into the common hall, and gathered vnto him the whole band of soldiers. <sup>28</sup> And they stripped him, and put on him a scarlet robe. <sup>29</sup> And when they had platted a crowne of thornes, they put it vpon his head, and a reed in his right hand: and they bowed the knee before him, and mocked him, saying, Haile King of the Iewes. <sup>30</sup> And they spit vpon him, and tooke the reed, and smote him on the head. <sup>31</sup> And after that they had mocked him, they tooke the robe off from him, and put his owne raiment on him, and led him away to crucifie him. <sup>32</sup> And as they came out, they found a man of Cyrene, Simon by name: him they compelled to beare his Crosse. <sup>33</sup> And when they were come vnto a place called Golgotha, that is to say, a place of a skull, <sup>34</sup> They gaue him vineger to drinke, mingled with gall: and when hee had tasted thereof, hee would not drinke. <sup>35</sup> And they crucified him, and parted his garmentes, casting lots: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Prophet, They parted my garmentes among them, and vpon my vesture did they cast lottes.

ἐτήρουν αὐτὸν ἐκεῖ. <sup>37</sup> Καὶ ἐπέθηκαν ἐπάνω τῆς κεφαλῆς αὐτοῦ τὴν αἰτίαν αὐτοῦ γεγραμμένην, ‘Ουτός ἐστιν Ἰησοῦς ὁ βασιλεὺς τῶν Ἰουδαίων.’ <sup>38</sup> Τότε σταυροῦνται σὺν αὐτῷ δύο λησταί, εἷς ἐκ δεξιῶν καὶ εἷς ἐξ ἐνωτέρων. <sup>39</sup> Οἱ δὲ παραπορευόμενοι ἐβλασφήμουν αὐτὸν, κινῶντες τὰς κεφαλὰς αὐτῶν, <sup>40</sup> καὶ λέγοντες, ‘Ὁ καταλύων τὸν ναὸν καὶ ἐν τρισὶν ἡμέραις οἰκοδομῶν, σῶσον σεαυτὸν· εἰ υἱὸς εἶ τοῦ Θεοῦ, κατάβηθι ἀπὸ τοῦ σταυροῦ.’ <sup>41</sup> Ὁμοίως δὲ καὶ οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς ἐμπαίζοντες μετὰ τῶν γραμματέων καὶ πρεσβυτέρων ἔλεγον, <sup>42</sup> ‘Ἄλλους ἔσωσεν, ἑαυτὸν οὐ δύναται σῶσαι. <sup>43</sup> εἰ βασιλεὺς Ἰσραὴλ ἐστί, καταβάτω νῦν ἀπὸ τοῦ σταυροῦ, καὶ πιστεύσομεν ἐπ’ αὐτῷ.’ <sup>43</sup> πέποιθεν ἐπὶ τὸν Θεὸν· ῥυσάσθω νῦν αὐτὸν, εἰ θέλει αὐτόν. εἶπε γὰρ, ‘Ὅτι Θεοῦ εἰμι υἱός.’ <sup>44</sup> Τὸ δ’ αὐτὸ καὶ οἱ λησταὶ οἱ συσταυρωθέντες αὐτῷ ὠνείδιζον αὐτόν. <sup>45</sup> Ἀπὸ δὲ ἑκτῆς ὥρας σκότος ἐγένετο ἐπὶ πάσας

<sup>v</sup> Const. + καὶ Φαρασαίων.

<sup>w</sup> Alex. = εἰ.

<sup>x</sup> Rec. αὐτῶ.

<sup>y</sup> Rec. αὐτῶ.

WICLIIF—1380.

lotte, <sup>37</sup> and thei seeten and kepten hym; <sup>38</sup> and setten aboute his heed his cause writun; this is ihesus of nazareth kyng of iewis, <sup>38</sup> Thanne twei theues were crucified with hym, oon on the ryghthalf, and oon on the lefthalf;

<sup>39</sup> and men that passiden forth blasfemed hym: mouynge her heedis <sup>40</sup> and seynge, vath to thee that districte the temple of god; and in the thriddie day bildest it agen, saue thou thi silf, if thou art the sonne of god: come doun of the crosse; <sup>40</sup> also and pryncis of preestis scorneden with scribis and elders men: seiden; <sup>42</sup> he made other men saaf: is he may not make hym silf saaf; if he is kyng of israel: come he now doun of the crosse, and we bileuen to hym; <sup>43</sup> he tristed in god, deluyer he him now; if he wole; for he seide: that I am goddis sone; <sup>44</sup> and the theues that weren crucified with hym, vpbraiden hym of the same thing;

<sup>45</sup> but fro the sixte oure derknessis weren made on al the erthe, to the nynthe oure; <sup>46</sup> and aboute the nynthe our: ihesus cryede with a grete vois, and seide; heli, heli lamazabathani, that is to seie; my god, my god whi hast thou forsake me? <sup>47</sup> and summe men that stoden there and herynge; seiden, this clepith heli; <sup>48</sup> and anoon oon of hem rennyng: took and fillid a sponge with venegre and putte on a rede; and gaf to hym to drynk; <sup>49</sup> but other seiden; suffre thou, se we where heli come to delyuer hym; citsones forsothe; <sup>50</sup> ihesus cryed with greet vois, and gaf vp the goost;

<sup>51</sup> and lo the veil of the temple was torente in tweye parties fro the higist to the lowist; and the erthe schook; and stones weren cloue; <sup>52</sup> and birielis weren opened and many bodies of seyntis that hadden slepte risun up; <sup>53</sup> and thei seden out of her birielis, and afir his resurreccion; thei camen in to the holi citee and appereden to many; <sup>54</sup> and the centurien, agen, again. edonon, again. forsothe, verily. place, cleared. birielis, burying places. seden, went.

TYNDALÉ — 1534.

watched him there. <sup>37</sup> And they set vp over his heed the cause of his deeth written. This is Iesus the kyng of the Iewes. <sup>38</sup> And ther were two theues crucified with him; one on the right honde, and a nother on the lyfte.

<sup>39</sup> They that passed by, reuyled him waggynge ther heeddes; <sup>40</sup> and sayinge: Thou that destroyest the temple of God and byldest it in thre dayes; save thy sylf. If thou be the sonne of God; come doune from the crosse. <sup>41</sup> Lykwyse also the hye prestes mockinge him with the scribes and elders sayde: <sup>42</sup> He saved other; him sylf he can not save. If he be the kyng of Israel: let him now come doune from the crosse; and we will beleue him. <sup>43</sup> He trusted in God; let him deliuer him now; yf he will have him; for he sayde; I am the sonne of God. <sup>44</sup> That same also the theues which were crucified with him; cast in his tethe.

<sup>45</sup> From the sixte houre was there derknes over all the lande vnto the nynthe houre. <sup>46</sup> And about the nynthe houre Iesus cryed with a loude voyce; sayinge: Eli Eli lama asabathani. That is to saie; my God, my God; why hast thou forsaken me? <sup>47</sup> Some of them that stode there; when they herde that sayde: This man calleth for Helyas. <sup>48</sup> And streight waye one of them ranne and toke a sponge and filled it full of veneger; and put it on a rede; and gawe him to drinke. <sup>49</sup> Other sayde; let be: let vs se whether Helyas will come and deliuer him. <sup>50</sup> Iesus cryed agayne with a lowde voyce and yelded vp the goost.

<sup>51</sup> And beholde the vayle of the temple dyd rent in twayne from the toppe to the bottoome; and the erth dyd quake; and the stones dyd rent; <sup>52</sup> and graves dyd open; and the bodies of many sanctes which slepte; arose; <sup>53</sup> and came out of the graves after his resurreccion; and came into the holi cite; and appered vnto many.

<sup>54</sup> When the Centurion and they that

CRANMER — 1539.

vesture dyd they cast lottes. <sup>36</sup> And they sate and watched him there, <sup>37</sup> and set vp ouer hys heed the cause of his deeth, written: This is Iesus the kyng of the Iewes. <sup>38</sup> Then were there two theues crucified with hym, one on the ryght hande, and another on the lyfte.

<sup>39</sup> They that passed by, reuyled him, waggynge their heades, <sup>40</sup> and sayinge: thou that destroydest the temple of God and dyddest bylde it in thre dayes, saue thyselfe. If thou be the sonne of God, come doune from the crosse. <sup>41</sup> Likewise also the hye prestes, mockinge him with the Scribes and elders sayde: <sup>42</sup> He saued other, hym selfe can he not saue. If he be the kyng of Israel: let him now come doune from the crosse, and we will beleue hym. <sup>43</sup> He trusted in God, let hym deliuer hym now; yf he will have hym: for he sayde, I am the sonne of God. <sup>44</sup> The theues also, which were crucified with him, cast the same in his tethe.

<sup>45</sup> From the sixte houre was there derknes ouer all the lande vnto the nynthe houre. <sup>46</sup> And about the nynthe houre, Iesus cryed, with a loude voyce, sayinge: Eli. Eli lamazabachthani. That is to saie: my god, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? <sup>47</sup> Some of them that stode there, when they herde that sayde: This man calleth for Helyas. <sup>48</sup> And streight waye one of them ranne, and toke a sponge, and when he had fylled it full of veneger, he put it on a rede, and gawe him to drinke. <sup>49</sup> Other sayde, let be: let vs se whether Helyas will come and deliuer him. <sup>50</sup> Iesus, when he had cryed agayne with a loude voyce, yelded vp the goost.

<sup>51</sup> And beholde, the vayle of the temple dyd rent in to two partes, from the toppe to the bottoome, and the earth dyd quake, and the stones rent; <sup>52</sup> and graues dyd open; and many bodies of sanctes which slepte, arose; <sup>53</sup> and went out of the graues after his resurreccion, and came in to the holi cite, and appered vnto many. <sup>54</sup> When the Centurion and they that were

τὴν γῆν ἕως ὥρας ἐνάτης· <sup>46</sup> περὶ δὲ τὴν ἐνάτην ὥραν ἀνεβόησεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς φωνῇ μεγάλῃ λέγων, ‘Ἥλι, Ἥλι, λαμὰ σαβαχθανί;’ τοῦτ’ ἐστι, ‘Θεέ μου, Θεέ μου, ἵνα τί με ἐγκατέλεπες;’ <sup>47</sup> Τινὲς δὲ τῶν ἐκεῖ ἐστῶτων ἀκούσαντες ἔλεγον, ‘Ὅτι ἥλιον φωνεῖ οὗτος.’ <sup>48</sup> Καὶ εὐθέως δραμῶν εἰς ἕξ αὐτῶν, καὶ λαβὼν σπόγγον, πλήσας τε ὄξους, καὶ περιθεὶς καλαμῷ ἐπότιζεν αὐτόν. <sup>49</sup> οἱ δὲ λοιποὶ ἔλεγον, ‘Ἄφες, ἴδωμεν εἰ ἔρχεται Ἥλιος σώσειν αὐτόν.’ <sup>50</sup> Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς πάλιν κράξας φωνῇ μεγάλῃ ἀφήκε τὸ πνεῦμα. <sup>51</sup> Καὶ ἰδὼν, τὸ καταπέτασμα τοῦ ναοῦ ἐσχίσθη εἰς δύο ἀπὸ ἄνωθεν ἕως κάτω καὶ ἡ γῆ ἐσειέσθη, καὶ αἱ πέτραι ἐσχίσθησαν <sup>52</sup> καὶ τὰ μνημεῖα ἀνεόχθησαν, καὶ πολλὰ σώματα τῶν κεκοιμημένων ἀγίων ἠγέρθη, <sup>53</sup> καὶ ἐξεληθόντες ἐκ τῶν μνημείων μετὰ τὴν ἔγερσιν αὐτοῦ, εἰσῆλθον εἰς τὴν ἀγίαν πόλιν, καὶ ἐνεφανίσθησαν πολλοῖς. <sup>54</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἑκατόνταρχος καὶ οἱ

<sup>2</sup> Alex. + ἄλλος ἐὶ λαβῶν λόγγον, ἔνθεν αὐτὸν τὴν πλευράν, καὶ ἐξῆλθεν ἕως καὶ αἶμα. <sup>6</sup> Alex. ἠγέρθησαν.

GENEVA — 1557.

and watched him there. <sup>37</sup> And they set vp over his head, the cause of his death written. THIS IS IESVS THE KING OF THE IEWES. <sup>38</sup> And there were two theebes crucified with him, one on the ryght hand, and another on the lyft. <sup>39</sup> And they that passed by, revyled hym, wagging theyr heades: <sup>40</sup> And saying, Thou that destroyest the temple, and buyldest it in three dayes, saue thy selfe. If thou be the Sonne of God, come downe from the crosse. <sup>41</sup> Likewise also the hie Priests mocking hym, with the Scribes, Elders, and Pharises, said, <sup>42</sup> He saued other, and can not saue hym selfe: If he be the king of Israel, let hym now come downe from the crosse, and we wil beleue him. <sup>43</sup> He trusteth in God, let him deliuer him now, if he wil haue him: For he said, I am the Sonne of God. <sup>44</sup> That same also the theues which were crucified with him cast in his teeth. <sup>45</sup> From the syxt houre, was there darkenes ouer all the lande, vnto the nynt houre. <sup>46</sup> And aboute the nynt houre, Iesus cryed with a loude voyce, saying, Eli, Eli, lamasa-bachthani? that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?

<sup>47</sup> And some of them that stode there, when they heard that, said, This man calleth for Elias. <sup>48</sup> And straight way one of them ran, and toke a sponge, and filled it ful of vineger, and put it on a rede, and gaue him to drinke. <sup>49</sup> Other sayd, Let be, let vs see whether Elias wyl come and deliuer him. <sup>50</sup> And Iesus cryed agayne with a loude voyce, and yelded vp the gost. <sup>51</sup> And beholde, the vayle of the temple dyd rent in twayne, from the top to the bottome: and the earth did quake, and the stones dyd rent, <sup>52</sup> And graues dyd open, and many bodies of the sainctes which slept, arose, <sup>53</sup> And came out of the graues after his resurrection, and came into the holy Citie, and appeared vnto many. <sup>54</sup> When the Centurion, and sate and vtatched him. <sup>37</sup> And they put ouer his head his cause vwritten, THIS IS IESVS THE KING OF THE IEWES. <sup>38</sup> Then were crucified vwith him tvo theebes: one on the ryght hand, and one on the left. <sup>39</sup> And they that passed by, blasphemed him, vvagging their heades, <sup>40</sup> and saying, Vah, thou that destroyest the temple of God, and in three daies doest reedifie it: saue thine ovnne self: if thou be the sonne of God, come downe from the Crosse. <sup>41</sup> In like maner also the cheefe Priests with the Scribes and auncients mocking, said: <sup>42</sup> He saued other: him self he can not saue: if he be the King of Israel, let him novv come downe from the Crosse, and vve vvil beleeue him. <sup>43</sup> He trusted in God: let him novv deliuer him if he vvill: for he said, That I am the sonne of God. <sup>44</sup> And the self same thing the theebes also that vvere crucified vwith him, reproched him vvithal.

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>45</sup> And from the sixt houre, there vvas darkenesse made vpon the vvhole earth, vntil the ninthe houre. <sup>46</sup> And about the ninthe houre Iesvs eried vwith a mighty voyce, saying, Eli, Eli, lamma-sabaethani? that is, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? <sup>47</sup> And certaine that stode there and heard, said, he calleth Elias. <sup>48</sup> And incontinent one of them running, tooke a sponge, and filled it vvith vinegre: and put it on a reede, and gaue him to drinke. <sup>49</sup> And other said, Let be, let vs see vvwhether Elias come to deliuer him. <sup>50</sup> And Iesvs againe crying vwith a mighty voyce, yelded vp the gost. <sup>51</sup> And behold the vele of the temple vvas rent in tvo peeces, from the toppe euen to the botome. and the earth did quake, and the rockes vvere rent, <sup>52</sup> and the graues vvere opened: and many bodies of the sainctes that had slept, rose. <sup>53</sup> And they going forth out of the graues after his resurrection, came into the holy citie: and appeared to many. <sup>54</sup> And the Centurion and they

AUTHORISED — 1611.

<sup>36</sup> And sitting downe, they watched him there: <sup>37</sup> And set vp over his head, his accusation written, THIS IS IESVS THE KING OF THE IEWES. <sup>38</sup> Then were there two theebes crucified with him: one on the ryght hand, and another on the left.

<sup>39</sup> And they that passed by, revyled him, wagging their heads, <sup>40</sup> And saying, Thou that destroyest the Temple, & buildest it in three dayes, saue thy selfe: If thou be the Sonne of God, come downe from the Crosse. <sup>41</sup> Likewise also the chiefe Priests mocking him, with the Scribes and Elders, said, <sup>42</sup> He saued others, himselfe he cannot saue: If he be the King of Israel, let him now come downe from the Crosse, and we will beleuee him. <sup>43</sup> He trusted in God, let him deliuer him now if he will haue him: for he said, I am the Sonne of God. <sup>44</sup> The thieues also which were crucified with him, cast the same in his teeth. <sup>45</sup> Now from the sixth houre there was darkenesse ouer all the land vnto the ninth houre. <sup>46</sup> And about the ninth houre, Iesus cried with a lowd voyce, saying, Eli, Eli, Lamasabachthani, that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken mee? <sup>47</sup> Some of them that stood there, when they heard that, said, This man calleth for Elias. <sup>48</sup> And straightway one of them ranne, and tooke a sponge, and filled it with vineger, and put it on a reede, and gaue him to drinke. <sup>49</sup> The rest said, Let be, let vs see whether Elias will come to saue him.

<sup>50</sup> Iesus, when hee had cried againe with a lowd voyce, yelded vp the gost. <sup>51</sup> And behold, the vaille of the Temple was rent in twaine, from the top to the bottome, and the earth did quake, and the rocks rent. <sup>52</sup> And the graues were opened, and many bodies of Saints which slept, arose, <sup>53</sup> And came out of the graues after his resurrection, and went into the holy Citie, and appeared vnto many. <sup>54</sup> Now when

μετ' αὐτοῦ τηροῦντες τὸν Ἰησοῦν, ἰδόντες τὸν σεισμὸν καὶ τὰ γενόμενα, ἐφοβήθησαν σφόδρα, λέγοντες, 'Ἀληθῶς Θεοῦ υἱὸς ἦν οὗτος.' <sup>55</sup> Ἦσαν δὲ ἐκεῖ γυναῖκες πολλαὶ ἀπὸ μακρόθεν θεωροῦσαι, αἵτινες ἠκολούθησαν τῷ Ἰησοῦ ἀπὸ τῆς Γαλιλαίας, διακονοῦσαι αὐτῷ. <sup>56</sup> ἐν αἷς ἦν Μαρία ἡ Μαγδαληνῆ, καὶ Μαρία ἡ τοῦ Ἰακώβου καὶ Ἰωσήφ μήτηρ, καὶ ἡ μήτηρ τῶν υἱῶν Ζεβεδαίου. <sup>57</sup> Ὀφίας δὲ γενομένης, ἦλθεν ἄνθρωπος πλούσιος ἀπὸ Ἀρμαθαίας, τοῦνομα Ἰωσήφ, ὃς καὶ αὐτὸς ἐμαθήτευσε τῷ Ἰησοῦ. <sup>58</sup> οὗτος προσελθὼν τῷ Πιλάτῳ, ᾗτήσατο τὸ σῶμα τοῦ Ἰησοῦ. τότε ὁ Πιλάτος ἐκέλευσεν ἀποδοθῆναι <sup>b</sup> τὸ σῶμα. | <sup>59</sup> καὶ λαβὼν τὸ σῶμα ὁ Ἰωσήφ ἐνετύλιξεν αὐτὸ σινδόνι καθαρῶ, <sup>60</sup> καὶ ἔθηκεν αὐτὸ ἐν τῷ καινῷ αὐτοῦ μνημείῳ, ὃ ἐλατόμησεν ἐν τῇ πέτρᾳ· καὶ προσκυλίσας λίθον μέγαν τῇ θύρᾳ τοῦ μνημείου, ἀπῆλθεν. <sup>61</sup> ἦν δὲ ἐκεῖ Μαρία ἡ Μαγδαληνῆ, καὶ ἡ ἄλλη Μαρία, καθήμεναι ἀπέναντι τοῦ τάφου.

<sup>b</sup> Alex. = τὸ σῶμα.

WICLIF—1380.

and thei that weren with hym kepynge ihesus, whanne the sijen the erthe schakinge and tho thingis that weren don, thei dredden greetly and seiden verrili this was goddis sone,

<sup>55</sup> and there weren there many wymmen afer that sueden ihesus fro galilee and mynystriden to hym, <sup>56</sup> among whiche was mari mawdeleyne and marie the modir of lames and of ioseph, and the modir of zebedeis sones

<sup>57</sup> but whanne the evenyng was come, there cam a riche man of armathy, Ioseph bi name, and he was a discipule of ihesus, <sup>58</sup> he wente to pilat: and axed the bodi of ihesus, thanne pilat comaunde the bodi to be zounn,

<sup>59</sup> and whanne the bodi was takun, Ioseph lappid it in a cleane sendal, <sup>60</sup> & leide in his newe biriel that he had hewn in a stoon, and he walewid a greet stoon to the dore of the biriel, and wente awei, <sup>61</sup> but marie mawdeleyn: and another mari weren there: sittynge aisen these pulere,

<sup>62</sup> and on the tothir dai, that is afir pask evene the pryncis of preestis and the farisies camen to gidre to pilat <sup>63</sup> and seiden, 'sire, we han mynde that thiike gilour side git luyvynge afir thre daies I schal rise agen to lif.' <sup>64</sup> therfor comaunde thou that the sepulere be kepte in to the thridde daie; lest hise discipils come and stele hym: and seien to the puple: he hath risun fro deeth; and the last errour schal be wors thanne the former, <sup>65</sup> pilat seide to hem, 'se han the kepynge; go se kepe se as se kunnen,' <sup>66</sup> & thei seden forth and kepten the sepulere, markynge the stoon with keepers.

28. BUT in the cuenteide of the sabbath, that bigynneth to schynce in the first dai of the wike: marie mawdeleyn cam & another marie to se the sepulere;

<sup>2</sup> and lo there was made a greet erthe schakinge; for the angell of the lord cam

TYNDALE—1534.

were with him watchinge Iesus; sawe the erth quake and those thinges which hapened: they feared greatly sayinge. Of a trulye this was the sonne of God.

<sup>55</sup> And many women were there, beholdinge him a farre of, which folowed Iesus from Galile, ministringe vnto him. <sup>56</sup> Amonge which was Mary Magdalen, and Mary the mother of Iames and Ioses, and the mother of zebedes chyl dren.

<sup>57</sup> When the even was come, there came a ryche man of Aramathia named Ioseph, which same also was Iesus discipule. <sup>58</sup> He went to Pilate and begged the body of Iesus. Then Pilate comaunded the body to be delivered. <sup>59</sup> And Ioseph toke the body, and wrapped it in a cleane lymyn cloth, <sup>60</sup> and put it in his newe tombe, which he had hewen out, even in the roke, and rolled a greate stone to the dore of the sepulere; and departed. <sup>61</sup> And there was Mary Magdalene and the other Mary sittynge over ageynste the sepulere.

<sup>62</sup> The nexte daye that foloweth good frydaye, the hye prestes and pharises got them selves to Pilate <sup>63</sup> and sayde: Syr, we remember, that this deceaver sayde whyll he was yet alyve. After thre dayes I will aryse agayne. <sup>64</sup> Commaunde therfore that the sepulere be made sure vntyll the thyrd daye; lest paraventure his disciples come, and steale him awaye, and saye vnto the people, he is rysen from deeth; and the laste erroure be worse then the fyrst. <sup>65</sup> Pilate sayde vnto them. Take watche men: Go; and make it as sure as ye can. <sup>66</sup> And they went and made the sepulere sure with watche men; and sealed the ston.

28. THE Sabbath daye at even which dauneth the morowe after the Sabbath; Mary Magdalene and the other Mary came to se the sepulere.

<sup>2</sup> And beholde ther was a greate erth quake. For the angell of the lorde

CRANMER—1539.

with him watchinge Iesus, sawe the erthquake, and those thinges which hapened, they feared greetly, saying: A trulye, this was the sonne of God.

<sup>55</sup> And many wemen were there (beholdinge him a farre of) which folowed Iesus from Galile, mynistringe vnto him.

<sup>56</sup> Amonge which was Mary Magdalen, and Mary the mother of Iames and Ioses, and the mother of zebedes chyl dren.

<sup>57</sup> When the euen was come there came a riche man of Aramathia named Ioseph, which also was Iesus discipule. <sup>58</sup> He went to Pilate and begged the body of Iesus. Then Pilate comaunded the bodye to be deliuered. <sup>59</sup> And whan Ioseph had taken the body, he wrapped it in a cleane lymen cloth, <sup>60</sup> and layeth it in hys newe tombe, which he had hewen out, even in the rocke, and rolled a greate stone to the dore of the sepulere and departed. <sup>61</sup> And there was Mary Magdalene and the other Mary sytynge ouer agaynste the sepulere.

<sup>62</sup> The nexte daye that folowed the daye of preparinge, the hye prestes and Pharisee came together vnto Pilate, <sup>63</sup> saying: Syr, we remembre that this deceaver sayde whyle he was yet alyue. After thre dayes I wyl arise agayne. <sup>64</sup> Commaunde thrcfore that the sepulere be made sure vntill the thyrd daye, lest his disciples come, and steale hym awaye and saye vnto the people: he is rysen from the deed, and the last erroure shalbe worse then the fyrst. <sup>65</sup> Pilate sayde vnto them: Ye haue the watch. go your waye, make it as sure as ye can. <sup>66</sup> So they went, and made the sepulere sure wryth watche men, and sealed the ston.

28. VPON an cuening of the Sabbathes, which dawneht the fyrst daye of the Sabbathes, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary, to se the sepulere.

<sup>2</sup> And beholde, ther was a greate earth quake. For the angell of the Lord αἵτινες, αἵτινες, followed. zounn, given. sendal, fine silk, walewid, rolled. thiike gilour, that deceaver. aisen, aysen. kunnen, know. yeden, went.

<sup>62</sup> Τῇ δὲ ἐπαύριον, ἣτις ἐστὶ μετὰ τὴν παρασκευὴν, συνήχθησαν οἱ ἀρχιερεῖς καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι πρὸς Πιλάτον, <sup>63</sup> λέγοντες, ‘Κύριε, ἐμνήσθημεν ὅτι ἐκεῖνος ὁ πλάνος εἶπεν ἔτι ζῶν, Μετὰ τρεῖς ἡμέρας ἐγείρομαι. <sup>64</sup> κέλευσον οὖν ἀσφαλῶσαι τὸν τάφον ἕως τῆς τρίτης ἡμέρας· μήποτε ἐλθόντες οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ κλέψωσιν αὐτὸν, καὶ εἰπωσὶ τῷ λαῷ, Ἐγέρθη ἀπὸ τῶν νεκρῶν καὶ ἔσται ἡ ἐσχάτη πλάνη χείρων τῆς πρώτης.’ <sup>65</sup> Ἐφ’ αὐτοῖς ὁ Πιλάτος, ‘Ἐχετε κοστωδῖαν· ὑπάγετε, ἀσφαλίσασθε ὡς οἴδατε.’ <sup>66</sup> Οἱ δὲ πορευθέντες ἠσφάλισαν τὸν τάφον σφραγίσαντες τὸν λίθον μετὰ τῆς κοστωδίας.

XXVIII. Ὁπὲρ δὲ σαββάτων, τῇ ἐπιφωσκούσῃ εἰς μίαν σαββάτων, ἦλθε Μαρία ἡ Μαγδαληνὴ, καὶ ἡ ἄλλη Μαρία, θεωρήσαι τὸν τάφον. <sup>2</sup> Καὶ ἰδοὺ, σεισμὸς ἐγένετο μέγας· ἄγγελος γὰρ Κυρίου καταβάς ἐξ οὐρανοῦ, ἐπροσελθὼν ἀπεκύλισε * Rec. + νεκρῶς.

* Rec. + ἐι.

* Alex. + καὶ.

GENEVA—1557.

they that were with him watchyng Iesus, sawe the earthquake, and those things which happened, they feared greatly, saying, Of a surety, this was the Sonne of God. <sup>55</sup> And many women were there, beholding him a farr off, which folowed Iesus from Galilee, ministring vnto hym. <sup>56</sup> Among which was Marie Magdalene, and Marie the mother of Iames and Ioses, and the mother of Zebedes sonnes.

<sup>57</sup> When the euen was come, there came a riche man of Arimathea, named Ioseph, which man also had bene Iesus disciple. <sup>58</sup> He went to Pilate, and asked the body of Iesus. Then Pilate commanded the body to be deliuered. <sup>59</sup> And Ioseph toke the body, and wrapped it in a cleane linnen cloth: <sup>60</sup> And put it in his newe tombe, which he had hewen out in a rocke, and rolled a great stone to the dore of the sepulchre, and departed. <sup>61</sup> And there was Marie Magdalene, and the other Marie sytting our against the sepulchre. <sup>62</sup> The next day that folowed, the day of the Preparation of the Sabbath, the hve Priestes, and Pharises gat them selues to Pilate. <sup>63</sup> And sayd, Syr, we remember, that this deceauer sayd, whyle he was yet alyue, With in three dayes I wyl ryse. <sup>64</sup> Commaunde therefore, that the sepulchre be made sure vntyl the thyrd day, lest peradenture his disciples come, and steale hym away, and say vnto the people, He is risen from the dead, and the last error, shall be worse then the fyrst. <sup>65</sup> Pilate sayd vnto them, Ye haue watche men: Go and make it as sure as ye can. <sup>66</sup> And they went, and made the sepulchre sure with a watche, and sealed the stone.

28. ABOUT the later ende of the Sabbath day, when the first day of the weeke began to dawne, Marie Magdalene, and the other Marie came to see the sepulchre. <sup>2</sup> And beholde, there was a great earthquake. For the Angel of the

RHEIMS—1582.

that vvere vvith him vvatching Iesus, hauing seen the earth-quake and the things that vvere done, vvere sore afraid, saying, In dedde this vvas the sonne of God.

<sup>55</sup> And there vvere there many vvomen a farr off, vvich had folovved Iesus from Galilee, ministring vnto him: <sup>56</sup> among vvhom vvas Marie Magdalene, and Marie the mother of Iames and Ioseph, and the mother of the sonnes of Zebedece. <sup>57</sup> And vvhen it vvas euening, there came a certayne rich man of Arimathea, named Ioseph, vvho also him self was disciple to Ioseph. <sup>58</sup> He vvent to Pilate, and asked the body of Iesus. Then Pilate commaunded that the body should be deliuered. <sup>59</sup> And Ioseph taking the body, vvrappt it in cleane sindon, <sup>60</sup> and laid in his ovvne nevvve monument, vvich he had hevved out in a rocke. And he rolled a great stone to the dore of the monument, and vent his vvay. <sup>61</sup> And there was there Marie Magdalene, and the other Marie, sitting ouer against the sepulchre.

<sup>62</sup> And the next day, vvich is after the Parasceue, the cheefe Priestes and the Pharisees came together to Pilate, <sup>63</sup> saying, Sir, vve haue remembered, that that seducer said yet liuing, After three dayes I vvil ryse againe. <sup>64</sup> Commaund therefore the sepulchre to be kept vntil the third day: lest perhaps his Disciples come, and steale him, and say to the people, He is risen from the dead: and the last errorr shal be vvorse then the first. <sup>65</sup> Pilate said to them, You haue a gard: goe, gard it as you knowv. <sup>66</sup> And they departing, made the sepulchre sure: sealing vp the stone, vvith vvatchmen.

28. AND in the euening of the Sabbath vvich davvntn on the first of the Sabboth, came Marie Magdalene, and the other Marie to see the sepulchre. <sup>2</sup> And beholde there vvas made a great earthquake. For an Angel of our Lord

AUTHORISED—1611.

the Centurion, and they that were with him, watching Iesus, saw the earthquake, & those things that were done, they feared greatly, saying, Truly this was the Son of God. <sup>55</sup> And many women were there (beholding afarre off) which followed Iesus from Galilee, ministring vnto him. <sup>56</sup> Among which was Mary Magdalene, & Mary the mother of Iames and Ioses, and the mother of Zebedees children. <sup>57</sup> When the Euen was come, there came a rich man of Arimathea, named Ioseph, who also himselfe was Iesus disciple: <sup>58</sup> Hecc went to Pilate, and begged the body of Iesus: then Pilate commanded the body to be deliuered. <sup>59</sup> And when Ioseph had taken the body, hee wrapped it in a cleane linnen cloth, <sup>60</sup> And layde it in his owne newe tombe, which he had hewen out in the rocke: and he rolled a great stone to the doore of the Sepulchre, and departed. <sup>61</sup> And there was Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary, sitting ouer against the Sepulchre.

<sup>62</sup> Now the next day that followed the day of the preparation, the chiefe Priestes and Pharisees came together vnto Pilate, <sup>63</sup> Saying, Sir, we remember that that deceiuer sayd, while he was yet alieue, After three daies I wil rise againe. <sup>64</sup> Command therefore that the sepulchre be made sure, vntill the third day, lest his disciples come by night, and steale him away, and say vnto the people, He is risen from the dead: so the last errorr shall be worse then the first. <sup>65</sup> Pilate said vnto them, Ye haue a watch, goe your way, make it as sure as you can. <sup>66</sup> So they went, and made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone, and setting a watch.

28. IN the ende of the Sabbath, as it began to dawne towards the first day of the weeke, came Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary, to see the sepulchre. <sup>2</sup> And beholde, there was a great earthquake, for the Angel of the Lord

* Or, had bene.

τὸν λίθον<sup>1</sup> ἀπὸ τῆς θύρας,| καὶ ἐκάθητο ἐπάνω αὐτοῦ.<sup>2</sup> ἦν δὲ ἡ ἰδέα αὐτοῦ ὡς ἀστραπὴ, καὶ τὸ ἔνδυμα αὐτοῦ λευκὸν ὡσεὶ| χιῶν.<sup>3</sup> ἀπὸ δὲ τοῦ φόβου αὐτοῦ ἐσείσθησαν οἱ τηροῦντες, καὶ ἐγένοντο ὡσεὶ νεκροί.<sup>4</sup> Ἀποκριθεὶς δὲ ὁ ἄγγελος εἶπε ταῖς γυναῖξι, ‘Μὴ φοβείσθε ὑμεῖς· οἶδα γὰρ ὅτι Ἰησοῦν τὸν ἐσταυρωμένον ζητεῖτε.<sup>5</sup> οὐκ ἔστιν ὧδε· ἠγέρθη γὰρ, καθὼς εἶπε. δεῦτε, ἴδετε τὸν τόπον ὅπου ἔκειτο<sup>6</sup> ὁ ‘Κύριος.’|<sup>7</sup> καὶ ταχὺ πορευθεῖσαι εἶπατε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, ὅτι ἠγέρθη ἀπὸ τῶν ‘νεκρῶν’ καὶ ἰδοῦν, προάγει ὑμᾶς εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν· ἐκεῖ αὐτὸν ὄψεσθε. ἰδοῦν, εἶπον ὑμῖν.’<sup>8</sup> Καὶ ἐξεληθούσαι ταχὺ ἀπὸ τοῦ μνημείου μετὰ φόβου καὶ χαρᾶς μεγάλης, ἔδραμον ἀπαγγεῖλαι τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ.<sup>9</sup> ὡς δὲ ἐπορεύοντο ἀπαγγεῖλαι τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ,| καὶ ἰδοῦν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀπήντησεν αὐταῖς, λέγων, ‘Χαίρετε.’ Αἱ δὲ προσελθούσαι ἐκράτησαν αὐτὸν τοὺς πόδας, καὶ προσεκύνησαν αὐτῷ.<sup>10</sup> τότε

<sup>1</sup> Alex. ἀπὸ τῆς θύρας τοῦ μνημείου s. = ἀπὸ τῆς θύρας.

<sup>5</sup> Alex. ὄ.

<sup>6</sup> Alex. = ὁ κέρας.

WICLIFF—1380.

doun from heuene; and nyzthed and turned away the stoon, and sat thereon: <sup>2</sup>and his lokyng was as leit; and his clothis as snowe; <sup>3</sup>and for drede of hym the keepers weren aferde: and thei weren made as deed men;

<sup>5</sup>but the angel answerid and seide to the women nyle ze drede/ for I woot that ze seken ihesus that was crucified/ <sup>6</sup>he is not here/ for he is risun: as he seide/ come ze and se ze the place: where the lord was leyed/ <sup>7</sup>and go ze soone and seye ze to hise disciplys: that he is risun/ and lo he schal go bifor zou in to galyle/ there ze schuln se him: lo I haue bifor seide to zou/

<sup>8</sup>and thei wenten out soone fro the biriels with drede and greet ioye: rennyng to telle hise disciplys. <sup>9</sup>and lo ihesus mette hem: and seide/ heil ze/ and thei nyzeden <sup>10</sup>heelden his feet/ and worschpiden hym/ <sup>11</sup>Thanne ihesus seide to hem/ nyle ze drede/ go ze, telle ze to my brethren, that thei go in to galile, there thei schulen se me/

<sup>11</sup>and whanne thei weren gon lo summe of the keepers camen in to the citee t to ceden to the pryncis of preestis, alle thingis that weren don/ <sup>12</sup>and whanne thei weren gaderide to gidre with the elder men and hadden takun her counceil thei zauen to the knyghtis myche money <sup>13</sup>and seiden/ seic ze that hise disciplys camen bi nygt and han stole hym while ze slepten/ <sup>14</sup>and if this be herde of the iustice, we schuln counceil hym and make zou siker/ <sup>15</sup>and whanne the monei was takun thei diden as thei weren taught/ and this word is pupylschid among the iewis: til in to this dai/

<sup>16</sup>And the enleuene discipylis wenten in to galile in to an hille where ihesus hadde

TYNDALE—1534.

descended from heven; and came and rowlled backe the stone from the dore, and sate upon it. <sup>3</sup>His countenance was lyke lyghtynge, and his rayment whyte as snowe. <sup>4</sup>And for feare of him the keepers were astunnedy, and be came as deed men.

<sup>5</sup>The angell answered, and sayde to the wemen, feare ye not. I knowed that ye seke Iesus which was crucified: <sup>6</sup>he is not here: he is ryisen as he sayde. Come, and se the place where the lorde was put: <sup>7</sup>and goo quickly and tell his disciples that he is ryisen from death. And beholde, he will go before you into Galilee: there ye shall se him. Lo I haue tolde you.

<sup>8</sup>And they departed quickly from the sepulchre with feare and greate ioye: and dyd runne to bringe his disciples worde. <sup>9</sup>And as they went to tell his disciples: beholde, Iesus met them sayyng: All hayle. And they came and held him by the fete and worshipped him. <sup>10</sup>Then sayde Iesus vnto them: be not afrayde. Go and tell my brethren, that they goo in to Galilee, and there shall they se me.

<sup>11</sup>When they were gone: beholde, some of the keepers came in to the citee, and shewed vnto the hie prestes, alle the thinges that were hapened. <sup>12</sup>And they gaddered them to gedder with the elders, and toke counsell, and gaue large money vnto the soudiers: <sup>13</sup>sayyng: Saye that his disciples came by nyght, and stole him away while ye slept. <sup>14</sup>And if this come to the rulers eares, we wyll pease him, and save you harmeles. <sup>15</sup>And they toke the money and dyd as they were taught. And this sayyng is noysed amonge the Iewes vnto this daye.

<sup>16</sup>Then the .xi. disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountayne where Iesus had

CRANMER—1539.

descended from heauen, and came and rowlled backe the stone from the dore, and sat vpon it. <sup>3</sup>Hys countenance was lyke lyghtynge, and hys rayment whyte as snowe. <sup>4</sup>And for feare of him the keepers were astonnyed, and became as deed men.

<sup>5</sup>The angell answered, and sayd vnto the wemen: feare ye not. For I know, that ye secke Iesus which was crucified: <sup>6</sup>he is not here: he is ryisen as he sayde. Come se the place where that the Lord was layed: <sup>7</sup>and go quickly, and tell his disciples, that he is ryisen agayne from the deed. And behold, he goeth before you into Galilee, there ye shall se him. Lo I haue tolde you:

<sup>8</sup>And they departed quickly from the sepulchre, with feare and greate ioye, and dyd runne, to bring his disciples worde. <sup>9</sup>And as they went to tell his disciples: beholde, Iesus met them, sayyng: All hayle. And they came, and held him by the fete, and worshipped him. <sup>10</sup>Then sayd Iesus vnto them: be not afrayde. Go tell my brethren, that they go into Galile and there shall they se me.

<sup>11</sup>When they were gone, behold, some of the keepers came into the citee and shewed vnto the hie prestes, all the thinges that had hapened. <sup>12</sup>And they gathered them together wyth the elders, and toke counsell, and gaue large money vnto the soudiers, <sup>13</sup>sayyng: Saye ye, that his disciples came by nyght and stole him away while ye slept. <sup>14</sup>And if this come to the rulers eares, we will perswade him, and saue you harmeles. <sup>15</sup>So they toke the money, and dyd as they were taught. And this sayyng is noysed amonge the Iewes vnto this daye.

<sup>16</sup>Then the .xi. disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountayne where Iesus had

<sup>11</sup>spelt, draw nigh nyle, not, torrels, burysyn places zauen, zauen knyghts, soldiers, siker securis.

λέγει αὐταῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, ‘ Μὴ φοβεῖσθε· ὑπάγετε, ἀπαγγείλατε τοῖς ἀδελφοῖς μου, ἵνα ἀπέλθωσιν εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν, καὶ ἐκεῖ με ὄψονται.’

<sup>11</sup> Πορευομένων δὲ αὐτῶν, ἰδοὺ, τινὲς τῆς κουστωδίας ἐλθόντες εἰς τὴν πόλιν ἀπήγγειλαν τοῖς ἀρχιερέουσιν ἅπαντα τὰ γενόμενα. <sup>12</sup> καὶ συναχθέντες μετὰ τῶν πρεσβυτέρων, συμβουλίον τε λαβόντες, ἀργύρια ἰκανὰ ἔδωκαν τοῖς στρατιώταις, <sup>13</sup> λέγοντες, ‘ Εἶπατε, “ Ὅτι οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ νυκτὸς ἐλθόντες ἔκλεψαν αὐτὸν ἡμῶν κοιμωμένων, <sup>14</sup> καὶ ἐὰν ἀκουσῇ τοῦτο ἐπὶ τοῦ ἡγεμόνος, ἡμεῖς πείσομεν αὐτὸν, καὶ ὑμᾶς ἀμερίμους ποιήσομεν.’ <sup>15</sup> Οἱ δὲ λαβόντες τὰ ἀργύρια ἐποίησαν ὡς ἐδιδάχθησαν. καὶ διεφνημίσθη ὁ λόγος οὗτος παρὰ Ἰουδαίους μέχρι τῆς σήμερον.

<sup>16</sup> Οἱ δὲ ἔνδεκα μαθηταὶ ἐπορεύθησαν εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν, εἰς τὸ ὄρος οὗ ἐτάξατο

<sup>i</sup> Alex. = “Ὡς εἰ ἐπορεύοντο ἀπαγγεῖλαι τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ.

GENEVA—1557.

Lord descended from heauen, and came and rolled backe the stone from the dore, and sate vpon it. <sup>3</sup> His countenance was lyke lychtning, and his rayment whyte as snowe. <sup>4</sup> And for feare of hym, the keepers were astonyed, and became as dead men. <sup>5</sup> But the Angel answered, and sayd to the women, Feare ye not, for I know that ye seeke Iesus which was crucified: <sup>6</sup> He is not here, for he is rysen, as he sayd: come, see the place where the Lord was put.

<sup>7</sup> And go quickly, and tel his disciples that he is rysen from death: And beholde he goeth before you into Galile, there ye shal see him. lo, I haue told you. <sup>8</sup> And they departed quickly from the sepulchre, with feare and great ioye, and did runne to brynge his disciples worde. <sup>9</sup> And as they went to tel his disciples: Beholde, Iesus met them, saying, God saue you. And they came, and helde his fete and worshipped him. <sup>10</sup> Then sayd Iesus vnto them, Be not affraid. Go and tel my brethren, that they go into Galile, and there shal they see me.

<sup>11</sup> When they were gone, beholde, some of the keepers came into the cite, and shewed vnto the hye Priestes all the things that were happened. <sup>12</sup> And they gathered them together with the Elders, and toke counsel, and gaue large mony vnto the souldiers. <sup>13</sup> Saying, Say that his disciples came by nyght, and stole hym away wyle we slept. <sup>14</sup> And if this come before the Gouverneur, we wyl pacifie him, and saue you harmelesse. <sup>15</sup> And they toke the monye, and dyd as they were taught. And this saying, is noysed among the Iewes vnto this day.

<sup>16</sup> Then the eleuen disciples went away in to Galile, into a mountayne, where descended from heauen: and comming, rolled backe the stone, and sate vpon it: <sup>3</sup> and his countenance vvas as lightening: and his garment as snovv. <sup>4</sup> And for feare of him, the vvatchemen vvere frighted, and became as dead. <sup>5</sup> And the Angel answering said to the vvomen, Feare not you, for I know that you seeke Iesus that vvas crucified. <sup>6</sup> he is not here: for he is risen, as he said. come, and see the place vvhere our Lord vvas laid.

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>7</sup> And going quickly, tel ye his Disciples that he is risen: and behold he goeth before you into Galilee, there you shal see him. loe I haue fortold you.

<sup>8</sup> And they vvent forth quickly out of the monument vvith feare and great ioy, running to tel his Disciples. <sup>9</sup> And beholde Iesus mette them, saying, Al haile. But they came neere and tooke hold of his fete, and adored him. <sup>10</sup> Then Iesus said to them, Feare not, goe, tel my brethren that they goe into Galilee, there they shal see me.

<sup>11</sup> Who vvhen they vvere departed, beholde certayne of the vvatchemen came into the cite, and told the cheefe Priestes all things that had been done. <sup>12</sup> And being assembled together vvith the auncients, talking counsel, they gaue a greate summe of money to the souldiers, <sup>13</sup> saying, Say you, That his Disciples came by nyght, and stole him avway vvhen vve vvere a sleepe. <sup>14</sup> And if the President shal heare of this, vve vvil perswade him, and make you secure. <sup>15</sup> But they taking the money, did as they vvere taught. And this vvord vvas bruted abrode among the Iewes, euen vnto this day.

<sup>16</sup> And the eleuen Disciples vvent into Galilee, vnto the mount vvhere Iesus had descended from heauen, and came and rolled backe the stone from the dore, and sate vpon it. <sup>3</sup> His countenance was like lightening, and his raiment white as snowe. <sup>4</sup> And for feare of him, the keepers did shake, and became as dead men. <sup>5</sup> And the Angel answered, and said vnto the women, Feare not ye: for I know that yee seeke Iesus, which was crucified. <sup>6</sup> He is not here: for he is risen, as he said: Come, see the place where the Lord lay.

AUTHORISED—1611.

<sup>7</sup> And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead. And behold, he goeth before you into Galilee, there shall ye see him: loe, I haue told you. <sup>8</sup> And they departed quickly from the sepulchre, with feare and great ioy, and did run to bring his disciples word.

<sup>9</sup> And as they went to tell his disciples, behold, Iesus met them, saying, All haile. And they came, and held him by the fete, and worshipped him. <sup>10</sup> Then said Iesus vnto them, Be not afraid: Goe tell my brethren that they goe into Galilee, and there shall they see me.

<sup>11</sup> Now when they were going, behold, some of the watch came into the cite, and shewed vnto the chiefe Priests all the things that were done. <sup>12</sup> And when they were assembled with the Elders, and had taken counsell, they gaue large money vnto the souldiers, <sup>13</sup> saying, Say ye, His disciples came by night, and stole him away while we slept. <sup>14</sup> And if this come to the gouernours eares, wee will perswade him, and secure you. <sup>15</sup> So they tooke the money, and did as they were taught. And this saying is commonly reported among the Iewes vntill this day.

<sup>16</sup> Then the eleuen disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountaine where Iesus

αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς. <sup>17</sup> καὶ ἰδόντες αὐτὸν, προσεκύνησαν <sup>k</sup> αὐτῷ | οἱ δὲ ἐδίστασαν.
<sup>18</sup> καὶ προσελθὼν ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἐλάλησεν αὐτοῖς, λέγων, Ἐδόθη μοι πᾶσα ἐξουσία ἐν
 οὐρανῷ καὶ ἐπὶ γῆς. <sup>19</sup> πορευθέντες <sup>i</sup> μαθητεύσατε πάντα τὰ ἔθνη, βαπτίζοντες

<sup>k</sup> Alex. = αὐτῷ.

<sup>i</sup> Rec. + οὖν.

WICLIF — 1380.

ordeyned to hem, <sup>17</sup> and thei seinge hym and worschipiden, but summe of hem doutiden, <sup>18</sup> and ihesus cam nyȝ and spake to hem and seide, al power in heuene is ȝouun to me, <sup>19</sup> therfor go ȝe, and teche alle folkis baptisynge hem in the name of the fadir and of the sone, and of the holi goost, <sup>20</sup> techynge hem to kepe alle thingis : whatever thingis
 I haue comaundid to ȝou, and lo I am with ȝou in al daies in to the ende of the world.

nyȝ, nigh. ȝouun, given.

TYNDALE — 1534.

Jesus had appoynted them. <sup>17</sup> And when they sawe hym, they worshipped him.
 But some of them doubted. <sup>18</sup> And Jesus came and spake vnto them sayinge : All power ys geuen vnto me in heven, and in erth.

<sup>19</sup> Go therfore and teache all nacions, baptysinge them in the name of the father, and the sonne, and the holy goost : <sup>20</sup> Teachinge them to observe all thynges, what soever I commaunded you.
 And lo I am with you all waye, even vntyll the ende of the worlde.

CRANMER — 1539.

appoynted them. <sup>17</sup> And when they sawe hym, they worshipped him. But some doubted. <sup>18</sup> And Jesus came, and spake vnto them, sayinge : All power is geuen vnto me in heauen, and in erth.

<sup>19</sup> Go ye therfore, and teach all nacions, baptising them in the name of the father,
 and of the sonne, and of the holy goost :
<sup>20</sup> Teachinge them to obserue all thinges, whatsoeuer I haue commaunded you. And lo I am with you allwaye, euen vntyll the ende of the worlde.

‘ αὐτοὺς εἰς τὸ ὄνομα τοῦ Πατρὸς καὶ τοῦ Υἱοῦ καὶ τοῦ ἁγίου Πνεύματος, <sup>20</sup> διδάσ‘ κοντες αὐτοὺς τηρεῖν πάντα ὅσα ἐνετειλάμην ὑμῖν· καὶ ἰδοὺ, ἐγὼ μεθ’ ὑμῶν εἰμι
 ‘ πάσας τὰς ἡμέρας ἕως τῆς συντελείας τοῦ αἰῶνος. ’ Ἀμήν.’]

<sup>m</sup> Alex. = ἀμήν.

GENEVA — 1557.

Iesus had appointed them. <sup>17</sup> And when they sawe him, they worshipped him : but some doubted. <sup>18</sup> And Iesus came and spake vnto them, saying, All power is geuen vnto me in heauen, and in earth.

<sup>19</sup> Go therefore and teache all nations, baptizing them in the Name of the Father, and the Sonne, and the holy Gost. <sup>20</sup> Teaching them to obserue all thynges, whatsoeuer I commanded you. And lo, I am with you alway, euen vntyl the ende of the worlde.

RHEIMS—1582.

appointed them. <sup>17</sup> And seeing him they adored, but some doubted. <sup>18</sup> And Iesus comming neere spake vnto them, saying, Al pover is giuen to me in heauen and in earth.

<sup>19</sup> going therfore teach ye al nations : BAPTIZING THEM IN THE NAME OF THE FATHER AND OF THE SONNE AND OF THE HOLY GHOST, <sup>20</sup> teaching them to obserue al things vwhatsoeuer I haue commaunded you, and behold I am vvith you al daies, euen to the consummation of the vvorld.

AUTHORISED — 1611.

had appointed them. <sup>17</sup> And when they sawe him, they worshipped him : but some doubted. <sup>18</sup> And Iesus came, and spake vnto them, saying, All power is giuen vnto me in heauen and in earth.

<sup>19</sup> Goe ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the Name of the Father, and of the Sonne, and of the holy Ghost : <sup>20</sup> Teaching them to obserue all things, whatsoeuer I haue commanded you : and loe, I am with you alway, euen vnto the ende of the world. Amen.

ΕΥΑΓΓΕΛΙΟΝ ΚΑΤΑ ΜΑΡΚΟΝ.

Κεφάλαιον Α.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MARK.

CHAPTER I.

ἈΡΧΗ τοῦ εὐαγγελίου Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ, υἱοῦ τοῦ Θεοῦ. <sup>2</sup> ὡς | γέγραπται ἐν
 Ἡσαΐα τῷ προφήτῃ, | “ Ἰδοῦ, ἐγὼ ἀποστέλλω τὸν ἄγγελόν μου πρὸ προσώπου σου, “ ὃς κατασκευάσει τὴν ὁδόν σου.” <sup>3</sup> “ Φωνὴ βοῶντος ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ, Ἐτοιμάσατε “ τὴν ὁδὸν Κυρίου· εὐθείας ποιεῖτε τὰς τρίβους αὐτοῦ.” <sup>4</sup> ἐγένετο Ἰωάννης βαπτίζων ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ καὶ κηρύσσων βάπτισμα μετανοίας εἰς ἄφεςιν ἁμαρτιῶν. <sup>5</sup> καὶ ἐξεπορεύετο | πρὸς αὐτὸν πᾶσα ἡ Ἰουδαία χώρα, καὶ οἱ Ἱεροσολυμίται· <sup>6</sup> καὶ
 ἐβαπτίζοντο πάντες | <sup>7</sup> ἐν τῷ Ἰορδάνῃ ποταμῷ ὑπ’ αὐτοῦ, | ἐξομολογούμενοι τὰς

<sup>2</sup> Alex. καθώς.

<sup>3</sup> Rec. τοὺς προφῆταις.

<sup>4</sup> Rec. + ἔμπροσθεν σου (cf Mt. 1, 10. Luc. 7, 27.)

<sup>5</sup> Alex. πάντες· καὶ ἐβαπτίζοντο.

<sup>6</sup> Alex. πάντες· καὶ ἐβαπτίζοντο.

WICLIIF—1380.

1. THE bigynnyng of the gospel of ihesu crist the sone of god, <sup>2</sup> as it is writun in Isaac the profete, lo I sende myn aungel bifor thi face: that schal make redi thi weye bifor thee: <sup>3</sup> the vois of a cryer in desert, make ze redi the weye of the lord: make ze hise pathis riȝt.

<sup>4</sup> Iohn was in desert baptisynge and prechyng the baptn of penaunce in to remysyion of synnes, <sup>5</sup> and al the cuntre of iudee wenten out to hym: and al men of ierusalem and thei weren baptisid of iohn in the flum Iordan: and knowlechiȝt her synnes.

<sup>6</sup> And Iohn was clothid with heeris of waulde, and a girdil of skyn was aboute his londe, and he cete hony soukis, and wylde loof. <sup>7</sup> And prechide and seide, a stronger than I schal come afir me, and I am not worthi to kuele down a latchet of his shue. <sup>8</sup> I have baptisid you in watir, but he schal baptise you in the holi goost.

And it was don in tho dayes ihesu cam fro nazareth of galilee, and was baptisid of Iohn in Iordan. <sup>10</sup> and anon he wente up of the watir and saw heuene opened.

<sup>1</sup> Iudaea, a flood or river. Iordan, Iains <sup>2</sup> Iohn, shors.

TYNDALE—1534.

1. THE beginnyng of the Gospell of Iesu Christ the sonne of God, <sup>2</sup> as yt is written in the Prophetes: beholde I sende my messenger before thy face, which shall prepared thy waye before the. <sup>3</sup> The voyce of a cryer in the wilderness: prepare ye the waye of the Lorde, make his pathes streyght.

<sup>4</sup> Iohn dyd baptise in the wyldernes, and preche the baptyeme of repentaunce for the remission of synnes. <sup>5</sup> And all the londe of Iurie and they of Ierusalem, went out vnto him, and were all baptised of him in the ryver Iordan, confessyng their synnes.

<sup>6</sup> Iohn was clothed with cammylles heer, and with a gerdyll of a skyn a bout hys loynes. And he dyd eate locustes and wyld hony, <sup>7</sup> and preached sayinge: a stronger then I cometh after me, whose shue latchet I am not worthy to stoupe doune and vnlose. <sup>8</sup> I have baptised you with water: but he shall baptise you with the holy goost.

<sup>9</sup> And yt came to passe in those dayes, that Iesus cam from Nazareth, a cyte of Galilee: and was baptised of Iohn in Iordan. <sup>10</sup> And assone as he was come out of the water, Iohn sawe heaven open, and

CRANMER—1539.

1. THE begynnyng of the Gospell of Iesu Chryst the sonne of God, <sup>2</sup> as it is written in the Prophetes, behold, I sende my messenger before thy face which shall prepare thy waye before the. <sup>3</sup> The voyce of a cryer in the wilderness: prepare ye the waye of the Lord, and make his pathes strait. <sup>4</sup> Iohn dyd baptise in the wyldernes, and preached the baptyeme of repentaunce, for the remission of synnes. <sup>5</sup> And all the lande of Jewrie and they of Ierusalem, went out vnto hym, and were all baptised of hym in the ryuer Iordan, confessyng their synnes.

<sup>6</sup> Iohn was clothed wyth camilles herr, and with a gerdyll of a skyn about hys loynes. And he dyd eate locustes and wilde hony, <sup>7</sup> and preached, sayinge. He that is stronger then I, cometh after me, whose sho latchet I am not worthy to stoupe doune, and vnlose. <sup>8</sup> I have baptised you wyth water: but he shall baptise you with the holy gost.

<sup>9</sup> And it came to passe in those dayes, that Iesus cam from Nazareth, of Galilee: and was baptised of Iohn in Iordan. <sup>10</sup> And assone as he was come vp out of the water: he sawe heauen open, and the sprete de-

ΕΥΑΓΓΕΛΙΟΝ ΚΑΤΑ ΜΑΡΚΟΝ.

Κεφάλαιον Α.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MARK.

CHAPTER I.

ἀμαρτίας αὐτῶν. <sup>6</sup> ἦν δὲ Ἰωάννης ἐνδεδυμένος τρίχας καμήλου, καὶ ζώνην δερματίνην περὶ τὴν ὀσφύν αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐσθίων ἀκρίδας καὶ μέλι ἄγριον. <sup>7</sup> Καὶ ἐκήρυσσε, λέγων, Ἐρχεται ὁ ἰσχυρότερός μου ὀπίσω μου, οὗ οὐκ εἰμὶ ἰκανὸς κίψας λῦσαι τὸν ἱμᾶντα τῶν ὑποδημάτων αὐτοῦ. <sup>8</sup> ἐγὼ ἂ μὲν ἐβάπτισα ὑμᾶς ἐν ὕδατι αὐτὸς δὲ βαπτίσει ὑμᾶς ἐν Πνεύματι ἁγίῳ. <sup>9</sup> Καὶ ἐγένετο ἐν ἐκείναις ταῖς ἡμέραις, ἦλθεν Ἰησοῦς ἀπὸ Ναζαρετ τῆς Γαλιλαίας, καὶ ἐβαπτίσθη ὑπὸ Ἰωάννου εἰς τὸν Ἰορδάνην. <sup>10</sup> καὶ εὐθέως ἀναβαίνων ἀπὸ τοῦ ὕδατος, εἶδε σχιζομένους τοὺς

<sup>1</sup> Alex. ἐπ' αὐτοῦ ἐν τῷ Ἰορδάνῃ.

<sup>2</sup> Alex. Ἦν δὲ ὁ Ἰωάννης.

<sup>3</sup> Alex. = μὲν.

<sup>4</sup> Alex. εἰς τὸν Ἰορδάνην ὑπὸ Ἰωάννου.

<sup>5</sup> Alex. ἔκ.

GENEVA — 1557.

1. THE beginning of the Gospel of Iesus Christe, the Sonne of God. <sup>2</sup> As it is written in the Prophetes, Behold I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee. <sup>3</sup> The voyce of one crying in the wilderness is, Prepare the way of the Lord, make his pathes straight. <sup>4</sup> Iohn dyd baptize in the wyldernes, and preache the Baptisme of amendement of life, for the remission of synnes. <sup>5</sup> And all the land of Iurie, and they of Ierusalem, went out vnto hym, and were all baptized of hym in the ryuer Iordan, confessing their synnes.

<sup>6</sup> And Iohn was clothed with camels heare, and with a gyrdel of a skyn about his loynes. And he did eat locustes and wylded hony. <sup>7</sup> And preached, saying, A stronger then I cometh after me, whose shoes latched I am not worthy to stoupe downe, and vnlose. <sup>8</sup> Trueth it is, I have baptized you with water, but he shall baptize you with the holy Ghost.

<sup>9</sup> And it came to passe in those dayes, that Iesus came from Nazaret a citie of Galilee: and was baptized of Iohn in Iordan. <sup>10</sup> And assone as he was come out of the water, Iohn saw heauen cleafte,

RHEIMS—1582.

1. THE beginning of the Gospel of IESVS CHRIST the sonne of God. <sup>2</sup> As it is written in Esay the Prophet, (Behold I send mine Angel before thy face, who shall prepare thy way before thee.) <sup>3</sup> A voice of one crying in the desert, Prepare ye the way of our Lord, make straight his pathes. <sup>4</sup> Iohn vvas in the desert baptizing, and preaching the baptisme of penance vnto remission of sinnes. <sup>5</sup> And there vvent forth to him al the countrie of Ievvrie, and al they of Hierusalem: and vvere baptized of him in the riuier of Iordan, confessing their sinnes.

<sup>6</sup> And Iohn vvas clothed vwith camels heare, and a girdle of a skinne about his loines: and he did eate locustes and vvvild honie. <sup>7</sup> And he preached, saying, There cometh a stronger then I after me: vvhose latched of his shoes I am not vvorthe stoupinge downe to vnloose. <sup>8</sup> I have baptized you vwith vwater: but he shall baptize you vwith the holy Ghost.

<sup>9</sup> And it came to passe: in those daies came IESVS from Nazareth of Galilee: and vvas baptized of Iohn in Iordan. <sup>10</sup> And forthvwith coming vp out of the vwater, he savv the heauens opened, and

AUTHORISED—1611.

1. THE beginning of the Gospel of Iesus Christ, the Sonne of God, <sup>2</sup> As it is written in the Prophetes, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee. <sup>3</sup> The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight. <sup>4</sup> Iohn did baptize in the wilderness, and preach the baptisme of repentance, <sup>5</sup> for the remission of sinnes. <sup>6</sup> And there went out vnto him all the land of Iudea, and they of Ierusalem, & were all baptized of him in the riuier of Iordane, confessing their sinnes. <sup>7</sup> And Iohn was clothed with camels haire, and with a girdle of a skin about his loines: and he did eat locusts and wilde honie, <sup>8</sup> And preached, saying, There cometh one mightier then I after me, the latchet of whose shooes I am not worthy to stoupe downe, and vnloose. <sup>9</sup> I indeed have baptized you with water: but hee shall baptize you with the holy Ghost.

<sup>9</sup> And it came to passe in those daies, that Iesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized of Iohn in Iordane. <sup>10</sup> And straightway coming vp out of the water, hee saw the heauens <sup>11</sup> opened,

<sup>11</sup> Or, vnto. <sup>12</sup> Or, clouen, or rent.

οὐρανοῦς, καὶ τὸ Πνεῦμα ὡς| περιστεράν καταβαῖνον ἐπ' αὐτόν. <sup>11</sup> καὶ φωνὴ ἐγένετο ἐκ τῶν οὐρανῶν, Ἐγὼ εἶ ὁ υἱὸς μου ὁ ἀγαπητὸς, ἐν ᾧ| εὐδόκησα. <sup>12</sup> Καὶ εὐθὺς τὸ Πνεῦμα αὐτὸν ἐκβάλλει εἰς τὴν ἔρημον. <sup>13</sup> καὶ ἦν ἔκει| ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ ἡμέρας τεσσαράκοντα, πειραζόμενος ὑπὸ τοῦ Σατανᾶ,| καὶ ἦν μετὰ τῶν θηρίων καὶ οἱ ἄγγελοι διηκόνουν αὐτῷ.

<sup>14</sup> Μετὰ δὲ τὸ παραδοθῆναι τὸν Ἰωάννην, ἦλθεν ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἰς τὴν Γαλιλαίαν, κηρύσσειν τὸ εὐαγγέλιον τῆς βασιλείας τοῦ Θεοῦ, <sup>15</sup> καὶ λέγων, Ὅτι πεπλήρωται ὁ καιρὸς, καὶ ἤγγικεν ἡ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ μετανοεῖτε, καὶ πιστεύετε ἐν τῷ εὐαγγελίῳ. <sup>16</sup> Περιπατῶν δὲ παρὰ τὴν θάλασσαν τῆς Γαλιλαίας, εἶδε Σίμωνα καὶ Ἀνδρέαν τὸν ἀδελφὸν αὐτοῦ τοῦ Σίμωνος, ἀμφιβάλλοντας ἀμφίβληστρον ἐν τῇ θαλάσῃ ἦσαν γὰρ ἀλιεῖς. <sup>17</sup> καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Δεῦτε ὅπισθό μου, καὶ ποιήσω ὑμᾶς γενέσθαι ἀλιεῖς ἀνθρώπων. <sup>18</sup> Καὶ εὐθέως ἀφέντες

Rec. ὡσί (cf. Mt. 3, 16. Lc. 3, 22.) <sup>11</sup> Alex. σοι. <sup>12</sup> Alex. = εἰεῖ. <sup>13</sup> Alex. τεσσαράκοντα ἡμέρας καὶ τεσσαράκοντα νύκτας πειραζόμενος ὑπὸ τοῦ σατανᾶ (cf. Mt. 4, 2.) <sup>14</sup> Const. = τὸν. <sup>15</sup> Alex. = τῆς βασιλείας. <sup>16</sup> Const. = καί. <sup>17</sup> Alex. καὶ παράγων.

WICLIIF—1380.

and the holi goost comynge down as a culuer, and dwelinge in hym <sup>11</sup> and a vois was made fro heuene; thou art my louede sone: in the I am pleside.

<sup>12</sup> and anon the spirit puttide hym forthe in to deseret, <sup>13</sup> and he was in deseret fourti dayes and fourty nyctis, and was temptid of sathanas and he was with beestis: and angelis mynstriden to hym.

<sup>14</sup> But aftir that loon was taken, ihesus cam in to galilee, and prechide the gospel of the kyngdom of god <sup>15</sup> and seide, that the tyme is fullilide: and the kyngdom of god schal come nys; do 3e penance: and bileue 3e to the gospel:

<sup>16</sup> and as he passide hisidis the see of galile, he saue symounde and andrew his brother castynge her nettis in to the see, For thei weren fishers, <sup>17</sup> and ihesus seide to hem; come 3e aftir me, I schal make 3ou to be made fishers of men; <sup>18</sup> and anon thei leften her nettis: and suden hym;

<sup>19</sup> and he zede forth fro thennes a litil: and sae Iames of zebedei, and loon his brother in a bote makynge nettis; <sup>20</sup> and anon he clepid hem; and thei leften zebedei her fadir in the boot, with hirid seruauntis: And thei suden hym;

<sup>21</sup> and thei entriden in to cafernaum; and anon in the sabotis, he zede in to a synagoge: and tau3te hem; <sup>22</sup> and thei wondriden on his te3chynge, for he tau3te hem as he that hadde power, and not as scribis;

<sup>23</sup> and in the synagoge of hem was a man in an vnclene spirit; and he cried out; <sup>24</sup> and seide; what to us and to thee, thou ihesus of Nazareth? hast thou come to distrie us; I woot that thou art the holi of god; <sup>25</sup> and ihesus thretenede hym and seide, wexe doumbe and go out of the man; <sup>26</sup> and the vnclene spirit decreidynge hym, and cryynge with a greet vois; wente out fro hym; <sup>27</sup> and alle men wondriden, so the holy goost descendynge vpon him; lyke a dove. <sup>11</sup> And ther came a voyce from heauen: Thou arte my dere sonne in whom I delyte.

<sup>11</sup> vsor, a dove or pigeon. <sup>13</sup> 37, night suden, fullmored, soled, went, clepid, called. woot, knowe. decreidynge, tearing.

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>12</sup> And immediatly the sprete drave him into wildernes: <sup>13</sup> and he was there in the wildernes xl dayes; and was tempted of Satan; and was with wilde bestes. And the aungels ministred vnto him.

<sup>14</sup> After Iohn was taken; Iesus came in to Galile; preachinge the gospel of the kyngdome of God, <sup>15</sup> and saynge: the tyme is come; and the kyngdome of God is at hande; repent and beleve the gospel.

<sup>16</sup> As he walked by the see of Galile; he sawe Simon and Andrew his brother; castynge nettes in to the see; for they were fysshers. <sup>17</sup> And Iesus sayde vnto them: folowe me; and I will make you fysshers of men. <sup>18</sup> And straght waye; they forsok their nettes; and folowed him.

<sup>19</sup> And when he had gone a lytell further thence; he sawe Iames the sonne of zebede; and Iohn his brother; even as they were in the shyppe mendynge their nettes. <sup>20</sup> And anon he called them. And they left their fither zebede in the shippe with his hyred seruautes; and went their waye aftir him.

<sup>21</sup> And they entred in to Capernaum; and stright waye on the Saboth dayes; he entred in to the synagoge and tau3t. <sup>22</sup> And they merueled at his learninge. For he tau3t them as one that had power with hym; and not as the Scribes.

<sup>23</sup> And there was in their synagoge a man vexed with an vnclene spirite; the man cryed sayinge: let he: what haue we to do with the thou Iesus of Nazareth? Arte thou come to destroye vs? I knowe the what thou arte, euen that holy of god.

<sup>24</sup> And Iesus rebuked him sayinge: holde thy peace and come out of him. <sup>25</sup> And the vnclene spirite tare hym; and cryed with a loude voyce; and came out of him. <sup>27</sup> And they were all amased; in so moche

CRANMER—1539.

scendynge vpon him lyke a doue: <sup>11</sup> And ther came a voyce from heauen. Thou art my deare sonne in whom I delyte.

<sup>12</sup> And immediatly the sprete droue him into wildernes: <sup>13</sup> and he was there in the wyldernes .xl. dayes, and was tempted of Satan, and was with wilde bestes. And the angels minystred vnto hym. <sup>14</sup> After that Iohn was taken Iesus came into Galile preachinge the Gospell, of the kyngdom of God, <sup>15</sup> and saynge, the tyme is come, and the kyngdom of God is at hande, repent, and beleue the Gospell.

<sup>16</sup> As he walked by the see of Galile, he sawe Simon and Andrew his brother, castynge nettes into the see, for they were fysshers. <sup>17</sup> And Iesus sayde vnto them: folowe me, and I will make you to become fysshers of men. <sup>18</sup> And straght waye, they forsok their nettes, and folowed him. <sup>19</sup> And when he had gone a lytell further thence, he sawe Iames the sonne of zebede, and Iohn his brother, which also were in the shyppe, mendynge their nettes. <sup>20</sup> And anone he called them. And they left their father zebede in the shyppe with the hyred seruautes, and folowed hym. <sup>21</sup> And they came into Capernaum: and straght waye on the Saboth dayes, he entred into the synagoge, and tau3t. <sup>22</sup> And they were astonnyed at his learnynge. For he tau3t them as one that had auctorite, and not as the Scribes.

<sup>23</sup> And there was in their Synagoge a man vexed with an vnclene spirite, and he cryed, sayinge: <sup>24</sup> Alas, what haue we to do with the thou Iesus of Nazareth? Art thou come to destroye vs? I knowe the what thou art, euen that holy one of God. <sup>25</sup> And Iesus rebuked hym sayinge: holde thy peace, and come out of the man: <sup>26</sup> And when the vnclene spirite had torne him, and cryed with a loude voyce, he came out of him. <sup>27</sup> And they were all

ἡ τὰ δίκτυα αὐτῶν, ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ. <sup>19</sup> Καὶ προβάς <sup>20</sup> ἐκέθην ὀλίγου, εἶδεν Ἰάκωβον τὸν τοῦ Ζεβεδαίου, καὶ Ἰωάννην τὸν ἀδελφὸν αὐτοῦ, καὶ αὐτοὺς ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ καταρτίζοντας τὰ δίκτυα. <sup>20</sup> καὶ <sup>21</sup> εὐθέως ἐκάλεσεν αὐτούς· καὶ ἀφέντες τὸν πατέρα αὐτῶν Ζεβεδαίου ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ μετὰ τῶν μισθωτῶν, ἀπῆλθον ὀπίσω αὐτοῦ.

<sup>21</sup> Καὶ εἰσπορεύονται εἰς Καπερναοὺμ· καὶ εὐθέως τοῖς σάββασι <sup>22</sup> εἰσελθὼν εἰς τὴν συναγωγὴν, ἐδίδασκε. <sup>22</sup> καὶ ἐξεπλήσσοντο ἐπὶ τῇ διδαχῇ αὐτοῦ· ἦν γὰρ διδάσκων αὐτοὺς ὡς ἐξουσίαν ἔχων, καὶ οὐχ ὡς οἱ γραμματεῖς. <sup>23</sup> Καὶ <sup>24</sup> ἦν ἐν τῇ συναγωγῇ αὐτῶν ἄνθρωπος ἐν πνεύματι ἀκαθάρτῳ, καὶ ἀνέκραξε, <sup>24</sup> λέγων, <sup>25</sup> Ἐα, τί ἡμῖν καὶ σοί, Ἰησοῦ Ναζαρηνέ; ἦλθες ἀπολῆσαι ἡμᾶς; οἶδά σε τίς εἶ, ὁ ἅγιος τοῦ Θεοῦ. <sup>25</sup> Καὶ ἐπετίμησεν αὐτῷ ὁ Ἰησοῦς, λέγων, <sup>26</sup> Φιμώθητι, καὶ <sup>27</sup> ἐξέλθε ἐξ αὐτοῦ. <sup>27</sup> Καὶ σπαράξαν αὐτὸν τὸ πνεῦμα πάντες, ὁ ἀκάθαρτος, καὶ κράξαν φωνῇ μεγάλῃ, ἐξῆλθεν· ἐξῆ αὐτοῦ. <sup>27</sup> καὶ ἐθαμβήθησαν πάντες, ὥστε συζητεῖν πρὸς

<sup>1</sup> Const. αὐτοῦ τοῦ Σίμωνος. Rec. αὐτοῦ. Alex. τοῦ Σίμωνος. <sup>2</sup> Rec. βάλλοντα (cf. Mt. 4, 18). <sup>3</sup> Alex. τὰ δίκτυα. <sup>4</sup> Alex. = ἐκείθεν. <sup>5</sup> Alex. + αὐτῶν. <sup>6</sup> Alex. εὐθέως. <sup>7</sup> Alex. = εἰσελθὼν. <sup>8</sup> Alex. + εὐθέως. <sup>9</sup> Alex. = Ἐα. <sup>10</sup> Alex. δ᾽πρ.

GENEVA — 1557.

in twaine, and the holy Gost descending vpon him lyke a doue. <sup>11</sup> And there came a voyce from heauen. Thou art my deare Sonne in whom I delyte. <sup>12</sup> And immediatly the Spirite drieth him sodenly into wyldernes. <sup>13</sup> And he was there in the wyldernes forty dayes, and was tempted of Satan : he was also with the wyld beasts, and the Angels ministred vnto him. <sup>14</sup> And after Iohn was committed to prison, Iesus came into Galile, preaching the Gospel of the kyngdome of God, <sup>15</sup> And saying, The tyme is fulfilled, and the kyngdome of God is at hand, Amende your liues, and beleue the Gospel. <sup>16</sup> As he walked by the sea of Galile, he saw Simon, and Andrew his brother, casting a nette into the sea, (for they were fyshers.) <sup>17</sup> And Iesus sayd vnto them, Follow me, and I wyl make you to be fyshers of men. <sup>18</sup> And straight way, they forsoke their nettes, and folowed him. <sup>19</sup> And when he had gone a lytle further thence, he saw Iames the sonne of Zebede, and Iohn his brother, euen as they were in the shyppe mending their nettes. <sup>20</sup> And anone he called them : and they left their father Zebede in the shyp with his hyred seruautes, and went their way after him. <sup>21</sup> And they entred into Capernaum, and straight way on the Sabbath daye, he entred into the Synagoge and taught. <sup>22</sup> And they marueled at his learning : For he taught them as one that had power, and not as the Scribes. <sup>23</sup> And there was in their Synagoge a man vexed with an vncleane spirite, and he cried, <sup>24</sup> Saying, Ah, what haue we to do with thee, thou Iesus of Nazaret? Art thou come to destroy vs? I knowe thee what thou art, euen that holy one of God. <sup>25</sup> And Iesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him. <sup>26</sup> And the vncleane spirite tare him, and cried with a loude voyce, and came out of hym. <sup>27</sup> And they

RHEIMS — 1582.

the Spirit as a doue descending, and remaining on him. <sup>11</sup> And a voice vvas made from heauen, Thou art my beloved sonne, in thee I am well pleased. <sup>12</sup> And forthwith the Spirit droue him out into the desert. <sup>13</sup> And he vvas in the desert fourtie daies, and fourtie nightes : and vvas tempted of Satan. and he vvas vyth beasts, and the Angels ministred to him. <sup>14</sup> And after that Iohn vvas dehuered vp, Iesus came into Galilee, preaching the Gospel of the kingdom of God, <sup>15</sup> and saying, That the time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand : be penitent, and beleuee the Gospel. <sup>16</sup> And passing by the sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and Andrew his brother, casting nettes into the sea (for they vvere fishers) <sup>17</sup> and Iesus said to them, Come after me, and I vwill make you to become fishers of men. <sup>18</sup> And immediatly leauing their nettes, they foloued him. <sup>19</sup> And being gone thence a litle further, he saw Iames of Zebedee, and Iohn his brother, and them repairing their nettes in the shippe : <sup>20</sup> and forthwith he called them. <sup>21</sup> And leauing their father Zebede in the shippe vyth his hired men, they foloued him. <sup>22</sup> And they enter into Capernaum, and he forthwith vpon the Sabbaths going into the Synagogue, taught them. <sup>23</sup> And they vvere astonied at his doctrine, for he vvas teaching them as hauing povver, and not as the Scribes. <sup>24</sup> And there vvas in their Synagogue a man in an vncleane spirit : and he cried out, <sup>24</sup> saying, What to vs and to thee Iesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy vs? I know vwho thou art, the Sainct of God. <sup>25</sup> And Iesus threatened him, saying, Hold thy peace, and goe out of the man. <sup>26</sup> And the vncleane spirit tearing him, and crying out vyth a great voyce, vvent out of him. <sup>27</sup> And they marueled al, in so much that

AUTHORISED — 1611.

and the Spirit like a doue descending vpon him. <sup>11</sup> And there came a voyce from heauen, saying, Thou art my beloved Sonne, in whom I am well pleased. <sup>12</sup> And immediatly the Spirit drieth him into the wilderness. <sup>13</sup> And he was there in the wilderness fourtie dayes tempted of Satan, and was with the wildebeasts, and the Angels ministred vnto him. <sup>14</sup> Now after that Iohn was put in prison, Iesus came into Galilee, preaching the Gospel of the kingdom of God, <sup>15</sup> And saying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand : repent ye, and beleuee the Gospel. <sup>16</sup> Now as he walked by the Sea of Galilee, he saw Simon, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the Sea (for they were fishers.) <sup>17</sup> And Iesus said vnto them, Come ye after me ; and I will make you to become fishers of men. <sup>18</sup> And straightway they forsooke their nets, and followed him. <sup>19</sup> And when he had gone a litle further thence, he saw Iames the sonne of Zebede, and Iohn his brother, who also were in the ship mending their nets. <sup>20</sup> And straightway he called them : and they left their father Zebede in the ship with the hired seruautes, and went after him. <sup>21</sup> And they went into Capernaum, and straightway on the Sabbath day he entred into the Synagoge, and taught. <sup>22</sup> And they were astonied at his doctrine : for he taught them as one that had authoritie, and not as the Scribes. <sup>23</sup> And there was in their Synagoge a man with an vncleane spirit, and he cried out, <sup>24</sup> Saying, Let vs alone, what haue we to doe with thee, thou Iesus of Nazareth? Art thou come to destroy vs? I know thee who thou art, the Holy one of God. <sup>25</sup> And Iesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him. <sup>26</sup> And when the vncleane spirit had torne him, and cried with a loud voyce, he came out of him. <sup>27</sup> And they were all amazed, inso much αὐτοὺς, λεγοντας, <sup>d</sup> 'Τί ἐστὶ τοῦτο; τίς ἡ διδαχὴ ἡ καινὴ αὕτη, ὅτι κατ' ἐξουσίαν

'καὶ τοῖς πνεύμασι| τοῖς ἀκαθάρτοις ἐπιτάσσει, καὶ ὑπακούουσιν αὐτῷ; <sup>e</sup> 28 'Ἐξήλθε
δὲ| ἡ ἀκοὴ αὐτοῦ <sup>f</sup> εὐθὺς| εἰς ἄλλην τὴν περίχωρον τῆς Γαλιλαίας. <sup>g</sup> 29 Καὶ <sup>h</sup> εὐθέως|
ἐκ τῆς συναγωγῆς ἐξελθούτες, ἦλθον εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν Σίμωνος καὶ Ἀνδρέου, μετὰ Ἰακώβου καὶ Ἰωάννου. <sup>i</sup> 30 ἡ δὲ πενθερὰ Σίμωνος κατέκειτο πυρέσσουσα· καὶ
<sup>j</sup> εὐθέως| λέγουσιν αὐτῷ περὶ αὐτῆς. <sup>k</sup> 31 καὶ προσελθὼν ἤγειρεν αὐτήν, κρατήσας
τῆς χειρὸς αὐτῆς· καὶ ἀφῆκεν αὐτήν ὁ πυρετὸς <sup>l</sup> εὐθέως,| καὶ διηκόνει αὐτοῖς.
<sup>m</sup> 32 Ὁψίας δὲ γενομένης, ὅτε ἔδω ὁ ἥλιος, ἔφερον πρὸς αὐτὸν πάντας τοὺς κακῶς ἔχοντας καὶ τοὺς δαιμονιζομένους· <sup>n</sup> 33 καὶ ἡ πόλις ὅλη ἐπισυνηγμένη ἦν πρὸς τὴν θύραν. <sup>o</sup> 34 καὶ ἑβέραπευσε πολλοὺς κακῶς ἔχοντας ποικίλιας νόσους· καὶ δαιμόνια

<sup>d</sup> Alex. ἰσι τῶτι τοῦτο; ἰδιαιχὴ καινὴ κατ' ἐξουσίαν· καὶ τοῖς πνεύμασι. <sup>e</sup> Alex. Καὶ ἐξῆλθεν. <sup>f</sup> Alex. ε. εὐθὺς πανταχοῦ. s = εὐθὺς.
<sup>g</sup> Alex. εὐθὺς. <sup>h</sup> Alex. εὐθὺς. <sup>i</sup> Alex. = εὐθὺς.

WICLIFF—1380.

that thei thouȝten withynne hem silf and seiden what thing is this? what newe doctryne is this? for in power he commaundith to vncleue spiritis: and thei obeien to hym, <sup>28</sup> and the fame of him wente forth anon in to alle the cuntre of galilee,

<sup>29</sup> ⁊ anon thei zeden oute of the syna-goge, and camen in to the hous of sy-mounde and of andrew with James and Iohn. <sup>30</sup> And the modir of symoundis wiif laye sike in the feueris, and anon thei seien to hym of hir, <sup>31</sup> and he cam nyȝ and arerid hir, and whanne he hadde take hir honde, anon the feuer lefte hir, and sche serued hem.

<sup>32</sup> but whanne the euentide was come ⁊ the sunne was gon down: thei brouȝten to hym al that weren at male ese and hem that hadden fendis, <sup>33</sup> and al the citee was gaderid at the gate: <sup>34</sup> and he heclide many that hadden dyuers siknessis, ⁊ he castide out many fendis, and he suffrid hem not to speke: for thei knewen hym.

<sup>35</sup> and he roos ful eerli and zeden out and wente in to a desert place: and preiched there, <sup>36</sup> and symounde sued hym: and thei that weren with hym, <sup>37</sup> and whanne thei hadden founden hym: thei seiden to hym, that alle men seken thee: <sup>38</sup> and he seide to hem, go we into the next townes and citees: that I preche also therefor hereto I came, <sup>39</sup> and he prechid in the synagogis of hem: and in al galilee: and castid out fendis,

<sup>40</sup> and a leprous man cam to hym: and bisouȝte and knelid, and seide, if thou wilt: thou maist clenise me, <sup>41</sup> and ihesus hadde merci on hym: and stricte out his hond, and touchid hym and seide, I wole be thou made clene, <sup>42</sup> and whanne he had seide thus: anon the kpre passid aweie fro hym, and he was clenid.

zeden, went. seien, say or tell. arerid, raised.
male ese, diseased. fendis, fendis.

TYNDALE—1534.

that they demanded one of another amonge them selves saying: what thinge is this? what newe doctryne is this? For he commaundeth the foule spiritis with power, and they obeye him. <sup>28</sup> And im-mediatly his fame spreed abroad throughout all the region borderinge on Galile.

<sup>29</sup> And forth with, assone as they were come out of the synagoge, they entred in to the housse of Symon and Andrew, with James and Iohn. <sup>30</sup> And Symons mother in lawe laye sicke of a fever. And anone they tolde him of her. <sup>31</sup> And he came and toke her by the honde and lifte her vp; and the fever forsoke hir by and by:
and she ministred vnto them.

<sup>32</sup> And at even when the sunne was downe, they brought to him all that were diseased, and them that were possessed with devyls. <sup>33</sup> And all the citee gaddred to gedder at the dore, <sup>34</sup> and he healed many that were sicke of divers desenes.
And he cast out many devyls, and suffred not the devyls to speake, because they knewe him.

<sup>35</sup> And in the morninge very erly, Iesus arose and went out in to a solitary place, and there prayed. <sup>36</sup> And Simon and they that were with him folowed after him.
<sup>37</sup> And when they had founde him, they sayde vnto him: all men seke for thee.
<sup>38</sup> And he sayd vnto them: let vs go in to the next townes: that I maye preache there al so: for truly I cam out for that purpose. <sup>39</sup> And he preached in their syn-agoges throughout all Galilee, and cast
the devyls out.

<sup>40</sup> And there came a leper to him, beseeching him, and kneled doune vnto him, and sayde to him: yf thou wilt, thou canest make me clene. <sup>41</sup> And Iesus had compassion on him, and putforth his honde, touched him, and sayde to him: I will be thou clene. <sup>42</sup> And assone as he had spoken, immediatly the leprosy departed from him, and was clenid.

CRANMER—1539.

amased, in so moch that they demanded one of another amonge them selues sayinge: what thing is this? What newe doctrine is this? For with auctorite commaunded he the foule spiritis, and they obeyed him. <sup>28</sup> And immediatly hys fame spred abroad throughout all the region borderinge on Galile.

<sup>29</sup> And forthwith, when they were come out of the Synagoge they entred into the house of Symon and Andrew, with James and Iohn. <sup>30</sup> But Symons mother in lawe laye sycke of a fever. And anone they tell him of her. <sup>31</sup> And he came, and toke her by the hande: and lifte her vp; and ymediatly the fever forsoke hyr, and she ministred vnto them. <sup>32</sup> And at even when the sonne was doune, they brought vnto hym all that were dyscaied, and them that were vexed with devyls. <sup>33</sup> And all the eytwe was gathred to gether at the dore, <sup>34</sup> and he healed many that were sycke of dyuers desenes, and cast out many devyls, and suffred not the devyls to speake, because they knewe him.

<sup>35</sup> And in the morninge very early, Iesus (when he was rysen vp) departed, and went out into a solitary place, and there prayed. <sup>36</sup> And Symon and they that were with hym, folowed after hym. <sup>37</sup> And when they had founde him, they saye vnto him:
all men seke for thee. <sup>38</sup> And he sayd vnto them: let vs go into the next townes, that I maye preach there also: for therefore am I come. <sup>39</sup> And he preached in their Synagoges, in all Galile, and cast
the devyls out.

<sup>40</sup> And there came a leper to hym, beseeching him, and knelyng doune, and sayeng vnto him, yf thou wilt, thou canest make me cleane. <sup>41</sup> And Iesus had compassion on hym, and put forth his hande, touched him, and sayeth vnto him: I will be thou cleane. <sup>42</sup> And assone as he had spoken, immediatly the leprosy departed from him,

πολλὰ ἐξέβαλε, καὶ οὐκ ἤφιε λαλεῖν τὰ δαιμόνια, ὅτι ᾗδειςαν αὐτόν.<sup>35</sup> Καὶ πρῶτ<sup>1</sup> ἐννυχον| λίαν ἀναστὰς ἐξῆλθε, καὶ ἀπῆλθεν εἰς ἔρημον τόπον, κακεῖ προσήυχετο.

<sup>36</sup> καὶ κατεδίωξαν αὐτὸν ὁ Σίμων καὶ οἱ μετ' αὐτοῦ.<sup>37</sup> καὶ εὐρόντες αὐτὸν, λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, "Οτι πάντες<sup>38</sup> με ζητοῦσι." <sup>38</sup> Καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, "Ἀγωμεν<sup>39</sup> εἰς τὰς ἐχομένας κομοπόλεις, ἵνα<sup>40</sup> καὶ ἐκεῖ κηρύξω εἰς τοῦτο γὰρ ἐξελέληθα." <sup>39</sup> Καὶ ἦν κηρύσσων<sup>41</sup> ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς| αὐτῶν, εἰς ὅλην τὴν Γαλιλαίαν, καὶ τὰ δαιμόνια ἐκβάλλον.

<sup>40</sup> Καὶ ἔρχεται πρὸς αὐτὸν λεπρὸς, παρακαλῶν αὐτὸν καὶ γονυπετῶν αὐτὸν, καὶ λέγων αὐτῷ, "Ἄ<sup>42</sup>Οτι,| εἰὰν θέλῃς, δύνασαι με καθαρίσαι." <sup>41</sup> Ὁ δὲ Ἰησοῦς σπλαγχνισθεὶς, ἐκτείνας τὴν χεῖρα, ἤψατο αὐτοῦ, καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, "Θέλω, καθαρίσθητι."

<sup>42</sup> Καὶ εἰπόντος αὐτοῦ,| εὐθέως ἀπῆλθεν ἀπ' αὐτοῦ ἡ λέπρα, καὶ ἐκαθαρίσθη.

<sup>1</sup> Alex. + Χριστὸν εἶναι.

<sup>1</sup> Alex. ἐννυχα.

<sup>35</sup> Rec. ζητοῦσι σι.

<sup>38</sup> Alex. + ἀλλαχοῦ.

<sup>39</sup> Rec. κακεῖ.

<sup>39</sup> Alex. εἰς τὰς συναγωγὰς.

<sup>37</sup> Alex. Κέρρι ε. = ὄτι. <sup>41</sup> Alex. = εἰπόντος αὐτοῦ.

GENEVA—1557.

were al amazed, in so muche that they demanded one of another, saying, What thing is this? What new doctrine is this? For he commandeth the foule spirits with power, and they obey him. <sup>28</sup> And immediately his fame spred abroad, throughout all the region bordering on Galile.

<sup>29</sup> And forthwith, assone as they were come out of the Synagoge they entred into the house of Simon and Andrew, with Iames and Iohn. <sup>30</sup> And Simons mother in lawe, laye sycke of a feuer: and anone they tolde him of her.

<sup>31</sup> And he came and toke her by the hand, and lyft her vp, and the feuer forsoke her by and by, and she ministred vnto them. <sup>32</sup> And at euen when the sunne was downe, they broght to hym all that were diseased, and them that were possessed with deuils.

<sup>33</sup> And all the citie gathered together at the dore. <sup>34</sup> And he healed many that were sycke of diuers diseases. And he cast out many deuyls, and suffred not the deuyles to speake, because they knew him.

<sup>35</sup> And in the morning very early, before daye Iesus arose and went out into a solitarie place, and there prayed. <sup>36</sup> And Simon, and they that were with him folowed after him. <sup>37</sup> And when they had founde him, they sayd vnto him, All men seke for thee. <sup>38</sup> And he sayd vnto them, Let vs go into the next townes, that I may preache there also: for I came out for that purpose. <sup>39</sup> And he preached in their Synagoges, throughout all Galile, and cast the deuyls out. <sup>40</sup> And there came a leper to him: beseeching hym, and kneled downe vnto hym, and sayd to hym, If thou wilt, thou canst make me cleane. <sup>41</sup> And Iesus had compassion on hym, and put forth his hand, touched him, and sayd to him, I wyl, Be thou cleane. <sup>42</sup> And assone as he had spoken, immediately the leprosy departed from him, and he was made cleane.

RHEIMS—1582.

they questioned among them selues, saying, What thing is this? vwhat is this new doctrine? for vvith pouver he commaundeth the vnclene spirits also, and they obey him. <sup>28</sup> And the brute of him vvent forth incontinent into al the countrie of Galilee.

<sup>29</sup> And immediaty going forth out of the Synagogue, they came into the house of Simon and Andrew, vvith Iames and Iohn. <sup>30</sup> And Simons vvives mother lay in a fit of a feuer: and forthvvith they tel him of her. <sup>31</sup> And comming neere he lyfted her vp taking her by the hand: and incontinent the ague left her, and she ministred vnto them. <sup>32</sup> And vvhen it vvas eneing after sunne set, they broght to him al that vvere il at ease and had had deuils. <sup>33</sup> And al the citie vvas gathered together at the doore. <sup>34</sup> And he cured many that vvere vexed vvith diuerse diseases: and he cast out many deuils, and he suffred not them to speake that they knevvn him.

<sup>35</sup> And rising very early, and going forth he vvent into a desert place: and there he prayed. <sup>36</sup> And Simon sought after him, and they that vvere vvith him. <sup>37</sup> And vvhen they had found him, they said to him, That al secke for thee. <sup>38</sup> And he saith to them, Let vs goe into the next townnes and cities, that I may preach there also: for to this purpose am I come.

<sup>39</sup> And he vvas preaching in their Synagoges, and in al Galilee: and casting out deuils. <sup>40</sup> And a leper commeth to him beseeching him: and kneeling dovvne saith to him, If thou vvilt, thou canst make me cleane. <sup>41</sup> And Iesus haung compassion on him, stretched forth his hand: and touching him, he saith vnto him, I vvil, be thou made cleane. <sup>42</sup> And vvhen he had spoken, immediaty the leprosie departed from him, and he vvas made cleane.

AUTHORISED—1611.

that they questioned among themselves, saying, What thing is this? What new doctrine is this? For with authority commandeth he euen the vnclene spirits, and they doe obey him. <sup>28</sup> And immediaty his fame spread abroad throughout all the region round about Galilee.

<sup>29</sup> And forthwith, when they were come out of the Synagogue, they entred into the house of Simon, and Andrew, with Iames and Iohn. <sup>30</sup> But Simons vvives mother lay sicke of a feuer: and anone they tell him of her. <sup>31</sup> And he came and tooke her by the hand, and lyft her vp, and immediaty the feuer left her, and she ministred vnto them. <sup>32</sup> And at euen, when the Sunne did set, they broght vnto him all that were diseased, and them that were possessed with deuils: <sup>33</sup> And all the city was gathered together at the doore. <sup>34</sup> And hee healed many that were sicke of diuers diseases, and cast out many deuils, and suffered not the deuils<sup>a</sup> to speake, because they knew him. <sup>35</sup> And in the morning, rising vp a great while before day, hee went out, and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed. <sup>36</sup> And Simon, and they that were with him, folowed after him: <sup>37</sup> And when they had found him, they said vnto him, All men seck for thee. <sup>38</sup> And he said vnto them, Let vs go into the next townes, that I may preach there also: for therefore came I forth. <sup>39</sup> And hee preached in their Synagoges throughout all Galilee, and cast out deuils. <sup>40</sup> And there came a leper to him, beseeching him, and kneeling downe to him, and saying vnto him, If thou wilt, thou canst make me cleane. <sup>41</sup> And Iesus mooued with compassion, put forth his hand, and touched him, and saith vnto him, I will, be thou cleane. <sup>42</sup> And assone as hee had spoken, immediaty the leprosie departed from him, and he was cleansed.

<sup>a</sup> Or, to say that they knew him.

<sup>43</sup> Καὶ ἐμβριμησάμενος αὐτῷ, εὐθέως ἐξέβαλεν αὐτὸν, <sup>44</sup> καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, “Ὁρα, μὴδεν<sup>5</sup> μὴδεν| εἶπης· ἀλλ’ ὕπαγε, σεαυτὸν δεῖξον τῷ ἱερεῖ, καὶ προσένεγκε περὶ τοῦ καθαρισμοῦ σου ἃ προσέταξε Μωσῆς, εἰς μαρτύριον αὐτοῖς.” <sup>45</sup> Ὁ δὲ ἐξελθὼν ἤρξατο κηρύσσειν πολλὰ καὶ διαφημίζειν τὸν λόγον, ὥστε μηκέτι αὐτὸν δύνασθαι φανερώς εἰς πόλιν εἰσελθεῖν· ἀλλ’ ἔξω ἐν ἐρήμοις τόποις ἦν, καὶ ἤρχοντο πρὸς αὐτὸν πάντοθεν.|

II. Καὶ εἰσῆλθε πάλιν| εἰς Καπερναοῦμ δι’ ἡμερῶν καὶ| ἠκούσθη ὅτι εἰς οἶκόν ἐστι· <sup>2</sup> καὶ εὐθέως| συνήχθησαν πολλοὶ, ὥστε μηκέτι χωρεῖν μηδὲ τὰ πρὸς τὴν θύραν καὶ ἐλάλει αὐτοῖς τὸν λόγον. <sup>3</sup> Καὶ ἔρχονται πρὸς αὐτὸν, παραλυτικὸν φέροντες, αἰρόμενον ὑπὸ τεσσάρων. <sup>4</sup> καὶ μὴ δυνάμενον προσεγγίσει αὐτῷ διὰ τὸν ὄχλον, ἀπεστέγασαν τὴν στέγην ὅπου ἦν, καὶ ἐξορύξαντες χαλῶσι τὸν κράββατον, * Alex. = μηδεν.

† Rec. πανταθοθεν.

* Rec. πάλιν εἰσῆλθεν.

* Alex. = καί.

* Alex. = εὐθέως.

† Alex. καὶ ἰδών. † Alex. σὺν αἱ ἀμαρτίαι.

WICLIF—1380.

<sup>43</sup> and ihesus thretened hym and putte hym out, <sup>44</sup> and seide to hym se thou seie to no man, but go schewe thee to the princis of prestis, and offre for thy clensynge in to witnessynge to hem, tho thingis that moises badde, <sup>45</sup> and he zede oute : ⁊ bigan to preche, and to pupplische the wordis; so that now he myst not go openly in to the citee; but be with out forth in desert placis, and thei camen to hym on alle sidis.

2. AND eftē he entrid in to cafernaum affir ciste daies; and it was herde that he was in an hous, <sup>2</sup> and many camen to gidre, so that thei mysten not be in the hous, ne at the gate; and he spake to hem the word, <sup>3</sup> and there camen to hem men that brogten a man sike in palsie; whiche was borun of foure, <sup>4</sup> and whanne thei mysten not bryngē hym to ihesus; for the puple; thei vñhecliden the roof where he was, and openede it and thei leten doun the bedde in whiche the sike man in palsie laye; <sup>5</sup> and whanne ihesus hadde seen the feith of hem he seide to the sike man in palsie; some thi synnes ben forfououn to thee;

<sup>6</sup> But there were summe of the scribis sittynge and thenkyngē in her hertes, <sup>7</sup> what spekith he thus? he blasfemeth, who may forgeue synnes but god alone? <sup>8</sup> and whanne ihesus hadde knowen this by the holi goost that thei thougten so withynne hem self: he seith to hem; what thenken ye seye this thingis in zoure hertis? <sup>9</sup> What is lichter to se to the sike man in palsie; the synnes ben forfououn to thee; or to seye rise take thi bedde and walke? <sup>10</sup> but that ye witen that mannes some hath power in erthe to forgeue synnes; he seide to the sike man in palsie; <sup>11</sup> I seie to thee rise up, take thi bedde and go in to thyn hous; <sup>12</sup> and anon he roos up; ⁊ whanne he † Jude, went. † efte, again. † vñhecliden, covered. † forfououn, forgouen. † lichter, easier. † witen, knowe.

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>43</sup> And he charged him, ⁊ sent him away forthwith <sup>44</sup> and sayd vnto him: Se thou saye no thinge to any man; but gett the hence and shewe thy silfe to the preste; and offer for thy clensynge those thinges which Moses commaunded; for a testimoniall vnto them. <sup>45</sup> But he (assone as he was departed) beganne to tell many thinges, and to publyshe the dede: in so moche that Iesus coulde no more openly entre in to the cite, but was with out in desert places. And they came to him from every quarter.

2. AFTER a feawe dayes; he entred into Capernaum agayne, and it was noysed that he was in a hous. <sup>2</sup> And anon many gadred to geder, in so moche that now there was no roume to receaue them: no, not so moche as about the dore. And he preached the worde vnto them. <sup>3</sup> And there came vnto him that brought one sicke of the palsie; borne of fower men. <sup>4</sup> And because they coulde not come nye vnto him for prease; they vncouered the rofe of the housse where he was. And when they had broken it open; they let doun the bedd where in the sick of the palsie laye. <sup>5</sup> When Iesus sawe their fayth; he sayde to the sick of the palsie; sonne thy synnes are forgeuen the.

<sup>6</sup> And ther were certayne of the scribes sittynge there; and reasoning in their hertes: <sup>7</sup> how doeth this felowe so blasphemē? Who can forgeue synnes; but God only? <sup>8</sup> And immediatly when Iesus perceaued in his sprete; that they so reasoned in them selues; he sayde vnto them: why thinke ye soche thinges in youre hertes? <sup>9</sup> Whether is it easier to saye to the sick of the palsie; thy synnes are forgeuen the: or to saye; arise take vp thy bedd and walke? <sup>10</sup> That ye maye knowe that the sonne of man hath power in erth to forgeue synnes; he spake vnto the sick of the palsie: <sup>11</sup> I saye vnto thee; arise and take vp thy bedd; and gett the hense in to thynne awne housse. <sup>12</sup> And

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>43</sup> and he sent him away forthwith, <sup>44</sup> and sayeth vnto him. Se thou saye nothyng to any man; but gett the hence, shewe thy selfe to the Preate, and offer for thy clensure, those thinges whych Moses commaunded, for a witness vnto them. <sup>45</sup> But he (assone as he was departed) beganne to tell many thinges, and to publyshe the sayenge: in so moche that Iesus coulde nomore openly entre into the cytie, but was with out in desert places. And they came to him from eury quarter.

2. AFTER a feaw dayes also, he entred into Capernaum agayne, and it was noysed that he was in the house. <sup>2</sup> And anon many were gathered together, in somoch that now there was no romē to receaue them, no not so moche as about the dore. And he preached the worde vnto them. <sup>3</sup> And they came vnto him, bryngynge one sycke of the palsie whych was borne of fower men. <sup>4</sup> And when they coulde not come nye vnto him for prease, they vncouered the rofe of the house that he was in. And when they had broken vp the rofe, they dyd (with coardes) let doun the bed wherin the sycke of the palsie laye. <sup>5</sup> When Iesus sawe their fayth, he sayde vnto the sycke of the palsie; sonne thy synnes be forgeuen the.

<sup>6</sup> But ther were certayne of the Scribes syttinge there, and thinking in their hertes: <sup>7</sup> why doth he speake thus blasphemyes? who can forgeue synnes, but God only? <sup>8</sup> And immediatly when Iesus perceaued in his sprete, that they so thought with in them selues, he sayeth vnto them: why thinke ye soch thinges in youre hertes? <sup>9</sup> Whether is it easier to saye to the sycke of the palsie: thy synnes be forgeuen the: or to saye, arise, take vp thy bed, and walke? <sup>10</sup> But that ye maye knowe, that the sonne of man hath power in earth to forgeue synnes, he spake vnto the sycke of the palsie: <sup>11</sup> I saye vnto thee: arise, ⁊ take vp thy bed, ⁊ gett the hense vnto thynne awne house. <sup>12</sup> And immediatly

ἐφ' ᾧ ὁ παραλυτικὸς κατέκειτο. <sup>5</sup> ἰδὼν δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὴν πίστιν αὐτῶν λέγει τῷ παραλυτικῷ, 'Τέκνον, ἀφέωνταί σοι αἱ ἁμαρτίαι σου.' <sup>6</sup> Ἦσαν δὲ τινες τῶν γραμματέων ἐκεῖ καθήμενοι, καὶ διαλογιζόμενοι ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις αὐτῶν, <sup>7</sup> 'Τί οὗτος οὕτω λαλεῖ βλασφημίας; τίς δύναται ἀφιέναι ἁμαρτίας, εἰ μὴ εἰς, ὁ Θεός;' <sup>8</sup> Καὶ εὐθέως ἐπιγινούς ὁ Ἰησοῦς τῷ πνεύματι αὐτοῦ, ὅτι οὕτως αὐτοῖς διαλογίζονται ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, εἶπεν αὐτοῖς, 'Τί ταῦτα διαλογίζεσθε ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις ὑμῶν; <sup>9</sup> τί ἐστὶν εὐκοπώτερον, εἰπεῖν τῷ παραλυτικῷ, Ἀφέωνταί σοι αἱ ἁμαρτίαι, ἢ εἰπεῖν, Ἐγείρε, | <sup>4</sup> ἄρον σου τὸν κράββατον, | καὶ περιπάτει; <sup>10</sup> ἴνα δὲ εἰδήτε, ὅτι ἐξουσίαν ἔχει ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς ἀφιέναι ἁμαρτίας, | λέγει τῷ παραλυτικῷ, <sup>11</sup> Σοὶ λέγω, ἔγειρε, | ἄρον τὸν κράββατόν σου, καὶ ἔπαγε εἰς τὸν οἶκόν σου.' <sup>12</sup> Καὶ ἠγέρθη εὐθέως, καὶ ἄρας τὸν κράββατον, ἐξῆλθεν ἐναντίον

<sup>5</sup> Rec. = αἰοῖ.

<sup>6</sup> Rec. σοι.

<sup>7</sup> Rec. Ἐγείραι.

<sup>8</sup> Rec. + καί.

<sup>9</sup> Alex. ἄρον τὸν κράββατόν σου.

<sup>10</sup> Rec. ἀφίαναι ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς ἁμαρτίας.

<sup>11</sup> Rec. ἔγειραι.

<sup>12</sup> Rec. + καί.

GENEVA — 1557.

<sup>43</sup> And after he had geuen hym a strayt commaundment, he sent hym away forthwith. <sup>44</sup> And said vnto him, See thou say nothing to any man, but get thee hence, and shewe thy selfe, to the Prieste, and offer for thy cleansing those things which Moses commaunded, for a testimonie vnto them. <sup>45</sup> But he assone as he was departed, began to tel many things, and to publishe the dede, insomuche that Iesus coulde no more openly entre into the cite, but was without in desert places. And they came to hym from euery quarter.

2. AFTER a fewe daies, he entred into Capernaum agayn, and it was noyced that he was in the house. <sup>2</sup> And anone, many gathered together, insomuch, that now there was no roome to receaue them, no, not so much as about the dore. And he preached the worde vnto them. <sup>3</sup> And there came vnto him, that broght one sycke of the palsey, borne of four men. <sup>4</sup> And because they coulde not come nye vnto hym for prease, they vncouered the rofe of the house where he was. And when they had broken it open, they let downe the bed, wherin the sycke of the palsey laye. <sup>5</sup> When Iesus saw theyr faith, he sayd to the sick of the palsey, Sonne thy synnes are forgeuen thee.

<sup>6</sup> And there were certayne of the Scribes, syttyng there, and reasonyng in their hartes, <sup>7</sup> Why doth this fellow so blasphemeth? Who can forgeue synnes, but God onely? <sup>8</sup> And immediatly when Iesus perceaued in hys spirite, that thus they thought with them selues, he sayd vnto them, Why reason ye these things in your hartes? <sup>9</sup> Whether is it easier to say to the sick of the palsey, Thy synnes are forgeuen thee: or to say, Arise, take vp thy bed, and walke. <sup>10</sup> And that ye may know, that the Sonne of man hath power in earth to forgeue synnes, he spake vnto the sick of the palsey. <sup>11</sup> I say vnto thee, Arise and take vp thy bed, and get thee hence into thine owne house. <sup>12</sup> And

RHEIMS — 1582.

<sup>43</sup> And he threatened him, and forthwith cast him forth. <sup>44</sup> and he saith to him, See thou tel no body: but goe, shew thy self to the high priest, and offer for thy cleansing the things that Moyses commaunded, for a testimonie to them.

<sup>45</sup> But he being gone forth, began to publish, and to blase abroad the vvord: so that novv he could not openly goe into the cite, but vvvas abroad in desert places, and they came together vnto him from al sides.

2. AND againe he entred into Capernaum after some daies, and it vvvas heard that he vvvas in the house, <sup>2</sup> and many came together, so that there vvvas no place no not at the doore, and he spake to them the vvword. <sup>3</sup> And they came to him bringing one sick of the palsey, vvho vvvas caried of foure. <sup>4</sup> And vvhen they could not offer him vnto him for the multitude, they vncouered the rooffe vvhere he vvvas: and opening it they did let downe the couche vvherin the sick of the palsey lay. <sup>5</sup> And vvhen Iesus had seen their faith, he saith to the sick of the palsey, Sonne, thy synnes are forgiuen thee. <sup>6</sup> And there vvvere certayne of the Scribes sitting there and thinking in their hartes, <sup>7</sup> Why doth he speake so? he blasphemeth. Who can forgiue synnes but onely God? <sup>8</sup> Which by and by Iesus knowing in hys spirit, that they so thought vvithin them selues, saith to them, Why thinke ye these things in your hartes? <sup>9</sup> Whether is easier, to say to the sick of the palsey, Thy synnes are forgiuen thee: or to say, Arise, take vp thy couche, and vvvalke? <sup>10</sup> But that you may know that the Sonne of man hath povver in earth to forgiue synnes (he saith to the sick of the palsey) <sup>11</sup> I say to thee, Arise, take vp thy couche, and goe into thy house. <sup>12</sup> And forthvvith he arose: and

AUTHORISED — 1611.

<sup>43</sup> And he straitly charged him, and forthwith sent him away, <sup>44</sup> And saith vnto him, See thou say nothing to any man: but goe thy way, shew thy selfe to the Priest, and offer for thy cleansing those things which Moses commaunded, for a testimony vnto them. <sup>45</sup> But he went out, and beganne to publish it much, and to blase abroad the matter: insomuch that Iesus could no more openly enter into the cite, but was without in desert places: and they came to him from euery quarter.

2. AND againe he entred into Capernaum after some daies, and it was noyced that he was in the house. <sup>2</sup> And straightway many were gathered together, insomuch that there was no roome to receiue them, no not so much as about the doore: and he preached the word vnto them. <sup>3</sup> And they came vnto him, bringing one sick of the palsey, which was borne of foure. <sup>4</sup> And when they could not come nigh vnto him for preasse, they vncouered the rooffe where he was: and when they had broken it vp, they let downe the bed wherin the sick of the palsey lay. <sup>5</sup> When Iesus saw their faith, hee said vnto the sick of the palsey, Sonne, thy synnes be forgiuen thee. <sup>6</sup> But there were certayne of the Scribes sitting there, and reasoning in their hearts, <sup>7</sup> Why doeth this man thus speake blasphemies? Who can forgiue synnes but God onely? <sup>8</sup> And immediatly, when Iesus perceiued in his Spirit, that they so reasoned within themselves, hee said vnto them, Why reason ye these things in your hearts? <sup>9</sup> Whether is it easier to say to the sick of the palsey, Thy synnes be forgiuen thee: or to say, Arise, and take vp thy bed and walke? <sup>10</sup> But that yee may know that the Sonne of man hath power on earth to forgiue synnes, (Hee saith to the sick of the palsey.) <sup>11</sup> I say vnto thee, Arise, & take vp thy bed, & goe thy way into thine house. <sup>12</sup> And immediatly hee πάντων ὥστε ἐξίστασθαι πάντας, καὶ δοξάζειν τὸν Θεὸν, λέγοντας, Ὅτι οὐδέ‘ ποτε οὕτως εἶδομεν.’

<sup>13</sup> Καὶ ἐξῆλθε πάλιν παρὰ τὴν θάλασσαν καὶ πᾶς ὁ ὄχλος ἤρχετο πρὸς αὐτὸν, καὶ ἐδίδασκεν αὐτούς. <sup>14</sup> Καὶ παράγον εἶδε Λευὴν τὸν τοῦ Ἀλφαιῶν, καθήμενον ἐπὶ τῷ τελευνῶνι, καὶ λέγει αὐτῷ, Ἐκολούθει μοι. Καὶ ἀναστὰς ἠκολούθησεν αὐτῷ.

<sup>15</sup> Καὶ ἐγένετο ἢ ἐν τῷ κατακείσθαι αὐτὸν ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ αὐτοῦ, καὶ πολλοὶ τελωνῶν καὶ ἁμαρτωλοὶ συνανέκειντο τῷ Ἰησοῦ καὶ τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ ἦσαν γὰρ πολλοὶ, καὶ ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ. <sup>16</sup> καὶ οἱ γραμματεῖς καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι, ἰδόντες αὐτὸν ἐσθίοντα μετὰ τῶν τελωνῶν καὶ ἁμαρτωλῶν, ἔλεγον τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, Τί ὅτι μετὰ τῶν τελωνῶν καὶ ἁμαρτωλῶν ἐσθίει καὶ πίνει; <sup>17</sup> Καὶ ἀκούσας ὁ Ἰησοῦς λέγει αὐτοῖς, Οὐ χρεῖαν ἔχουσιν οἱ ἰσχύοντες ἰατροῦ, ἀλλ’ οἱ κακῶς

<sup>13</sup> Alex. κατακείσθαι αὐτὸν.

<sup>13</sup> Alex. καὶ ἠκολούθησεν αὐτῷ καὶ οἱ γραμματεῖς τῶν Φαρισαίων καὶ ἰδόντες ἐστὶ ἔσθιει.
<sup>14</sup> Rec. + εἰς μετάνοιαν (cf. Luc. 5, 22.)

WICLIFF—1380.

hadde take the bedde he wente bifore alle men, so that alle men wondriden, & honour-eden god & seiden, of he saien neuer so.
<sup>13</sup> and he wente out eftsonne to the see and alle the puple camen to hym, and he tauȝte hem. <sup>14</sup> and whanne he passid, he saie leuwe of alfeye, sittynge at the tolbothe, and he seid to hym, sue me; and he roos and suede hym. <sup>15</sup> And it was don, whanne he sattu at the mete in his hous, many pupplices and synful men saten togidre at the mete with ihesus; and hise discipulis for there weren many that foloweden hym. <sup>16</sup> and scribis and farisies seynge that he ete with pupplices and synful men: seiden to hise discipulis/whi etith and drynkith ȝoure maistr with pupplices and synners? <sup>17</sup> whanne this was herde, ihesus seide to hem, hoole men han no nede to a leche: but thei that ben yuel at ese; for I can not to clepe iust men but synners.

<sup>15</sup> and the discipulis of Ion and the farisies weren fastynge: and thei comen and seien to hym, whi fasten the discipulis of Ion, and the farisies fasten; but thi discipulis fasten not? <sup>19</sup> and ihesus seide to hem, whether the sones of spouselis moun faste: as long as the spouse is with hem?
 as long tyme as thei han the spouse with hem, thei moun not faste; <sup>20</sup> but daies schulen come, whanne the spouse schal be taken awieie fro hem, and thanne thei schuln fast in tho daies.

<sup>21</sup> no man sewith a pacche of newe clothe to an oolde clothe; ellis he takith awei the newe pacche fro the oolde and more breking is made.
<sup>22</sup> and no man puttith newe wyne, into oolde botelis; ellis the wyn schal berst the botelis: and the wyne schal be sehed out, and the botelis schulen persiche; but newe
 wyne schal be putte in to newe botelis.

TYNDALE—1534.

by and by he arose, toke vp the bedde, and went forth before them all: in so moche that they were all amazed and glorified God sayinge: we never sawe it on this fasson.

<sup>13</sup> And he went agayne vnto the see, and all the people resorted vnto him, and he taught them. <sup>14</sup> And as Iesus passed by, he sawe Levy the sonne of Alphey, syt at the receyte of custome, and sayde vnto him: folowe me. And he arose and folowed him. <sup>15</sup> And it came to passe, as Iesus sate at meate in his housse, many pubicans and synners sate at meate also with Iesus and his discipules. For there were many that folowed him. <sup>16</sup> And when the Scribes and Pharises sawe him eate with publicans and synners, they sayde vnto his discipules: how is it, that he eateth and drynketh with publicans and synners? <sup>17</sup> When Iesus hearde that, he sayde vnto them. The whole have no nede of the phisicion, but the sicke. I came not to call the rightwys, but the synners to repentance.

<sup>15</sup> And the discipules of Iohn and the Pharises dyd faste: and therefore came and sayde vnto him. Why do the discipules of Iohn and of the Pharises faste, and thy discipules fast not. <sup>19</sup> And Iesus sayde vnto them: can the chyldren of a wed-dinge faste, whils the brydgrome is with them. As long as they have the bryd-grome with them, they cannot faste.
<sup>20</sup> But the dayes will come when the bryd-grome shalbe taken from them, and then shall they faste in those dayes.

<sup>21</sup> Also no man soweth a peece of newe cloth vnto an olde garment, for then taketh he awaye the newe peece from the olde; and so is the rent worse.

<sup>22</sup> In lyke wyse, no man poureth newe wyne in to olde vessels: for yf he do, the newe wyne breaketh the vessels; and the wyne runneth out, and the vessels are marred. But new wyne must be poured in to new vessels.

CRANMER—1539.

he arose, toke vp the bed, and went forth before them all: in so moch that they were all amazed, and glorified God, sayinge:
 we neuer sawe it on this fasson.

<sup>13</sup> And he went agayne vnto the see, and all the people resorted vnto him, and he taught them. <sup>14</sup> And as Iesus passed by,
 he sawe Levy the sonne of Alpheus, sytyng at the receyte of custome, and sayde vnto him: folowe me. And he arose, and folowed hym. <sup>15</sup> And it came to passe that when Iesus sate at meate in hys house, many publicans and synners sate also together at meate with Iesus and his discipules. For there were many, that folowed him. <sup>16</sup> And when the Scribes and Pharises sawe him eate with publicans and synners, they sayde vnto his discipules: how happeneth it, that he eateth, and drynketh with publicans and synners? <sup>17</sup> When Iesus hearde that, he sayde vnto them: They that be whole, haue no nede of the Phisyceon, but they that are sycke. I came not to call the ryghtwys, but synners to repentance.

<sup>15</sup> And the discipules of Iohn and the Pharises dyd fast: and they come and saye vnto him. Why do the discipules of Iohn and of the Pharises fast, but thy discipules fast not. <sup>19</sup> And Iesus sayde
 vnto them: can the chyldren of the wedd-dinge fast while the brydgrome is with them? As long as they haue the brydgrome with them, they cannot fast. <sup>20</sup> But the dayes wyll come, when the brydgrome shalbe taken awaye from them, and then shall they fast in those dayes.

<sup>21</sup> No man also soweth a peece of new cloth vnto an olde garment, els taketh he awaye the new peece therof from the olde, and so is the rent worse. <sup>22</sup> And no man poureth new wine into olde botels:
 els the new wynde doth burst the bottels, and the wyne runneth out, and the bottels are marred. But new wine must be putt into new botells.

salen, saw. oftime, again. toltothe, a booth in which daies of toll was taken. sue, follow. leche, physician. yuel at ese, ill at ease. clepe, call. spou-selis, spouses, or weddinges. poure, may.

ἔρχοντες. οὐκ ἦλθον καλέσαι δικαίους, ἀλλὰ ἁμαρτωλοὺς.<sup>k</sup> <sup>18</sup> Καὶ ἦσαν οἱ μαθηταὶ Ἰωάννου καὶ οἱ Ἰουδαῖοι ἠστυεύοντες· καὶ ἔρχονται καὶ λέγουσιν αὐτῷ, Ἐπεὶ τί οἱ μαθηταὶ Ἰωάννου καὶ οἱ τῶν Φαρισαίων ἠστυεύουσιν, οἱ δὲ σοὶ μαθηταὶ οὐ ἠστυεύουσιν; <sup>19</sup> Καὶ εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Ἰησοῦς, Μὴ δύναται οἱ υἱοὶ τοῦ νυμφῶνος, ἐν ᾧ ὁ νυμφίος μετ' αὐτῶν ἐστί, ἠστυεύειν; ὅσον χρόνον μεθ' ἐαυτῶν ἔχουσι τὸν νυμφίον, οὐ δύναται ἠστυεύειν <sup>20</sup> ἐλεύσονται δὲ ἡμέραι ὅταν ἀπαρθῇ ἀπ' αὐτῶν ὁ νυμφίος, καὶ τότε ἠστυεύουσιν ἐν <sup>m</sup> ἐκείνῃ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ. | <sup>21</sup> οὐδεὶς ἐπιβλήμα ῥάκους ἀγνάφου ἐπιβλήματι παλαιῷ· εἰ δὲ μὴ, αἶρει τὸ πλήρωμα αὐτοῦ τὸ καινὸν τοῦ παλαιοῦ, καὶ χεῖρον σχίσμα γίνεται. <sup>22</sup> καὶ οὐδεὶς βάλλει οἶνον νέον εἰς ἀσκοὺς παλαιούς· εἰ δὲ μὴ, ῥήσσει ὁ οἶνος <sup>q</sup> ὁ νέος | τοὺς ἀσκοὺς, καὶ ὁ οἶνος ἐκχεῖται καὶ οἱ ἀσκοὶ ἀπολούνται· ἀλλὰ οἶνον νέον εἰς ἀσκοὺς και-

<sup>k</sup> Rec. τῶν Φαρισαίων.<sup>m</sup> Rec. ἐκείνας τὰς ἡμέρας (cf. Luc. 5, 32.)<sup>n</sup> Rec. + καὶ.<sup>q</sup> Alex. ἡμίον παλαιῶν.<sup>r</sup> Alex. ῥήξει.

cf. Alex. = ὁ νέος.

GENEVA—1557.

by and by he arose, toke vp his bed, and went forth before them all : insomuche, that they were all amazed, and glorified God, saying, We neuer sawe suche a thinge. <sup>13</sup> Then he went agayne vnto the sea, and all the people resorted vnto him, and he taught them. <sup>14</sup> And as Iesus passed by, he sawe Leui the sonne of Alphaeus syt at the receyte of custome, and sayd vnto him, Folowe me. And he arose and folowed hym. <sup>15</sup> And it came to passe, as Iesus sate at meat in his house, many publicans and synners sate at meat also with Iesus, and his disciples : for there were many that folowed him.

<sup>16</sup> And when the Scribes and Pharises saw him eat with publicans and synners, they sayd vnto his disciples, How is it, that he eateth and drincketh with Publicans and synners? <sup>17</sup> And when Iesus heard that, he sayd vnto them, The whole haue no neede of the phisition, but the sycke. I came not to call the ryghteous, but the synners to repentance. <sup>18</sup> And the disciples of Iohn, and the Pharises dyd fast : and came and sayd vnto him, Why do the disciples of Iohn and of the Pharises fast, and thy disciples fast not? <sup>19</sup> And Iesus sayd vnto them, Can the children of the weddyng fast, whyles the bridegrome is with them? as long as they haue the bridegrome with them, they can not fast. <sup>20</sup> But the daies wil come, when the brydegrome shalbe taken from them, and then shal they fast in those daies.

<sup>21</sup> Also no man soweth a peece of newe and vndressed cloth in an olde garment, for then that newe peece taketh away from the olde, and so is the breache worse.

<sup>22</sup> In lykewyse, no man powreth newe wyne into olde vessels, for if he do, the newe wyne breaketh the vessels, and the wyne runneth out, and the vessels are lost. But newe wyne must be powred into

RHEIMS—1582.

taking vp his couche, vvent his vvvay in the sight of al, so that al marueled, and glorified God, saying, That vve neuer saw the like.

<sup>13</sup> And he vvent forth againe to the sea : and all the multitude came to him, and he taught them. <sup>14</sup> And vvhē he passed by, he saw Leui of Alphaeus sitting at the custome place : and he saith to him, Folovv me. And rising vp he folovved him. <sup>15</sup> And it came to passe, as he sate at meate in his house, many Publicans and sinners did sit dovvn together vvith Iesus and his Disciples, for they vvere many, vvho also folovved him. <sup>16</sup> And the Scribes and the Pharises seeing that he did eate vvith Publicans and Sinners, saith to his Disciples, Why doth your Maister eate and drinke vvith Publicans and sinners? <sup>17</sup> Iesus hearing this, saith to them, The vvhole haue not neede of a Physicion, but they that are ill at case, for I came not to call the iust, but sinners.

<sup>18</sup> And the disciples of Iohn and the Pharises did vse to fast : and they come, and say to him, Why do the disciples of Iohn and of the Pharises fast : but thy disciples do not fast? <sup>19</sup> And Iesus said to them, Why, can the children of the marriage fast, as long as the bridegrome is vvith them? So long time as they haue the bridegrome vvith them, they can not fast. <sup>20</sup> But the daies vvil come vvhen the bridegrome shal be taken away from them : and then they shal fast in those daies.

<sup>21</sup> No body sovverth a peece of ravy cloth to an old garment : otherwise he taketh away the nevve peeceing from the old, and there is made a greater rent. <sup>22</sup> And no body putteth nevve vyne into old bottels : otherwise the vyne bursteth the bottels, and the vyne vvil be shed, and the bottels vvil be lost. But nevve vyne must be put into nevve bottels.

AUTHORISED—1611.

arose, tooke vp the bed, and went forth before them all, insomuch that they were all amazed, and glorified God, saying, We neuer saw it on this fashion. <sup>15</sup> And he went fourth againe by the Sea side, and all the multitude resorted vnto him, and he taught them. <sup>14</sup> And as he passed by, he saw Leui the son of Alphaeus sitting at the recit of Custome, and said vnto him, Follow me. And he arose, and followed him. <sup>15</sup> And it came to passe, that as Iesus sate at meate in his house, many Publicanes and sinners sate also together with Iesus and his disciples : for there were many, and they followed him. <sup>16</sup> And when the Scribes and Pharises saw him eate with Publicanes and sinners, they said vnto his disciples, How is it that hee eateth and drinkeh with Publicanes and sinners? <sup>17</sup> When Iesus heard it, he saith vnto them, They that are whole, haue no neede of the Physician but they that are sicke : I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.

<sup>18</sup> And the disciples of Iohn, and of the Pharises vsed to fast : and they come, and say vnto him, Why doe the disciples of Iohn, and of the Pharises fast, but thy disciples fast not? <sup>19</sup> And Iesus said vnto them, Can the children of the bride-chamber fast, while the Bridegrome is with them? As long as they haue the Bridegrome with them, they cannot fast. <sup>20</sup> But the daies will come, when the Bridegrome shall be taken away from them, and then shall they fast in those daies. <sup>21</sup> No man also soweth a peece of new cloth on an old garment : else the new peece that filled it vp, taketh away from the old, and the rent is made worse. <sup>22</sup> And no man putteth new wine into old bottels, else the new wine doth burst the bottels, and the wine is spilled, and the bottels will be marred : But new wine must be put into new bottels.

<sup>a</sup> Or at the place where the Custome was received.<sup>b</sup> Or, raw, or vngrought.

‘ νους βλητέον.’ <sup>23</sup> Καὶ ἐγένετο παραπορεύεσθαι αὐτὸν ἐν τοῖς σαββασι διὰ τῶν σπορίμων, καὶ ἤρξαντο οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ὁδοῦ ποιεῖν τίλλοντες τοὺς στάχτας. <sup>24</sup> καὶ οἱ Φαρισαῖοι ἔλεγον αὐτῷ, ‘ Ἴδε, τί ποιοῦσιν <sup>8</sup> ἐν τοῖς σάββασι, ὃ οὐκ ἔξεστι;’ <sup>25</sup> Καὶ αὐτὸς ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, ‘ Οὐδέποτε ἀνέγνωτε, τί ἐποίησε Δαυὶδ, ὅτε χρεῖαν ἔσχε καὶ ἐπέινασεν αὐτὸς καὶ οἱ μετ’ αὐτοῦ; <sup>26</sup> πῶς εἰσῆλθεν εἰς τὸν οἶκον τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐπὶ Ἀβιάθαρ τοῦ ἀρχιερέως, καὶ τοὺς ἄρτους τῆς προθέσεως ἔφαγεν, οὓς οὐκ ἔξεστι φαγεῖν εἰ μὴ τοῖς ἱερέυσι, καὶ ἔδωκε καὶ τοῖς σὺν αὐτῷ οὔσι;’ <sup>27</sup> Καὶ ἔλεγεν αὐτοῖς, ‘ Τὸ σάββατον διὰ τὸν ἄνθρωπον ἐγένετο, οὐχ ὁ ἄνθρωπος διὰ τὸ σάββατον. <sup>28</sup> ὥστε κύριός ἐστιν ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου καὶ τοῦ σαββάτου.’

III. Καὶ εἰσῆλθε πάλιν εἰς τὴν συναγωγὴν, καὶ ἦν ἐκεῖ ἄνθρωπος ἐξηραμ-

<sup>8</sup> Alex. οἱ μαθηταὶ αὐτοῦ ἤρξαντο.

<sup>8</sup> Alex. + οἱ μαθηταὶ σου.

<sup>8</sup> Alex. = iv.

<sup>8</sup> Const. ἐπὶ Ἀβιάθαρ ἀρχιερέως.

WICLIFF—1380.

<sup>23</sup> And it was done eftsones, whanne the lord walkide in the sabotis bi the cornes and hise discipils bigunne to passe forth: and plucke eris of the corne, <sup>24</sup> and the farises seiden to hym, lo what thi discipils doon in sabotis that is not leful

<sup>25</sup> and he seide to hem, redde se neuere, what Dauith hude! whanne he hadde nede? ⁊ he hunge and thei that weren with hym? <sup>26</sup> hou he wente in to the hous of god vndir abiathar prince of prestis: and ete lounes of propocionum, whiche it was not leful to ete but to prestis alone; and he gaf to hem that weren with hym, <sup>27</sup> and he seide to hem, the sabote is made for man: and not a man for the sabot, <sup>28</sup> And so mannes sone is also lord of the saboth.

3. AND he entrid eftson in to the synagoge; and there was a man hauynge a drye honde, <sup>2</sup> and thei aspieden hym, if he heelde in the sabotis to accuse hym; <sup>3</sup> and he seide to the man that hadde a drye honde, rise in to the mydd, <sup>4</sup> and he seith to hem: it is leful to do wel in the saboth, ether yuel? to make a soule saaf, ether to lese? and thei weren stille; <sup>5</sup> and he biheelde hem aboute with wrathle, and hadde sorowe on the blyndnesse of her herte; and seith to the man, holde forth thin honde; and he heelde forth and his honde was restored to hym;

<sup>6</sup> sotheli farises joden oute anon and made a counceille with crodians agens hym: hou thei schulen lese hym; <sup>7</sup> but ihesus with hise discipils wenten to the see; and myche puple fro galilee and ludce suden hym: <sup>8</sup> and fro ierusalem and fro Idume and fro biyende Iordane; and they that weren aboute tyre and sidon

<sup>8</sup> oftones again. sabotis, sabbath. lounes of propocionum, panis propocionum, akes bread. lewful, lawful. ⁊ set, evil. lese, destroy. her, their. sotheli, truly. Ien, Ieruz. Idum, Idum. suden, followed. Iordn, Jor. beyond.

TYNDALE—1534.

<sup>23</sup> And it chanced that he went thorow, the corne felde on the Saboth daye: and his disciples as they went on their waye, beganne to plucke the eares of corne. <sup>24</sup> And the Pharises sayde vnto him: beholde, why do they on the Saboth dayes that which is not lawfull? <sup>25</sup> And he sayde to them: have ye never rede what David dyd, when he had nede, and was anongred, bothe he and they that were with him? <sup>26</sup> How he went into the house of God in the dayes of Abiathar the hye preste, and dyd eate the halowed loaves, which is not lawfull to eate; but for the prestes only: and gave also to them which were with him? <sup>27</sup> And he sayde to them: the Saboth daye was made for man, and not man for the Saboth daye. <sup>28</sup> Wherefore the sonne of man is Lorde even of the Saboth daye.

3. AND he entred agayne into the synagoge; and there was a man there which had a withred honde. <sup>2</sup> And they watched him to see, whether he wolde heale him on the Saboth daye, that they might accuse him. <sup>3</sup> And he sayde vnto the man which had the wyddred honde: arise and stonde in the middes. <sup>4</sup> And he sayd to them: whether is it lawfull to do a good dede on the Saboth dayes, or an evyll? to save life or kyll? But they helde their peace. <sup>5</sup> And he loked round aboute on them angerly, mournynge on the blindnes of their hertes; and sayde to the man: stretch forth thyne honde. And he stretched it oute. And his honde was restored, even as whole as the other.

<sup>6</sup> And the Pharises departed, and streyght waye gaddred a counsell with them that belonged to Herode agaynst him; that they might destroye him. <sup>7</sup> And Iesus auoyded with his disciples to the sea. And a greate multitude folowed him from Galile and from Iurie, <sup>8</sup> and from Hierusalem; and from Idume; and from beyonde Iordane: and they that dwelled about Tyre and Sidon; a greate multitude: which

CRANMER—1539.

<sup>23</sup> And it chanced (agayne) that he went thorow the corne felde on the Sabboth dayes, and his disciples, beganne by the waye to plucke the eares of corne. <sup>24</sup> And the Pharises sayde vnto him: beholde, why do they on the Sabboth dayes, that which is not lawfull? <sup>25</sup> And he sayde vnto them: haue ye neuer red what David dyd, when he had nede, and was anongred, both he, and they that were with him? <sup>26</sup> How he went into the house of God in the dayes of Abiathar the hye Preast, and dyd eate the shewbread, (which is not lawfull to eate, but for the Prestes onely) and gaue also to them which were with him?

<sup>27</sup> And he sayde vnto them: the Sabboth was made for man, and not man for the Sabboth. <sup>28</sup> Therefore is the sonne of man, Lorde also of the Sabboth.

3. AND he entred agayne into the synagoge, and there was a man there which had a withred hande. <sup>2</sup> And they watched him, whether he wolde heale him on the Sabboth daye, that they might accuse him. <sup>3</sup> And he sayde vnto the man which had the wythred hande: arise, and stande in the middes. <sup>4</sup> And he sayth vnto them, whether it is lawfull to do good on the Sabboth dayes, or to do euyl? to saue life, or to kyll? But they helde their peace. <sup>5</sup> And when he had looked round aboute on them, with anger, mournynge on the blyndnes of their hertes, he sayeth to the man, stretch forth thine hande. And he stretched it out. And his hande was restored, euen as whole as the other.

<sup>6</sup> And the Pharises departed, and streyght waye gathred a counsell (with them that belonged to Herode) agaynst him, that they might destroye him. <sup>7</sup> But Iesus auoyded with his disciples to the see. And a greate multitude folowed him from Galile: and from Iurie, <sup>8</sup> and from Ierusalem, and from Idume, and from beyonde Iordane, and they that dwelled about Tyre and Sidon, a greate multitude of men:

μείνη ἔχων τὴν χεῖρα·<sup>2</sup> καὶ παρεθήρουν αὐτὸν εἰ τοῖς σάββασιν θεραπεύσει αὐτὸν, ἵνα κατηγορήσωσιν αὐτοῦ.<sup>3</sup> καὶ λέγει τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ τῷ ἐξηραμμένῳ ἔχοντι τὴν χεῖρα, “Ἐγειρε| εἰς τὸ μέσον.”<sup>4</sup> Καὶ λέγει αὐτοῖς, “Ἐξεστι τοῖς σάββασιν ἀγαθοποιῆσαι, ἢ κακοποιῆσαι; ψυχὴν σῶσαι, ἢ ἀποκτεῖναι; Οἱ δὲ ἐσιώπων.<sup>5</sup> καὶ περιβλεψάμενος αὐτοὺς μετ’ ὀργῆς, συλλυπούμενος ἐπὶ τῇ πωρόσει τῆς καρδίας αὐτῶν, λέγει τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ, “Ἐκτεινον τὴν χεῖρά σου.” Καὶ ἐξέτεινε, καὶ ἀπεκατεστάθη| ἡ χεῖρ αὐτοῦ.<sup>6</sup> Καὶ ἐξελθόντες οἱ Φαρισαῖοι εὐθέως μετὰ τῶν Ἡρωδιανῶν συμβούλιον ἔποιουν| κατ’ αὐτοῦ, ὅπως αὐτὸν ἀπολέσωσι.

<sup>7</sup> Καὶ ὁ Ἰησοῦς ἀνεχώρησε μετὰ τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ| πρὸς τὴν θάλασσαν καὶ πολὺ πλῆθος ἀπὸ τῆς Γαλιλαίας ἠκολούθησαν αὐτῷ, καὶ ἀπὸ τῆς Ἰουδαίας,<sup>8</sup> καὶ ἀπὸ Ἱερουσολύμων, καὶ ἀπὸ τῆς Ἰδουμαίας, καὶ πέραν τοῦ Ἰορδάνου· καὶ οἱ

<sup>2</sup> Rec. Ἐγειρα. <sup>3</sup> Rec. ἀποκατεστάθη. <sup>4</sup> Rec. + ἵστησι ὡς ἡ ἀλλη. <sup>5</sup> Alex. ἰδῶν. <sup>6</sup> Alex. μετὰ τῶν μαθητῶν αὐτοῦ ἀνεχώρησεν.

GENEVA—1557.

new vessels. <sup>23</sup> And it chanced that he went through the corne fields on the Sabbath day: and his disciples as they went in their way, began to plucke the eares of corne. <sup>24</sup> And the Pharises said vnto him, Beholde, why do they on the Sabbath dayes, that which is not lawfull?

<sup>25</sup> And he sayd to them, Haue ye neuer read what Dauid dyd, when he had nede, and was an hungred, bothe he, and they that were with him? <sup>26</sup> How he went into the house of God, in the dayes of Abiathar the hye Priest, and dyd eat the Shewe loaves, which were not lawfull to eat, but for the Priestes onely: and gaue also to them which were with him? <sup>27</sup> And he sayd to them, The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath. <sup>28</sup> Wherefore the Sonne of man is Lord, euen of the Sabbath day.

3. AND he entred agayne into the Synagoge, and there was a man which had a wythered hand. <sup>2</sup> And they watched hym, whether he would heale him on the Sabbath day, that they might accuse him. <sup>3</sup> And he said vnto the man which had the wythered hand, Arise, and stand in the myddes. <sup>4</sup> And he sayd to them, Whether is it lawfull to do a good dede on the Sabbath day, or an euyl? to saue the lyfe, or to kyl? But they held their peace: <sup>5</sup> And he looked round about on them angerly, mournynge also for the hardenes of their hartes, and sayd to the man, Stretche forth thyne hand: and he stretched it out: and his hand was restored, euen as whole as the other. <sup>6</sup> And the Pharises departed, and straight waye gathered a council with them that belonged to Herode agaynst him, that they might destroye him.

<sup>7</sup> And Iesus auoyded with his disciples to the sea. And a great multitude folowed hym from Galile, and from Iurie, <sup>8</sup> And from Ierusalem, and from Idumea, and from byonde Iordan, and from they that dwelled about Tyre and Sidon, when they

RHEIMS—1582.

<sup>23</sup> And it came to passe agayne vwhen he vwalked through the corne on the Sabbath, and his Disciples began to goe forward and to plucke the eares. <sup>24</sup> And the Pharisees said to him, Behold, vwhy do they on the Sabbath that vwhich is not lawfull?

<sup>25</sup> And he said to them, Did you neuer read vwhat Dauid did, vwhen he vvvas in necessitie, and him self vvvas an hungred and they that vvvere vwith him? <sup>26</sup> hovv he entred into the house of God vnder Abiathar the high Priest, and did eate the loaves of Proposition, vwhich it vvvas not lawfull to eate but for the Priests, and did giue vnto them vwhich vvvere vwith him? <sup>27</sup> And he said to them, The Sabbath vvvas made for man, and not man for the Sabbath. <sup>28</sup> Therefore the sonne of man is Lord of the Sabbath also.

3. AND he entred agayne into the Synagoge, and there vvvas a man there that had a vvwithered hand. <sup>2</sup> And they vvwatched him vvwhether he vvould cure on the Sabbath: that they might accuse him. <sup>3</sup> And he saith to the man that had the vvwithered hand, Rise vp into the middes. <sup>4</sup> And he saith to them, Is it lawfull on the Sabbath to doe vvvel or il? to saue a soule, or to destroy? but they held their peace. <sup>5</sup> And looking round about vpon them vvwith anger, being sororvvful for the blindenes of their hart, he saith to the man, Stretch forth thy hand. And he stretched it forth: and his hand vvvas restored vnto him.

<sup>6</sup> And the Pharisees going forth, immediately made a consultation vvith the Herodians against him hovv they might destroy him. <sup>7</sup> But Iesus vvwith his Disciples retired to the sea: and a great multitude from Galilee and Ievrie folowed him, <sup>8</sup> and from Hierusalem, and from Idumæa, and beyond Iordan. And they about Tyre and Sidon, a great

AUTHORISED—1611.

<sup>23</sup> And it came to passe, that he went throw the corne fields on the Sabbath day, and his disciples began as they went, to plucke the eares of corne. <sup>24</sup> And the Pharisees saide vnto him, Behold, why do they on the Sabbath day that which is not lawfull? <sup>25</sup> And he said vnto them, Haue yee neuer read what Dauid did, when he had need, and was an hungred, he, and they that were with him? <sup>26</sup> How hee went into the house of God in the dayes of Abiathar the high Priest, and did eate the Shew-bread, which is not lawfull to eate, but for the Priests, and gaue also to them which were with him? <sup>27</sup> And hee said vnto them, The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath: <sup>28</sup> Therefore the Sonne of man is Lord also of the Sabbath.

3. AND he entred agayne into the Synagoge, and there was a man there which had a withered hand: <sup>2</sup> And they watched him, whether he would heale him on the Sabbath day, that they might accuse him. <sup>3</sup> And he saith vnto the man which had the withered hand, Stand fourth. <sup>4</sup> And he saith vnto them, Is it lawfull to doe good on the Sabbath dayes, or to doe euill? to saue life, or to kill? but they held their peace. <sup>5</sup> And when he had looked round about on them with anger, being grieved for the hardness of their hearts, He saith vnto the man, Stretch fourth thine hand. And he stretched it out: and his hand was restored whole as the other. <sup>6</sup> And the Pharisees went forth, and straightway tooke counsel with the Herodians against him, how they might destroy him. <sup>7</sup> But Iesus withdrew himselfe with his disciples to the Sea: and a great multitude from Galilee followed him, and from Iudea, <sup>8</sup> And from Hierusalem, and from Idumea, and from beyond Iordane, and they about Tyre and Sydon, a great multitude, when

* Or, blindness.

περὶ Τύρον καὶ Σιδῶνα, πλήθος πολὺ, ἀκούσαντες ὅσα ἐποίει, ἦλθον πρὸς αὐτόν. <sup>9</sup> καὶ εἶπε τοῖς μαθηταῖς αὐτοῦ, ἵνα πλοιάριον προσκαρτερῇ αὐτῷ, διὰ τὸν ὄχλον, ἵνα μὴ θλίβωσιν αὐτόν. <sup>10</sup> πολλοὺς γὰρ ἑθεράπευσεν, ὥστε ἐπίπτευν αὐτῷ, ἵνα αὐτοῦ ἀψῶνται, ὅσοι εἶχον μάλιστα. <sup>11</sup> καὶ τὰ πνεύματα τὰ ἀκάθαρτα, ὅταν αὐτὸν <sup>a</sup> ἐθεώρει, | <sup>b</sup> προσέπιπτευν | αὐτῷ, καὶ ἔκραζε, | λέγοντα, 'Ὅτι σὺ εἶ ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ.' <sup>12</sup> Καὶ πολλὰ ἐπέτιμα αὐτοῖς, ἵνα μὴ <sup>c</sup> φανερὸν αὐτὸν | <sup>e</sup> ποιήσωσι. | <sup>13</sup> Καὶ ἀναβαίνει εἰς τὸ ὄρος, καὶ προσκαλεῖται οὓς ἠθέλεν αὐτός· καὶ ἀπῆλθον πρὸς αὐτόν. <sup>14</sup> καὶ ἐποίησε δώδεκα; <sup>f</sup> ἵνα ὡσι | μετ' αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἵνα ἀποστέλλῃ αὐτοὺς κηρύσσειν, <sup>15</sup> καὶ ἔχειν ἐξουσίαν θεραπεύειν τὰς νόσους, καὶ ἐκβάλλειν τὰ δαιμόνια. <sup>16</sup> καὶ ἐπέθηκε <sup>g</sup> τῷ Σίμωνι ὄνομα | Πέτρον· <sup>17</sup> καὶ Ἰάκωβον τὸν τοῦ Ζεβεδαίου, καὶ Ἰωάννην τὸν ἀδελφὸν

<sup>a</sup> Alex. ἰθαίρων.<sup>b</sup> Alex. προσπίπτων.<sup>c</sup> Alex. ἐκράζων.<sup>d</sup> Rec. αὐτὸν φανερὸν.

Const. φανερόν αὐτόν.

<sup>e</sup> Alex. ποιῶσι.

WICLIIF—1380.

a greet multitude heryngre the thingis that he hidde camen to hym,

<sup>9</sup> and ihesus seide to hise discipulis: that the boot schulde serue hym for the puple, leest thi thristen him, <sup>10</sup> for he heclide many so that thei fillen fast to hym: to touche hym; and hou many euer hadden sikenessis <sup>11</sup> and vnclene spiritis whanne thei saien hym fil down to hym, ⁊ crieden seinyng, thou arte the sone of god, <sup>12</sup> and greetli he manasside hem: that thei schulden not make him knowun;

<sup>13</sup> ⁊ he wente in to an hille and clepid to hym whom he wolde, and thei camen to hym, <sup>14</sup> and he made that there weren twelue with hym: to sende hem to preche, <sup>15</sup> and he gaf to hem power to hele sikenessis, and to cast out fendis; <sup>16</sup> and to Symounde he gaf a name Petir, <sup>17</sup> and he clepide James of zebedei, and Iohn the brothere of James: and he gaf to hem names Boenarges that is sones of thundryng, <sup>18</sup> and he clepide Andrewe, and Filip, and Bartilmewe and Mathewe and Thomas and James afeie and Taddece and Symounde Canane, <sup>19</sup> and Iudas Scarioth that hitraide hym ⁊ the: comen to an hous

<sup>20</sup> and the puple come to gidre eftson: so that thei mysten not cete brede, <sup>21</sup> and whanne hise kynnesmen hadden herde: thei wenten out to holde hym, for thei seiden, that he is turnede in to wodeness; <sup>22</sup> and the scribis that camen down for ierusalem: seiden that he hath belsabbub; and that in the prince of deuclis he castith out fendis, <sup>23</sup> ⁊ he clepid hem to gidre and he seide to hem parabis, hou mai sathanas cast out sathanas? <sup>24</sup> and if a rewme be departide agaynst it self, thilke rewme mai not stonde; <sup>25</sup> and if an hous be dispartide on it self: that hou, boot manasside, manard, clepid, called, gaf, gave, fivone, again, wodness, madnes, rewme, realm, thilke that, dispartide, scattered.

TYNDALE—1534.

when they had herde what thinges he dyd, came vnto him.

